Grad student could lose USG seat

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

An Undergraduate Student Government senator faces impeachment because he is a graduate student.

The USG senate will vote Wednesday on the bill to impeach East Side Senator Vince "Makes Sense" Kelly in a meeting because he is currently a graduate student in linguistics, which may be in violation of the USG Constitution, Rod Hughes, a Committee for Internal Affairs member and an author of the impeachment bill, said.

The USG constitution states that a senator must be a registered undergraduate student with six credit hours and have a 2.0 grade point average or above.

The bill must obtain two-thirds of the senate's votes to impeach Kelly, who became a graduate student after being elected in April 1988, Hughes said.

Kelly said the constitution's senatorial requirements are vague. He has collected about 300 signatures from students who say he is still qualified to represent undergraduates living off campus east of U.S. Highway 51. His only fear is that the East Side will have no one to represent their interests, he said.

A motion to recommend impeachment to the senate failed in 3-3 vote at a committee meeting Oct. 6 because committee members argued that the constitution did not actually say that the senator had to remain an undergraduate student after being elected, Hughes said.

Committee member Arzo Burnett, who voted against the impeachment, said the committee interpreted the constitution's requirements as being unclear and misworded. The final decision, he said, would be left to the full senate because the vote ended in a tie.

Jean Paratore, the advisor to the USG and an associate vice president for student affairs, said the constitution is clear in its wording and Kelly must be an undergraduate to serve on the senate.

Paratore said the impeachment would have to be resolved internally, and she is unsure of the actions taken by Student Affairs if the Senate rules in favor of Kelly.

Hughes said, "I don't believe he (Kelly) can represent the interests of undergraduate students if he does not share the interests of the undergraduate students."

Hughes said he expects Kelly to fight the impeachment by trying to convince more than one-third of the senate to vote in his favor, which will delay the impeachment proceedings.

Kelly gained popularity on campus with his "Vince Makes Sense" math tutoring and pro-study posters.

Official: SIU-C funding of retirement benefits could disrupt budget

By Kathleen DeBo
Staff Writer

Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said if the state stops paying retirement benefits for Student Center, Housing and Recreation Center employees, it could cause the University some inconvenience in budgeting.

"It's been rumored for a few years that a (student) fee increase is going to happen," Paratore said.

"All our budgets are based on (an increase) not happening. If it does, we're looking at a substantial increase in cost. I don't know where we'd get the money but from a student fee increase," she said.

The University uses state appropriated funds to pay the retirement benefits. By July 1, 1989, all such subsidies are supposed to be removed.

The University argues that the benefits should be paid out of state funds because the employees are state employees. The state auditor argues that is a subsidy.

Trustees to vote on proposed tuition increase

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The fate of a proposed tuition increase will be decided Thursday at the Board of Trustees meeting in Edwardsville. If passed, the increase must be approved by the state Legislature at its veto sessions in November.

Since every system of higher education in the state will be seeking authorization for a tuition increase, Vice Chancellor James Brown doesn't foresee any problem with getting the Legislature's approval.

The resolution calls for an 18.3 percent increase for undergraduate and graduate students, an 18.5 percent increase for law school students, and a 43.1 percent increase for medical school students.

Brown said funds from the increase would be used "for what it takes to run the place."

If the state authorizes the increase, undergraduate and graduate students will pay the additional $241.20 for the 1989 spring semester.

"The magnitude of the last several tuition increases is due in part to the desire to waive the increase for recipients of Illinois State Scholarship Commission grants," Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said before the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Students on the ISSC Monetary Awards Program will be waived from the 1989 fiscal year increases because the ISSC deadline for submission of increases in tuition was June 1.

Student Work and Financial Assistance Director Pamela Britton said students not on the ISSC program who might need financial assistance because of the proposed increase may come to the financial assistance office.

Algerian leader asks for peace, reform

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — President Chadli Bendjedid issued a televised appeal for an end to unrest in the riot-torn Algerian capital Monday, hours after soldiers fired into a crowd of demonstrators and killed at least 10 people.

Bendjedid acknowledged "the country is going through dangerous times" and promised reforms in the wake of six days of violent demonstrations that have left at least 100 people dead.

"I appeal to citizens everywhere. I need your help and support, not for me personally, but for the sake of our nation, our revolution, our people and our property," Bendjedid said.

The president promised Algerians he would "respect your desire for political change" and said the government would institute reforms at all levels, but "will take a firm line against sabotage."

"There are two choices — to leave things as they are, which could lead to civil war and play into the hands of our enemies. The second is to embark on reforms," he said.

But he warned that reforms could not be carried out in an atmosphere of "chaos and destruction."

Just hours before the 15-minute speech, dozens of demonstrators fell to the ground after soldiers opened fire in the Bab el-Oued section of the casbah, the capital's old quarter, witnesses said.

