Edgar wins by landslide

By Dean Weaver
Senior Reporter

The Illinois governor's race was not anticipated to be close, but Gov. Jim Edgar's support was so strong in the polls that he was declared the winner before the polls closed Tuesday night.

Mike Lawrence, Edgar's press secretary, said both he and the governor heard of the exit poll results one-minute before the polls closed at 7 p.m.

"These polls are awfully fast nowadays," he said. "We thought we would do well if we got a good turnout and obviously we did."

Edgar's victory from the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Chicago was given shortly before 10 p.m., beginning with Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra. Kustra said Edgar's landslide victory was unprecedented.

"They (the voters) have re-elected a governor with historic numbers never before seen in a re-election race for governor in Illinois," he said.

Edgar said he has come along way in four years and a long way in the past four months since being released from a hospital by bypass heart surgery.

He said voters have sent the message that government should continue to be streamlined, education funding is a priority but so are education reforms and accountability and economic opportunity should be allowed to become a reality for everyone statewide.

"Thank you for your show of support and confidence," Edgar said. "We will continue to move Illinois into the 21st century."

Lawrence said he thought the reason Edgar received such numinous support is because he always has success in holding

Bost turns political tables on Hawkins

By Aaron Butler
Staff Reporter

After losing two years ago to Democrat Gerald Hawkins for the Illinois House seat in the 115th District, Mike Bost expressed confidence in his opponent in the same manner as he was defeated in 1992.

Bost said that during his last race against Hawkins, the voting tables were turned in his opponent's favor.

This year it was Bost who stood on the threshold of victory.

"Two years ago it was a close race as well, but I was the one who was on the bottom -- this race," he said.

Bost said that his list of goals now is that he will be in office creating more jobs for the state, investing more in education and bettering SIC because it is a major source of employment in the 115th District.

Hawkins said he had no hard feelings against his opponent although he repeatedly expressed frustration at the negative campaign tactics used, especially toward the end of the race.

"We did the best we could -- there has to be a winner and a loser in every race," he said.

Hawkins also said he regretted not having more time to accomplish his goals in the legislature, because many of his projects were still in the developing stages, but he said he would remain politically active as a private citizen.

"I've gotta be where there's some action," he said.

Bost also expressed concern at the level of negative campaigning during the race.

"The worst thing is the negativity that affected my family," Bost said.

"(Hawkins) said things that attacked my family business that has had a good reputation for years. It's all water under the bridge now, and we need to move on."

Early Tuesday afternoon, Hawkins said this race was far from over.

Electorate give Congress hard shove to right

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON _ The American electorate continued its nearly two-year-old crusade to try and repair an electoral feeder line which has cut off power to various University buildings.

Brat Dillard, manager of control central, said power was lost at several buildings on campus and that the university was working on a problem.

"We are continuing to try to isolate a number of problems," Dillard said. "This is unprecedented in terms of power failure compared to anything we have experienced before. We hope to restore power with as little inconvenience to those affected as possible."

Power was lost to the Student Recreation Center, Wright and Boomer residence halls and a Randall cafeteria Monday due to a break in an electrical feeder line.

Between 8 and 10 p.m. Monday night, a scheduled power outage blacked out the rest of University Park and Brown Towers so workers could switch the electrical hook-up of the blacked out buildings to the feeder line for the non-affected area.

W-241 a.m. power went off due to complications on that power feeder, causing power loss to all of the buildings east of the railroad tracks.

Power was restored to all buildings, except Boomer, Wright and the Student Recreation Center, at approximately noon Tuesday, Dillard said.

He said the Randall cafeteria regained power, and should be resuming normal operations shortly, but the Student Recreation Center did not have normal A.C. power although it has been allowed to remain open and provide service with generated power.

Dillard said workers would be working all night in an attempt to restore power to Boomer and Wright by Wednesday morning.

Power to the Student Recreation Center would not be restored until Wednesday afternoon at the earliest, he said.

Family gives apology for false claim

Los Angeles Times

UNION, S.C. -- The family of accused child killer Susan Smith apologized Tuesday to blacks for her false claim that a black man kidnapped her two sons.

Smith's brother, Scott Vaughn, called the racial implication of her allegation a "terrible mistake", and said the family found it disturbing that anyone would think that this was ever a racial issue.

Smith confessed Thursday to dragging her children while in a state of depression that nearly caused her to take her own life. A number of black men were picked up for questioning during the nine-day search.

'BHIE': AIRLINE CAPITALIZES ON NOSTALGIA

BALTICM—They call it "the hippie airline." Much has changed since the 1970s, but Estonia's two-hour plywood planes, clock full of souvenirs, have scissored their way from New York to Reykjavik to Luxembourg. The airline, long since renamed, has replaced its aging fleet and added a new logo, but keeps on being a hippie airline.

The 1970s have not changed much, either. Since the late 1960s and '70s—when, after a round-trip ticket to Luxembourg, could be $295 in 1978. But Estonia was never "on top" of the discount market. As it competes intensely for passengers, it is starting to appeal to its old customers of the 1960s and '70s—now corporate executives, politicians and university professors—hoping to pull a little nostalgia into sizeable revenues. In promotional brochures and communications, Estonian is trying to capitalize on the hippie image, and the same pitch may emerge in its mass media advertising.

SERBS RENEW RANDOM SHELLING IN BOSNIA—

MOSTAR, Bosnia-Herzegovina—With each artillery round Serbian Serb fighters lob on the population of Mostar—a scene in former Yugoslavia's ethnic conflict that already has been tipped open three times in this war—the rebels may be doing more to strengthen the fragile Muslim-Croat alliance than to destroy it. United Nations military observers believe a recent resumption of random shelling in Mostar and intensified efforts to strangle the capital of Sarajevo are aimed at undermining the fledgling federation proclaimed in March. Bosnia's Muslims and Croatians began their arms after a vicious, year-long war. But the renewed Serbian attacks also have served to remind the divided people of Mostar that the nationalist rebels who first sparked Bosnia's spiraling bloodshed are a common enemy and should be regarded as the greater threat.

