New marijuana bill to be introduced

By Bruce Hackel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A bill to remove all criminal penalties for the private possession of any amount of marijuana is expected to be introduced Thursday to the Illinois House of Representatives. Terry Steczo, administrative assistant to Rep. Leland Rayson, D-Tinley Park, said Wednesday.

Rayson plans to introduce the bill, which was endorsed by the Illinois Bar Association's Board of Governors in March.

The bill still retains criminal penalties for distributing or smoking marijuana in public, Steczo said.

"The bill is the most comprehensive and sensible piece of legislation dealing with the marijuana issue yet to be introduced in the United States," Steczo said.

He said it costs the state of Illinois from $25 to $30 million each year to prosecute marijuana cases. Ninety-eight per cent of the 22,000 persons arrested in 1974 were charged with possession only, and 67 per cent of those were caught with less than one ounce of marijuana, he said.

Steczko said the enormous amount of money required to enforce the present marijuana laws could be better spent arresting the sellers of the drug and controlling more serious crimes.

"After all, marijuana use is a victimless crime," he said.

Steczko said the Rayson bill is the first to embody the recommendations of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse appointed by former President Nixon.

The thirteen-member bipartisan commission unanimously concluded in 1972 that, "The most notable statement that can be made about the vast majority of marijuana users, experimenters and intermittent users is that they are essentially indistinguishable from their non-marijuana using peers by any fundamental criterion other than their marijuana use."

"The chances for passage of the bill this year are relatively slim, but we want to start the educational process," Steczo said. Steczo said the bill has roughly 10 cosponsors at this time, most of whom are from the Chicago area.

Faner Hall formally dedicated

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 200 people watched as the nameplate for Faner Hall was put in place during the formal dedication Wednesday afternoon of the building.

The ceremony, attended by SIU President Warren W. Brandt, took place at entrance seven on the east side of the building, a change from the original plans.

Jerry Gaston, associate dean of the college of Liberal Arts unveiled the Faner Hall lead time capsule and placed it in the ground where it will remain for 100 years. A bronze nameplate with the inscription "Faner Hall-1971" was cemented to the floor just inside the doorway at entrance seven.

In his commemoration of Robert D. Faner, for whom the new humanities and social science building is named, Charles D. Tenney said, "Robert D. Faner was the essence of humanity, naming this building after him will constantly remind us of its purpose." Faner, a former English department chairman was an SIU faculty member for 37 years before his death in 1967.

Tenney, university professor emeritus, described his long-time colleague as a warm, enthusiastic teacher who possessed an extraordinary power to communicate.

Brandt called the building a fitting monument to the goals of the university.

"We will look forward to the contribution it will make to generations of young people who will be introduced to the breadth of the liberal arts in these halls," he said.

Liberal Arts Week continues Thursday with a public lecture by Paul Weiss, professor emeritus at Yale University and professor of philosophy at Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

SIU officials refusing to support liquor amendment, Sullivan says

By Ross Becker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU administration is refusing to actively support an amendment to the Dram Shop Act that would allow beer and wine to be served in the Student Center, Dennis Sullivan, student president, charged Tuesday.

The amendment is sponsored by the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG).

"The approach the administration has been taking on the beer and wine issue is that Student Government should do the dirty work," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said that he and Bobbi Tally, student representative to the Carbondale Liquor Commission, attempted to determine the extent of administration support for the amendment at a Jan. 10 meeting with administration representatives.

"We wanted feedback to find out if they would support the bill, where beer and wine could be sold, exactly what involvement student government would have in the operation and what the benefits to the students (from beer and wine sales) would be," Tally said.

"It's interesting that the administration feels that the sole student benefit would be drinking and that the students would not have any input about where the profits go," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said that he proposed that a percentage of the profits be put into scholarships. But the profits can't be used for scholarships because the payment arrangements for Student Center bonds require that all Student Center profits be used to pay back the bonds, Sullivan said.

"In other words, they (the administration) vetoed the scholarship idea," he said.

SIU administrators will not take a leadership position because of the possibility of adverse publicity, Sullivan said. The administration also cited the possibility of adverse community reaction and the SIU party school image, he said.

Support of the AISG amendment to the Dram Shop Act "has never been actively discussed by the administration," said Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student life. The administration is "probably not" going to support the amendment, he said.

Carbondale officials support the idea of having beer and wine on campus, Tally said. "They see it as a way to offset overcrowding on Illinois Avenue," she said.

Candidates answer election questions

Editor's note: City council candidates have submitted answers to a series of questions asked by the Daily Egyptian. Questions, as presented to the candidates, are printed below along with the candidates' written responses, which appear complete and unedited. The will run through Friday.

QUESTION: Do you feel the City of Carbondale should invest any money into the building of a new city hall complex, including any architectural or planning fees? Why or why not?

WALTER G. ROBINSON, JR.

No. I believe the present facilities are adequate for city hall at this time. However, there is a need for building modifications to make city government accessible to the elderly and the handicapped. The cost for modifications would be far less than building a new structure.

HELEN WESTBERG

I do not see a new city hall complex as an immediate crucial need. For this reason I voted against allocating money for this project in the 1975-76 budget. Payment for those architectural and appraisal contracts that were authorized in the past must be made but no other expenditures approved at this time.

ELMER C. BRANDHORST

Only to the extent of planning with the knowledge that sometime in the future a new city hall will become necessary and to be many years behind in preparedness will only add to the cost and delay of construction at that time. We do not need a new city hall at this time but to ignore the future needs of the city would be ill advised.

JOSEPH T. DAKIN

I am opposed to investing any money on a new city hall at this time. Carbondale has problems with its storm sewers, streets, street lighting and sidewalks that demand immediate attention. A new city hall at this time would be a luxury that ignores the real needs of the community. The matter of a new city hall should be placed before the people in a binding referendum.

QUESTION: What do you favor doing in order to redevelop the downtown area?

WALTER G. ROBINSON, JR.

It seems that downtown Carbondale is to become primarily variety shops, restaurants and places of entertainment. Some ordinances should be made as to standards for businesses on Illinois Avenue to insure that merchants operate businesses attractive to all citizens of Carbondale. This would also stop downtown Carbondale from becoming a blighted area. Dilapidated buildings should be razed and increased parking areas made available.

HELEN WESTBERG

Improve the east-west traffic flow, move the depot nearer SIU. Move Route 51 slightly east, create a several-block pedestrian mall area on present South Illinois Avenue. Encourage businesses and shops catering to needs of employees of the Telephone Co., federal building, students, and townspeople who live in the Marion-Popular Street area who shop downtown.

ELMER C. BRANDHORST

In every way possible cooperate with the downtown businesses in any feasible program to encourage more people to shop downtown NGW. Seek thru any means possible to find outside developers to invest in a planned redevelopment with full cooperation from the city council.

More candidates vie for student offices

By Jon Kartman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

There's going to be a Surprise Party in the Student Government elections Wednesday.

Tom Jones, a senior in administration of justice and Dave Davis, a sophomore in political science and administration of justice, will run for president and vice president respectively on the Surprise Party ticket.

Jones said students are due for a change in Student Government, and if the two are elected, the students will be surprised to see something different.

The two said they advocate the elimination of approved housing for sophomores and freshmen.

"Since most sophomores are 19, and since 18 year olds are legally responsible for the contracts they sign, we feel that students should have the right to live where they choose," Jones said.

He would like to see the organization of a student lobby at the state legislature. The lobby would be organized at SIU, and through the Association of Illinois Student Governments other schools would be contacted concerning mutual interests, he said.

