Wine festival:
Alto Vineyards' October Wine Festival presents a different kind of party.

Polie and fire officials are investigating the possible homicide of a 29-year-old Carbondale woman but are not releasing any further details until later today.

Authorities removed the body of Pamela A. Travis from apartment 1504 of The Fields Apartments, 700 S. Lewis Lane, at about 11 a.m. Wednesday after residents of the complex notified maintenance staff that smoke alarms were going off in the apartment.

A maintenance man entered the apartment shortly before 11 a.m., determined there had been a fire and removed the 22-month-old twin daughters of the victim. The two children were taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for treatment.

Anyone with information about this case is urged to call the Carbondale Police at 457-3200 or Carbondale Crime Stoppers at 549-2677 to leave an anonymous tip.

CRIME SCENE: Investigators removed evidence from 700 S. Lewis Lane, Apt. 1504, where police are investigating a fire and possible homicide.

Dave Strickland, Poshard's press secretary, said the victory is a result of the congressman throughout his entire career of his support, people because of their support, people people know his support in the Southern Illinois area. He hinted at a kind of domino effect, initiated by the devestation and hard work of area voters and spreading to Illinois' northern communities.

"It demonstrates to the people in Jackson County and on the SIU campus, who have been a part of the congressman throughout his entire career, that because of their support, people across the state are coming on board," Strickland said.

The survey was taken after a forum sponsored by the Northern Illinois Democratic Coalition. The meeting, conducted in Maroa, provided the four announced Democartic gubernatorial candidates an opportunity to tout their credentials and outline the issues.

Taking part in the forum were Poshard, a Marion native; former U.S. Attorney General Roland Burris and retired U.S. Attorney Jim Burns.

At the Sept. 28 forum, 400 Democratic leaders from 18 northern counties (excluding Cook and DuPage counties) cast their ballots for candidates in the six state executive races.

Though the poll does not constitute a sample of the electorate, it does point to an overwhelming amount of support for Poshard among party activists in northwest Illinois. Of the 102 Democratic county chairs in the state 95 have endorsed the U.S. representative in his bid for governor.

Poshard has garnered support from several high-profile names in the party, including U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Ill., State Sen. Penny Severns, D-Decatur, and SIUC's Bob Brown, a lecturer in political science.

"If we can prevent it now, the cost of treating emphysema and cancer will be less," said Heidari, a first-year medical student from Champaign and a presenter of "Smoke Free That's Me!" — a program designed to teach second, fourth and sixth grade students the unhealthy effects of tobacco smoking.

The SIU School of Medicine and the American Lung Association have teamed up for the first time for "Smoke Free That's Me!" Since the beginning of the school year, SIU medical students have been conducting seminars to help prevent young students from starting to smoke.

"We do not have the money to do the program by passing out brochures to children from kindergarteen through twelfth grade," Saunders said. "We decided that"

Floors promote healthy living

MAPPING UP: Other areas place students with other students in their major.

TRACY TAYLOR  DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Davina Miller moved to a healthy lifestyles floor at Schneider Hall in Brush Towers to breathe free and be able to hear herself think. And Lindsey Kandlfs moved to an engineering floor to get acquainted with the people in her major.

Miller, a freshman in journalism from Metropolis, said that when she lived in Mac Smith Hall, she was tempted to go back to old habits.

"Originally I was in Mac Smith, and I had a roommate who was a chain smoker and got drunk all the time," Miller said. "I don't drink, and I don't smoke, so I thought it would be great to be around other people who don't do that."

KAREN BLATTER  DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Turning red in the face while tears of laughter stream down his cheeks, Jeff Alberts and the rest of the Mintos Junkies prepare for tonight's performance at 7, which will be held in the Fella Hall at Thompson Point.

The Mintos Junkies are an improvisation comedy group sponsored through the Student Theater Guild. Tonight is the Mintos Junkies' season opener.

Between gags for an after a fellow comedian cracked an unexpected joke in a skit, Alberts said that every time the group of 12 practices, something is funnier than before.

"That’s the funniest thing I ever heard," said Alberts, a freshman in film from Hoffman Estates.

Even though the group is improvisational, the members still need to practice. "They have to learn each other’s sense of humor, and teach themselves how to be funny," Alberts said.

Robert Cannon, a freshman in cinema from Knoxville, Tenn., and director, tries to focus his actors into what is known as the zone.

"The zone is funny," he said. "Once you have found the zone, you have found humor."

Robert Young Jr., a freshman in cinema from Hoffman Estates, said it means more of an improvisation to do with rhythm and flow of the act.

