Hussein offers free oil to third world

United Press International

Iraq's Saddam Hussein, unable to sell his crude oil because of U.N. sanctions, offered Monday to supply Third World countries with oil free of charge, an offer U.S. officials called a transparent attempt to deflect attention from his invasion of Kuwait.

The action — taken a day after President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev declared they would work together to pressure Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait — was described as an act of solidarity with Third World nations whose economies were being hurt by huge oil prices resulting from the Persian Gulf crisis. The Iraqi spokesman said the country's offer of free oil was made irrespective of Third World countries' positions on the gulf conflict, and that it did not violate U.N. sanctions because it was being offered free of charge.

The countries should apply to Iraq indicating the quantity and type of oil they want, and then should send their own ships to fetch the oil because Iraq would not be able to transport it, the spokesman said. In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater asserted that U.N. sanctions against Iraq do not "delineate between free exchanges or those paid for" and called Saddam's offer "a transparent attempt to deflect the focus of world attention from his blatant aggression against another country." "It is an affront to all countries for Saddam to think that they would sacrifice the principles of See IRAQ, Page 5

Keg registry proposal gets foamy reception

By Karen Radius
Staff Writer

A city proposal that would require registration of beer kegs has some student leaders concerned. The proposed ordinance would require those buying kegs to leave their name, address, telephone number and destination of the keg with the seller.

The information from the sale of each keg would be made available to the police department on request. City Manager Steve Hoffman said the proposal has been an issue for months, but Bill Hall, University student trustee, said the Graduate and Professional Student Council and Undergraduate Student Government just found out about the proposal last week.

Hall said he wants to advise the City Council not to approve it. "It might have been a communication problem, but GPSC and USG were unaware about the proposal for a beer keg registry in Carbondale," Hall said.

Both Susan Hall, vice president of GPSC, and Bill Hall agree this keg registry proposal is directed at students and is unnecessary.

"People feel that we have city laws to take care of noise, parking on the grass and anything else that would arise from a keg party," said Susan Hall.

Other concerns arising from the proposed ordinance are invasion of privacy and selective enforcement. Because keg purchasers would be required to leave their names and addresses, the police would have the information to randomly check on keg parties. Police could then look for underage drinkers and those individuals charging money for beer cups.

First in a three part series on the proposed keg registration.

"If keggers are given for the purpose of profit to the individuals involved or if the individual in possession of the beverage is under 21, there will be a problem," said Chief of Police Ed Hogan.

But Susan Hall said the proposal

New glasnost brings together University, Russian delegates

By Christina Hall

At a conference Monday, administrators, faculty and students from SIU-C and Soviet delegates discussed the effect of Glasnost on education in the Soviet Union and on exchanges with the United States. The new openness of Glasnost has increased the chances for exchange between the Soviet Union and the United States, facilitating understanding between the two cultures, said John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

The changes in education since Glasnost are linked to economics and politics on one side and an understanding of other cultures on the other, said Viktor Efron, rektor of the department of technical sciences at Vladimir

Sinking county jail wall to come down

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

The southeast corner of the Jackson County Jail will soon come tumbling down.

The Jackson County Building Commission voted unanimously Monday night to remove about 2,300 square feet of the building to prevent the corner from sinking further. Since construction was completed in 1989, the southeast corner has sunk eight inches into the ground.

In August 1990 the commission awarded a contract to Architectural Consultants Ltd. to do a feasibility study on what should be done with the sinking corner. The firm presented the commission with three choices, scheme A, B-1 and

B-2. The commission accepted the option which Jackson County Sheriff William Kilquist labeled as "completely unacceptable."

"I seem to be the professional," Kilquist said, referring to jail operations, "no one has asked me for my advice."

The option the commission chose, B-2, calls for the destruction of the sinking corner and the relocation of the booking area and holding cells to the maximum security cells located west of the booking area.

"It's a matter of dollars and cents," Eugene Chambers, treasurer of the commission, said.

Kilquist, however, is opposed to scheme B-2. He said it may be

Thompson denies convicted murder clemency

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson Monday denied a clemency petition filed on behalf of convicted murderer Charles Walker, opening the way for the state's first execution in nearly three decades.

Walker, 50, Belleville, is scheduled to die by lethal injection Wednesday at 12:01 a.m. at Stateville Penitentiary.

Thompson told a Chicago news conference he will not block the execution because Walker has made it clear he wants to die and because there are no "moral or legal" grounds to reduce Walker's sentence from death to life in prison.

"Mr. Walker has put himself to death by the commission of the crime," the governor said.

Walker halted all appeals on his behalf and has refused to take part in any challenge of the constitutionality of the Illinois death penalty law. He suffers from emphysema and has said forcing him to serve a life sentence would amount to cruel and unusual punishment.

Walker has been on death row since 1985 for the 1983 double murder of a Sharon Winker and Kevin Paule, a Mascoutah couple he robbed for beer money.

Six Roman Catholic bishops Sunday released a letter they had written to Thompson on Walker's behalf.

"We do not request this commutation as a mitigation of Mr. Walker's heinous offenses or with insensitivity to the continuing loss experienced by the family and friends of Sharon Winker and Kevin Paule," the letter said. "It is our faith that prompts us to emphasize that combatting violence with violence further undermines the request for life and human dignity which is the foundation of our Bill of Rights and our system of law."

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday refused to expedite an appeal by death row inmates of a district judge's refusal to delay Walker's execution because of lethal injection machine questions.

Downey receives Gateway honors

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

For his late-game heroics, Saluki junior quarterback Brian Downey has been named Offensive Player of the Week by the Gateway Conference.

Downey had no idea he had received the honor until he got to Monday's practice.

"I found out at practice," Downey said. "I didn't know what it was at first, then they told me. It was a real honor to get that kind of recognition."

Downey, who came to SIU-C by way of Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho, passed for 294 yards on the way to the Salukis 20-17 victory from behind victory over Gateway Conference rival Indiana State. He mastered the Salukis final drive, which began on the SIU-C 4-yard line with just over a minute left in the game.

On the final drive Downey went five for seven passing and had a clutch 17-yard carry when the Salukis faced a third-and-10 situation. He capped off the 96-yard drive with a 5-yard roll-out pass to junior running back Mike Dopud to capture the victory.

The Saluki quarterback, however, said the entire squad deserved credit for the victory.

"It was the whole team," Downey said. "My position as quarterback gives me the recognition, but the team came back real well after all the penalties and my interception," Downey said. "Everybody did the job and executed well, we didn't beat ourselves at the end with any mistakes."

"The receivers ran their routes well and the offensive line gave me good blocking. And especially the defense. They gave us the chance to win it when they stopped Indiana State and made them punt."

Downey, who finished the day completing 29 for 49 passes, was chosen as the Salukis' starting quarterback by Head Coach Bob Smith in late August, but the public didn't find out until just before last weekend's game against Northern Iowa.

Downey said starting for the Salukis was one of his goals when he came to SIU-C, and now to succeed week to week is his current goal.

"I have my goals and I want to succeed," Downey said. "Right now I'm starting to see those goals come true, and I'm thankful."

After two games at the helm of the Saluki offense, Downey has completed 50 of 87 passes for a 57.5 percent completion rate and a total of 530 yards. Downey also has made his mark on the running game of SIU-C with 79 yards to make him the squad's second leading rusher. His efficiency rate is equally impressive at 107.89.

Golf team looks to repeat as Missouri Valley champions

By Jeff Bobo
Staff Writer

Saluki women's golf is looking to 1990-91 as a rebuilding season after losing three seniors from last year, but coach Diane Daugherty believes her team has the right ingredients to repeat as Missouri Valley Conference champions this season.

"We have the potential to repeat," Daugherty said. "We're better than a lot of people think."

It won't be easy without last year's seniors Lisa Johnson of Glendale, Wis., Julie Shumaker from Ft. Wayne, Ind. and Lisa Meritt from Fairfield. Johnson, Shumaker and Meritt each started the as No. 1 player at some point last season.

Leading the way this season will be returning junior Anne Childress from Noblesville, Ind. Childress was the No. 1 Saluki qualifier for the Cyclone Classic last Friday and Saturday at Iowa State. Although Childress was only the fourth best Saluki finisher at the tournament, Daugherty expects her to bounce back and lead the team this season.

"Anne had a disappointing first tournament," Daugherty said, "but she has the most collegiate experience on the team. She should be a solid player this season."

Childress would have liked her finish to be better.

"It was a tough course and I didn't play up to my potential," Childress said, "but I expect to do a lot better at Illinois State."

The top Saluki finisher last weekend at Iowa State was sophomore Tracey Pace from Evansville, Ind. Pace, who was redshirted last year, got in a lot of playing time on the course this summer.

Pace competed in a national tournament in Colorado, as well as several tournaments near her home town.

"Tracey was a pleasant surprise last weekend," Daugherty said. "For a newcomer to come out and do as well as she did is unbelievable."

Returning junior Gina Giacone from Benton overcame a back injury to finish second best among Saluki golfers last weekend at Iowa State.

"Gina went in with a sprained joint in her back," Daugherty said, "and she played well under adverse conditions."

Other bright spots on the Saluki women's golf team include freshman Leslie Brunk from Marion and returning sophomore Kim Haywood from Evansville, Ind.

