Bond stresses need for college changes

By Carl Flowers
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The educational system as it stands "will not do" and is in need of great revision, Julian Bond told SIU students Monday evening.

Bond, a member of the Georgia legislature, said a university education has for too long been a "privilege of the few, whereas it should be a right of the many."

Bond's appearance before about 700 persons was part of a series of lectures sponsored by the Humanities Council and supported by the Academic Excellence Program.

Bond, elected in 1966, pointed to the blacks in the audience, and said education should be more than pride in blackness and Swahili lessons. The university curriculum should be a means by which war and racism are stifled," he said. "Until then, the university system will be in doubt," he added.

Prior to the lecture on "Politics and Humanism," Bond gave his thoughts on the country's political system.

Politics, Bond said, is a profession which decides what other professions will do. He called politics an "old and honorable profession" and said "politics has the finest body of men money can buy."

Bond said it is often difficult for the public to tell if politicians are telling the truth, but gave the audience a clue for determining when politicians are not being truthful.

"Hands," he said, "tell whether truth is being told."

He gave examples of hand gestures used by most politicians, and specifically by President Nixon, which he called "innane."

On the issue of President Nixon and his current problems, Bond called the '68 and '72 elections "massive manipulations of the American minds which made the mundane magnificent."

"Nixon," Bond said, "has tarred the entire profession with a single stroke."

A graduate of Morehouse College, Bond gained national prominence in 1968 when he became the youngest man and first black to be nominated for the vice presidency of the United States.

Bond will appear in a seminar with LA&S students at 9 a.m. Tuesday in Brown Auditorium and will attend a luncheon at the Student Center in the afternoon.

Nixon signs bill raising minimum wage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Legislation raising the federal minimum wage in stages from $1.60 to $2.30 an hour was signed into law Monday by President Nixon.

Nixon had vetoed similar legislation last year, and voiced reservations about the measure sent him by Congress. But he said he was signing it because "raising the minimum wage is now a matter of justice that can no longer be fairly delayed."

The measure raises the minimum wage for 36 million workers covered under the 1966 minimum wage law from $1.60 to $2.00 on May 1, with other increases boosting it to $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1976. The $2.30 rate will be effective for all affected workers by 1978.

In addition, the legislation extends federal minimum wage and overtime requirements to 7.4 million additional workers.

When fully effective, the new law will cover 56 million workers.

Nixon signed the bill in his oval office, telling Labor Secretary Peter Brennan, who was seated alongside, that "we wouldn't have it without you."

In a written statement distributed by the White House, Nixon said the new wage schedule fits his criteria for "reasonable increases...phased in so that the very people such increases are intended to help do not find themselves suddenly priced out of the job market."

He said Congress did not go as far as he wanted in protecting the training and work opportunities for youth and said the bill creates unemployment risks for domestic workers.

But, he added, the legislation "on the whole...contains more good than bad and I have concluded that the best interests of American people will be served by signing it into law."

The new coverage for domestic minimum wage was enacted eight years ago.

The additional coverage goes to five million federal, state and local employees, one million domestics and additional retail store employees, service industry employees and farm workers.

The minimum wage increases would be phased in on this schedule:

Workers who had coverage before 1966, an estimated 36 million, would have a $2 floor May 1, $2.10 Jan. 1, 1975 and $2.30 Jan. 1, 1976.

Those brought under coverage by the 1966 act and the present one $1.90 May 1, $2 Jan. 1, 1975; $2.20 Jan. 1, 1976, and $2.30 Jan. 1, 1977.

Farm workers, now with a $1.30 floor, $1.60 May 1, $1.80 Jan. 1, 1975; $2 Jan. 1, 1976; $2.20 Jan. 1, 1977, and $2.30 Jan. 1, 1978.

The new coverage for domestic employees applies to those who work more than eight hours a week, whether for one or more employer, or who work as much as 50 hours in a calendar quarter. However, casual babysitters, companions for elderly or ailing persons and "live-in" domestics are exempt.

Full-time students may be employed for no more than 20 hours a week at 85 per cent of the regular wage floor.

University policy uncertain

Amount of student pay hike debated

By Randy McCarthy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU officials are considering whether to increase student workers' base pay by 10 cents or 40 cents an hour because of a new minimum wage bill signed into law Monday by President Nixon.

That was the word Monday from Raymond DeJarnett, assistant director of the Office of Student Work and Financial Decision.

He said no decision had been made on whether the University will exercise an option in the law that permits paying some student workers less than the new $2 minimum, required effective May 1.

The option permits full-time students to be employed for not more than 20 hours a week at 85 per cent of the $2 minimum. This means these students could be paid $1.70, 10 cents more than the current $1.60 minimum wage.

"Nothing definite has been decided about which option we will follow," said DeJarnett. "But I doubt if we'll go the 85 per cent route because it will cause us too much trouble if we did."

DeJarnett said a decision must be made by the University by the beginning of next week so the increase in base wages can be programmed with Data Processing.

Regardless of which option is chosen, the wage boost won't go into effect at SIU before June 1 because of paperwork involved in the changeover, DeJarnett said.

The University should have enough funds to meet the increased payroll through June 30, DeJarnett said, but more money will be needed to meet future costs.

"The rest of the year will be all right. The problem is what happens next year—starting July 1," he said. "If the amount remains the same and the rate goes up then we'll have to buy less hours or less people."

Frank Adams, director of student work and financial assistance, last week estimated SIU will need $750,000 to $1 million in extra money from the General Assembly to maintain the present number of student workers and the number of hours worked.

DeJarnett said a decision also must be made on whether student workers who now are paid more than the minimum wage will receive a proportionate increase in their pay.

"The only thing that's affected is that a worker can't be paid less than (the minimum wage)," he said. "Those above that don't have to be increased."

The recommendation from the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance will be to pay student workers according to a sliding scale—if the money is available, DeJarnett said.

SIU student dies in wreck near spillway

An SIU student was killed early Saturday morning in a one-car accident near the Crab Orchard lake Spillway.

George B. Cormack Jr., of 200 S. East Ave., Oak Park, was dead on arrival at Doctors Memorial Hospital.

Three other persons in the car were injured. They are Stephen Schmidt, 21, of Hoffman Estates, Robert J. Cormack, 20, of Oak Park and Marcella A. Vancil, 22, a student from ISU of Normal.

Cormack, a cousin of the victim, was listed in satisfactory condition at Doctors Hospital Monday. He was later transferred to a hospital in Chicago.

Ms. Vancil was listed in satisfactory condition at the SIU infirmary Monday. Schmidt was treated at Doctors Hospital after the accident and released.

The accident occurred shortly before 3 a.m. Saturday about three miles southeast of Illinois 13 on the Crab Orchard Lake road.

The car, driven by Schmidt, reportedly ran off the road, struck a ditch and flipped several times.

A funeral mass for Cormack will be said at 10 a.m. Monday at the Edmund Church in Oak Park. Burial will be in the Queen of Heaven Cemetery in Hillside.

Cormack is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cormack, his sisters, Jane Gerathity and Mary Pat Cormack, and his paternal grandmother, Helen Cormack.

Firemen seeking cause of blaze

Carbondale Fire Department officials Monday were trying to determine cause of a blaze that destroyed an auto repair shop on Route 51 North the day before.

North Town Motors was destroyed early Sunday when fire ripped through a building, which also houses several other businesses, said Mrs. Bill Colp, of 1210 W. Carter St., whose husband owns the building.

The blaze started shortly before 4 a.m., fire officials said. As of Monday, fire officials said they have not been able to determine cause of the blaze.

Fire officials said they are waiting until the investigation is over before they release any damage estimates.

Mrs. Colp said the building was insured.

Neely coed raped

A coed was raped about 10:30 p.m. Friday near the East Side dorms, SIU police said Monday.

The victim, a resident of Neely Hall, was accosted as she walked to a party at the Wall Street Quadrangles, police added.

Police are still investigating the incident, and would not release any other information, they said Monday.

Report on terminations due today

Statements concerning terminated faculty and current SIU administrative structure will be presented to the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

Faculty Senate will convene in the Student Center Mississippi Room at 1:45 p.m. following an informal reception for SIU Faculty President Hiram Lesar at 1:15 p.m.

A report calling on the University to drop its class action suit against terminated faculty and make every possible effort to retain tenured faculty is to be submitted by the senate's Committee to Seek Help for Terminated Faculty Members.

The committee's report also urges prompt hearings for terminated faculty alleging discrimination or lack of due process and extending notice to terminated faculty for at least six more months, to comply with their normal contracts.

A statement criticizing the present SIU administrative structure as inefficient and "generally debilitating to the University" will be read by Ronald Bishop, chairman of the Department of Administrative Sciences and member of the senate's Executive Officer-Board of Trustee Relationships committee.

