Student Senate votes to drop qualifications for trustee candidates

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate Wednesday night voted to eliminate all the qualifications for candidates wishing to run for student trustee after two hours of debate.

With 13 of 24 senators present, the senate decided to eliminate the following qualifications from the rules set Tuesday by an ad hoc committee that candidates must:

- present petitions signed by 300 current SIU students.
- be full-time students for three consecutive quarters.
- have at least one year remaining at SIU.

- currently be in good academic and disciplinary standing.

The senate also changed the maximum for advertising from $200 to $25 after a motion was made by Gary Ferguson, westside dorm senator.

"They have really shot this thing to hell," Steve Nuckles, elections commissioner, said as he left the meeting. "From the response I got from the senate over election laws, they're (senators) only adding more scars to a bad face."

Nuckles said the Graduate Student Council (GSC) definitely will not approve of the senate's action. "I speculate that Carr (student body president) will go over the top of this," Nuckles said. The action took place after Jon Roesler, School of Technical Careers senator, argued that the students voted for a general student body election.

"They voted for a general election," Roesler said. "The Student Senate is now making a selection by eliminating some of the possible candidates. Students could have just as well voted for the senate to appoint a candidate by the way we are handling this," Roesler said.

Victoria Rooks, westside non dorm senator, said that Student Government and GSC were out of order by setting rules.

Senate Vice President Jim Kania said Ms. Rooks was out of order and added "If you're an anarchist, you'll run without rules."

"We don't have the right to say which students can run for anything," Ms. Rooks said. "We are here to represent all the students and they voted for a general student election."

Another item argued was whether the candidate elected as trustee should forfeit any office held in any recognized campus organization.

Senator Roesler said if that was the case, athletes should not be allowed to be trustee because of the conflict of interest. The senate finally voted 9-4 in favor of the proposal.

Other items accepted by the senate were:

- An election committee of two graduate students and two undergraduate students will be established to decide if candidates are in violation of any campaign laws.

- Campaigns must be conducted without party affiliations.

- No campaigning will be allowed until Monday, Nov. 19.

The trustee election along with the election for student senators is scheduled Dec. 5.

Nixon wants extra power in fuel crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon asked Congress Wednesday night for emergency powers by December to combat the growing fuel shortage, including lower speed limits, year-around daylight saving time and exemptions from anti-pollution laws.

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the nation in a broadcast address. He cited the Mideast conflict as the cause.

Nixon disclosed he is preparing plans for gasoline rationing only as a "contingency plan." He said that users of home-heating oil will have to get by with 15 per cent less fuel than they used last year.

Nixon asked for, among other things, authority to reduce business operating hours, curtail outdoor electrical lighting and impose energy conservation taxes or fees.

He said he is ordering all federal vehicles to travel no more than 50 miles per hour. Legislation would be necessary to make that provision apply to all drivers.

Noting that the Arab shutoff of oil shipments to the United States had made the situation acute, Nixon said petroleum supplies this winter could be as much as 17 per cent short.

"The fuel crisis need not mean genuine suffering for any American," he said. "But it will require some sacrifice by all Americans."

Nixon said some school and factory schedules may be realigned and some jet flights canceled.

Pilot program expected

'Work for credit' policy starts slowly but surely

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Slowly but surely, the new "work for credit" policy is being implemented.

A student interested in getting credit for work relating to his or her major field of study should contact the department chairman. Ultimately, the decision of granting credit rests with him.

Frank Adams, of the Student Work Office, said Wednesday that paperwork for the policy is moving pretty slowly. Only one student is now receiving credit for his work experience.

"If we can get a pilot program under way this fall with about six people or so, I would be satisfied," Adams said. "This is a slow process, but by the time semesters are in effect next fall, we should be in full swing."

Problems with implementing the policy rest in the Registrar's Office, the Student Work Office and with department chairmen. Adams has mailed "job description forms" to all department chairmen asking for outlines of jobs the chairmen want to be accredited.

The department must decide if he wants to participate in the programs and, if so, what kinds of jobs should merit credit. If he does want his department to participate, he must fill out the description forms and meet with Adams and the Registrar to get final approval.

Then, students may apply through the department for credit for jobs relating to their majors. The decision to grant credit will vary with the student, his grade point average and the type of work being performed.

Adams said if a student tells his department chairman now that he would like credit for work, the chairman may move faster in getting approval through the Student Work Office.

Under the guidelines for the policy, students may apply for retroactive credit. This means if a summer job is related to a major field of study, the student may apply for credit for that work. Similarly, students working this fall may apply for work they are presently doing, although it may not be granted until department approval is received later this year.

Even though students are being paid for work they are performing, credit may be granted.

Torn-up parking lots continue to plague faculty members

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Faculty members are doing most of the griping about five torn-up campus parking lots, Rino Bianchi, director of construction and facilities planning, said Wednesday.

Bianchi said he has received phone calls which indicate "some of the faculty is a little unhappy" about giving up parking spaces. There hasn't been much complaint from students, Bianchi added, perhaps because many own bicycles.

The number of parking spaces now lost to construction is unavailable, Bianchi said. "We don't like to think of it in those terms because we are enlarging several of the lots," he added.

Three of the five lots will gain spaces, he said. Bianchi did not know the exact number of new spaces.

Adding to Bianchi's good news for drivers, Willard Hart, campus architect, announced Wednesday he will let bids in early December on two more parking lot projects.

A new 110-space lot will be built north of Grand Avenue, between Forest and Elizabeth streets, Hart said. The lot, No. 107, will have a gravel surface this winter and in spring it will be oiled and chipped.

Hart also will let bids on renovation of lot No. 55, at Washington and Grand Streets. The lot will be re-constructed to "bring it up to permanent quality," Hart said. When finished, it will hold 120 cars.

Stevens Construction Co. is installing new curbs, gutters and lights in the five disrupted parking lots. While gutters and curbs are being installed, all perimeter parking spaces are lost.

Next, Bianchi said, the lots will be closed—hopefully consecutively—for resurfacing work. It should all be over by the first week in December, he said.

Lots now undergoing construction are: No. 1, west of Lawson Hall; No. 4, south of the Communications Building; No. 23, on Oakland Avenue and Douglas Drive; and Nos. 40 and 46, west of the Communications Building.

A lot east of Anthony Hall, No. 10, also was scheduled for renovation, Bianchi said, but plans were shelved pending a Board of Trustees decision on a new parking structure for the Student Center-Anthony Hall area.

Also stalled are plans for a 500-car parking lot on the former site of University Trailer Court (UTC).

Work on that lot will have to wait until spring, because the Illinois Board of Higher Education and the coming cold weather have combined to slow construction.

The IBHE took an unusually long time to approve plans for the UTC lot, Bianchi said. He attributed this to the board's recent "full agendas" and not to the protest launched by UTC residents who did not want to move from the court.

The board just recently got around to releasing the funds for the UTC lot, Bianchi said, and now it is too late to do more than clear the site of small buildings and debris.

Architect Hart explained that concrete cannot be poured in cold weather. UTC lot requires extensive concrete work. In addition, Hart said, the land where UTC once stood is low and boggy. Freezing conditions would have an extreme effect on any new construction there, he said.

Lunch and Learn

Perk serves Fuller's ideas as main course

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

R. Buckminster Fuller's "World Game" strategy of world problem-solving was the main course of Wednesday's Lunch and Learn session in the Student Center.

Harry Perk, department of design, said the world game idea is for nations to experiment with strategies in world problem-solving to determine methods to raise the standard of living with a minimum amount of resource waste.

"Bucky has been involved in this world game concept since I first met him at UCLA in the fifties," Perk said. "The SIU design department has been involved in the things Bucky has done since 1964."

Fuller a former SIU faculty member, is now a "fellow in residence" with four colleges and a university near Philadelphia, Pa., and is associated with SIU-Edwardsville.

Perk used the military's "war games" as an analogy to the world games concept. "Let's separate 'world' and 'games,'" Perk said.