Ambulances were at the scene of the shootings and witnesses said at least 10 people were dead.

In downtown Algiers earlier in the day, troops fired machine guns into the air to disperse a large group of demonstrators.

Court denies Marcos' request to return home

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A federal court Monday rejected ousted President Ferdinand Marcos' request to return to the Philippines and authorities said security was stepped up at military armories to prevent the smuggling of weapons to his supporters. Marcos had asked the anti-corruption court to let him return to Manila to defend himself in proceedings scheduled for Nov. 7-11.

Security tight around Thatcher's convention

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Conservative Party faithfully opened their annual convention Monday behind a concrete crash barrier in what may be the biggest peacetime security operation mounted by British authorities. Security forces in the coastal city of Brighton sealed off the beachfront at the convention center and at the Grand Hotel, where a sophisticated Irish Republican Army time bomb four years ago killed 53 Conservative conventioners.

Mayors: Military spending shift creates jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For every $1 billion shifted from military to urban spending, 6,600 more jobs are created than that created by the equivalent defense spending, the U.S. Conference of Mayors said Monday. And, a new study released by the mayors said, a shift of $30 billion a year over a five-year period, would increase the gross national product by $3.5 billion.

Piano duo combines teaching with performance

By Wayne Wallace
Staff Writer
and University News Service

Breaking down barriers seems to be a hobby for Wilfred Delphin and Edwin Romain.

When these two School of Music professors aren't busy instructing students on the finer points of concert piano, they might be found on stage at Carnegie Hall, the Kennedy Center, or the White House, depending where their latest tour is scheduled.

Actually, their most recent string of concerts took them through North Carolina, South Carolina, and Arkansas.

The University community will be able to sample their unique brand of duo piano playing in an 8 p.m. concert Oct. 19 at Shryock Auditorium.

As the two newest faculty members in the School of Music, Delphin and Romain said they are enjoying a sort of homecoming in Carbondale. They received their master's degrees in 1973.

It was here, over 15 years ago, that the two graduate students first considered performing together professionally. They were seeking separate teaching careers until one of their professors suggested something different.

Steven Barwick, recently retired, thought both men showed great potential as concert pianists. He began grooming them, not as solo performers, but as a team.

Delphin and Romain joined forces, turning two careers into one. They have been playing together ever since.

After leaving the University, members at the University. The duo will give a free concert at 7 p.m. Oct. 19 in Shryock Auditorium.

the pair went on to the University of Southern Mississippi to pursue their performance doctorates.

In 1977, they made their concert debut as professional duo pianists.

Now, after 11 years of touring the country, the team has come back to its Midwest roots.

Ironically, it was Barwick's retirement this year that left a faculty opening in the School of Music.

"It took two of us to replace him," Romain laughed.

The team is considered as two individual faculty members.

"We don't split one professor's salary," Delphin said.

Delphin and Romain admit that being accepted as a package deal sometimes has its disadvantages, but for the most part, neither has found much trouble in establishing a distinct individuality away from the shadow of his partner.

Delphin asserted that they are quite different from one another off stage.

"We have two totally different sets of interests. It's not like we're of one mind," he said.

Romain agreed that the special link they share is mostly limited to their performances.

In fact, he attributes part of the duo's success to the differences between them, noting that they complement one another both as friends and performers.

As far as they know, they are the only black piano duo currently touring nationally. Both men take great pride in this fact, remembering their difficulty in building up credentials during their early years.

"The stereotypes still exist," Delphin said, "but now our performance credentials speak for themselves."

"Even now," Romain said, "we'll be in an elevator in our tuxedos on the way to a concert, and someone will say, 'Oh, are you guys musicians?'"

"Then they ask what club we're playing at, automatically assuming we play jazz," Delphin added.

Rather than being insulted, the two usually share a big laugh after such incidents.

Long-standing favoritism toward performers from northeastern music conservatories is another barrier knocked down by the duo.

Delphin recalled the raised eyebrows in cities like New York when it was discovered the team was a product of the Midwest, not Juilliard.

Talent and persistence prevailed as the team slowly built its reputation in metropolitan areas.

Duo piano concerts are something of a novelty act. Delphin and Romain said. They consider their format of classical music more fun than that of a symphony orchestra.

"Our interpretations are more accessible to young people," Delphin said, noting the team's recent popularity with several Arkansas high school groups.

There is also a certain visual excitement created by two grand pianos on stage, the team said.

U. MISSOURI PRESIDENT TURNS HIS RAISE OVER TO UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

From St. Louis Post Dispatch October 6, 1988

By Ann Scales Cobbs
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

C. Peter Magrath, president of the University of Missouri system, has decided to return to the university a 10.26 percent salary increase that he accepted Sept. 1.

"I very simply concluded that - in view of the concern over the below-average pay increases for the faculty and staff - that I would turn my raise over to the library endowment fund," Magrath said Wednesday night.

