Reagan veto of funding bill is overriden

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled House dealt a traveling President Reagan his first major reversal on an economic issue Thursday, voting 301-117 to override his veto of a $14.2-billion money bill he called a "budget-buster."

The margin was 22 votes more than the two-thirds needed to overturn the veto. That sent the bill to the Republican-dominated Senate, where a similar two-thirds vote is needed to enact the bill over Reagan's objection.

GOP Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said the Senate vote would be held Friday, and he viewed the outcome as "uncertain." Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is already on record against the veto.

It was only the second time in nearly two years the House has voted to overturn one of Reagan's vetoes, and the first such action on a major spending bill. The vote came as the president was flying from Topeka, Kan., to Utah on the first trip of his fall political offensive.

"The big spenders won," Reagan told reporters as he stepped from Air Force One in Ogden. The president said he hoped to win the vote Friday in the Senate.

Later, the president noted that money for his own Caribbean Basin initiative was in the bill and said, "I dream of the day when Washington gets smart enough to give the president a line-item veto."

Gus Bode

Gus says the House apparently learned from Mr. Begin how to say no to Mr. Reagan.

Asked if he would be willing to compromise on a new money bill, Reagan said now was not the time to discuss compromise. But he noted that he had offered to except spending for jobs for the elderly program, saying, "This one slipped by me" and was something he favored.

Asked about the Senate vote Friday, he said, "I'm hopeful with regard to the Senate tomorrow. However, I'm going to keep on doing what I said I would do, to veto anytime there is an attempt to bust the budget. I promised to curb spending and maintain the national defense and I'm going to keep my promises."

Just moments before the tally, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., appealed to Republicans who originally supported the bill to "stay with your conscience."

"Let's get America moving again. And let's not leave these elderly, the handicapped and the disadvantaged behind," said O'Neill, who took the unusual step of casting a vote. As speaker, O'Neill normally votes only in event of a tie.

In all, the measure was about $1.9 billion below the amount originally requested by the president, even though he rejected it as too costly.

But by administration figures, it contained $918 million more in domestic spending than the president wanted for programs such as community service jobs for senior citizens, mass transit, highways, student financial assistance and aid to education. It also cut $2.1 billion from Reagan's defense request, although Congress indicated it would approve that money next year.

Since the bill was actually under Reagan's overall request, House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill. said the president lost support because lawmakers did not believe it was a budget-buster.

good shape." Norwood said that the IBHE adopted Tuesday, as a general policy, a position suggesting that the state should be more stringent about the allocation of funds for the recruitment of members of minorities to schools that have not shown improvement in that area next year.

"It's time for schools to either put up or shut up," he said. "Fortunately, the SIU School of Medicine is represented quite well in terms of minorities."

The minority enrollment in SIU-C's program is 8 percent, compared to 3 percent at the Board approves budget request for 9.5 percent salary hike

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw told the Board of Trustees Thursday the SIU System received more state funds for fiscal 1983 but that the state appropriation makes up a smaller percentage of the operating budget than in previous years.

The trustees approved a budget for fiscal 1983, which began July 1, of $246.1 million — $162.3 million from state appropriations and $83.8 million in income funds.

The board also approved a fiscal 1984 operations budget request of $178.5 million from the state, including a 9.5 percent increase in faculty and staff pay, and a capital projects request of $7.3 million which includes $2.5 million to expand the Medical School campus in Springfield.

Shaw pointed out that even though state funds for fiscal '83 increased $3.6 million over 1982, only 51 percent of the 1983 budget came from the state, compared with 57.7 percent in 1979.

He told the board that an increasingly larger share of future budgets will have to come from self-generated income — tuition, grants, contracts and auxiliary services. The system budget for fiscal '83 contains $181.7 million for SIU-C, including $114.8 million in state funds, up less than 1 percent; $63.4 million for the Edwardsville campus, including $46.5 million from the state, down 1 percent, and $988,100, also down about 1 percent, for the Chancellor's Office.

Athletics delays fundraiser hiring

By Ginny Lee
Staff Writer

The Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee has voted to postpone consideration of the appointment of an athletic fundraiser until sometime early in the spring semester.

After lengthy discussion of the issue, Sheila Bruten, committee member representing the Faculty Senate, made a motion to table the discussion and Lew Hartzog, men's athletics director, said he would be able to tell the committee by then whether he feels the need for a special fundraiser to be hired.

The committee had been considering hiring a fundraiser, to be paid through the SIU Foundation, who would plan and coordinate fund-raising activities for athletics.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, stressed that the idea behind hiring a fundraiser is to generate enough additional funds to pay for the position in addition to increasing the amount of contributions made to athletics.

But, he said, recent improvements in fund-raising efforts put to question the need for a fundraiser. "We've made marked improvements on it," Swinburne said, "so maybe we don't need the position."

Hartzog said that if the department's current fund-raising efforts do not produce good results by April, then a fundraiser might be needed.

"My feeling is simply to let us go and try for a while, and if we haven't done well, then we'll go back and see about a fundraiser," he said.

Med school's minority figure praised

SIU-C's School of Medicine is in a very good position in terms of minority enrollment. William Norwood, chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees, said Thursday.

Minority enrollment is a statewide issue which the Illinois Board of Higher Education expressed concern about at its meeting this week.

"SIU-C's School of Medicine leads the state in minority enrollment and also in rural enrollment," Norwood, an IBHE member, said. "We're in with a suggestion for the search procedure.

The trustees also approved the abolition of the master of arts degree program in public visual communications, which had been jointly administered by the Departments of Radio and Television and Cinema and Photography.