The senate committee's statement claims the arrangement of presidents of SIU-C and SIU-E as well as chief of board staff reporting directly to the board "imposes serious constraints" and "substantially limits the leadership potentials of individuals occupying the key offices."

Two more "durable" alternatives are recommended for consideration in the statement.

Creation of a completely centralized authority vested in one chief executive officer for both Carbondale and Edwardsville is one of the committee's recommendations. The other alternative in the statement suggests complete separation of the two campuses, possibly with separate boards of trustees.

In other business, Vernon Anderson, professor of foreign languages, will present two resolutions on behalf of terminated faculty members. One resolution calls for Faculty Senate endorsement of an open and published official audit of all University accounts.

Formation of a committee to investigate and evaluate the performance of Keith Leasure as SIU Vice President for Academic Affairs will be Anderson's second proposal.

The senate will also hear committee reports on elections, undergraduate education policy-continuing education, and faculty status and welfare.

Wife charged in wounding of officer-husband Saturday

The wife of a Carbondale police detective was charged with aggravated battery Monday after the shooting of her husband, officers said.

Barbara Brandon, 38, was charged in Jackson County Circuit Court in connection with an incident Saturday afternoon in which her husband, Ralph Brandon, was shot in the left knee, said Police Chief Joe Dakin.

Brandon, who is also an instructor in police-community relations in the SIU

Administration of Justice Department, was reported in satisfactory condition at Doctors Memorial Hospital.

The Brandons had been living apart, said Dakin, and a domestic quarrel started after Mrs. Brandon came to her husband's apartment unexpectedly.

Mrs. Brandon went into her husband's bedroom, took his .38-caliber automatic pistol off the dresser and shot him in the left knee, Dakin said.

Police said they found two empty bullet casings on the floor in Brandon's bedroom. One bullet hit Brandon, they added.

She was taken to city jail and later transferred to Jackson County Jail. Mrs. Brandon was later released on $1,500 bond.

No trial date has been set.

Candidates debate need for school cuts

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The five candidates for the three vacancies on the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education voiced disagreement Monday night over whether there is a need for cutbacks in school programs.

During an "open forum" in the Lincoln Junior High lunchroom sponsored by the Carbondale PTA, the candidates were asked how they felt "educational money can be redistributed to the greatest advantage of the student" with educational funding "at a premium."

Candidate Robert Artz, SIU legal counsel, said educational funding is "very much at a premium. But as far as I know, there are no cutbacks coming," he said.

Artz said the high school program should involve "input by all segments of the school district."

William Coracy, owner of B and A Travel Service, said there was enough growth in the city of Carbondale to "bring up the tax base," and there are "four or five companies interested in coming here."

He said with these boosts to the tax base, cutbacks in school curriculum will not be needed. "We can still have an all-around curriculum."

Board secretary Charles Hinder-sman, dean of the SIU School of Business and the only incumbent board candidate, said the school district "must adjust to an entirely different situation."

"We've been used to state and federal funding," Hinder-sman said. "But Michael Bakalis has said educational funding is at a premium. We should be able to tell what different programs cost. No doubt there's going to have to be some curtailment somewhere."

Hinder-
sman said CCHS "has been trying to be an almost mini-junior college. We're trying to do too much," he said. "I insisted on a public hearing on curriculum. Some programs may have to be curtailed or cut."

Carol McDermott, a counselor at the SIU Clinical Center, said educational systems are having a problem with decreasing income and increasing costs. "We must demand a full release of funds tied up in the legislature," she said.

She said the main priority should be a "good teaching staff." Then the school could "eliminate certain programs, according to low student interest and low priority." We need a wide variety of curriculum," she said.

Mary Walker, staff member of the SIU Health Service, said the curriculum must be altered as the needs of the students change. "Needs do change, and we must evaluate those needs often," she said.

The candidates for the April 14 election were also asked how they would rectify the "lack of communication" between the board and the community.

Ms. Walker said "When there is an important message which the community should know about, it should be properly sent so the parent receives it."

She said the board should "seek ways of communicating that the parent would be willing to listen to."

Ms. McDermott said communication is a two-way street. "The board meetings are open, and they are well-publicized," she said. "One of the duties of a board member should be as liaison between the school and the community."

Hinder-
sman said the "lack of communication" may be real, but "I hope it's not the board's fault. We have always urged the administration to help communicate and to be open to the people."

Coracy cited the news media as a source of information. "The townspeople have access to any of the board's information," he said.

Artz said "there could be better communication, the question is how." One of the basic policies the board could have in communication is "have it in writing." The rationale of a board decision and who's involved should all be written out," he said.

Lack of interest, news media blamed for school problem

By John Russell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Lack of interest on the part of parents, the school board and the local news media are the cause of communications problems within the elementary school system, according to candidates for the two openings on the board.

Candidates Lawrence Weisman, David Rosenthal, Mrs. Duane Lanchester and Charles Reno spoke at a "meet the candidates" session Monday night at Lincoln Junior High School. They talked on both the communications problem and the question of school budgeting.

The candidates had four minutes to speak to the audience of about 60 persons on the questions of how to distribute educational funding to the advantage of the students and how to improve board communications.

Weisman suggested schools consolidate a number of classes and seek out further state funding in order to relieve economic woes. On the communications question, Weisman said the board should make its agenda available to the public and should establish a board newsletter.

Rosenthal blamed the communications gap on the lack of parental interest and poor coverage by the news media. He said the time to review economic questions is when the budget is being evaluated, and said the board has recently done this.

Mrs. Lanchester said teachers should be consulted on programs that may have to be cut because of school funding problems, and said community volunteers should be found to help out in the schools. She said communications could be improved if the community became more involved in the board's decisions.

Reno said teachers may be able to find materials that could cut budget costs and new educational programs should be studied by the board. Reno said persons only become involved in the board during times of crisis, and said the news media should do a better job covering the board's work.

The candidates also fielded questions from the audience covering a number of issues.

South blasted by tornadoes

By Louise Cook
Associated Press Writer

As new tornadoes struck the South Monday, farmers reported they had lost several million dollars worth of animals, crops and supplies in last week's vicious storms. But all agreed that the storm damage wasn't nearly as severe as it could have been.

An Associated Press survey of damage showed most spring crops had not been planted when the tornadoes struck 11 states and Canada, killing more than 300 persons and leaving thousands homeless. Federal officials estimate damage to all kinds of insured property is over half a billion dollars.

Meanwhile, new tornadoes struck Tennessee and Georgia Monday, causing some damage. There were no reported injuries.

One twister struck the White Way shopping center in Athens, Tenn., destroying a discount store and overturning several cars in the parking lot. It also damaged an elementary school roof.

Other tornadoes touched down in north Georgia. One unroofed a carpet mill near Dalton and another destroyed chicken houses near Canton. No injuries were reported.

Just after midnight Monday, a tornado struck Lexington, Tenn., causing some property damage.

The first complete American Red Cross survey of the tornado disaster areas showed 21,451 dwellings, mobile homes, farm buildings and small businesses damaged or destroyed by the tornadoes. The survey showed 3,770 persons injured, with 1,117 requiring hospitalization.

Along the tornadoes' 1,000 mile path from Alabama to the Canadian border, 19,807 families—some 70,000 persons—suffered storm losses, the Red Cross said. Ohio was the hardest hit with 4,897 families suffering losses in five counties. Kentucky was next with 4,592 families in 20 counties suffering losses.

Throughout the affected areas, cleanup operations continued Monday and funerals were held for some of the dead.

Steps taken to set up city merit board

The Carbondale City Council Monday night authorized preparation of an ordinance establishing a merit board for all city employees except policemen and firemen.

Council action came after City Manager Carroll Fry requested that appointments be made to the personnel board, the present system for city employees to channel their grievances.

Under the personnel board system, a city employee takes his grievance to the board. The board then makes a recommendation to the city manager.

Council members complained that it was redundant for a board to recommend to the city manager action on a grievance which may have originated with the city manager.

Councilman Hans Fischer said the employee goes "around in a circle" under the present system. If an employee is dismissed by the city manager and the employee appeals the action to the board, any recommendations on the dismissal appeal go back to the city manager.

Fry agreed with the weakness of the present system and backed a proposal setting up a merit board with an equitable grievance procedure.

Fischer said a board should be set up separate from the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, which handles complaints from firemen and policemen. He added that the two boards could be combined later if the work of both boards is similar.

The council unanimously approved Fischer's motion to direct Fry to draft an ordinance setting up a separate merit board for city employees.

The council also began the yearly job of reviewing the budget for the upcoming year.