Brunk was the third best Saluki at Iowa State, and played very consistently.

Haywood was the fifth Saluki, but has a bright future at SIU-C.

"The more Brunk and Haywood play, the better they will get," Daugherty said.

Other returning players include juniors Debbie Minter of Marion and Amy Van Patten of Ft. Branch, Ind.

Minter had a disappointing finish in the Cyclone Classic, placing sixth among the Salukis, but should play a major role on the team.

Van Patten did not qualify for the Classic, missing the cut by one stroke. But she is the most improved player Daugherty has ever seen.

Daugherty gives her team a good chance of repeating as MVC champions.

"When you lose three seniors nobody gives you much of a chance to repeat," Daugherty said, "but if our juniors play like they should, we could do it."

Four Salukis gain All-Star recognition, experience

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Just because the school year at SIU-C ended last May doesn't mean Saluki basketball players were on vacation. Some were hard at work in the United States or overseas playing basketball for All-Star teams.

Current Saluki players Rick Shipley, Sterling Mahan, Ashraf Amaya and new recruit Mirko Pavlovic all were selected to play on four different all-star teams. SIU-C head coach Rich Herrin was elated with the recognition his players received by being selected.

"With these three players (Shipley, Mahan, and Amaya) being selected," Herrin said, "it's probably the first time this many players from our program were invited to play for summer All-Star teams. This tells that our program is gaining recognition and is really improving."

Shipley, a 6-foot-8 forward from Centralia, played for the SCORE (Sharing Christ Our Redeemer Enterprises) team which traveled through South America in June to such sites as Argentina and Paraguay.

The three-year varsity starter unofficially averaged 10 points and 10 rebounds per game as his squad notched a 5-3 record. Shipley said it was tough to get used to his travel at first.

"It was as tough situation," Shipley said. "The conditions were not what we're used to. There were a lot of adjustments to make playing with guys I've never met before."

Despite the small problems, Shipley said he competed well and improved through his experience.

"I think I stacked up pretty well against the other college players on my team," Shipley said. "I can play with any one of those players. It was a good experience. I've improved mentally, I'm coming back this year with more confidence."

Sterling Mahan, a 6-foot senior starting point guard, was selected to play for the National Invitational Tournament All-

Good and bad news for Illini

United Press International

The University of Illinois Fighting Illini are facing a variation on the "good news, bad news" problem this week as they try to recover from a 28-16 season-opening loss to the Arizona Wildcats in time to take on mighty Colorado this Saturday in Champaign.

The variation is this: The Illini offense, which was supposed to be questionable this season, if not "bad," was good. The defense, which was supposed to be one of the best in the country, wasn't.

Jason Verduzco, a 5-foot-9 sophomore making his first start for the orange and blue, went 25 of 39 for 255 yards with two interceptions. Verduzco, who will try to make Illini fans forget Jeff George, also rallied the Illini from a 21-3 deficit to 21-16 with 7:24 left in the game.

The defense, however, was not up to the task, despite returning five All-Big Ten first-teamers from last year.

A blocked punt on the Illini 11-yard line led to one Arizona touchdown and another came on a "fumble-rooski," a trick play. But when Illinois needed to shut down the Arizona offense in the last quarter, the defense wilted.

Rather than turning the ball back to Verduzco, the defense allowed a grinding touchdown drive that gave the Wildcats another score with only 43 seconds left on the clock, ending all hope for the Illini.

All four Arizona touchdowns were scored by rushing the football. Last year, Illinois allowed only 13 rushing touchdowns all season. An impressive statistic in the running-oriented Big 10 conference.

"I'm disappointed in myself for not being able to shut down their running game," said All-American nose guard Moe Gardner. "I'm real, disappointed in our defense for not stopping any part of their offense."

Gardner lamented the defense's inability to stop straight power plays up the middle.

"Big plays always happen in football ... But when a team repeatedly hands off to the fullback and he runs right up the middle for seven yards, that's what really hurts you."

Colorado, like Arizona, features an option offense so the Illini will have a week to figure out how to defend it right.

Cambodia accepts U.N. plan for peace after 11-year fight

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — In the first major breakthrough aimed at ending the 11-year-old Cambodian conflict, the warring factions agreed Monday to unify behind a new United Nations seat and endorsed the world body's peace plan. Although resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk unexpectedly announced he is taking a six-month leave of absence for reasons of health, his three-party coalition and Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen unanimously supported the formation of a Supreme National Council.

Radicals call for Soviet premier to resign

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Parliament opened its fall session Monday with a call by radical deputies for Premier Mikhail Ryzhkov's forced resignation because of his reluctance to support a quick move to a market economy. Parliamentary plans to deal with the reeling economy and move to a market system. "In effect, the session marks the end of the preparatory stage of perestroika, which resulted in the disintegration of the old political and economic system," the official Tass news agency said.

Pakistan tries to bar Bhutto from politics

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Government officials lodged two complaints of official misconduct in a special court Monday in a bid to bar ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto from participating in Pakistan's October elections. Officials filed the cases on behalf of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, who fired Bhutto Aug. 6, accusing her administration of corruption and nepotism. Khan also dissolved the government and dismissed the National Assembly, calling for new elections Oct. 24. The two cases lodged Monday were the first against Bhutto.

Philippine troops raid suspects' hideouts

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Government forces mounted raids in the capital and arrested two people in a crackdown on rebel soldiers attempting to oust President Corazon Aquino, officials said Monday. Police, meanwhile, swooped down on a residential area in suburban Paranaque Monday and arrested a businessman for possession of $80,000 worth of explosive devices. Police Brig. Gen. Levy Macasiano said the man, identified as Jun Takata, was being investigated for possible involvement in a string of 18 bombings in Manila over three weeks.

Board denies parole for convicted killer

JOLIET (UPI) — The Illinois Prisoner Review Board denied a parole petition for Richard Speck, convicted of the stabbing and strangling 24 years ago of eight student nurses — a case prosecutors said "shocked and dismayed the world." Board spokesman Joe Volpe said the petition was denied without comment and the case continued until September 1993. Speck's parole petition drew more than 21,000 letters of protest. In a hearing last week, a classmate and relatives of the nurses killed July 13, 1966, by Speck pleaded to keep him in prison.

Thompson signs bills to fight gangs, drugs

United Press International

Illinois can use better tools to fight gang violence and drug dealers, Gov. James R. Thompson said Monday as he signed a package of six anti-drug and anti-crime bills approved by the Legislature this spring. Thompson also established two new laws designed to stop shootings and robberies prevalent in the Chicago area. The governor said the measures were important after a weekend of violence in Chicago.

Ellis Island's first visitors come back

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ellis Island, where millions first stepped onto American shores, opened to the public Monday with a few hundred tourists claiming the honor of being the first visitors to the memorial to America's immigrant experience.

The early birds traveled by ferry to the three-acre island in New York Harbor to visit the restored main immigration building which operated from 1892 to 1954 as the gateway for families of an estimated 140 million Americans.

The fare was $6 for adults, $3 for children, more than many original immigrants arrived with.

Although the 9 a.m. ferry was only about one-third filled with passengers, the number of visitors was expected to increase as the day progressed under increasingly sunny skies.

The admission-free museum, the gateway of dreams for 17 million people, opens at 9:30 a.m. daily.

The first visitors entered the red brick, copper domed masterpiece of beaux-arts architecture through the baggage room, just as immigrants did, and climbed to the Registry Room stairs that doctors used to spot asthmatics, heart patients and other who were physically impaired.

Six elderly immigrants, representative of the 12 million hopefuls who got their first glimpse of America at Ellis Island, sat alongside Vice President Dan Quayle to reopen the island and dedicate its new museum.

"I wish every one of today's Americans could make a pilgrimage here," Quayle said.

Feline leukemia kills 1 million cats every year

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Cats have recently become the number one pet in America. More than 54 million cats are kept as pets — in fact, almost one out of every three households in the U.S. now owns a cat. Thirty percent of Missouri households own at least one cat.

Unfortunately, a deadly disease called Feline Leukemia claims the lives of nearly one million cats every year.

According to Dr. John Koch, president of the Missouri Veterinary Medical Association, Feline Leukemia is caused by a virus that suppresses the cat's immune system, much like AIDS in humans.

This leaves the cat susceptible to many life-threatening diseases.

Cats that spend time outdoors or with other cats run the greatest risk of infection. The virus is spread from one cat to another through common feline behaviors — sharing food and water dishes, social grooming, and biting. Young kittens are extremely susceptible to infection and can acquire it from their mother if she is a carrier.

There is no cure for Feline Leukemia. Some 83 percent of cats that become permanently infected with the virus die within three years.

But pet owners can protect their cat against this deadly disease.

New plan needed to manage the forest

TREES ARE FALLING in the Shawnee National Forest and environmentalists' tempers are rising.

The Forest Service is ready to cut nearly 15 million board feet of timber a year and environmentalists don't want a single tree harmed. So far there doesn't seem to be any middle ground.

The issue of clearcutting has turned into an emotional one lately. Members of Earth First and the Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists have tried their damndest to stop the cutting altogether.