Students currently enrolled in the visual communications program can either complete that degree or transfer to a new master of fine arts degree program in Cinema and Photography.

University of Illinois, Norwood said at a press conference after the trustees meeting.

The goals set by state universities, he said, should be met or other universities should have the chance to meet those goals.

The Board of Trustees also opened discussion about procedures for executive officer searches. Norwood said that the board would again discuss the matter at the October meeting in Edwardsville.

Herbert Donow, president of the SIU-C Faculty Senate, said that the senate feels that the search process should be made less costly, primarily by narrowing the geographical scope of searches and reducing the number of people involved.

Donow also suggested that searches be conducted with input from faculty and staff, since the relationship between executive officers and the faculty and staff is an important factor in the success of the officers at the University.

Norwood asked board members to submit suggested procedure models at the November meeting. In December, he said, that with the help of Vice Chairman A.D. Van Meter, he would come up with a suggestion for the search procedure.

The trustees also approved the abolition of the master of arts degree program in public visual communications, which had been jointly administered by the Departments of Radio and Television and Cinema and Photography.

Students currently enrolled in the visual communications program can either complete that degree or transfer to a new master of fine arts degree program in Cinema and Photography.

Jackson County Sheriff's Dept. charged with discrimination

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

Two former prisoners of the Jackson County Jail testified Thursday that they heard a deputy sheriff make derogatory comments about a former black jailer who has charged the sheriff's department with racial discrimination.

The prisoners' testimony was part of evidence submitted in a hearing before the Illinois Human Rights Commission on the charge of discrimination filed by Brady Buckley.

Buckley filed the grievance after he was fired by Sheriff Don White. Another former jailer, Chester Nevlett, who is black, also filed a grievance that is pending with the Human Rights Commission.

John Huffman, representing Buckley, brought former prisoners and employees as witnesses into the hearing in the Lesar Law Building. He attempted to build a case showing that black employees and prisoners are mistreated by white employees of the department.

Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons objected to testimony concerning discrimination against black prisoners. Clemons said the matter was irrelevant and not pertinent to the charges brought by Buckley.

White testified Wednesday that Buckley was let go because of complaints by deputies that the jailer was incompetent.

Huffman tried to convince the court that the complaints made against Buckley were racially motivated. Witnesses told of preferential treatment given white prisoners.

The two former prisoners testified that they heard Chief Deputy Woodrow Procnier call Buckley "boy."

David Cooper, 21, one of the former prisoners, also said he saw five white prisoners agree to sign a petition to have Buckley fired. Cooper said he refused to sign it.

Huffman submitted exhibits of cartoons that he said were a slur against Buckley and blacks and that been posted in the jail. Clemons described the cartoons as "cop humor," not racial slurs. Clemons said cartoons concerning all employees, including White, had been posted.

Richard Hayes, president of the Carbondale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Elbert Simon, former president, testified that they were concerned about the lack of black employees in the sheriff's department.

Nevlett was let go after he failed an examination required by the department. He had been hired by White but was forced to take the exam after the department went to a merit system.

Nevlett told the court he had been told of a second exam after failing a first test. But he said he had not been told that he needed to register for it and was not allowed to take it a second time.

Hayes told the court that the department is in violation of state and federal laws by not having an affirmative action program.

Sparta strike idles 2,100 students

(AP) — Even as 7,500 students and some 400 striking teachers in two suburban Chicago school districts returned to classes following tentative contract agreements Thursday, a new strike in downstate Sparta idled another 2,100 students.

Those actions left five school districts in Illinois still affected by job actions, with some 43,700 students and 2,630 teachers out of the classrooms.

Dave Sneddon, field representative for the Illinois Education Association, said Thursday that the 129 teachers at seven schools in Sparta District 140 voted "overwhelmingly" to strike.

Eight days earlier, Denver Mayor William McNichols gave a bubbly send-off to the "City of Denver," supposedly the second of two 767s put into service this week by United. They were the same plane.

Israel rejects new Arab peace plan

By The Associated Press

Israel rejected the new all-Arab plan for a Middle East settlement Thursday and sent its warplanes against Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon for the second straight day, reporting four more batteries demolished.

Lebanese radio said Israeli jets also struck Syrian armor positions in Lebanon, further heightening the threat of a showdown between the tens of thousands of Israeli and Syrian troops remaining in that war-battered land.

Sources at the Arab summit conference in Fez, Morocco, said the Arab leaders approved Syrian President Hafez Assad's request to cancel the six-year-old Arab League mandate for his Syrian "peacekeeping force" in Lebanon, enabling him to withdraw the troops. But Israel questioned Assad's sincerity.

"I think this (Syrian readiness to leave Lebanon) is lip service and there is no reality in it," Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan told Israeli army radio.

increase of 3 percent, to be effective Jan. 1, but no increase for general costs and only 70 percent of the amount sought for utility cost increases.

"Fiscal year 1983 is an extremely lean year," Shaw said. "We are, in effect, with approximately the same number of students, being asked to do a better job with what is really less money, if one takes into account any inflation. But we'll do that job," said Shaw.

The operating budget request for fiscal '84 represents a 13 percent increase, about $20.5 million, over '83 and would provide $103 million in state funds for SIU-C. $46.6 million for SIU-E, $23.5 million for the Medical School, $4.3 million for the SIU-E dental school and $1 million for the Chancellor's Office.

In addition to the $7.3 million list of capital projects, the board approved $1.8 million in energy conservation projects on the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses and a $2.4 million request for SIU-C's food-production research program.

