Three bars earn perfect ratings from Health Dept.

Three Carbondale taverns and lounges achieved perfect scores in the latest Jackson County Health Department inspections.

And, for the second consecutive month, all 15 liquor establishments inspected scored well above minimum health department standards.

Results of the latest inspections, conducted in April, show that Melvin's, 210 W. Freeman St., The Bleu Flambe, 801 E. Main St., and The American Legion Post, 205 N. Illinois Ave., each received 100 points—the maximum under health department guidelines. It was the fourth consecutive time The American Legion Post earned a perfect score.

Silverball, 611 S. Illinois Ave., missed a perfect score by one point, while Spanish Key, 622 E. Main St., scored two points below perfection. The lowest score—four points above minimum standards—was given to LBJ Steakhouse, 119 N. Washington St.

Health scores are based on 100 points, with deductions of up to five points taken off for certain violations. Generally, an establishment must score more than 85 points to meet minimum health department requirements.

Specific scores for April were: American Legion—100, no change since its last previous inspection. Bleu Flambe—100, a gain to two points since its last previous inspection.

Buffalo Bob's, 101 W. College St.—93, a loss of two points since its last previous inspection.

Das Fass, 517 S. Illinois Ave.—93, a loss of two points since its last previous inspection.

The Dugout, 101 W. Monroe St.—92, a loss of four points since its last previous inspection.

Plans to build golf course scrapped

An 18-hole golf course will not be built on campus. The University has ended negotiations with a developer from Indiana, who said he would construct the course and condominium on 250 acres of land south of the main campus.

But the developer, Richard Heath of Evansville, said he is still considering four or five other sites in the area for the project.

Heath and President Warren Brandt announced the scrapping of plans for the proposed course in a press conference Monday, blaming "unanticipated costs of land acquisition and University land development."

"The two parties reluctantly decided to end the cooperative venture," which was first disclosed in December, according to a University statement.

Brandt said the process of leasing University property to a private developer hampered the negotiations with Heath, owner of the Oak Meadow Country Club in Evansville.

Heath said costs of acquiring a privately owned piece of land within the campus plot for a condominium complex were far beyond his expectations.

He also cited the "complications" of leasing public land to a private developer and problems with zoning and drainage of the site.

Heath's plans called for the construction of the course and condominium complex on land near University House. Heath was to have paid for the building of the course, estimated between $600,000 and $1 million. No state funds were to be used.

Under a tentative agreement, Heath was to lease the land from the University for about $1 a year for 40 years. When the lease expired, the course was to revert back to SIU.

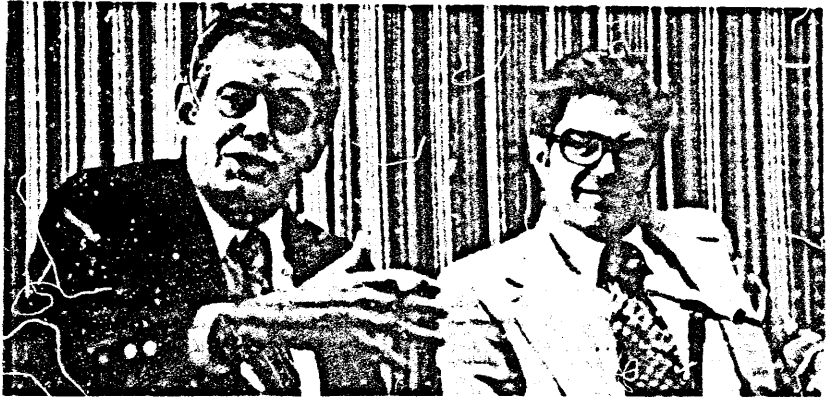

The condominium complex, which was to include a dining hall, pro shop and locker rooms, would be owned and operated by Heath.

Heath said Monday he is considering purchasing one of four or five parcels of land in Jackson or Williamson counties for the course.

He declined to name the sites, but said work should begin within 60 days.

"We still plan to build the Saluki National and we still plan to offer the same benefits to the University," Heath said. "We want to be part of the community."

The benefits from the new course would include: Free use by the University golf teams a discount in course. But Heath said he still plans to construct a course in Jackson or Williamson counties. (Staff photo by Brent Cramer) greens fees for physical education teachers and classes and donation of 25 percent of the greens fees to the SIU Foundation.

"The only difference is that it doesn't revert back to the University after 40 years. Anyway, I don't know if they would want it," Heath said, noting the high price—about $125,000 a year—of maintaining the course.

"The only difference in our mind is that we aren't building on University land," Heath said. "The University has been super."

Brandt said that depending on how Heath's plans go for a new course in the area, SIU may still seek an outside developer to build a course on campus.

"The desirability of the project remains," Brandt said.

Brandt added that the University might "have some conversations" with private developers in the next two months. But if Heath begins construction of a course in the area, Brandt said it would be "difficult" to find a developer interested in building another campus course.

Brandt also said the University has no immediate plans for the course.

"The golf course plan faced opposition from a campus group called Students for Students, which sent protest letters to Board of Trustees members and collected signatures on petitions opposing the project.

But Brandt said the group had little effect on the decision to call off further negotiations.

"I don't recall that they raised any objection of enough concern to impact the project," Brandt said.

Oregon group seeks repeal of homosexual rights law

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—In this university city, the campaign to repeal a homosexual rights law is doing without outside aid and quotations from the Bible.

Instead, the repeal group says homosexuality is only a lifestyle—a question of choice, which the law has no business protecting.

When the matter comes up for a vote May 23, it will be the fourth such repeal referendum to go before voters in cities that have adopted homosexual rights ordinances in the last several years.

In Miami, Fla., and in St. Paul, Minn., repeal efforts led by fundamentalist ministers have achieved lopsided success. In Wichita, Kan., a similar movement has forced a vote this Tuesday. All those drives relied heavily on arguments that homosexuality is immoral.

But this campaign is different. It argues, primarily, that homosexuality simply is not like race or religion.

"We think it's a lifestyle question," said Larry Deven, campaign manager for VOICE (Volunteers Organized in Continuing Enactments). "We've never seen legislation passed to protect a lifestyle. It's not a legislative issue."

Eugene, a city of about 100,000, is home to the University of Oregon. The amendment, which added sexual orientation to the list of categories for which the city's civil rights ordinance forbids discrimination, passed the City Council last November.

More Amtrak cars planned to combat exodus from C'dale

Students will begin heading home to summer vacations and jobs next week following final examinations which mark the official end of spring semester.

Finals began Monday and will end Saturday, the day also designated for spring commencement exercises at the Arena. More than 4,300 students will graduate.

Amtrak plans to add additional baggage cars to the two trains servicing Carbondale for points north beginning Tuesday. Additional passenger coaches are planned for the Thursday and Friday runs.

For students remaining in Carbondale during break, the Student Recreation Center will be open from 10:30 a.m. until 10 p.m. daily. Family night hours will be 5 to 10 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, except for Memorial Day, throughout break.

The summer session begins Monday, June 12, and the Recreation Building will be open at 7 a.m. Monday through Friday and at 9:30 a.m. on weekends for the duration of the session. The building will close each night at 10 p.m.

The Student Center has not set summer session or break hours, but will sponsor a Mother's Day buffet Sunday, May 14, from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. before closing for the day.

Gus Bode

Gus says if Heath does build 18 holes off-campus they'll probably make it sophomore approved housing.

Mondale to speak at Student Center for Simon dinner

Vice President Walter Mondale will be joined by entertainer Eddie Albert at a testimonial dinner for Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, at SIU.

In making the announcement, Simon said he was grateful to the vice president for agreeing to attend the dinner, adding that Mondale had helped out with an appearance in Southern Illinois during Simon's first campaign for Congress in 1974.

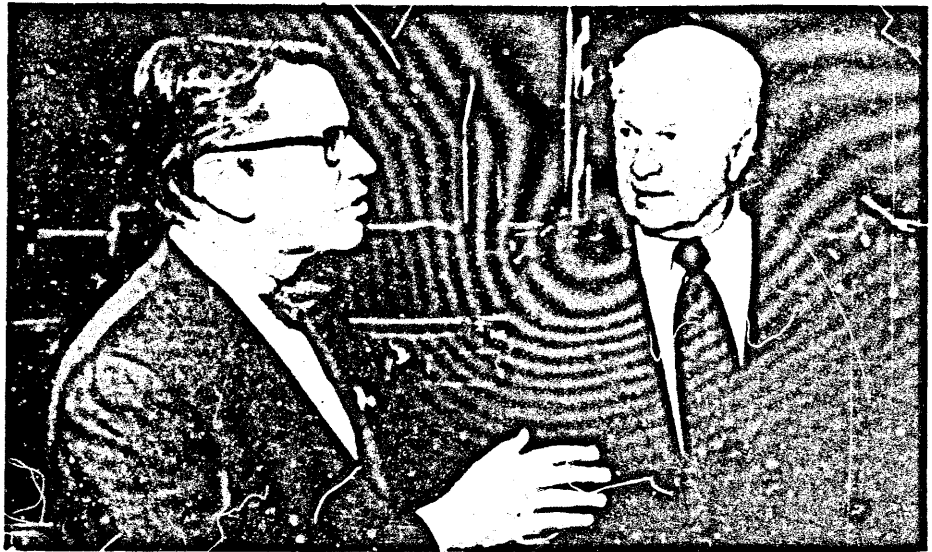

Albert, a native of Illinois, is widely known for his roles in the popular television shows "Green Acres" and "Switch." In addition to being an entertainer, he is also an organic farmer.

Albert was a guest speaker last year at one of Simon's monthly Capitol Hill breakfast meetings designed to acquaint congressmen with world population and hunger problems.

Albert will give a brief speech before introducing Mondale.

The dinner will be held from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in the ballrooms of the Student Center.

Tickets are $25 per person and are available through county Democratic organizations.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, left, talks with entertainer Eddie Albert. Albert will join Vice President Walter Mondale at a testimonial dinner for Simon May 20 in the Student Center ballrooms.

Youth employment project fights teen joblessness

By Bruce Rodman
Staff Writer

Attacking unemployment among teenagers is the purpose of the Jackson County Youth Services Bureau's Employment Project.

The aim of the project, open to all Jackson County residents of ages 13 to 18, is to match employable youths with prospective employers, says employment counselor Bill Parrilli.

The program was started in the fall of 1977. Parrilli said there are now more than 200 youths in the program, and 129 have been placed in jobs thus far.

The jobs range from temporary yard work to part-time restaurant work. Parrilli said that in most cases, if an employer or person in the community calls, someone will be there to fill the job.

"One of the main reasons the employment program was started is the Youth Services Bureau's philosophy: diverting juveniles from the courts and police," Parrilli said.

The program is open to all Jackson County youths. Parrilli said the project does set up priorities, and a disadvantaged youth may get a job before someone else.

"A lot of the kids in the program don't have enough money to make small purchases or go to the movies. We've also been able to identify and place many high school dropouts," he said.

Parrilli said there is some overlap between the youths in the project and the Youth Services Bureau (YSB) caseload. YSB helps youths having problems at home, in school or in the community.

The employment project is really twofold in its approach, Parrilli said. In addition to maintaining a list of job openings, it keeps a list of people available should someone call needing to fill an opening.

In addition to maintaining the job referral service, Parrilli said the project sponsors workshops aimed at improving job-finding skills.

The workshops involve topics such as how to fill out an application, where and how to look for a job, the responsibilities of working, employer-employee relationships and interview skills.

"By no means are they perfect models when finished with the workshops," Parrilli said. "But a lot of these simplistic things kids have a hard time doing because they haven't learned them anywhere else."