Members of Earth First have been a bit overzealous and radical in their attempts to stop the cutting. Some chained themselves to logging equipment to protest the cuts, while others camped out in the forest for more than 80 days to show their dissatisfaction.

IF NOTHING ELSE, the antics of these two groups have raised environmental awareness in Southern Illinois. And awareness is the key if the Shawnee is going to be managed properly.

A recently introduced environmental plan that calls for an ecological balance in the forest might get the Shawnee on the road to proper management.

The New Perspectives plan would enhance the ecological uses of the forest, emphasize more research, and involve the public in timber cutting decisions.

THIS PLAN IS just what the Shawnee needs right now.

The plan would also call for increased public input. The environmental trend that is sweeping across the United States has touched here in Southern Illinois. The public cares about PCB incinerators at Crab Orchard Lake, keeping Carbondale clean and green and how the Shawnee is managed.

THE PEOPLE OF Southern Illinois want to know what's happening to the forest and they have that right. They have the right to know what is being cut. They have the right to know why these trees are being cut.

Some timber harvesting has its merits and the public needs to know this. It can serve as a valuable wildlife management tool, and help the forest regenerate. However, sometimes clearcutting can cause soil erosion and devastate delicate animal habitat.

WE SHOULD GIVE the New Perspectives plan a try. It concentrates more on the ecological and aesthetic values of the forest rather than monetary ones. Maybe with the new plan tourist areas such as Lake Kinkaid and Fairview won't be cut. It also gives the public an active role in the decision making process that it needs rather than reacting to forest service decisions.

Seventy years ago 'The Sheik' began to create in the minds of the American people the idea that all Arabs were knife-wielding, gun-toting womanizers not to be trusted." — Disc jockey Kasey Kasem, an American born Arab of Lebanese decent said in reference to the crisis in the Middle East.

"He says he's not going to do anything for this picture until he reads the reviews." — Director Dennis Hopper said slamming Don Johnson for showing up at the Festival of Festivals Filmfest to promote his new movie "The Hot Spot."

War not just a man's battlefield

When Uncle Sam needs a few good men, the men go off to war. American women, for the most part, are left behind.

Although the number of military women has increased from less than 2 percent of U.S. active-duty personnel in 1972 to 10.7 percent in 1988 (224,636 women in uniform in March 1989), according to Department of Defense records, women still are not given the same opportunities as men to advance and fight in the military.

Some will argue, and have argued that this is the way it should be. After all, women are supposed to be emotional and weak, unable to face the trauma of war. In the face of an enemy, however, women and men are equalized. Both can cry and fight for survival and do. Both can die from a bullet through the heart and do.

From a basic human standpoint, men and women are not equal. They can't be in every way. That does not mean men and women shouldn't be given equal opportunity.

From a military point of view, men and women are not equal. All military men and women in this country share something that makes them equal. They all are fighting to preserve the United States of America. They all are giving a lot of themselves so that all of us can be free.

As a U.S. woman, I love this country as much as any man. I would fight for this country as much as any man. I would die for this country as much as any man.

But the military asserts that women aren't physically strong enough. Women and men can't work together as a team. Women pose a threat to national security. Women can serve their country adequately in non-combat positions.

Our experience in Saudi Arabia however, through Operation

Desert Shield has shown us that women may be able to answer the call to war, the call that so many men and women would like to keep male-dominated.

The mother soldiers in the Gulf are leaving families, homes and lives behind along with the father soldiers, who leave the same behind.

The great number of women soldiers in the gulf are there for the same reasons as the men, showing how truly out-dated is the absurd notion that war is a man's war, that it is bad enough to lose young men, let alone young women.

After all, women pay the same costs of a divided world, where men like Saddam Hussein are allowed to bully other nations. Women are threatened just as much by a world in which men and woman are held against their will. Women should then be allowed and encouraged to defend the same principles of freedom and democracy that Uncle Sam's men are defending in the gulf.

Women and men together have made this country great. This is not and never will be a man's country.

Thus, it is not up to the men of this country to defend Her greatness.

Letters

Women belong at home not in war

"The greatest change that has come about in the United States forces in the time that I've been in the military service has been the extensive use of women... That's even greater than nuclear weapons, I feel, as far as our own forces are concerned." — Gen. John A. Vessey, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Since the Persian Gulf crisis began, the media has kept a steady stream of articles on the Women Warriors in the Armed Forces. A recent cover of People magazine shows a female Air Force Captain embracing her 11-month-old daughter before leaving.

"I never thought of anything like this when I joined up. It's not fair for anyone to have to leave her child," a 19-year-old female soldier was quoted from Newsweek while cradling her 6-week-old baby before shipping out.

These women do not belong in our Armed Forces, especially single-parent mothers with 6-week-old babies. It's a shame how the feminist movement has crippled this nation's moral standards.

Women can now work in every military role except for direct front-line combat billets such as fighter pilots, infantrymen, tank and artillery crews. Are we prepared to see the daughters of this country turned into charred, smoldering pieces of flesh and mincemeat for the sake of equal rights? It's bad enough that young men sacrifice themselves, but war is man's game.

The Saudis have to make concessions for the female soldiers. In Saudi Arabia, the women have to walk escorted and if outside, cover their entire bodies with robes and veils. Since we are guests, it would be wise to appease our hosts by not allowing female soldiers to participate.

Official military studies show women suffer from high attrition rates, low retention rates, are four times more likely to complain of minute physical ailments. Brian Mitchell, a former Army officer and author of "Weak Link: The Feminization of the American Military" notes the psychological limitations. Women are less aggressive, less likely to suppress minor personal problems, suffer more emotional stress and score lower on military exams relevant to modern military jobs.

The one single advantage stated... women are better behaved.

Don't get me wrong—I am not a male chauvinist. I do not hate women. I love women and am happy to see how far they have come. But just as President Bush has drawn the proverbial line in the sand, we should draw the line when it comes to women in war.

Many women will not accept that they are the physically weaker sex. That is nothing to take offensively or be ashamed of.

Feminist author Lesley Hazelton interviewed a female Israeli army officer on the subject of women warriors. The officer was quoted, "A woman's just not built for fighting, physically or mentally. Her aspirations lie in another direction altogether—marrying and having children...I don't think women should fight because their purpose in life is to tend to the next generation." —Brad Striegel, pre-major, freshman.

Liberian president Doe killed

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (UPI) — Liberian President Samuel Doe was killed by Prince Johnson's rebels and his mutilated body displayed at their camp outside Monrovia, the British Broadcasting Corp. said Monday, citing unconfirmed reports.

Travelers returning to Monrovia told the BBC that Doe died in a rebel camp where he was taken Sunday after he was wounded and captured by rebel forces in a fierce gun battle in the capital of his war-torn West African nation.

Doe was interrogated by Johnson over large amounts of money he allegedly embezzled during his time in power, then killed, the BBC quoted the travelers as saying. The president's body, badly mutilated, was reportedly on display in the camp.

BBC correspondent Liz Blunt, who was in Monrovia, said it was impossible to confirm the reports at present.

In Washington, State Department officials said they had no independent confirmation of the BBC report, but one official said, "this appears to be a serious report and we have no reason to doubt it."

And a spokesman for rival guerrilla leader Charles Taylor told the Cable News Network in a telephone interview that "I have no reason to doubt they may have killed him."

The British Foreign Office was seeking confirmation of the report from its embassy in Monrovia.

Doe was seized Sunday by forces loyal to Johnson in Monrovia after a firefight at the headquarters of the West African peacekeeping force that has been trying to resolve the civil war that erupted in December, Western diplomatic sources said.

Doe had made an unscheduled visit to the headquarters, and the trouble began.

The BBC said Doe was wounded in both legs and taken into custody.

cheaper, but he is concerned with the elimination of six maximum security cells and the transfer of the booking area into a space that is already occupied.

Scheme B-2 will cut the maximum security housing by 50 percent, Kilquist said. "We may, in the very near future, have more maximum security prisoners than we have maximum security beds."

"It was the wisest choice," said

D. Blaney Miller, member of the commission. "If there are that many maximum security prisoners, they can be taken to other prisons."

Kilquist was in favor of scheme A which would have replaced the sinking corner with a structure that would meet original building parameters and specifications. However, he did note the problems of rebuilding on the same site.

Kilquist said his second choice was scheme B-1, which called for an addition to the northwest corner of the jail and accounted for the loss of 18 minimum security beds.

Kilquist said this decision could adversely affect the operations of the jail. However, he has not decided how he will alter jail operations when construction begins.

Polytechnical Institute in the Soviet Union.

Glasnost, which has come to mean openness in the United States, should mean the people of both countries being open to each other, Efnos said.

For exchanges between the Soviet Union and the United States to work in assimilating the two cultures, people must be open to new information and be willing to share information, he said.

Cultural exchanges have been facilitated by the changes in the Soviet Union, Jackson said.

"Our external threats are now more economic, by West Germany, and Japan, than a military threat by the Soviet Union," Jackson said.

To understand the cultural and historical changes in the Soviet Union, universities need to offer more intellectual exchanges, he said.

Since the climate of opinion has changed in both countries, exchanges will help build understanding between cultures, Jackson said.

The five Soviet administrators and one teacher are working on an exchange program for students and faculty between SIU-C and Vladimir Polytechnical Institute.