"Improv has to do with timing," he said. "You have to find the happy medium between a physical comedy and an intelligent comedy, making the audience think while they are laughing."

Alberts said the group reminds him of what it is like to hang out and crack jokes with other people.

"It’s like when you would watch TV with your friends back home," he said. "You just sit there and share a funny idea with each other."

Brad Gnetzmacher, a freshman in cinema from Hoffman Estates who has been doing improvisations since he was a child, compares the improv group to ballroom.

"Improv is just like ballet," he said. "But there is no music, and we don’t dance."

When asked about the name of their group, no serious answer could be found among them.

"One night we were melting down Mintos to Inject our in atoms," Cannon said. "We weren’t really melting down Mintos, that was a joke."

Festival offers inside glimpse of vineyard

WINE FEST: Harvest celebration will feature Saturday, Sunday.

JASON ADRIAN  DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Also Pass has been a dry town since the ’70s, but that will not stop people from converging to the Alto Vineyards Saturday and Sunday for the fifth straight year of food, wine, and song at the October Wine Festival.

The festival takes place from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Also wine maker Paul Renzaglia said the atmosphere of the festival always has remained pleasant and peaceful.

"We’ve been doing this for five years, and 99.9 percent of the people we’ve had very mellow crowds," he said. "It’s a very laid-back and very informal."

Renzaglia said the October Wine Festival may not be two all-day drinking extravaganzas, but, rather, a chance for SIUC students and Southern Illinoisans to enjoy something contrary to what they normally would do.

"It’s not a big party but an opportunity to get outside, relax and listen to music," Renzaglia said. "It’s more of a celebration of the harvest."

Renzaglia said it provides an alternative to the things people do around here. "The music at the festival will be provided by folk artists Carter & Rose all day Saturday. St. Stephen’s Blues will bring out the sounds of the Grateful Dead all day Sunday."

The bands will play on a wooden gazebo located in front of the acres of grapevines the Alto Vineyard uses to grow the fruit vital to its wines.

Renzaglia said people should take the opportunity to examine the grounds because a winery is not something a lot of people frequent for entertainment purposes.

"I encourage people to get up and walk through the vineyard," he said. "As long as they don’t pick too much fruit."

JACKSON COUNTY
Local teens killed in crash

Authorities are investigating a two-vehicle accident that left two people dead after 4:30 p.m. Tuesday on U.S. 51 near Makanda. The accident resulted in the deaths of two teen-age girls and the serious injury of another.

Amanda Dalton, 17, of Makanda, and Jennifer Rieger, 16, of Carbondale, were pronounced dead at the scene. They were passengers in a car driven by 17-year-old Jewell Hagler of Makanda.

An eyewitness told Jackson County authorities that a pickup driven by Solomon Parker, 29, of Cairo, was traveling south on U.S. 51 when the Hagler car suddenly drove across the highway from Makanda Road, into the path of the truck.

The pickup struck the Hagler vehicle, on the passenger side, before both vehicles came to rest near an embankment at the north-east side of the intersection.

Hagler was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, where she was hospitalized in guarded condition as of press time Wednesday.

MURPHYSBORO
Neal sentencing rescheduled

The sentencing of Labron C. Neal has been changed from Judge William Schwartz's schedule, defense attorney Paul Christensen said.

The sentencing originally was scheduled for 10 a.m. October 9 in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro. Neal will now be sentenced at 10 a.m. October 18 at the courthouse.

Neal, 18, of Carbondale, faces a minimum sentence of 20 years and is eligible for natural life in prison. He is not eligible for the death penalty.

Phi Gamma Delta goes dry

Days after a pledge at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology died of alcohol poisoning, another Phi Gamma Delta member was convicted of murder.

Phi Gamma Delta announced it will ban alcoholic beverages at all 125 of its chapters.

Green has too much influence on today's college students and our members. We must take action against it," said Douglas Dittrick, president of Phi Gamma Delta's governing board.

Scott Krueger, 18, died Sept. 30. Days earlier, he had been found by his roommates at the Beta Israel Deaconess Medical Center in a coma after he was found in his basement room as the Phi Gamma Delta house, surrounded by vomit and empty liquor bottles.

MIT suspended the Phi Gamma Delta chapter and has instituted stricter alcohol regulations campus wide. And in a statement, Cambridge police are investigating "whether hazying has been involved in Krueger's death."

"The college experience should be one of opportunities to develop responsibility, maturity, and social skills," said Dittrick. "Tragically, we have just been again how imperative it is to curb the influence of alcohol among college students."