Parrilli added that a lot of people who went through the workshops and couldn't be placed went out on their own and got a job.

"It's hard enough for an adult to get a job, let alone a teen-ager. These workshops can give them a head start," Parrilli said.

Parrilli, an SIU graduate, said that if a youth sticks with the program long enough, he can usually be placed in a job, even though it might not be what he is looking for.

He also said that since this is the first summer the project was in operation, the number of youths registered was expected to increase.

About 30 employers regularly list job openings with the program, Parrilli said. He said the project was in a constant struggle to keep in the minds of employers that people are available for jobs.

If a youth wants to register with the project, or if an employer wants to list a job opening, they can call the Youth Services Bureau at 687-1715.

State law requires that all liquor establishments be inspected at least twice a year. Carbondale has 56 licensed liquor establishments.

The April results will be discussed by the Liquor Advisory Board Wednesday night.

The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission, the city's chief liquor regulatory agency made up of City Council members, will review the scores at a future meeting.

Berkowitz pleads guilty to Son of Sam murders

NEW YORK (AP)—Without the slightest outward flicker of emotion, David R. Berkowitz pleaded guilty Monday to the six random, 44-caliber killings committed during a year-long reign of terror as the furtive Son of Sam.

"I'm an excellent shot," Berkowitz said quietly at one stage in a unique interrogation by three different judges.

At another point, the 24-year-old Berkowitz coolly detailed the slaying of 18-year-old Donna Lauria of the Bronx, the first of his six victims.

"You bastard!" the girl's mother, Rose, sobbed through a handkerchief from a fourth-row seat in the courtroom where emotions among parents of the victims ran high and seemed in stark contrast to the defendant's self-control.

Berkowitz faces a maximum of 25 years to life in prison for each of the six slayings; and a maximum of 25 years in prison for the attempted murder of seven victims who escaped with injuries. Sentencing was set for May 22 on all counts.

However, under New York State law, any cumulative sentence for the ex-serviceman and former postal clerk cannot exceed 30 years to life, making him eligible to apply for parole when he is 54.

The only surprise in the 2 1/2 hour hearing came when Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola revealed that Berkowitz kept a diary in which he logged up to 2,000 arson fires he claimed to have set, predominantly in the Bronx, from 1974-1977—a period overlapping his savage career as the night-time Son of Sam.

Not once in his lengthy question and answer session, was Berkowitz asked, nor did he volunteer, information about his widely publicized role as Son of Sam. He had said previously that he was driven to kill by hordes of demons marshaled by a 6,000-year-old devil incarnate whom he identified as a Yonkers neighbor, 64-year-old Sam Carr.

During psychiatric examinations Berkowitz claimed Sam passed on orders to kill through the older man's dog.

"It gets dark and I can't sleep," Berkowitz told psychiatrists who eventually pronounced him mentally competent to stand trial. "I pick out nice streets where there are pretty girls, you know, young couples, where they're neat, clean and well-groomed, you know, they have good hygiene."

New York abandoned capital punishment some time ago and only recently Gov. Hugh Carey successfully vetoed an attempt by the legislature to reinstate the death penalty.

Bargaining vote for civil service employees slated

More than 160 civil service workers will decide if they want their contracts negotiated by a collective bargaining group in an election Tuesday at Student Center Ballroom A.

The workers, representing 46 job classifications, will vote on whether they want the Civil Service Bargaining Organization (CSBO), an affiliate of the Illinois Education Association (IEA) to represent them in contract negotiations.

A similar election in February made 611 civil service employees part of CSBO-IEA.

If all of the classifications vote for collective bargaining in this election, CSBO-IEA will represent about 80 percent of the 1800 civil service employees at SIU-C.

The largest classification of workers covered in the election is the library technician category.

Persons eligible to vote in the election can get time off from work to vote, Lee Hester, CSBO president, said Friday. The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 3

False alarm

Paraquat fears? Eat, don't smoke pot

By Jean Ness
Staff Writer

If you're going to use marijuana, bake it in brownies. There is less danger of Paraquat poisoning in eating it than smoking it.

"According to a study in animals, eating Paraquat-contaminated marijuana, such as in brownies, probably causes the least hazard," Pat Larsen, spokesperson for Illinois Dangerous Drug Commission, said Monday.

An individual would have to ingest two full ounces every day for two years at a contamination level of 2,000 parts per million to reach the lowest dose level where cell damage has been observed in animals, a preliminary study by the National Institute on Drug Abuse showed in a March report.

"Smoking presents the greatest hazard, Larsen said. "No one really knows how much it takes to harm you, but the question is in what concentration and by what means of intake into the body," Larsen said.

Although some of the poison is supposedly burned up in the smoking of a marijuana cigarette, Larsen said no one is really sure what happens during the combustion process.

Paraquat is a toxic herbicide used by the Mexican and U.S. governments to destroy marijuana between January 1976 and December 1977, when about 40,000 Mexican pot fields were treated with the chemical.

Dr. Don Knap, medical director of the Health Service, said Monday that although he has read only recent media articles, he would generally advise to "avoid yellow marijuana like you would avoid yellow snow, no matter what form it comes in."

He added that he hasn't personally come across any patients at the Health Service who have had the symptoms of Paraquat poisoning—shortness of breath, coughing up blood, blackouts and dizziness.

Synergy, a Carbondale crisis and counseling center, runs a testing service for persons who wish to have their pot analyzed for Paraquat poisoning. The pot samples are sent to Alternatives, a Chicago laboratory testing center.

Maryann Mikus, drug information coordinator at Synergy, said that only one out of 10 samples of Carbondale pot has yielded traces of the herbicide.

Although 30 samples have been sent to Chicago, results of only 10 have been returned, Mikus said.

Mikus said more samples were recently sent after a moratorium which turned away all requests until the center got caught up with the flood of marijuana sent for tests.

Staff asks dormies to return crates before leaving town

Students checking out of the dorms with Prairie Farms milk crates are being asked to return them, Sam Rinella, housing director, said Monday.

"The staff is to observe and remind the students that they are to leave the crates here at the University at the designated spots," Rinella said.

He said every building will have a designated spot where the crates can be returned. About 2500 crates have been taken, Rinella said.

Prairie Farms' Carbondale office asked University Housing earlier this semester to help recover the crates. The company's 15 divisions lost 100,000 crates in 1977, mostly due to theft. The containers are valued at $2.50 each.

Rinella said he anticipates no problem in getting all or most of the crates back. He said ample communication, explaining where the collection points will be, is going out to the dormitories.

Rinella said 234 crates were recovered when returned milk crates were accepted in lieu of admission to a movie recently shown at East Campus.

Unregistered cars to receive tickets

Students with unregistered cars will get tickets if they park in most campus parking lots during final examination week, according to University police.

"Parking regulations are still in effect all this week," said Amos Covington, police day shift supervisor.

Covington said three storage lots have been set aside for unregistered cars during exam week. They are: lot 56, south of the SIU Arena; lot 63, Oakland and Chautauqua streets; and lot 100, north of Washington Square between Washington and Marion streets.

"If they park in other places without decals, or park improperly or in the wrong lots with them, they'll get tickets," Covington said.

He said cars being loaded will be allowed to park in the street in housing areas for short periods of time, but that officers will be keeping track of them.

Kissinger: Sell more war planes to Israel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger urged on Monday that the administration increase sales to Israel in its Mideast jet fighter package amid growing signs that a compromise along that line was under discussion.

Kissinger appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which decided to delay until Tuesday a planned closed session for further discussion of the administration plan to sell fighters to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Asked about the significance of the postponement of the private session, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., replied, "you might assume something was going to happen."

Despite indications that a compromise was in the offing, White House press secretary Jody Powell said at a briefing that President Carter "made it quite clear that the proposals before Congress will not be altered."

But he added, "what is possible outside those limits remains to be seen," an indication that the administration does not preclude commitment for an additional sale of jet fighters to Israel separate from the sales proposals already before Congress.

At the State Department, spokesman Hudding Carter refused to disclose details of negotiations underway between congressional leaders and the administration, but noted changes in the numbers of planes for each country could be made in the present package if the White House and Congress consent.

Court overturns Corona conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The state Court of Appeal overturned on Monday the murder conviction of Juan Corona, who was found guilty in 1973 of the hacking slayings of 25 farm workers.

The court ordered the case back to Sutter County Superior Court, where Corona was found guilty of slaying 25 farm workers to death with a machete and burying their bodies in shallow graves in orchards near Yuba City.

Corona, who supplied farm workers for growers in the Feather and Yuba river valleys about 100 miles north of here, was convicted of 25 counts of first degree murder.

He now is serving a life sentence at Soledad State Prison.

The ruling of the three-judge panel was unanimous.

The decision said the trial court erroneously ruled during a 1972 hearing that it would be improper to call witnesses to dispute the accuracy of affidavits supporting search warrants in the case.

No trace of Moro in latest search

ROME (AP)—Italian police launched new sweeps Monday in Rome and in Genoa, where they arrested two more suspected leftist extremists, but again failed to turn up any trace of Aldo Moro or his Red Brigades terrorist abductors.

In Milan, two gunmen shot and wounded in the legs Dr. Luigi Fava, 52, employed by the government to check on workers calling in sick. The Red Brigades did not immediately claim responsibility. It was the fourth "kneecapping" in five days and the Brigades took responsibility for the others.

The kidnapers of Moro, a five-time former premier, kept silent for the third day. Speculation ranged from hopes he was still alive to fears that his death would be announced at a symbolic moment such as next Sunday's local elections around Italy.

Police manned roadblocks and made house-to-house searches near the Vatican, at Rome's central train station and in streets of the capital's historic center.

In the northern port of Genoa, 500 officers joined the hunt that led to the arrest of two more leftists. That brought to 23 the number picked up since a message attributed to the Red Brigades announced Friday they were "cajoling out" the death sentence imposed on Moro, the 61-year-old president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party.

Fiesta in Houston explodes into riot

HOUSTON (AP)—Police kept up patrols Monday as sightseers wandered peacefully in a small park where a Mexican-American fiesta exploded into a riot that left 15 persons injured and 22 under arrest.

"It was just one of those one-time things," one officer said of the first major incident of violence attributed to Mexican-Americans who have been feuding with Houston police for more than a year. "We don't expect any more trouble," he said.

The riot Sunday night started as police tried to break up a fight in the park. A police car and a television mobile unit were burned. Two stores were looted and a fire caused heavy damage to a bakery a variety store and a laundry in a shopping center near the park.

Columns on athletics fee split clouded facts

George Csoiak's two-part feature on the allocation of athletics fees was a classic example of distorted and biased journalism. Csoiak has used the DE to slander the right of the female athlete to achieve parity with her Saluki brethren. The Mad Serbian seems willing to prostitute his integrity as a journalist merely to become another jockstrap potentate. His fallacious diatribe is representative of a continuing effort on the part of a handful of male elitists to supplant the facts in this matter with their own fictionalized account. We should examine the realities.

Csoiak would have everyone believe that Title IX cannot be reduced to specifics with regard to its application to intercollegiate athletics. He attempts to cloud the impact of Title IX by parroting the same polished drivel which has been circulating around campus. If you want to catch this act, just attend any meeting when the administration defends the current 70-30 fee split. This entire scenario has been contrived to forestall the implementation of Title IX at SIU and to deny the lady Salukis their rights as mandated by federal legislation.

On April 27, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano made a statement which seems very specific. "Now that all doubts have been removed about the applicability of Title IX to the full range of intercollegiate athletics, I hope institutions of higher education and women's groups will move forward together with the important task of implementing this basic civil rights law." (I think I just heard a few heads pop out of the sand at Anthony Hall). I hope this will settle the matter on the affirmative action campus.