An exchange program between the two campuses will be difficult, because the programs offered at the two universities will have to be assimilated for the exchange students, Efnos said.

"I look forward to how the weaknesses and strengths of our university complement yours," Jackson said.

goes overboard.

"We are 100 percent behind the city in underage drinking, but I think the new ordinance is overkill," Susan Hall said.

Hogan said he does not see a problem with the new ordinance unless keg parties are used as a device to avoid complying with the law. He also said the police currently intervene in keg parties at least once a week.

He said the new ordinance would provide some degree of attention to what could be a serious problem, but it is still only being discussed.

"It is a step we haven't tried before" he said. "I don't think it is going to be an easy ordinance to enforce, but that shouldn't be a reason for not making an attempt to enforce it."

Hoffner said the city manager's office came up with the keg ordinance proposal after the City Council directed them to develop ideas to counteract underage drinking.

The next City Council meeting is Sept. 18, and the Hall's said they want to encourage all students against the ordinance to attend the next meeting.

freedom and non-aggression for the Iraqi oil or the oil that he has taken through his naked aggression against Kuwait," he said.

A Western diplomat in Cairo called the offer "a ploy" by Saddam to win support from poor countries.

But the free oil-offer was welcomed by Jordan, according to the Iraqi news agency INA. It quoted Jordanian Prime Minister Badran saying, "The move will foil efforts by some oil companies and oil-producing states to manipulate the situation to harm the economies of the Third World countries."

The United Nations imposed the trade embargo after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of tiny, oil-rich Kuwait.

Thousands of Iraqis marched Monday on the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad, Iraq's capital, chanting "Death to America" in opposition to the U.S. military presence in the gulf.

Meanwhile, the British Foreign Office announced that a joint U.S.-British charter flight on an Iraqi Airways jet is expected to take women and children out of Kuwait and Iraq Wednesday, the British Foreign Office said.

France and the European Commission will begin airlifting some 2,200 to 2,300 Bangladeshi home from the gulf region Monday evening aboard an Air France jet that they will rent for one week, the French Foreign Ministry said.

Secretary of State James Baker Monday asked foreign ministers of NATO countries meeting in Brussels, Belgium, to step up sanctions against Iraq and to send ground troops to the gulf region to bolster the multinational force assembled to counter Iraqi aggression.

He also asked the ministers to help Eastern European nations that were suffering economically as a result of the gulf crisis.

Also in Brussels, European officials said they may try to strengthen the embargo of Iraq by seeking U.N. sanctions against countries that fail to honor U.N. resolutions on Iraq.

Baker announced he would fly to Syria Thursday for talks about the gulf crisis, despite U.S. criticism of Syria for supporting terrorism.

"We still have difficulties with Syria," Baker acknowledged, but he said President Bush asked him to go to Damascus because Syria's opposition to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait graphically "illustrates the isolation of Saddam Hussein."

Baker also said Monday that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates have committed $12 billion through the rest of the year to help defray the costs of the gulf crisis.

"Roughly half of this $12 billion will go to offset the costs of the American military effort in the gulf," he said, adding that "a substantial part of their contribution will be 'in-kind' payments — fuel, water, food and other essential material."

Baker last week said U.S. military deployment in the gulf would cost the Pentagon an additional $6 billion for the rest of the year.

INA reported Iraq and Iran had restored diplomatic ties two years after the end of the war.

Increased theft of personal property preventable

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Within the last year SIU-C has seen an increase in thefts all across campus that could have been prevented, Nelson Ferry, of the University Police, said.

"People leave their property unattended. Faculty who have desks leave their wallets, purses and valuables in the desks and they leave the office and when they return their wallets, checkbooks, purses, whatever are missing," Ferry, who is the community relations and training officer, said.

"This problem could be rectified by securing personal belongings," Ferry said.

"If a faculty person has a locked file drawer then he or she should use it because it's a lot easier to keep track of a key than a purse or wallet."

There are thieves who go from office to office, room to room and if it's unoccupied these thieves will take what ever they can."

"People shouldn't leave personal property unattended and they shouldn't leave large sums of money in their purse or wallet," Ferry said.

During the month of August there were 52 reported incidents of theft of property under $300. Of those 52 incidents, 22 were a result of personal property being left unattended or in an unlocked office or area, according to Theresa Nesler, University Police statistical clerk.

Also during the month of August, there were seven incidents of residential burglary. Of those seven, four occurred where a residence was left unlocked, Nesler said.

During the month of August there were seven incidents of residential burglary; four occurred in unlocked homes.

"I think mostly what it is, is people who float from building to building and they wait for an opportunity, which is always there," Ferry said. "If someone sees someone acting suspicious then they need to pick up the phone and call the University Police."

The largest theft problem is at the library because people leave their property unprotected Ferry said. People will go to the bathroom, to get a book or a magazine and when they get back their property is gone.

"It doesn't take long for a thief to walk by, grab a wallet or a bookbag and keep right on walking," Ferry said.

The Student Center and the Recreation Center are problem areas also.

"Sometimes students go into the Student Center, lay down and fall asleep on a couch and when they wake up their belongings are gone," Ferry said.

"I don't know if you can specify whether or not it's an organized group of thieves working the campus," said Ferry. "It's probably individuals working independent of each other."

Residential burglary occurs in the housing areas also. Ferry said thieves go from door to door until they find an unlocked one with an unoccupied room behind it. If there's no one there they might clean the room out.

"Basic crime prevention is not eliminating the crime but eliminating the opportunity for the crime to occur," Ferry said.

SIU-C first to install 911 emergency call system

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Last year SIU-C became the first public university in Illinois to adopt a 911 emergency system, but the University Police are concerned most students don't realize the service is available, Officer Nelson Ferry, of the University Police, said.

"You can reach the 911 system with any telephone that has a 453 or 536 exchange numbers," Ferry said.

In an emergency, University police can have a patrol car at any location on Campus within two minutes, Ferry said.

Bob Harris, University Police director, said the 911 system should be dialed only to report life-threatening situations, such as traffic accidents, fires, and other police emergencies.

Calls on the 911 system ring through a special phone with a distinct tone at the SIU-C Security headquarters.

"We'll grab it, and have help on the way in seconds," Harris said. "It's strictly a University system and any University phone you dial 911 from rings into our office."

"If it's a true emergency we will hit the appropriate button on the radio for the fire, police or ambulance and advise them what has happened," he said.

Ferry said after a 911 call is received all communication with police, fire and ambulance is by radio so that the dispatchers don't get tied up using other phone lines.

A police patrol car is automatically dispatched no matter what the emergency.

University police has several officers who have advanced medical training that will respond first to 911 emergency calls, Ferry said.

Also, seven officers on the force are trained emergency medical technicians.

Although the primary response unit for 911 emergency calls will be University Officers, Ferry said the Saluki patrol, which has several EMTs on its force, might also respond.

Ferry said if a person calls 911 he or she must give their name, phone number, nature of the emergency and their location.

The dispatch will then keep the caller on the line until police units arrive.

Many of the office phones on campus require the user to dial nine before access out of that system can be dialed.

Ferry said before the 911 system can be reached from office phones on campus nine must be dialed.

Harris said the reason SIU-C is the first public state university to use the 911 system is because his department went to a new phone system last year.

Student in serious condition after high-speed car chase

A University student who crashed his car after leading police on a high-speed chase, through Carbondale Friday evening, was listed in serious condition Monday in Barnes Hospital's neuro-surgical unit.

Jeffery D. Judd, R.R. 2, Makanda, was in serious condition Monday in the neuro-surgical unit at Barnes Hospital, Davis Trousseau, spokesman for Barnes Hospital, said. Judd faces charges of driving under the influence, aggravated fleeing to elude, leaving the scene of an accident, passing in a no passing zone, speeding and criminal damage to property.

University police officer John Dunning was assisting a vehicle on Route 51 south of Carbondale when a driver of a car pulled up and told Dunning a white car struck him from behind. Dunning located the white car traveling south on Route 51, police said.

Dunning followed the car observing that it recklessly passed several cars before passing a car in a no passing zone. Dunning signaled the car to stop, but the driver turned west on Pleasant Hill Road, police said.

Dunning chased the white car, exceeding 75 miles per hour, before it crashed into a field.

The 1990-91 Faculty and Student Directory is in the works, according to USG Interim President Cheryl Santner.

Students who have changed addresses or who do not want their address to appear in the directory must go to Admissions and Records by Tuesday to fill out an address correction or deletion card.

"If things go all right, the directory should be out by November," Santner said.

But Santner said there have been problems with the Student Information System and some changes had to be made.

"The length of the characters are different from last year's and this may change the size and number of columns per page," Santner said.

This may further delay the delivery of the directory, Santner said.

Altgeld Hall will be on the cover of this year's directory and there also will be a few format changes within the directory, Santner said.

RSO's will soon be heard by student government

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Registered Student Organizations will soon be able to voice their concerns to student government and the student trustee through membership in the President's Council.

The President's Council is a proposed RSO that will be made up of RSO presidents or their designees. It will serve as an advisor to the Undergraduate Student Government, the Graduate and Professional Student Council and the student trustee.