ZHIVINOVSKY DENOUNCES NEGATIVE IMAGES

SAN FRANCISCO—Russian nationalist politician Vladimir Zhirinovsky, in his first visit to the United States, charged Monday that the U.S. government was determining the political future of Russia. "They are the hero of Boris Yeltzin," Zhirinovsky said in a news conference and a speech before the World Affairs Council of Northern California. He added, "I am not a hero of Boris Yeltzin: They are the hero of Boris Yeltzin."

Zhirinovsky's Liberal Democratic Party won nearly 25 percent of the December's parliamentary election. In a news conference and a speech before the World Affairs Council of Northern California, the leader of Russia's largest party presented himself as a "democrat" and "centrist," and denounced reports of his antisemitism as hostile paid propaganda. He also disavowed as merely a "smoke screen" suggestions of his involvement in the mid-1970s' nuclear smuggling attempt from the Indian Ocean published in his 1993 campaign autobiography. Zhirinovsky's Liberal Democratic Party won nearly 25 percent of the vote in last December's parliamentary election.

MARCA BRADY APPEARS IN 'GREASE' REVIVAL—

NEW YORK—Who was the role of Rizzo, the tough-talking, chain-smoking leader of the Pink Ladies in the Broadway revival of "Grease," she rushed out and rented the movie version. From 1969 through 1974, McCormick appeared in 16 episodes of "The Brady Bunch" as Marcia, the eldest blond-haired, blue-eyed daughter, who did well in school, went steady a lot and lived a prototypical sunshine:-y-sitcom teen life. Her road to a role reversal and Broadway began last year when she ran into actress-comedian Rosie O'Donnell outside the Los Angeles studio where they both take voice lessons. The two became friends, and O'Donnell, who starred as Rizzo for six months after the revival opened on Broadway last May, recommended McCormick to the "Grease" producers. McCormick's run, which began Oct. 7, continues until Nov. 22, when she'll be replaced by Brooke Shields.

SIMPSON DRIVER WILL NOT BE PROSECUTED—

LOS ANGELES—At Cowling, O.J. Simpson's best friend who was at the wheel during the famous low-speed pursuit preceding the football great's arrest, will not be prosecuted for his role in the traffic collision.

The Los Angeles County district attorney's office announced late Monday. In a one-line statement, prosecutors explained that "the evidence available to us at this time is insufficient to warrant prosecution." The two became friends, and O'Donnell, who starred as Rizzo for six months after the revival opened on Broadway last May, recommended McCormick to the "Grease" producers. McCormick's run, which began Oct. 7, continues until Nov. 22, when she'll be replaced by Brooke Shields.

Rights protest extended to second day

By Kellie Huttes

In a second day of protest, students marched from the SIUC Student Center to Anthony Hall over the bridge to Grinnell Hall.

Members of the Non-Violent Coordinating Committee protested again Tuesday afternoon. Approximately 20 students protested and Tyrone Gray, spokesman for the group, says they will continue protesting every day until their demands are met.

Officials hope Reagan’s illness increases Alzheimer awareness

By Diane Dove
Staff Reporter

Officials at the SIU Center for Alzheimer Disease and Related Disorders hope the recent news that former President Ronald Reagan is stricken with the illness will increase awareness and dispel misconceptions about the disease.

Dennis McManus, the center’s medical director for the Primary Provider System in downstate Illinois, said Reagan’s announcement could help bring talk of the disease out in the open.

"Former President Reagan made a very courageous act in announcing the diagnosis of Alzheimer’s Disease," he said. "It is hoped that it will help people understand that it is a defect that people shouldn’t hide. With enough individuals identified as having the disease there will be more of a need for finding a treatment.”

Professor Robert Becker, a researcher with the center, said he hoped last weekend’s news of Reagan’s condition would create greater understanding and acceptance of the disease.

"Just because (people) get Alzheimer’s Disease it’s not the end of their lives," he said. "You don’t need to know what day it is to enjoy your grandchildren and your spouse."

McManus said that since people with the disease live an average of 8 to 10 years after diagnosis, the former president, who is 82 years old, is likely to die of Alzheimer’s Disease.

SIUC candidates announce run for local city council

By Chad Anderson
Staff Reporter

Undergraduate Student Government President Edwin Salyers and USG chief of staff Matthew Parsons and former USG vice president Lorenzo Henderson are two of the two candidates for Carbondale City Council during a campaign launch.

The announcement of the candidates, made on the steps of SIU’s Auditorium on noon Tuesday, continues Salyers’ quest for student representation on city council.

In response to current city council member John Mills’ remarks that council members need to have representation of the entire community and not just SIUC students, Parsons said he would represent the entire community.

"We have a concern, not only for the students, but for the members of the community," he said. "I have spent the last three years of my life here. I think I know the needs of the community." Henderson said he too would represent the entire community, and not just the students.

"We will represent the delicate balance between the students and the residents," Henderson said.

In his speech, Parsons emphasized the importance of this campaign being inclusive.

"This is not about being arrogant or ignorant, but because it is time for our generation to be heard," he said. "We are a generation with dreams, goals, and visions. I want to make clear that everything we’re doing is extremely serious."

Parsons said that since people diagnosed with the disease live an average of 8 to 10 years after diagnosis, the former president, who is 82 years old, is likely to die of Alzheimer’s Disease.

Denny’s releases plans to diversify ownership

The Washington Post

NEW YORK — The Denny’s restaurant chain tried to take another step away from the public fury over its alleged discrimination against black customers Tuesday by announcing plans for African American ownership of at least 47 new outlets.

Jerome J. Richardson, the Denny’s chairman who helped last year for his company’s image problem from the National Association for the Advancement of Color, said the company had selected a black-owned video franchise owner based in Atlanta to lead a major expansion in the Northeast.

Denny’s President C. Ronald Petty praised NDI Inc., which owns 23 Blockbuster Video franchisees, as “an experienced operator” with solid capital backing and good management. He said, “We expect to add more minority franchisees to the Denny’s system.”

NDI President James Holstein shrugged off several attempts by reporters to coax him into a discussion of past complaints that Denny’s mistreated minority candidates and later, in an interview, that the chain’s迷惑 was under contract and later, in an interview, that the chain’s迷惑 was under contract.