"In war games, the military cares little about the world boundaries. When the military considers possible threats, they decide how to defend themselves and how to fight. They think beyond politics or economy. The only solution is to wipe out the enemy," Perk said.

The game-players are the military planners who attempt to anticipate what happens in the conflict, he said.

Fuller's world games, planners anticipate strategies and compromise on problems so "everyone comes out ahead," Perk said.

Perk read several discussions of the "failure" of the world's economic systems. "We have been perpetuating the myth that economic analysis is synonymous with economic reality," Perk said.

"The world game is a substitute method for dealing with world problems rationally rather than dealing with pseudo-problems," Perk said.

Perk showed the complications of the present world system of diplomacy with the Prisoner's Dilemma World Game. "Each nation tries to get the biggest piece of pie," he said. "If they considered each other they might both come out ahead."

The idea of the world game is to "maximize the joint welfare for 100 per cent of mankind," Perk said. "The multi-national organizations must put their influence together to be beneficial to society."

Perk said the design department has courses and summer workshops dealing with Fuller's world game idea, as well as 10 half-hour films describing how to "play" the game.

Casing incidents, unlocked doors blamed for dormitory room thefts

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The student opens his door in answer to a knock.

"Hey man," the stranger in the dorm hallway says. "My friend down the hall is out of matches. Got a light?"

As the student searches for a match, the stranger waits, casually peering into the room. After getting his light, the stranger leaves and the student forgets about the brief break in his studying.

The student may not know it, but his room has just been cased, said Detective David R. Bunton, SIU Security police. "Sometime later, when the student has been out, he will return to find that his room has been ripped off," Bunton said.

And thefts similar to the one above are difficult to solve. The casing incident is so innocent that the student "didn't give it a second thought," Bunton explained.

And thefts similar to the one above are difficult to solve. The casing incident is so innocent that the student "didn't give it a second thought," Bunton explained. "The student can't remember enough about the guy to give a good description."

Bunton estimated that there are 10 thefts per week from campus dorm rooms. "And that's a conservative estimate," he said.

The strange thing is that a majority of these thefts are through unforced entry, he observed. Students leave their doors unlocked to visit a friend or go down the hall to take a shower and when they return, something is missing.

Some of the thefts occur while the residents are in their room—asleep. Del Dickerson, student resident assistant on the 16th floor of Schneider Hall, reported that three rooms were entered on his floor last Saturday.

"In two of the rooms, the people were asleep," Dickerson said. "The thieves entered the room, sorted out what they wanted and left. In all three cases, the rooms were left unlocked. People fall asleep without locking their doors."

Pointing the finger of guilt is difficult to do, especially when the thief is never seen or caught.

Bunton theorized that many of the thieves are visitors of the dorm, who check the area "to see if anything is worth ripping off," while seeing friends.

And whether the thief is a resident of the dorm or not is difficult to determine. "With 800 residents, it is hard to know who lives here and who doesn't," Dickerson said.

Besides unlocked outer doors, thieves can enter rooms through bathroom doors in connecting suites and by crawling along the ledges of the high-rise dorms and entering through windows, Bunton noted.

And even when residents see strangers walking down the hallway carrying items, they fail to report it because "they don't want to get involved," Bunton said.

Another series of crimes in dorms has been the theft and damage to vending and washing machines within the buildings, Bunton said.

He estimated that about 50 vending machines have been broken into since the beginning of the quarter, a good number of these at Thompson Point.

With laundry equipment, people remove the backs of the machines and cross the wires to bypass the coin box, he said. Eventually, the machine shorts out and residents are left without a machine, he said.

To put a stop to the dorm thefts, Bunton said the Security office has held recent meetings with resident counselors and other dorm officials, requesting their assistance.

"Consequently, thefts are on a downhill trend—thanks to their help, he noted.

As for dorm residents, who are tired of having their possessions "ripped off," Bunton suggested that they remember to lock their doors and windows (even if living on the 17th floor in Neely) whenever they leave their rooms.

"And make it a point to remember what that stranger who knocks on your door looks like, so if a theft occurs you can give a description," he added.

Senate to vote on ISU student approval

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Senate is expected to vote Thursday on Governor Daniel Walker's appointment of an Illinois State University student to the Illinois Board of Governors.

The Board of Governors, one of five state university governing boards, manages Western Illinois, Eastern Illinois, Northeastern Illinois, Governors State and Chicago State.

Felicitas Berlanga, a 21-year-old junior was appointed by Walker to fill a board position vacated by retirement. Since June 30 she has operated as a full voting member pending the approval of her appointment by the Senate.

Two weeks ago, however, an executive committee in charge of reviewing gubernatorial appointments voted not to recommend Ms. Berlanga's confirmation. Since that time, Walker's Senate liaison men have been working with lobbyists for the Association of Student Governments (ASIG) to muster the 30 votes necessary to win confirmation. The Senate has 59 members.

Senators who voted against Ms. Berlanga cited a lack of qualifications. "We've got to have some people with a bit of expertise, in economics, or business, or something," said Sen. Frank Ozinga, R—Evergreen Park, chairman of the review committee. "The poor girl is caught without one ounce of qualifications."

Tim Renn, assistant press secretary to Walker, said Ms. Berlanga has successfully managed a $1.3 million slice of Illinois State University's budget. Renn was critical of committee reaction to Ms. Berlanga, and Ozinga's reaction in particular.

"They think the whole world should be lawyers or big-business people," he said. "Ozinga can't comprehend that she has unique experience to bring to the Board."

Jim Gitz, executive director of ASIG, perceived the vote as a political response to a Walker appointment. Twelve of 13 committee Republicans voted against Ms. Berlanga's confirmation, while all eight Democrats voted to confirm.

"Many of the governor's appointments have been held hostage this year," Gitz said. "This is not a new thing."

Renn, however, did not believe party politics was a motive. He said six other appointments "sailed through" by voice vote the same day Ms. Berlanga's appointment was considered, and her confirmation was the only one "that received special consideration."

"There is a lot of sentiment among more conservative membership in the Senate against the idea of a student on a university board," Renn contended.

Renn and Gitz both say they have the floor votes to confirm Ms. Berlanga's appointment. "It's hard to overturn a committee vote," Gitz said, but he was confident they have enough Republicans crossing over to assure a majority vote.

The floor vote has been postponed three times since last week, but Ozinga said the question will be acted upon during the Senate's Thursday session.

Renn said Ms. Berlanga's qualifications were not challenged by her colleagues when she joined the Board last summer. "Nobody on the Board of Governors has ever had a complaint," he said.

Renn said questioning of Ms. Berlanga by the review committee got hostile at times. "They were asking her questions I've never heard anyone else (appointed to a board position) asked," Renn maintained. "Some of the questions couldn't be answered by experienced board members without papers in front of them." They included complex budget and management questions, he said.

Ozinga pointed out that students are already being instated on governing boards in an advisory capacity, and said that should give them enough representation.

Renn said a student advisory member would have only as much influence as voting members wished to give to the student.

"If you don't have a vote, no one's going to listen to you," he said. He said a non-voting member would be consulted, but only when the board wanted an opinion, not when the student wanted to forward one.

Despite public protest

Nixon vows no intention of resigning presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, noting public doubts about his integrity and calls for his resignation "as a result of the deplorable Watergate matter," said Wednesday night he has "no intention of walking away" from the presidency.

Departing from his prepared text in a broadcast speech to the nation on energy policy, he said he would take every action to remove any doubts the American people may have of his personal integrity.

After ticking off what he said were the achievements of his past year, Nixon acknowledged that "I would be less than candid if I were not to admit this has not been an easy year in some respects."

Saying he had taken note of requests that he resign, he added, "I have no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do. As long as I am physically able, I will continue to work 16 hours a day for the cause of peace in the world and prosperity at home."

The President, speaking without notes, said he would work to remove any doubts about him which exist.

He said the American people "will come to realize that I have not violated the trust they placed in me when they elected me president of the United States."