Phi Delta Theta joins Phi Sigma Nu, Sigma Nu, two other national fraternities, in setting a deadline of July 1, 2000, for making their houses alcohol-free. Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Nu announced their decisions earlier this year.

Guest Column

Brett is a senior in journalism. His Guest Column appears Tuesday and Thursday. Brett's opinion does not necessarily reflect that of the Daily Egyptian.

If I want to get a shoeshine from the guy at the airport who is working his ass off for peanuts, I damn well better be able to.

My stomach turned as I considered the sickening ramifications of the recent letter to the editor submitted by Ruth Corene McDaniel, president of the Illinois Cosmetology Association Inc., titled "Unlicensed practices must stop."

To recap, she was the person who argued the SIUC students featured in the Sept. 25 Daily Egyptian story "Entrepreneurs turn spare time into spare cash" are criminals.

The low-life gangster who was referring to are the hard-working people trying to get by their way through school by cutting hair and doing nails out of their homes or dorm rooms without a license.

Mr. McDaniel cited an Illinois statutory law which she and a board of other "professionals" decided in an attempt at making sure nobody gets an "unprofessional" dye or nail job.

We thank her for prcncurs of our country. I read. It was about a jobless woman in a metropolitan area who would make muffins at home. Every morning she would put them in a wagon and go from business to business selling them to a supportive network of people who thought muffins were wonderful.

Eventually, the word about her quality muffins got around, and the woman became popular. She was baking a large number of muffins and had a sizable clientele, she might even argue that she was cutting into the best licensed "professional" muffin bakers' businesses.

Mystically, the woman was soon greeted with a cease-and-desist order from the FDA because her kitchen had not received and passed health inspections. It just so happened that to pass these inspections, she would have had to install a multi-thousand-dollar oven and kitchen cabinet area.

This woman was barely making enough money from the muffins to live on. There was no way she could afford the remodeling costs.

The FDA's present execution of justice is a fine example of a relatively low cost to work to protect people from a potential tainted muffin—or a potentially bad dye job if you will. By the way, if you believe this then let me know because I can get you a great deal on some old swamp land in Florida.

The muffin-baking woman's customers in the area raised the money for the remodeling of her kitchen, and her business emerged and grew—much to the dismay of some cruel professionals that make muffins for people who ignore their rights to have muffins.

Not enough

Advisers must understand, fulfill job requirements

The undergraduate student

Government's idea to have academic advisers in each department at SIUC would be a major aid in helping students get through college without the hassle of finding their own schedules. But just hiring more people is not enough.

Both USG and the University must take steps to ensure that the new advisers understand the majors they are guiding students through.

Currently, students complain that advisers lead them into traps or ruin their chances of getting the classes they want. Some even complain that advisers kept them from graduating on time. Students also complain that advisers are never available.

If this new program is to be instituted, it could help greatly in the availability of advisers for consultation.

USG Vice President Megan Moore said the whole goal of the program is to put the power of shaping students' college career into advisers' hands. USG and the administration must be certain the new advisers are knowledgeable in how their departments work.

If the advisers are well-informed and have the knowledge to correctly instruct students, they will be a definite asset to the University.

But if the advisers are just hired to punch numbers into computers from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and do not learn what is necessary to complete degree requirements, the current problems and student headaches will only grow larger.

Advisers also need to be in touch with their department and understand how they function. Advisers must be willing to work with students' schedules, and try their best to get the classes students need, working with what is available.

It is up to USG and the administration to make this idea, which is good in theory, good in practice. They need to examine it from all angles and find out what will best serve the students. If done properly, the nightmare of advisement could be nearly over.

Allie Vineyards, manager Leon Danghar said that he hopes this is the first of many festivals that should not take advantage of the fact that a referendum was passed in 1985 so wine could be sold here.

“We got a special permit to sell wine in this area,” he said. “We have to be careful about selling alcohol so that it doesn’t get out of hand.”

There will be seven different kinds of grape wine served by the glass for between $2.50 and $5. A commemorative glass is available for $15 to take home.

There will also be two different kinds of beer made by the local breweries for $1.50 a bottle.

To accompany the wine drinking, food will be provided by the St. Stephen’s Barn.

Admission to the Oktoberfest Wine Festival is $2. Alcohol other than beer served at the festival is prohibited.

The need for a community event in which all families can participate is the reason the annual Fit for Life 5K run and walk and Rollieball was organized, a local hospital spokesperson said.

“This is an event that not only shows collaboration with the community services,” said Peggy Thompson, a registered nurse and patient educator at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, “but also provides a cheap way for people to maintain overall health and strengthen their hearts.”