The failure of a Denny’s restauranter in Annapolis last year to promptly serve black Secret Service agents sparked a lawsuit and a Justice Department investigation that ended with Denny’s paying $345,000 in damages and agreeing to a court order.

NDI, which has two class action suits involving hundreds of complaints, said it was interested in obtaining a Denny’s franchise.

"We’re focusing on making a difference in the future," Denny said.

Denny’s has just two other restaurants owned by African Americans and presided in a 1993 agreement with the NAACP to hire 500 more black-owned restaurants by 7071: The chain’s 437,200 family restaurants, including 1,500 company and other restaurants.

But it also said it would provide special training beginning next year for the 15 first-time franchisee candidates to prepare them for taking over 10 restaurants under a fast-track program.

"We are a generation with dreams, goals, and visions. I want to make clear that everything we’re doing is extremely serious."

Parsons also said the weakness of his generation is his division.

"When our generation divides itself, we lose. When we let the stereotypes take place, we lose," he said.

Parsons ended his speech by asking for support from those present.

"I invite you to come aboard our ship of hope, and ride it until it ports in city council," he said.

Students make run: Consider duties first.

TWO SIUC STUDENTS HAVE OFFICIALLY announced their intentions to run for Carbondale City Council seats next April, but they need to first look carefully at the job description before throwing their hats in the ring.

Both the Graduate and Professional Student Council and Undergraduate Student Council already have liaisons present at council meetings to represent their constituents. And, while these liaisons do not have any binding authority at the meetings, they are able to offer input on issues that directly affect students.

Each member of the city council is elected to a four-year term to represent the residents of Carbondale. The key word is residents, not just the students. And, as much as students would like to have the council do their bidding it must be remembered that the council has an obligation to act in the best interest of everyone in Carbondale.

Anyone can run for Carbondale City Council if they have lived in the city three years and they get two necessary signatures on a petition of support. But to effectively serve in the capacity required as a council member, higher qualifications are obviously needed.

A council member needs to have a thorough knowledge of current issues within the city, how the city's bureaucratic structure operates and what direction constituents want the city to move on certain issues. Also important, but not mentioned, is that council members have been around long enough to see which issues were important to the city in the past and how they were dealt with.

It makes sense for a council member to be at least a relatively long-time resident of Carbondale who plans to be around a while. Can a student be expected to make the necessary commitment to being tied to Carbondale for at least another four full years?

THERE ARE NO BARRIERS KEEPING A student from running for city council. But, it must be realized that the job encompasses much more than bar issues, and a council member must faithfully represent the entire city of Carbondale.

USG and student concerns of being ignored by the city council are not completely unfounded. Students did indeed express views and courses of action that ran contradictory important and deserves some an active young man, playing successful, I also know that right

More important crimes taking place

The SIU police force never come to see me.

The American Dictionary states that, a police force is "a body of persons trained in methods of law enforcement and crime prevention and detection, and given the authority to maintain the peace, safety, and order of the community." That definitely is not a description of what the SIU police have been doing.

Right now it seems like all the police force is doing is trying to get money for the town. They are out there haggling about how they are trying to clean up the school's reputation. Well, the only thing they are doing is writing tickets for drinking, being underage in bars, and for public urination.

We pay for the protection that are supposed to receive from them, so we would have the opportunity to tell all them what they should really be doing. The fact is while the police force walk around from bar to bar writing tickets for underage violation, there are more important crimes taking place. It is not that the police should not be out at the bars, but they should not have every officer at the bars.

In recent weeks, there have been some extremely unsettling news reports coming from all around the globe. The drowning of two young boys by their mother in South Carolina, the crash of a plane in Indiana, the verification of the hole in the ozone layer over Antarctica, the ongoing genocide in Bosnia, and right here in Carbondale, the conflict between African-American students and the SIU administration, and the dispatches of the events on Halloween weekend causing back stabbing and name calling between the city and the students.

With all of this going on, I barely noticed a small story that is equally important and deserves some attention. A 16-year old boy from Norwalk, Massachusetts, has been missing for 10 days.

This may not seem like an important story when compared with the others I have mentioned, but consider the details before making your up mind.

The boy, Billy Best, was diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease (a form of lymphatic cancer) months ago. He obligingly underwent, the painful and nauseating chemotherapy treatment which doctors said would cure his disease.

After finishing the therapy, the doctors informed the Best family that the cancer has spread into Billy's throat and would require another round of chemotherapy. Billy was heart broken by this news. During the initial treatments Billy had not complained once about the pain which included nausea, fatigue, and hair loss. Billy's father even helped him to shave his head after the hair loss began.

Before the treatments Billy was an active young man, playing soccer and baseball. Playing the treatments he is down to the guthe.

His mother said it was hard to show him down. Last week when he thought the painful ordeal was coming to a close, he was informed that he would have to undergo the same thing again.

Unable to face the agony, Billy packed a dirty bag, left a note for his parents, and caught a bus aimed west. Billy's doctors say that the type of cancer he has is 90% curable if detected and treated early and that they believe his is also curable. I am not a doctor, and I do not encourage other cancer patients do seize the same results. Billy has chosen to take to the road and see the beauty of our country, experiencing and seeing things that others only dream about.

While I do hope Billy returns for his treatments and that they are successful, I also know that right now Billy Best is more alive than most people are in their whole lives. I would like you to think of Billy today, forget the headlines and remind yourself how it is to be alive, and how beautiful the world is. Then remind a friend.

Students should appreciate their lives

The police force of Carbondale really needs to start worrying about some of the real important crimes. They need to split their forces up. This would allow for different units to be at different places, and on the lookout for other crimes such as rape.

The SIU police force really needs to start doing their job. Money for the town is definitely not more important than women getting raped. If the police start doing these job we will stop complaining.

French police seize explosives

Los Angeles Times

PARIS—Elite French police units raided homes and buildings near Paris Tuesday, uncovering a large cache of arms and explosives and arresting 19 people suspected of operating a support network for Islamic fundamentalists.