As the meeting progressed at a late hour, council members were considering the $4,226,932 proposed for capital improvements in the city. Also scheduled for council consideration was the $2,265,752 general fund section of the operating budget which includes city departments and city-appointed boards.

It's only money

To the Daily Egyptian:

At the first meeting of the Student Senate, April 3, the meeting was disrupted by a group of people representing The Black Affairs Council.

It seems that black affairs is not happy with receiving only $10,000 dollars for their activities. Although this is nearly one-twelfth of the total amount of money allocated to Student Activities and at least $1,500 more than any other student group except student government activities, Inter-Greek Council, and WIDB they are still not satisfied.

One young lady pointed out that some of the money went to pay student workers such as secretaries, and that black people at this university worked for their tuition and fees, they didn't get money from mom and dad. So they should have their tuition and fees paid by money that I paid for fees? What do I get for my dollars worth?

I get slandered to my face in front of my peers. One "gentleman" stated to V.P. Kania, that Gay Liberation was receiving $2,600 dollars from the student activities (which is not true, Gay Lib may get $250 if we're lucky) and then proceeded to ask, "How many black freaks (meaning homosexuals) do you see?" If this gentleman is reading this, I would like to inform him that the secretary of our organization is black and that there are quite a few more in the organization. Does your organization have a caucasian member?

Not that I do not understand black people's frustration. Would you, the reader, rather be called a nigger or a faggot?

So, to the Black Affairs Council, I say, "Take our $250 allotment from Student Activities. Maybe when you're rich and hated like the bureaucrats of today you will understand that you got what you wanted, but not what you needed."

As for Gay Lib, there will be no Gay Heritage week telling of our illustrious roots such as Walt Whitman, Julius Caesar, and Plato. Nor will we try to be heterosexual. We will spend our time trying to show people that we do not expect them to give us everything they have, and that we don't wish to insult them or blame them for all our problems. We will spend our time trying to end persecution and hostilities, not perpetuate them.

I will vote for an increase, if the finance committee recommends it. You may gain some money but have lost some of the respect in a lot of people's eyes, my friends. I wonder if you can pay the price, because I think you've lost a lot more than you may gain.

ERA really needed

To the Daily Egyptian:

A recent editorial in the Daily Egyptian suggested that the Equal Rights Amendment was unnecessary, given the existence of legislation such as Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Fifth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. Although this legislation exists, society continues to discriminate against women. Few would deny that this discrimination is especially prevalent in employment. For example, in 1970 the median income for women teaching in colleges and universities was $6,166, the median income for men in comparable positions was $11,313. In 1963 the President's Commission on the Status of Women stated that equal rights for both males and females was implicit in the 14th Amendment due process and equal protection clauses. The Commission urged the Supreme Court to affirm this principle in its decisions. One way for the Court to do this would be to declare suspect, classifications based on sex. However, in the 11 years since the Commission's report the Supreme Court, with one exception, has failed to consider sex as a suspect classification. Obviously legislative enactments and Supreme Court pronouncements have failed to provide equal opportunities for women. Therefore, a constitutional amendment is necessary.

The ERA would provide a single national standard, governing the legal status of women. Classification on the basis of sex would be forbidden. Any situation in which men or women are excluded simply because they are members of one sex or another negates one of the basic values of society, i.e., individuality. Barriers to discrimination on the basis of race, creed or religion have a constitutional basis. Why not sex?

Despite the contentions of some, the ERA is not a radical demand. It has received support from the League of Women Voters, the AFL-CIO and even Richard Nixon. In urging the ratification of this amendment, women are not asking for too much nor are they "beating a dead horse."

Marking time between nostalgia

The 50s craze is nostalgically sweeping the country. Television has added "Happy Days" to its repertoire and the musical "Grease" is bringing down the house wherever it goes. The kids at MIT have taken up ballroom dancing and the saddle shoe business has never been better.

Unfortunately, I don't remember the 50s, having still been under the shield of my mother's protective shadow. But... I do remember the 60s. And when the 60s revival comes, I'll be ready.

Out of the closet will come the spike heels and the flats, the dyed-to-match sweaters and skirts and the impossible to iron, buttoned-down collar, oxford cloth, monogrammed shirts. I'll ask my grandmother, neighbors, and friends to save their orange juice cans so I can get the proper height on my bubble hair-do. Then I'll resurrect the spraynet and teasing brush from the medicine closet so that my hair will stay in lacquered place.

Back will come to the colleges and universities, the protective rules and regulations which kept the young girls safe and the boys out of trouble. Oh, for the return of the 11 p.m. bedcheck and the late-minute review board.

All dorm meals will be taken in full dress regalia, except for Saturday evening when jeans will be permitted. Furthermore, no slacks will be worn to classes by careless business students, unaware of proper business decorum.

Liquor will be restricted to adults only. The corn fields and river banks will again be littered with empty cans and bottles, leftovers from a weekend kegger. Out will come the matronly housemother smiling at the "trying to be sober" young women filing past her door.

Sex will take to the backseat of the cars, as "No public affection" will be allowed in the lobby or entrance to the dormitory. An occasional panty raid in cold weather will liven up the evening, however, and special dormitory open houses will allow both men and women an opportunity to visit each other's room. (Doors will remain open at all times!)

Smokey Robinson and the Miracles will be back highlighting the weekly campus mixer. A great place to meet people, the mixer's the number one spot to go if your ego needs boosting and you've had a drink before entering.

The Peace Corp, civil rights and American education will become our pet crusades once more... and Viet Nam will just be a name on the globe.

Ah yes, the 60s... I can't wait.

Scatological vandalism of the English language

To the Daily Egyptian:

The responses to my letter of April 3 have been interesting, but hardly seem to have any bearing on my arguments against the use of the "person" terminology as substitutes in titles. To treat them in order, Courtner declines my request, though by no means respectfully; duels were once fought over less. As it is, his ideas must stand on their own inherent virtues, without benefit of such athletic prowess as he may possess.

The principal weapon Courtner employs in his devastating assault on the chairman, ombudsman, etc. titles is the charge that these are the sexist instruments of the enslavement of humanity and the speculation that those who hold to traditions of this sort foster an attitude directly responsible for the declining enrollments in those disciplines. (The last is my interpretation of what he meant to say rather than what he actually said; please see below.)

Having thus summarized his arguments, permit me to examine it in more detail. I cannot accept his conclusion that the words in question are of an enslaving nature; their origin seems almost blatantly descriptive—and solely descriptive. This view also explains the genesis of the corresponding "woman" terminology, although the opinions of an etymologist would be most welcome to clarify the matter. However, as Courtner has indicated, language evolves. With the metamorphosis of the "man" terminology from adjective to title to a nonsexual definition for any such person, the "woman" terms fell into disuse and are indeed on the decline. Conceding, though only for the sake of argument, that there may have been a "sexist" origin for the titles, the fact remains that these terms have already evolved into a nonsexual definition. The dissonant "person" terminology is thus redundancy at best—and an unappetizing one at that.

I hold, however, the view that the "man" terminology is sexist only because Courtner has chosen—for whatever reasons of his own—to yield to the opinions of a special interest group which is faddishly opposed to the appearance of the word "man" anywhere in English language. The terms in question are sexist solely because they're so-labelled. Because they bear that label, are they then exempted and censured from normal rational thought, to be thrown to the whims of the mob—a mob of which only those opposed to such terms are likely to take action? I think not! The practice of labelling, like assassination, is a convenience for handling adversaries without handling their arguments; whether consciously determined or not, this custom of magic names is no more than despicable, an anathema to the rational mind, a device which results in fadism, irresponsibility, and the tyranny of thoughtlessness and fear. Where is the substantiation of his charge? The author is content with prestidigitation, the production of the magic word, "Sexism!" Having done so, he can now ignore me; I presume I should dig in for the next bout of McCarthyism.

Courtner further states, "Perhaps the attitude that modern American humanity must subvert itself to traditional English terminology and style says a great deal about the declining enrollments in academic areas which have perpetrated that attitude." His use of the verb, "subvert", is most curious; I'm sorry to hear that the number of journalism students is on the decline, but scarcely see what bearing that may have on the matter. It is, of course, precisely the attitude to which I am so vehemently opposed. Perhaps he meant to say, "subject"? In either case, I think I can safely assert the opinion that both slovenliness and strictness in the matter of traditional English forms are among the most minor of factors contributing to a declining enrollment.