As he opened the postscript phase of his remarks, Nixon said, "During the past year we have made great progress in reaching the goals I set in my reelection campaign."

He ticked off such items as:

- Ending the Vietnam war.
- Returning prisoners of war.
- "Progress toward our goal of real prosperity."
- Lowering the unemployment rate.
- "Progress in our fight against the rise in the cost of living."

Then he acknowledged, before vowing not to resign, that "as a result of the deplorable Watergate matter, great numbers of Americans have had doubts raised as to the integrity of the President of the United States."

Spokesmen for Nixon have repeatedly said in recent days that he has no intention of stepping down despite calls for his resignation by some senators, influential publications such as The New York Times and Time magazine and thousands of Americans who wrote and wired criticism of Nixon to Washington after he fired Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Crisis eases as newsprint supply climbs

By Deirdre Donnelly
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK—The critical shortage of newsprint that gripped many of the nation's newspapers in late summer and early fall has begun to ease in the last few weeks with the settlement of labor disputes at most Canadian mills.

But the availability of newsprint now and in the future remains a major source of concern at papers across the country.

The shortage was touched off by three-month strikes at Canada's major paper mills, which supply close to 70 per cent of the newsprint consumed in the United States.

After strikes at all but three relatively small mills were settled last month, the situation began to improve almost immediately, publishing officials say.

The situation is different, however, for papers—including the Christian Science Monitor and the Marshall Field papers in Chicago—which are served by a few mills where strikes continue.

The Christian Science Monitor suspended printing of its Saturday edition at the start of this month when its Midwest printer could not get enough paper for six full editions a week.

At the Marshall Field papers in Chicago—the Daily News and the Sun Times—Virgil Schroeder, vice of production, reported the classified advertising section had been dropped two days a week, news space and features had been reduced, and out-of-state circulation had been cut.

Schroeder and other industry officials say newsprint supply will be tight for months, even though the major Canadian mills had resumed shipping by the last week in October.

According to the Newsprint Information Committee, which represents Canadian mills, the strikes resulted in the loss of 550,000 tons of newsprint production.

SIU tuition proposal attacked by Millikin

DECATUR, Ill. (AP)—The president of Millikin University denounced Wednesday a proposal by Southern Illinois University to end tuition for Illinois residents attending public supported colleges and universities.

Dr. J. Roger Miller said at a news conference that he feared colleges and universities would drive private schools out of business. Millikin is a private university, SIU a public.

"If private colleges and universities did not exist, the 128,631 students now enrolled would have to be educated in state institutions," Miller said. "It is an obvious fact to every burdened taxpayer that the state could not assume these additional student loads without astronomical increases in appropriations from tax sources."

William W. Allen, of SIU, had said in making the proposal Monday: "The present tuition system is grossly unfair in a society that declares that higher education is a right, not a privilege."

The Board of Higher Education deferred action on the proposal.

Employees group unanimously endorses salary increases

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Civil Service Employees Council Wednesday unanimously endorsed the "administrative effort to gain salary increases of $1.5 million" for state-paid civil service employees.

The resolution further suggested allotting half of those monies to cover a 10 per cent cost-of-living increase for civil service employees, with the remainder going for salary and merit increases.

A minimum civil service wage of $400 per month was suggested in the resolution, as well as a clause calling for the same increases and minimum wage for civil service workers paid from local funds.

The resolution came out of a committee charged to review the report made by the task force on civil service salaries. The resolution, along with committee reactions to certain findings and recommendations in the task force report, will be forwarded to President David Derge.

The review committee agreed with task force findings except for a section contrasting faculty and administrative salary increase percentages with those of civil service employees over a four-year period.

The committee report questioned whether comparative percentages represented annual raises; whether the faculty raises figures were computed on a yearly or a nine-month basis; and whether percentages of civil service raises reflected the actual annual increases given.

Lets honor Lenus Turley

Carbondale was awarded the distinction "All American City" back in early 1972. conceivably the title was bestowed, with all due respect, after a careful evaluation of the city's work in various areas, including helping upgrade-minority groups within its boundaries.

However, an examination of current conditions would seem to indicate an increasing neglect of these groups and promotion of their efforts to better themselves.

It was announced recently that the new city park near Mardale Shopping Center would be given the name "Carbondalay"—an odd name to say the least. Since then, several suggestions for a more "meaningful" name have been offered by local residents. Among them was the name "Turley Park."

The Rev. Lenus Turley, has often been called one of the most outstanding residents in the city's history, man of many talents, of significant note and worth, who was both humanitarian and social activist.

As a district chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Rev. Turley tried to bring Operation Breadbasket to Carbondale. His failure to do so may one day be viewed as a tremendous loss to minority residents of the area.

Talk is not enough

If there is one thing a university instills in every student, it is the ability to criticize.

And yet, if there is one failing in a university, it is that it doesn't encourage students to face up to and work for improvement of a situation. The tendency is to find fault with something, blame its cause on someone else, but never to take the initiative in resolving the problem.

Students complain about American education. It is, we say, an attempt to pattern us into the business world, a drawn-out indoctrination by the Establishment.

We have been coerced by those who initially discovered the fault into believing it is the duty of the administration and the faculty to give us everything we want, to gear the entire operation of the university to benefit the student, to experiment in non-traditional educational concepts, to buck the system. Idealistic? Yes. Practical? Hardly.

So we stop there, short of our goal. We stop there, with more than $50,000 in student-controlled activity fees at SIU and say we cannot have the kind of education we want. We sit there with the power to spend that money the way we wish and we bring in rock concerts and divvy up money for clubs and sponsor movies in the Student Center.

A university is a tool of education. It is, at the moment, true that the Establishment uses that tool to train us and that the basic structures are here to stay for a while. Change will come, but slowly and responsibly.

The tool is here, the resources are here and the use we make of them is greatly up to us.

There is a definite need for music, plays and movies—they are an important and vital part of education. But must all our time, effort and money be dedicated to entertaining ourselves, to diverting attention from social problems, to shielding us from the "real world"?

When is it racist?

To The Daily Egyptian:

Well, it's happened again. Either there's something going on which for a long while I haven't been able to grasp, or certain blacks have been "going about their business of nation building" in odd ways.

Recently a student writer wrote "it is significant that a few years ago blacks were the very ones who cried out against pageants like Miss Southern and the selection of a Homecoming Queen because they were considered to be racist." Now, it seems to me a pageant like Miss Southern sounds like it would be a whole lot less racist, if racist at all, than the Miss Ebony Pageant sounds like it would be—and I'm not going arguing here for or against pageants per se. Black women are allowed to compete in the Miss Southern Pageant, as has been clearly evidenced. But would a white woman be allowed to compete in the Miss Ebony Pageant, except as a joke for the black population? I doubt it.

So, it appears, the blacks done it again—thrown names and accused whites; as a whole, as being actively racist, and then turn around and engage in actions which I would deem just as racist or more so than those which they say whites are engaging in.

I guess talk of equality for man comes cheap—yes, for many whites, but also for many blacks. Somehow it just all doesn't seem to make sense.

Mike Suttle
Senior, Physical Education

He was the first black chaplain of the Illinois State Senate in 1963 and participated in the "never-to-be-forgotten" civil rights march on Washington, D.C., with the late Rev. Martin Luther King.

As the first president of the Carbondale Human Relations Commission and chairman of the city's Police-Community Relations Board, Rev. Turley continually pushed for better ways of utilizing "all" of the city's human resources. He was a big man with an even bigger sense of warmth for the people of Carbondale. To him involvement meant more than simply being a member of a committee or writing letters of concern about the plight of black people and other minority groups.

He was a dedicated civic and community leader as well as a highly respected minister.

Rev. Turley died in 1969 while serving as pastor of the Rock Hill Baptist Church.

It may well be that naming a new park after him is too small a gesture to accord a man of such importance to the community. Nevertheless, it would at least show the city fathers know that it took all its people to make Carbondale an "All American City."