The fifth-annual event Saturday is sponsored by the Carbondale Police, Fire Department and the hospital, as part of Carbondale Fire Safety Week.

A special 1-mile race open to children and those who may not be in condition for a longer route, will start at 8 a.m. Saturday, while the longer 5K event starts at 8:30 a.m. “The route really is a good way for those who want to get out of bed and then want to run,” Thompson said.

The race will start at the Civic Center, 200 S. Illinois Ave., and will head south toward the SIUC campus. The course on campus will be by McDonald Hall and will end at the start of the race at the Civic Center.

Local merchants have donated awards and ribbons that will be given to the top three finishers and teams in all age categories.

A station to assist participants with any health problems will be set up inside the Civic Center. Also, after the race, ice pops and water therapy will be available.

Rollieball players wear protective knee pads, helmet and wrist guards to participate in the event.

“This is the second year we have allowed Rollieball players to participate,” Thompson said. “We are hoping that this participation will increase in years to come.”

Course certification for the event should be received by the Illinois Central Park Association in time for the event before race day. The certification will be submitted to the USA Track and Field Federation in the event a runner or walker sets a state or national record.

Registration can be made in person from 8 to 7 p.m. Friday at the Carbondale Civic Center. The entry fee is $2 for entrants two years old and older and $15 per couple is available beginning at the start of the race at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Participation for people to run and walk is open to all ages and health levels. Some events allow for free registration.

Atonement Day Oct. 16

CELEBRATION: First march in '95 continues to have impact on male African Americans.

J. MICHAEL RODRIGUEZ
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The "March of Ignorance" group gathered Wednesday in the Free Forum area behind the Student Center parking lot Wednesday to make students aware of the Day of Atonement and the Million Woman March scheduled later this month.

The "March of Ignorance" consisted of members of the SIUC student chapter of the NAACP, Black Theology Organization, the Black Affairs Council and several other organizations whose members will celebrate the Day of Atonement Oct. 15 at the fields across from Brush Towers.

Alex Goodson, co-chairman of the "March of Ignorance," posted the flyers "No School on Oct. 16," said Goodson. "Even though we're not going to be in classes, we'll be educating ourselves and each other," Goodson said.

"The knowledge we will obtain (on Oct. 16) will be very useful to everyone in their everyday life."

The annual Million Woman March was scheduled for Oct. 25 in Philadelphia.

During Wednesday's march, various people spoke on what they thought about the purposes of the Holy Day of Atonement and the Million Woman March.

"We are all of God's children, therefore we need to get up and stand on issues that affect us," Enoch Muhammad said during a prayer circle in the Free Forum area.

"We cannot just talk about making change, we must move to make change," Goodson, the founder of the Black Think Tank, said.

This year's theme is 'young, gifted and atoned.'

ENOC MUHAMMAD

Black Think Tank, which is organizing programs for the Holy Day of Atonement for the Carbondale area, is working to sell vending tables to students at least the number of women needed for the trip to Philadelphia, said Goodson. The trip to Philadelphia is scheduled for Oct. 16.

"Million Woman March" will remain in congruence with the memory of Notorious B.I.G. and Tupac Shakur because the two rappers died at a young age after performing with a gift they both had.

The "March of Ignorance" group is working to sell vending tables to Registered Student Organizations on the Holy Day of Atonement at the Mac Smith Field to raise money for a trip to the Million Woman March.

Pamela Muhammad, a junior in Spanish and one of the organizers of the trip to Philadelphia, said her group has not had meetings yet to determine the number of women they will take to Philadelphia.

"This trip has not been determined either."

"(Million Woman March) will remain in congruence with the Million Man March," she said. "It took 30 years for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. to be recognized as a holiday."

"We're trying to institutionalize this day as a Holy Day of Atonement."

Boston University fined for pollution

BOSTON — Boston University has agreed to pay $253,000, the largest environmental fine ever levied against a school, for hazardous waste violations and oil spills into the Charles River, prosecutors said Wednesday.

Boston University also agreed to spend another $550,000 on two environmental projects as part of a consent decree filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Boston.

According to a complaint filed by the university’s medical school, an underground storage tank on the university campus allegedly leaked a steady stream of oil over many months last year into the Charles River, scene of an international rowing competition later this month.

The Environmental Protection Agency also discovered many hazardous waste violations at the university’s medical school, targeted as having a high potential to release contaminants into an urban area.

"B.U. has admitted its mistake, paid a hefty penalty, and agreed to implement remedial measures," U.S. Attorney Donald Staley said.