Paul Matalonis, president of the Graduate Student Council, asked Shaw what the predictions for tuition increases for fiscal 1984 might be.

Shaw said no tuition increase was projected.

said he did not think that adding this position would be good policy, when at the same time the athletics department has not filled the position of an athletics academic adviser, which was vacated last semester.

"I have a serious question about adding this position and taking away an academic counselor," he said. "It may be a zero change in the budget, but it also may be a zero grade point."

Hartzog said that with the help of Linn Long, physical education instructor who will be taking over the functions of an advisor, and the athletic coaches, he feels comfortable with the program.

"I feel very comfortable that we will be doing a very good job for our athletes," Hartzog said. "Until I see some sort of deterioration in the program, I don't feel concerned about letting Linn and the coaches do it."

The committee also heard a report from Mary Helen Gasser, University affirmative action officer, on the status the Title IX review, to be conducted by the Office of Civil Rights.

A four member team from the regional office will be on campus beginning the week of Sept. 27, she said. The group, which will investigate Title IX compliance of SIU-C men's and women's athletics, will be on campus for up to a week.

Gasser said that of 50 universities across the country that have had Title IX complaints, none have had action taken against them as long as they have taken appropriate action to correct problems.

"I think we're in much better shape with Davies Gym being open now," she said. Disparity in the amount of funding for recruiting and scholarships between men's and women's athletics may present some problems, she said.

"But I think we already have a plan to improve it," she added.

Didn't register? Unequal punishment is what you're facing

Two recent court cases point out the problems with attempts to prosecute those who for one reason or another, decide not to register with the Selective Service System.

The two young men chosen to be examples unto all who refuse to register face unequal punishment due mainly to the locations of their trials.

One was from the east coast and one from the west. Both were convicted.

This is where the unfairness of their situations comes in. The sentences they received are as different as night and day. The young man from the east coast was put on probation and sent home to become something of a local hero who beat the system.

The young man from the west coast was sent to prison immediately pending his sentencing hearing on Oct. 4. He faces a possible $10,000 fine or a five-year prison term.

The moral of this seems to be: If you going to dodge registration (not dodge the draft, for there is none), do it in a federal court district where the judge doesn't think your decision is akin to high treason.

Letters

If they can't play right, take cop's toys away

"Hogan refused to comment on the complaint or the circumstances surrounding it and Fry could not be reached for comment."

Many times we have heard that line or one similar to it. This time it comes from the story by Jennifer Phillips in the Sept. 1 issue of the DE concerning a macing incident last May 15. Why won't Chief Hogan or City Manager Fry comment on the police department's internal investigation stemming from this incident? Might they be embarrassed by the findings? I think so.

There was a large crowd on the strip that night celebrating the end of another semester. It seemed a simple enough matter for the police: Let these people blow off some steam and they will get tired and go home. The actions of Sgt. Knapp quickly changed the mood of that scene. The indiscriminate use of mace was not the only thing to stir anger amongst the crowd.

A young man was sprawled face-down on the trunk of a squad car with his right arm bent behind him in what is commonly called a hammer lock. The officer applying this hold was not doing so in a restraining manner. The young man's hand was nearly above his head and he was obviously in a tremendous amount of pain.

A man who is a staff member of the Student Center (not a drunken trouble maker from the crowd), came forward in a rational way to express his displeasure with the treatment of this young man. The staffer was immediately confronted by a man in plain clothes who had been standing with the police. Within seconds, the staffer was pushed back by the man in a way I'm sure Rey Dempsey would like from his offensive lineman.

Even after this assault the staffer showed model composure while the other man shouted obscenities and behaved in a threatening manner.

Since this man was not wearing a uniform or badge it seems he should have been arrested for striking the staffer. But, if he was a police officer, does that mean the department endorsed his actions? I do not see a difference. He was in the wrong.

That was not an isolated incident. With a few of those police it is an ongoing process. I was nearly hit by mace in a Halloween crowd in 1980. Some partiers were taunting a police officer who suddenly pulled his mace and began to spray the crowd. Granted, the police have to put up with much aggravation, but he was not threatened. He behaved as a child being teased who lashes out at his playmates.

Well, if they can't play right, they should have their "toys" taken away.

It seems there should be a redefinition within the Carbondale police department on the difference between crowd control and mob control, as the ineffectiveness of the former has more than produced the need for the latter. Many times the presence of a uniform is enough. There is a high rate of overreacting and a "mightier than thou" attitude among some of Carbondale's finest. As we must obey the law, so should they in the respect that there is certainly a conduct code for the department, and it should begin to be enforced.

Other than nearly being jilt by a Carbondale squad car while walking on the sidewalk, I have not had any other trouble with the police. The purpose of this letter has not been to defame the department, but to encourage awareness and activism.

If anyone is a witness to an instance of overreaction, undue pressure or simply rudeness, write a letter. Let people in authoritative positions know how you feel. Stand up and be counted. After all, we deserve the respect the police department expects. — David Wherry, Senior, Electronic Data Processing.

Graduation is just one last trip over the bureaucratic hurdles

By Mike Nadolski
News Editor

I knew it was futile when I started, but even after four years of tripping over SIU-C's bureaucratic hurdles, I kept running around the track.

The end was in sight. Final registration was completed, last Bursar's bills were paid, last loans secured. I approached the last lone hurdle — applying for graduation.

I tensed. I stretched. I ran full speed. I made it to Woody Hall in time to apply for December graduation. I filled out the forms, chose the traditional style diploma, paid $10 at the Bursar's Office and returned the completed application. "Home stretch!" I thought. But then I looked ahead and saw all kinds of red tape monsters (they look like artists) running onto the track — laughing.