Vice-presidential candidate Davis said the student trustee should be given

I believe that a realistic re-examination with consideration of new alternatives for revitalization is in order. The area is primarily student oriented. The city should plan shopping and entertainment accordingly for adequate, wholesome, attractive facilities. The council should work for business-city cooperative beautification programs and liberalized parking regulations to encourage downtown shopping.

the right to vote on the Board of Trustees.

"Students speak to the Board through the student trustee," he said. "If the trustee had the right to vote, students would finally have a voice on the Board."

Jones said if the parking garage that is currently being constructed by Faner Hall is restricted to cars with blue stickers, he would like to see some of the blue parking lots changed to red. Specifically, Jones said the lot in front of Morris Library should be changed to a red lot.

"Of course, I'd like to see the garage open to cars with red stickers," Jones said. "But with Anthony Hall so close, I doubt it will be."

Davis said the student attorney program should be changed so that a student, using the services of the program, could sue the University.

Jones, who said he served on the committee which set up the student attorney program, is in favor of adopting the program as it is. Once the program is approved by the Board of Trustees, the attorney should have the power to sue the university, he said.

"A student president can't do a lot during a one year term," Jones said. "But we'll do the best we can."

News Roundup

No evidence of secret Viet pact, Ford says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford told bipartisan congressional leaders Wednesday he has reviewed confidential records of the Nixon administration and has found no evidence of any secret agreement between Washington and Saigon.

Ford inspected what his press secretary called "confidential exchanges" in which resigned President Richard M. Nixon assured the Saigon government the United States would "react vigorously" to any military offensive by Hanoi.

There apparently was no conflict between Ford's reference to "no secret agreements" and Press Secretary Ron Nessen's disclosure of "confidential exchanges." Nessen had said that "in substance the private exchanges do not differ from what was stated publicly."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., contended Tuesday there had been "secret agreements" between the Nixon administration and Saigon officials.

South Viet troops regain provincial capitol

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—The Saigon military command said its troops pushed North Vietnamese forces out of a provincial capital Wednesday in a fierce battle that was watched closely as an indicator of whether the South Vietnamese army has a will to fight.

North Vietnamese attacked Xuan Loc, 40 miles east of Saigon, before dawn in their first drive on a major city in the Saigon region since winning control of three-fourths of South Vietnam. Saigon's demoralized troops withdrew without a fight from central, northern and coastal areas last month and Communist-led forces now appear to be trying to encircle the jittery capital.

In Saigon, a Viet Cong spokesman said the pilot who bombed President Nguyen Van Thieu's palace Tuesday had landed his F5 fighter-bomber at a Viet Cong-held airfield. Thieu, who is widely blamed for the military losses, was not hurt, but at least two persons were killed.

Area residents join in ERA support rally

About 65 area persons joined the statewide demonstration in Springfield Wednesday to tell General Assembly members they want quick action on the proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"It was terrific. There were throngs of people there. One speaker at the rally estimated about 6,000," said Genevieve Houghton, 58th district coordinator for the ERA.

The demonstrators, many of them unemployed auto workers, said they traveled by the busload from throughout the state to attend a noon rally on the steps of the Capitol.

Gov. Daniel Walker and Nancy Stevenson, wife of U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson and an ERA proponent, addressed the rally briefly before the demonstrators walked inside the Capitol.

The ERA supporters sang "When the States Come Marching In," and carried signs urging Illinois ratification of the controversial proposal to ban sex discrimination by an amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Judge refuses to dismiss Humphrey indictment

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge refused Tuesday to dismiss a federal indictment accusing Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's 1970 campaign manager with arranging an illegal $12,000 campaign contribution from Associated Milk Producers, Inc.

Judge Edward Weinfeld ordered the defendant, Jack L. Chestnut, a Minneapolis lawyer, to stand trial May 5 on one count of willfully violating federal election laws.

Daily Egyptian to publish student hopefuls' views

The Daily Egyptian will publish platform statements, accompanied by pictures, of all student government candidates Tuesday, April 15. Candidates for president and vice president are requested to bring one platform statement, not to exceed 150 words in length, to the Daily Egyptian newsroom by 4 p.m. Thursday.

Senate candidates should bring their platform statements, not to exceed 100 words in length, to the newsroom by 6 p.m. Thursday. All statements should include the following information: name, party affiliation, candidate's year in school, major, local address and local phone number.

The statements should be typewritten and double-spaced. No statements will be accepted which do not conform to these simple guidelines. Delivery of the statements to the Daily Egyptian newsroom is the responsibility of each candidate. Candidates must deliver statements in person and be prepared to present a valid identification. Photographers will be on hand to take candidates' pictures.

The Daily Egyptian newsroom is located in 1247 of the Communications Building, north wing. Candidates who do not submit platform statements, in person, by the Thursday deadline will not have them published in the paper.

Each presidential and vice presidential ticket will represent one platform statement.

Local Head Start receives HEW funds

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The area Operation Head Start program has received $77,142 from the federal Health, Education and Welfare Dept. (HEW), U.S. Rep. Paul Simon announced Wednesday.

The money, however, is not exactly a godsend, according to Jennie Jones, area Head Start program advisor.

The funds, Jones said, is not that big a boon because it does not provide for a cost of living increase in the operational funding for the local Head Start agencies. Jones, a former Head Start regional training officer for Illinois' 62 southern counties, said the money intended for a cost-of-living increase is going to the administrative area of the national program.

She said the administrative costs of the meeting in the program have also gone up, and added "HEW didn't get to the point where they included a cost-of-living increase."

The program is funded on a "continuing resolution" basis in Congress Jones said. It is given the same amount of money it received in the previous year until money is awarded for the present year, she explained.

"We're operating on a very tight budget, this program particularly," she said. "We're depending on the good graces of the community."

Operation Head Start, run by the SIU (Child and Family Department, is a child development program for three to five-year olds which deals in the health, psychological, social and educational aspects of a child's life and family, Jones said.

The program serves 75 children in Jackson and Williamson counties, Jones said, and has centers in Murphysboro and Carterville.

Jones described the Jackson-Williamson county program as unusual because it is the only one in Southern Illinois which operates through a university, and only one in the northern section of the state is run in such a manner.

SIU graduate students serve as teachers and volunteers in the program, she said. "The program is an excellent resource for the students. They apply theories about the pre-school child and family living.

"It provides field experience in all aspects of the (child and family) program," she added.

Another advantage to having the program run by SIU is that participants in Head Start can make use of the University's services and facilities, Jones said. Among those mentioned include the University legal counsel, help in fiscal management, training and technical assistance from various departments, and dental examinations from the School of Technical Careers.

"They have many resources they wouldn't otherwise have," she said. "It's really a model program."

Vernon Stubblefield, vice-presidential candidate, seeks more signatures. As of Tuesday, an estimated 1,300 names had been gathered in support of the group's position. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

World crises need new approach, Saturday Review editor suggests

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Saturday Review Editor Norman Cousins said people need a new way of looking at the scheme of world problems, not a prescription for isolated issues.

Cousins was a guest lecturer for Liberal Arts Week Tuesday night in the Student Center Auditorium.

Cousins said the question to ask about South Vietnam is not "How many plane loads of orphans should we bring to the United States?" Instead, the big questions are: "What have we learned from 15 years of involvement there? And what will we do now?"

"War is not only real estate and guns; ultimately, we're dealing with the human mind. The way the human mind turns is the way the world turns. That's the highest act of free will we can enjoy," Cousins said.