Rodney Mummier, who lives in the apartment building where the Travis' were killed, said he had not known the victims since they moved in about 1 1/2 years ago and said he had no reason to think they were staying in the apartment.

"The fire alarms were going off from 8 to 11 a.m., and we all thought it was just an alarm clock," he said.

Mummier said he did not see anyone coming from the fire and had not noticed any suspicious people around the apartment Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning.

League offers bowlers means to relax

INDIVIDUALITY: Bowlers' styles differ but the teams' emphasis focuses on fun, motivation and competition.

DANIEL CASWELL
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Marlon Kelly picks up his bowling ball and positions himself on the lane. He takes his time as he releases the ball and hopes for a strike.

Kelly, a junior in computer engineering from Chicago, bowls at 7 p.m. every Tuesday in the mixed league bowling at the Student Center Bowling and Billiards.

Kelly is a member of the team "Three Men and a Lady," which has just moved up into the No. 1 spot this week.

He said the key to his team's victory Tuesday night was helping each other out when other members were down.

"We knew we could do it," Kelly said. "It was just a matter of time before we put the pieces together to become No. 1.

Students who participate in the 13-week league pay a fee of $3.30 per week. Ten team bowling in the league, with four people on each team.

Marlon Gillon, a junior in cinema and photography from Chicago, likes bowling because it is competitive, and he does not have to overexert himself like in other sports.

"It's not like basketball where you can sit down and relax after you go up for your turn, which only takes a few seconds," Pete Hardy, a sophomore in criminal justice from Carbondale, said.

Hardy said the key to his team's victory was that ad-vertices targeted children like himself most about the game of bowling is the different styles people embody into their own styles of bowling.

"You will probably never find two bowlers with the same style," Hardy said.

"In other sports such as football, they use spin moves and different forms to get away from their defender," Hardy said. "But when you bowl, everyone has a different form."

Hardy said motivating his team to do well is important to him during competition and practice.

"When you play against a lot of teams every week, you see different types of competition," Hardy said. "If you don't motivate your team week-by-week you'll be bound to lose.

"Bowling is just a way for me to have fun," Kelly said. "It's a way for me to relax from all of the stress I have during the week from my studies."

Unwinding from the pressures that academics bring upon is why some students, like Kelly and Gillon, have taken to bowling. "Bowling is just a way for me to have fun," Kelly said. "It's a way for me to relax from all of the stress I have during the week from my studies."

These three were the weeks to do.

The research that was presented was completed by Janet Joe Camel. (The American Lung Association) felt that it was time for a project like this.

The program includes discussion of lung health issues, peer pressure and advertising, along with videos and handouts for each age group. After various advertisements were given to first-year medical students during the summer, the joint effort went into effect.

Our students displayed a significant response to this program," said Sharon Hall, assistant dean for Student Affairs at the SIU School of Medicine and faculty representative for the program.

"Robyn, 30 first-year medical students have volunteered already. The most students find it very rewarding." Three years ago, the American Lung Association worked on a smaller scale together with volunteer professionals and the Saluki Volunteer Corps.

Students receive no class credit, but positive recognition on their permanent file for volunteer work.

Volunteers go through a two-hour training session after providing the American Lung Association with references. The training sessions consist of viewing videotapes and reviewing a script that the presenters may use as a guide.

"We're not trying to say anything bad about smokers," Heidari said, "we just want to give young people information on smoking for when they make a decision they will be educated."

Saluki spikers to face two conference foes this weekend

BACK IN ACTION: SIUC captain Holladay returning after being out since Sept. 19.

SHAPED RICHARDSON
DAILY EAGLE REPORTER

Because of the SIU volleyball team's poor road record, coach Sonya Locke considers this weekend's Missouri Valley Conference matches the most important trip of the season.

The Salukis travel to Des Moines, Iowa, Friday, to face Drake University, and to Omaha, Neb., to challenge Creighton University Saturday.

The Salukis enter the matches with a 4-3 conference record and 7-7 overall mark, but the team's 0-5 road record has concerned Locke.

"I think this is going to be one of the toughest road trips because we've been at home the last two weeks," Locke said. "Our track record shows that we can't win on the road.

In the past, the Salukis have not had well against Drake, as they have lost the last five meetings against the Lady Bulldogs. This year, the odds favor SIUC, as the Lady Bulldogs are tied for last in the MVC with a 1-6 conference record and 1-13 overall record. Locke, whose team is riding in a three-game winning streak, does not want her players to think about the past, a senior's match.