Csoiak then attempted to create a panacea with claims that nine varsity sports for the men will be eliminated if the women receive additional funding. This seems contrary to what I have been reading in the sports pages. Olympus has decreed that our Salukis will be joining the Big Boys Division in the future. SIU can only qualify for the BBD by adding a 12th varsity sport, so it would seem ludicrous to claim that the men will be reduced to a program of revenue producing sports only.

Csoiak continues with his mental diarrhea by attacking the quality of the women and their program. He implies that the female athlete at SIU is an inferior product and should not merit additional funding. If this is an attempt to implement a cost-effectiveness formula for the women's budget, will this same principle also be applied to our gods of the gridiron and the $230,000 dollars it cost to gain three victories last fall?

Csoiak might be a hero around the Arena for propping the male fiefdom with an opportunity to expropriate on the women's program. However, I suggest, George, that you continue to look over your shoulder in the future because the lady Salukis and Title IX are going to trample your chauvinistic ilk into the dusts of oblivion.

Some don't like it hot in 'screwy' dorm

Back in the days when heat first hit Carbondale this semester, the inhabitants of Mae Smith tower were suffering from severe heat stroke.

All winter we have suffered cold showers, no water pressure, and once again, overpowering heat from vents which could never really be turned off when switched to "off." During Christmas break our rooms were entered and our heat turned on, thus causing candles to melt, paper and plants to shrivel and all forms of life to be literally cooked to death, right down to the mold in the shower.

To turn the heat from "high" to "low" is called conserving energy. To turn the heat from "off" to "low" is called "stupid."

With this kind of energy conservation, why couldn't we have air-conditioning in 80 degree weather?

Needless to say, it was very uncomfortable, especially for the innocent bystanders whose windows were stopped shut. The most logical solution to many of the residents seemed to be to open the bottom window. Should we be put in jail for this act? Or how about a bail of $6.20? This money (I assume) goes into two new screws at 15 cents apiece (which I had saved in the first place) and $5.90 labor for a maintenance man who apparently earns over $35 an hour, assuming it takes him 10 minutes to install the screws.

No damage was done and nothing was thrown out of the windows, so why screw the people who unscrewed their screws?

Protest atrocities committed in Uganda

The atrocities being committed in Uganda under the leadership of dictator Hadji Amin Dada cannot be excruciated from Uganda's collaborators and supporters, the Muslim regimes of the Middle East, especially Saudi Arabia.

Henry Kyemba, ex-Cabinet Minister in Amin's Uganda in his book "A State of Blood" succinctly stated that "They (Ugandans) believe that the slaughter initiated by Amin is licensed by Mecca (capitol of Islam and the Saudi Kingdom), as is the humiliation piled on the Christian Church." Saudi Arabia has not only been backing Idi Amin's shaky government, but it has conspicuously encouraged the Islamization of Uganda through the use of Arabic in schools, radio and other official and public medias and also by building huge Mosques in Kampala and other cities.

Saudi Arabia is apparently dedicated to replace every system in Africa and the Middle East with autocracy and Islamic imperialism as experienced in the seventh century.

That 'ancient document' is still relevant

Most of the time I merely read the letters to the editor and chuckle, or dismiss the letter as some upset person taking the opportunity to let off some steam. Rarely do I feel the need to participate in D.E. discussions. However, a letter by Jeffrey R. Behrke, appearing in the May 2 edition, has prodded me into action.

Personally, I prefer the "eternal" moral standards. Living under these standards has brought me more peace and happiness than have the standards of the 20th century. Because something is 2,000 years old does not mean it is bad or useless. I, and a lot of my friends, have found answers to our "complex problems" of today by consulting an "ancient document." We feel that the Bible lives with the ages.

Yes, it is true, "interpretations of it (the Bible) often reflect the opinion of interpreters, with any bias they might have." Unfortunately, Christians too are human. Thus, we often don't live up to our own standards and we appear to be hypocritical. Christ told us very specifically not to judge others lest we get ourselves into a pickle. (Matthew 7:1-5). But this does not mean that a Christian does not have the right to voice the words of the Bible. (Matthew 28:19,20).

Mr. Behrke, I sincerely hope that you did not spend a full day trying to find specific words in the Bible such as "pornographic book shops" and "massage parlors." The Bible was completed almost 2,000 years ago and X-rated movies did not come on the scene until a few years later. The Bible, however, does deal with the basic problems that have existed from the beginning of human beings to the present. If you need assistance on researching the Bible, come to me or some other experienced Christian. Look at it this way, would you expect me to be able to write a history research paper without first learning what sources to use and how to adequately do the research? I find it a bit ironic that despite your being a history major you have such a low regard for the relevance of history.

Mr. Behrke, as any of my friends and I have tried the "rational and fair manner" in which our society operates. Personally, I have found much more peace, joy and love by crawling into the living word of an "ancient document." (Galatians 3:22).

Some merchants know students have trouble making those ends meet

Being a student at SIU and a consumer in Carbondale I have realized that this town has two main types of merchants. The first, and most dominant type, are those who exploit the student trade that is indigenous to this area. These people realize that they've "got ya" and so they are "gonna get ya." Most landlords definitely qualify for this category.

However, there is a second brand of business people in Carbondale. These are the people who realize that many college students have trouble making ends meet.

I recently came in contact with the Carbondale Chiropractic Clinic and was pleasantly surprised to find that my bill was reduced because of my student status.

To them and all the other area merchants who understand what it is like on a student budget, I say thanks.

Have gay supporters drawn distinctions among Christians?

I am appalled at the ignorance which I found in the responses of the gay supporters. It would seem that "educated" people should be able to draw distinctions between true Christians and pseudo-Christians. As much history bears out, people apply the term "Christian" to themselves, but fail to live out the title. My question is, have these gay supporters chosen Christ as their savior, committing their lives to His service, which entails prayer, Bible study and living holy lives? You will say, "That is old fashioned and out-dated," but I fail to see how an eternal God can be outdated, or change His Word to conform to the trends of society. This would not be God, but a mere creation of people's imagination for the purpose of having his or her own way and religiously supporting it. It is obvious that this is the "God of peace, love and freedom" that Mr. Gaillard worships—a mixture of "god words" and partial truths ripped from their Biblical context. It is unfortunate, yet true, people do use the Bible to support "heresies" such as white supremacy, anti-Semitism, religious wars and gay liberation. Due to people's pride, selfish motives and unwillingness to humble themselves before God, they have become "heretics" and distorted God's Word for their own fulfillment and sinful desires.

Mr. Gaillard asked, "Who is the God in whom you believe?" My response is not the human-made god you manipulate for your own ends, but the God who has spoken in the Bible and will judge all persons according to His speaking.

Secretary nominates Department of Design as 'World's Greatest'

I want to share with the entire University community what a nice department I work with and for.

As you are aware, April 24 through 28 was National Secretary's Week. On April 26, National Secretary's Day, a student approached me at Grinnell Hall, where I had lunch, and asked me to come back to work early due to an overload of secretarial duties. Arriving at my office, I found approximately 40 to 50 faculty and students, a large "To the World's Greatest Secretary" sign, a cake, a beautiful fig tree approximately three feet tall and, best of all, a card with many, many signatures which must have taken a couple of weeks to obtain. This is the Department of Design—in my opinion the most thoughtful and the World's Greatest Department—to work for.

I hope many other secretaries on campus are as fortunate as I am, to work with and for fantastic people.

Utilities turning on the lobbying juice again

The electric companies are at it again! Over the past two weeks their lobbyists in Springfield have "come out of the woodwork" and are busy knocking on the doors of our elected officials in their effort to cripple or eliminate the new Office of Consumer Services.

The purpose of the Illinois Office of Consumer Services is to give citizens the means for providing the appropriate legal, research and staff support necessary to more effectively intervene in the increasing frequent electric rate increase requests.

The utilities' (CIPS et al) assault is geared towards a section of Senate Bill 1863 which concerns the provision of federal funds earmarked for the Office of Consumer Services. The electric companies are trying to undermine this provision in either of two ways: To pressure the state senators into extracting the provision from the bill entirely; or to accomplish the same objective by altering the status of the Office of Consumer Services by placing it under the auspices of the Illinois Commerce Commission, thereby making it ineligible for federal funding.

This attempt by CIPS and the other investor owned electric companies to further silence the citizen's voice is merely an example of the one-sidedness of the whole rate structuring and pricing process, a process which has helped accelerate energy costs to the point of driving the elderly to choose between paying fuel bills to stay warm, or eating to stay healthy.

State Senators Ken Buzbee and Gene Johns now know that you and I have an interest in seeing that the Office of Consumer Services remains independent and unscathed. The state Senate will vote on this legislation this coming Tuesday, May 9, to be followed by deliberations in the House. Watch your state senators and representatives very closely on this vote. This may very well be an issue to keep in mind when you walk into the voting booth this November.

Marijuana reform is not just a pipe dream

In regard to the letters in the May 4 edition of the D.E. complaining about the May 1 Carbondale Smoke-In: Mr. Farley and Mr. Doughney, (along with the support of a total of 17 other persons who signed their letters), wrote of their extreme discontent with the seemingly placid attitude of the police present at the protest and their disgust of the participants, whom Mr. Farley and Mr. Doughney showered liberally (conservatively?) with insults and derogatory names. The message was clear—legalization of marijuana would not be in the best interests of SIU or Carbondale.

Granted, most of the protesters were simply at the event for the chance to finally indulge without fear of harassment. But the organizers were clever enough to realize that the Smoke-In would lure a greater number of pro-legalization students than a booth at which they could sign what in the past have been near fruitless petitions. At any rate the gathering was a genuine show of peaceful, yet meaningful and important, protest in the face of the University Police.

Whereas complete repeal of the now stringent marijuana laws which are now making a travesty of the legal system may not be the answer, some weakening with the advent of decriminalization is an obvious temporary solution, a solution that is working in many states and communities in the United States today.

There is, of course, the traditional argument for decriminalization, that alcohol is a socially-condoned drug and therefore legal, and so on with the rest of the parallels to be drawn in respect to alcohol. Still the point is that such comparisons, while useful, are not necessary to wage a viable argument for decriminalization. The legal entanglements alone show the archaic laws are in dire need of reform.

Mr. Farley and Mr. Doughney have their opinions and they make fascinating reading. But the May 1 protest was even more welcome than the so-called apathetic generation got off their asses, though in hedonistic fashion, and finally spoke out against what they believed to be unjust condemnation through useless laws.

Bible chaptered and well-versed on morals

Concerning your refuting of Mr. Parli's letter of April 27, Mr. Behnke, I agree with your conjecture: your Biblical scholarship is not up to par! I do agree with you, too, that God does not speak out upon R and X-rated movies, pornographic book shops and massage parlors, per se (and even then I would question the validity of such an assertion). But, upon closer examination of the Biblical scriptures, Mr. Behnke—Matt. 5:3-6, Romans 13: 13-14, Eph. 5: 3-5—it becomes quite (exaggeratedly) evident that the physical sexual acts of such "modern portrayals," as you see it, have not evolved to differ from the Biblical definitions referred to as "adultery," "homosexuality" and "fornication." The psychosexual emotions of "lust," I would hold, then, that the Bible does speak out upon these subjects. Also, the Bible records that God desires of every person to be chaste, pure and free from immoral thoughts and/or deeds as He himself is. (Gen. 1: 26-28, Lev. 19: 21 Peter 1: 13-17) The "complex moral problems of today's "X" are the same as in Biblical times, Mr. Behnke, you can check Socrates on that!