The police sweep, the largest since authorities began cracking down on Islamic fundamentalism here a year ago, gave credence to repeated government warnings that the French were facing a rising tide of Islamic extremism.

The police also searched for information on a group of Middle Eastern men who are believed to be responsible for attacks on Jews and Christians in France.

At least five people have been slain in such recent incidents.

The police operation targeted about 130 homes and businesses near Paris and two smaller towns.

The sweep was launched after authorities intercepted a letter to French President Francois Mitterrand warning of more attacks on foreign diplomats.

The letter was addressed to the French foreign minister, who was in New York for the United Nations conference on human rights.

The letter also urged support for groups fighting for Palestinian rights.

Terrorists, including Hamas, an Islamic militant group, have vowed to attack French diplomats to protest the presence of the Israeli leader.

days that Smith carried out his assassination.

Vaugn thanked his black friends who had said he had stood by him during the ordeal and said, "You are a family."

Indeed, while some blacks have described the questioning of black witnesses as racist, many blacks have praised his efforts on finding them. Arresting law enforcement officials for taking the case seriously.

Among those arrested was Mourad Ameur, 24, described by authorities as one of the key leaders of the Armed Islamic Group, which is believed responsible for sabotage attacks and assassinations of foreign diplomats in Algiers. In the past 10 months, 23 French citizens have been killed in Algeria.

The Armed Islamic Group has thus far refused to join talks between the government in Algiers and Muslim fundamentalists. An estimated 11,000 people have died in Algeria since Islamic radicals took power after the January 1992 elections, which were canceled by the government when the fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front won.

In August, French police arrested more than 20 North Africans, eventually deporting them to Burkina Faso in West Africa. The conservative French government also has expelled some Islamic clerics and, in tense confrontations with others, prohibited girls from wearing Islamic head scarves to public schools.

CARLSBAD BYRD, USG senator from East campus, said she thinks the protest was, at least in part, fueled by trying to cover up real reasons why Muhammad was not allowed to speak on campus with security costs, but they thought he was going to start race riots," she said. "The reason he came here was to speak on black awareness."

Thomas said the entire situation was not handled maturely because speaking times were switched at the last minute. Lorenzo Henderson, a graduate student in administration of justice from Chicago and former vice president of USG, observed Tuesday's happenings and said he was in favor of the protest as long as the students keep all issues in mind.

"I think Muhammad was an eye-opener for the people—especially black people and students. He should address the seriousness of rights on campus," he said. "The students had to come together with the administration and work together to address all concerns." Gray said he did not want to talk with the administration yet. Russia: Iraq to recognize Kuwait border

MOSCOW—After a month of diplomatic pressure on Iraq, Russia indicated Tuesday that Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is ready to accept a U.N. demand to give formal and legal recognition to Kuwait.

Word of the possible breakthrough came after a two-hour meeting here, arranged at Iraq's request, between Tariq Aziz, the Iraqi foreign minister, and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev.

If confirmed by Iraq, the step could lead to a lifting of U.N. trade sanctions imposed after Iraq invaded Kuwait in 1990 and would ease the tensions caused by sudden Iraqi troop movements toward Kuwait last month.

A continued welded statement by the Russian Foreign Ministry said Kozyrev here with a letter from Hussein to Russian President Boris Yeltsin "on Iraq's recognition of Kuwait's sovereignty and borders under U.N. Security Council Resolution 833."

That resolution was adopted after Kozyrev's premature announcement on Oct. 13 that Hussein would drop Iraq's claims to Kuwait.

 massachusetts Post Office, which has been under fire for service cuts, caused the governors that the agency may see a further drop in its customer satisfaction index next year as the higher prices are implemented. Declines of 71.5 to 76 percent are currently after rate increases, he said.

The index last year, partly a result of poor delivery service, Ass-MK Robinson, the agency’s consumer advocate, told the board that the index currently shows 85 percent of postal customers rank the agency’s service as good or good. Sondheim’s ‘Company’ to be re-enacted

By Dave Kazura
Staff Reporter

‘Company,’ the 1970 Stephen Sondheim musical which was the first production to focus on themes rather than content, will be re-enacted tonight and tomorrow in the Student Center.

The musical, set in modern-day New York City, tells the story of Robert, a 35-year-old bachelor who is faced with conflicting desires. He is afraid to spend his life alone, but he also is afraid to get married because of the imperfections he sees in the marriages of his friends.

Robert moves through several encounters with various women before he comes to the realization that he is spending too hard for a lifetime companion.

Timothy Fink, director of the Musical Theatre program, said ‘Company’ is not a typical musical.

“Rather than boy-meets-girl, boy-gets-girl, boy-loses-girl, boy-gets-girl once more, it’s a show about who’s struggling with the whole concept of marriage,” Fink said.

“He deals with various women, so he’s close to anyone. He keeps his defenses up,”

“The music and the songs contribute to the characters and advance the storyline more than the typical musical. In a typical musical, they’ll stop and sing a love song to one another. In Sondheim, they’re that way much less so. The subject matter is more substantial than the typical musical. Every song in the musical is about relationships or some aspect of relationships.”

‘Company’ was nominated for 13 Tony awards after its initial run, winning seven, including best musical, best score and best lyrics.

“Company” is referred to as an adult musical comedy because it has scenes which were considered risqué in 1970. Some scenes contain profanity and pet smoking, but by today’s standards, it would probably be PG-13 now, Fink said.

“Sondheim is considered the most innovative music theater writer in the last 30 years,” he said.

Michael Lindner, a freshman in theater and music, plays Robert. Fink said even though Lindner is a freshman, he received the part because of his ability as a performer.

“He’s strong, both vocally and in terms of acting,” Fink said.

Fink said ‘Company’ was chosen for presentation for several reasons.

“It’s having its 25th anniversary this spring, and it’s a landmark musical — it’s one of the first, if not the first, concept musicals,” he said.

‘Company’ will be presented Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom C and D. Tickets are $4 for SIUC students and $6 for adults, and are available at the Student Center Central Ticket Office or at the door the evening of the performance.

The event is sponsored by the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, in conjunction with Student Center Special Programs.