Last year, there were two major speakers at SIU in nine months—Jane Fonda and Stokely Carmichael. Two leftists with their doctrines to espouse, two worthwhile viewpoints to consider. But where was the other side? Where were others talking just as insistently about other crises—economics, social welfare, Watergate? Where were the politicians, opinions leaders, the writers?

Not at SIU, for sure. There is talk at Anthony Hall of bringing people like John Kenneth Galbraith and Margaret Mead to campus as part of the university's extended centennial celebration. It's sad that it takes an administrative assistant to realize the need for intelligent, substantial speakers on campus.

It is sad, too, that we must use an anniversary as an excuse for inviting such personalities here.

Surely a university audience—open minded, fairly liberal, eager to hear all sides—is a lucrative attraction to any speaker. How much great an education we could have by spending a day or two in sessions with leading authorities to exchange ideas, to question, to interact.

If American education is not what it could be, we must do something about it. We have the money, the time and the facilities as we will never have again. We have the makings for a more thorough, sound and thoughtful education. Let's not spend it all on entertainment and continue to blame our parent administration and faculty for its failures.

We should take the responsibility they have given us and do something worthwhile. Maybe we can plant the seed here for a better education system here in Southern Illinois.

Moderation is the word

To the Daily Egyptian:

I share Mr. Mason's view that alcohol PER SE is seldom harmful, unless it is misused. According to Dr. B. E. Miller, "There is no evidence to prove that moderate drinking will CAUSE any disease or injury the general health or shorten the life of the healthy adult," provided he take precautions while driving, etc. In fact, physicians sometimes prescribe wine or beer for certain ailments. Granted that alcoholism is a major problem, no drug can "reach out" and demoralize anyone. The harmful effects of drugs are usually attributable to those who ingest them.

Alcoholic beverages have played important roles in many religions. Jesus allegedly turned water into wine, and once commented on the proper care of new wine. In addition, He gave the disciples a cup of wine, saying, "Drink it, all of you, this is my blood, which seals God's covenant..." (Matthew 26:26-28).

Frenchmen use wine with their daily meals, to avoid unhealthy water. Surely this does not preclude their sincere worship of God. Sumerian tablets indicated that the cargo of Noah's Ark included beer, wine, and "stronger brews." The Mayflower's log explained why the Pilgrims ended their voyage before reaching Virginia: "...our victuals being much spent, especially our beere." (Playboy Host and Bar Book, pp. 104-105.)

To assert that the consumption of alcohol is unnatural is to imply that all potentially dangerous man-made items are unnatural. Carrying this view to its extreme, one might conclude that the DE is "sinful" since it uses machinery which can injure its operators—if someone is careless.

As for unhappiness being symptomatic of "unnatural" activities, this is obviously illogical. An unnatural event cannot occur.

Alcohol "belongs" to those who buy or make it, regardless of their religious preferences. I myself enjoy drinking occasionally. I have neither a broken heart nor a broken home, and I am not attempting to "purge" anyone's "pockets" or "minds."

In reply to Mr. Crabtree

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reply to the first paragraph of your letter states my feelings precisely! Unfortunately those 90 percent are in the majority and their views predominate in the public policy of the Christian Community, (re. Inquisition, birth control, cohabitation, etc.) and are strenuously promoted for the non Christians, be they unbelievers or of another religion.

You go on to equate the laws of God, as stated in the bible, with natural laws. This goes both ways. The laws of nature are the laws of God. So far as I am informed alcohol in moderation is not harmful to normal men. ANY excess has the potential to be harmful. Alcohol was the original question, you'll recall.

The rest of your letter returns to the original obnoxious assumption that the Bible is correct and those who believe otherwise are in error. That was the point I was contradicting in my original letter. There is much in the Bible that is good, but it should not be forced on those who believe in another god.

Disgraceful campus scene

To the Daily Egyptian:

I was astounded when I picked up the Daily Egyptian to read the issue of Nov. 2 and saw the front page splattered with the picture of that disgraceful scene on the campus of S.I.U. depicting the burning in effigy of the President of the U.S. That was a gross insult to the whole nation, as the President is the one that represents the U.S.A. to the World whether one likes him or not. If anyone doesn't like him he is free to "cuss and discuss" him to his heart's content, but to do such a stunt as that is beyond any decency whatsoever. Besides this is a State institution maintained by the taxes of the citizens of Illinois which is the biggest tax imposed on real estate. And they don't care to have their hard earned dollars go to educate those who would stoop so low, as the "Old Timer" farmer used to say—"That's lower down than a snake's belly in a wagon rut", just to draw attention to themselves with their antics. I understand there is an enrollment of 17 or 18,000 so 200 wasn't a very big showing for their antics. Usually a big crowd draws as near center as possible. In the picture they were rather scattered and looked as if they had come from a possum hunt in "Coon Holler". Not a very cultural looking showing from our University. The students responsible should be expelled and any teacher that egged it on should be fired pronto! Disgusted in the extreme—

No evidence supports the cry for impeachment

By John S. Knight
In Detroit Free Press

President Nixon is reaping a bitter harvest of criticism which grew from the seeds of arrogance which he and his associates in the White House planted in the political soil of America.

Mr. Nixon, exuberantly happy over his foreign policy successes with Moscow and Peking, unwisely interpreted his huge margin of victory over a certain loser in 1972 as a mandate to rule the nation, and not to govern it as provided by the Constitution.

The arrogance of power is a disease which has afflicted greater statesmen than Mr. Nixon. It has also brought most of them down, as it is now doing to a President who permitted a swelled head to overrule his better judgments.

As a nation, we had a right to expect a high level of competent performance from our President. Few men had enjoyed such a wide range of experience as did Mr. Nixon as congressman, U.S. senator and vice president for two terms under President Eisenhower.

Moreover, Mr. Nixon was regarded as a sagacious politician who had put aside some of the seamer characteristics of his youth and come to maturity as a man of very special abilities.

Yet today, our President in his second term has managed to bring down upon himself torrents of criticism such as this country has not witnessed since the administration of the hapless Herbert Hoover.

Just one year ago, President Nixon received 61.7 percent of the total vote cast. Today, an angry and unformed public is loudly demanding that he be impeached forthwith.

No public man within my memory has done so much to destroy himself so totally within so short a time as has Mr. Nixon.

Yet I consider the hue and cry for President Nixon's impeachment to be totally without merit at this time. Fortunately, my credentials for speaking thus are unimpeachable since I did not vote for Mr. Nixon at the last election.

The 'light fountain'

From The Oregonian, Portland

Fortunately, there is no practicable way to project an advertising sign to the surface of the moon, but a new invention now in operation in Tampa, Fla., is a large step in that direction.

The "sky projector," the work of two lighting engineers, is being used by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. to gain attention for one of its buildings. Clouds more than 6000 feet high above Tampa are bathed in light, a spectacle that can cause citizens who live 90 miles from Tampa to blind or wince.

The idea that millions of Americans like their night skies to be dark and star-studded has somehow escaped the promoters of the "light fountain" as it is euphemistically called. They are so carried away with the results of the gadget, which can change the color patterns of the clouds the way a beer tavern sign changes colors, it is being considered for other cities.

The legality of a company being able to decide what color the clouds will be at night may baffle legal scholars. But it ought not to baffle them for any longer than it takes the Legislature to meet.

Florida, of course, has really outdone Southern California, where only last month astronomers were complaining about wasted highway light being reflected into the sky so that even with powerful telescopes the study of the stars has been impaired.

The "light fountain," which seems to operate for those at ground level near the building even in the daytime, may be not only the most conspicuous sign dreamed up by electricians, but it may well be the most conspicuous waste of electricity seen anywhere in the world.

Obviously Tampa has a surplus of electricity and a shortage of taste. If the electrical shortage in the Pacific Northwest saves Portland and Seattle from the "light fountain," it may prove that even in darkness, there is a little sensible light.