I would also add, Mr. Behnke, that your suppositions of Mr. Parli asserting his subjective "eternal moral standards is not up to par either. If his assertions were merely subjective (and not based on an objective absolute), I suspect he would not have written such an article in the first place, but possibly have subjected himself to some provocative pastime instead. I am also disappointed in you, Mr. Behnke, for drawing such an affectation inference concerning women in Biblical times: It is true they were treated very poorly, but not through our Triune God's teachings as your inference would have us to believe. In closing: I would encourage you, Mr. Behnke, to search the scriptures all day again. But this time start with 1 Cor. 2: 10-14 and work your way back through your questions, and you'll see that you're right again. The Bible hasn't been mere magic in any century! It's alive and it's challenging and inviting you. Mr. Behnke!

Pleasures are temporal but serving the Lord brings eternal security

Homosexuals are people—people in sin; and yet they don't have to remain in sin, for the forgiveness in Christ is available to them. There is one condition—one must lay his or her sin down for good. Is this too great a price? Jesus loved sinners enough to lay down His life for them. What pleasure did He find in death upon a cross? Your pleasure only lasts for a while, but the infinitely superior pleasure of eternal security in serving the Almighty God lasts forever.

I speak to you who are homosexuals. Your lover might leave, and probably will, but Jesus won't leave you—if you leave your sin. When He walked on the earth, Jesus did eat with sinners. But He told them to "go and sin no more." Jesus will turn away no one who does His will—but He will judge all who disobey Him. As people were able to come to Him, to eat and drink with Him, and to touch Him, so people now can approach Him. He is near, yet one cannot really approach Him if he or she is unwilling to cease from sin.

Homosexual or not, do you not think you are a sinner? Isn't death itself proof? It is the end—of sex, of food, of money, of every physical thing. Yet Christ arose, and you can share in His resurrection, if you exchange your pleasures for His yoke. He came from heaven to reconcile you to God. Don't refuse Him and invite damnation because of your fleeting temporary pleasures.

Truths found in Bible will still be important in a million years' time

Concerning Jeffrey Behnke's letter of May 2: Mr. Behnke please read your Bible again. Maybe this time you will find it. 1 Corinthians: 5 deals with the incestuous man; is that X-rated enough for you, Mr. Behnke? 1 Corinthians 6: 13-20 tells us to glorify God in our body, not the sinful desires of our flesh.

My "eternal" standards make me laugh, too; are you rejoicing with me, Mr. Behnke? I am living by the morals of today and I am thankful to God that he had people write them down 2,000 years ago. Women were not second-class citizens in Biblical times. We should consult the Bible on all the problems of living in the 20th century. The Bible is only 2,000 years old, which is a short time considering that a million years from now my life will still be beginning. Interpretations of the Bible do not reflect the opinions of people, but instead the Word of God. The power of the Holy Spirit allows us to interpret the Word as God meant for it to be.

Mr. Behnke, we would be better off if we read our Bibles every day and addressed all of our problems to God. We would cease to have problems. Pull your head out of the streets of Carbondale and live forever with Jesus Christ. Praise the Lord.

Despite rain, Clean Up was a success thanks to students, area residents

We, the members of the Student Environmental Center, would like to thank all the Carbondale citizens and students for their help in the final series of the Carbondale Spring Clean Up that was held last Saturday, April 29.

Even in the rain, a total of 1,524 pounds of litter was collected from the community in our combined efforts. To say the least, it was a success.

We would also like to send out a special thanks to the A&W Restaurant, B&J Distributors, New Life Center, Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity, Scout Troops 66 and 261, and Harold Hill, superintendent of the Street and Sanitation Department in Carbondale, for their individual contributions in the clean up.

We enjoyed working with all of you and look forward to meeting again next fall.

Don Garner Jr. warms up his backgammon game in a practice match with his dad, Don Garner Sr., an associate

Young competitor knows his rolls

By Mary Fied
Student Writer

The sound of rolling dice filled the air. Soft jazz flowed through the bars augmenting the atmosphere of quiet conversation and intense concentration.

The combatants were facing each other, separated by small tables upon which were backgammon boards, the field of battle.

The battle lasted eight hours and when it was all over Dan Keller was the undisputed winner.

The battle was a backgammon tournament held last Saturday at Melvin's.

For a $2 registration fee, Dan Keller came out of the tournament $50 richer. Second place went to Mark Chesney, who also received $20.

Fifty-one people entered the tournament, most of them college students and older persons. Many spent the time before, during and after the tournament taking advantage of happy hour prices.

Enthusiasm ran high throughout the crowd. Many hoped that with a little bit of luck and as much skill as possible, they would win the $50 grand prize.

For the people that lost, even losing wasn't that bad. Melvin's offered the losers a free beer.

One person who wasn't drinking beer with the group was also one of the worst opponents. A player that many hesitate to take on, he made it to the quarter finals before he was knocked out of the game.

That person is Don Garner Jr. At the age of six, Donny plays with more skill than others five times his age.

Donny said that when he was about three he saw his dad playing backgammon with someone. He remembers asking his what he was playing.

"Daddy said that he would teach me to play when I was five," said Donny.

Donny is six now and has been playing for about seven months. A week ago, he placed second in a tournament which his dad won. In a consolation tournament, Donny won first place, beating out 12 other players.

Garner is an associate professor of law here. He said he was very surprised at how quickly Donny had picked up the game and at how well he plays it.

"I like to play so at first I thought I would just see if Donny could learn. I wondered how long a child could understand the benefit of certain moves and the roll of the dice," said Garner.

Donny said that he and his day play about a week and a half, then take off about a week. This keeps their interest for the game alive.

"We're both too rough for each other," he said. "We both win about the same amount of times."

Backgammon is a dice game, which dates back over 5,000 years to the ancient civilization of Sumer, which flourished in southern Mesopotamia in what is now Iraq.

All one needs to play are two players, one backgammon board and 30 men, half in one color, half in another. Also necessary is one pair of dice.

A skilled player will rely on the law of proportions to make strategic moves around the board, but also involved is a bit of luck. Anyone can play and have a good time at it, even without working up a strategy. Once thought of as a game played only by the rich and cultured, backgammon had begun to pick up quite a following among people of all ages and economic status.

The tournament Saturday was the first to be sponsored by the Backgammon Association of Carbondale according to Bob Stoffer. Bac's members thus far are Don Garner and Stoffer.

Stoffer was the director of the tournament and placed among the top eight. Although he felt somewhat harassed by the many complications of a tournament of his size he felt that he had done pretty good and that the tournament itself came off okay.

In the fall, BAC plans to sponsor biweekly tournaments for Backgammon enthusiasts. The person to win the most tournaments in the fall semester would win a grand prize of a considerable amount of money at the end of the tournament season.

One person to watch out for next year would definitely be little Don Garner Jr.

Starship to tour

The midwest leg of the Jefferson Starship's current tour is scheduled for later this month, with a May 24 concert scheduled for the Market Square Arena in Indianapolis, a May 26 date at Braves Stadium in Milwaukee and a May 28 appearance at Rupp Arena in Lexington, Kentucky.

The itinerary sent out by RCA, the band's record company, lists no concerts in Chicago and St. Louis at this time, but several possible dates are open.

The band's touring has been delayed by lead singer Marty Balin's reluctance to go on the road or even to officially join the band.

Show synthesized art, physics

By Mike Gussakos
Staff Writer

The arts of film, dance, sculpture and body-building were used to form an interesting combination at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Furr Auditorium in Pullman.

The show, sponsored by the Art and Dance departments, consisted of two parts, one called "Wedge" and the other, "Body."

Both parts of the show examined the limitations and potentials of physical form when subjected to extreme, specifically focused force.

"Wedge" included a film of sculpture with dancing set to the sounds made by wood being split, so that you could see change in form as it expands against restraint. Linda Kostalik, instructor in dance, and Kim McKinney and Maureen Naughten participated in this piece.

ABC releases 9 new albums

ABC Records has announced that they will release nine new albums this month, including new work by John Klemmer, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers and Bobby "Blue" Bland.

The Heartbreaker's new album is entitled "You're Gonna Get It," and was produced by Denny Cordell. Neah Shark and Petty, whose group established itself earlier in the year with their Top 40 hit "Breakdown."

John Klemmer's "Arbeque" is a significant musical departure for the premier saxophonist, featuring brisk Latin-Brazilian music. Steve Goodman produced the album and Lenny White, Arto and Alex Acuna are among the participating musicians.

ABC also announced that recording artists Levon Helm and the RCO All-Stars plan to tour Japan beginning June 8 in Tokyo. Helm will also hit Kyoto, Sapporo, Osaka and Fukuoka in the group's first tour of the Far East.

which was choreographed by Kostalik.

In "Body" there was the combination of film with a performance of body-building by Donald Green. This second part of the evening's program showed the effect of a change in body form.

The sculptors and designers for the program were art instructor Joel Feldman and Bill Leth, graduate assistant in art. Film and sound were by Michael Badertscher and Susan Estabrook, students in cinema.

A Review

A program note gave the following explanation of the first piece. "Wedge" "In Wedge" the material is wood constrained with steel and then split with wedges. The action of splitting continues until either an impasse is reached between the strength of the constraint and the force of the wedging—or until the wedges overcome and break the resistance.

The remains or finished pieces serve as memento or documentation of the forces applied and effected result." This last observation is interesting. As art, the piece seemed to make some sort of analogy to life and the constructive and destructive forces that surround and shape our everyday lives.

The material in "Body" is a human male sculpted by application of force in the form of weights and specific exercise. "Body" differed from "Wedge" in that the form was continually evolving and always in the present. In "Wedge," as opposed to "Body," the final form remains constant to some extent having the nature of an artifact.

The multi-art show was funded through a contribution from the Performing Arts Fund, Office of the Dean of Communications, and through a grant from Research and Projects.

Jesus music draws crowd of 700

By Richard Kern
Student Writer

Keith Green sat alone under the spotlight for two hours, playing the piano, singing and stomping out time so hard that the stage shook. Sometimes he stopped to preach about hypocrisy or salvation, peering out under the lid of the piano at the audience.

The audience cheered and shouted "praise the Lord." They sang along with Green when approximately 100 people came up at the end of the concert to accept Jesus as Lord.

The free concert, sponsored by Students for Jesus, drew close to 700 people last Thursday to the Student Center ballrooms, according to Jerry Bryant, local DJ and announcer at the concert.

Bryant said he was impressed by the number of older people who came to the concert, commenting that "contemporary Jesus music is coming of age in Southern Illinois."

The grandmothers and the kids, the bluecollars and the students heard a full-bodied man in his late 20's sing about the devil and hell and faith. The heard a lean, in blue jeans and suspenders preach to them on "living the Christian life and tell them how to meet Jesus."

From the time Green sat down at the piano, he made his message clear—repent, receive Jesus as your savior, and do what the Bible says. Though Green is a good musician, and his humor is satirical and sharp, someone coming only to enjoy the music may have had a hard time getting around the message.

The first half hour of the concert, he sang about the devil, about problems he has with his parents because of his faith, and about God's love. Green ended the first set with a song he had written three days before. He said he wrote the new piece because "I hear the songs I sing, a lot, and the Lord hears them a lot more than I do."

Green stopped and began to preach still sitting on the piano bench.

"I'm going to talk about

something that most Christians don't like to hear about—hypocrisy. It's easy to go to church on Sunday morning and Wednesday evening and say "praise the Lord" and maybe, if you're really bold, you'll put a bona-fide-if-you-love-Jesus sign on your bumper. But how many people have you told about Christ this week?"

Doing the first of several dramatic monologues, Green mimicked someone praying before asking friends out to get drunk and to go to pornographic movies. The audience laughed and applauded him.