"We're not even thinking about last year," Locke said. "(The Lady Bulldogs) were a great team last year, but what happened last year is going to have nothing to do with this year. (Drake's) record doesn't speak much, but we're playing them on their home court.

"The Salukis have the back captain Erika Holladay for the trip. Holladay, a senior outside hitter, has been out of the lineup since Sept. 19 because of a stomach ailment.

Holladay was restricted to aerobic conditioning, during her absence. She said it will take some time to get back into the flow of the game.

"I was not allowed to touch a volleyball," Holladay said. "The other girls are three weeks ahead of me and I just have to work back into it.

Saturday's match against Creighton could turn out to be a battle for fourth place in the MVC, if SIUC wins and the Lady Jays defeat the University of Evansville Friday. Both the Salukis and the Lady Jays head into the weekend with identical records in the conference.

"Nothing has changed - defense is defense," Locke said. "I'm not going to change anything about the way we have played defensively.

With upcoming matches against conference leaders Illinois State University and Indiana State University, the Salukis need two wins for a shot at winning the conference title.

Holladay said two road victories this weekend would be a big plus to the team.

"We just have to go out there and get the job done and come out with the wins," she said. "That would be the best thing we could ask for because it would put us in good standing in the conference.

Webber returns to training camp

WASHINGTON POST

SHEPHERDTOWN, Va. — It wasn't quite on the scale of Michael Jordan crawling out of his sick bed to save the Utah Jazz from the NBA Finals, but Chris Webber returned to the training-camp practice floor for the Washington Wizards Wednesday with a vitality that made it hard to believe he had spent the previous three days watching his inside out.

"He was back and ready, didn't have a bit, didn't have a bit, didn't have a bit," said Coach Bernie Bickerstaff. "The things that we had done last year, he picked right up on."

There were, of course, certain indications Webber had not touched a ball since Saturday afternoon, when a stomach virus confined him to his hotel room and eventually sent him to the hospital.

He completely missed a wide-open jump shot from the top of the key, was off on several others from closer range, ran down the court more slowly as practice progressed and struggled grinding rebounds he usually would have controlled easily.

"The beginning of practice was better than the end," he said. "I was a little frustrated." But he also reminded everyone in the Shepherdstown gym who he is and an inevitable commodity. One minute he was signaling, back-up point guard Chris Whitney to cut to the basket with a roof of the head and even finding him with a backdoor bounce pass for an easy reverse layup. The next, he was pulling up to the foul line to fire a jump shot.

"He brings a lot of things to the table," Whitney said. "It's not about the minutes I've got out there."

"Chris Webber brings a lot to the team, especially energy," said center Lorenzen Williams.

When he missed a jump shot and was a break in the action, he demanded the ball back and tried several more from the same spot before feeding Williams a baseline jumper.

Williams, who made a baseline jump shot, was not allowed to touch a basketball before joining the Wizards on a 10-day tryout contract. Williams, a former 6-11 college player, will be given a week in camp before the Wizards decide whether to sign him to a one-year contract.

"It was a lot of fun," Williams said. "I'm going to enjoy it, I'm going to have fun out there."

The Wizards, who lost a pair of exhibition games Tuesday and Wednesday, will be back at it Thursday when they face the New York Knicks in Virgin Islands.

SENIOR SPECIAL

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. — When the 1996-97 basketball season begins Dec. 21, the Shepherd University basketball team will feature a seasoned defense and a young, but talented, offense.

The Colonels will be led by a group of senior leaders who have started 70 percent or more of Shepherd's games, giving head coach Mary Morse a strong core of veterans.

"The team is composed of a great mix of the upperclassmen with the inexperienced," Morse said.

"We have a lot of young faces, but with people like Romi Johnson and John Weakland, who have had experience with us, the young people learn." Morse said.

Johnson, a guard, and Weakland, a forward, have strong, experienced leadership roles.

"They have been the leaders of the team," Morse said.

"They have helped me not only in games, but in practice." Morse said.

"They have helped me a lot," Morse said.

"They have helped me not only in games, but in practice." Morse said.

The Colonels will be in the process of replacing their top four scorers from last season. Johnson was nominated for the GNAC Player of the Year award and Weakland was recognized as one of the team's top returning players.

"They have helped me not only in games," Morse said.

Braves even series with Marlins 1-1

ATLANTA — When teams are as successful and powerful as the Atlanta Braves, they don’t handle embarrassment well, especially after they have made themselves look foolish.

