Group provides food to people in emergencies

By Lisa Eisenhauer

A group affiliated with several local churches is offering aid to Carbondale residents and SIUC students who find themselves unable to stretch their food budgets until the end of the month.

The Interfaith Council, which is made up of volunteers from 14 local churches, is operating a food bank to provide nourishment in emergency situations to people who can’t make ends meet.

The food bank, housed in the basement of the University Baptist Church at 700 S. Oakland St., is open from 9 a.m. to noon on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Elise Speck, director of the food bank, said the program was started to help residents who are unable to buy food because of some unforeseen problem, such as after a fire. She said the food bank also serves people whose incomes may be low enough to qualify them for federal assistance.

Speck estimated that since the service began, about one-third of the people who have applied for help have been students.

She said the local churches that make up the Interfaith Council support the program through food and monetary donations. This year many additional food donations have been made by local gardeners who have brought the food bank their surplus crops.

Although requests for assistance have not been overwhelming this summer, Speck said, there have been plenty and they will probably pick up, especially near the holidays.

“Around the holidays there seems to be an increase in the demand for food,” Speck said. “I guess this is probably because it’s a little tougher to get along during those times with higher fuel bills and such.”

Plans for new jail delayed, spokesman says

By John Kruczewski
Staff Writer

An announcement of a location for the new Jackson County Jail has not been made because development of the facility is running behind schedule, said the chairman of the Jackson County Board.

“We are waiting for some information about the problems we might run into,” Eugene Chambers said Monday.

The new location was to have been announced during early September, but Chambers said the announcement has been delayed because of the red tape involved. He described the planned jail’s present stage as a “transitional period” and “limbo,” and said that it is “frustrated” by the project’s progress.

“There’s no way they can do business fast these days,” Chambers said.

The county is waiting for the results of soil tests taken at possible jail sites, and also for the conclusions of a jail audit conducted by the National Institute of Corrections, in Boulder, Colorado. The audit will determine the number of cells needed at the new jail.

Chambers said he expects the board will make “a firm commitment on the new site within two weeks.”

He said the jail “may be on the ground” by its proposed occupation date of November 1985.
Indians and Eskimos flock to shrine for blessing by Pope

STE. ANNE DE BEAUPRE, Quebec (AP) — In headresses and crucifixes, Canada’s Indians and Eskimos led to this revered shrine by the thousands Monday and received the blessing of the pope — and his support in their struggle for greater rights.

The pontiff, who requested meetings with Indians and Eskimos on his Canadian tour, endorsed no political programs. Indian leaders said afterward they were pleased with what they considered a papal endorsement of their cause. Many of the more than 600,000 Indians, Eskimos and mixed-blood Canadians have for generations been locked in disputes with the white majority over claims to land and resources.

Thatcher accepts resignation of Irish leader

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Monday accepted the resignation of Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior and appointed a deputy minister in the Home Office to replace him. Prior is leaving the Cabinet to work for private industry. Thatcher named Douglas Hurd to take his place as secretary for the troubled British province. Hurd will be joined by two other new faces in the Cabinet.

Schools closed as hurricane lashes coast

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Generating 80 mph winds and gaining strength, Hurricane Diana crept threateningly northeastward along the Atlantic Coast on Monday as officials evacuated low-lying areas and complained that some people refused to leave.

School was canceled in South Carolina and Georgia, beaches were closed from Florida to North Carolina, rescue boats were lowered inland and military planes were flown to safer bases.

The hurricane was about 120 miles southeast of Savannah, drifting very slowly to the northeast, the National Weather Service said.

GM gives union workers job security proposal

DETROIT (AP) General Motors Corp., hoping to avert a weekend strike, gave the United Auto Workers union Monday what it called a costly and “far-reaching” job security proposal that would protect a large number of jobs. The UAW and GM are working against a Friday midnight deadline, when their present contract expires and a walkout by 350,000 union members becomes a possibility.

Warren called the proposal “complex,” but said it was not so much that it would prevent a contract agreement by Friday night.

House passes bill on cigarette pack warnings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Monday passed legislation that would replace the current general health warning on cigarette packages with four rotating warnings on specific dangers associated with smoking. The measure was approved by a voice vote after brief debate in which no opposition was expressed, and was sent to the Senate.