All of a sudden, he threw himself at the piano again, singing "I find it hard to believe, I have this love in my heart." He did a ten-minute monologue and song about the last judgment and began to talk about salvation.

"You say, 'how can you say Jesus is the only way? What about Buddha—he was a heavy dude? He used to sit and meditate on his navel. Buddha is dead. 'Yeah, but Christ died too.' What was in his tomb? 'Nothing.' That's right, nothing. He rose from the dead."

The audience quieted down as Green asked anyone who wanted to accept Jesus to raise their hand and to come to the front of the stage. People filled the area between the stage and the first row of seats.

Green stood up, paced back and forth in front of the crowd, lead them in prayer and told them to go to church, read the Bible, pray and be a "loud mouth for Jesus."

The crowd left the ballrooms in about ten minutes and only a small group of new converts and counselors were left near the stage.

Outside the ballrooms Green set selling his tapes on the table in front of him and answering questions.

Prosecutor denies rigging Chicago 7 trial

CHICAGO (AP)—The chief federal prosecutor in the stormy Chicago Seven conspiracy trial said Monday it's ridiculous to charge that he and Judge Julius J. Hoffman of U.S. District Court collaborated to deprive the defendants of a fair trial.

Thomas Foran, who was U.S. attorney at the time of the trial in 1969-70, commented on FBI documents which attorney William Kunstler said "prove conclusively" that Hoffman spoke to the prosecution side about the possibility of citing the defendants for contempt of court without telling the defense about those conversations.

"That's quite absolutely untrue.

"It's flat out untrue," Foran said. "It is not only untrue but there is no conceivable reason to do it. It's ridiculous."

Foran recalled that four of the defense attorneys were cited for contempt of court the weekend before the trial began and Hoffman kept talking about possible contempt citations "all during the trial."

Judge Hoffman refused to comment, saying "I don't comment about these people, never have. You can't dogfight with people like that."

Kunstler said the documents show that "the prosecutor and the judge were working together to destroy the defendants, their lawyers and their supporters."

As a result, the defense will seek to reopen the controversial case in an attempt to show the judge and prosecutor conspired to provoke incidents and bring contempt findings, said Merritt Stavis, another lawyer with New York's Center for Constitutional Rights.

Kunstler said in New York that the documents were obtained by one of the Chicago Seven defendants, Jerry Rubin, and indicted co-conspirator Slew Albert under the Freedom of Information Act.

The documents reportedly include an FBI memorandum from the head of the Chicago office, dated two weeks after the trial's start, which said Hoffman had "indicated in strictest confidence" he planned to consider issuing contempt citations at the conclusion of the trial.

The memorandum reportedly ordered FBI agents to record the defendants' speeches for use later in possible contempt proceedings.

Marlin Johnson, the special agent in charge at the time, declined to comment on the memo.

Foran said, however, that during the nighttime breaks during the trial, the defendants were repeatedly making speeches around the courthouse in front of demonstrators that sometimes numbered in the thousands.

Normal firemen receive back to work ultimatum

NORMAL (AP)—Five employees of a Maryland fire protection firm are on duty at the city's fire stations and officials have given striking firemen until Monday to return to work or be fired.

Mayor Richard Godfrey said Eagle 911 Inc of Laurel, Md., has been hired under a six-month, $70,000 contract. Even if the 22 striking Normal firemen return to work, he said, the private company will be retained.

The City Council will investigate whether it should hire the firm on a permanent basis, he said in prepared remarks at a special council meeting Monday.

The time has come, he said, "to end the anguish and strain" of a dispute which he said was "no closer to resolution today than it was when the basic disagreement surfaced last November."

Edward Schultz, a conciliator for the state Department of Labor, said from his Springfield office that state law prohibits private firms from bringing in out-of-state strikebreakers. He said he is unsure whether that law applies to municipalities. He said he will investigate the law.

"I thought the days of the Pinkertons were over," he said. Pinkerton detectives were brought in by many labor droves in the early part of the century to break strikes.

Council members voted 5-2 to fire striking firemen who don't return to work by May 15, the mayor said.

The 22 jailed firemen will be released Thursday. There are 25 firemen but two went back to work without contract and the third posted an appeal bond and got out.

Yearbook seeks workers

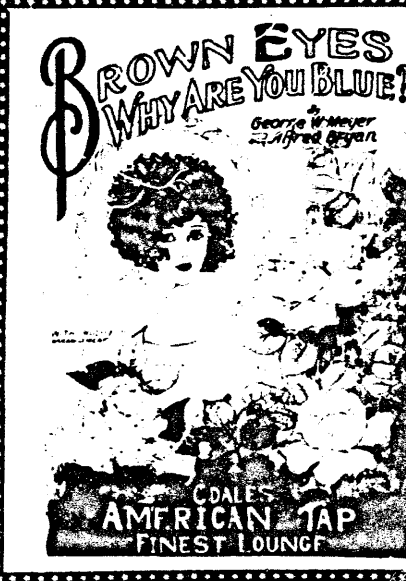

The Obelisk II, in a reorganization of its editorial staff for the 1978 year, is searching for students to fill ten editorial positions.

Ken Ovryn, the new editor-in-chief, said, "The ten positions that are open are paid, with salaries commensurate with experience. There are some requirements for every position—mostly knowledge of journalism, photography, and business.

Positions to be filled are: Managing Editor, responsible for all the quality of copy; Photo Editor, responsible for the maintaining of a photographic staff and photo lab; Business Manager, to handle public relations, advertising and account records; Features Editor, to coordinate the feature-length stories in the yearbook; Entertainment Editor, to cover movies, concerts and special events; Sports Editor, to coordinate all sports stories; Production Editor, responsible for seeing that all departments meet deadlines; Art Editor, to handle the visual content of the book; Sports Photography Editor, responsible for all sports photography; and the Senior and Organization Editor, to coordinate all senior portraits and group shots.

All interested persons should contact Ken Ovryn at 453-5187 or at 453-3668 to make appointment, or stop by the Obelisk II office at Barracks 004c.

Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE) has announced that volunteers are needed to help with the first Mini-Senior Olympics scheduled May 15 at Rend Lake. Records keepers and persons with track and field experience and backgrounds are needed. Persons interested may contact Marty Schmidt at the Carbondale Senior Citizens Center, 549-8241.

Toshiaki Hisama, assistant professor in special education, will present a talk on use of music with hyperactive children at the Conference on Learning Disabilities, May 12-13, at Springfield.

William O'Brien, chairman of the Recreation Department, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Southern Illinois Life Underwriters at noon, May 16, at the Student Center. O'Brien is aofficial in the National Football League.

The director of the International Sybean Network (INSOY), W.N. Thompson of the University of Illinois, will conduct a seminar at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the Agriculture Building Seminar room. The network, originated by the U of I in Puerto Rico, conducts research, service and education programs. SIU is considering taking part as a consortium member.

Jacob Verduin of the Botany Department will teach a graduate course, "Energetics of Aquatic Ecosystems," this summer at the Flathead Lake, Mont., Biological Station of the University of Montana.

Information on applications, fees and procedures for the Pharmacy College Admission Test will be available at the testing division of the Career Planning and Placement Center in early June, Harley Bradshaw, testing coordinator, announced. The PCAT will be given on three Saturdays next school year, Nov. 11, Feb. 10 and May 12.

Interviews for part-time instructors for the day camp and other outdoor programs of the Carbondale New School may be arranged by calling 549-1502 or 549-4781, according to Jane Rohling, of the environmental interpretation program. Students interested in aiding in an environmental workshop for culturally deprived grade-school children May 15-19 may call the same numbers.

The champions of the faculty bowling league are the Aggregates, a team made up mostly of Agriculture School faculty members. Team members were Oval Myers, Farrell Olsen, Greg Pierceall, Charlie Myers, John Burdie, Don Lybecker, Larry Matten, Jake Verduin and Don Miller.

Faculty design slide, tape show to help studying

A team of teachers at SIU is designing a series of tape-and-slide presentations to help students do a better job of studying genetics, ecology and natural diversity.

The three—George Garoian, associate professor in zoology; DuWayne Englert, professor in zoology; and David Akanbi, assistant professor in the Learning Resources Center—are putting together the series of self-instruction packages under a two-year, $19,800 grant from the National Science Foundation. Garoian says the self-instruction program will be used as background material for the beginning zoology course and as "review" and catch-up material for transfer students.

Garoian said they expect to have the program ready by summer session, 1979.

Summer job market looking up

By Susan Dunlap
Student Writer

Although the market remains tight, the prospects for summer employment off-campus are looking up, according to Michael Fiorenzi, job counselor at the Illinois State Employment Service in Carbondale. "It looks a little better this summer for students as compared to last," Fiorenzi said. The employment service does its biggest bulk of work with the economically disadvantaged, but Fiorenzi said, "we do handle placing some college students with jobs in the area."

"However, many businesses will cut the number of their part-time employees, because 'when almost 20,000 people leave Carbondale for three months, business will definitely decline and part-time workers are almost always the first to go," said Fiorenzi.

"But the best thing you can do when job hunting is state what you want and list your specific skills," he said.

Student work on campus will have several openings in many areas, despite a few cutbacks due to the fiscal year's end in July, according to Arnold Woods, job counselor at the Student Work Office in Woody Hall.

"Almost 80 percent of the jobs available will be clerical, many of which require skills such as typing, filing and some shorthand," Woods said.

The University's single largest employer of student workers, the physical plant, will have some openings in janitorial-maintenance jobs. The food services, the second largest employer will also be hiring.

Many students who begin a new job in the summer will keep it during the fall, although many students will remain at the same job for the summer that they held during the spring, Woods added.

Public TV will carry Thompson vs. Bakalis

CHICAGO AP—A series of five televised debates between Gov. James R. Thompson and his Democratic opponent, Michael Bakalis, will be held around the state beginning June 9, their campaign managers have announced.

Agreement on details of the debates were reached after week-long negotiations between the two staffs.

The other three debates will be on July 25 in Carbondale on state economic development, employment and transportation; Sept. 6 in Rockford, on education, taxes and social services, and Sept. 19 in Peoria on government administration, ethics and political reform.

The debates tentatively are scheduled to be telecast by public broadcasting stations and sponsored by the League of Women Voters. Final arrangements with public TV stations and the league will be made at a joint meeting with the candidates' managers Wednesday.

Charles Lynch, a chairman of SIU-C's Radio-Television Department, said WSUI-TV plans to carry all of the broadcasts and will originate the broadcast of the debate scheduled in Carbondale on July 25.

Thomas N. Jacob, campaign manager for Thompson, said reporters representing television, radio and print media will be selected from a pool of names of interested newsmen. Any news organization can apply to have a reporter on the panel, he said.

Agreement on the debates ends weeks of squabbling between Thompson and Bakalis, who at first could not agree on format, subject matter or locations.

William San Hamel, Bakalis' campaign manager, said the debates will show Illinois citizens which candidate is best suited to head state government.

The first debate will be held in either Springfield or Chicago and will concern the proposed state budget. A panel of three reporters and two other citizens will question the candidates during the first four debates.

San Hamel said that while Bakalis has a well-organized campaign that is "picking up steam every day," the exposure through the televised debates will be an asset to the Democratic candidate, a former state superintendent of schools and presently state comptroller.

The final debate, Oct. 12, will be a one-on-one confrontation between Thompson and Bakalis, moderated by a former state expert.

Chicago eaters torpedo sub

CHICAGO (AP)—A sandwich to sate the appetite of the most ravenous giant was constructed in downtown Chicago recently. But it was cut into pieces and fed to passersby.

The sandwich was 100 feet long when finished and was filled with 130 pounds of sausage and cheese, 22 heads of lettuce and about two gallons of catsup and mustard.