Nor do I assert that the language should remain inviolate; this generalization from the specific case I raised is an erroneous impression. The goal of language is communication, and this goal is hindered by the casual, ill-considered adoption of every jingoism that arises to obliterate whatever phantoms its creators dread. The burial of these spirits is neither a desirable aim, nor a virtue, but serves only to fertilize the ground for their ultimate resurrection; it is far better to understand the history of such matters, to understand the objections to such ideas, and to incorporate that knowledge within the boundaries of the existing language than to attempt to conceal it, no matter how ugly it is. This spectre of sexism is, in this case, the figment of an obsessed and defensive imagination rather than of deliberate thought.

In short, Courtner and the Daily Egyptian staff (unless he used the 'imperial we') have elected the convenience of labelling to argument in responding to my statements; they have found it preferable to refute apparitions rather than charges, to oppose stereotypes rather than ideas, and to regard demonstrations of beauty and versatility in the existing language as naught but megalomaniacal aspirations to omnipotence.

Similarly, Lorek's letter of April 6 has, if only by intimation, labelled me a bigot, a timorous popinjay, a racist, and "...an accident of chromosomes", in that order. (The last is not necessarily the case—there are data available that suggest that sex determination is not nearly so haphazard a process as was once believed: a deficiency in her biological training.) She has chosen for her arguments: the position that I am anxiously nursing my own fragile ego by subjugating women and, through analogy, blacks; the generalization that the titles I have defended are demeaning to all women (or at least to those who take the time to consider the matter); and the theory that such usage implicitly implies the belief that women must assume 'male' characteristics to be effective in positions of authority. I am happy to say that she need not fret on my account. I denounce such theory on general principle; I speak solely for myself and claim no such universal consensus of opinion; and I have no great concern for anyone's ego—my own, hers, male, female, or racial; I will, and have, punctured any and all of the above on suitable occasion. Lorek is correct in her criticism of my choice of the phrase, "...perfectly good existing terms..." with its ambiguous usage of "good", and I will take this opportunity to amend the phrase to "...perfectly appropriate existing terms..." the meaning I had meant to convey. I apologize for the ambiguity.

Lastly, as for her regret that I have not yet discovered the importance of being, "...a 'person' first..." (sic), and a man second, it is more important that I am a reasoning entity bent on discerning and understanding the phenomena of the Universe than any trivia associated with the pigmentation of my integument, the nature of my gonads, or the form of my body; the conditions of my existence outweigh the virtue of being a person in the same degree that a whale outweighs a microbe (at standard temperature and pressure)—nor does this state preclude the usage of the acceptable and correct "man" terms.

On such grounds as have thus far been presented on its behalf, the "person" terminology remains a cacophonous obscenity born of the irresponsible negligence and thoughtlessness of its adherents and nothing better than scatological vandalism of the English language.

Look in the mirror, Mr. Ransom

To the Daily Egyptian:

Yes, the review for Tuesday night's jazz band was not only ridiculous, but totally unknowledgeable and indiscreet for the benefit of all concerned. I happened to come a little late to Shryock, but I came, and I'm very glad I did. The effervescence and vitality literally poured from the building and consequently drew you in as a welcomed spectator.

Obviously Mr. Tim Ransom doesn't care who he hurts or doesn't really give a damn about giving any credit when it is already past due! Dr. Alan Oldfield and his jazzmen are to be sincerely congratulated and applauded for their diligent work and utmost attention they give, to make a performance as great and as perfect as it was last Tuesday night. The tone of the entire performance was one that could bring anyone total satisfaction when enjoying good jazz. Maybe Mr. Ransom should look in the mirror and judge himself before he judges others so harshly!!

Oh, and Mr. Ransom—don't call us we'll call you. I am a VERY satisfied and caring spectator. Personally, I would like to thank everyone in the band for a wonderful and enriching experience, as last Tuesday night's performance really was.

IRS computer eyes returns

BOSTON (AP)—There's less than a 2 per cent chance that the Internal Revenue Service will audit your income taxes this year, but if the taxman does come, you'll probably end up paying more money.

A computer weeds out the returns that look fishy. And it does it so efficiently that the IRS says its agents find something wrong in the government's favor in 71 per cent of the returns they check.

"Our principal source for deciding who we will audit this year is our computer," said John E. Foristall, head of the IRS office in Boston.

It's a matter of playing the electronic odds. A giant computer in Martinsburg, W. Va., and six regional computers check every tax return filed in this country in a search for anything peculiar, such as big business expenses or large charitable contributions.

Then it gives each return a score. The higher the number, the better the chances of being audited.

Foristall said in 1973 the IRS checked 1.4 million of the 80.4 million personal tax returns filed. He said the government claimed extra taxes were owed it in one million cases and agents found 58,000 persons in that group had paid too much tax.

Having large deductions will earn a high computer number for your tax return. But it will also get one if it includes complicated forms or shows a large income.

"The more complicated the return is, the more likelihood there is for a mistake," said Foristall. "We also look at the income. If somebody is in six figures, we'll take a pretty good look at that."

Just because the giant IRS computer might find something different about your return does not necessarily mean there will be an audit.

"We don't just rely on the computer," Foristall said. "Quite often, there is a logical explanation for it right on the form. Maybe a letter or something is attached. So our most experienced agents eyeball the forms first."

Some people will be audited regardless of what the computer says if they are in a job which the IRS believes will tempt them to avoid declaring income. People in this category include rock musicians and private consultants, Foristall said.

Film Society to present movie on rise and fall of civilization

A tribe of Mud People, a mansion in New York State, and a catalytic croquet ball become an allegory for the rise and fall of civilization in James Ivory's film, "Savages."

This film, which was written by Michael O'Donoghue of "National Lampoon" and George Trow of "The New Yorker" will be shown by The Southern Illinois Film Society at 6:45 and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, in Davis Auditorium.

The Mud People, while performing a human sacrifice ritual, come across a croquet ball and retrace its path. It leads to a deserted mansion, and they stay to investigate. The longer these savages stay at the mansion, the more civilized they become, assuming stereotyped personalities which reflect their tribal roles.

They create a decadent and destructive society which culminates itself at a dinner party. A game of croquet is played, and the people revert back to being savages as they follow a wayward ball back into the woods. Admission will be 99 cents.

and also discussed programs similar to CEMREL currently being tested in schools throughout the nation Burt Kaufman, CEMREL director said.

Kaufman said the alternative school idea is "appealing" to CEMREL. He said the goals of the parents and the goals of CEMREL appear to be compatible.

CEMREL is definitely not interested in owning or dictating the policies of an alternative school, Kaufman said, but a "joint venture" or a contractual agreement could probably be worked out between the parents and CEMREL.

He said CEMREL is willing to help with the fiscal management of the school, and will provide advice to the group. Free materials for the aesthetic education, language arts and Comprehensive School Mathematics Program could be provided by CEMREL, Kaufman said.

If CEMREL did not donate these materials and other services, he said, the cost to the alternative school would be $5,000 to $10,000.

Mrs. Edward Esty, one of the parents attending the meeting at the CEMREL headquarters at University City, said the 40 to 50 persons in attendance were quite impressed with the CEMREL presentation. She said the parents are now involved in investigating the structure, space, curriculum and other areas of concern in the establishment of a new school.

No further meeting date has been set for persons interested in the alternative school.

'Lost in Stars' is movie to hear, not to see

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It has been entirely too long since a Kurt Weill musical has been made into a movie. Like Gershwin, the German-born Weill drew from jazz influences refined with endearing melodies.

And with the added influence of Wagnerian chromatics and lush orchestrations, Weill is undoubtedly in a category with serious composers rather than Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The film version of "Lost in the Stars," which Weill wrote with lyricist and playwright Max Anderson in the late 40's. "Lost in the Stars" is a story of rusty gods and racial discrimination in South Africa and centers around a black country minister, Stephen Kumalo, who goes off to Johannesburg to find his wayward son in jail with his pregnant girlfriend living in Shantytown.

Kumalo, played by Brock Peters, realizes that crime is the only way his son can make money, as the South African gold mines demand long hours for low pay. The film ends as Kumalo tears his clerical collar off in despair, knowing that his son has committed murder and will be soon executed.

Although the film is generally well acted and sung, and the score is done justice by Alex North, "Lost in the Stars" is nearly ruined in the inartistic hands of director Daniel Mann, whose film credits include "Willard" and "Our Man Flint."

The libretto is somewhat trite to begin with, but by putting "Lost in the Stars" in a modern on-location context, Mann insults the brilliant work of Weill and Anderson. Photos of the Broadway production indicate that "Lost in the Stars," like "Porgy and Bess," was meant to have a certain "fairy tale period" atmosphere.

How else can we imagine a chorus of Zulus singing "Train to Johannesburg" in perfect four-part harmony? But the wilderness settings seem to be straight out of "Jungle Jim" and the city sequences are complete with VW buses buzzing by. Seeing the performers lip-synch the songs against such starkly unpoetic backgrounds puts Weill's musical into incongruent and absurd light.