Bill Hall, student trustee and organizer of the President's Council said it could be the most influential RSO at SIU-C.

The idea for a President's Council began when Hall was contacted by a Virginia Tech student in 1988. Hall was contacted as a reference concerning an SIU-C applicant for the position of vice president for student affairs. In the conversation, the student explained how the President's Council at Virginia Tech had been influential in the removal of an administrator.

Hall said he is not suggesting the removal of any SIU-C administrators, but rather sees the goals of the SIU-C President's Council as two fold:

• Organization of the President's Council could be a communication network to get information from the student organizations to USG, GPSC and the student trustee.

• If there are issues that affect RSOs, the President's Council will serve as a unifying force to let University leaders know what is needed for the future.

In the first meeting Friday afternoon, the council began reviewing the constitution and by-laws proposed by Hall. Those present were asked to take the constitution and by-laws back to their RSOs to discuss possible changes.

Although the council does not have RSO status yet, Hall said he does not expect any problems and the council could be approved within the next two weeks.

Discussion of Persian Gulf includes international view

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

If Americans could see the Kuwaiti crisis through Arab eyes, they would see a very different picture.

"Saddam Hussein is as bad as anybody in the Middle East," said Mamoun Fandy at a panel discussion last week. "But I would be lying to you if I said that I don't support Saddam Hussein at the moment."

As lousy a leader as Saddam may seem to Americans, said Fandy, an Egyptian graduate student in political science, the more troops the United States sends, the more he seems like a pan-Arab leader to those who have no voice in their own governments in the Middle East.

Conflict in the Middle East actually dates back 1,500 years, but more recent historical aspects within the last century are generating most of the problems today, said Gary Wolf, journalism teaching assistant and panel member.

Sponsored by the Peace Coalition of Southern Illinois and the Southern Illinois Latin American Solidarity Committee, the panel drew about 200 participants Sept. 6 to a discussion of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Dr. Mazhar Butt, secretary of the Islamic Center of Carbondale, believes that the government that America is backing is no better than Saddam Hussein's.

"His government is the honest government which is doing something for the people," said Butt, a Carbondale dentist and a native of Pakistan. "We are backing a government of two families who have no interest in the people."

Hussein's offer to leave Kuwait if other occupying countries left their occupied lands is a good offer, he said.

"Cheap oil is not the price to pay for life," Butt said.

In the late 1800s, the British decided "that they wanted a foothold on the Gulf to help them rule their Indian Empire," Wolf said.

The present day crisis stems as far back as the independence of Kuwait, he said.

The British created the country of Kuwait over a century ago and granted its independence in 1961. Iraq tried to claim Kuwait as its own in 1961 but were blocked when the British sent in troops, Wolf recounted.

"Kuwait is a creation of British imperialism in the eyes of the Arab world and not a legitimate state," he said.

Throughout the Middle East, the legitimacy of rulers is a central question, Wolf said, noting that the crisis in Kuwait is only the most current example.

In addition to the conflict surrounding Kuwait's existence, many Arabs also question U.S. intervention in the Gulf crisis.

Arabs do not see America as a protector of Saudi Arabia but as another of the long list of occupying Armies, said Fandy, who believes Arabs would prefer Arab sovereignty to American intervention.

"There is no democracy unless there is sovereignty among the people," he said. "The Arab people would cheer if they knew the Americans would liberate them from the dictators and give them democracy."

Judith Caesar, a lecturer in the English department, said the Saudis seem to have supported America politically but think that there is something terribly wrong with the American culture.

From the Saudi Arabian point of view, American freedom means Americans are free to drink as much as they want, free to do drugs and free to sleep with whomever they want.

This is an image America has shown them through American television and through the actions of Americans living in Saudi Arabia, she said.

Iranian student explains Gulf crisis

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Iranian student Behrooz Kalantari wants to provide an objective view of the political developments in the Middle East for students and the Carbondale community.

"In my opinion, what is going on in the Middle East is a scenario of a regional power struggle and Iraq is the main player," said Kalantari, a doctoral student in political science.

The historical aspects of the Middle East conflict plays an important role in determining exactly why Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait," Kalantari said.

Before the Iranian revolution in 1979, Iran was a super power in the Middle East, Kalantari said. Iran's disappearance as a regional super power in the Middle East left a vacuum which needed to be filled, he said.

The disappearance of Iran along with the fact that Iraq had a tremendous debt totaling $90 billion after the war with Iran is the major reasons that Iraq invaded Kuwait, Kalantari added.

Iraq owed half of their debt to Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and the rest to other oil producing countries, he said. In 1989, Iraq's revenue from oil was $14 billion and they had to pay $3.5 billion just to cover the interest of their loans to non-Arab countries, he said.

Another $3.5 billion went to the purchase of arms from overseas.

The lack of money and tremendous debt forced Hussein to do something, Kalantari said. Kuwait has $100 billion in overseas assets, including a large share of British petroleum.

"At the time of the invasion Iraq was hoping to get a hold of the cash inside Kuwait Central Bank," Kalantari said adding that, "it was one of the first buildings that was occupied."

With the help of the Western and Arab countries Iraq has been able to develop a seemingly unstoppable military.

"The whole world has come together to help Iraq develop a huge military power," Kalantari said.

Iraq's aircraft are French and Soviet made, the tanks are Soviet made, the chemical weapons are supplied by Germany and the missiles are supplied by China. Other European countries have helped them to build other necessary military equipment as well, he said.

"Hussein has tried to translate this military power into a political and economic asset," Kalantari said. "In order to do that he needs some justifications."

As a result Hussein takes advantage of the favorable political frustration of the Arab people and especially the Palestinians, he said.

There are 22 Arab countries and the poorer Arabs in these countries, have felt humiliated and frustrated by Israelis and their Western allies for centuries, Kalantari said.

Burning wood possible answer to oil shortage

Small, fast-growing trees may be raised in place of crops on marginal farmland, used as boiler fuel or alcohol for gasoline

By Todd Gardner
Staff Writer

Burning trees may help reduce the nation's dependency on foreign oil and combat the greenhouse effect.

The Short Rotation Woody Crops Program, funded by the U.S. Department of Energy, is not looking to cut the nation's forests for fuel. Instead, the program is developing fast-growing trees that can be grown like a row crop on marginal farmland for use as boiler fuel or turned into alcohol as a supplement for gasoline.

John Preece, professor of plant and soil science, said growing trees for fuel is another way of harvesting solar energy. Because the carbon dioxide released by burning wood is used in growing new trees, there is no increase in the carbon dioxide level.

"The increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide is caused when the carbon being stored in coal and oil is released burning.

"It (burning wood) is just going to be a recycling process," he said.

Preece is working with Paul L. Roth, University professor of forestry, and William C. Ashby, University professor of botany, to develop strains of silver maple that can be grown in the Midwest. Other researchers in Oklahoma, New Hampshire, New York and Minnesota are looking at trees suited to the different climates.

The goal is to isolate the individual trees that are fastest growing and develop a diverse genetic pool from which clones can be made. These trees could grow fast enough to be harvested after growing one to 10 years.

Preece said the advantage of silver maple, the tree being studied at SIU-C, is that it's native to river banks which do not make the best farm land. The trees also have the ability to sprout from their stumps after being cut, saving the farmer from replanting.

Burning wood is not a new alternative energy source. Wood is commonly used through the country for heating and producing electricity.

"It just doesn't receive the attention," said Preece.

Lyn Wright, program manager of the Short Rotation Woody Crops program for Martin Marrietta Energy Systems in Oakridge Tenn., said that nationally 3 to 4 percent of the nation's energy is produced by burning plant materials like wood chips and residue from paper production.

This figure is more energy than the nation gets from hydro-electric plants and is nearly equal to nuclear energy.

In 1978, DOE started funding research into growing biomass for fuel as a result of concern over the oil embargo. The program's goals were to increase biomass per acre and reduce the cost of turning it into usable energy primarily alcohol.

"Right now, growing energy crops is not economically viable with current oil and gas prices," Wright said, adding that prices would have to be in the $40 to 50 a barrel range to make it viable nationally.

However, growing wood to burn is becoming competitive in some areas. Small power plants in Northern California that use wood waste are now paying $50 a dry ton for their fuel. The Short Rotation Woody Crops technology can produce wood material at $40 to 60 a dry ton including shipping.

Through the use of genetically developed materials, the amount of biomass produced per acre increases two to five times what occurs in a natural forest system,

Wright said.

One problem that has to be overcome is that the trees will be farmland. Farmers be convinced to grow a crop that could be harvested an average of once every seven years, she said.

It's a transition that requires research into application for different regions in the country and education programs for farmers. But it would take less than five years to tailor the program for any given area, Wright said.

The funds for the program have suffered the same budget cuts that affected all alternative energy programs during the 1980s.

Wright said there had never been a large budget. At its peak, funding was $6 million, but by 1988, it was less than $2 million.

There have been small increases in DOE funding over the past two years and there could be another increase in 1991 that could mean funding of $4 to 5 million. But Gramm-Rudman cuts could bring it back down to $3.5 million, Wright said.

R-T department urges dropouts to get diplomas

Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

More high school dropouts will be returning to their books next year. At least that is what SIU-C's Department of Radio and Television is being asked to accomplish.