"The only increase I am interested in is what we can get for the university system."

Faculty and staff systemwide had strongly criticized Magrath for accepting the raise; they had received much smaller raises because of the university's financial problems.

Basketball practice a midnight special

THERE ARE a lot of reasons to like basketball coach Rich Herrin's midnight special. For those who are less than fans of Saluki basketball, Herrin plans to open the 1988-89 season with a practice at 12:01 a.m. Saturday — a minute after midnight Friday.

WHY PRACTICE at midnight? Saturday is the first day NCAA rules permit practice. Herrin obviously wants to send a message that this year's team is not going to waste a minute in its preparations for the Nov. 13 season opener with Australia at the Arena.

But, isn't a 12:01 a.m. practice strictly a publicity stunt? Maybe. But, it is a harmless one. Kentucky, a name synonymous with sold-out basketball games, attracts 23,000 fans to a similar practice.

WHO IN the world will want to watch a basketball game at that hour?

Rabid basketball fans, for one. The kind of fans that camp at the Arena for season tickets.

Those fans that hang on the edge of their seats whether SIU-C is up by 20 points or behind by a similar amount. We bet those people will be there.

Those fans are, as they say in sports analysis, "a given." Herrin, always the promoter, is obviously after a different kind of Saluki fan. He is sending signals to those among us who want more than a basketball game when they go to the Arena.

YOU MEAN everyone isn't a Saluki fan? No. And there is no Utopia.

But, consider the alternatives.

The studios can haunt Morris Library for hours until their vision of the printed word begins to swim on the fluorescent-lit paper before them. Midnight basketball offers a break from studying.

There is no charge at the Arena, so the studios can return to the books without developing any pangs of guilt for having wasted money because they didn't stay until the end.

A midnight practice sounds like the perfect place to relieve the tension that develops after several hours inside a differential equation.

BUT, WON'T at least some students be at the Strip? Yes, but we're hoping they will still be able to calculate the number of brain cells they can salvage merely by curtailing their partying by two hours.

We also note that 12 midnight tends to be the magic hour that revelers seem to enjoy barking at the moon or otherwise expressing themselves at peak volume.

Those people should consider how much safer it would be to fulfill that need to yell at the top of their lungs when their screams are directed at a basketball team. Screaming and hollering in the neighbor's yard can get a person arrested. The same behavior at the Arena is indicative of school spirit.

BUT ISN'T MIDNIGHT a little late for high school students?

Most high school kids, under normal circumstances, have a midnight, or earlier, curfew. But, the quick thinkers out there will be quick to point out to mom and dad that a midnight basketball is a special event. Here's a pointer.

Explain that the practice will be sort of like homecoming or prom, an acceptable excuse for staying out late without the expense of renting a tuxedo or buying a formal. That's it. It will be prom in jeans and tennis shoes.

Sorry kids, but don't be surprised if mom and dad want to go too.

ARE THERE any reasons why a person would miss this practice. If there are, those people probably will be lured by the free T-shirts and other prizes that will be given away.

Free admission, free prizes, the Salukis, Southern Illinois basketball legend Rich Herrin presents a combination that cannot be argued against.

And, everyone's invited.

Democratic accusations unfounded, College Republicans' were not rude

An interesting thing happened at the Oct. 5 Congressional debate at Kaskaskia College — the Kelley supporters outnumbered the Poshard supporters.

I was one of those who traveled to Centralia to show my support for our very own professor Kelley. The numbers and volume of Kelley supporters upset many of the Poshard people. As a result, a college Democrat informed us after the debate that he disapproved of our conduct and said we were rude. He then ran away before I could make any defense of our actions.

The behavior of the crowd did not change much in any of the three debates. There were two differences which brought about the Democratic criticism during the last debate: The Kelley supporters outnumbered the Poshard people, hence we were louder by mass majority and we initiated verbal support rather than sitting back, waiting to respond to the actions of the Democratic crowd.

I do not consider our actions any ruder than those of our opposition who left the debate before Kelley made his final statement and rang their cow bells persistently throughout the gathering. The Democrats did as much as they could to show support for their candidate, yet when we did so, we were told our behavior was inappropriate. I, nor any other college Republican, complained when we were outnumbered, so I do not believe the Democrats have a valid complaint. One who lives in a glass house should not throw stones.

As a final point, if someone wants to make an accusation about my behavior or that of the College Republicans, I wish he would have the courage to stand and back up his accusation instead of running away tear-eyed like a coward. — John W. Hopkins, external vice president, SIU-C College Republicans.

College Republicans' protest unruly

I am writing in regards to the demonstration held by the College Republicans last Friday night, Oct. 7, to protest the visit by House Speaker Jim Wright.

I am saddened and disturbed by the demonstrators conduct during the protest. Instead of protesting in a responsible and diplomatic manner, the demonstrators were extremely rude to Wright, Congressman Gray and the others present. The conduct of the protesters, which included screaming, pushing and the presence of a coffin, was discourteous and disrespectful.