NOTICE

NEW LONG-DISTANCE PROCEDURE GOES INTO EFFECT FOR 618 AREA CODE
JANUARY 1, 1995

The popularity of fax machines, cellular telephones and computer modems has caused a nationwide shortage of area codes and phone numbers. As a result, the federal government has recommended that GTE and other phone companies across the country make 10-digit dialing the industry standard to increase the pool of available numbers.

Currently, when making a long-distance call within the 618 area code from campus, you dial 8 and your authorization code followed by the seven-digit phone number. Off campus you dial 1 plus the number. The new procedure will require you to dial 8 plus your authorization code followed by 618 and the seven-digit phone number. Off campus it will be 1-618 and the number.

The impact of this new dialing procedure on campus life will be small but significant. In addition to having to dial three more numbers when calling Marion, Anna or other area towns, faculty, staff and students will need to reprogram automatic dialers, speed-calling equipment, computer modems or any other equipment used for dialing long-distance numbers.

You’ll have until Dec. 31, 1994, to become familiar with the new rule and update any equipment you have. As of the first of next year, you must dial all 10 digits to complete your long-distance calls within the 618 area code. If you forget, you’ll get a recorded message asking you to re-dial.

more difficult than the previous one against Bost, but that he was trying to find time to relax a little before the final vote count.

"This race has been much more stressful for me, and I am very dis­appointed in all the negative cam­paigning my opponent has been involved in," Hawkins said.

He also said he had very little sleep in the final days of the very close race, and had been uncertain of the outcome right up to election night.

"I have been very nervous these past few days, and I have tried to let as many people as possible know how important it is for them to get out and vote," he said.

"However, after talking to people today (Tuesday), I feel confident I will win," Alexis Royalty, a junior in speech communication from Murray, Kentucky, said she had been working at Hawkins' cam­paign headquarters non-stop for the past few days, and I have tried to let as many people as possible know how important it is for them to get out and vote," he said.

"I have been very active with sev­eral democratic candidates ever since the primaries, but I especially support Hawkins because of his perfor­mance record on women's issues." Royalty said. Meanwhile, the outlook for elec­tions 1994 was a Republican victory at the Bost campaign headquarters in Carbondale.

Christine Sullivan, press secre­tary for the Bost campaign, said members of the Republican's cam­paign for the Bost campaign said they had been working for Bost's cause for three or four hours per day.

"I think many feel it is time for a change. Everybody who is work­ing on the campaign is really excit­ed," Bost credited the efforts of his campaign volunteers, his family and the strong Republican guberna­torial candidate, Jim Edgar, with allowing him to achieve victory.

"The help from our volunteers have been great, and of course the campaign's (Jim Edgar) help was a lot," Bost said.

Sullivan said there had been a large voter turnout at many of the Murphysboro polling locations between the time the polls opened at 6 a.m. and noon.

"At one polling location, the turn-out was so overwhelming that more voting booths had to be brought in," Sullivan said.

"We may have lost the battle, but the war is still being fought; keep fight­ing," she said.

"This morning (Tuesday) we noticed that the phone lines between the Murphysboro head­quarters (for Bost) and the Carbondale headquarters were not working," Sullivan said.

"We called the phone company to learn that the phones in Carbondale had been disconnected because Mike (Bost) had requested them to be disconnected. No one from the campaign ever called to have them disconnected," Jim Longshore, a volunteer for the Bost campaign, said when he began working for the campaign he never anticipated he would be working for Bost's cause for three or four hours per day.

"In the beginning, I did not plan on spending so much time here," Longshore, who is an SIUC senior majoring in political science from Anna, said.

"I just got caught up in it all. I think we have a winner (Bost), and everybody wants to be part of a winning team," Brown, an organizer of EDGAR, from page 1 statewide offices since 1981.

"I am disappointed and I did not expect that she would have lost down here (Jackson County.) She would have made a splendid gov­ernor."

—Lilian Adams, Carbondale coordinator for Netsch/Sevems said the victory was unexpected.

"I am disappointed and I did not expect that she would have lost down here (Jackson County.) She would have made a splendid governor," Adams said.

"The tide (Republican) was un­happy with the outcome," Chris Grisson, Jackson County Republican chair said the victory was expected.

"It was an accomplishment for the people of this state because he has helped a lot of people by keeping taxes down," Grisson said.

Led by President Clinton, Democrats had tried to make "the con-early votes on term-limits, a bal-tax cuts and stringent welfare reform, a club to use against the GOP.

They warned that it meant a return to what they called the "trick-take-down economics," of the 1980s and claimed that it threat-eased Social Security and Medicare. But in Maine, Ohio, Oklahoma and Tennessee, Republicans elected Republican incumbents to Democratic seats -- the winners, in most two-year Democratic if not all of those proposals.

The trend was slower-developing in House contests but it was clear that the GOP would rack up table gains there as well.

Exit polls indicated that the push to the right was fueled both by the equality of the electorate in the issues that were uppermost on voters' minds.

Those profiling themselves as born-again or Evangelical Christians commended people in union families.

The former voted Republican 2 to 1; the latter Democratic but by a smaller margin.

Supporters of the National Rifle Association, almost one-third of the electorate, also were overwhelmingly Republican -- a reflection of the massive effort that organization made to punish Democrats who supported the Brady handgun law and the crime bill including a ban on assault we prototypes.

WASHINGTON—The Democrats'
Debate '94 extended nationwide to the nation Tuesday as Republicans appeared virtually certain to control a majority of governorships for the first time since 1974.

Republican incumbents and Democratic losers turned out in numbers in Texas and Pennsylvania. The GOP seemed certain to hold the electronic-rich states of California, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The Republican gains, coupled with the expected re-elections of many of those ingulating governors, would prevent the Republicans with an opportunity to advance their tax-slashing, welfare-cutting, anti-incumbency that was so tangible among voters.

Republicans gain seats in states, Senate

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Republicans picked up two open Senate seats in Maine and New York Tuesday night and kept many other open seats in the House in the hands of Republicans in their quest to increase control of Congress and force President Clinton to change the policies he governs over the next two years.