Rockford man wins lottery, says working days are over

ROCKFORD (AP) — A 32-year-old machinist said Monday that he and his family were “still in shock” after learning they had won $9.3 million in the Illinois State Lottery’s Lotto game, the second-largest single win in the history of the drawing.

Ronald L. Holaway, a Rockford, who said he earns about $18,000 a year from his job as a lathe operator (or the next 20 years, picked the numbers 12, 15, 18, 22, 33 and 43 in Saturday’s drawing.

He is guaranteed an annual income of $446,774 for the next 20 years.

Unlike Michael Wittkowski, last week’s $40 million winner who said he planned to continue working, Holaway says his working days are over.

Thompson OKs exemption of benefits from tax

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Governor Thompson on Monday approved with some changes a measure that exempts Social Security and railroad retirement benefits from state income tax. He also approved a pair of bills dealing with the problem of hazardous wastes.

One provides for testing of wells near hazardous waste sites, while the other sets up a statewide program to study the relationship between hazardous wastes and disease.

Mount Vernon fire kills boy, injures 3 others

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — A Southern Illinois youngster was killed and three people were injured in a fire that damaged an apartment building. Mount Vernon firefighters said Monday.

Jerrod Lee Schmidt, 5, died in the fire at the Jefferson County Housing Complex Apartments, fire Capt. Larry Myers said.

The youth’s 8-year-old brother, Clarence, was listed in critical condition Monday at St. John’s Mercy Hospital in St. Louis.

Advisory group gives students a chance to influence IBHE

By Karen Wilberger
Staff Writer

College students can contribute their views to the issues facing the Illinois Board of Higher Education through the Student Advisory Committee to the IBHE.

SAC, a statewide organization, held an orientation meeting at the Student Center to recruit interested students.

According to the mission statement, SAC "serves to participate by sharing their views and interests so that it can best represent Illinois students to the IBHE."

It's the only opportunity for students to have an impact on statewide issues, said Glenn Stolar, a student member of the IBHE.

SAC will tackle three continuing issues this year — the IBHE budget, college admission requirements, and recruitment and enrollment of minority students, Stolar said.

"We need as many people as possible to have an influence on the IBHE," David Strong, SIUC undergraduate representative to SAC, said.

SAC membership is based on enrollment and represents public universities, community colleges and private institutions. One member from SAC serves as an alternate to the IBHE, but has no binding vote.

Stolar, who has served as IBHE student member since 1985, said his vote on the board wouldn't have made an impact yet, but his many discussions have made sufficient differences.

Caroleen Lorton, IBHE staff liaison to SAC, said that SAC is the only advisory committee to the IBHE to have an influence on the board.

"If we don't use the opportunity given to us, it may not be there in the future," Stolar said.

The other three advisory committees to the IBHE are the Faculty Advisory Committee, the No public Advisory Committee, and the Proprietary Schools A. S. Advisory Committee.

Educating Southern Illinois' unemployed and training them to find work "is a top priority," said John Stolar, a student member of the IBHE.

Stolar said the biggest issue SAC faces this year is the IBHE budget, and that it has to be dealt with soon before it's set and printed.

The IBHE usually begins budget discussions in November after it receives Illinois college and university budget requests.

Stolar said SAC will primarily focus on pushing for increased faculty salaries and Illinois State Scholarship awards, and minimal tuition increases.

He said SAC has its first meeting on Sept. 29 at the University of Illinois-Carbondale. SAC, which includes a budget subcommittee and a policy subcommittee, has the power to formulate proposals, to initiate studies, and to recommend to the board studies and proposals conducted by the IBHE staff.

"We need as many people as possible to have an influence on the IBHE," added David Strong, SIUC undergraduate representative to SAC.

Questions remain unanswered on Soviet Downing of Airliner

These two nations, alone of the present, have over 100,000 lives as a result of callous and ill-informed foreign policy decisions by various Washington administrations.

As you're probably aware, Reagan, earlier in his administration, had asked for a list of U.S. Latin policies. Kissinger, as usual, delivered. Many reports form various groups contradicted the Kissinger Commission findings. One that I would recommend is entitled Long Course: A Blueprint for Peace in Central America and the Caribbean. This report was published by the Institute for Policy Studies and copies are available through their Washington office.