A Review

Perhaps Mann was trying to make the film relevant to the current racial struggle of the blacks in South Africa. Since most of the songs are centered around the characters' inability to reconcile the traditional teachings of Christ with the world of progress and industry, one can only conclude that Mann's social aspirations are sorely misconceived.

Melba Moore sings well as the pregnant girlfriend, but unfortunately the acting aspects of her role limit her to delirious sobbing, which upon repeated execution seems like a parody of an epileptic.

There are a few sequences that almost make the film worth seeing. One such scene is when Kumalo wanders into a church and sings the lyrics from the title song:

"Sometimes I think maybe God had gone away, forgetting the promise that we hear him all say. And I'm lost out here in the stars..." The scene is indeed moving, especially since Peters' fine voice serves the song well. And the dance scene in the tavern is so wildly abandon that we almost feel like voyeurs for having seen it.

"Lost in the Stars," now playing a limited two-day engagement at Fox Eastgate Theatre, is worth attending if only for the music. But as a movie, it is as choppy, blandly blocked and disappointing as "Siddhartha."

SIU historian refutes past claims about Grant

Of the three careers Ulysses S. Grant planned for himself, not one was successful. Yet three others into which the 18th President and Civil War general drifted or was forced were "brilliantly successful," an SIU historian and Grant scholar points out.

John Y. Simon, who also is executive director of the Ulysses S. Grant Association and editor of the 15-volume Grant Papers (five of which already have been published by the SIU Press), has written an extended article entitled "The Rediscovery of Ulysses S. Grant," published in the current issue of "Inland," quarterly magazine of Inland Steel Company.

Simon points out that Grant wished to become a teacher of mathematics at West Point, failed as a gentleman farmer and as a business man, yet he achieved greatness as a soldier, became President, and his memoirs (written while he was dying of cancer) reveal him as a "master of words," a "man of letters."

Simon, who quotes Mark Twain's eulogy of the memoirs—"General Grant's book is a great, unique and unapproachable literary masterpiece,"—refutes "myths" that Grant was a drunkard, an inept administrator, an irreligious man and a weak character, and concludes that "the material for a true likeness is emerging, and those who see it will find a man far more remarkable than myth-makers have ever created."

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 3 billion steel cans annually are recovered magnetically for recycling from municipal solid waste in 22 cities.

Salvaged steel cans are recycled in four markets. Steel mills use them to produce new steel. The cans are used in a chemical process to recover copper from low grade ore. Detinning plants separate the steel and tin so that both metals can be recycled. Scrap cans are also used in the production of ferroalloys which are specialty metals.

Onstage at the Arena—energetic rock by J. Geils Band.

Geils finally boogies down; flashy show worth the wait

By C. E. Paschali
Student Writer

The J. Geils Band was 28 days and one hour late in hitting Carbondale with its whammin' jammin' sound. A justly impatient Arena audience was more than ready when the group finally ran on stage Saturday night.

The performance was pre-empted for 28 days by a personal problem and for one hour by a not-so-hot warm-up group called Smooch, whose music is reminiscent of early Sixties rock.

Finally J. Geils and company began to play and more than 4,000 listeners joined the group in ninety minutes of solid boogie.

man Stephen Jo Bladd beats the hell out of his drums. Bladd has a habit of throwing souvenir drumsticks into the audience and here's hoping none of them zapped into someone's eye.

Seth Justman, the man on the keyboards, was his usual melodic self. He demonstrated his versatility in a drumming duet with Bladd. Their well-coordinated number indicates what can result from eight years of working together.

On harmonica, the quick Magic Dick displayed his mastery of the wind instrument. During "Whammer Jammer" the harp magician proved his lips and hands are faster than the eye.

Geils played his axe loud, fast and expertly, but never sang or spoke a word. He lets his music speak for him, and performs behind Wolf, main man at the mike. Regardless of where he's at, Geils can handle the guitar. With time, he probably could teach it to dance.

Along with bass player Danny Kline, the four were responsible for most of the activity center stage, and with this group of musical ruffians, that's an awful lot of activity.

When the band left the stage for the first time, everyone in the Arena knew they would return for at least one encore. However, before they did, a ceremonial lighting of matches took place. In less than 60 seconds, the Arena's "No Smoking" policy went up in a cloud of sulfur. Jumping back on stage, the group laid out a few more tunes. Then left, then returned when more matches and cheers called them back.

When the group said good-bye for the third time the concert was over. The boogie band from Boston moved on to Louisville for its next gig. The smoke-filled Arena was drained and the foot-stompin' crowd descended upon the city of Carbondale.

A Review

The band was enthusiastic and ready to get down and have a high-steppin' party: so was the audience, but boogie freaks kept tripping over folding chairs. Twenty minutes into the show, everyone on the floor was either standing, rocking or rolling.

Colored lights added visual stimuli, but the vitality of the six musicians kept the concert alive. All of the concert selections were taken from the band's first two albums. A few cuts from their new album (to be released "sometime in the summer.") would have put more "future" in the performance, but nothing new was played.

Nonetheless, many of the hard-driving jams from the "Full House" album were performed and satisfied expectations of J. Geils' music. It's hard, loud, fast "groin music."

Lead singer Peter Wolf, dressed in shining silver, tends to run around and jump a lot on stage while rhythm

Israelis lose plane over Golan Heights

By The Associated Press

An Israeli fighter-bomber went down in flames over the embattled Golan Heights front Monday, and the two pilots bailed out and were captured in Lebanon. It was the first Israeli warplane lost over the front since the October war.

Tank and artillery duels raged from dawn to dusk along the length of the 40-mile Golan cease-fire line for the 28th consecutive day. No casualties were reported.

Syria said the Israeli F4 Phantom was brought down over Mt. Hermon by its air defense system, apparently meaning a missile. But Israel denied this, saying the plane burst into flames because of "a technical hitch."

Lebanon said the plane crashed in the Arkoub region near the village of Chebba, only six miles north of the Israeli border and about 40 miles south of Beirut.

A Lebanese spokesman said the two pilots were safe and said they were picked up about three miles west of Chebba. He did not say where they were being held.

Israel admitted using warplanes for the first time since the October war on Saturday. It said air strikes were ordered after the Syrians attacked an Israeli position on 9,000-foot Mt. Hermon, on the northern tip of the heights.

In Damascus, informed sources said Syrian delegates will leave for Washington within the next 48 hours for talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on disengagement with Israel on the heights.

They said the Syrian team will be headed by Brig. Gen. Hikmak Chehab, chief of Syrian army intelligence, and will include a few military and Foreign Ministry experts.

In Jerusalem, Premier Golda Meir spent the day consulting with her Labor party on whether to get rid of Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, whose departure from the cabinet could bring down the government.

But she was unable to pull her bickering party together, postponed a key meeting of the party leadership set for Monday night, and left the crisis unresolved.

But it's not likely: Hines

Pool bonds could face vote

The Carbondale Park District Board's approval of a $320,000 revenue bond sale for the construction of a swimming pool could be subjected to a referendum but the chances are "remote," Charles Hines, park district board attorney, said Monday.

Hines said the bond sale approval could face a special election if a petition is submitted to the park district within 10 days of publication of the ordinance approving the sale.

The ordinance should be published in Friday's edition of the Southern Illinoisan, Hines said.

The petition must include the signatures of 100 persons living within the park district, Hines said. The park district board approved the bond sale to build a 50-meter L-shaped swimming pool. The money will be supplemented by a $259,400 grant from Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Hines said the bonds will be paid back solely from the pool revenues and not from any tax money.

Along with the grant, HUD stipulated the pool be built in a location accessible to northeast Carbondale, an area which has received Urban Renewal funds. The pool's tentative location is along Almond Street between Rigdon and Kennicott Streets.

Construction of the pool is expected to begin near the end of summer.

Showing of film of prisoner union slated for tonight

A 45-minute color documentary film on the success of a prisoner union in a maximum security institution will be presented at 7:30 tonight in Morris Library Auditorium.

The public is invited free of charge.

The film, "3,000 Years and Life," was made at Walpole State Prison in Massachusetts and focuses on a period in 1973 when the guards went on strike and the prison was operated peacefully and without incident by the prisoner union.

The program, which is part of the colloquium series of the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, will feature short talks by two authorities in the field, Gene Mason, professor of political science, and Peter Linebaugh, professor of history, of Franconia College, Franconia, N. H.

When we hired these researchers, we invited them to raise more questions than they answered.

Making your mark in business used to mean carving a comfortable niche for yourself and staying there. Promotion was simply a matter of time, provided you could spend 20 years in the process. But, today, business depends on technology. Technology that can't wait a moment if it's going to keep pace with what's happening.