"No December graduation ceremony," one monster laughed.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! And no diploma until May!" another one roared.

"Come back for the May ceremony. Interrupt your life. Maybe use up some of your vacation time in Carbondale!" a chorus of them chirped with glee.

"Too bad you're not a foreign student. You could travel over land and sea to make it back in May!" one hollered hysterically.

And then they were gone, off to track side to work on the diplomas of August graduates.

I felt kind of down-in-the-mouth and a little out of breath. It seemed kind of frustrating and anticlimactic to run around for so long over so many hurdles and then not be able to have a finish line or a victory circle.

A year ago I would have run to where the red tape monsters were and tried to stomp on their fat little heads. But now I just break into a slow jog and set my eyes on a finish line that will mean more than anything red tape monsters can make.

SEE TO WHAT LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A. EDITOR B. LITTER C. YOU

Don't let the doors of your future be locked on you; express yourself

On April 28, 1982, students at SIU-C enthusiastically participated in the National Letter Writing Day. The purpose of this day was to provide our legislators with an idea of how students felt about the proposed federal cutbacks in educational assistance. In total, 1,300 letters were written by SIU-C students, with the majority of letters being addressed to President Reagan and Sen. Charles Percy.

So here we are in the beginning weeks of a new semester and what is happening? Well, not only has Reagan vetoed a $14.2 billion supplemental spending bill that would have provided additional funds for student loan programs, but the services at Morris Library are being curtailed. When an institution of higher education begins to literally close the doors of higher learning, someone's priorities are certainly misaligned.

If you have similar sentiments, begin by contacting either your USO or GSC representatives and express your thoughts on the reduction of services at Morris Library. It is my understanding that SIU-C President Albert Somit will attend the GSC meeting on Sept. 15. That seems like an ideal time to initiate cooperative actions by the school administration and the student body to reinstate normal services at Morris Library.

A higher level of education is a necessity for the world community to cope with the complexities of our day. With funds being reduced or eliminated in the educational assistance area, it is becoming increasingly difficult for many in our nation to achieve that higher level of education. Those of us fortunate enough to be attending college this fall have discovered that the school has to operate on such a limited budget that teachers are not fairly compensated and student needs cannot be met.

The key to maintaining a peaceful world is a higher level of education for our population. Please don't let the doors of your future be locked on you. — Carl Kosierowski, First Year, Law.

Balloon fest: up, up and away

They didn't have the Fifth Dimension on hand to sing "Up, Up and Away," but that was about all that was missing from the hot air balloon festival, held recently at the Mount Vernon Airport.

Twenty-six balloonists from Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and Indiana entertained spectators with races and proficiency events.

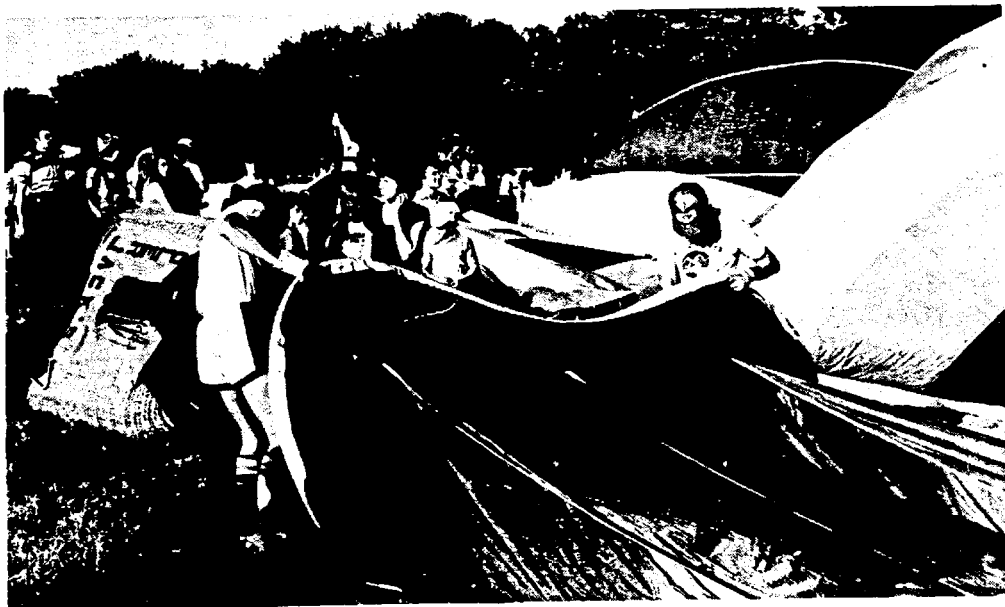

Obbie Atkinson and Crile Doscher organized the festival. The first was last year, sponsored by Mount Vernon merchants. A third festival is planned for next year.

Balloonists competed at 6:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. — times selected because of favorable temperature and wind conditions — in "hare and hound" races and convergence navigation tests.

The races featured one balloon taking off early and being chased by other balloonists. All tried to land as close to the designated "hare" balloon as possible. In the navigation tests, balloonists approached a designated spot and tried to drop a bag of sand on target.

Bob Esh of Edwardsville was the winner of the combined events.

Women's Studies hold open house

By Cynthia Rector
Staff Writer

Women's Studies, home of the "neglected half of the study of men" will hold an open house from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday.

wasn't until the last generation that we've had any number of women in major academic positions."

Traditionally, everything has been taught from a male's point of view, "men teaching about men," she said.

"I grew up in a male dominated discipline. Until two years ago, I never had a woman colleague," said Eames, professor of philosophy. "But then women have always been the minority in any discipline."