For middle class college students, The War Is Looking for a Home, by Shlesinger and Stephen Kinzer. For a startling description of the CIA coup in Guatemala, a coup that destroyed a democratically elected government and installed a more repressive military regime. I suggest Bitter Fruit, a remarkable book co-authored by Schlesinger and Stephen Kinzer.

One is usually skeptical about articles that claim to solve or answer questions that have escaped others. But Pearson's extensive research, while highly likely, has never conducted such an intense investigation. Thus far, has offered a lucid and convincing account of the circumstances surrounding the incident.

After reading his knowledge with that of exports in the field of U.S. intelligence and communications, Pearson does much to clear up the ambiguous and even conflicting explanations offered by the White House and State Department. As to the breakdown in the information gathering capabilities of the United States and its allies, namely South Korea and Japan.

Pearson has been too many unsatisfactory and incredulous explanations by the Reagan administration to believe that no one could have been responsible for the loss of a satellite or air space.

PEARSON ALSO reveals evidence suggesting that the United States and its allies, namely South Korea and Japan

Although no hard proof exists - neither the United States nor the Soviet Union is talking - Pearson shows that if United States had that the United States had been for the Soviet Union really didn't know that the Soviet Union was really going to be that commercial line. Transcripts reveal that the Soviet Union had severe problems in establishing contact with its Falcon at the beginning of flight 007. Why did 007 stray off course in the first place? Pearson cannot say with any certainty, but he makes it clear that there should have been no reason for flight 007 to be unawares that the Soviet Union was straying over Soviet airspace.

Flight 007 came into contact with another Soviet jetliner about 90 minutes after takeoff. Just before entering Soviet airspace, flight 007 was within sight of an American RC-135 reconnaissance plane.

TO SUGGEST, as the White House has, that the RC-135 was no closer than 75 miles from flight 007 defies logic. A recent reconnaissance flight that proved that the RC-135 was not quite close enough for the crew of the reconnaissance plane to realize that flight 007 was about to stray over Soviet territory.

It would be premature to conclude that flight 007 was being used by the United States for spying purposes. But it is hard to believe that the United States was covering that part of the world like a blanket, and that no one was aware of flight 007's course.

The evidence shows that the United States had to have known that flight 007 was off course. The Reagan administration and the State Department deny having known that flight 007 was a tractor and a nagging sense of distrust and distrust of the government is kept something from the public can result from this kind of evacuation.

Censorship is issue for Banned Books Week sponsors

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

Banned Books Week, which runs through Saturday, may have special significance in this year of George Orwell’s Big Brother.

More and more books are being selected for censorship, said Naomi Patheal, University Bookstore manager.

A list of banned books published by the American Library Association has grown over the last three years and this year’s list is not complete, Patheal said.

As the list grows, so does the protest. Hardly a week goes by when newspaper readers can’t see reports of attempts by groups or individuals trying to get books lifted out of circulation.

A display in the bookstore’s windows shows several books, including the American Heritage Dictionary, John Steinbeck’s novel “The Grapes of Wrath,” Orwell’s “Nineteen-Eighty-Four” and other books in metal cages with padlocks.

In the background is a poster with “CAUTION” in bold black type and an inscription: “Who controls the past controls the future.” The message is one of Orwell’s statements from “Nineteen-Eighty-Four” about censorship.

The University Bookstore is a member of the National Association of College Stores, one of four associations sponsoring Banned Books Week.

Patheal has participated in the event for three years and this is her second display.

No reason for banning books is more important than freedom of access, Patheal said, and most people in the bookstore business feel the same way.

“I know how to use the off button on a TV set and I know how to put a book down that I don’t want to read,” she said.

The important thing to realize about Banned Books Week, Patheal said, is that there are numerous reasons that people want to ban a book.

Typical reasons for banning books are obscenity and a clash with religious or political beliefs of the times, said David V. Koch, University archivist and curator of special collections.

Mark Twain’s “Huckleberry Finn” has been banned on numerous occasions for various reasons, Koch said. The book is currently being challenged as “racist” in Springfield.