That's why, at Kodak, our basic reliance on scientific research makes the need for creative young minds more demanding than ever. We must have people with drive and ambition, impatient to put what they've learned into practice. People who get all the freedom and responsibility they can handle, and tackle our problems with their ideas.

Which, we're happy to say, has helped many of our scientists yield important discoveries. For example:

The woman on the left has devised new and improved photographic materials for specialized scientific applications in fields such as astronomy and holography. The young man is an expert on surface analysis. His work in photoelectron spectroscopy helps to identify unknown substances. The woman on the right has a dual background in gas chromatography and trace metal analysis, which she's applied to analyzing pollution in rivers and streams.

They came up with new problems while solving some of our old ones. But they've uncovered some promising answers, too. As they continue their research, you may read about them again. The oldest is just over 30.

Why do we give young men and women so much room to test their ideas? Because good ideas often lead to better products. Which are good for business. And we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own business interests, we also further society's interests. Which makes good sense.

After all, our business depends on society. So we care what happens to it.

Marion inmates file lawsuit; unfair punishment charged

EAST ST. LOUIS, (AP)—A group of Marion Federal Penitentiary inmates filed suit in federal court Monday claiming they have been held in a disciplinary unit "used to isolate and punish prisoners for religious and political beliefs."

Warden Ralph A. Aaron, named defendant in the class-action, civil rights suit, said Monday the men are in disciplinary confinement because they are "very extreme behavior problems" too dangerous to mix with the institution's other 423 inmates.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis, asks for $3.5 million in damages.

Michael Deutsch and Flint Taylor, both of the Chicago office of the National Lawyers' Guild, represent the 50 prisoners.

"These men have been singled out and labeled dangerous in need of social control and then without a specific charge or hearing or any other due process, some guards place them in the control unit," Deutsch said.

Many of the plaintiffs, he said, are Black Muslims, jailhouse lawyers or agitators for prison reform. Some of them have been in the unit for up to three years; many for more than one year, he said.

Aaron said that some of the men have been in the unit for up to three years but that to release them he would have to lock up the remainder of the prison population for its protection.

Deutsch said the men are denied vocational and educational training as well as contact with other inmates.

Residents will get chance to react to health proposal

Area residents will be able to comment on a proposed state health facilities plan for Southern Illinois at a public hearing beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Marion.

The hearing will be held at the State Regional Office Building.

Dr. Mark Lepper, director of the Comprehensive State Planning Agency, said the hearing will be held "to present the proposed Illinois Plan for hospitals and nursing homes to both consumers and providers of health services."

The plan calls for Southern Illinois hospitals to increase their occupancy rate within five years to 85 per cent from the present rate of 60 per cent.

The plan divides the state's southern 27 counties into areas for evaluating the hospital-bed needs of the area. The division including Murphysboro and Carbondale calls for no additional beds.

Persons wishing to testify at the hearing should contact the Comprehensive Health Planning office at 903 S. Elizabeth St. in Carbondale. The plan can be inspected at the Carbondale office.

You're serious about photography. So is the Canon F-1.

To you, photography is more than a hobby. You may never want to become a professional. Yet, your photography is as important a means of self-expression to you as your speech. You demand the same excellence in your photographic equipment as you do of your photographic skills.

The Canon F-1 is the camera that can fulfill any photographic task to which you put it. It can stand up to your ability in any situation.

Naturally, a great camera like the F-1 won't ensure great results. That's up to you. Yet—it's nice to know that your camera can grow with you as a photographer.

Part of the reason for this is the F-1 system. Since it was designed in totality, it offers total performance. There is nothing "added on" in the F-1 system. Everything works as it was designed to, and integrates superbly with everything else. You'll spend less time worrying about operating the camera than in shooting. And that's what creative photography is really all about.

Controls fall into place under each finger. It's no accident. Professionals who depend on a camera for their livelihood have a deep regard for the F-1's handling. It's amazing how much a comfortable camera can improve your work.

Sharing these lenses and many of these accessories are the new Electronic Canon EF, with fully automatic exposure control, the FTb, now improved with all exposure information visible in the finder, and the TLb, great for a second camera body or for getting started in Canon photography. Canon. For serious applications. For serious photographers.

Isn't it time you got serious?

Easter, Passover programs to be aired on WSIU-TV

Two great religious choral works and an inter-faith discussion between Christians and Jews will be featured on three television specials to be seen during the Easter and Passover seasons on WSIU-TV.

Continuo planned by church choir

"The Seven Last Words of Christ," a continuo by Theodore Dubois, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the sanctuary of the First Methodist Church of Carbondale.

The program will be presented by the Sanctuary Choir of the church, under the direction of Charles Taylor, associate professor of music.

The participants from the School of Music include Marjane Marvin, Burt Kageff, Alexander Montgomery and William T. Stewart. WCIL will broadcast the program live. Rev. Robert Krause said the public is invited to attend the presentation.

He said those so desiring, may receive holy communion in the church's parlor after the presentation.

Graduate recital set for Thursday

Linda Covington, soprano, from Mt. Vernon, will present her graduate recital at SIU at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

She will be assisted by teaching assistant Kay Fields of Martin, Tenn., pianist and accompanist, and graduate assistant Nadine Zaraf, clarinetist, from Mt. Prospect.

Miss Covington will sing Schubert's "Der Hirt auf dem Felsen" with clarinet and piano accompaniment and the aria "Un bel di" from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," while Miss Fields will play two solos. Following an intermission she will sing selections from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and songs by Peter Warlock.

The public is invited. There is no admission charge.

Channel 8, Carbondale, and WSIU-TV, Channel 16, Olney.

The first in the series, a program produced locally by the SIU Broadcasting Service, will feature a discussion of the historical similarities and differences between Easter and Passover by four members of the two faiths. The show is titled "For the Love of God" and will be seen at 9 p.m. Thursday.

From 8 to 10:30 p.m. on Good Friday, the Public Broadcasting Service will present a filmed performance of Bach's "Mass in B-Minor" by the famed Bach Orchestra and Choir of Munich, Germany, with four internationally renowned soloists.

Conducting and narrating the performance will be Karl Richter, a noted Bach specialist who once was the organist at St. Thomas Church in Leipzig, the church which Bach himself served during the last 23 years of his life. The soloists are soprano Gundula Janowitz, mezzo Hertha Topper, tenor Horst Laubenthal and baritone Herman Prey.

On Easter Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m., the two SIU television stations will go on the air an hour earlier than usual to present another network telecast, this one of Handel's "The Messiah." The work will feature the 100-voice chorus, orchestra and organ of the Arion Musical Club, Milwaukee's oldest choral group.

Conducted by Jack Strawbridge, the performance was filmed at the Holly Hill Church in Hubertus, Wisc. Soloists are soprano Carol Haywood, counter-tenor Jeffrey Dooley, tenor Daniel Nelson and bass Raymond Hickman.

Fifth drinkers may nurse some new 'liters'

By Harry F. Rosenthal
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—First the bad news: the government wants to do away with the fifth of whiskey. Also the quart, the pint and the half-pint.

Now the good: you'll be able to buy a three-fourths instead. Or a half, or three-eighths or a one-four.

Liters, that is. Drinkers of America, you'll be in the forefront of the metric revolution, if the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) has its way.

And they want you to know what it is you're drinking. The proposals will require labeling: corn, barley, yeast and enzymes or whatever. And, possibly d-limonene, neobee and citric acid, if that's the case.

That'll give you something to read while you're trying to figure out how many ounces were in the shot you just had.

If all that new government intrusion drives you to drink, you might consider that it's being done for your own good.

At least that's what ATF director Rex D. Davis told a liquor industry meeting in Miami Beach, Fla. Monday.

"There are several good reasons to change to metric sizes," he said. "For one thing, it will mean a substantial reduction in the number of bottle sizes. This should be an aid to the consumer.

"There are now 16 different sized wine bottles. This number would be reduced to six in metric sizes... in the final analysis, this reduction in wine and whiskey bottle sizes will be beneficial not only to the consumer but to the manufacturers and all of those companies which handle and distribute distilled spirits and wines in our economic sales chain."

A quart, that amber-colored status symbol of the home-owner's bar, would be known as a liter and contain 32.82 ounces instead of 32. The fifth, 25.6 ounces, would be "a liter; the pint, 16 ounces, a half liter and so on.

For wine drinkers, the change if adopted, would be equally traumatic.

A jeroaboam of champagne (a double magnum to you connoisseurs) would go from 102.4 ounces to three liters. A split, now 6.4 ounces, would contain 6.34.