The Republicans were also extending their control of state governments, as incumbent Democrats were handily re-elected in New York State and they and the party gained governorships in Kansas and Oklahoma. Big-name Democrats, however, were voted out in New York, Texas and Florida were in tight races.

But two endangered Demo­crats, U.S. Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts and Charles S. Robb of Virginia, managed to blunt the Republican tide and were re-elected. Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., was the first incumbent senator to fall, losing to Republican Bill Frist, who won by a close vote.

In Tennessee Senate race, Fred Dalton Thompson, a former Watergate committee attorney and sometime actor, defeated Rep. Jim Cooper, D, a leader in the debate over national health care, for the seat once held by Vice President Gore. Republicans picked up the open Open Senate seats.

In Oklahoma, Republican James M. Inhofe, R, defeated Rep. Dave McCurdy, D, who had acceded Bill Clinton's nomination for re-election. But Kennedy's seat wasn't as safe as Republicans expected, with results showing the votes tipping in the direction of Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

In Ohio, Republican Lt. Gov. Mike DeWine defeated incumbent Hyatt, D, in a seat held by Hyatt's father-in-law, retiring Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

Democrats held Senate seats in Maryland, Connecticut and West Virginia. But Republican candidates won control of seats in Missouri, Florida, Indiana, Delaware and Vermont. Democrats had hoped for possible upsets in the latter two states.

The Republicans needed to gain a net of seven seats to take control of the Senate from the Democrats for the first time since 1986. They needed a net gain of 40 House seats to win that chamber as well.

In races for governor, three prominent Democratic incumbents were in close contests, including two involving the votes of former presi­dent George Bush.

BOSTON—It was touch and go for most of this long, bitter campaign. But early returns showed that Massachusetts would once again swing back to the Democrats.

It took a fair amount of forgiving by many voters to get to this point. And, in a state where Boston's Becky Hill is known as "the big, red-faced guy," that happened in Tuesday's elections, according to the exit polls, and those who cited it divided their votes among Democrats and Repub­licans.

"I don't know that 'affection' is the right word to describe how we feel about Kennedy here," reflected nov­ice congressman who will take over on Boston's Beacon Hill. "I think it's a connection, a deep emotional attachment to the man's integrity."

But the extent of that attachment was severely tested in Kennedy's race against venture capitalist Mic Romney, son of former Michigan Gov. George Romney.

"Kennedy pulled out all the stops on this one," said Republican state Senator Steve B Dhollars, who represents the town of Wayland, west of Bos­ton. "He was hanging on by his thumb."•

Nowhere was the contrast be­tween the two candidates more pro­nounced than in their physical appear­ance. At 62, the white-haired Kennedy is much lighter than his heavy he in­spired a David Letterman joke: "Vote for me, the big, red-faced guy."

Romney, 47, is trim and blond. His hair is dark and luscious. When he smiles, especi­ators are wise to do sunglasses.

Their political philosophies are diametrically opposite but per­sonifies traditional liberal Demo­cratic politics. He holds in high esteem as a vehicle for social re­form, and in recent years has proved to be a mainstay of issues par­taining to women and families. Rom­ney is an inveterate capitalist who Roberts has chided "habitual" attitude on most questions of government intervention. He has particularly favored Democrats for their econ­omically policies and has said they've ren­dered the once lionized by Demo­crats.

Mostly, Romney campaigned on what he called the "vision thing," centering around the country: the need for change, the need to out-tired old insti­tutions in favor of fresh new political

NEW YORK—Befitting their bitter campaign, Gov. Mar­lo M. Cuomo, whose Republican opponent Steve S. Pancake was locked in a tight race Tuesday with voters in New York City against north­ern region of the state.

Exit polls showed the governor running well with constitu­encies that are遒t he present. Gov. George E. Pataki, who had been receiving 90 per­cent of the black vote and scor­ring better among men than polls before the election had anticipated.

At the same time, Pancake pledged he would work with Gia­liana in an effort to blunt fears among city voters of a food that could harm the city's interests.

After Giuliani's backing, which also came at a cost of Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, the contest tightened in pre-election polls. President Clinton also ap­peared with Cuomo and called for a "buck-stopper." Abortion doctor shot in leg

The Washington Post

TORONTO—A Vancouver abortion doctor was shot in the leg late Tuesday after being shot in the leg early Tuesday morning through a window of his home in a planned attack, police said.

Toronto police said gynecologist Girson Romalis suffered a wound to the femoral artery. His wife and daughter, also home at the time, were unhurt.

The Romalis house has been picked for weeks in the past, according to police and neighbors.

Police said they did not have a suspect.

Study shows importance of light

The Washington Post

A combination of bright lights and dark goggles at different parts of the day should help night-shift workers be less sleepy at work, according to a study at the Biological Rhythms Research Lab at Chicago's Rush University Medical Center, which has been published.

Although the study was conducted in the laboratory on mostly student volunteers and not actually on shift workers, the results could help night-shift workers, the researchers said.

The study found that the groups with the exposure to bright light during the day, a study at the Biological Rhythms Research Lab at Chicago's Rush University Medical Center, which has been published.

According to the researchers, the key to helping night-shift workers is to help them adjust their body clocks, or circadian rhythms, to the night shift.

The researchers believe this helps the workers' body clocks, or circadian rhythms, adjust to the night shift, the researchers said.

Philadelphia—Jennifer, Jennifer, Jennifer. They are calling from Italy, Great Britain and Germany. Suddenly, the Virginia Slams of Philadelphia has become the center of the tennis universe and it's all because of Jennifer Capriati.

She's back.

The sport's prodigal daughter will end a 15-month hiatus in which her soaring spiral from media darling to troubled teen was chronicled publicly after her May 16 arrest for misdemeanor marijuana possession.

Capriati, once ranked as high as No. 6 in the world, received one of two wildcard entries to this tournament and was in town practicing Monday for Wednesday's first-round match against sixth-seed Anke Huber. Capriati and her entourage, including parents Stefano and Denise, have refused to do interviews before her match. Her only comments came from a statement released Monday to the media.

"I think it's great. She has always been great for tennis. (Capriati) has always acted pretty responsible from what we've heard the last few months. She's always been sensible on the court."