Koch said Banned Books Week makes people aware that banning a book for any reason is harmful.

“Once you start censorship or the abridgment of any freedom, it becomes difficult to predict how far it will go and what form it will take,” he said.

For a library, Koch said, the implications of censorship are serious because research can be inhibited and that’s what a research library is for.

And Patheal said, “Censorship is like teaching children math but only addition, not subtraction or multiplication or division. Therefore they only get one side of math and with books they only see one view of life.”
Band's name implies a gang, but its music has few rivals

By Jim Ludeyman
Staff Writer

Their name implies a street gang, but the Crosstown Rivals' only weapons are picks, sticks and microphones.

These four talented musicians recently brought their sounds to the Carbondale bar circuit.

David London, lead singer, described how the band got together.

"I had the idea to start a band, so I checked out the musicians. I met Nic (Miller, guitarist) and our first drummer through another band in town.

London said the band's first drummer got a different job and left because of financial difficulties. He said they auditioned other drummers and Joey Busch joined the group.

"We all knew him, and he seemed like a natural. He's been a real asset," London said.

All the band members are originally from the Chicago area. London has been in Carbondale only a year, less than the other members.

"I went to school with the idea that this would be a good spot to start a band. I only went to school one semester," he said.

Miller, a radio-television major, said music is the most important thing in his life.

"I came down here to play music, under the facade of going to school," he said.

BUSCH SAID he's been in classes for three years, taking music and business courses.

"Anything to help the band." London said the band plays other performers' music as well as original material.

"We play dance and rock'n'roll covers. It's album-oriented, FM-radio type music. We play songs by Bryan Adams, David Bowie, Todd Rundgren, Badfinger, Tommy James and old Supremes songs." London described the original material as "dance-rock, or "high powered dance-rock."

"Our lyrics are impressionistic. They leave you with the feeling that you know what's going on, yet each person gets a different impression," he said.

EVEN THOUGH London writes all of the band's music, the other members said that everybody in the band is creative.

"It's a pretty open relationship. Everybody respects everybody's opinions," Busch said.

The band is going to perform in St. Louis on Sept. 21 and 22.

"We're going to be at Syberg's on Third Street. That's the weekend of the Cubs-Cardinals game. There will be some label people there, too," London said. The band has already made contact with someone from one recording label.

Miller said he thinks the band will be a success.

"We're definitely going to go somewhere with this band. This band is it," he said.

Italian Village to celebrate 25 years of pizzas and people

By Susan Sarkanskas
Staff Writer

A local restaurant serves as a reminder of Carbondale's recent past as it celebrates its 25th year in Carbondale.

Italian Village, at 405 S. Washington St., has seen and gone through many changes since it opened its doors in September 1959. The restaurant was owned and operated by John Dugetti until September 1965, when Rolland Bridges and his son, R.E., bought it. The Bridges family has owned the restaurant since then, when it was the site of the Bridgeman Fish Market.

Changes in the town and University prompted changes in the restaurant. As more students at SIU-C increased in the 1960s, Italians were drawn to the dining area seating 60 people to a restaurant with seating for 160. Hours of operation have changed over the years, too. During the 1960s, R.E. Bridges said, the restaurant was open 24 hours a day, six days a week. "On Sundays we would open at 4 p.m. and close at 6 p.m. Students would be lined up a block away until about 9 p.m.," he said.

Italian Village is less of a student hangout today, probably because of its location "off the beaten path," as the Bridges call it, of South Illinois Avenue. Bridges also said that students tend to stay on campus more and order out for their meals, saying that "SIU-C is a town of its own, it has its own restaurants.

Bridges said the venues students' business, of course, but said that Italian Village isn't as reliant on students as it was in the past. During the 1960s, it would have closed during University breaks. Now, it's busier during breaks than when school is open, he said.

Competition has increased over the years. In 1963, Carbondale had only about 15 restaurants, three of which were pizza places, Bridges said. Today, there are about 60 eating establishments vying for the student dollar, about a dozen of which are pizza restaurants. Of the original 15 restaurants, only Italian Village, Pizza King, and Mary Lou's have survived, and Italian Village is the only one in its original location.