Cousins sees the world divided into two camps. Those in one camp see man as a creature of good will and intelligence, he said. The others think there is no way out and that man has always known war.

"No one in the world really knows enough to be a pessimist," Cousins said. Computerized predictions of world holocaust are respectable because they sound the alert. But the computer cannot understand the imponderable working of the human mind, he said.

Cousins said the most serious thing to happen in the last 25 years is the desensitization of the American soul. Whether through wars, books or television, he sees Americans taking a casual approach to violence.

The recent history of Vietnam is "a tragedy of incalculable proportion," he said. As many Vietnamese orphans as possible should be brought to the U.S., Cousins said. There is no danger that they will suffer homesickness or cultural shock if they are taken into American homes and made to feel part of the family, he said.

Cousins said he learned that 20 years ago when the Saturday Review mounted a successful campaign to bring children from Hiroshima to the U.S. for surgery.

Cousins said the U.S. affairs in Viet Nam were the result of assuming the liabilities of the French in Indochina after they departed.

When the U.S. government ignored the warning that former South Vietnamese Premier Diem would be assassinated, Cousins said. "We began to play a game of international cops and robbers. It was a game that we didn't have experience in playing and one which is not an American game," he said.

"The people of the U.S. have not given their president the right to support or overthrow a foreign government," Cousins said.

He called the CIA an unconstitutional branch of the government which makes foreign policy without the consent of Congress.

Cousins wonders why there has been no outcry by the American people against the use of the CIA to subvert foreign governments. "When that cry is heard we'll have learned the lesson of Vietnam," he said.

Cousins called the U.N. the best chance for three billion humans to avert an atomic war. "Energy should be given to the proposition that world governmental order is possible," he said.

The great gifts of humanity, imagination and ingenuity should be used to establish world order, Cousins said.

Brandt hints at revamp of personnel

By Gary Marx
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU President Warren W. Brandt told a group of Administrative and Professional Staff personnel he was impressed with their work. But he hinted at a restructuring of administrative personnel.

He said some individuals are in areas where they do not function as effectively as possible.

"We're in the process of putting the tenors and the sopranos together," Brandt said. "And we've done more than just pick around with the organizational structure of the University."

He said the reorganization will be complete in two months and it will effect the Administrative and Professional Staff Council.

Brandt was addressing the council at their biannual constituency meeting Wednesday in Morris Library Auditorium.

In discussion of other issues, Brandt said the matter of salary increases was one he approached with "fear and enthusiasm" because "there was a lot of money available."

He said there was much debate over balancing inflation rate increases with merit system raises.

"Merits are important because the individuals who do good work should be recognized," Brandt said. He added that there are adequate means for determining distribution of merit increases.

Two-thirds of the faculty and staff salary increases which take effect in July will be awarded on the merit basis.

Brandt said it is rare when a university has enough money available to increase salaries nine per cent and he hopes the majority of faculty and staff are pleased with the allocation plan.

University Forum was also discussed by the president.

He said he has not seen the need to ask the forum's opinion on any issues but added that if the campus constituencies see a need for it then he would support them.

No fee raise

The Board of Trustees should reject any proposed fee increases, except the student-to-student scholarship and student attorney assessments. Despite student objection to the other proposed hikes ($10 for the Student Center and Athletic fees) the board is scheduled to consider raising fees at its May meeting in Edwardsville. The remaining three dollars (the total increase in $13.25), is for the legal and scholarship programs and can be refunded to students not wishing to participate in the programs.

Contrary to what the administration would have us believe, students have little to say about where their fees are spent. Full-time students at SIU-C currently are charged $75 per semester in mandatory fees. The proposal scheduled to go before the board next month could hike the amount to $88.25.

According to the Hirschfeld Report, "a pious piece of paper," according to James Brown, general secretary of the Southern Illinois University system, "Students should wield the major campus influence over use of their fees." Currently, middle and upper level administrators exercise the greatest say on fee allocation.

Students sit mostly in cosmetic function, on some of the "advisory" boards that are, in theory, designed to offer students avenues of input on fee decisions. But, when it comes to actually drawing up proposals to submit to the board, people like T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, and Clarence "Doc" Dougherty, director of the Student Center, make the decisions. Mager was the person responsible for the athletic fee increase proposal. Dougherty has been campaigning for an increase in the fee that funds operations for his building. They listen to students but take little heed of the remarks made by those paying the fees. Student groups have come out largely, and vocally against the fee hikes, yet the proposals have been drawn.

The potential fee increases, along with a possible raise of tuition of $101 per year, as recommended by a subcommittee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, will force many potential students to reevaluate the economic feasibility of attending SIU. With enrollment trends going down this is a dangerous possibility for the University and community. If all these increases (tuition and fees) are approved, SIU might just price itself out of existence, able only to appeal to an elite, middle class constituency.

Strong support must be given for the Hirschfeld recommendations suggesting increased student influence of allocation of student fees. Until there is concrete and meaningful input by students no fee hikes can be justified.

"POUR MORE FUEL ON IT, I THINK WE CAN OUTFRUIT IT."

Killing us to keep us alive

The quality of our lives may have been dealt another serious slap in the face, this time with the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) recommendation that sulphur dioxide regulations be eased for rural Illinois coal-burning plants. In asking the Illinois Pollution Control Board (PCB) to approve a seven-year extension of the deadline for meeting sulphur dioxide emission limits, the EPA is saying, in effect, "to hell with the quality of our air, we need more energy; and Illinois has the coal to provide it."

Tighter sulphur and nitrogen regulations were to take effect May 30, but the EPA recommended an extension of that date until Dec. 31, 1982. The EPA has tried to make its recommendations palatable by stipulating that the regulation easement not apply to the metropolitan areas of Chicago, Peoria and East St. Louis. According to EPA air-pollution control manager Jack Hudson, extension of the deadline for meeting emission standards for rural power plants will allow the coal-burning industry to concentrate its clean-up efforts in the three metropolitan filth-bins while leaving 11 downstate plants—which consume 13 million tons of coal per year—able to burn high-sulphur coal from Illinois mines.

In a statement not worth remembering, Hudson said, "I don't think these changes ease the regulation, they clarify them." The changes may clarify things for the power industry, but they serve only to fog and further pollute things for the people who have to breathe every day. How are we going to clarify and justify our actions a generation from now when our neglect of long-range solutions to short-term catches up with us? Will we say we had to opt for destroying our environment because we needed more energy to keep our cars, air-conditioning, electric hair-dryers and countless other wasteful paraphernalia in operation? I wouldn't buy that argument, and I hope by children don't either.

Rule 303 of the Air Pollution Control Regulations (Revised, second printing, 1973) states that ambient air quality standards shall be enforced and not altered unless "change is justifiable as a result of necessary economic and social development and will not interfere with or become injurious to human health or welfare." The EPA seems to have taken the first clause of that rule to heart, while throwing the second clause out the window and into the noxious air.

It seems we have come to a point in our crazed desire to wastefully consume whereby we are willing to kill ourselves in order to keep ourselves alive.

Peddlin' over the overpass will net a ticket every time

By Wes Smith

"This is Airborne Officer Herbert Hooper rappin' to you from the SIU Traffic Copter high overhead the East Campus overpass. It looks like things are cool in school as truckin' traffic is down to a dwindle.

"Hold the phone, we seem to have a bad-mutha biker peddlin' pandemium among some sedate strollers. Arrest and detain, Overpass Officer."

"This here's Overpass Officer Frankfort Flattfut.

I've spotted the subject peddlin' ayuss westword on aforementioned bridge. He's on one of them high-performance, ten-speed, Communist-made jobs. Looks like a speed freak. I will detain.