One focus of the program is upgrading individual classes by adding material to show women's perspectives.

Eames said Women's Studies is applying for a grant to aid in research and the upgrading of classes.

Eames said if the women's perspective were to become integrated in all disciplines,

"then women's studies would have performed its function and could be done away with."

The Women's Studies Department releases a monthly newsletter, which announces various faculty activities, information about the program, a calendar of events and other activities which relate specifically to women.

The Women's Studies House, at 804 Chautauqua, hosts various meeting and activities for women, and offers a library supplied with feminist literature and magazines.

The open house Friday should be a relaxed, social setting, with food and conversation, said Eames.

Men are also welcome, said Eames. They take part in the program, so why not in the open house, she said.

Fewer cancellations cause crowded dorms

By Art Herron
Staff Writer

University housing officials are reducing overcrowding in dorms, but 83 students were still in temporary housing Thursday.

The 83 were housed in Park Towers, University Park or Thompson Point.

During the first week of the semester there were 196 students in temporary housing.

According to Sam Rinella, director of university housing, the number of people in temporary housing is a little higher this year than most, but it's not unusual.

"We had hoped to have the situation cleared up by the end of the third week of school," Rinella said. "If the no-show ratio had been at 50 percent or 60 percent there would have been no problem."

Cancellation of contracts plays a big factor in assigning rooms. There were fewer cancellations this year than anticipated. Rinella said that last year a situation occurred they never encountered before. There were 85 cancellations the week before school started, the most the housing office ever had at once. There were also 80 no-shows last year.

This year, all of the 495 cancellations were prior to the middle of July. This number was abnormally high. Rinella said that they were still anticipating cancellations the week before school, but the number was very small with a total of about 20 no-shows.

For those in temporary housing there is compensation for inconvenience. They will be credited $6 a week on housing contracts. This will continue until all the dorms are down to at least three people per room.

Rinella said that his office has made arrangements with campus fraternities and sororities to give students housing if they wished to pledge.

"We've already moved 40 people from university housing," Rinella said. "We've also encouraged fraternities and sororities to hold rushes. If people wanted to cancel their contracts, I'd give them room and board until the day they checked out with no penalties added. I'd also allow men to live in fraternities until spaces in the dorms opened up."

Last year, spaces in the dorms were tight according to Rinella. But by the second week they were below maximum capacity in the dorms with 99.8 percent of the spaces filled.

The dorms were at a full 100 percent capacity this year, and at times above that.

Rinella stressed that there still is a demand for space. He said they still have people wanting to move in on campus. There is really no way to avoid the temporary housing situation.

"We just have to go by past experience," Rinella said. "We try to keep capacity at 100 percent and sometimes over so we can fill the fraternities. To help the whole situation you've got to have some overassignees."

Alumni group seeks new members

The SIU-C Alumni Association is looking for students interested in getting involved and meeting new people.

Each year the association seeks out students from all academic majors and geographic locations to join the Student Alumni Board. The SAB assists the Alumni Association in many events such as the annual Watermelon Fest, the Student Birthday Cake Service and the New Student Record, which is a photographic essay on freshmen and transfer students, campus tours for alumni and alumni registration at homecoming.

"It is an excellent opportunity for students to get involved with the many SIU-C programs and be exposed to the possibility of meeting some of our 85,000 alumni from all walks of life," said Robert Odaniell, executive director of the SIU-C Alumni Association.

In addition, SAB members have chances to learn about different avenues of their proposed professional fields from the alumni who come to visit the University, he said.

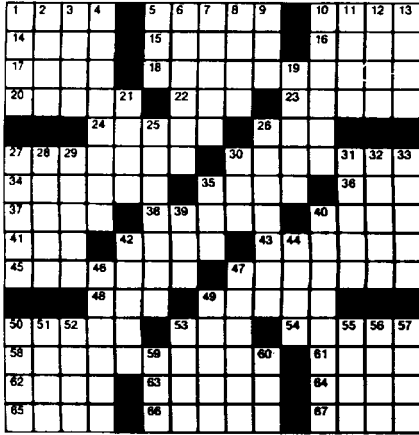

Interested students may pick up SAB applications at the SIU-C Alumni office on the second floor of the Student Center. Persons who fill out the applications will be notified at a later date concerning an orientation meeting.

Recycling group looking to expand paper collection

By Stace England
Student Writer

Re-Use News, a non-profit campus organization, hopes to expand its newspaper recycling program this fall.

Chris Hart, manager of Re-Use News, says he plans to target new publicity efforts toward SIUC students. According to Hart, only about one-sixteenth of the Daily Egyptians distributed around campus are being turned in for recycling. "We would like to increase that number to at least half," Hart said.

Maroon collection bins for used newsprint are located at the Communications Building, Lentz Hall, under the Route 51 overpass, Trueblood Hall and at the south end of the Student Center. Hart says plans are in the works to build several more bins in the immediate future.

Recycled newsprint collected by Re-Use News is used to make blown insulation for homes and offices.

A major goal of the program is to increase awareness of the value of newsprint recycling. "Recycling newsprint is a very simple and inexpensive process that can save millions of trees every year," says Hart. "It is foolish to throw away tons of newsprint every day around campus, when we have the facilities and manpower to recycle it."

Plans for an aluminum recycling program are being formulated for possible implementation in the spring.

Ballet company visits Carbondale during state tour

The Southern Illinois debut of the Chicago City Ballet will be at Shryock Auditorium Sept. 17 and 18 at 8 p.m.