I argued then, in connection with the Watergate revelations, that I could not support an administration which had abdicated all moral principles. I stated On Oct. 29, 1972, that "the time has come for a friend to cry out against the cynical disregard for truth and honesty by the Mitchells, Haldemans and other members of the palace guard who apparently are utterly lacking in principle. As a citizen, I resent being asked to accept on faith the shabby tricks of gutter politics which are being masked in the deep and foreboding silence of those who govern my country."

On July 1 of this year, I described the "present plight of President Nixon" as "an American tragedy such as we have not witnessed in our times"; and stated that "ultimately, the President will be forced to go before the country and give the people the truth. He alone must attempt to restore, if he can, the people's faith in their government. It is the President's duty to explain how such a senseless tragedy was thrust upon the American people."

"Well," you may be thinking, "that is all very fine and noble, but what does it have to do with impeachment? Just look at the terrible things Nixon has done since."

Certainly I would agree that the President's devious handling of the Watergate tapes, the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the loss to the administration of such able men as Elliot Richardson and William Ruckelshaus are events to be thoroughly deplored.

But are they grounds for impeachment? The Constitution says: "The president, vice president, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

To my knowledge, and at this time, Mr. Nixon has not been convicted—other than in the court of public opinion—of any of these impeachable sins.

True, the President did not choose to submit the question of executive privilege to the Supreme Court as it had been earlier believed he would do. He elected instead, and at the last moment, to turn the controversial tapes over to Judge Sirica as ordered. Charles Alan Wright, who represents Mr. Nixon, stated that "this President does not defy the law. He has authorized me to say that he will comply with the court's order in full."

So despite the anguished cries of the American Civil Liberties Union, partisan members of Congress seeking to make personal capital out of Mr. Nixon's dilemma, and an underinformed public which votes its gut feelings through over-simplified call-in newspaper polls and radio talk shows, there appears to be no substantial legal ground for the President's impeachment.

Finally, there are other compelling reasons why President Nixon should not be impeached on the basis of evidence at hand.

We are living through another crisis in the Middle East which could assume world-wide proportions.

President Nixon, despite his many imperfections, is a recognized world leader who—together with Secretary Kissinger—has enjoyed many notable accomplishments in the field of foreign relations. The heads of other governments with whom a President must negotiate are not sharing the American public's distress over Watergate and related matters. Their concerns have little to do with U.S. domestic ills other than economic.

Secondly, we have no vice president to succeed the President in the event the latter is impeached and found guilty. Rep. Ford, the President's vice-president-designate, is being held "hostage" by a Congress with politics on its mind.

The presidential succession, therefore, would descend upon Oklahoma's Rep. Carl Albert, speaker of the House. Mr. Albert, a man of no remarkable distinction, has himself urged caution on the impeachment issue.

In this season of baseball trades and changing managerial lineups, I would doubt the wisdom of trading Nixon-Kissinger for Albert-what's his name.

So before the public opinion goes off half-cocked, let the House Judiciary Committee—as the Miami Herald has suggested—"begin a sober and orderly study of whether the President has in fact done anything for which he should be impeached."

That really is the question. Kick Nixon around if you like, berate him for his sins, rue the day you voted for him—but don't pop off about impeachment if you're not sure you know what you're talking about.

The program accompanying the Collegium Musicum concert is reminiscent of the Renaissance period. Madrigals and ballets were combined to create a cross section of English music from 1580 to 1620.

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Five Elizabethan-dressed singers sat around a white-clothed table decorated with chalices and candlebrums. And the director wore a silver cap.

A scene from a Shakespeare play? No, a Collegium Musicum concert. And a fine one at that. Tuesday night at the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel, the Collegium Musicum performed madrigals, ballets and lute songs from the late English Renaissance.

The program's variety included a small madrigal group of five, an expanded ensemble of 19 singers and solo songs accompanied by Renaissance-style guitar with an occasional viol.

The five-voiced ensemble did not give director John Boe a lot of sound to work with, and performed the weakest sections of the concert.

But with the fuller sound of 19 voices, Boe was able to shape and build the phrases with a fine sense of dynamics. The prominent melodies were swept to the front, only to smoothly back off and make way for a new surge of melody.

Chris Renshaw's vocal performances of the lute songs, "Weep No More" by John Dowland and "Farewell All Joys" by Orlando Gibbons, were the highlight of the evening. She also sang a love duet, "Who is It This Dark Night" by Gibbons, with Jay Rogers, who answered her from the audience area. This pleasant and sentimental piece of music—capably performed—was another very pleasant moment of the evening.

Also on the program were some Italian lute pieces played on guitar by John Scammon, who has enough dexterity to make his guitar sound like a clavicord.

Ending with Morley's joyful madrigal "Arise, Awake," the concert gave the audience an education and enjoyable cross section of English music from 1580 to 1620.

Both party leaders agree Watergate problems had no effect on elections

By Don McLeod
AP Political Writer

While the Democrats on balance appear to have come out on top in Tuesday's elections, the chiefs of both major parties agree that Watergate had little to do with it.

Instead, Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss and Republican George Bush said in separate news conferences, the real test was their efforts in rebuilding troubled parties. Both said Wednesday they saw evidence of their own success.

"Watergate doesn't appear to have been a determining factor," said Bush, who has been campaigning to persuade the nation that the party shouldn't be blamed for scandals at the White House.

And Strauss, who has been warning Democrats against a false sense of security, said, "I don't think the elections were a Watergate referendum."

Democrats in general did well, however, especially in New Jersey, where they recaptured the govern-norship and controlled the legislature in a record-breaking performance. Democrat Brendan Byrne beat Republican Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. by some 700,000 votes in the governor's race.

In California, a referendum issue championed by potential Republican presidential candidate Gov. Ronald Reagan went down to defeat.

Democrats scored heavily in important municipal elections across the country, principally in New York, where Abraham D. Beame led a citywide Democratic sweep, which returned the city to the party fold it left in electing John V. Lindsay as a Republican mayor eight years ago.

The closest thing to Republican glee came in Virginia where the GOP retained the governorship by a paper-thin margin in a race with a Democratic nominee, Mills E. Godwin Jr., a former Democratic governor running as a Republican, beat Henry E. Howell Jr., a Democrat who ran as an independent, by about 1 per cent of the vote.

Godwin, who succeeds moderate Republican Linwood Holton, ran a campaign based chiefly on his opposition to school busing. Howell's platform featured opposition to the state sales tax on food and non-prescription drugs.

Bush's confidence about the Watergate issue was not shared by Gladys Brooks, the Republican candidate for mayor of Minneapolis who finished a distant third. "A great deal of Watergate has carried over here," she said.

DE editorial policy hearing cancelled by Student Senate

A Student Senate hearing investigating the Daily Egyptian editorial policy was cancelled Wednesday because several committee members could not attend.

Garry Seltzer, chairman of the Academic Affairs committee which is in charge of the hearings, said the four committee members could not get together at 1 p.m. as planned. They were to hear testimony from Bill Harmon, former managing editor of the Daily Egyptian.

Seltzer said the hearings would resume sometime next week.

The hearing would have been the fourth in the investigation of DE editorial policy. Investigation began after English professor Fred Whitehead complained to the Student Senate on Oct. 10 that a letter he had written to the paper had not been published. So far, Whitehead, Egyptian staff writer Diane Mizialko and University senator John Sheridan have testified.

Wednesday's hearing had been planned two days in advance, but Seltzer said conflicts arose in committee members' schedules.

Board will set 30-day limit for paying new trailer tax

By Randy McCarthy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mobile home owners in Jackson County will have 30 days to pay the privilege tax on mobile homes after the new tax goes into effect, Delmar Ward, Jackson County clerk and recorder, said.

The new tax will take effect after completion of assessments of mobile homes in Carbondale and action by the Jackson County Board, Ward said. Trailer owners in Carbondale have until Saturday to complete trailer registration forms used for assessments, the office of the supervisor of assessment has announced.

Under provisions of the new law, the county board can approve an ordinance granting a 20 per cent reduction in the assessment for persons 65 and older who own and live in a mobile home and whose yearly net income is less than $4,000, Ward said.