The labeling proposals would spell out the natural ingredients in names we all know, plus chemical mixtures that have no common names, like "cloud emulsions."

The labeling is for those with allergies—so they can learn after drinking the stuff all these years that it's bad for them.

The proposed regulations will be published in the Federal Register some time in the next few months. Then there will be public hearings—probably before the start of summer. And a few years will go by before they take effect to give everybody a chance to get rid of old stocks and change over. Or, perhaps, for stocking up by those who like what they're drinking and don't want to know what's in it; or those who hold with the poet Goethe's Lessing: "One can drink too much, but one never drinks enough."

Campus Briefs

Four home economics students from SIU attended the meeting of the Illinois Student Home Economics Association held at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, March 29-30.

The participants, accompanied by Shirley Friend, chairperson of the clothing and textiles department, were Barbara Cox of Flora, and Mary Kennedy of Champaign, Ellen Scharlach of Hoopeson, and Vicky Lee Krukeberg of Moro.

Miss Cox is president of the SIU Student Home Economics Association and was formerly membership chairperson of the state organization.

Among SIU faculty members participating in the Southwest Social Science Association meetings in Dallas, April 28-30, are Donald Vaughn, chairman of the SIU finance department, and Donald James, assistant professor of marketing in the College of Business and Administration. Vaughn will be a discussant in one of the sectional sessions.

Robert W. House, director of the School of Music at SIU, is the new president-elect of the Music Educator's National Conference, North Central Division. He will take office as president for a two-year term in 1976-78.

The North Central Division, with approximately 20,000 members, covers, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

House is beginning a six-year term as an ex officio member of the MENC's national board of directors. He previously has held numerous committee or consultant posts with MENC and the National Association of Schools of Music, including membership on the editorial committee of the Journal of Research in Music Education.

Before coming to SIU in 1967 to head its music program, House had served for 12 years as head of the music department at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, and also had taught at Nebraska State College, Kearney, and at Murray State University. His degrees are from Oklahoma State University, Eastman School of Music, and the University of Illinois.

He is the author of three books, "Administration in Music Education" (1972), "Foundations and Principles of Music Education," (1959, revised 1972), and "Instrumental Music in Today's Schools" (1965).

A SIU psychology professor has been named to the honorary editorial advisory board of Vision Research, an international scientific research journal.

Alfred Lit, professor of psychology, has accepted an invitation from Thomas Shipley of the department of ophthalmology, University of Miami School of Medicine, and chairman of the journal's board of editors, to serve on the advisory board.

As a board member, Lit will review papers submitted to the journal, encourage persons doing research in vision-related areas to submit papers and occasionally give advice on the journal's editorial policy.

In a letter requesting Lit to join the advisory board, Shipley noted Lit's eminence in visual science and thanked him for past help in reading papers prior to publication.

Members of the honorary editorial advisory board are listed inside the front cover of each issue of Vision Research.

Rain proves tough foe for SIU baseball

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

About the only good thing Saluki baseball Coach "Itchy" Jones can say about losing two of his teams' last three playing dates to rain is that it beats losing them to the opponents. A scheduled doubleheader with St. Louis went down the drain Sunday, and will not be rescheduled. SIU had a home doubleheader against Greenville cancelled because of wet grounds, Wednesday.

"It's important that we get our games in this week," Jones said, looking ahead to single games Wednesday and Friday, and twin bills Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Salukis will take their 12-5 record and five-game winning streak to Murray State, Wednesday for a single road game that could be an important one for SIU.

Scott Waltemate (1-1), who pitched a one-hit shutout in his last start, will draw the mound assignment against Murray State which has won 20 games this spring and is ranked 17th nationally. The Salukis turned up eighth in the latest rankings.

Jones figures to start Bill Dunning and Ray Huelsman Thursday against Aurora in a 1 p.m. home doubleheader.

SIU then hosts a three-game series against Louisville, opening with a single contest Friday and concluding with a doubleheader in Abe Martin field, Saturday. Jim Bokelmann (3-1), Rob Klass (4-0) and Ron Hodges (3-1) will get the call in the Louisville series, although more rain could cause a re-evaluation of that rotation.

The foe in Sunday's doubleheader is McMurry.

"We've progressed well," Jones said of his club that was runner up to Minnesota in the NCAA District Four playoffs last spring.

"We're definitely pleased with our hitting. We made only one error in the last four games, and our running has picked up to the point where we are alert on the bases," he said.

"Our pitchers are giving better performances each game and are working themselves into good shape where they can go six to nine innings an outing."

Jones has plenty of reasons to be pleased with his team's showing at the plate. The Salukis are hitting .323 as a team, led by the individual high performances of Jim Locascio,

Also sporting high batting averages are Steve Shartzler, .395; Bert Newman, .387; Jim Reeves, a freshman from Murphysboro, .357; and John Hoeseheidt, .356.

All-American joins grid staff

Chuck Kyle, an All-American middle guard at Purdue in 1968, will aid the SIU football staff as a graduate assistant while working on his master's degree in business. Head Coach and Director of Athletics Doug Weaver announced Saturday.

Kyle began work with the Saluki offensive ends Monday. The Salukis will complete spring drills May 4 with an intrasquad game at McAndrew Stadium.

The 26-year-old Kyle was a three-year all-Big Ten selection at Purdue, earning consensus All-America honors his senior year. He was recipient of the Big Ten Scholar-Athlete award in 1968.

Following graduation, Kyle played with the Dallas Cowboys and the New York Jets of the National Football League and the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian League.

A native of Covington, Ky., Kyle was a football, track and diving star at Highlands High of Fort Thomas, Ky. He earned prep all-state and All-America honors in football, won the state diving championship and set school and area records in the shot put. He received his bachelor's degree in economics at Purdue in 1969.

Netters win fourth straight

The SIU tennis team picked up its fourth straight win of the season with a 7-2 decision over a highly rated Memphis State Tiger team Saturday.

The victory boosted the Saluki netters' record to 8-5, while Memphis State was tagged with its third loss against 14 wins. Before tangling with the Salukis, the Tigers had racked up victories over Michigan State, Northwestern and Missouri. SIU captured five of the six singles matches on its way to upsetting the Tigers. The Salukis' only defeats were in the No. 2 singles and No. 1 doubles matches.

Saluki senior Jorge Ramirez was forced to go three sets to win the No. 3 singles match. Ramirez defeated the Tiger's Bob Leopold 6-4, 2-6, 7-6 and 5-3 in the tie-breaker match.

The Saluki netters will be back in action again Thursday as they travel to Oklahoma for the start of the eight-team Oklahoma City Invitational. SIU will be competing with such teams as Big Eight champion Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Oral Roberts, Arkansas and Oklahoma City.

The following is a summary of the Memphis State meet.

Dane Petchul defeated Phil Chamberlain, 6-0, 6-2.

Wayne Cowley lost to Keith West, 7-6, 6-3.

Jorge Ramirez defeated Bob Leopold, 6-4, 2-6, 7-6.

Scott Kidd defeated Jim Kallenburg, 6-4, 7-6.

Felix Ampon defeated John Nichols, 6-4, 6-2.

Scott Temple defeated Jim Ladyman, 6-4, 6-2.

Petchul-Cowley lost to West-Leopold, 6-3, 2-6, 7-6.

Saluki gymnast takes fourth at NCAA meet

Iowa State won the team honors in the 32nd NCAA men's gymnastics championships Saturday at Penn State University.

Although SIU did not compete in the event as a team, five individual Saluki performers did participate.

Ed Hembd had the best individual performance for SIU, taking fourth in the pommel horse with a score of 18.45. Hembd was 13th at the end of the compulsorials and moved to sixth with a 9.4 optional routine. Another 9.4 score in the finals gave Hembd the fourth place finish.

Glen Tidwell and Kim Wall both competed in the all-around competition for the Salukis. The all-around was won by Stanford's Steve Hug. Tidwell finished 18th and Wall 22nd.

Jim McFaul tied for 11th in vaulting, and Kevin Autenreih's 17.60 score was enough to get him 20th in the event.

"I was real pleased with Hembd's performance," SIU Coach Bill Meade said. "I was also pleased that all of our guys scored a 9.0 or better at one time during the meet."

Arizona State finished second in the team championships and California took third.

Saluki all-around men will remain in training for the United States Gymnastics Federation Championships to be held May 3-4 in Berkeley, Calif.

Cycling club sets activities

The SIU Cycling Club is sponsoring a full week of planned activities starting with two days of bicycle repair clinics Tuesday and Thursday.

The clinics will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Open Forum area between the Student Center and the overpass. Anyone having mechanical trouble with his bike is urged to bring it by and have a club member look it over. Tools will be available for most repair jobs.