Friday's program will consist of "Raymonda Pas de Dix," "Sylvia Pas de Deux," "Jeux" and "Who Cares?." Saturday will feature "Serenade in A," "Sylvia Pas de Deux," "Romeo and "Who Cares?." Saturday

The company became the official city ballet in December 1979, with Maria Tallchief serving as its artistic director. Tallchief was the nation's first prima ballerina, having studied with Nijinsky and Balanchine.

The Carbondale appearances are part of the company's state tour, which is being sponsored by the Illinois Special Events Commission.

Tickets for both performances are $5 for adults and $2.50 for students and senior citizens. The box office is open weekdays from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Adult education bill could expand program potential

By Anita Jackson
Staff Writer

This country cannot afford to become a nation of illiterates and those who lack the basic skills needed to survive in society should have the opportunity to participate in adult education programs, according to Bill Reynolds, an Illinois State Board of Education official.

Reynolds attended a Friends of Adult Education meeting Wednesday in the Student Center to explain new adult education legislation in Illinois for high school districts and community colleges.

Reynolds said the new legislation, passed by the General Assembly but pending approval by Gov. James Thompson, will give area planning councils throughout the state the chance to make recommendations about adult education programs.

Reynolds said the state board has been pushing the legislation for a long time. He said he thinks this bill is an honest compromise that can be adjusted along the way.

The board has received support for the legislation from state officials such as state Sen. Kenneth Buzbee, D-58th District, Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-58th District, state Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-58th District and state Rep. Wayne Alstaf, R-58th District, Reynolds said.

In a letter to the Friends of Adult Education, Sen. Buzbee said he voted for $2.3 million in increased state appropriations for adult education.

Buzbee also said the legislation should establish greater cooperation between adult education programs and provide the data necessary for the state to obtain a greater understanding of how the programs are working and what they are accomplishing.

Reynolds also voiced his concern over the decrease in the reading and math scores of high school students. He said the board is trying to help young people realize that education is the only way to get ahead.

"We're going to have to teach them how to survive in our society," he said.

Young people can become a problem to society when they graduate from high school without learning the basic skills needed to function in daily life. Many of them start hanging out on the streets while others eventually end up in prison, Reynolds said.

Reynolds said he would rather spend money educating young people rather than paying to keep them in jail.

Reynolds said there are 3.5 million people in Illinois with less than a high school education. He said adult education programs should help these and others get a high school education or enough skills to work successfully.

SIU System student leaders to retreat to Touch of Nature

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

Student senators from both SIU-C and SIU-Edwardsville will attempt to establish a close working relationship this weekend during the first-ever joint retreat.

The retreat will be at Touch of Nature and will start at 9 a.m. Saturday and end at about 11 a.m. Sunday, Levenhagen said.

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw will speak about the role of student government in University decision-making process at 5:30 p.m. Saturday, according to Fritz Levenhagen, vice president of the Undergraduate Student Organization.

The retreat is aimed at coordinating efforts between SIU-C and SIU-E to enable both campuses to better serve the students enrolled in the SIU system, he said.

"We believe that this type of coordinating effort can best be facilitated at a joint retreat where the senators can communicate and interact with one another," Levenhagen said.

A total of 59 students, 15 from SIU-E and 44 from SIU-C, are expected to attend, he said.

Levenhagen said the retreat is also aimed at enhancing the USO's efficiency and effectiveness.

"It is necessary that the senators be given an orientation, informing them about their duties along with the procedural guidelines of the USO," he said.

Shaw said the retreat is an "excellent idea."

"I think the retreat is a good example of an orientation process," he said. "It's very good that students from both campuses have a chance to get together."

The USO will allocate about $822 for the retreat, and SIU-E's student government will allocate about $465. Most of the money will be used for lodging and transportation, Levenhagen said.

Activities include discussions on parliamentary procedures, USO policies and guidelines, the role of the Board of Trustees and plans for the upcoming year, he said.

Both student governments will conduct separate discussions about policies, goals and objectives.

Senators also will undergo a parliamentary procedure simulation on Robert's Rules and samples of legislation.

"Robert's Rules are the rules contained in a book written by Gen. Robert for conducting an official meeting," Levenhagen said. "The book serves as a guideline for senators to know about the procedures of an official meeting."

Elderly outreach program to hold ice cream social

By Jeff Todd
Student Writer

SIU-C's Elderwell Adult Day Care Program will hold an ice cream social Saturday, Sept. 11, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Sandusky Community Center, 20 miles north of Cairo. The social is open to the public and will feature free ice cream, music and movies.

Elderwell is a demonstration project providing day care services to the elderly one day each week. The program has been designed exclusively for those people who live too far from Carbondale to commute to senior citizens' activities at the center.

"The idea of this program is to keep the elderly people who live in rural areas out of the nursing homes," said David Thomas, civil service worker for the College of Human Resources. He said 50 elderly people in the surrounding Carbondale area participate in the program.

Elderwell is open to those age 60 or over who may be unable to participate in conventional senior citizens' programs.

Parking division to confiscate bikes

Starting next week, bicycles parked on campus that are not registered or are illegally parked will be confiscated.

To avoid an unpleasant surprise, a missing bike, students who have not registered their bicycles should do so immediately, said Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager.

Bicycles can be registered at the SIU-C Parking Division or Carbondale Police Department for $2.

State arts council to consider budget

The Illinois Arts Council will meet at 8:30 a.m. Friday in the Illinois Room.

The council will hear committee and evaluation reports on existing programs, according to Dorothy Morris, a Carbondale IAC member.