Italian Village has changed its menu since 1960 when it served only pizza. It now serves pasta dinners, pizzas, salads, sandwiches, and desserts.

Other changes have included the auditing of an Italian gondola-shaped salad bar three years ago, and a drive-up window two years ago. Italian Village is also known for its distinctive sign, a raised platform with mannequins posing drinking and eating. The mannequins were bought and decorated by the Bridges last year.

Bridges and the building have changed over the years, but there are still the same. Manager Gary Somers has been at Italian Village for 18 years, and custodian Warren Grigsby has worked with the Bridges for 21 years. Former student employees keep in touch with the Bridges, and one couple who worked at the restaurant has a daughter who will be attending SIU-C and probably working at Italian Village.

Bridges also gratefully acknowledges the loyalty of his customers as instrumental in his success. Townspeople now constitute the majority of his customers. Italian Village is a restaurant for families, for "regulars" who come in for something to eat and to socialize. With business expected to remain steady, Bridges sees fewer changes for the future, including expanding his dining rooms and parking lots. The work won't be easy, but then again, Bridges said, it never really has.

"I have survived," Bridges said. "That's quite a task.

Film maker documents change in Cuba

By Sarah Robrs Staff Writer

Santiago Alvarez is proof that people are going to use the words of Fidel Castro to begin what is known as the beginning of the Revolution.

While working in Cuba, Alvarez noticed that the words of Castro's speeches and songs are used to describe every day life in Cuba. Alvarez, who lived in the United States for 19 years and wrote some of Castro's speeches, was amazed at the amount of racism he noticed between black and white people.

Lena Horne's song "Now" was banned in the United States, but Alvarez was able to obtain a copy and make a film about the song and gave it the same title, "Alvarezu's song "Now,"" he said.

THE SECOND film, "70 Primaveras," "70 Springtimes," is about the death of Ho Chi Minh, the North Vietnamese leader, who actively supported the Communist Party's national liberation front during the Vietnam War.

The film begins with poignant and beautiful images of Ho's face in deep reflection, corresponding with time-lapse sequences of blooming flowers. The blooming flower is seen throughout the film. Alvarez said he decided early in the film, "They began to kill in order to win. Now everyone is killing because they cannot win."

AS THE WAR thickens, more graphic and violent images of civilian victims are portrayed. In one particular arresting view, little children are shown weeping and swaying like best flowers in the wind. The sadness is impossible to ignore.

"ALVAREZ WANTED people to realize that the Vietnam War was of international concern and wanted Americans to realize the way American presence in Vietnam was understood in Cuba," Alvarez said. "And if you were to meet Fidel Castro, his interviewer asks, "what would you say to him?" Leyva replies, "I would tell him that he is my brother, my brother Fidel."

CASTRO IS portrayed also in the fourth film, "El Desafio," "The Challenge," which records his address to the United Nations General Assembly as well as the speaker for the nonaligned nations and Castro's trip to New York City.

Castro's speech is a dramatic and powerful call to end poverty and misery in the underdeveloped nations through education and a redistribution of wealth throughout the world.

Punctuated throughout his address are slow and mounting messages of human potential gone to waste through starvation and illiteracy.

The power of protest is felt and driven home in the final film, "El Amazon de un Pueblo Embarazado."

A surprising and tender view of Fidel Castro is portrayed in "Mi Hermano Fidel." His interviewer asks, "why didn't you stop him?" Leyva replies, "I would tell him that he is my brother, my brother Fidel."

AUFDERHEIDE said her visits to Cuba were enlightening because she realized that the "Cuban Revolution has had broad popular support for a way of life in which everyone is involved and has quite a bit of control."

Cuba is a tropical island where Socialism has taken on a particular Latin American flair, she said.

Payton wants 15,000 yards rushing, to play perfect game

By Joe Mooshil
Of the Associated Press

LAKE FOREST (AP) — Walter Payton, the Chicago Bears’ premier running back, has two goals other than leading his team to a championship — one realistic, the other the impossible dream of perfection.

Payton, who is nearing Jim Brown’s National Football League career rushing record, has set 15,000 yards as his realistic goal.