The construction was topped with a three-foot candle laced with sparklers to commemorate the first anniversary of the cultural information booth sponsored by the Chicago Council on Fine Arts.

The booth is situated at the Daley Center in the Loop, where the council had the sandwich put together by a catering service.

Council spokeswoman Sally Draht said the sandwich disappeared in two minutes after hungry noontime passersby were given individually wrapped slices of it.

This is the seventh in an eight-part series on local counseling centers.

By Karen Cogwell
Student Writer

People of all ages, from all geographical areas, with almost all kinds of mental health needs are welcome at the Psychological Services Division of the Clinical Center, Rm 141, Wham, according to Donald Shoemaker, the division's coordinator.

"We work with children, adolescents, parents, family groups, adults as individuals and in groups, and couples," he said.

Confidential counseling is available for problems ranging from temporary emotional stress to severe long-term psychological disturbances, Shoemaker said. The center provides male and female sexual dysfunctions, drug and alcohol abuse, social and interpersonal relationship problems, childhood behavioral disorders, and problems caused by aging.

During the 1976-77 fiscal year 655 students, 509 non-students and 346 children were seen for counseling.

The division functions primarily to provide staff support and clients for the pre-internship clinical training of graduate students in psychology, guidance and educational psychology, social welfare, rehabilitation counseling and special education, Shoemaker said.

Graduate students who are accepted into the program all have a wide variety of training orientations and experiential skills, and all are expected to complete their doctoral degrees, he said. These students treat clients with less severe problems under the close supervision of their departmental faculty instructors, he added.

Clients who have more severe problems are treated by the 10 part-time members of the "core staff," Shoemaker said. All have doctoral degrees and hold part-time academic appointments, within the University as instructors of clinical specialties.

Each one specializes in a different treatment approach, including traditional psychoanalytic therapy, gestalt therapy, learning base therapy and behavior modification.

Counseling approaches like rational emotive therapy and transactional analysis are also available, but these are usually used by the graduate students, he said.

He added that although the center is set up with training in mind, the client's needs are of the most importance.

"From my point of view, what's best for the client leads to good training," he said.

Shoemaker has a doctoral degree in psychology from Ohio State University. He has been a faculty member at SIU since 1960 and has been coordinator of Psychological Services since 1963, he said.

Persons interested in seeking counseling through Psychological Services are given an initial appointment with the Clinical Center's Social Services Division for screening purposes according to Martha Brelje, the division's coordinator.

That is this division's primary function, she said, although she and staff member Carol McDermott, also an instructor in social welfare, and their four social work interns also carry some cases.

When the client comes in for his initial screening appointment he may be asked to fill out a short personal information form and a form concerning the background of the person's specific problem.

During the initial counseling appointment, the client is asked for more information concerning the circumstances surrounding his problem.

"We try to understand the person in relation to his environment," Brelje said.

"Sometimes the screening process is helpful in and of itself," she added, as it often helps to talk through problems in a supportive atmosphere.

A fee schedule based on the client's ability to pay is also discussed during the initial session, she said. However the person may obtain services whether or not he is able to pay anything for them.

After the information obtained through the counseling session is evaluated to determine what the problem is, a report is prepared by the Social Services staff making recommendations for psychological tests (when needed), treatment procedures and the selection of either a graduate intern or a core staff member.

The report is sent to Shoemaker who decides whether or not the case is appropriate for an intern. If so, he assigns it to a faculty instructor who then chooses a student with the appropriate skills needed to handle the case.

Schools to enforce health codes

By Nick Danna
Student Writer

A strong effort to get beginning, fifth and ninth grade school children to get their required physicals and immunizations will be made this year by the Carbondale Elementary and High School Districts, health officials say.

The city's elementary and high school districts are going to strictly enforce the state code which requires these students to get physical and dental examinations and disease immunizations, Michele Jacknik, associate educator of the Jackson County Health Department, said.

Carl Jones, superintendent of the Carbondale Elementary School District, said these children have two weeks after school starts next year to comply with the code.

He said that next year's school calendar hasn't been adopted, but that school should start in late August.

"It is the time of the year that we want to tell people to get school physicals and dental examinations and immunizations. Make the appointments now to avoid the crowds," Jacknik said.

The examinations and immunizations can be obtained from private physicians, she said, although the Jackson County Health Department is administering the immunizations for free every Tuesday between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

No appointments are necessary and the Health Department can be reached at 457-8111 to answer any questions.

Jacknik also mentioned that during the school year, the Health Department will be sending letters to the parents of children who have not been immunized. These letters will request permission for the school nurses to give the examinations.

She said immunizations were required for several childhood diseases. A MMR shot provides protection against measles, mumps and rubella. A DPT shot covers diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus. Also required are an oral polio vaccine, a TB (tuberculosis) skin test and any necessary booster shots, Jacknik said.

She said all these diseases can cause brain damage plus other damaging effects. Measles can also cause deafness and death; rubella or three-day measles can effect pregnant women during their first trimester of pregnancy and damage the fetus; polio can result in paralysis and death; and tetanus has a 60 percent fatality rate. Jacknik recommended that even adults should receive tetanus boosters every ten years.

"The Carbondale School District decided on their own to implement the requirements, which is really commendable," she said. "The school code has always been on the books but they haven't enforced it until now."

SIU to sponsor ROTC meeting

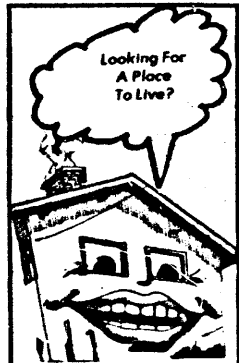

SIU students have been chosen to host the annual national meeting of Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight in St. Louis, Mo., next year.

Members of SIU's Harper Squadron were selected from among 146 similar air society units at U.S. campuses. More than 2,000 students, Air Force ROTC cadets and others are expected to attend the next Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight National Conclave in April, 1978.

Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight are national students' social organizations that support the Air Force. Arnold Air Society members are Air Force ROTC cadets who plan to be officers in the service. Angel Flight is an organization of college women interested in the Air Force and Air Force ROTC.

Assisting the SIU hosts will be students from Southeast Missouri State University, Park College, SIU-Edwardsville and the University of Missouri at Columbia.

State may lose millions to ERA patron's boycott

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago will lose $171 million in convention income over the next eight years if the state Legislature does not pass the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, the local chapter of the National Organization of Women said Monday.

Illinois will lose an undetermined amount of sales tax, tourism and downtown meetings because of a national boycott of states which have not passed the ERA, spokeswoman said at a news conference.

"When people decide not to tour the land of Lincoln they don't send letters. They just don't come here," said Kim Waldron, NOW boycott analyst.

The Chicago Convention and Visitors Bureau has estimated the boycott loss through 1983 at $20 million. Bureau spokesman Lloyd Van Meter said Monday that that figure did not take into account lost sales taxes or what he called the multiple effect of visitor and convention income.

The multiple effect takes place when, for example, a visitor's tip to a porter or the porter's salary is spent locally and generates more sales and income for local businesses or services.

"They may have found groups that we're not aware of," Van Meter said.

NOW officials said more than 170 organizations and 22 local government units which would have come to Chicago have so far voted to hold conventions in states which have ratified the ERA.

"I think people downstate should take a look at this and understand that people outside Illinois are serious about the ERA," said Anne Lady, head of Chicago NOW's advisory committee.

The Legislature is to consider the amendment this session.

Canoe trip offered through Arkansas

By Vicky Letavish
Staff Writer

Imagine yourself canoeing through whitewater or backpacking through meadowlands and forests carrying your supplies.

Is it a dream? No, it is a 12-day expedition in the Arkansas Ozarks exploring the Boston Mountains and the winding Buffalo River.

The trip, offered by the Underway Program at Touch of Nature, will include backpacking, rappelling, canoeing and hiking from May 28 through June 8.

Dave Cielak, instructor at the Underway Program, said the Buffalo River Expedition is open to students and members of the community. No experience is needed in orienteering or canoeing to sign up, he said.

"The group will learn to work together and depend on one another during the trip. The trip will begin by running the obstacle course at Touch of Nature," said Cielak, who has previously been on the river trip.

The trip costs $174 and includes transportation, food and some equipment. Backpacks and sleeping bags can be rented from Touch of Nature for $1 a day.

Cielak said the trip will begin with two or three days of backpacking through the mountains of northwestern Arkansas. The river is rough and the water is low, so they plan on hiking in to a safer point, he said.

The majority of the 150-mile expedition will be canoeed on the Buffalo River. The Touch of Nature staff will have the canoes brought to the designated area.

"The river has some small rapids, but nothing that a beginning canoeist can't handle. We will be passing beautiful rock formations and bluffs along the way," said Cielak.

The enrollment for the trip will be limited to 16 people, two groups of eight. Two group facilitators, Underway instructors, will be in each group to help instruct and cook.

"There will be leaders in the group but we expect everyone to help with the chores. They will be available mainly for guidance," said Cielak.

Cielak said the trip will give people a chance to try rappelling or canoeing even if they have no prior experience. By the end of the trip, everyone will be a good canoeist, he said.

The group will leave from Touch of Nature on Sunday, May 28 and transportation will be provided by a University van to and from Arkansas.

Those interested in signing up for the trip can pick up applications at the Student Activities office at the Student Center or contact Mark Congrove, 463-2244.

The Underway Program will be offering other canoeing and backpacking trips throughout the summer.

Youngsters learn to detect, prevent high blood pressure

By R. Scott Vaigt
Student Writer

Carbondale sixth-graders will learn how to prevent, detect and control high blood pressure in a health education program to be started next fall.

Sponsored by the Jackson County Health Department and the Illinois Heart Association, the program was recently approved by the Carbondale Elementary Board of Education.

The program's goals are twofold. Virginia Scott, Jackson County health officer, said.

"Our primary aim is health education," Scott, the program's coordinator, said. "We want to prevent high blood pressure and cut down on the incidence of heart disease."

The secondary goal of the program is detection and control of high blood pressure, said Scott. Accordingly, children will check their parents' blood pressure upon completion of the course.

Scott said a pilot program was implemented at the Carruthers Middle School in Murphysboro last fall and the results were favorable.

In that program, youngsters discovered several persons who were unaware they had high blood pressure or hadn't had their blood pressure checked recently, she said.

Scott said many younger parents think they are in good health and may not be aware of the risks of high blood pressure.

The idea for the blood pressure program began in May 1977, when Scott and Dr. Courtland Mirraoe, cardiologist at the Carbondale Clinic, were invited by the Georgia Heart Association to view a similar program in Georgia elementary schools.

Mirraoe serves as Chairman of the Educational Advisory Committee to the Jackson County Heart Association, a trainer for teachers and a reference for technical information.

C'dale school tries new reading program

By Rita Elliott
Student Writer

Johnny had a reading problem when he attended Lincoln Junior High School in Carbondale. When he left Lincoln, he still had a reading problem. His sister, Judy, also has a reading problem, but her story won't end the same way.

Last fall, the way reading had been taught at Lincoln was changed. Instead of emphasizing only literature and grammar, developmental reading was added to the curriculum, Principal Larry Jacober said.

"A high priority among the teachers has been doing something about reading," Jacober said. "So last year, we began to look for other models."

A model was found at Fisher Junior High School in Urbana. This plan which uses teacher-student contracting showed real success on reading comprehension, Jacober said. As a member of the Illinois Diffusion Network, Fisher tries to sell its model to other schools. The federal government has decided to give schools money to use programs that have proved to be successful instead of letting schools develop their own programs, Jacober said.

Lincoln contracted with Fisher to adopt its model. The teachers at Fisher trained three of Lincoln's teachers on how to use the program and how to make it work. Lincoln also received $1,000 to start it.