—Amanda Coetzer

Tournament organizers are expecting the largest press contingents in this tournament's 38-year history. As for the rest of the field, the Pennsylvania Convention Center, they say they are happy to see Capriati back on the court.

"I think it's great. She's always been great for tennis," said eighth-seed Amanda Coetzer, who was upset Monday 6-1, 6-3, in the first round by 16-year-old American upstart Meilen Tu. "(Capriati) has been pretty responsible from what we've heard the last few months. She's always been sensible on the court."

Tu, who turned pro this year, knocked on the door of Capriati's and other young stars who have hit bottom. Her only comments came from a statement released Monday to the media:

"I don't think there is any room for players to try and hurt other players in this game."

NFL fines unable to stop hits

Irving, Texas—Another Sunday in the National Football League, another in a continuing series of flagrant, flagrant and flagrant illegal actions for Gene Washington, the league's director of discipline.

It's not the world of football, it is all too familiar.

One week it's Minnesota Vikings offensive lineman John Gehrke trying to break the leg of the dead-end and Reggie White's knees. Another week, it's New York Jets line backer Leon Lett proportioning Miami Bronco quarterback John Elway in the head. Or it's Cincinnati Bengals limiting their line backer 11-year-old Paul Ackman's concussion-racked head.

This week it's Tampa Bay Buccaneers safety Thomas Everett who's on the hot seat. Everett's last hit on Chicago Bears wide receiver Tom Tate was costly Sunday. It was a legal tackle, a laminated chin and Waddle's dinner plate.

And all the while, Washington attempts to do his best to clean up the league's image. That's the parable with fines in the hope that a further proliferation of "bad shots can be avoided."

"We feel there's no place in the game for extracurricular hits," he said.

Yet despite Washington's swift, decisive and precise rulings, the damaging hits and dirty hits continue, with football's stars becoming increasingly vulnerable on the field. What do this tell you? Quite simply, that players are not taking these fines seriously enough, and that they are not listening to the repeated warnings from NFL officials that vicious hits will not be tolerated. A $7,500 fine here or a $25,000 fine there isn't having the desired effect, or else we would see a reduction in the incidence of cheap shots.

"I don't think there is any room for players to try and hurt other players in this game."

Dallas' White unsuccessful at investing

Dallas Morning News October 9, 1994

Danny White thought he had it made. As quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys, he led America's Team to the playoffs five times and passed for 6,300 yards and 35 touchdowns. Surely, he thought. Farve needs to become more consistent. They were blanked by the Rams 16-0 at home but have also brot San Francisco.

He was wrong. Football, not business, was his game. Three months ago, he filed for bankruptcy. "Like a lot of athletes and businessmen, I trusted people to invest money that I shouldn't have trusted. I will never do that again," White told the Dallas Morning News. "Naivete was a big, big part of it. I ignored the obvious. It's ignorance. really. I learned from those experiences. To some extent, I learned to stay away from areas where I didn't have expertise," said White, who recently coached the Arizona Rattlers to the Arena Football League championship. "From that extent, coaching isn't really an escape, but perhaps a focus to return to something I once cut out to do." White's attorney, Robert J. Spurlock, told Newsday that White filed for Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act to protect himself from creditors while he attempts to reorganize his finances and pay his debts. He described White's debts as "old ... going back to the 1980s."

White's financial problems, Spurlock said, stem from unsuccessful real estate investments he made in the 1980s when he was playing for the Cowboys (from 1976-80). When the Texas economy plunged, so did White's investments. Most of the properties have been repossessed by the lenders. "He was not alone," Spurlock said of White. "Many, many people suffered in that economy."

No. 6 - Minnesota Vikings (7-2) The Vikings have a shot to go to the Super Bowl. Warren Moon has given Minnesota a multi-dimensional offense and the defense is anchored by Henry Thomas and John Randle. The Vikings have a two-game lead over Green Bay and Chicago and should hold on.

No. 7 - Cleveland Browns (7-2) The Browns have one of the most dangerous weapons in the league in Eric Metcalf. The defense has given up a league low 111 points. But the Browns' wins have come against teams with a combined 18-46 record.

No. 8 - Kansas City Chiefs (6-3) The Chiefs have Joe Montana and Marcus Allen, but are still inconsistent. They were blanked by the Rams 16-0 at home but have also beat San Francisco.

No. 9 - Green Bay Packers (5-4) The Packers have one of the best defenses in the league, but Brett Farve needs to become more consistent and they need a better running game to be contenders.

No.10 - Buffalo Bills (5-4) The Bills seem to be having an off year, but it's hard to count out a team that has been to the Super Bowl the last four years.

Let's face it: "Ice Wars: The U.S.A. vs. The World," the two-night made-for-television ice skating extravaganza, would be nothing more than the idle ruminations of a network executive if not for last winter's "Tonya Harding Free-For-All." But the two ladies skaters in the country from the professional ranks, Harding and Kerrigan, were nearly taken out of the run for the gold with a shot to her leg at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

Harding and Kerrigan made the trip to Lillehammer, Norway, for the Olympics, and the first night of the women's competition drew the fourth-largest audience in television history. So, as Wednesday's show — pitting a team of four skaters, two male and two female, from the United States against a team from around the world, hence the title — prepares to air from Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y., guess who won't be there? "If you're going to pick the top two ladies skaters in the country from the professional ranks, I don't think the (Harding) would be in them," said David Winer, who will produce the two shows. "If we went three-deep, you might be able to make a case, throwing aside all the other things. But to have Tonya in this competition would be pandering to a low instinct." Goodness knows, no one associated with television has ever been accused of pandering to a low instinct. At any rate, the U.S. team of Kerrigan, Kristi Yamaguchi, Brian Boitano and Paul Wylie should handle itself well against the world squad of Oksana Baiul, Katarina Witt, Viktor Petrenko and Kurt Browning. The finals are scheduled for Saturday night at the Providence (R.I.) Civic Center.

V-ball game to be aired on television

By Sean Whiker
Staff Reporter

Television comes to Saluki volleyball this Friday as SIUC hosts Missouri Valley Conference leader Northern Iowa.