The dream is to play what Payton considers the perfect football game. “To play the perfect game, as I see it,” he said, “is to make every block I’m supposed to make, to fake out everyone who is keying on me, to catch every pass thrown, and to run as hard as I can and hit every hole I’m supposed to hit.”

Payton, 30, in his 10th year in the NFL, has run for 7,179 yards and added 1,300 on 73 receptions to 15,517 yards. That breaking Brown’s record of 13,407.

He also boosted his career rushing record to 11,865 yards, 47 short of Brown’s standard of 12,312.

Payton has two more years to run on his current contract — which, incidentally, pays him somewhere in the neighborhood of $240,000 a year for the next 43 years — has no doubts he will reach 15,000 yards.

“I see three more years and if I average 1,300 to 1,400 yards a year added to what I already have, 15,000 yards is realistic,” Payton said. “Three more years should be enough and then I can do the things I’ve missed doing.”

What has he missed doing? “Sleeping late, fishing, hunting, watching my kids grow up and learning to be lazy,” Payton said with a laugh.

Several years ago, when he was in his mid-20s, Payton said he would play only three more years, that he wanted to get out of the game the way he came in: healthy.

Has he continued to play for financial reasons? “I was set financially four years ago, long before I signed this last contract,” Payton said. “I used that three more years stuff to my advantage.”

“If I had said I would play more years, people would be writing negative things about me and try to find fault with me,” he said, chuckling. “The other way they looked for positive things, motives and tactics to check my sanity.”

Payton doesn’t like to look back but admits that at times he has been “elusive,” especially when early in his career he was being compared with Gale Sayers, the Bears’ great running back in the 1960s.

Women golfers battle wind, gain useful experience at ISU

By Martin Polan
Staff Writer

The weather was bad, competition was tough and the Saluki women’s golf team was young.

But coach Sonya Stalberger told her players to play the tournament, no matter how bad it got and not to worry. When the last putt dropped in the hole, SIU-C captured fourth place at the Illinois State University Fall Invitational.

“We did as great as we could. The wind was from 40 mph,” she said, but they played well.

Lisa Kartheiser, a senior, finished third overall, shooting a 221 for 36 holes. Weather conditions added eight to 10 strokes to each golfer’s score, so Kartheiser played relatively well, Stalberger said. She might have finished second or first if some of her putts would have fallen, she said.

Weather conditions had little effect on freshman Gi Magnuson’s game. Magnuson is from Sweden where the weather always seems unfavorable for golf, Stalberger said.

Magnuson shot three outstanding rounds of golf, besting the second with a 79. She finished the tournament with a 246, placing 11th overall.

“It took an outstanding effort to play well, and that’s why I was particularly happy with Lisa and Gi,” Stalberger said.

Mysa Weller, a junior, “got some valuable experiences,” Stalberger said. Weller opened the tournament with an 88 and finished with a 265. Stalberger was happy with Weller’s game and said, “I look for her to do better in the future.”

Junior Jill Bertram started her season in the rough, shooting a 267. Bertram opened each of her three rounds having three-putt.

“Jill had a terrible time putting,” Stalberger said. “She was worrying a lot, like if the wind would blow a putt. She needs her confidence back.”

Three good rounds of golf were played by Pat Putman. Putman, a junior, shot a 263 for three rounds. Stalberger said she was pleased with Putman’s game.

Senior Claudia Ogren was mentally unprepared for the tournament, Stalberger said.

“Claudia didn’t concentrate the way she needed to. I think she needs to improve her mental state of mind,” she said.

ISU finished first in the tournament beating SIU-C by 46 strokes.

“By the end of fall season, we’ll have narrowed the gap to half, and by spring I think we’ll be able to compete with them,” Stalberger said.

Stalberger and the team are ready for the Hawkeye Invitational that will be played Thursday and Friday.

“I’m excited to go. I know the course, and I understand it’s in good shape,” she said. “I think they’re hungry as hey want to do well.”

BANKS: Overjoyed by year

“I went into the insurance business there, and that was the only thing,” Banks said, responding to a question about hard feelings between he and the Cubs. “I wanted to go full-time into the insurance business. I couldn’t do promotional work and full-time insurance work, too.”

“I came out that everything was bad, but it was not. I have a real strong relationship with the Cubs and I’ll always be the most ardent fan of that team.