I am not questioning the right to protest and have opposing views. Without opposing views, political thought would be stifled and democracy would suffer. What I am questioning is the tactics used by the College Republicans in their protest. Screaming and pushing are not the proper methods to present opposing views to the public. Presenting opposing views in a peaceful manner, as was done before Wright's arrival, is appropriate.

Speaker Wright and Congressman Gray are elected government officials. They deserve to be treated in a courteous manner, irrespective of their views. The College Republicans conduct during Wright's visit was rude and is simply inexcusable. — Andre G. Pineda, second year law student.

Group represents students

I am the authorized representative for the people who put the cross in front of Morris Library, the place which most symbolizes the dream of higher education. We are not the people who supplied the coffin for the Board of Trustees meeting. But we do applaud their actions as they hopefully do ours. But we refuse to identify ourselves further. We do not wish to be put by those higher up in a category so as to be easily isolated from the University as a whole. Our goal is to help all students and teachers.

We admit students are apathetic. They don't fight against tuition increases well. But listen around the Student Center or a bar in town. Listen to students grumbling about that padded bursar's bill. They'll bitch and bitch, then eat their sandwich or drink their beer. They let it pass without doing anything. But inside they are very angry. We like to think we represent these people.

We hear of students dropping out because they cannot foot higher education's bill. Is this the purpose of state-supported university education? Certainly, no one in the state likes to be taxed more.

We are not trying to be religious by the use of the cross. However, we are trying to be ethical. What is the philosophy of our government and school administration officials toward the decline and possible fall of higher education? The lack of a legislative vote and accepted pay raises for those in charge seem to indicate a finger gesture. Being but poor, powerless souls, we give that finger back to you. — Charles Ramsey, Higher Education for The Cross People.

Stop balloon launchings

There is so little we can do to counter pollution that is destroying our environment. At least we can monitor our immediate surroundings and try to hold back the tide. Last week it was the children's art festival. Now, it's the arthritis foundation. Those balloons that go up eventually come down in somebody's backyard or in streams where fish eat them and die. We have read in these pages about pollution caused by these balloons after the party is over. Let's proclaim and end to balloon launches. — S. Heys, foreign languages.

Urbana lawyer could face jail for failing to appear at trial

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

An Urbana lawyer defending a Jackson County case said he might have to go to jail if a circuit court judge does not grant him more time to prepare for a case.

Harvey C. Welch, son of Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch Jr., did not appear in court Oct. 5 and was held in contempt of court by Judge David Watt Jr. Welch is scheduled to appear in Jackson County Circuit Court today to tell Watt why he did not appear in court.

Harvey C. Welch said the case he is defending is scheduled to go to trial today at 9 a.m., but Welch said he might be sentenced to jail because he will refuse to present evidence for the case.

"I have not had adequate time to prepare the case," Welch said.

If a defendant is not jailed and requests a speedy trial, the trial must be heard within 160 days. Welch's client was released on bond and has not made such a request, Welch said.

Joseph Pullen was arrested June 1 for delivery of a controlled substance, Welch said. However, he did not receive police reports, witnesses testimony and other information from a discovery hearing until Aug. 10.

"Mathematically, you can see I have not been given enough time," Welch said.

Welch filed a request Sept. 23 for a three-week continuance, but Watt allowed only a one-week continuance, Welch said. At that point, Welch said he would be unable to attend and Watt asked him to put it in writing.

Evidence filed Oct. 3 included a list of other trials Welch is participating in and affidavits from Champaign County judges' comments attesting that Welch has never missed a trial date.

Commission rules against using state funds, Student Affairs hopes it will give the University a year to comply, Paratore said.

"We don't know if we would have to have a midyear increase or if they would let it go 'til (fiscal year) '91," Paratore said.

"It is a real substantial financial burden we would have to take care of," she said.

She said other universities, especially the University of Illinois, would have a difficult time paying for it.

"We would have to either cut back programs and services or enhance revenue through fees or passes for the Rec Center," Paratore said.

Vice President for Financial Affairs, Charles Hinderman, earlier expressed optimism that the Legislature would pass special legislation allowing universities to use state appropriated funds to pay auxiliary employee retirement benefits.

Paratore said, "The Legislature has indicated that the state shouldn't support auxiliary services. In that case, we've got a problem."

She said the Recreation Center just became an auxiliary operation this year when bonds were sold to pay for the addition to the building.

"We're going to get the building, but this means the Rec Center is subject to the same legislation as other auxiliary operations. Rec Center employees are paid out of student fees," Paratore said.

Residents warned of fall fire hazards

Fire district joins in prevention week

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

To raise public awareness about fall fire hazards, the Carbondale Township Fire Department is participating in National Fire Prevention Week Monday through Friday.