The partial exemption proposal will be presented at the board's next meeting Nov. 14, he said. Approval of the measure will allow the tax to take effect in Jackson County Dec. 1, Ward said. If the proposal is defeated the partial exemption will be denied and the tax will take effect immediately, he said.

The owner is assessed 12½ cents for each square foot of trailer space regardless of the age of the trailer, Ward said. A person owning a 60 by 12 foot mobile home will thus be assessed $90 under the new tax.

The registration forms for Carbondale trailer owners request information on the trailer's length, width, year, ownership and the names of its occupants.

The registration forms are available from mobile home park managers and from the supervisor's office in the basement of the Jackson County courthouse. The forms also may be obtained through the mail by calling or writing the supervisor's office.

The privilege tax will increase to 15 cents per square foot after July 1, Ward said. In the future the owner will have until July 1 to pay the privilege tax, he said.

The privilege tax was needed because the 1970 Illinois Constitution did away with the personal property tax for Illinois taxpayers, Ward said. The privilege tax was passed by the General Assembly to take the place of the personal property tax, Ward said. It was signed by Gov. Daniel Walker Aug. 25.

The General Assembly felt "a trailer is either personal property or is like a house" and is subject to taxation, Ward said.

He said he didn't know how many mobile homes are in Jackson County or how much money the privilege tax will raise. Ward said he thought the mobile home owner will pay less under the privilege tax than he did when assessed under the past personal property tax.

If the owner doesn't pay the tax within the 30-day period the county treasurer can file a lien against the owner, Ward said. This would prohibit the owner from transferring the title of the trailer or using the mobile home for collateral on a loan, he said.

A penalty of 1 per cent interest per month will be added to the assessment until it is paid, Ward said.

Rabbi praises effort as total in drive rises

By Debby Ratermann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU Hillside Foundation has raised nearly $5,000 for the Israel Emergency Fund (IEF), Rabbi Earl Vinecour said Wednesday, "making it one of the top ten university Hillside in the country in fund raising activities."

A kosher hot dog dinner and W.C. Fields movie are scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Hillside, 715 S. University. Each event will cost 50 cents and proceeds will go to IEF.

"I'm extremely proud of our students and faculty," Vinecour said. "The $5,000 has come from them, not from local townspeople—their donations go through the synagogues. Students have worked very hard and have given over $2,000 of their own money."

Rabbi Vinecour said faculty members have also made personal donations, "including several between $250 and $1,000." Hillside also raised $100 in a benefit concert and $250 from a yard sale. A raffle, bake sale and car wash also have raised money.

Oil crisis hits record industry

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be plenty of Rolling Stones and Barbra Streisand in the record bins this holiday season, but don't count on finding a copy of Yugoslavian folk songs or a re-issue of your favorite vocalist of the '40s.

The reason: The petroleum shortage is hitting the record industry.

Alarmed by the growing scarcity of petroleum-based plastics used in making records, some companies have begun cutting back on production, postponing new releases and experimenting with different quality materials.

"The companies don't know from one day to the next what kind of supplies they will have," said Henry Brief, executive director of the Recording Industry Association of America, a trade group. "It could could get to be a very, very critical situation."

PRC Recording Co. of Richmond, Ind., which presses records for several major labels, has reduced its work week from seven to five days and is allocating to customers, said Gerald Sharp, comptroller.

"The problem began last spring and has been steadily getting worse. Right now we're getting only 70 per cent of the vinyl we used to get," he said.

While there should be no difficulty in obtaining the latest Rolling Stones album, for example, consumers may start feeling the pinch when it comes to low-priced or specialty labels.

Capitol Records has postponed the release of a dozen or more albums until the first of the year, and some marginal albums originally scheduled for production may never come out, said Chan Daniels, a recording executive.

"Artists are going to have a lot tougher time getting record contracts, because nobody wants to press new records before they get really concrete orders," he added.

The shortage could also lead to lower quality records, as companies experiment with thinner records or substitute plastics that can be mixed with the polyvinyl chloride normally used.

Some firms, however, say they have experienced little difficulty so far. RCA, for example, says it foresaw the problem and ordered enough in advance to "get us through the first six months of next year and possibly the whole year."

The main problem, industry sources say, is the shortage of petroleum feedstocks used in producing polyvinyl chloride—PVC. Compounding the problem is the sharp rise in demand in the record industry, which is up 10 per cent over last year.

'Good Company' will offer variety

"You're In Good Company," which airs at 9 p.m. Thursday on WSIU-TV, Channel 8, will offer a variety of unusual information.

Freda Purcell and Rubby Wharry of the Christian Church Quilters in Murphysboro will be the featured guests, along with Debby Schmidt and Bill Wenger of the SIU parachute team. Mark Klover will illustrate the art of refinishing antique furniture, and Henry Jin will prepare almond boneless chicken, an exotic Chinese dish.

Music will be provided by Fu Bar. Dave Terwische is host of the hour-long program.

'Most Likely To' exposes faults of TV

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Until Tuesday evening, I never reviewed television films post facto. "The Girl Most Likely To..." which was presented at 7:30 p.m. on ABC-TV Tuesday Movie of the Week prompted me to abandon that tradition.

Billed as "the hilarious comedy by Joan Rivers," the film had the stench (as opposed to the scent) of desperation. It began as a naturalistic comedy, leaned toward surrealism near the middle and went flying in all directions at the finish.

A Review

I hesitate to describe what passes for a plot, but here goes. Miriam (Stockard Channing) is an unfathomably ugly college student—so ugly, in fact, she has enrolled in five different universities in three years. She accepts her physical condition good-naturedly and is thrilled when she lands a major role in a campus theatrical production.

Miriam's opening night is a disaster. She flees the theater and is involved in a car accident. Plastic surgery transforms her into a bombshell, and she vows to get even with everyone who laughed at her before. You might call it a contemporary Cinderella fable, although I think it does the original an injustice.

Ms. Rivers' rot proved that television is the cruelest of all mediums, particularly in its perception of what is amusing.

In one scene, for example, a medical student professed his love for Miriam in a darkened operating room. Without removing a stitch of clothing (the children might be watching), they fell on a table and grunted and groaned until the lights were snapped on and the whole thing was exposed as a joke. Miriam, of course, was the foil.

More: Miriam's plumber-boyfriend visits her in the hospital, where she is in a body cast. "I enjoyed watching you drink your supper," he quips.

More: Miriam drowns Herman. At the funeral, the mourners are told he died "a true plumber's death."

More: Miriam marries the detective who sent her to prison for her assorted crimes. She is looking forward to parole.

Enough. The film wanted to be on Miriam's side, and yet it couldn't resist laughing at her, too. This attitude was supposed to transfer itself to the audience.

"The Girl Most Likely To..." was not very important as a film. As an event, however, it transcended itself and laid bare all that is wrong with the medium. As for Ms. Rivers—well, she can always return to Las Vegas, the neon slime from which so many monstrous "entertainers" emerge.

Police suspect robbers

Nine murdered in California

By Steve Lawrence
Associated Press Writer

VICTOR, Calif. (AP)—Two couples, their four children and a friend were found shot to death execution-style Wednesday in a blood-spattered house in this tiny vineyard settlement.

"It's a shocking sight. It looks like the work of a madman," San Joaquin County Sheriff Michael N. Canlis said of the Tuesday night carnage in the new ranch-style home. All the victims were shot in the head.

Authorities theorized the victims had been ambushed by men who later ransacked the grocery store of one of the victims, Walter Parkin, 33. Parkin was owner of the rambling $60,000 home, 30 miles south of Sacramento.

Two children were shot to death on a bed. Parkin and six other victims, gagged and bound, were stuffed into a 6-by-8-foot walk-in closet in the master bedroom, police said.

The other victims were tentatively identified as Parkin's wife, Joanne, 31; their daughter, Lisa, 11; their son, Bob, 9; Richard A. Earl, an accountant and neighbor from Victor; his wife, Wanda, in her 30s; their son, Ricky, 15; their daughter, Debbie, 18; and Mark Lang, 20, identified as Debbie Earl's boyfriend.