Lincoln bought about $4,000 worth of reading materials for the program. The school purchased reading materials for individual study, leveled reading kits, audio materials and visual materials.

"The philosophy is to be a direct service to two distinct groups," Jacober said. One group is students who are reading above level while the other is students who are reading below level. However, this does not include special education students.

"Since we didn't want it to be labeled for problem readers, we made an eighth grade elective," Jacober said. This nine-week elective, honors read, is for students who are reading above grade level.

A pre-test is used to determine each student's strengths and weaknesses. The goal for students who are reading below level is to improve their reading comprehension by 25 percent in two semesters.

The goal for honors read is to strengthen weaknesses the students have.

After assessing the students, an individual contract is written. "We want him to be challenged by the contract but we don't want to cover him up," Jacober said.

Students have said they "have really left challenged." Also they have said "you have to think

Baseballers find second home with three wins at Oklahoma

By Bud Vandersnick
Sports Editor

The Saluki baseball team has a friendly home at Abe Martin Field, evidenced by the 358-33 record the Salukis have fashioned since the facility opened in 1965. Love affairs like that between a team and a park are difficult to find on the road, but the Salukis do have a strong affection for Haskell Field in Norman, Okla.

The seeds of the relationship were planted last year when Coach Ichy Jones' team traveled to Norman for the Midwest Regional and breezed to the title with three straight wins, including a 7-3 conquest of the host Oklahoma Sooners. The Salukis were separated from Haskell Field for nearly one year after that tournament, but they rekindled their love affair with the Sooners' home park over the weekend.

After dropping a 2-0 decision in the opener of the four-game series Friday, the Salukis rebounded to win three straight from the perennial Big Eight champions, 3-2, 9-2 and 9-1, giving them a 10-1 record in their last seven games at Haskell Field.

The Salukis returned home for final examinations with a 31-12 record, and they have just one doubleheader remaining on the schedule before the Missouri Valley tournament, May 18-21 in Omaha. The Missouri Tigers, another Big Eight opponent, will visit Abe Martin Field Saturday for a twinbill at 1 p.m. A rescheduled doubleheader next Monday with Missouri-St. Louis has been canceled because of schedule conflicts.

Jones is not about to make Norman the Salukis' permanent home, but he would like all road trips to be as successful as the recent ones to the Sooners State have been. He hopes his team has finally peaked.

"Our pitching was good and so was our defense except for one inning in the first game Saturday," Jones said. "We made some great plays in the field. It was a good series for us in that we did a lot of things as a team—sacrifices, hit-and-run plays and double plays.

"It has to help us confidence-wise. We have struggled all year and it was good to see us put it together against a good team. I knew we were capable all year, but we just haven't been able to go out and get the job done."

The Salukis collected just six hits in the two games Friday, but they were able to escape with one win. Oklahoma's Mark Nipp silenced the Saluki bats in the opener, surrendering just two hits in the Sooners' 3-0 win. Rob Simond pitched admirably himself, giving up only seven hits, but he got no offensive support and suffered his fourth loss in 10 decisions.

The Sooners' Scott Gardner permitted only four hits in the nightcap, but one of them was a two-run home run in the sixth inning by Chuck Curry, his ninth of the season, which gave the Salukis a 3-2 victory in a game that was called after seven innings because of darkness. Both teams elected to forego the usual format of playing two seven-inning games, so all four games were scheduled for nine innings in an effort to prepare the teams for post-season play.

Sophomore Bob Knezevich earned his fifth victory against two losses by pitching three-hit ball over 4 2-3 innings of relief. Rick Keeton earned a save by pitching a scoreless seventh inning.

The Saluki hitters took their bats out of the freezer Saturday, exploding for 16 hits in the opener and eight in the nightcap. Curry, Paul Oudo and Craig Robinson each had three hits in the first game to pace the Salukis to a 9-2 win.

The beneficiary of the hard-hitting attack was Keeton, who upped five hits to improve his record to 7-3. It was the fourth consecutive win for the junior from Cincinnati, who pitched a no-hitter in his previous start against Austin Peay.

The game was far from a defensive clinic, as the Sooners committed five errors and the Salukis made four. The Sooners' frustration reached a peak in the sixth inning when shortstop Art Toal simply walked off the field after booting two consecutive ground balls.

The wrap-up of the series saw Dave Stieb collect two hits and a save. The junior centerfielder relieved in the seventh inning after the Sooners had scored two runs and pitched scoreless baseball over the final three frames to protect the Salukis' 3-2 win. Freshman Rod Peterson pitched the first six innings and earned his third straight win.

The Salukis scored two runs in the first inning and added a single tally in the fourth. Shortstop Jerry DeSimone also banged out two hits in the contest, which dropped the Sooners' record to 38-17.

Simond and Keeton will be the starting pitchers Sunday against Missouri, which will complete in the Big Eight playoffs along with Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Kansas. The Salukis will open their defense of their Valley tournament title at 10 a.m. May 18 against New Mexico State in the double-elimination affair.

Despite no champions, netters places third at Valley tourney

By Steve Cooran
Staff Writer

The men's tennis team's one-year reign as Missouri Valley Conference champions came to an abrupt halt Saturday as the Salukis lost several close matches in the meet and had to settle for third place in the nine-team MVC tournament at Peoria. Wichita State and West Texas State played as well as Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre had expected and tied for first place with 37 points each, the first time in MVC history that there have been conference co-champions. SIU finished with 29 points.

"Sometimes the final result doesn't really tell how well you played," LeFevre said after noting that the Salukis had dropped many sets in three set tie-breaker situations.

LeFevre had hoped that SIU's Jeff Lubner, the No. 1 seed in singles play in the tournament, could capture the No. 1 singles bracket title and earn a trip to the nationals. But Lubner, like several other Salukis that day, was eliminated in a three-set thriller and had to settle for second.

After getting a bye in the opening round, Lubner defeated Bradley's Bill Metzler 6-0, 6-4, to move into the semifinals. He then edged out the Shockers' Mark McMahon 7-6, 7-6, before losing to Todd Reed of West Texas State, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

SIU's No. 2 player, Neville Kennerley, also fared well in the early going as he easily handled two opponents to earn six points (three points for every win) for the Saluki cause.

But the close-mate' jinx once again struck the Salukis in Kennerley's third match as Wichita State's Myron Puhyt slipped by Kennerley 6-3, 1-6, 7-6—a match in which Kennerley lost five potential match points.

Boaz Nikritin also picked up six points with a pair of wins before losing in the semifinals, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

Sam Dean, who owned the Salukis' best singles record this season going into the tournament, was ironically the only Saluki to be beaten in the first round of competition. Dean wasn't able to avoid the jinx either as he was edged 7-4, 7-6.

At the No. 5 and No. 6 singles positions, Mark High and Jose Lizarzo each picked up six points. High and Lizarzo were awarded byes in the first round and defeated their Bradley opponents in the second round before losing in the semifinals.

The No. 1 doubles team of Lubner and Kennerley was awarded a bye in the first round and won its second-round match 6-3, 3-6, 6-1. But SIU then dropped another tie-breaker, losing 7-6, 6-2 to the Shockers' No. 1 doubles team in the semifinals.

Nikritin and Dear defeated Bradley's No. 2 doubles team 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 before falling, 7-5, 7-5 to Wichita. High and Lizarzo didn't fare much better as they were beaten in the first round by West Texas.

"They played just about the way that they've been playing all season," LeFevre explained about the way the Salukis played in the tournament after piling up an 11-17 record over the season.

with center snaps and ball-handling. Our offense missed key people like quarterback John Cernak and Bernell Quinn and Kevin House."

Evans was 14-25 with three interceptions for 92 yards.

The offensive line did not give either quarterback a lot of time to throw, either. It still "needs improvement," according to Demsey. "I still think we can be a good offensive team," Demsey predicted. "If we can get some linemen to come in and do a job, the offense will go."

But there were those who had good performances. Like junior college transfer Michael Coleman. Demsey calls the transfer from Lawrence, Kan. "the best junior college transfer we have. He is the fastest runner on the team."

Coleman rushed for 36 yards on 11 carries and caught one pass for 14 yards. Harrison led all rushers with 104 yards on 13 carries. Wash Henry also had a good day running the ball for the Maroon squad. He carried 11 times for 48 yards.

"Michael is a good back. He will battle Wash for the tailback spot and I'm sure he'll play a lot of football. When Joe Croft and Bernell get healthy, we'll have some backs," Demsey added of Coleman.

Don Vinson, a walk-on, also had a good day carrying the ball. He picked up 33 yards on 13 carries for the White team.

Defensively, Ron Geels showed 1977 form as he picked off two of Carr's three interceptions. Tim Cruz got the other for the Maroon team. The defense held Carr to only eight yards all day.

"Ron plays more sound each time he goes out," Demsey complimented. "He plays with great enthusiasm."

But the coach was disappointed in the game as a whole.

"There aren't too many good spring games," he said with a smile. "I don't think any of the spring games have been good since I've been here. It'll take us another year or two to have a great spring game."

Maroons beat Whites in grid game

By George Chelak, Staff Writer.

Vic Harrison saved the day for the Maroon football squad Saturday. If it weren't for him, the Whites would have pulled an upset—and that would be like the College All-Stars upsetting the Dallas Cowboys.

Well, maybe not that big an upset. But it was Harrison, a fullback, who stole the show at McAndrew Stadium where the annual spring game took place before a crowd of around 500.

The 5-11, 200-pound sophomore scored two second-half touchdowns to send the Maroon Salukis to a 14-10 victory over the Whites.

The Maroon team made up of the first-team offense and defense, was given a first-half scare by the Whites as Clarence Robison scored from one yard out with 24 seconds left in the first quarter. Paul Molla's kick was good, and the Whites had an early 7-0 lead.

Molla added a 25-yard field goal with 10:10 left in the half to up the margin to 10-0 and send the Maroons into the locker room scratching their helmets.

But Saluki Head Coach Ray Dempsey didn't let them scratch long.

"I told the No. 1 defense at the half that they were not playing very physical football, not hitting," Dempsey said. "And I told the first-team offense that if they were playing at Drake, they would lose."

Drake is the Salukis' first opponent of the fall, Sept. 9 at Des Moines.

That's when Harrison went to work. The Grand, Ohio native took a handoff from Maroon quarterback Reggie Evans and ran 62 yards for his first score just over two minutes into the second half. Les Petroff converted on the point after and the Maroons were within three.

Harrison displayed his versatility in the fourth quarter by catching a six-yard pass from Evans for a score. Petroff converted and the Maroons were ahead to stay.

"Harrison played well," the coach said. "He ran well on dive plays and he also caught the ball well."

Dempsey said that the Salukis would throw the ball more this year, but Evans and Gerald Carr, signal-caller of the White team, had interception problems all day. Evans was a disappointment because he had had such a good spring.

"Reggie had 19 days of super practice, but he had a bad day," Dempsey explained. "But maybe I expected too much." Our No. 1 center, John Hall, was out with an injury and both clubs had problems

Saluki softball team wins state title

Center fielder Dennis also doused the Panthers' hopes of staging a rally with a sliding catch of a line drive in the sixth inning.

The biggest defensive play of the game was pulled off in the seventh inning by Mary Biondi, who filled in at second base for the injured Sue Schaffer. Eastern loaded the bases with no out in the seventh inning, putting the Salukis' 5-3 lead in jeopardy. The next Eastern batter ripped a line drive that appeared to be headed for right field, but Biondi speared the ball while going to her right.

The Eastern runner at second strayed too far on the play and was unable to scurry back to the base before Biondi stepped on the bag for the unassisted double play.