The IAC's financial statement as of July 31, 1982 will be up for approval. The 1983 budget is $3,345,000, Fred Augustine, IAC fiscal officer, said. He said that $2,866,600 came from state funding and $478,400 came from federal funds.

The IAC is financed by Illinois and the National Endowment for the Arts, Morris said.

Exercise for long life, doctor says

By Brenda H. Ingersoll
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — "Use it or lose it" is more than an old saying — it's biological law that applies to the aging of almost all parts of the mind and body, the president-elect of the American Geriatric Society says.

Dr. Walter M. Bortz II surveyed more than 100 studies showing that the deterioration caused by age is strikingly similar to the deterioration that follows inactivity.

And studies show exercise can stop or reverse much of the deterioration — although it cannot prevent aging — Bortz wrote in the Sept. 10 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Bortz, a 52-year-old marathoner, said in a telephone interview that physicians "should be paying more attention to how much of what shows up in their office is due not to disease or age, but to not using ourselves."

"We are doing a disservice to people by putting them to bed," he said. Exercise "is simple, cheap and effective, which you can't say about many things in medicine."

Bortz, an internist at the Palo Alto (Calif.) Medical Clinic, scanned studies on the effects of age and of inactivity on a range of body systems, from the ability to get enough oxygen to muscular and skeletal strength and brain function.

Old people and patients confined to bed for long periods lose some capacity to absorb and use oxygen, Bortz said, adding that exercise can alter the decline.

"At least from a cardiac point of view, and maybe from a muscular-skeletal point of view, an activity program is a 40-year offset (to age)," he said. "An active person of 70 is like an inactive person of 30."

He added, "The most cutting part of it of course is the brain — keeping it active and useful."

Among similarities noted by Bortz was a diminished red blood cell mass shared by Skylab astronauts, old people, and the physically inactive; a loss of lean body mass and an increase in fat in old people and the bedridden; and calcium loss from bones of astronauts, the old and the bedridden.

"In 36 weeks of bed rest, the quantity of ... bone mass that is lost equals that lost by a male during a 10-year aging span," Bortz wrote.

'Street children' is priest's topic

A priest who began a shelter for children in New York City will share his experiences in the presentation "Children of the Streets — Victims of Victimless Crimes."

Father Bruce Ritter is founding director of Covenant House, which provides a shelter for about 12,000 children a year.

According to Jeanne Juliet, campus minister, Covenant House is a shelter for children under 21, most of whom are runaways. About 60 percent of these children are involved in prostitution and pornography.

The lecture will be Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Newman Center and admission is free and open to the public.

Jackson County Courthouse renovation planned by board

By Bob Delaney
Staff Writer

Jackson County will remodel its courthouse in stages.

The county board agreed Wednesday to spend about $255,075 to have plans drawn and to send out for bids on courthouse remodeling.

Hans Fischer of Fischer-Stein Associates told board members the completed work would bring the courthouse into compliance with life safety requirements. The state has ordered the county to meet the code by 1986.

County Board members were as concerned about what won't be done as they were about what they will get for their money.

Fischer said wire codes and handicap access would need to be looked at later.

The courthouse elevator will be replaced. Other features to be included are a manual fire alarm system, fire shutters on the third floor, a boiler room door being rehung, repaired basement stairs and a gate at the top of the stairs in the county clerk's office.

The work would take about 12 weeks, Fischer said.

He told board members he couldn't say whether offices would have to be relocated during the work period. He said it was possible to schedule work at nights, but it would be more expensive.

"The judiciary process would be most concerned," he said. "I would budget some alternate space for the judiciary process."

In other business:

Board members objected to considering matters from the planning committee because the minutes of its meeting were not available. Larry Lipe, committee chairman, said he was unable to put together the minutes because of an accident he had.

Lipe withdrew the committee's nomination of Bill Munson as administrator of the county's subdivision ordinance until board members could see minutes of the planning committee meeting.

The board decided to grant a permit for mining on 34 acres of county land despite objections that board members did not even know the name of the company.

One member of the committee said there would be no mining involved. Board member Gene Chambers said it only involved moving some land around and he didn't see why the board was making such a fuss about such a trivial matter.

Lipe also defended the planning committee's failure to take up the question of zoning saying he didn't think there was enough time left before the November elections for the board to take up the question. He said board member Bob Crim's charges that he was negligent for not taking up a charge given his committee by the board were politically motivated.

Crim told the board it should take up the question of zoning now and if the planning committee has decided it won't take up the matter, it should be turned over to another committee.

Tross Pierson told the board that 98 percent of the people in his district didn't want zoning. He said he didn't know why "the people of Carbondale want to shove it down our throats."

The board decided not to allow bids to be taken on radiotelecommunications equipment for county ambulances until members were given detailed information about an intermediate paramedic program which is involved.

The ambulance committee asked the board to grant permission for the equipment, which Kevin Buenerkemper, director of the ambulance service, said would cost about $35,000.

Board members said they would not make such a commitment for an intermediate paramedic program when the had not even voted on a paramedic program yet.

Liquor law revision goes to Council

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

The Liquor Advisory Board requested Wednesday that the City Council hold a public hearing on a request from Holiday Inn owner Stan Hoyer that the liquor ordinance be amended to allow Sunday morning wine sales.

Under the present ordinance, no liquor may be sold or consumed between 2 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Sundays. Hoyer has asked the council to consider changing the ordinance to allow the sale and consumption of wine with food after 10 a.m. on Sundays.

Hoyer said amending the present liquor ordinance would assist the Holiday Inn in meeting competition from establishments outside the Carbondale township.