"Okay, where's the freakin' fire, boy?"

"S'cuse me officer. I gotta catch up with that fat girl with the load of books. She's walking kind of crooked and I figure I can aim my steel-spiked peddle at that carbuncle on her kneecap and scrape off a good gash before I get away."

"Bein' smart with-me boy?"

"Sorry, it's just a little early in the day to get busted."

"Yeah, I know what you mean. I've been on this godawful bridge since seven this morning. My arches ache. I'm catching ammonia and every kid that goes by looks at me like I just busted up his great-grandmother's bingo binge. What's your name kid?"

"Ryder, sir."

"Initials?"

"E. Z., sir."

"Okay, Ryder. We're gonna be takin' the wind out of your cycler's sails from now on. We'll be on this overpass from dawn to dusk so you'd better get used to walkin' those wheels. It'll cost you a buck this time."

"What a drag."

"Easy, Ryder."

"No, I mean, what a drag it must be for you to stand on this bridge all day like a tin-star troll, catching crap from everybody and having to hassle people who would rather save money and get some exercise by riding on a bike rather than in a car."

"You got a point there E.Z. but, when you're a rookie you don't exactly rate like Sargeant Joe Friday."

"Wouldn't you rather be doing something a little more exciting like movin' and cruisin' around campus, protecting people from robbery and rape?"

"Hell yes, I've been bucking for the summer pick-pocket detail on Campus Beach but you can't beat seniority for those soft jobs. You're right, though, I really don't jive on protecting the human race from the ten-speed menace."

"Kind of a drag all the way around huh?"

"You've got the idea kid, but you've also got to think of those poor pedestrians on campus. How'd you like a 15 m.p.h. goose from a flyin' Fuji?"

"Might be an elevating experience, Officer Frank."

"Ha, you're all right kid, but it's still gonna cost you a buck."

"Well, I took my chances I guess. If you peddle you pay. But I figured there were only two people on the bridge and if I slowed down and concentrated I had a good chance of missing at least one of them."

"Yeah, I know what you mean, but orders are orders and we can't make exceptions just because it makes sense."

"Hey, Frank, what would you think about painting lines on the overpass for bike lanes and allowing bikers to ride in the lanes except during peak periods?"

"Makes sense kid."

"Guess that's the problem, huh Frank?"

Deposed leaders deserve courtesy

John Gunther Dean, U.S. Ambassador to Cambodia, spent 90 minutes at the Phnom Penh airport last week, at times crouching from rebel rocket fire, waiting to say goodbye to President Lon Nol—News Item.

From: U.S. State Department, Office of Protocol.
To: All U.S. Ambassadors.
Subject: Airport farewells.

A rather strongly-worded complaint from one of our Ambassadors in the field has been received by this office pertaining to the lack of guidelines on the proper protocol for bidding farewells to departing Presidents of allied nations.

As such situations may arise with increasing frequency in the future, we hope the following directive will be of help.

1 — On being notified of the departure of a President who has enjoyed our support for a number of years, the Ambassador should offer to drive him to the airport.

2 — During the drive, the Ambassador should dwell on pleasant subjects, such as the love and devotion the President has earned from his people during his term of office.

3 — If the airport is under fire from the people upon arrival, the Ambassador may drop the President off at the curb, noting that "the parking lot seems to be full" or that he hates "long goodbyes."

4 — In no circumstances should the Ambassador ask, "May I check your bags?" What the President has done with the money we have sent him is, after all, his business.

5 — Great care should be taken in phrasing the farewell properly. "Sorry you couldn't stay longer" may sound overly defeatist. At the same time, "Come back soon" may appear, in most cases, overly optimistic. A simple "Don't forget to write" should generally suffice.

6 — Should a U.S. Marine Corps Band be present

"YOU DO UNDERSTAND WE MEAN WELL?"

for the occasion, equal care should be devoted to the musical selections. Sad farewell songs, such as "I'll Get Along Without You Very Well," definitely set the wrong mood. A cheerful, friendly tune, like "So Long, It's Been Good to Know You," strikes a far more preferable note.

7 — In order to maintain this cheery, optimistic ambience, the Ambassador should never, under any circumstances, check the availability of subsequent flights until the President is airborne.

8 — In dire emergencies, the Ambassador may offer the departing President a ride only to the Airport Bus Terminal. In such cases, he should cite "the rush hour traffic to the airport" — no matter what the hour.

We trust this directive will eliminate future complaints by Ambassadors in the field such as the one referred to above. Such language has no place in diplomatic cables.

Shabby journalism

To the Daily Egyptian:

A photograph appeared on page 1 of the April 1 edition of the Daily Egyptian which showed a "depressed juvenile offender" pondering his situation. The picture accompanied a story dealing with the increase in juvenile crime in Jackson County written by Daily Egyptian staff writer Pat Corcoran.

Letters

It must have been an April Fool since the "depressed juvenile offender" was none other than Pat Corcoran himself. Unless Corcoran is actually one of the 70 juvenile delinquents arrested by Jackson County officials last year, Daily Egyptian readers have been lied to, not inadvertently, but purposively.

There can be no excuse for this type of shoddy journalism on the part of the Daily Egyptian editor and staff. Posed pictures are an insult to the intelligence of the reader. The picture of Corcoran told the readers that he is someone that he is not, and unless the majority of the 18,000 students on campus know Corcoran, they would be unaware of the lie and take it as truth.

In a time when the reliability and responsibility of the press is being questioned, this type of incident can only blacken the image of the Fourth Estate. Ethics in journalism must be taught to the student journalist, or the working journalist will never acquire them. If journalism is to be an honorable profession, it must have honorable men and women as part of it.

The Daily Egyptian as not been honorable and ethical in dealing with the students, faculty, staff and townspeople who read this story, a story that was both pertinent and informative. It makes the reader think, how many other times has the D.E. been less than ethical with its readers? Can the readers really believe what they read in the Daily Egyptian? On the basis of the April 1 issue, we wonder.

Negrin's charm

To the Daily Egyptian:

Soloist dancer Daniel Negrin came, danced and obviously captured the artistic sensitivity of the audience. His appearance at Shryock Auditorium on Wednesday, March 19 was the realization of my personal obsession to see a dance master perform while I am visiting Southern Illinois University. "Music hath charm..."—so too does dance, and Daniel Negrin.

Thanks for help and money

To the Daily Egyptian:

The Carbondale Peace Center, Carbondale Church Women United, and the Southern Illinois chapter of UNA would like to express sincere thanks to all who helped make a success of the sale and auction benefiting UNICEF and CROP. The proceeds amounted to a little more than $1,350.

Our thanks to McDonald's, the Carbondale dry cleaning establishments, Carbondale supermarkets and Hunter Brothers, all who contributed in one way or another. We also wish to acknowledge the loan of clothing racks from Mohr-Value and Bleyer's Clothing Stores. Without storage space at the Newman Center and the use of Xavier Hall, we would also have been at a loss. Thanks also to the press, the churches, radio and TV for their announcements about the sale.

Last, and by no means least, we wish to thank all those who contributed donations; who worked at the sale; who prepared and served food, and to our involved buyers. Without all of this community support, the auction and sale could not have been successful. Thanks to a Community concerned about its fellow-man.