After admittedly looking silly, the Braves did what they could to improve their self-image. They routed the Florida Marlins. Atlanta defeated Florida, 7-1 in Game 2 of the National League Championship Series. The victory Wednesday was even the best-of-seven series, 1-1, as it is about Miami Friday for the next three games.

The Braves rebounded from their Game 1 offensive meltdowns — they gave up five unearned runs — behind the pitching of left-hander Tom Glavine and the hitting of Chipper Jones and Ryan Klesko. This was what the Turner Field crowd of 48,923 had come to expect from the Braves.

It was comeback befitting the team of the 90’s.

“We played good defense,” Tommy pitcher a great game and we swung the bats well — just typical Atlanta Braves baseball,” said Klesko, who hit a two-run home run in the fifth inning.

“They just picked itself up and move on. After what happened (Monday) we knew what we had to do,”

On Tuesday, the Braves com-
trolled two errors that led to the two Marlins unearned runs in a 5-3 victory.

But they were rewarded overnight.

Atlanta attacked from the start, scoring two runs in the first inning to give Glavine and two relievers as much support as they would need. Jones had three hits in five at-bats and drove in three runs.

But it was Glavine, making his ninth NLCS start, who provided the biggest boost. He gave up one run and three hits in 2 2/3 innings, striking out five and walking four.

Tommy was really quick and very sharp,” Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox said. “He really didn’t give us a good fastball, and his pitch count was high in the eighth so he had to come out, but overall he pitched a great game.”

Glavine received a standing ovation when Cox removed him after he walked Darin Erstad with two out in the eighth.

Los Angeles Times

The days when baseball, the nation’s pastime, and the United States’ most popular sport are long gone. King baseball ratings, even a one-game postponement baseball thriller, a fifth and deciding game between the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians, could not come close to outdrawing a playoff baseball game between the Denver Broncos and New England Patriots on ABC.

Tonight’s Monday Night football game between the Denver Broncos and New England Patriots on ABC was a 34-13 rout. In national ratings released Thursday, Monday night’s football game between the Denver Broncos and New England Patriots on ABC beat Monday night’s baseball game on Fox, 13.5 to 9.8.

“When you see direct competition in which an NFL playoff game goes against a major league baseball game, then there’s no doubt about what America wants to watch,” ABC spokesman Mark Mandel said.

Fox was satisfied with its baseball rating. The 9.8 is higher than the 8.2 average for Fox’s four playoff-baseball telecasts this year so far and the 8.2 average is higher than the 7.0 average for two playoff-baseball telecasts off- games on Fox this year ago.

So Fox already has higher than the 7.4 Fox has been averaging for its regular Monday night program.

“The audience was fragmented, but a combined rating for the two games was high enough to draw well for both sports and network television,” Fox’s Foxwoods Holdings, adding that “the conflict was unavoidable.”

“I can’t blame baseball,” he said.

“‘To give the first pitch back to the crowd, we can’t do the same thing,” he said. “Monday Night Football’”

“We would have performed if not going up against ‘Monday Night Football’”

But it turned out to be a great night of sports viewing, and again shows what a great television audience we have. I’m sure most viewers went back and forth between the two games.

Although the NFL doesn’t like to admit it, one reason for football’s increased popularity and past couple of decades is that many baseball fans can’t get over their football team being an office pool, in a Las Vegas sports book or with a pay-per-view.

Dennis Dahl, the director of sports betting at the MGM Grand, said about three times as much money was bet on the football game Monday night as on the baseball game.

I think there are two reasons for that,” Dahl said. “One is, everyone understands what sports spread is. The money line is confusing to the general public.

The other thing is, football is made for television and has so much more action than baseball.”

Roben Walker, the Mirage’s sports-book director, said about five times more was bet on the football game at his establishment.

There are some mitigating factors, such as the football game was posted all week, although in the past couple of years some money has come in on a day a game,” he said. “Also, the limit of football games is higher than baseball games.”

The Mirage’s posted limit for football futures is $2,000,000 for baseball, $10,000 for football. Know high rollers are given a higher limit in both sports, but still not the same, he said.

“Another thing about football is there are so many sides bet on,” he said. “The football market is so much more fluid than the baseball market, in terms of money, future score, etc.,” Dahl said. “It’s tailor-made for gambling.”

Golden State signs four

The Golden State Warriors signed a quartet of players they already had in training camp Monday, reaching deals with forwards Antonio Lang and Larry Stewart and guards Dell Demps and Jason Burton.

Lang spent last season with Cleveland, where he averaged just 2.7 points and a pair of rebounds in 64 games. The 6-foot-5 forward had seen limited action with Cleveland and Phoenix the previous two years after having been on a pair of national team duels with Dugal in 1991 and 1992.