Department officials said they want to inform residents about fire hazards and to let residents know the department is there.

"Most people don't know we exist," Mike Bilderback,

"Students see mobile homes as cheap housing. However, mobile homes are potential fire hazards."

—Mike Bilderback

assistant fire chief, said.

Carbondale is divided into two fire protection districts. The township covers residences with Carbondale addresses; outside the city limits, Bilderback said the area is 36 square miles.

Most of the residences in the area are mobile home parks, which means a high student population, Bilderback said. There are 22 mobile home parks in the district with 15,000 permanent residents, and estimated another 10,000 students lived in mobile homes during the academic year, he said.

"Students see mobile homes as cheap housing," Bilderback said. However, mobile homes are potential fire hazards when old and not maintained."

"Fires can run through a mobile home in about five or six minutes," Brian McGuire, a firefighter in the district, said. In that short time the home can be burnt to the ground before the fire trucks arrive, he said.

That is why the firefighters are concerned about high public awareness in their district.

Faulty wiring, cheap well-worn and poor maintenance all contribute to fire hazards in mobile homes, Bilderback said. A home's heating source, whether a furnace, portable heaters or kerosene heaters, also can cause fires if residents do not use them safely.

Heat tapes on mobile homes should be checked and replaced if old, Bilderback said. Heat tapes are wrapped around the water pipes from the ground so the pipes do not freeze.

The tapes are dangerous if not installed properly. If wires of the tape are touching, heat will build up and might cause a fire, Bilderback said.

He also said portable heaters are dangerous if they are knocked over.

"The heaters have automatic shut offs, but the metal is hot enough to catch carpeting on fire," Bilderback said.

Residents should know the fire department's number, check the smoke detectors to see if they work and purchase a fire extinguisher, McGuire said. Illinois state law requires all homes have smoke detectors, and it is the owner's responsibility, McGuire said.

Police Blotter

A Quick Trip cashier, 600 E. Grand Ave., reported a Monday morning robbery, Carbondale police said.

John W. Hopkins, cashier at the convenience store, said a man reached over the counter during a transaction and removed an undetermined amount of cash, according to police reports. No weapons were used in the robbery, police said.

The suspect is described as a black male, 5'10", weighing between 150 and 170 pounds and in his early 20s, police said.

Neva J. Wallace, 47, of 1200 E. Grand Ave. reported a residential burglary occurred Sunday, Carbondale police said.

Wallace said someone entered her residence Sunday between 2:30 and 7:50 p.m. and stole stereo equipment and personal items valued at $1723, according to police reports.

A one vehicle accident occurred on Route 3 one-half mile east of the Randolph-Jackson county line Saturday at 3:45 a.m., the Jackson County Sheriff's Department said.

Annette Flamm, 22, and Jene Flamm, 21, both of Chester were not injured in the one vehicle accident.

While driving south on Route 3 Annette Flamm fell asleep. Her vehicle slammed into a tree, police said.

Student shares experiences with alcohol addiction, drugs

THIS PERSONAL, anonymous story by a University student is shared during national collegiate alcohol awareness week, October 16 through 22.

I had my first drink the same day as my first cigarette, at 13 years old. In high school, my habits were like a lot of kids—going out maybe two weekends a month to dances or out in the country to get blitzed.

After high school I was in the Navy and the drinking, while it never stopped, kind of died down and I converted to smoking pot a lot. I also tried acid.

In college, at age 22, I was using amphetamines to study, still smoking pot and drinking occasionally.

My luck held for quite some time and I didn't get in trouble or caught, even though I would drink and drive pretty regularly.

My job was in social services on a later shift, and some of the staff and I would go out to dinner and drink beer, then go back to work.

Most of my friends were drinking all the time. It took a while, but problems began.

I saw a counselor who said I had an alcohol problem, so I decided a move away from old friends would help. It didn't.

I began to drink tequila shots followed by beer, instead of just drafts.

After ten years of smoking pot and cigarettes, I could hardly breathe when I walked, so I quit that. Cigarettes were easy to give up after getting through the physical addiction. Then I had a car wreck. There was just property damage, but I had to pay a lawyer $1,500.

I still fall back on alcohol occasionally, and I don't like that. I get bored and lonely and drink. I don't know how many times I'll have to do that before I quit for good.

To Your Health is produced in conjunction with the Wellness Center.

Communication important for tenants

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

A valuable asset that needs to exist between landlords and their tenants is communication, Bonnie Owen, owner of Bonnie Owen Realty located at 816 E. Main in Carbondale, said.

Talking to the landlord about one's financial situation may be a way to avoid a lot of problems in the future.

"Your Rights As A Tenant," a booklet put out by the Student's Legal Assistance Office, states that when rent can't be paid, a written agreement to a smaller rent payment or paying in smaller amounts at different intervals is a wise act.