“I have only one regret. I wish Mr. Wrigley, who got me started with the Cubs, was alive to enjoy this wonderful happening. He was a great baseball man.

Phil Wrigley, longtime owner of the Cubs, died in 1979.

“I wanted what’s happening now to happen when I was playing,” Banks said. “And I wanted it to happen while Mr. Wrigley was alive. But it didn’t. I’m just glad it’s happening while I’m alive. It’s really added to my life. It’s been good therapy for me.

“It’s not over, but it looks good. It looks very good. It makes me feel so happy for Cubs’ fans. They’re such good fans. They know what’s going on. They’re real, and above all, they’re patient.”

Banks said that he and his wife, Marjorie, will fly to Chicago Friday to watch the Cubs and Med Mal play a three-game weekend series.

When he was playing, Banks was noted for his positive attitude. One of his most popular responses when asked how he was, on the hottest of days, was, “Great. It’s a great day for baseball. Let’s play two.”

Rozier says he won’t play for Maulers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Rozier will no longer play for the Philadelphia Maulers of the United States Football League.

Rozier, who was selected in a supplemental football league draft, if not this season, then next, Art Wilkinson said Monday night.

The running back hopes to sign with the Philadelphia Horizons, who selected him in a supplemental draft.

“I am determined to be in the league,” Rozier said.

The Maulers’ coach, Paul Stastny, said Rozier could play in any position when he returns to the league.

Rozier expressed his unhappiness with the league and his contract.

“We're in a negociation with him,” Stastny said.

The Maulers have been trying to cut the team’s payroll.

Rozier was one of the league’s top two rushing backs.

Wilkinson said the buyout was worth $20,000.

“I think he’ll be here,” Wilkinson said.

“Maybe not over, but it looks good.”

McEnroe, Navratilova tennis’ best

NEW YORK (AP) — The singles titles at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships proved to be little else of interest as Martina Navratilova and John McEnroe are the best in the world.

The way they won demonstrated their brilliance.

Navratilova captured the women’s crown, defeating Chris Evert Lloyd 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 Sunday. McEnroe took his fourth men’s title with a 6-3, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Czechoslovakia’s Ivan Lendl.

In each final, it was the No. 1 player in the world against No. 2. The women’s final was a rematch of the 1984 showdown, while the men’s pit two players who sought for the French Open crown.

McEnroe and Navratilova each showed there’s a big gap between them and the rest.

The Chicago Cubs didn’t win a title of any kind in 1984, the Cubs are riding atop in the season.

Saturday, Ryne Sandberg replaced the injured John Olerud at second base and hit a home run in his first major league at-bat.

Saluki football head coach Ray Dorr paced the turf of McAndrew Stadium as the Salukis did prepractice warmups Monday. The Salukis will try to win their first game when they meet Western Illinois at McAndrew Saturday.

By John Nadel

Despite losses, Dorr won’t change lineup

While the Salukis have lost their first two games of the season to Missouri Valley Conference rivals Tulsa and Illinois State, Head Coach Ray Dorr is not about to change his strategy just yet.

Dorr said that while the two losses certainly hurt the Salukis, there are nine games remaining in the 1984 season, and to institute a number of changes at this point in the year would be a mistake.

"There will be no wholesale changes with this football team," Dorr said. "Tulsa and Illinois State are different kinds of teams, but both are very impressive. But that’s behind us now, and we must try to get started with Western Illinois.

Both Tulsa and ISU jumped out to quick starts against the Salukis, but Dorr believes there’s a good chance the Salukis can win.

Swimming coach Steele resigns, to coach at Justus

Bob Steele, Salukis men’s swimming coach, announced Monday he will resigning to become the aquatics director at Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando, Fla.

"It is a tough decision to make," he said. "I have spent half of my life here at SIU. I can’t remember being anywhere else."

Steele said the position at Justus is an opportunity for professional advancement.

"It’s a chance to help advance amateur swimming," he said.

Steele said he was first approached about the job at Justus when he was at the Olympic Aquatic Training Center last week and accepted the job Sunday.

At Justus, Steele will be coaching amateur swimmers from 5 to 60 years of age. We said the complex at Orlando rivals the top-flight training facilities at the Olympic Swimming Center in America’s Tennis Center in America.