Grinding his ax

To the Daily Egyptian:

After reading Lonny Gordon's review of the Winnipeg Ballet (Daily Egyptian, March 19), I was unsure whether to laugh, or regurgitate. Mr. Gordon's review is vindictive and spiteful, I have seen Mr. Gordon's choreography, which leaves much to be desired. I, therefore, assume that Mr. Gordon has verbalized his jealousy of the success of the Winnipeg Ballet through the Daily Egyptian. His attacks on the dancers' abilities are vicious. Perhaps if Mr. Gordon's own choreography had been more professional, more exciting, his review of the Winnipeg Ballet would have been more easily stomachable.

I hope that in the future the Daily Egyptian will choose guest writers who have no personal axes to grind. Perhaps, too, conflict of interest restrictions should be extended to reviewers.

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Writers are requested to be concise and, in the event the subject has a time element, to bring letters to the Daily Egyptian newsroom as early in the day as possible. Multimedia show scheduled for Friday evening at Furr

By Deborah Slager
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

James Sanders, graduate student in ceramics, has designed and directed a multimedia production to be performed at 8 p.m., Friday in Furr Auditorium. Titled "Peace for Grace," the show which is open free to the public, is comprised of three pieces designed for the stage, and one intermission composition.

Attempting to create a total theatrical experience, Sander's compositions will incorporate magnetic tape compositions, dance, metalsmithing, weaving, ceramics, slide presentations and cinema.

The artist said that he is aiming at integrating each respective medium in order to "present an easily readable statement concerning movement and the kinesthetic nature of all media while in the process of creation." The cyclical nature of creation and destruction is the thematic whole.

The program begins with a metals piece in which undergraduate and graduate students in metalsmithing are used as a percussive music source according to Sanders. Based on what Sanders characterizes as "chance compositions," the piece presents dancers involved in movements that have to do with the reaction of metal when it is under stress.

The process involved in creating a monumental weaving is conceptualized through movement in the second piece. Fourteen dancers, celluloid tape, 16 mm. movie projection as well as both synthesized and natural oceanic sounds are all part of the chemistry incorporated in weaving the massive celluloid structure.

Sanders explained that bodies will be used to form an actual loom, with human shuttles moving at different speeds and levels, all involved in the weaving process. When the structure is finished, Sanders said, it will be tied off and the dancers rolled up and across the stage in it.

The hour long film is one of four lectures Feynman gave at Cornell University last year.

Feynman, 63, won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1965 for his work with Quantum Electrodynamics.

The film will be followed by a discussion period. Admission is free.

In keeping with the rest of the program, the activities planned for the intermission piece have a slightly bizarre flavor. Clay and fat in the process of decaying will be displayed in plastic boxes, along with figures covered in clay involved in different stages of the drying and hardening processes.

Dancers from the weaving dance will stay in place after the finish of their dance and movies and slides will be displayed on the stage and walls of the auditorium.

Telephone meeting set at Evergreen Terrace

The Evergreen Terrace Activities Council will hold a special meeting April 23 in building 150 to discuss a proposal concerning the installation of a new telephone system.

The new system will be similar to that used in the dormitories. Every resident will be furnished with a phone, and the cost will be added to the rent.

Robert Wene, supervisor of family housing, said the cost will actually be about $3 less per person than the rate for private phones.

Wene outlined some possible disadvantages of the new system. All residents will have phones and be charged for them. Residents now contract with the telephone company for service. No collect calls may be accepted with the new phones.

HAVE YOU SEEN ANY GOOD MOVIES LATELY?

Some people we talk to in Carbondale these days say they haven't. And, they say, the way things look, maybe they won't ever again. Much of what's new at the movies doesn't interest them, they tell us, and the rest are often just third and fourth time reruns. With that in mind, we went looking for some good films people told us they'd heard or read about but thought they'd never see in Carbondale. We've booked them into a once-a-week Friday series at the Varsity No. 1. Admission is our rock-bottom $1.25. These films, all of which received rave reviews when they were released, probably won't ever run again in town. So, if you've got the money and the time, pay us a visit.

Food Day observance calls for fasting

By the Associated Press

Americans are being urged to plant seeds, study and skip meals on Thursday, April 17, in a nationwide "Food Day" campaign to focus attention on global problems of hunger and nutrition.

The effort is sponsored by the nonprofit Center for Science in the Public Interest of Washington, D.C., and has a list of backers including several congressmen, clergymen and consumer advocates.

Governors of six states—Connecticut, Nebraska, Kentucky, Colorado, Vermont and New York—have proclaimed April 17 as Food Day and the governor of Massachusetts is expected to issue a similar declaration next Thursday.

A spokesman for the science center said the chief goal of the campaign "is to get people thinking about food issues as a whole."

Activities at the local level are being organized by a variety of groups, including Oxfam-America, sponsor of last November's "Fast for a World Harvest" when many Americans skipped meals and sent the money they would have spent to charities to alleviate starvation and improve agricultural production in developing nations.

Oxfam spokesmen say the November fast raised $232,000 and predict that "this event will be much more successful." There is no breakdown available of how the $232,000 was spent, but Oxfam officials say administrative costs account for about 13 percent of funds raised.

The current Oxfam campaign has been dubbed "Plant a Seed for Change" and is designed to focus on the producing, rather than the consuming, end of the food problem. Oxfam is calling on everyone who can to plant seeds and send an equivalent amount of money to anti-hunger programs.

Other events range from public school teach-ins sponsored by the Department of Consumer Affairs in Louisville, Ky., to $100-a-plant "nondinners" in Los Angeles and Sacramento, Calif., featuring a menu of speeches only.

Food Day organizers say problems of production, nutrition and prices are interrelated. They are conducting an educational campaign aimed at telling people more about the nutritional value of what they eat.

The science center has prepared a controversial list of "Terrible Ten"—foods that allegedly "optimize everything that is wrong with the American food supply." The list includes some breakfast foods, a soft drink and prime grade beef, "fattened on grain that could otherwise be consumed by hungry people."

The list has come in for some criticism including attacks from nutrition experts who say it is arbitrary and contains some misleading statements.

Asked what governed the selection of the "Terrible Ten" and why, for example, the list named one soft drink instead of another, a spokesman for the center—a Ralph Nader spinoff—replied: "We like to use brand names, like advertisers."

Marion man arrested for gambling charges

MARION (AP)—The owner of a pool hall was charged with keeping a gambling house and 17 other persons were arrested after police raided the Marion establishment.

Authorities said gambling equipment, including 226 decks of cards and an undetermined amount of money, were confiscated during the Tuesday night raid. Kenneth L. Rains, of Herrin, owner of the Marion Recreation Club, was charged with keeping a gambling house and was released on $250 bond.

The 17 other persons were each charged with gambling and released on $100 bond.

Area to get exposure to fine movies

A continuing complaint of movie buffs in Carbondale is that the "really good films" never get here. These are films which get exceptionally outstanding reviews when they open in New York City, but because of poor box office receipts, along with even poorer distribution, never make it to "boondocks" like Carbondale.

In the next three weeks, possibly longer if the series is a success, the Varsity Theater will make an attempt to remedy this situation. Each Friday afternoon at 4:15 p.m., they will show one exceptional film that has never before been screened in Carbondale.

Beginning this week with John Huston's 1972 powerhouse, "Fat City," the series is scheduled to definitely continue for at least two weeks and until the end of the semester if it goes over big.

"Throughout the year I've had a lot of people come up to me and say, 'We've got eight theater screens in this town, so why can't I see the kind of movie I want to see?'" says Demba Kuczejda, spokesman for Kerasotes Theaters and initiator of the film series. "So I got suggestion lists from a lot of people and came up with the series."

Scheduled for Friday, April 18 is Louis Malle's "Murmur of the Heart," a film that was well received by critics for its sensitive, yet humorous handling of a taboo subject—mother-son incest.