King retired the next batter to preserve the victory and notch her fifth win of the year against three losses.

The Salukis met the top-seeded and favored Western Illinois Westernwinds in second-round action.

The contest was a pitching duel between the Westernwinds' Robin Lindley and the Salukis' Meyer. The two pitchers matched each other pitch-for-pitch through five innings.

In the sixth, SIU scored the only two runs of the game. After two were out in the frame, Dennis beat out an infield hit. Choate lined a single to center field that eluded the Westernwind center fielder for a two-base error. Dennis scored on the play and Choate motored to third. Detering scored Choate from third with her single to right.

Western Illinois was unable to raise any type of threat against Meyer, who scattered four WIU hits over seven innings.

"In the Western game I feel we played as well as we had all year," Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. Heien (Meyer) did a super job and I think that helped give us the confidence to come back against Illinois State."

Meyer came back in the third game of the day against ISU to register another victory and raise her record to 5-6.

Karen King, who started the final game, wasn't given sharp fielding support as the Salukis' defense went on vacation in the first inning.

In the contest between the only undefeated teams remaining in the tournament, the Salukis committed seven errors, two in the first inning—when all four of the Redbirds' runs crossed the plate.

SIU countered in the second inning with a single run and took the lead in the third with a four-run outburst.

Choate started the decisive third inning, in which SIU sent nine batters to the plate, with base hit. With one out in the inning, Stamm singled and Choate stopped at second. Meyer singled to load the bases. Choate was then reroad at the plate on Biondi's attempted squeeze bunt and it looked as if SIU was going to squander a scoring opportunity.

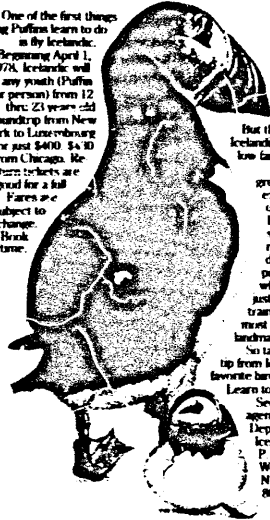

But a wild pitch allowed Stamm to score before King walked. Lynne Williams drove Meyer and Biondi home with a base hit and Estroci's single capped the scoring, driving home King from third.

Meyer relieved King in the fourth inning and breezed through the Illinois State lineup the remainder of the game. Meyer did not allow any Redbird hits in her four innings of work.

Western, like the Redbirds, lost only one game to SIU, but was placed fourth because they lost at the Salukis in an earlier round than Illinois State. Northern finished third because they had lost just one tournament game besides having defeated Western in two regular season games.

Gottfried interviewed for coaching job

By Bud Vandersnick,
Sports Editor

Joe Gottfried took time off from his basketball coaching duties at Ashland, Ohio, Monday to visit SIU and express his desire to make the transition from Division III to Division I. He had plenty of opportunities to express those desires because Athletics Director Gale Sayers kept him busy all day.

The 38-year-old Gottfried, who has been head coach at Ashland for five years, met with President Warren Brandt in the morning and he appeared before the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee at noon. He concluded the interview process with a meeting in the afternoon with George Mace, vice president for University relations.

The Crestline, Ohio native became the second of the four finalists to be interviewed for the head coaching job at SIU, which was vacated April 7 when Paul Lambert resigned to take an identical position at Auburn. Saluki assistant George Lubell was interviewed last week, and the screening process will be completed when Sam Miranda is interviewed Tuesday and Don Dyer comes to town Wednesday. Sayers has scheduled a press conference at 11:30 a.m. Thursday to name the seventh coach in Saluki basketball history.

The appearance of the sun after a hiatus of several days added to the scenery of the SIU campus, and Gottfried enjoyed the sights. He said he would promote the campus to its fullest extent if he were to get the job.

"The campus here is one of the prettiest I have ever seen," the bespectacled Gottfried said. "My wife came here with me and she fell in love with all the trees on campus. This campus is a definite recruiting plus. If SIU can get basketball players to visit the campus, those players are going to be impressed."

The Ashland Eagles have prospered under Gottfried's tutelage. The Eagles have won 59 of their last 79 games and have appeared in the Division III playoffs in each of the last three seasons. If he becomes the new coach of the Salukis, Ashland will be losing two coaches.

"My assistant, Rod Spivery, would come with me if I got the job," Gottfried said. "I would take him anywhere. He has untapped potential. I have never met an assistant who is as impressive as he is with regards to appearance and knowledge of the game."

SIU is the second Division I school that has made the blond Gottfried a finalist for its vacant basketball coaching job this spring. The Cincinnati Bearcats kept Gottfried guessing about his future until the last moment before hiring ex-Chicago Bulls coach Ed Badger.

"I feel my experience at Ashland has readied me for a major college position," Gottfried said. "I have been under the gun in recruiting and coaching. We have gotten some good players at Ashland with the deck stacked against us in the recruiting wars."

"I have been given the impression that the job here is wide open. I don't think I am at a disadvantage being a small college coach. I am optimistic about my chances, just as I am always optimistic before a game. I feel I've paid my dues."

Softball team captures rain-shortened state meet

MACOMB—Illinois has crowned a new state collegiate softball champion, and lo and behold it hail from Carbondale. The Salukis put together three winning efforts Saturday to win the rain-abbreviated state tournament in Macomb.

The Salukis began their push toward their first title ever with a 5-2 victory over fourth-seeded Eastern Illinois. That effort was backed with an upset victory over top-ranked Western Illinois 2-0. The day was capped with a 6-4 come-from-behind triumph over long-time nemesis Illinois State.

The wins put SIU in the finals of the double-elimination tournament, which were scheduled to be played Sunday, but heavy rains canceled the finals and SIU was given the title by virtue of being the only undefeated team in the tourney.

SIU's next stop on the tournament trail is Grand Valley, Mich. for the Midwest Regional Championships, which begins Tuesday. The regional tournament is the last hurdle for the Salukis, who hope to make a return trip to the Women's College World Series in Omaha, Neb. slated May 25-28.

Senior pitcher Helen Meyer sparked the Salukis' surge by posting two of the three Saluki victories.

Offensively, the entire team starred, as timely hitting from both ends of the batting order helped the Salukis roll through the tournament field.

"That was the real SIU team playing out there today," Saluki left fielder Robin Deterding said after the final game Saturday. "We all knew we had the talent to do it, we just weren't sure we'd get it all together in time."

In the Salukis' tournament opener, shortstop Deb Stamm drove three runs home with a single and a triple.

SIU broke on top in the first inning of its opener 2-0, a lead which they would never relinquish.

Pat Matrecci began the Saluki first with a walk. Lisa Dennis popped out to the Panther first baseman while trying to bunt the runner along. After Nancy Choate struck out, Deterding stroked a single to left field. Stamm then picked up the two-out RBIs with a triple to right-center field.

EIU picked up a single run in the third inning off starter-winner Karen King, but SIU came roaring back in the bottom of the frame with three more runs of its own.

Matrecci again started the rally, this time she did so with a lead-off single to left field. Dennis and Choate were retired, but Deterding solved the Eastern hurler for another base hit. Stamm's single drove Matrecci home from third and Meyer's follow-up single chased Deterding and Stamm home.

But the SIU offense was only half the story in the contest against EIU, as the SIU defense sparkled.

The Carbondale nine turned two double plays, both in critical situations, and they also accounted for numerous other defensive gems.

One EIU rally was halted in the fourth inning when left fielder Deterding snagged a sinking line drive while on the run and threw to shortstop Stamm, who was covering second base to complete the inning-ending double play.

Team effort sparks track win at Intercollegiate meet

By George Csolak
Staff Writer

With one of his top competitors out of the lineup, Saluki track Coach Lew Hartzog needed an outstanding team effort to win the Illinois Intercollegiate meet at Macomb last weekend.

And he got it.

The Salukis' entire team took the spotlight. There were no standouts in any one event, according to the coach, and the team effort led SIU to 211 points, first place and a new meet record. Illinois took second with 151 points followed by Eastern and Illinois State with 86 and 21 points, respectively.

Things looked pretty bad late last week when Hartzog announced that David Lee would not be making the trip. Lee sustained a leg injury at the Drake Relays two weeks ago and the intermediate hurdler and relay man was forced to stay home.

His absence put a damper on the three events he normally ran, and it was up to the rest of the team to score as many points as possible.

"The people that we took up came as close to realizing their full capabilities as any group I have ever had perform to me," Hartzog said proudly.

The Salukis won 11 events but the important thing was that they had many who placed well to give rival Illinois a tough time. The Illini have a deep talented team and Hartzog was afraid that they would clean up on points.

"The guys we thought were going to win did their thing flawlessly," the coach praised. He added that the others who were not expected to place high, did outstanding.

It was Hartzog's third straight win over what he called an Illini team "that competed very well."

Mike Kee won the 100-meter dash in 10.6 and took second to Vince Jones of Illinois State in the 200-meters with a 21.2. Kee was a question mark going into the meet. He had been recovering from a twisted knee he sustained at the Drake Relays.

Another question mark was Andy Roberts. The senior hurdler had been suffering from arthritis in his legs for the past month. But he ran anyway and after the prelims of the 110-meter high hurdles, Hartzog said Roberts' legs were really bothering him.

But Roberts ran the finals anyway and set a new meet record with a first-place time of 14.1 seconds. "It was one courageous race," Hartzog said.

Another surprise came in the 400-meter run. Steve Lively stayed about a yard ahead of two Illini high school state champions, Mark Claypool and Ed Hatch to take first place in a time of 47.71.

Scott Dorsey took fifth in 48.32, but Hartzog said it was a good race.

Mike Bissase, another Saluki hobbled by injuries earlier in the season, worked hard last week to get back into shape and took second in the 1,500-meter run. Bissase's time was 3:47.07. Jerry George took sixth in 3:52.06.

Paul Craig and Mike Sawyer took third and fifth in the 5,000-meter run as the former qualified for NCAAAs with a time of 14:09.5. Sawyer's time was 14:15.7.

Sawyer took fourth in the 10,000-meter run with a time of 29:45.4, and Craig won the steeple chase in 9:06.3.

Kevin Moore took Lee's place and took fifth in the 400-meter intermediate hurdle with a time of 54.4.

The 400-meter relay team took second with a 41.3. Western Illinois won the race, but the Salukis came back to take the top spot in the mile relay in a time of 3:14.7 to top the Illini by almost two full seconds.

Stan Podolski highlighted the field events as he won both the discus and the hammer throw. The junior from St. Louis set a new meet record in the discus with a throw of 173-7 and added a 180-9 to win the hammer throw.

John Marks won the shot put and took second to Podolski in the discus. Marks had a 57-14 to outdistance Podolski, who took second in the shot, by almost two feet. Podolski threw 55-11, but Hartzog said he had a scratch throw of over 58 feet. Marks had a 135-7 in the discus.

Tim Johnson won the pole vault in 10-0. Clay DeMattei took third with 16-0 and younger brother Mike was fourth with 15-6.

Rick Rock won the long jump with a leap of 25-6 1/4 and Ken Lorraway took third with a 24-9. Lorraway won the triple jump with a 51-5 1/4.

Don Aimone and Dan Connelly took fifth and sixth in the hammer with throws of 143-1 and 132-9, respectively. And, of course, Bob Roggy won the javelin despite the rainy, cold conditions at Macomb. Roggy threw 236-1. Ken Dennett took fourth with a throw of 201-5. Chip Shirley took third in the decathlon with 6,287 points.

"Gary Wieneke paid our team a very fine compliment late in the meet," Hartzog said of the Illinois coach. "He came up to me and said, 'Lew, that is one hell of a track team.' I really appreciated it."