"Don’t bring that up now," Steele said. "I have a big enough file on the new position."

Luck stays with Cubs; Chicago wins 3-2

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs have one of the National League’s most powerful lineups, some of the most loyal fans, the best home record in baseball and better still — luck.

"Everybody needs luck," Manager Jim Frey said after the Cubs’ 3-2 win Monday over the Philadelphia Phillies. "Early in the game, we didn’t have any, and look what happened. We didn’t score a run."

Frey said all baseball teams go through periods when luck is at a premium. "Who really knows what luck is," he said. "It’s all guesswork."

"Maybe it was luck or maybe it was just speed, but the Cubs’ biggest break of the game came in their half of the seventh. With the bases loaded and one out, Ryne Sandberg grounded to shortstop Ivan DeJesus."

"And DeJesus pitched the ball to second baseman Juan Samuel, who forced a hard out to quick starts at SIU-Urbana, building early 4-4 leads before the Salukis got on track. Dorr said another reason for the problems, especially on defense, is a primary reason why SIU-C has had trouble in the opening quarter.

"Right now, we’re in a stage of development where the players are still trying to have prepared for in practice, react well and do a good job. Dorr said. "But it’s very hard to see something different, something new they see sometimes get confused. We have to let them know that we start with some defensive scheme, we’ll be alright in these situations.

The Salukis loss to ISU was more lopsided than the season-opening setback to Tulsa, but Dorr said the game at Normal may have a positive effect on the Salukis as the season progresses.

"We never quit fighting (against ISU) and the kids understand why we didn’t win," Dorr said. "There is no longer point. I was very proud of our club for never giving up.

Dorr said what his club needs most is a victory, preferably against Western Illinois in the Salukis’ home opener next Saturday. A victory would give his club the confidence it needs to compete a successful season.

"We need to win on Saturday and that will prove to ourselves that we are capable of winning," Dorr said.

Swimming coach Steele resigns, to coach at Justus

Bob Steele, Salukis men’s swimming coach, announced Monday he will resigning to become the aquatics director at Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando, Fla.

"It is a tough decision to make," he said. "I have spent half of my life here at SIU. I can’t remember being anywhere else."

Banks overjoyed by Cubs’ banner year

By John Nadel

Los Angeles (AP) — The Chicago Cubs didn’t win a championship during Hall of Fame Ernie Banks’ 18-year major league career. In fact, the Cubs have not had a winning season since 1945.

Now, 13 years after Banks retired, the Cubs are atop the National League East with less than three weeks remaining in the season.

The year known as Mr. Cub is a banner year.

"Finally, my ship has come in," Banks said. "It’s the good things come to those who wait and work hard at it."

When reminded that the race was not over yet, Banks said, "Our club is working hard, and our ship is coming in."

Banks played for the Cubs from 1953-71. He finished his brilliant career with 2,771 hits, 509 home runs, a .287 lifetime batting average and 1,382 runs batted in. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1977.

However, despite his contributions, the Cubs never were champions. They came close in 1969 when they were in a pennant race that could not hold off the onrushing Mets despite holding a 4-3 game lead in August.

"Don’t bring that up," he said with a laugh when asked about 1969. "It was my last chance. I charging Bob Demier, but I wheeled and fired into his own dugout. Two runs scored and the Cubs took a 5-3 lead. If the leading Cubs had all the runs they needed for their 87th win.

Phillies Manager Paul Owens said his club was "amazed and overcome with happiness."

"It would have been a bang-bang thing if it had worked," Dorr said. "But the Cubs had a whole lot and we would have been tied and who knows," Owens said.

After winning the NL East, the Mets beat the Atlanta Braves in the League Championship Series. The Mets upended the heavily favored Baltimore Orioles in the World Series.

"That’s one thing I like about our club now. We have at least five or more players who have played for world championship teams," Dorr said.

"The experience is there. Guys who have won know what it is like. They have experience with winning. That’s a big plus going into the final weeks of the season. And they’re good players, too."

After his retirement, Banks worked for the Cubs in a promotional capacity until 1987. He moved to Los Angeles last January and took a job working for Associated Films Promotions.