"Kid Blue," starring Dennis Hopper, Warren Oates, Peter Boyle and Ben Johnson, has been booked for April 25.

If the series continues past its third week, Kuczejda says possible films include Robert Altman's "Thieves Like Us" (which did play Carbondale for three days last summer), "Payday" with Rip Torn and "Desperate Characters" with Shirley MacLaine. Free program notes will be handed out to patrons beginning with "Murmur of the Heart."

The Friday afternoon films will be shown in the larger, 600-seat Varsity 1, and admission will be $1.25.

More beer is brewed in Milwaukee than any other city in the world. So to be the #1 selling beer in Milwaukee means you've got to be brewing the best beer money can buy.

And Pabst must be doing just that. Look at the charts. Blue Ribbon accounts for more than half the beer sold in Milwaukee. It outsells the next brand nearly five to one.

That's why we feel we've earned the right to challenge any beer. So here's the Pabst challenge: Taste and compare the flavor of Blue Ribbon with the beer you're drinking and learn what Pabst quality in beer is all about. But don't take our word for it. Taste our word for it.

Morris Library map room leads obscure existence

By Susan Vickroy
Student Writer

The map room of Morris Library contains 170,000 items to do with maps, but studies of the map room indicate that few people realize that one exists, said Jean Ray, librarian. The map room, located on the fifth floor in the Science Division, contains maps of all types including aeronautical, census, climate, historical, medical, vegetation and zoning. There are 45,000 aerial photographs of Southern Illinois counties from 1938 to 1971. There are also 250 three-dimensional plastic relief maps and six globes, as well as 1300 books.

The map library is also a depository for maps published by the U.S. Geological Survey, National Ocean Survey, Lake Survey and Defense Mapping Agency Topographic Center. Road maps from Illinois counties and cities are also in the Map Room.

The map room's card catalogue lists all maps under the geographical area covered. Most of the maps can be checked out.

Any SIU faculty member may arrange for a class visit to the map room with orientation lecture, display materials or explanation of simple cartographic techniques, said Ray. Off-campus groups may also make arrangements for tours of the map room.

Newman Center thief nets $230 in goods

Sometime between 10 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday one or more persons broke into the Newman Center, 815 S. Washington Ave., vandalized the premises and stole items valued at over $230, SIU Security police said.

Willis V. Lamer, a janitor at the center, reported the break in to security police at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday.

The police report said entry was gained by forcing a door open in the northeast corner of the building.

The folding doors separating the gymnasium from the snack bar were torn from the wall, and flags and clothes were pulled from the altar in the tabernacle.

A stereo record player valued at $150, a cassette tape recorder valued at $50 and three rolls of 10 cent stamps valued at $30 were reported stolen.

Chewed glove sparks interest in bow wow art

EAST MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—Canine chew artists are being invited to enter their work in what may be the world's first doggie art show, with such entry categories as warp and woof, wood wonders and metal messes.

The show will be held Sunday by the Quad-Cities Dog Obedience Club, which got the idea after judges at a Davenport, Iowa art show last year unwittingly awarded a prize to a mitten chewed by a dog.

"By a fluke it won," said Mrs. Robert Masat, of Davenport, president of the obedience club. "Some people got quite uptight over a dog winning a prize in a human art show."

"I saw the humor as did my husband and our show just grew from that," she said.

Mrs. Masat said bow wow art will be accepted from dogs anywhere in the country and there is a 25-cent entry fee. The show will be held at the Rock Island County Fairgrounds here, but there is no requirement that the dog, or owner be present.

The judge will be Robert F. Bina, a Davenport artist and Iowa state legislator.

Not only will the dog's artworks be judged, but Mrs. Masat said she will sell them for the owners.

"If any of them see the humor and the joy of saying, yes, it's worth $5 to me or $1.50, we'll put a price on it," she said.

Entry categories are warp and woof chewed scarves, gloves, etc.; rubber or plastic destruction tooth-marked overshoes, balls, etc.; wood wonders chewed or clawed wood objects; metal messes mangled fence, screens, etc.; and found objects anything the dog drags home and improves.

"Art is in the eye of the beholder," said Mrs. Masat. "Let's face it, the dogs are supposed to be artists in this, but the dogs are not judging. It is a human judging of a dog's creative venture."

Ribbons will be given in each category and a trophy for best of show.

But ironically, Alexis Boyar, the Afghan hound who kicked it all off, will not be participating.

Alexis Boyar's chewed mitten won $50 in the Mid-Mississippi Art Show last October after being entered by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McDonald Jr., of Davenport.

"He's never done a thing since, he's not interested," said Mrs. McDonald. "He doesn't compete with dogs, he only competes with humans."

Students find job openings in aviation technology fields

Increased enrollment in the SIU aviation technology program reflects the wide-open job market in that field.

According to E.A. Darosa, chairman of the Division of Aviation Technologies, the last graduating class in avionics technology received an average of eight job offers each. A major cause of the demand for jobs is that until recently the bulk of aircraft mechanics were World War II veterans who now face retirement.

Darosa also cites changes in the industry as contributing to the shortage. "Today's pilot must be the master of his aircraft while formerly it just took a lot of guts," he also pointed out that aircraft workers of today are technicians not just mechanics.

Darosa compares the broadening scope of aviation job possibilities to a spider web reaching in all directions. Not only trained technicians are needed, but also aviation instructors, aviation insurance adjusters, as well as airport managers to meet the increasing demand.

Emphasizing the size of the job market Darosa said, "It takes 200 men on the ground to keep a jumbo jet in the air." Besides the availability of jobs it is possible for a graduate of a two-year program to earn $18,000 annually.

According to Darosa the day of airlines hiring pilots just out of school is past. Airlines now hire flight engineers who must be versed in navigation, instrumentation, radar, and communications as well as the mechanical aspects of maintenance.

After a period of three to five years a flight engineer is eligible to be promoted to co-pilot. It then takes 10-12 years to become a captain.

Darosa also expects an increasing popularity of helicopters stating, "In the near future helicopters will be used for doorstep-to-doorstep flights rather than airport to airport."

Housing development provides horse stables

NORMAL, Ill. (AP)—A Normal real estate man is planning a new housing development where residents can park not only their car, but their horse.

The 35-acre subdivision southeast of here will feature stables, an oval training track, and more than a mile of bridle trails.

Families who build on one of the development's 31 lots will gain part ownership of track and stables, including a stall to park their animal.

"We spend thousands of dollars for recreation and swimming and tennis and everything else," said Hal Riss Jr., the developer. "But the horse owner doesn't have a place to his own in which to pursue his own recreation and hobby."

"I saw a demand here and I'm trying to fill that demand if I can," said Riss, a member of the Army cavalry during World War II.

Riss said the nation's horse population is increasing by nine per cent a year, far more quickly than its dog or human populations. But most Illinois counties require a minimum of five acres zoned for agriculture use to keep a horse, he said.

An officer in a major corporation refused recently to transfer to McLean County because he couldn't find a place to keep his two Arabian horses, Riss said.

"If he found the ground, the house wasn't acceptable. If he found the house it wasn't acceptable for the horses. He couldn't keep them," said Riss.

"This way you can get by with a smaller lot but have all the facilities available, including training facilities as well as pleasure riding trails," he said.

Riss said he has obtained a special use permit for the project from the McLean County Zoning Board, and hopes to begin selling in July.

The lots will range from about half an acre to about an acre and are expected to sell for an average of $8,000, Riss said.