The regional Adult Education program has given a $140,000 exclusive contract to the department to put together a media campaign aimed at getting high school dropouts to take the GED exam.

The contract is for the research and production of a media package aimed at increasing awareness of the GED, Graduate Equivalency Diploma, program. Included in the package will be advertisements for television, cable, radio, and print media.

Scott Hodgson, SIU-C's assistant professor for the Department of Radio & Television and project director, said efforts this fall will revolve around research into why high school dropouts are increasing.

"Our key is to think how they [dropouts] think," said Hodgson.

The actual production of these commercials will occur over Spring Break. Filming and production will take place at Optimus, a commercial editing house in Chicago where, coincidentally, 25 percent of the employees are SIU-C alumni.

According to Hodgson the department, which is ranked in the top ten of the nation, was chosen for this project because of its top quality resources.

Hodgson said that although professionals will be producing the final cuts for the media package, SIU-C students will be heavily involved in all levels. Along with Hodgson, SIU-C's Michael Starr, Telecommunications Graduate Studies director and Joe S. Foote, Chair of the Department of Radio-Television, will be involved in the project.

"From our perspective this project has three objectives: to produce a high quality media campaign, to give students the opportunity to work on a large scale campaign, and to have the opportunity to show what SIU-C can do," said Hodgson.

Funds for the project originate from the Illinois State Board of Education after a 20 percent increase in Illinois high school drop out rate was noted between 1987 and 1989. This trend has the Board of Education worried enough to set adult education awareness as one of their priorities this year.

Engineering society earns honors

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Recruitment and retention of students are not only on the minds of University administrators, they also are becoming a part of one registered student organization, the chairman of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers said.

"Increased membership has become one of our goals," Adam Baird, senior in industrial technology, said.

"It is a tradition to improve recruiting and maintain status."

The society was awarded a $250 check for its efforts in recruiting and retaining members for the chapter, which has more than 170 members, Baird said. The University chapter received the check from Ernie Useted, chairman of the society's region five.

The chapter is the largest in the Midwest, Baird said. Other states in the region are Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

"It feels good getting recognition for the hard work we put into increasing membership," Baird said.

The society's goal is to improve the manufacturing field, Baird said. The field touches every company that employs electrical, mechanical and civil engineers.

To improve the membership level of the chapter the society promotes the benefits it offers including plant tours, affiliation with other organizations like Robotics International and Computer Automated Systems, he said.

"We want to emphasize a need to keep knowledge up because technology in the fields is always changing," Baird said.

Increased university enrollment has helped membership, he said.

"I imagine higher enrollment at the college probably helps a lot, but I would like to think it is also because of the efforts the society has put out in recruiting," Baird said.

Reservists get support from SIU-C

By Stephanie Strelor
Staff Writer

Student reservists can get the support they need from the Office of Transitional Programs if they are called up to serve in the Middle East.

There are about 1,200 reservists at SIU-C, including all branches of the reserves and National Guardsmen, according to Bill Patrick, coordinator of Veteran's Affairs.

"The institution as a whole will be supportive to all needs of the reservists," said Dan Nadler, assistant director of the Student Development Program.

Nadler, who works with students wanting to withdraw from the University, said that there normally can be a lot of consequences to withdrawing.

"We will handle each individual on a case by case basis so the student reservists won't be jeopardized in any way," Nadler said.

"We don't want any (reservist to suffer any negative consequences."

Staff members for Transitional Programs assess the student's financial obligations and their eligibility to be readmitted to the University.

Harvey Welch, vice president for Student Affairs, held a meeting Aug. 28 for those people involved in working with student withdrawals.

"We want to ensure that a person being called can withdraw without penalty," Welch said.

Nadler, who attended the meeting, said Welch also stressed the importance of being sensitive and supportive to each student reservist needing to withdraw.

If a student is called to serve, the Office of Transitional Programs will go through the normal process of withdrawing the student, depending on when the student is called.

The deadline for students to withdraw and still receive a full refund of their tuition and fees was Sept. 7.

The second deadline to withdraw without having to go through an academic dean is Oct. 15.

To receive a full refund of tuition and fees before Oct. 15, a student must file a petition of credit.

Nadler would then have the authority to grant the student a withdrawal on an individual basis.

After Oct. 15, the student will have to go through their academic dean to get a withdrawal.

Although a student reservist will have to go through the normal process of withdrawal, the Office of Transitional Programs will expedite the process as quickly as possible, Nadler said.

"We feel that we are prepared to assist those students (reservists) through the transition," Nadler said.

Student reservists with any questions regarding the withdrawal process can contact Nadler at the Office of Transitional Programs in the barracks T-40 behind Fanner Hall from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Superpowers give Hussein last chance to leave

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — The superpowers have apparently given Iraqi President Saddam Hussein a last chance to abandon his occupation of Kuwait before deciding further measures, including the use of military force, Arab analysts and diplomats said Monday.

President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev on Sunday declared themselves united against Saddam's aggression.

Their final communique issued after day-long talks in Helsinki Sunday, however, fell short of threatening a military strike against the Iraqi leader, if he failed to succumb to the will of the world community.

"The United States and the Soviet Union still prefer a political solution to the Persian Gulf crisis, including the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait and the restoration of its legitimate government," one analyst said.

After the summit, Bush said, "We did not discuss military options. ... And I would like to see this matter peacefully resolved."

Gorbachev, for his part, said, "The whole of our time together was spent on talking about this conflict in a mutual search for a political solution."

But in their joint statement, the leaders said, "However, we are determined to see this aggression end, and if the current steps fail to end it, we are prepared to consider additional ones consistent with the U.N. Charter."

"We must demonstrate beyond any doubt that aggression cannot and will not pay."

Bush said, "We want to see the message get through to Saddam Hussein. We want to see him do what the United Nations calls on him to do. And that statement can be interpreted any way you want to interpret it."

Saddam invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2 and declared it the 19th province of Iraq three weeks ago, despite a U.N. Security Council resolution stating that Iraq's occupation of Kuwait was null and void.

"The Helsinki summit constitutes a landmark in cooperation between the two superpowers since World War II in solving regional crises," the analyst added.

NATO urged to send troops

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker urged NATO allies Monday to send ground troops to the Persian Gulf to bolster the U.S. military deployment, but received no promises.

"We would welcome additional ground-based forces in the region should any of the countries see fit to send them," Baker said after addressing a meeting of NATO foreign ministers. "We would welcome them even if only symbolic."

NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner said the alliance's foreign ministers gave a "favorable response" to a long list of Gulf aid requests from Baker, but gave no vows of additional ground forces.

have urged America's European allies to send ground troops to the Gulf to demonstrate their commitment to forcing Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

Britain and France have already sent "ground-based forces" to the Gulf, and NATO member Turkey also has large numbers of ground troops in the region, Baker said.

The U.S. secretary of state said he had received promises of aid from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates totalling $12 billion through the end of the year.

Half the money, or $6 billion, will directly offset costs of the U.S. military deployment, with much of it representing "in-kind" contributions like food and water.

In testimony to Congress last week, Baker said the Pentagon's additional costs this year from the deployment would be about $6 billion.

Other money from the oil-rich states will go largely to helping Egypt, Jordan and Turkey, three countries particularly harmed by economic sanctions on Iraq.

Baker, who was slated to fly from Brussels to Moscow late Monday, also announced he would have Gulf crisis talks on Friday in Syria, a country long on the U.S. list of nations supporting terrorism.

Baker said President George Bush asked him to go to Damascus, because Syria's opposition to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait graphically "illustrates the isolation of Saddam Hussein."

The plea for ground troops was just one item on an eight-point list of requests from Baker to NATO allies during a briefing on Sunday.

OPEC making up for oil embargo

United Press International

Despite predictions of shortages, Saudi Arabia and other OPEC cartel members are starting to make up for oil lost in the U.N. embargo and supply should balance demand later this year, a major U.S. oil company forecast Monday.

"We're seeing the ramp-up of OPEC crude essentially balancing the needs of the near-term period," said an executive of a major oil company that closely tracks output of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

OPEC pumps more than a third of the world's crude and has most of the world's surge capacity for quickly increasing oil output.

"We think the system will balance out by the end of the year," said the executive, who commented on condition that he and his company remain unidentified.

He said the forecast, which has not as yet been extended into 1991, depends on the Persian Gulf crisis not further disrupting supplies and winter temperatures remaining an average coldness.

Following the U.N. embargo of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude made in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, OPEC output fell to about 20.6 million barrels of crude daily from 23.6 million barrels in July, the executive said.

He estimated the daily output of the cartel will rise to 21.8 million barrels in September and average 22.5 million barrels for the fourth quarter, the ceiling the cartel had agreed to in late July before Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion.

Wednesday, Assistant Energy secretary John Easton told Congress that worldwide commercial stocks of oil were sufficient to meet near-term demand.

"But we've got to be concerned about the availability of product during the quarter as demand for winter heating oil starts to rise," Easton testified before the House Government Operations Committee.

"Our assessment doesn't look as dire. We think Easton was too pessimistic," said the oil company executive.

His company's forecast probably gives more weight than the government to rising OPEC production and the dampening effect on demand that will result from the rise in oil prices.