Owen said she personally sits down with her tenants and tells them her expectations and wants them to do the same.

When a tenant does pay the rent, a check or receipt of the payment should be kept in case of problems in the future.

However, if the tenant does not pay the rent for whatever reason, they still have rights.

The landlord cannot move the tenants furniture out, cut off the utilities or lock the tenants out.

However, landlords can seize some of the tenants' personal property and hold it for the rent if an inventory of the property is filed with the court and tenants are notified by summons.

This act is called the Distress for Rent, but the landlord cannot seize the property forcibly or breach the peace to get it.

The landlord can evict the tenants if they do not pay their rent after a five-day notice or if they have broken an agreement in their lease.

When a tenant does pay the rent, a check or receipt of the payment should be kept in case of problems in the future.

To evict, the landlord must follow certain procedural steps.

First, proper written notice must be given unless that right has been waived by the tenant in the lease.

If the reason for the eviction is because the tenant is behind in the rent, five days are allowed before suit may be filed. Ten days notice is given if the tenant breached a condition in the lease.

If there is no written lease then the tenant is entitled to 30 days notice before a suit may be filed.

After notice is given, the landlord must file an eviction lawsuit which is called a Forcible Entry and Detainer Action. Ten days after a complaint is filed, there is a hearing.

The landlord cannot evict tenants for complaining to the building inspector because of the condition of the property or because of the tenants' race, sex, or number of children.

"Having a relationship on a one-to-one basis is important between tenants and landlords so that the tenants trust you and know that there is somebody they can call," Shirley Meyer, property manager for Goss Property Managers, said.

Farm aid means Idaho farmer will vote for Bush

Editor's note: The St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently sent its reporters around the country to gather interviews with ordinary voters who will help choose the next president. This is one story in a series.

By Terry Ganey
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

PARMA, Idaho — From the porch of his red brick home, Orville Hartman can see every house he has lived in during 59 years on this earth.

Just 300 yards down the road is the original Hartman homestead, built by his grandfather more than 100 years ago. Hartman, like his father before him, was born in that house, which sits beside the Oregon Trail.

Visible in another direction, across irrigated potato and onion fields that are among the most fertile on earth, is a home that Hartman's father built to accommodate his growing family. Now, the fourth generation of Hartmans to farm this land — Orville's sons, John and Bill — live with their families in these two sturdy frame houses built by their ancestors.

With the exception of his service in Korea in 1952, Orville Hartman's world has been these three homes and the 600 acres that surround them.

"I'm a born farmer," Hartman said. "I love this life. I have never seen a place that is a better place to farm than where I am right now."

In a good year — and Hartman said the last two have been pretty good — Hartmans Inc. grosses well into the six figures. As the 1988 presidential election approaches, Hartman hopes whoever is elected will not jiggle the system and ruin the farming operation he is gradually turning over to John and Bill.

The arid land on Hartman's farm, sweetened by the snow-melt water that is coaxed from the Boise and Snake rivers, yields golden fist-sized onions and potatoes as big as a man's size-10 shoe. Local processing companies buy tons of the big tubers and turn them into frozen french fries for fast-food restaurants.

The Hartman farm, a medium-sized contributor to the 347,000 acres Idaho residents devote to spud growing, is a $2 million complex of combines, trucks, potato diggers and storage warehouses. There is a full-time hired man, and crews of $4.50-an-hour migrant workers from Texas help out during the harvest.

The Hartmans are conservative Republicans, which is not unusual for Idaho in general and Canyon County in particular. Since 1948, Idaho's four electoral votes have gone to a Democratic presidential candidate only once — when Lyndon B. Johnson barely won here in 1964.

Twenty years later, only one state — Utah — gave a greater percentage of its popular vote to Ronald Reagan.

"I will probably go for Bush," he said, "because he is the best of the two evils. It appalls me that they won't take a stand. There is just no leadership. I believe right here in this county there are a dozen men who could make a better president."

Women golfers win fourth place at Huskie Invite Finishing two strokes shy of Gateway Conference rival Illinois State, the women's golf team finished fourth at the Huskie Classic at Dekalb with a team score of 675.

"It was disappointing because we were in third place after the first day," Coach Diane Daugherty said. "I would have been happy if we would have held on to third, but we didn't."

Nebraska took first at 637. Second went to Northern Illinois at 656, followed by Illinois State with a 673.

Lisa Meritt, a junior, shot an 80 the first day and a 78 the following day to take second overall.

"Lisa Meritt had her best finish, by far, in any tournament of her college career," Daugherty said.

Freshman Anne Childress was the team's low-scorer after the first round of play with a 78.

Cycling mishaps injure two top tennis players

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

For women's tennis coach Judy Auld, bicycles have become a nightmare. For seniors Dana Cherebetiu and Maria Coch, they have become something even worse.