Lobsters to be raised in underwater corrals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New England lobsters, those tasty creatures of the briny North Atlantic, may soon be raised like herds of cattle in heated, underwater corrals.

Keeping lobsters in shored-based pens would reduce the lobsters' staggering mortality rate, marine biologists say. In the ocean about one lobster in 10,000 reaches the marketable weight of one pound.

Furthermore, scientists have learned that lobsters grow to that size four times faster in heated water from power-generating plants than in the icy depths off New England.

Long-range benefits from the work being done in labs on this cost and elsewhere could mean a dependable and increased supply of this much-loved but rapidly diminishing seafood.

New England lobster costs more than $4 a pound retail — when it can be found. Demand has depleted lobsters in some areas. Lobster farming may insure a steady supply, but the price is not expected to raise them.

Scientists began a study in 1970 to determine whether it would be feasible to transplant Eastern lobsters to the Pacific Ocean.

"But first we had to find out how these lobsters would get along with the habitat and the other marine animals that are native to this area," said James M. Carlberg, a research associate at California State University at San Diego.

It was soon determined that the Pacific Ocean along Southern California offered all the shelter, food and other conditions that the lobster needed.

But biologists found that the lobster's aggressive tendencies, backed by huge powerful claws, could possibly displace other native creatures, including California's spiny lobster, which has no claws.

By 1972, Carlberg said, he and his associates were concentrating on aquaculture. A two-story laboratory was set up beneath the shoreward end of a pier at Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla. They rigged trays, tanks and pipes to circulate water from the ocean.

From the Massachusetts Lobster Hatchery, they got egg-bearing females for brood stock and, with temperature controls installed on some of the tanks, they soon found that in water heated to around 70 degrees, the time between mating and hatching of eggs was reduced from 18 months in the wild to about 12 months in the lab.

They also found that a lobster could be grown from the egg to marketable size in about 18 months, a process that requires five to seven years in the cold Atlantic. Raising the lobsters in pens also reduced the mortality rate to under 50 per cent.

To obtain an economical source of heated sea water, the biologists turned to the San Diego Gas &

Electric Co. They were given permission to build a laboratory at its generating plant on the oceanfront at Carlsbad.

There they combine seawater that has been heated as a coolant for the generators with water from an adjacent oceanflushed lagoon to maintain temperatures between 70 and 75 degrees.

Carlberg said the lab is a model for future commercial installations.

How does the farm-grown lobster compare to the Atlantic-raised lobster in taste?

"We have eaten some of them," Carlberg said. "As far as we could tell, there was no difference. They were mighty good."

Charlotte West, director of the Department of Women's Intercollegiate Athletics, has been appointed to the Reorganization Committee of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women. The committee had its first meeting March 23 and 24 in Washington, D. C.

Salmoiraghi's photographs show an old man with his cat, a wall with tapestries, an old woman with head bowed and a small boy on the street.

Professor M. Byron Raizis of the English Department was the keynote speaker at the Greek Independence Day celebration March 23 at Northwestern University. Dr. Raizis lectured on "Solomos as the Poet of His Nation." This event was sponsored by the Hellenic Professional Society of Illinois.

Five SIU faculty members and five students attended a meeting of the American Council on Consumer Interests in Kansas City, Mo., April 2 through 5.

Faculty members attending were Thomas Brooks, professor of family economics and management; Karen Craig, University assistant provost and associate professor of family economics and management; Shirley Friend, assistant dean of the College of Human Resources and professor of clothing and textiles; and Mary Ellen Edmundson and Sue Peterson, instructors in family economics and management. Students attending are Cindy Rimm, Linda Mehnert, Carol Feves, Mary Lattvin and Lu Guthrie.

The annual dinner sponsored by the Southern Hills Council for the Southern Hills residents will be held April 19 at Tom's Place near DeSoto, said Dave Smith, Council President. The charge is $5 per couple, and the group will have a choice of four main dishes—prime rib, strip sirloin, stuffed shrimp, or filet mignon.

Ronald A. Browning, assistant professor of physiology, recently received a $9,100 research grant from the Epilepsy Foundation of America.

The grant allows Browning to continue his study of serotonin, a chemical produced by specialized neurons in the brain, and its role in epileptic seizure susceptibility. Past research indicates serotonin has important functions in modulating seizure activity, Browning said.

Louis Viecelli, assistant professor at SIU's Rehabilitation Institute, is continuing a study of rehabilitation programs for the blind through a $27,600 grant from the Social and Rehabilitation Service.

The study will examine job development programs for the blind and career alternatives.

A. Doyne Horsley, assistant professor of geography, recently presented workshop programs at the Malan Junior High School in Harrisburg and the Carmi Unit School District. His program was on "attitude change procedures relevant to social learning theory."

Frank Salmoiraghi, who received a bachelor's degree in photography from SIU in 1968, has four photos of life in Japan featured in the current issue of Camera magazine.

All in a day's work

Wendy Tschannen, a junior in physical education, believes that being her own boss and liking children are good reasons to own and run a day care center.

From 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Monday through Friday, Wendy's Little People's Day Care Center provides an entertaining and learning environment for kids ranging in age from two to five

During her four years as owner of the center, Wendy has tried to find and cater to the diversified needs and problems of the kids. Artistic creations by the youngsters are displayed throughout the center to enhance the environment. Wendy said she wants the kids to grow naturally while their parents are working or attending classes.

Park district election Tuesday

By Bruce Hackel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Another election besides the City Council election will be held Tuesday in Carbondale.

Three Carbondale Park District commissioners, one for a two-year term and two for six-year terms, will be elected.

The two-year term is what remains of the job vacated by former park commissioner Kenneth Miller, who left Carbondale last year to assume another position.

Running for the two six-year term positions are Loren E. Taylor, 402 S. Dixon; Frank Gumm, 504 W. Mill; and Roger Klam, 36 Pinewood Drive.

Running for the unexpired term of Kenneth Miller are Sandra Warren, Box 2501, who has filled the position in Miller's absence, and Karen S. Brown, 403 W. Freeman.

Carbondale residents who live west of the railroad tracks can vote at the Park District Community Center, 208 W. Elm. Carbondale residents who live east of the railroad tracks can vote at the Community Center at University City, 606 S. Wall.

The polling places in Carbondale will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Park District commissioners, who compose the governing board of the park district, oversee administrative matters such as policy and budget, acquire land and equipment and appoint the director of the park district.

Street dance to be held in front of Hillel House

A street dance will be held Sunday to celebrate the anniversary of Israel's 27th birthday. Rabbi Earl Vinecour of the Hillel House said the dance is tied in with the Israel 27 Festival—a cultural, religious and social festival highlighting Israel's 27th birthday.

The dance will be held in the street between South Illinois Avenue and Mill Street in front of Hillel House. Rolls Hardly will provide the music from 3 to 8:30 p.m.

Rabbi Vinecour said the theme for the day is shalom—peace.

Israeli and Jewish food and drinks will be served. Rabbi Vinecour said. The band will play Mideastern music and booths displaying Israeli products will be set up.

He emphasized that everyone from the community is welcome. In case of rain, the dance will be postponed until the following Sunday.

Announcement of five journalism scholarship winners will be made at the reception.

Thief takes, returns folder containing project grades

By Scott Bandle

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
An inquisitive thief, took a vanilla folder Monday containing the grade sheets from a public relations course taught in the Communications building. He returned it Wednesday afternoon in a burst of good conscience.

Harlan H. Mendenhall, public relations teacher, said the theft must have taken place between noon and 3 p.m. The thief walked into his office and made off with it while Mendenhall was out of the room for a while.