The Earls and the Parkins apparently went out together for the evening, leaving Debbie behind to baby sit for their children, police said.

The grisly discovery was made Wednesday morning by Carol Jenkins, 18, a roomer at the Parkin home who was out on a date Tuesday night.

Deputies said Parkin's store, the United Market, had been unlocked and ransacked and an undetermined amount of cash taken from the safe.

The market is operated by Parkin and his father, Kenneth G. Parkin, who opened it at 8 a.m. and discovered the burglary.

Investigators theorized the robbers went to the Parkin house to get him to open the store safe, found the babysitter, Lang and children and waited for Parkin to return.

The community of Victor is a five-block cluster of buildings, warehouses and a winery along a railroad siding.

Walker sets standards for fuel usage cutbacks

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker announced today a new program designed to conserve fuel in Illinois.

He said he hopes state leadership will encourage similar steps by county and local governments, industry and citizens.

"The energy shortage during the next six months conceivably could assume crisis proportions," Walker said.

The state program he announced, with the endorsement of Secretary of State Michael Howlett, includes:

—Lowering the thermostats in all state buildings to 69 degrees during the day and 60 degrees at night and on weekends. Air conditioners will be set to remain off unless the temperature rises above 75 degrees.

—State vehicles—except police and other emergency vehicles—will be prohibited from driving more than 55 miles per hour.

—All lights in state buildings not needed for security or maintenance will be switched off at the end of each working day.

Women in higher education

subject on Fri lay seminar

Mrs. Marjorie J. Cunningham, assistant to the vice president for student affairs at Drake University, will speak on the professional status of women in higher education at an informal seminar at 4 p.m. Friday in the Wham Education Building faculty lounge.

—All lights in state buildings not needed for security or maintenance will be switched off at the end of each working day.

—Larger state automobiles will be replaced gradually with four-cylinder subcompacts.

At Board of Trustees meeting

Mager set for monorail queries

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, is ready to give two projects a push towards realization when the SIU Board of Trustees meets Thursday. Mager has been doing preparatory work so he can field the board's questions on the SIU monorail system and on the planned 400-car demountable parking structure.

Mager has an edge as he was asked to prepare the questions the board will ask, as well as the answers.

It's "highly unusual," Mager said, because the board, in essence, asked him to "send us a list of questions you think we're asking."

"It's kind of funny," Mager added, "but I'm happy to comply."

Mager relied on Carl Walker and Associates, consulting engineers, to prepare the board's questions. Walker and Associates responded in a letter to Rino Bianchi, director of construction and facilities planning.

The letter listed six questions which Walker and Associates felt the board had indicated an interest at a previous meeting. The questions concern the location of the parking structure, its relation to other parking facilities and its relation to the monorail system.

Mager forwarded the contents of the Walker letter to Chief of Board

Staff James Brown for distribution to the trustees, he said.

Besides having his questions and answers in hand, Mager will have two experts available at Thursday's meeting to answer any additional questions.

A consultant from Walker and Associates and the president of Personalized Rapid Transit, designers of the monorail system, will be present and available to the board, Mager said.

Congress vote lifts veto of war limitations bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress handed President Nixon a major defeat Wednesday by enacting into law over his veto its historic bill to curb presidents' war powers.

The 60-day limit on presidents' power to commit U.S. combat troops abroad without Congress' approval became law immediately when the Senate overrode the veto.

The Senate vote was 75 to 18, or 13 more than required.

The House overrode the veto hours earlier 284 to 135, four more than the two-thirds needed.

The war powers bill was opposed on the final vote by a coalition of President Nixon's supporters and antiwar congressmen who contended it would grant presidents new power to wage war up to 60 days without congressional approval.

Congress' override of the President's veto was its first in nine tries this year and the fifth since Nixon became President.

Inspired by the Vietnam war, the bill was intended to prevent the United States from becoming involved in such a conflict without Congress' specific approval. Many congressmen switched from their traditional positions.

Nixon vetoed the bill two weeks ago, calling its curbs on presidential war powers "both unconstitutional and dangerous."

Students plan clean-up trip

The Student Environmental Center (SEC) will sponsor a trip to Panther's Den to clean-up the area Saturday, SEC President Jeff Kolp, announced Wednesday.

The group will leave at 7:30 from the Student Center and will return in the afternoon. The trip will be free and any interested person can go he said. Transportation will be provided by calling SEC at 453-5715, and leaving a message, Kolp said.

"We'll hike and clean-up the area," he said. "It's a chance for people to be outdoors."

A cook-out will be held at Panther's Den before the group returns, Kolp said. He advised persons making the trip to wear heavy shoes and warm clothing.

Kolp said SEC members recently repainted the bins at the recycling center under the overpass crossing U.S. 51. He said SEC encourages students to bring paper and glass wastes to the center but said it was temporarily unable to accept metal waste.

Dormalee Lindberg, professor in the Department of Elementary Education, presented a workshop on affective learning for the Connecticut Association for Childhood Education International, which met in Bridgeport, Connecticut, October 26. During the morning session Lindberg involved the group in creative learning activities designed to produce a positive affect toward learning and school, highlighting the importance of cooperation and games that involve learning. The afternoon session was devoted to the use of multi-media materials, including slides of teacher-made materials, a tape-slide presentation prepared by students, and a tape-slide-music presentation of Lindberg's original poetry.

Wholesale prices drop in October

WASHINGTON (AP)—Led by lower costs for farm products, wholesale prices declined in October for the second month in a row, the Labor Department said Wednesday. The monthly Wholesale

The monthly Wholesale Price Index report showed a 3.3 per cent decline in prices of farm products and processed foods. That could mean at least temporary relief for grocery shoppers if the reduction is reflected later in retail prices.

Over-all, wholesale prices fell by three-tenths of one per cent after adjustment for seasonal pricing patterns following a sharp 1.5 per cent decline in September. Before any adjustment was made in the index, the report showed that wholesale prices in October declined five-tenths of one per cent.

Despite these improvements, there was bad news for consumers, too. Prices of industrial commodities, mainly gasoline and other fuels and metals, went up a sharp 1.1 per cent.

That figure reflected an economy still gripped with inflation.

And while the price of food was down on the farm, wholesale prices of consumer-finished foods went up three-tenths of one per cent. The figure measures the prices that wholesalers pay their suppliers for food products that are ready for consumer use.

Among consumer-finished wholesale prices going up were those for fresh and dried vegetables, eggs, milk, cereal and bakery products. But there were sharp price declines in meat and poultry in this category.

No upsets forseen in NCAA football picks

By Will Grimsley
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — The rich get richer and the poor get poorer in college football this week as Ohio State, Penn State, Michigan and Notre Dame fatten themselves for the post-season kill.

This is a game of emotion and clichés. Techniques change but the old acorns pop in the fire forever. Last week the clichés were better than the picks: 43-17, 717. Season: 379-136, 736.

Canoers to meet

The Southern Illinois Canoe and Kayak Club will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Chockstone Mountaineering store, 41 University Avenue and Walnut Street.

Alden Addington, faculty advisor, said fiberglass construction of canoes and kayaks will be discussed at the meeting. Several club members are presently building fiberglass crafts from either kits or scratch, he said.

The club, now numbering around 30, will also continue plans for future trips. Winter's cold shall not sway the members' trip-planning. Addington said, since water levels and speeds are greater than in the gentler summer.

AIA to play Salukis Nov. 13

By Fred Lynch
Student Writer

What kind of basketball team has never played a game "at home"?

"It's the Athletes in Action who will challenge the SIU Salukis Tuesday, Nov. 13 in the Arena for the first basketball game of the season.

"The Athletes in Action (AIA) should offer a strong challenge to any opponent it faces in its 'play 'em on the road' approach to the game," said Mark Anderson, AIA East team manager.