Cherebetiu was sidelined for a tournament after sustaining minor injuries from a bicycling accident on Sept. 6. Coch, who suffered a sprained neck and a concussion from a bicycling accident on Oct. 6, had to miss last weekend's home meet and will be sidelined for the remainder of the fall season.

"It's kind of a bummer," Coch said. "It's my last year, and I wanted to make it my best. Now, who knows?"

Coch said she was in a hurry to get to class last Thursday when she ran into a curb. She flipped over her handlebars and landed head-first, she said.

Coch, the No. 5 singles player and No. 3 doubles, said she was counting on making her mark this weekend at the Gateway Invitational.

"I'm really disappointed about the St. Louis tournament (Gateway Invitational)," Coch said. "It would have been my last time to see what I can do individually. Now, I'll never know."

Coch's singles record is 5-1 for this season and 53-49 overall. At No. 3 doubles, Coch teamed up with Julie Burgess for a 3-1 season record. Overall, Coch and Burgess are 14-29.

The Salukis felt the absence of Coch in a big way last weekend, losing to Louisville 2-4.

"We had our backs against the wall," Auld said. "We only had five players to start with, but when you can get one out of two with not even a full squad — it shows that we're an excellent team."

SIU-C defeated Evansville 5-1 on Friday.

Auld said she was surprised the Salukis took a clean sweep of Evansville in the singles. Now, she said, her main concern is getting Coch back healthy.

Giamatti changes Howell decision

NEW YORK (UPI) — When is breaking the rules not cheating? According to National League President A. Bartlett Giamatti, it's when you say you didn't mean to cheat.

Giamatti Monday reduced Dodgers reliever Jay Howell's suspension for using pine tar on his pitching hand from three days to two. Giamatti, who becomes baseball's commissioner next year, defended his decision like this: "I have never been under the impression (Howell) did not commit an infraction," Giamatti told a hastily convened press conference before Game 5 Monday in Shea Stadium. "He admits it. He says it was a mistake.

"Now we can debate whether or not you think I believe he cheated on purpose or not. I do not think he set out to cheat on purpose. He broke the rule, but that's not germane to the fact that this morning we had a good exchange, and I changed the ruling because of it." Even before he has assumed the duties of Commissioner, Giamatti has encountered a crucial issue. His future as the head of major league baseball will forever be colored by his handling of it.

"While I think he did something wrong, I don't think he set out with the intention to cheat," Giamatti said.

"The goal is to penalize the individual without over-penalizing the team or the fans of that team."

"Let's just say right now after this performance I'm cautiously optimistic toward the rest of the season," DeNoon said.

Other individual finishers were Cathy Brown in 39th with a time of 19:47, Traci Guerin 44th in 19:45, Amy Padgett 66th in 20:24, Dona Griffin 88th in 21:00, Beth Johnson 106th in 21:27, and Kristin Tomiello 162nd. Margie Schweinert of University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, finished first.

Team totals had South Dakota State running away from the rest of the field. They finished with 48 points. Illinois State finished second with 124 points. Marquette was third, Wisconsin-Milwaukee fourth, Farris State fifth and SIU-C sixth with 186 points.

Schumacher, a business education major, still has one year of eligibility left on cross country and indoor track, but she said she probably won't compete next year.

"I will be student teaching next fall, and as of right now I don't plan on running another year," she said.

"Schumacher said she doesn't use any special tactics to get herself prepared for a race. She does, however, focus in on the finish line well before it arrives.

"At about the two-mile mark I usually start telling myself I can't wait until the race is over," she said.

Equestrians capture first

The SIU-C equestrian team took first place among 15 colleges and universities in the stock seat (Western riding) category last weekend at Murray State in Kentucky.

SIU-C had 20 entries in the two-day show. Individually in Western riding, Kim Green, Mary Bichl and Denny Chapman placed first in the stock seat event.

English rider Danielle Andarsek placed first in the walk trot. Jody Kerkhoff placed first in the walk trot canter.

Coach Myke Ramsey said every SIU-C rider came home with at least one ribbon, which means they were within the top six of all riding categories.

Rugby rolls by Eastern club

The SIU-C rugby team blew past visiting Eastern Illinois on Saturday. The A-team won 23-10, and the B-team was also victorious by a score of 19-4.

The A-team was led by Todd Slingerland, Paul Ward, Norm Smyth and Nagi Kazi.

Dodgers overcome problems; take lead in NLCS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, hit by one problem after another since the National League playoffs began, stand one victory away from the World Series.

Kirk Gibson crushed a three-run homer and rookie Tim Lincecum won his second game of the playoffs Monday, giving the Dodgers a 7-4 victory over the New York Mets and a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Dodgers have not received a win from their best pitcher in two playoff starts, lost their ace reliever for Games 4 and 5, and are facing a team that had beaten them 10 of 11 during the regular season.

But a victory at Los Angeles in Game 6 Tuesday night or Game 7 Wednesday night would move the Dodgers into the World Series.