Localized shortages of gasoline expected within next few months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. refineries should be able to meet demand for gasoline and heating oil this year, but there may be "localized shortages" of motor fuel in the months ahead, a federal energy expert told Congress Monday.

The warning by Calvin Kent, head of the Energy Information Administration, reflected growing concern about the loss of refined products from Kuwait and Iraq because of the international boycott imposed following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

An industry official agreed with Kent's assessment that, while supplies will be tight, U.S. refiners likely will be able to meet short-term demand for processed petroleum products.

However, he told a House panel new "clean fuel" requirements now pending in Congress would impose huge new costs and cut output from U.S. refiners already straining to provide adequate supplies. The industry has always opposed that aspect of the bill and the industry official urged lawmakers to re-evaluate the clean air bill's requirements in light of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Meanwhile, a private energy analyst criticized the Bush administration — specifically Energy Department officials — for worrying aloud in congressional testimony last week about possible shortages.

Edwin Rothschild, energy policy director for Citizen Action, a consumer organization, said the hand-wringing "throws oil on a blazing fire" and he joined several lawmakers in urging President Bush to calm shortage fears by opening up the government's Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Rothschild also contended that while primary petroleum stocks appear low — particularly gasoline — many industries are building up stockpiles as insurance against higher prices and possible supply problems later this year, creating "artificially high demand."

However, Kent, administrator of the federal energy statistical and analytical agency that is independent of the Energy Department, said some areas could experience gasoline shortages this winter and that jet fuel supplies also were dicey.

Even with U.S. refineries operating at about 95 percent of capacity this summer, he noted, gasoline stocks were at their lowest level since July 1988.

"Gasoline inventories are quite low and are only 5.9 million barrels above the minimum operating inventory," Kent told a House subcommittee on energy and power.

"When the minimum operating inventory is reached, localized problems may develop and shortages may appear."

SIU-C students take on healthy trend

by Chris Labyk
Wellness Center

Health impacts every aspect of our life and includes the ability to adapt and to function in our environment.

Without our health we can not pursue life's goals. At SIU-C we have comprehensive health care services which include clinical and dental service.

Additionally, the Wellness

To Your Health

Center, offers a variety of health promotion, education and prevention services.

A positive trend for students is that they are becoming more actively involved in personal health.

Students report they are exercising and becoming aware of personal habits that may have a negative impact on health.

Yet, it is often difficult to change a negative habit or maintain a healthy one when the environment is unresponsive.

Health issues are not only personal concerns, but global concerns. Pollution, addiction, unplanned pregnancy, communicable diseases are concerns that impact all of us.

SIU-C is fortunate to serve a diverse population and by working together we can plant seeds that will enhance the quality of life.

Students for Health, a student organization on campus, works with the Wellness Center and other components of the Student Health Program to transform related health ideas into action.

Free distribution of AIDS drug increasingly available for patients

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The free distribution of the promising AIDS drug DDC is being widened to include possibly thousands more patients, a drug company announced Monday.

In June, the Food and Drug Administration gave Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. of Nutley, N.J., permission to provide didoxycytidine, or DDC, to AIDS patients who cannot take the two currently available drugs to combat the AIDS virus. Those drugs are AZT, the only fully approved AIDS-fighting drug, and DDI, an experimental drug already offered through a similar expanded access program.

About 100 people with AIDS or advanced AIDS-related complex have been receiving DDC through that route, and another 18,000 patients are taking the drug without taking the strictly monitored tests required for government drug approval, said Paul Oestreicher, a Hoffmann-La Roche spokesman.

Now, the drug maker is dropping the requirement that a doctor must demonstrate that a patient cannot take DDI before being allowed to start DDC. That move will likely increase the number of patients in the expanded-access program. "It could potentially be thousands more," Oestreicher said.

So far, the most serious side effect of DDC has been pain in the nerves of the feet and hands. About 10 percent of patients eventually have to stop therapy because of side effects, Oestreicher said.

DDI can cause similar pain, but also poses the risk of potentially life-threatening inflammation of the pancreas. The side effects associated with AZT include bone marrow suppression and anemia, and more than one third of patients have to stop treatment due to side effects.

Preliminary results have indicated therapeutic strategies that alternate the various anti-viral drugs may prove to be less toxic than long-term treatment with one drug.

For patients to receive DDC outside traditional tests, their doctors must contact Hoffmann-La Roche. Patients of doctors who registered with the company earlier this summer will be able to start receiving DDC almost immediately, while it will take "several weeks" for those whose physicians must register now, company officials said.

The distribution of DDC, as well as DDI, is considered a prototype for the "parallel track" system of testing AIDS drugs proposed by the government in May.

The phone number for information on the DDC distribution plan is 1-800-DDC-21-HIV.

AIDS cases on upswing in Pacific

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The number of AIDS cases in 18 countries in the western Pacific has nearly doubled over the past year, the World Health Organization reported Monday.

Australia, Japan and New Zealand accounted for most of the reported cases of people afflicted with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome, said the report released at the annual WHO regional conference in Manila.

As of July 1, the WHO said 2,406 aids cases were reported in the region, up 46 percent from 1,650 a year ago.

The highest number of cases — 93 percent — were reported in Australia, Japan and New Zealand.

In the other 15 countries covered by the WHO regional headquarters, the number of cases increased to 160 this year from 89 over the past year, the report said.

"This indicates that the AIDS epidemic is spreading in the region," said the report.

It added that as reporting about the disease improves, more cases are likely to be discovered.

Australian AIDS cases accounted for 77 percent of the total, and 55 percent of those victims died, the report said.

BYU looking for respect after upset

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Brigham Young Coach LaVell Edwards can only hope Saturday night's 28-21 win over Miami will end controversy over whether the Cougars really deserve a shot at the national championship.

In 1984, when Brigham Young was undefeated and every other major college football team had at least two losses, critics claimed BYU didn't deserve the national title because the Cougars played few big-name teams.

But after Saturday night's result, 1990 could be the chance for BYU to convince the doubters it belongs among the elite. It also means the Cougars must beat the rest of their opponents.

"You're not going to win (the national title) if you don't go undefeated if you're BYU," said Edwards, whose team jumped 11 spots in the UPI ratings to No. 7. "And if you're going to win the championship, you're going to have to be ready to play every week."

Following the euphoria of the stunning upset over Miami, BYU's first victory over a top-ranked team, Edwards said his players need to have the same emotional level for Washington State next weekend.

"You really have to guard against an emotional letdown," Edwards said. "We can't think because we beat Miami and Washington State lost at Wyoming, this next game will be easy. Washington State had six turnovers at Wyoming, and I can guarantee they won't do that again."

BYU had its problems with mistakes against Miami. The Hurricanes had just converted the Cougars' fourth turnover of the first half — BYU had five turnovers in all — to move back ahead 14-10 with 1:45 left before halftime.

But then Ty Detmer guided the Cougars 75 yards in just 1:35, hitting Andy Boyce with a 2-yard touchdown pass — one of Detmer's three TD passes in the game — for a 17-14 halftime lead.

"That was an emotional lift," Edwards said. After four turnovers, it was good for the offense to go in and get one back that quickly. Doing what we did against a great football team, you just have to be very pleased."

Miami head coach Dennis Erickson said Detmer "is unbelievable. He is a great, great quarterback and showed it in the Miami ballgame. We had some breaks but couldn't take advantage of them. When you have five turnovers, you're supposed to score more than 21 points."

In the face-to-face showdown between the two Heisman Trophy candidates, Detmer outperformed Miami's Craig Erickson, completing 38 of 54 attempts for 406 yards and three touchdowns, with one interception. Erickson hit 28 of 52 passes for 299 yards with one interception and no scores in the ballgame.

"I felt like I played a good game," Detmer said. "Miami is good and any time you beat them you have to feel like you played well. I would give myself an 'A,' even though I usually am tough on myself."

"I don't think this one game will mean I'll win the Heisman Trophy. But now maybe people will realize that we are for real. We're a little better than some of them thought we were before the season started."

Bornstein to become new chief at ESPN

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — ESPN, without a president and chief executive officer since Roger Werner unexpectedly resigned Aug. 29, will promote Steve Bornstein to the cable network's top spot, United Press International learned Monday.

Television sources said Bornstein, ESPN's executive vice president for programming and production, will take over the largest basic cable network with more than 56 million subscribers around the country.

Bornstein, 38, was overseeing the network's program acquisitions and scheduling, programming, "SportsCenter" (a news program strictly with coverage of sports and with dealings of sports) news and highlight shows, engineering and operations departments. He joined ESPN early in the 1980 season as the programming coordination manager and became the No. 1 production presence at the network in May 1988.

Under Bornstein, ESPN has won five Emmy awards and 13 ACE awards for cable broadcast excellence.

Werner, the president and CEO for two seasons, resigned to head

Prime Ventures Inc., a new company being formed by television sports mogul Bill Daniels.

Werner's resignation came on the heels of unexpected losses in ESPN's first year of an extensive four-season, $400 million major league baseball season package. Werner now predicts a loss of $40 million this season, about $10 million more than the original forecast.

ESPN, which began televising National Football League games in 1987, says it will break even this year on its professional football investment. The decade-old network paid $446 million for three years of half-season football coverage.