Stewart was with Seattle last year, averaging 4.3 points and 2.4 rebounds for the SuperSonics after having spent the previous season in Spain. Before heading to Europe, the 6-foot-6 forward spent four years with the Washington Bullets.

Demps has spent more time in the NBA than the NBA since turning pro in 1992, with brief stints for Golden State and San Antonio.

Burton is trying to make the NBA after two years of working in the Australian Basketball League. In his 24 games "Down Under" last year, the 6-foot-5 guard averaged 20.3 points, 5.6 rebounds, 5.5 assists and three steals.

Yankees' Fielder may be headed back to Japan

New York Yankees designated hitter Bucky Fielder, who was released from the 15-day disabled list on Monday, is already headed back to Japan.

The Yankees' All-Star outfielder was released by Japan's Hanshin Tigers on Aug. 31. It was announced Wednesday that Fielder, who played in Japan in 1989, had his representatives contact Japanese teams after hearing the Yankees did not have him in their plans for next season.

Fielder hit .260 with 13 homers and 60 RBIs in only 98 games for the Yankees this season, as he missed two months with a thumb injury. He went 1-for-8 and added an RBI in the Yankees' American League Division Series with the Indians, which Cleveland won in five games Monday.

The 34-year-old has hit better than .250 with 302 home runs and 940 RBIs in his 12 seasons with the Blue Jays, Tigers and Yankees.

Back injury ends Notre Dame lineman's career

The collegiate career of University of Notre Dame offensive tackle Chris Clevenger has come to an end because of a herniated disc in his back.

The fifth-year senior has been sidelined since the team's second game of the season against Purdue University when he left the game through the opening half with back spasms. Before he was hurt, Clevenger started 14 straight games and 28 of the last 29.

The SIUC men's rugby team lost to the University of Illinois 35-5 Saturday in Champaign. Club president Marc Bechler said the team near really got into the game.

"We didn't have all of our starters," Bechler said. "They shut us down, and we never got it together."

U of I took control of the early game and never let SIUC's offense get the team back into the game. Bechler said the U of I dominated the packs and was able to shut down most of SIUC's plays.

The men's rugby team will play Saturday at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

Men's soccer improves to 7-1 after weekend victories

The SIUC men's soccer club played its successful doubleheader at home against Austin Peay State University and Washburn Valley Saturday.

Against Austin Peay, the club scored three unanswered goals in a 3-0 victory.

The scoring was even more one-sided in the defeat of Washburn Valley, as SIUC won the game 7-1.

Club president Adam Kaiser said he was pleased with the effort his team is showing in the games so far.

The only loss has come in the Sept. 28 Salukis Invitational at Butler Field. The team lost to the University of Illinois 2-1 in a game SIUC could have won, had there been more substitutions available.

VICTORY: Salukis eager for win after second-place, and two fourth-place finishes.

CAREY CRICK DAILY EDITION RENNSWIT

Saluki women's cross country coach Don DeNoon needs his veteran runners to step up if SIUC is to have a chance of winning Saturday's meet at Washington University.

The women will try to improve on Saturday's fourth-place finish at the Saluki Invitational by attempting to knock off Washington University and the University of Southern Indiana, who beat the Salukis last weekend.

The SIUC men's cross country team is idle this weekend.

"We didn't have all of our starters," DeNoon said. "They shut us down, and we never got it together."

The Salukis have had one consistent runner, Jenny Monacco. She has had a variety of No. 2 and 3 runners. The team has seen four different runners at those spots in the past four meets this season.

"We need (Leah) Steele, (Robin) Larsen, this year, but are still working on getting everyone back together," DeNoon said. "We also need to have a few more runners in the pack, and we're going to have to be competitive and competitive, but I feel if it will be another third- or fourth-place finish."

DeNoon said the large number of teams, including Washington University and Southern Indiana, should make it a difficult race. About 20 teams are expected to compete.

"It will be a good, competitive meet, but every meet has been competitive for us this year," DeNoon said.

The team has been in striking distance in every meet, but has not come through with a first-place finish.

"The Salukis have a second-place finish and two fourth-place finishes this year, but are still waiting for a title."

Harrington said the team is more prepared for the next year than it was last year.

"We've had good results this year," Harrington said. "We've been good and have been taking it easy. A lot of runners were stressed out last week with finals, but this weekend we will be ready."

DeNoon said the team is not expecting a title this year, but has improved in its meets.

"I'm working on getting everyone back in the groove and becoming more consistent in their races," DeNoon said.