The club member will not repair the bike, but he will assist and advise the bicycle owner on how to do the work himself.

On Friday night, there will be a Midnight Ride around the campus and Carbondale. The ride will start at 11 p.m. in front of Shryock Auditorium.

A 44-mile bicycle trip to Ava, northwest of Murphysboro, is planned for noon Saturday. Riders will depart from Shryock Auditorium.

The week's activities will end Sunday with an all-you-can-eat picnic at Giant City. Riders will leave Shryock Auditorium at 11 a.m. Registration will start at 10:30 a.m. There will be no charge for club members; non-members will be charged $1.

Each rider must cycle the 12 miles to Giant City. Groups of no more than six riders will ride together on the road. Each group will be accompanied by an experienced club member for safety.

Women's gymnast team captures ninth national title in 11 years

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU women gymnasts became the only Saluki winter sports team to win a national title Saturday in Sacramento, Calif., as they wrapped up their ninth U.S. gymnastics championship in 11 years.

The Salukis, competing in the third round of a 20-team, five-round competition, produced a 9.2 individual event average and a 108.6 final event total that eclipsed any hope that the University of Massachusetts had of retaining its 1973 national title.

Massachusetts dominated the first and second rounds of team competition with a 104.8 total, which ultimately forced it into a share of third place with Springfield College, the 1972 titlist and its Eastern regional arch-rival.

With two rounds of competition left and eight teams yet to perform, the Saluki women had to wait to see if their team totals would survive.

Debbie Halle of Seattle Pacific took a share of the all-around title in the fourth round, but could only manage to boost her team's total to 103.9, well short of the SIU team mark.

It wasn't until the final round that Southwest Mississippi, led by many-time international team member Caludia Fissel, made a surge to surpass the SIU score. Mississippi climbed past the defending champions, but its score of 107.2 was not enough to pull the crown away from the Saluki women.

In what women's Coach Herb Vogel termed a "complete team effort," the SIU team qualified three members for the individual finals. Dianne Grayson, Stephanie Stromer and Sandi Gross all qualified in the finals of their events.

Grayson nailed down the meet's high score of 9.4, winning the national title in the balance beam. Grayson also took a second in the uneven bars and a seventh place finish in floor exercise. Vogel said that her aerial walkover into a full-twisting front somersault dismount put her out of reach as the new beam champion.

Stromer, competing with a painfully injured back, scored the top floor exercise qualifying mark with her 9.3. But the strain of the injury forced her out of the finals. It was won eventually with a 9.275 score.

"Steph gave a full effort the first day," Vogel said, "and simply ran out of gas for the finals." Still Stromer had accumulated enough points to give her the runner-up title in the all-around honors.

Finishing fourth in the all-around competition, Gross took a second in the vaulting, third in the uneven bars and fourth in the balance beam.

Vogel also credited Ginger Temple and Pat Hanlon, the first two competitors in each event for SIU, for setting a pace that allowed the Stromer-Grayson-Gross trio to go for the higher scores.

Nineteen teams and 150 individual women athletes from 45 universities and colleges competed in the annual event.

With the national championship came an invitation to compete in the nationally televised National AAU championships to be conducted in Montana April 27.

Aaron owns record with slam No. 715

ATLANTA (AP)—Hank Aaron broke Babe Ruth's home run record Monday night, hitting No. 715 in the fourth inning of a game between the Atlanta Braves and Los Angeles Dodgers.

The peerless Brave hit the second pitch from Dodger hurler Al Downing. Aaron had walked in his first trip to the plate.

Aaron hammered a 1-0 pitch over the left field fence just to the right of the 385-foot marker and circled the bases for the 715th time accompanied by a massive fireworks display.

A sellout crowd of 52,870 rose as one for a standing ovation and Aaron's Atlanta teammates poured out of the dugout and out of the left field bullpen to greet the 40-year-old superstar.

After Aaron touched home plate, teammates lifted him and carried him a few steps before the slugger broke away and trotted to a special box adjacent to the Atlanta dugout where he embraced his wife, Billye, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aaron of Mobile, Ala.

He stayed with his family about two minutes before returning to the field and holding aloft the historic ball.

The ball carried about 400 feet and did not get into the seats. It was brought back to Aaron by Atlanta relief pitcher Tom House.

The legendary Ruth, who died in 1948, had hit 714 home runs, the last three in 1925 in a game against Pittsburgh on May 25.

Ruth played for 22 seasons, got into 2,503 games and had 8,399 at-bats.

The soft-spoken Aaron's record shot came in his third game of his 21st season. It came on his 11,295th at-bat and in his 2,967th game.

"Just thank God it's all over," Aaron told the cheering crowd.

Moments later, black Hall of Famer Monte Irvin, representing Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, presented Aaron with a $3,000 diamond-studded wrist watch commemorating the occasion. The watch had the figures 715 imprinted in gold on it.

Irvin was booed loudly by the crowd. The displeasure was aimed at Kuhn, who had ordered the Braves to play Aaron in Cincinnati Sunday against the Club's wishes.

As soon as the ball left the park, block numerals "715" were flashed on the center field message board—about 25 feet to the right of where the home run landed.

Downing, a 32-year-old veteran of 13 major league seasons, returned to the Dodger dugout during the on-field ceremonies for Aaron after the historic home run.

It was only Aaron's third home run off Downing, beginning his fourth year in the National League. The others came last season—No. 676 in Los Angeles on April 15 and No. 693 in Atlanta on June 29.

Aaron had ended his highly publicized chase of Ruth on opening day in Cincinnati with his first swing of the 1974 season.

SIU golf team finishes fifth

The SIU golf team finished fifth in the Mid-South Golf Classic held last Thursday through Saturday at the Crockett Springs National Golf Club in Nashville, Tenn. Illinois State won the tournament followed by Middle Tennessee.

Larry Giacone of Benton was the medalist for the Salukis with his 54-hole total of 241. Giacone's score was also the seventh best individual mark in the tournament.

SIU Golf Coach Lynn Holder said the tournament was played in "extremely inclement weather."

Other finishers for SIU were Mark Durham, 250; Brad Miller 254; and Jay Wilkinson, 260.

The Saluki team will participate in the University of Illinois Invitational this weekend before hosting its only home meet of the year, April 16 against Southeast Missouri State, at Crab Orchard Country Club.

Track team takes title in Jacob's Invitational

The eighth annual John Jacob's Invitational track meet in Norman, Okla. Saturday came down to the last event before the Salukis were able to put away the University of Oklahoma and take the title in the nine-team meet.

The Salukis led the Sooners 61-60 going into the final event of the meet, the mile relay. For the second week in a row, outstanding relay legs by Lonnie Brown and Terry Erickson made the difference. SIU edged Oklahoma, 3:12.6 to 3:13.2 to win the meet, 67-64.

The Salukis trailed Oklahoma by five yards after Ed Wardzala turned a 49.8 and Wayne Carmondy had a 49.2 leg for SIU. Against winds that gusting up to 35 miles per hour, Brown burned Sooner Mark Bodehamer with a 47.2 lap to give a slight lead to Erickson.

Matching Brown's time exactly, Erickson outdistanced the rest of the field to win the event and the meet for SIU.

Following the Salukis and the Sooners for the team title were Oklahoma State, 41; North Texas State, 36; Nebraska, 31; Purdue, 24; Arkansas, 14; North Dakota State, 6; and Texas-Arlington, 5.

"It was a team effort. That's all there was to it," SIU Coach Lew Hartzog said following the meet. The Salukis set three meet records and tied another as seven records were rewritten during the meet.

Records began falling in the meet's opening event when SIU equaled the 440-yard relay record set by Kansas State in 1968. Eddie Sutton, Joe Laws, Gerald Smith and Mike Monroe took care of Oklahoma and Purdue, with 220-champ Larry Burton anchoring, to win the event by a half-second.

Erickson's 48.0 clocking in the 440 snapped Dale Alexander's 48.2 record set for Kansas State in 1970.

Bill Hancock also had a good day for SIU, beating Big Eight champ Bill Stoner of Oklahoma and erasing Stoner's meet record of 6-10 in the high jump with a leap of 7-0.

Phil Robbins had his best day ever in the triple jump, breaking former Saluki John Vernon's record of 50-11 set in 1968. Robbins, who had a 52.4 jump wiped out by a scratch, had a 51-7 that counted for the title.

The Salukis picked up important points in the dashes with second, third and fourth place finishes. "Sutton was actually leading the 100 about 70 yards out," Hartzog said. "But I think he got scared and Oklahoma's Stan Bracy caught him. But we did a good job in the sprints."

The Salukis will return to action with a dual meet Saturday at the University of Illinois.