The game was originally scheduled for 6 p.m. in the media guide and schedule, but has been moved to 7 p.m. and will be played in Davies Gymnasium. John Wooford, a senior in radio and television, will be producing the game as well as announcing for a final independent study project for graduation in December, Wooford said.

The game will be shown on Chicago’s SportsChannel at 11 a.m. and on television on SIUC. It will be a dual broadcast in December. Wooford scheduled for 11 a.m. and will be played in Davies Gymnasium.

Five cameras will be set up in that area to include two cameras on scaffolding, two hand-held cameras, and a jib camera.

The jib camera according to Hodgson, is a crate type of thing run by remote, that can move from one foot to fourteen feet above the court in two seconds.

Wooford said the jib camera will be running the entire game to cover any mistakes that may occur by the ball hitting the other cameras. He said it is the back-up cameras.

Another reason why the shooters will be moved, according to Wooford, is to show the SIUC crowd.

“We would like to make the gym look filled and give us good crowd noise,” Wooford said.

To help fill Davies Gymnasium on Friday night, the SIUC promotions department will admit all SIUC students, with a valid student identification card for free. There will only be about 300 seats for the game. The promotions department is encouraging people to get there early.

Wooford said he is in charge of the creative aspects of the game.

“I name the director and technical director, who take care of the technical aspects of the game,” he said. “I am in charge of getting the gym, calling the schools and basically setting the flow of the show.”

Hodgson said the game is a chance for SIUC to show off its radio and television program and any new technology for more of the type of broadcasts.

“Our hope is to make this a pilot project,” Hodgson said. “We hope the SportsChannel will like what our program and students can do and we will be able to negotiate for future projects.”

SIUC head volleyball coach Sonya Locke said this is a great opportunity to show people collegiate volleyball.

“I am happy that they want to get volleyball on TV, because I don’t think it gets covered enough,” Locke said.

With the game being televised the night before Thanksgiving, students from the Chicago area will have the chance to watch the game at home over the school break, said Hodgson.

New NFL rules benefit offense

By Chris Clark
Staff Reporter

The more things change the more they stay the same as the NFL instituted several new rules to help the offense in 1994.

Before the season began, the NFL wanted to increase scoring by instituting the two-point conversion, moving five yards back for the kickoff, lowering the tee from three to one inch and putting strict regulations on pass coverage.

The result has been increased offensive output around the league and a renewed excitement in the game.

Though the special teams have really benefited from the new rules, as players like Cleveland’s Eric Metcalf, New York’s Dave Meggett and Detroit’s Mel Gray have had big years returning kickoffs and punts at a feverish pace.

The biggest game of the year is this Sunday as Dallas plays at San Francisco. The Cowboys have the heater on the last two years in the NFC Championship and the Sunday’s game could decide homefield advantage throughout the playoffs.

The league has a lot of parity this year, but here are the best 10 teams after five weeks of play:

No. 1- Dallas Cowboys (8-1-1) have not lost a beat with Barry Switzer at the helm. Their defense is one of the best and quickest in the game. Their offense has so many weapons it’s scary.

The Cowboys play a tough schedule the rest of the way starting with the regular season Super Bowl this weekend at San Francisco and also play at Philadelphia, Green Bay and Cleveland. The loss of Alvin Harper will hurt though.

No. 2- San Francisco 49ers (7-2) After a slow start the 49ers have turned it on. They have the best scoring offense in the league averaging 30.4 points a game.

No. 3- Miami Dolphins (7-2) Dan Marino has not played up to his standards, but does enough win. Keith Byars is out for the season, so the team is going to have to fill the void in his running, passing and blocking.

No. 4- Philadelphia Eagles (7-2) The Eagles proved they were for real after the 40-8 thrashing on the 49ers earlier in the season.

Cunningham has fully recovered from severe leg injuries the last two years and the defense is playing great for Bud Carson who coached the Steel Curtain in Pittsburgh during the 1970’s.

No. 5- San Diego Chargers (7-2) The biggest surprise of the year. The Chargers are playing with solid leadership, winning running by Nathan Meen and a strong defense.

The Chargers are still an unknown, but will battle Kansas City down to the wire in the AFC West.

Swimmers face endurance test during weekend meet

By Chris Clark
Staff Reporter

The SIUC swimming and diving teams will face a challenge of a different kind at the Illinois Dual Invitational this weekend.

Last Saturday, the Salukis hosted three of the nation’s Top 25 teams swimming against the University of Michigan, Kansas and Nebraska.

The Salukis even finished the meet against the Michigan and Nebraska first up against Northern Illinois, the SIUC women’s team is in charge.

In Champaign, SIUC will have to pass another test — a test of endurance.

The Salukis will face eight teams in three days. Friday, the SIUC women’s team will square off against the University of Illinois and the men will face Indiana.

On Saturday, both Saluki squads will battle Missouri and Cincinnati, while Sunday’s meet will match the women against Northern Illinois and Illinois State and the SIUC men will duel with Northern Illinois as well as Northwestern.

Saluki women’s swim coach Mark Klauser said this is going to be a grueling weekend for both the men and women.

"They (the swimmers) won’t be fresh, and they’ll be worn out by the end of the weekend," he said. "That’s the idea of the meet, to see who will perform when they’re tired. It will be a good test to see how they handle the format."

Klauser said the meet will be especially difficult for the eight newcomers on the his squad this season.

"It’ll be new to them and a shock," he said. "Most of them come from club teams where they’re used to swimming two or three meets a week. But on a meet like this, it’s a more individual format where they aren’t used to swimming with other teams."

After the Illinois Invitational, the Salukis will have three weeks to prepare for the Missouri Valley Conference Championship Dec. 3-4. The time off, Klauser said, can be especially beneficial for the eight newcomers.

"With this meet, it’s the fourth weekend in a row we’ve had a meet," he said. "That competition is great, but it’s taken away from our conditioning."

SIUC will host the first-ever MVC Championship meet, and Klauser said that it’s an honor for the program.

"I think it’s a nod of respect for the program," he said. "We also have the best facility, so we hope to do well. I think if we do, SIU might be able to host it for the next few years."