The AIA is composed of former college players who are staff members and associates of Campus Crusade for Christ, Anderson said. Six newcomers and four returning AIA men will play SIU after AIA's first game against nationally-ranked Marquette.

"The AIA should surprise the powers on their game schedule if they can hold their own on the boards," Anderson said, "and re-establish a strong defense that carried them to a six-game winning streak at the close of the '72-'73 season.

A top returner for AIA is Jim Blacklock, a 6-6 guard from Texas who last year averaged 16 points per game to lead the team, Anderson said.

The AIA double-post offense will be anchored by 6-foot-11 Charlie Thorpe, an AIA All-American from Belhaven College in Mississippi, and 6-foot-8 Roy Stiff of Brown University.

"Their ability to get the defensive rebound and start the fast break will be a big determinant of how successful this year's team is," Anderson said.

Vin Smith of Wichita State could well prove to be the team's top scorer, Anderson said. "At Wichita State, Smith averaged 15 points per game for three years on a team that controlled the tempo," Anderson said. "His speed could enable him to score considerably more with an up-tempo pace this year."

Occasionally, a player will be referred to as a "coach on the court" when he provides leadership to the team during the progress of the game. Only with AIA, this term will be literal rather than figurative.

Coach Greg Berry, a player from Bradley University, has been with AIA six years and has been coach for the past two years.

"Coach Berry will back up the post-men Thorpe and Stiff in an attempt to provide a measure of experience and stability to the team," Anderson said. "In Berry's first year with AIA, he helped upset Bradley which had won 57 straight non-conference home games until AIA snapped the streak."

During the half-time period of most games, teams go to the locker room for a talk with the coach. "The AIA will stay on the court and explain to the crowd what motivates AIA after graduation from college as opposed to other career aspirations," Dick Simms, Campus Crusade program coordinator said.

In addition to the East and West basketball teams, there are five other AIA sports. The AIA's two wrestling teams completed their best season ever last year. Their composite record for dual matches was 24 wins, one loss, and one tie, with wins over such teams as Western Illinois, Florida, and Nebraska.

The AIA track team captured two district cross-country championships last year. One team set a world record of 13:07.2 in the indoor three-mile during the National AAU Indoor Championships at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Four AIA weight lifting teams perform and speak at high schools, colleges and military bases. The teams join forces to compete in the national championships.

A new AIA team began in the spring of 1973—pro flag football. More than 30 NFL and Canadian football rules with no contact permitted, the teams only loss came at the hands of the University of Texas before more than 11,000 fans.

Towers considers 4 at quarterback

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

In an effort to come up with a more consistent offense, SIU Coach Dick Towers has four different players in contention for the starting quarterback position in Saturday's home game with Drake.

Fred McAlley, Leonard Hopkins, Dennis O'Boyle and Larry Perkins all have a chance of being the one Towers will select to run his offensive attack. Towers has said he would like to have a better running threat at quarterback, so opposing teams would not be able to key so heavily on the Salukis outside running threats.

O'Boyle, who started the first four games of the year for SIU, has been out of action with an ankle injury. Towers said O'Boyle's ankle has been healing slowly, but has healed enough for O'Boyle to be used in practice scrimmages during the week.

McAlley, who took over the starting job when O'Boyle was injured, was knocked dizzy in the first quarter of the Ball State game Saturday. McAlley was replaced by Leonard Hopkins, a sophomore from West Frankfort.

Towers was pleased with Hopkins' performance Saturday, and it appears that if anyone has the inside track on the spot for the Drake game, Hopkins does.

The other possibility, Perkins, is the most interesting of all. An All-State and honorary mention All-American quarterback at Memphis Melrose high school, Perkins quarterbacked the Salukis two and one half of his first three years at SIU. If running is what Towers wants out of his quarterback, Perkins seems the logical choice.

But one thing Towers doesn't want to do is jeopardize Perkins' threat as an elusive tailback. Sharing the tailback position all season with freshman Melvin Moncrief, Perkins is the Salukis leading ground gainer with 758 yards in eight games.

"We're working with Steve Weathersby and Lawrence Boyd and Perkins at tailback," Towers said of his offensive plans. "But there is a possibility we might use Perkins at quarterback. We've got to get back in the groove offensively because Drake is coming on strong after their win over Wichita State."

The Wichita State victory was only Drake's second win of the season. Drake's leading rusher, fullback Jim O'Connor, has been injured periodically with a lower back problem. However, O'Connor is expected to be ready for the SIU meeting Saturday.

Saluki-linebacker Seth Kirkpatrick is a questionable starter because of a shoulder injury he sustained in the Akron homecoming game and reinjured at Ball State.

Saluki cagers

By Gary Mihoces
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jim Palmer's penchant for pancakes has waned but his pitching prowess hasn't, and that's why he was named Wednesday as the American League's Cy Young Award winner for 1973.

The 28-year-old Baltimore Oriole right-hander didn't fork down nearly as many pancakes last season as he did in years past when he made it a pregame ritual and earned the nickname

"Pancake." Yet he still stacked up 22 wins against 9 losses, and his 2.40 earned run average was the best in the league.

That impressed the Baseball Writers Association of America enough to give Palmer the nod over California's strikeout machine, Nolan Ryan, and the pitching mainstay of the Oakland A's, Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Last season was Palmer's fourth straight with 20 wins or better, and his overall record over the past five seasons is 99-32.

The baseball writers gave Palmer 14 first-place votes and six for a second for a total of 68 points, awarded on the basis of five for a first-place nod, three for second and one for third.

"I actually felt that I was the best pitcher in 1973," he acknowledged. "I don't know exactly what the criteria is for the Cy Young winner, but I guess in my case it went to a balanced performance."

Runerup Ryan, also a 20-game winner, established an all-time major league strikeout record last season with 383 and pitched two no-hitters. But he finished 26 points shy of Palmer in the voting, and he had a slightly higher 2.87 ERA.

Ryan's 62 points, came on nine first-place votes, three for second and eight for third. Twenty-four writers, two from each American League city, did the voting.

Hunter, 21-5, was named on 22 ballots, more than any other player, but he fell short with 52 points. The writers gave him one first-place vote, 13 for second and eight for third.

Detroit's John Hiller, only relief pitcher among the nine players receiving votes, was a distant fourth with six points. He saved a record 38 games and won 10.

The SIU Bowling Club gave away six $5 cash prizes and 30 free games at Saturday's Moonlight Bowling, in which 125 people attended.

Thursday, a roll-off was held to determine members for a men's and women's bowling team to represent SIU at a tournament at Indiana University on Dec. 8-9.

The women are: Shirleen Weiss, Vera Kulinski and Jackie Kaiser.

Orienteering gets enthusiasts out of woods

The woods around the SIU Outdoor Laboratory were the site of the Office of Recreation and Intramurals first orienteering meet on Saturday.

The competition was divided into a men's and women's division with a beginners and a novice class for each division.

The winner in the men's beginners division was Ed Chismar, who navigated the course in a time of 48 minutes, five seconds. Chismar, representing the La Hacienda Recreation Club said, "I had a great time. It was my first experience at orienteering. Once I found that first marker, I was okay!"

In the men's novice division, Fred Kalta walked away with the honors with a time of 105 minutes, 18 seconds. "It's great. I had a lot of fun," Kalta said.

In the women's beginners division, Robin Nelson won with a time of 80 minutes, 2 seconds. In the novice division, Gloria Juhl took the prize with a winning time of 152 minutes, 51 seconds. Ms. Juhl said, "It was fun. I vented my frustrations."

AP names Gradishar

Linebacker Randy Gradishar of Ohio State, kingpin in a bristling Buckeye defense which held Illinois to 33 rushing yards, was named the Big Ten Defensive Player of the Week by The Associated Press Wednesday.

Earlier in the season, the 236-pound Gradishar and Buckeye tackle Pete Cusick shared the same honor.

Ohio State coach Woody Hayes asserted Gradishar was "especially outstanding, although we got fine play from the entire defensive unit" as the top-ranked Buckeyes blanked Illinois 30-0.