The World Series is scheduled to start in the NL city Saturday against the American League champion Oakland Athletics.

The Dodgers are scheduled to send Tim Lincecum against 20-game winner David Cone, the Game 2 loser for the Mets.

Game 7, if necessary, would probably match Los Angeles' Orel Hershiser against Ron Darling Hershiser, the leading candidate for the NL Cy Young award, started Games 1 and 3, and received no decision in either as the Dodgers blew late leads and lost.

The Dodgers could face a Game 6 without Gibson, their star and emotional force. Gibson, who entered the playoffs with a left hamstring pull, injured the back of his left leg on a ninth-inning steal. He left the game and his status is uncertain for Tuesday's game.

Jane Schumacher accepts new role

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

At the beginning of the 1988 women's cross country season, senior Jane Schumacher was expected to be the No. 2 runner on the team. That changed when the team's No. 1 runner Lisa Judisack went down with injuries, and Schumacher was forced into the role of team leader.

"I do feel I am in the leadership role now," Schumacher said. "Many of the younger runners come to me and ask how the upcoming meet was run last year, what type of course it is and what the competition was like."

Coach Don DeNoon said that Schumacher is doing what a team leader should do — show consistency.

"She was consistent throughout the first four races," DeNoon said. "The other athletes key in on her, and judge their performances as compared to hers. They can then see where they stand."

20th fastest time in women's cross country at SIU-C with a time of 18:37, set a new personal best at the Loyola Invitational on Saturday. Her time of 18:36 lifted her to 14th on the school's all-time list.

"I am in better shape this year than last, and I see no reason why I can't run faster before the end of the season," Schumacher said.

Prior to Saturday's meet, DeNoon said he felt Schumacher had yet to run her best race.

"Judging by her times in practice," DeNoon said, "I feel she can run 30 seconds to a minute faster. I think she needs to show more confidence in her ability, which will allow her to push her pace a little more during the race and get out front early."

"This will also help the rest of the girls focusing on her to excel and improve their times."

Schumacher attended Teutopolis High School, located near her hometown of Sigel, where she was a standout runner in track and cross country. She won the state championship in both the 800-meters and the 3,200-meters.

Schumacher also played basketball in high school, which was instrumental in her decision to attend a junior college before going to a four-year school.

DeNoon's team finishes sixth

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Jane Schumacher led the Saluki women's cross country team to a sixth-place finish Saturday at the Loyola Invitational. Schumacher, who finished third in the race, set a personal best with a time of 18:36. The time vaulted her into 14th place on the all-time list at SIU-C.

"The conditions were really good, not too hot, and not too cold," Schumacher said, adding that the course itself was really fast and this added to her outstanding time.

Schumacher's previous best this season had been 19:13 in the Midwest Collegiates.

Coach Don DeNoon was pleased with Schumacher's time as well as many of the other runners who ran some of their best times of the season.

DeNoon said the meet, which fielded over 175 finishers from 25 schools, gives the Salukis something to build on for the rest of the season.

"I think we ran as well here as we were running earlier in the season," DeNoon said. "I think we still have some runners who are just realizing their potential, and hopefully we'll see it right around conference (championship) time."

DeNoon said Michele Sciano and Rosanne Vincent both ran strong races, but each had problems which hampered their performance.

"Michele has been battling a cold and bronchitis for 3 weeks now," DeNoon said. "Rosanne was running in the top ten until the two mile mark where she had to stop and stretch her calves which were tightening up on her. She fell behind and was never able to get back."

Vincent finished 52nd in 30:13, and Sciano 46th in 20:06.

After a slow start, things seem to be looking up for the men's golf team.

Just coming off a second-place finish at the Saluki Invitational, it's back in the running again. The Salukis are tied for first at the Blue Raider Invitational in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

In Monday's action at the Blue Raider, SIU-C is tied with the University of Tennessee-Martin, each with a first-round score of 296 strokes.

For the Salukis, Mark Bellas leads the team with a first-round total of 72.

Last week's leader, Britt Pavelonis, is second with a 74. Dirk Klapprott and Mike Cowen are tied with 75, and Sean English rounds-out the scoring with an 82.

"The guys know if they play their game they can be a good golf team," Hartzog said.

Britt Larimer of UT-Martin is the first-round leader at 68. Saturday, at the Saluki Invitational, the team finished 10 strokes behind champion Murray State, which had a 591 total.

Illinois State, who was picked to win the tournament, finished in third at 603, two strokes behind SIU-C.

SIU-E was fourth with 609 strokes. Southwest Missouri State, the University of Missouri-St. Louis and Rend Lake Community College finished in the No. 5, 6 and 7 spots respectively.

Pavelonis was low-scoring for the Salukis with a two-day total of 148. Sean English had a 153, Mark Bellas had a 155 and Sean Leckrone a 156.