The council briefly discussed Hoyer's request at its informal meeting Aug. 23. Mayor Hans Fischer indicated that the council would turn the matter over to the board for additional consideration.

Fischer said he expected strong public reaction to what he termed a "sensitive issue" to many citizens of Carbondale.

Now that the board has made a formal request for a public hearing, it is expected the council will set a hearing date at its formal meeting Monday.

The six board members attending agreed that the board would need more opinions from citizens on the matter before it could recommend action to the council.

Jim Romano, acting board chairman, said he had difficulty accepting Hoyer's reasoning for the change. "I find it difficult to believe that someone would drive 15 miles for a glass of wine," he said, referring to Hoyer's closest competitor.

Romano also said that if Hoyer's request were granted, it could open up another problem. "If we grant this one, then some other guy over here is going to want to serve beer and someone else might ask to serve hard liquor," he said.

Fielders hope to add to win streak

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

Winning streaks have to start somewhere and the members of the women's field hockey team will try to continue theirs as the 1-0 team faces St. Louis at 1 p.m. Sunday at Wham Field.

A seven-game losing streak against St. Louis was broken last season, and Coach Julie Illner hopes to continue that one-game winning streak.

The Salukis played the Lady Billikens twice last year, losing once in Carbondale 3-1 and winning in St. Louis 2-1.

"Losing to St. Louis became psychological," Illner said. "We played a good game the first time but we still came out on the losing end." The match Sunday should be different, according to the coach.

"Now the girls are fired up and ready for them," she said.

The Salukis' line-up will be the same that played against Purdue last week, except that Jeanine Janos may start for Linda Brown, who went home to attend to personal matters. Illner is not sure when Brown will be back.

Barb Smith, who was whacked by a Purdue stick between her shoe and shin pad, has been treating her leg this week.

"It wasn't fractured," Illner said, "but the skin was cut and she has some pain in it. It's going really well now and she will be playing."

The Lady Billikens are 1-1 this season under new coach Kelly O'Connell.

"We started six freshmen this season," said St. Louis Sports Information Director Dick O'Connor. "We lost a lot of girls, but Kelly, who was a high school coach in St. Louis last year, recruited well this year, especially in the area. We have a lot of good, young talent."

A junior varsity game originally scheduled for Sunday was cancelled because St. Louis does not have enough players for two squads.

Salukis eye porous, shabby Redbird line

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Don't talk to Illinois State coach Bob Otoliski about the troubled Saluki offensive line. Otoliski has his own makeshift line to worry about.

The Redbird offensive line allowed nine sacks and staked out only 40 yards rushing in 27-14 loss to Eastern Illinois. Meanwhile, SIU-C had seven interceptions and shut down a Western Illinois ground game, thereby covering for their own offensive problems, and beat the Leathernecks 38-7.

SIU-C will travel to Normal Saturday to play Illinois State at 7:30 in the first Missouri Valley Conference game for both teams.

Illinois State was the only MVC team to average less than 100-yards a game on the ground last year, and looking at last week's effort and the team's inexperienced line, the same thing could happen again. "I think we have three good runners," said Otoliski, "but our problem is to keep the holes open long enough."

Otoliski has pieced together a line that includes two seniors with no starting experience, one freshman and a tight end who was a fullback until this fall.

"They're probably similar to us," he said in comparing his line to Dempsey's struggling crew. "The only difference is that those guys are older new guys."

Dempsey, however insists that he has seen day to day improvement by his blockers and appears confident the Salukis can move the ball, although starting tailback Derrick Taylor is doubtful with an injured shoulder. SIU-C beat ISU 14-3 last year and hasn't lost a game to the Redbirds in the six years Dempsey has been here.

In only his second season at ISU, Otoliski has established a reputation as a flamboyant gambling coach. He's used flea flickers, statue of liberty plays, and bizarre formations, not only to entertain the Redbird fans, but also to cover for his team's lack of talent. ISU finished in the MVC cellar last year.

"They're going put the ball up a lot," said Dempsey, worried about ISU quarterback Steve Moews, who could pick a team apart given some decent protection.

Volleyball team set for tough weekend

By Jackie Rodgers
Associate Sports Editor

The Saluki volleyball team will get a true test of its talent this weekend in the Purple and White Tournament at Northwestern University on Friday and Saturday, and at West Lafayette, Ind., against Purdue on Sunday.

The Salukis will face Illinois-Chicago, formerly the University of Illinois at Chicago

Circle, on Friday night. The Salukis had no problem with UIC last year at the Illinois Collegiate Tournament, defeating them in straight games. Coach Debbie Hunter cautions against an easy victory, however.

"They had a really good recruiting year last year," said Hunter. "I know these kids are untested, but they are supposed to be good."

The Salukis will also face

Northern Illinois in the tournament. Hunter said the Huskies also had a good recruiting year, and have some tall returning players.

The highlight of the tournament will be the SIU-C-Northwestern confrontation. The Salukis have yet to beat the Wildcats under Hunter, although they did beat them during the open season last spring.

The Wildcats have been rated

No. 11 in a preseason volleyball poll. They also have Patty Walsh, an All-American setter who Hunter believes will make the U.S. National team.

"They have the cream of the crop of talent that has stayed in the Midwest," said Hunter, pointing out that the best talent usually heads West to play. "They also have Patty. How Patty goes so the team goes. And Patty always goes very well."

Hunter said the Salukis have not always played their best, or even average, against the Wildcats because of the psychological advantage the Wildcats have. She said that this Saluki squad hopes to reduce that advantage with a victory.

The match with Purdue should be a good one as well. The Boiler-makers were ranked No. 11 last year and have all six starters returning.