"We have a group of people at ESPN who love what they're doing, and we will continue to capitalize on it all," Bornstein said before the 1990 major league baseball season.

The network, which had pretax 1989 earnings of more than $100 million, expects profits short of that number.

"ESPN is extremely well positioned to have another 10 years of growth, at least," Werner said.

Irish again open ranked No. 1 in college football

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Notre Dame begins this football season the same way it did the last one — ranked No. 1 in the nation and facing Michigan.

The Irish risk a 17-game home win streak in Saturday night's nationally televised contest against the fifth-ranked Wolverines. The game marks the debut of Gary Moeller as Michigan's coach in place of Bo Schembechler, who retired after 21 years on the Wolverine sidelines.

Notre Dame moved from No. 2 into the top spot after Brigham Young upset Miami, 28-23, dropping the defending national champion Hurricane from first to 10th. The Irish won 15 straight games as the nation's top-rated team until losing 27-10 at Miami last season, a defeat that cost them the national title.

Taking over the top spot this early in the season means little to Irish coach Lou Holtz, who still argues his 1989 team deserved the national title for playing a tougher schedule and beating No. 1 Colorado in the Orange Bowl.

"I can understand why Miami won the national championship. I cannot understand why we did not," he said. "We don't have about a national championship until the ninth or 10th game. Any time you do that before is a little ridiculous. You don't win a national championship. You just wake up one day and you are national champions."

A month of denials and answering charges will finally give way to gridiron action for the Irish, targets of four separate preseason controversies. Holtz and players denied allegations of steroid use by a former player unhappy at being called a coward in a book by Holtz. The coach also denied wrongdoing in connection with an NCAA probe into the Minnesota football program, which he left in 1983 to join the Irish. Holtz also denied he seeks an NFL coaching job this season and denied charges of illegal recruiting payoffs in running back Tony Brooks made in a book by Gary Switzer.

Holtz does not deny that he worries about his teams despite their traditional dominance of recruiting and consistent winning tradition. His concerns now are offense, where sophomore Erick Mirer replaces departed Tony Rice and more emphasis is placed on the passing game.

This is the farthest I've ever seen an offensive team from being ready for an opening half game," Holtz said. "We haven't been very productive in our scrimmages. We've had no consistency or continuity. It's difficult to be optimistic when you look at the teams we play."

The Irish offensive line has struggled, with center Mike Heldt suffering a hip pointer and tackle Justin Hall hurt by ankle and groin injuries. But both players are expected to be ready for Michigan, a team Holtz expects to play with inspiration because of Moeller's debut.

"Gary Moeller is an outstanding coach," Holtz said. "They have the same football team; they had last year. If Bo Schembechler picked him, he must be good."

"It's a very exciting time for me," Moeller said. "It's a little scary. It will be hard replacing Bo Schembechler. Everybody looks at you differently now but it's the position, not the man."

The Irish have beaten Michigan three straight times, allowing the Wolverines only 94 yards on 34 rushes last year in a 24-19 victory. Raghib Ismail returned kickoffs 89 and 92 yards for touchdowns to spark Notre Dame's triumph.

"We will not kick him the ball," Moeller said. "The trouble is he is like Willie Mays in centerfield. He can go get that ball."

Tribe swipes first game of doubleheader from Sox 3-2

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Carlos Baerga walked with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night to give the Cleveland Indians a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the first game of a doubleheader.

Baerga, batting for Felix Fernandez, brought in Alex Cole who pinch ran for Sandy Alomar, who had walked.

Doug Jones, who earned the victory with one inning of blissful relief of Greg Swandell, Barry Jones, who started the ninth, took the loss and fell to 11-2 on the season.

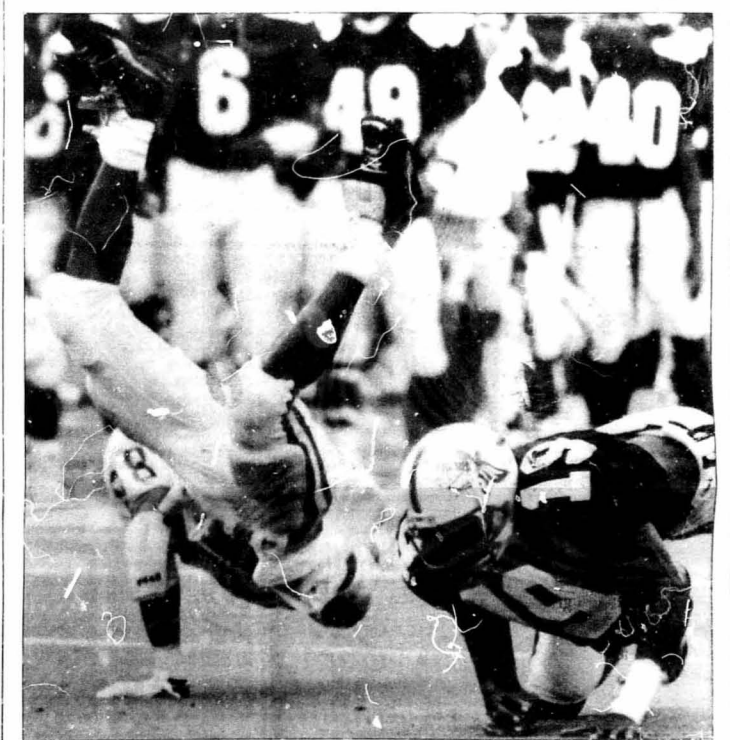

With one out in the ninth, Jones walked Alomar and gave up a single to Brook Jacoby that moved Cole to third. Tom Brookens was walked intentionally before Baerga came to the plate.

Chicago starter Greg Hibbard allowed two runs and eight hits and one walk, while striking out four before Jones relieved to started the ninth.

Swandell permitted six hits in eight plus innings before giving way to Jones with none out and a runner on second in the ninth.

Carlton Fisk gave the White Sox a 1-0 lead with a solo home run in the second. Fisk added to his major league record for home runs by a catcher with his 331st from that position.

Cleveland tied it in the sixth when Chris James knocked in Stan Jefferson from third with a bloop hit into short right field. Jefferson, who had a career high four-hit game and raised his average from .131 to .185 doubled and moved to third on a sacrifice by Jerry Browne.

Another one bites the rug

Indiana State Sycamore Charles Swann is upended in Saturday's game at McAndrew

Stadium. Saluki senior defensive back Tim Wells is on hand to see the fall.

Star team after the Salukis reached the NIT last season. Mahan's squad, which went 7-1, included such Division I-A stars as Creighton's Bob Harstad, Rutgers' Keith Hughes and Southern Mississippi's Clarence Weatherspoon.

Mahan, who traveled to Germany, France and Switzerland split time in the NIT team's backcourt with North Carolina State star Chris Corchiani.

In a game against Vevey, Switzerland, Mahan poured in 18 points including three of four on three-point attempts and five assists while playing only half the game.

"I gave me confidence in knowing what I can do," Mahan said. "I improved my confidence by playing with good Division I ballplayers."

This season the Salukis will play in the Old Style Classic in which the squad could play De Paul, meaning Mahan could matchup with NIT all-star teammate Stephen Howard.

"I told him we would be up there trying to win it," Mahan said with a laugh. "It would be a good showdown between us."

Ashaf Amaya, the Salukis 6-foot-8 starting sophomore forward, stayed in the states for his summer action, but the competition was just as fierce. Amaya was selected to play on the North team at the Olympic Festival in Minneapolis, Minn., in July.

The Salukis 'Freshman of the Year' in the Missouri Valley Conference for 1990 scored 34 points and ripped down 17 rebounds while starting his first two contests. Amaya helped his squad to the gold medal game in which they lost, his squad finished the festival 3-1 with Amaya averaging 11.4 points per game and a silver medal.

"I felt a little uncomfortable at first," Amaya said. "But I fit in with the team when we started playing."

"It was a very good experience playing with players at that high level and getting some exposure. We had a well rounded team."

...Mirko Pavlovic, the newest Saluki hoopster to see summer competition, is a 6-foot-7 freshman recruit out of Belgrade, Yugoslavia. He competed for his country's Junior National team, which traveled to Greece, Holland and Bulgaria, until recently when he came to SIU-C.

Pavlovic, who chose SIU-C because it has a quality flight program in addition to the basketball program has a solid English speaking background. He had English in school at home, but he has had some slight problems at SIU-C.

"My mother and sister speak English," Pavlovic said. "But I have some problems understanding here, especially in my classes."

Herrin and the Saluki players said Pavlovic has no problems on the basketball court.

"He got great recognition as a defensive halfplayer," Herrin said. "He will fill in and help our program."

"He is capable of helping us this year," Shipley said. "He has impressed me with the other skills he has. I think he will bend right in with our team."

Don't be dead certain you're too young to have a heart attack.

Last year 105,000 Americans under age 65 died of heart attacks. In fact, 45 percent of all heart attacks happen to people younger than 65. If you're old enough to be concerned about heart disease, be wise enough to take the steps recommended by the American Heart Association to reduce your risk. Don't smoke. Reduce the fat and cholesterol in your diet. And control high blood pressure. Act now. Because it's never too early to start taking care of yourself.