The folder contained the grades of 21 projects done by nine teams of five students each in his public relations class that meets on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He looked for it, but it wasn't found. When his class met Wednesday, he politely informed them that if a ghost would happen to drop it into anybody's lap, there would be no questions asked if it was returned.

Concerned about not having any grades for his students Mendenhall asked the class to bring in as many graded papers they had accumulated over the semester as possible. He expressed concern that any assignments students couldn't find a grade for, they might have had to be done over again.

That afternoon, around 4:45 p.m., the folder was slipped underneath his door with an explanation note. It said:

"Sorry about that. I thought that since they were just laying there, you didn't take them with you, you didn't want them. And I was interested in exactly how all the teams stood, so I took them. Since there wasn't anything in there since spring break, I thought they were old ones and you had started a new copy."

Mendenhall said that he would have to sit down and go over the folder and make sure that none of the grades had been changed.

Jackson County Board signs ordinance on truck tonnage

By Pat Corcoran

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An ordinance restricting truck tonnage on Giant City Blacktop was passed by the Jackson County Board Wednesday. Bill Kelley, Carbondale board member, sponsored the ordinance restricting the gross vehicle tonnage to 15 tons. County Highway Superintendent Bill Munson said the ruling would stop the current heavy truck traffic on the road.

In other action, the Board of Supervisors voted to postpone action on the sanitary landfill contract with the city of Carbondale until after city council elections.

"We don't want to give them [Carbondale City Council candidates] a political football to kick around before the elections," Louise Wolfe, DeSoto board member said.

Munson said continued use of the road by heavy multi-axle trucks would result in damage to the road and force the county to resurface in two years instead of the planned five years. Damage to the road so far consists of rutting from the heavy trucks.

"The road was just not designed for the heavy loads that have been running over it. We are trying to save the taxpayers money by restricting the tonnage allowed," Munson said.

Since most heavy trucks weigh about seven tons this would restrict them to a smaller load than they can economically carry. The trucks presently going over the road weigh about 40 tons, Kelley said.

Funding for an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) study of the communications needs of the Jackson County Sheriff's department was approved by the board. Sheriff Don White told the board the county would have to pay $100 and the ILEC would contribute $8,500 to study a radio network connecting Jackson County, Carbondale police, Murphysboro police and SIU police. White said no direct link exists presently.

Carbondale, Murphysboro and SIU will also match the counties contribution of $100. White added that Murphysboro approved its part of the appropriation Tuesday.

Russell Marshal, Murphysboro board member, said he favored the move since the county had needed the communications link for several years but no money was ever available.

The board approved a $170,000 contract for bridge construction near Boskeydell. Munson said the bridge would be 75 per cent funded by a federal grant with the county paying the remaining portion. The bridge will be about 100 feet long and span Drury creek, he said.

The contract was awarded to J.T. Blankinship, a Murphysboro engineering firm. Munson said the contract was a compromise with an earlier Blankinship proposal of $320,000.

The board voted tentative proposal to the $1.36 million nursing home budget, but withheld final approval until a check could be made of the $900,000 allotted for salary and fringe benefits. Board member Doug Eriksen, R-Carbondale, said the delay would give the county's auditor time to check on the paying of both salary and vacation benefits to nursing home employees.

Unemployment up, but jobs unfilled

NEW YORK (AP)—Then there's the old story about the man who, while millions of people were out of work, complained he couldn't get anyone to fix his car.

Only it's not so old. Unemployment in March was 8.7 per cent, the highest since 1941, it was recently announced. But jobs—hundreds of thousands of them—remain unfilled.

And it's no joke when good jobs are not filled because no one has the training required and thousands of persons look for work in already overcrowded job markets.

Based on U.S. Employment Service estimates, more than 700,000 jobs were open in January, the latest month for which it has such figures and a month when the unemployment rate was 8.2 per cent. At

Woman gets medical school expenses through divorce, alimony settlement

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman who quit college to pay her husband's way through law school was given an alimony settlement Wednesday designed to make her former husband pay her way through medical school.

Justice Bently Kassal of Manhattan Supreme Court awarded Ethelyn D. Morgan, 27, $200 a week for alimony and child support so long as she does not remarry and continues her premed and medical studies.

She and Charles R. Morgan were married Jan. 27, 1967 when he was a third-year pre-law student at the University of North Carolina and she was a sophomore studying biology at Florida State University.

"Recognizing that both could not simultaneously continue their education and be self-supporting, they agreed it would be preferable for him to finish his undergraduate and law school education while she worked," the judge said.

During the seven years she worked, Mrs. Morgan became skilled as an executive secretary and data analyst, who could probably earn $10,000 a year, the judge said.

The couple separated in October 1972, and she later obtained a divorce decree from Justice Kassal on the grounds of abandonment, and was given custody of their 7-year-old son. In 1973 she enrolled in Hunter College as a premedical student and has earned exceptional grades.

Couple adopts blind Viet child

Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Dorothy and Bob DeBolt, boundless in their compassion for homeless children, have acquired their 18th child—a blind South Vietnamese girl who survived the CSA Galaxy disaster. "This is a beautiful, beautiful little girl," said Mrs. DeBolt, her eyes sparkling as she described the 11-year-old addition to DeBolts' big family.

The DeBolts picked her up late Saturday night, then returned to the Army Presidio orphan reception center from their fashionable home in Piedmont to help take care of the other children.

"She wasn't even scratched," DeBolt said, noting most casualties were in the lower portion of the aircraft, largest in the world. The crash killed nearly 200 orphans and adults. It was the worst air crash in U.S. aviation history.

SIU opera theater to present 'La Boheme'

By Paula Magelli
Student Writer

SIU's Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater, directed by Mary Elaine Wallace, will present three performances of Puccini's "La Boheme" Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Special distinguished guest for the Saturday and Sunday performances will be the company's founder, a former member of the Metropolitan Opera, Marjorie Lawrence.

"Miss Lawrence is returning to the campus for her first visit since she retired two years ago," according to Mrs. Wallace.

"Recently she has given her memorabilia to Morris Library, and President and Mrs. Warren W. Brandt will be honoring her while she is in Carbondale," Mrs. Wallace said.

All performances will be in the University Theater in the Communications Building. Curtain time on Friday and Saturday will be 8

Living styles topic of public dinner forum

"Alternative Living Styles and the City Ordinances" will be the topic of a public dinner meeting Friday at 6 p.m. at the Lutheran Student Center.

This is the fourth meeting in the series titled "Breaking Barriers in the Carbondale Community" which is sponsored by the Carbondale Interchurch Council, the Carbondale Peace Center and the Illinois Humanities Council.

Folk singer Frederick Douglass Kirkpatrick will entertain during the meal. Kirkpatrick is founder of the Many Races Cultural Foundation of New York City.

The meeting will be a forum for community discussion of both traditional and new life styles. Employees of the city government and of SIU will act as resource personnel during the meeting. Zoning discrimination, street parties and cooperative housing are some of the issues to be discussed.

A free meal will be served at 6 p.m. by the sponsors. The formal meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Castle organ school

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP)—An American castle will become an organ school.

Organist Virgil Fox heads a five-member trusteeship which recently took possession of the Hammond Castle and Museum of Medieval and Classic Art on the ocean front here.

Fox soon will organize and direct an international school of the concert organ, with library and museum facilities and concert programs.

The castle, built between 1925 and 1928 by inventor John Hays Hammond Jr., was acquired by the Hammond's death in 1965. The archdiocese has been operating it as a museum since, but money to keep the museum open to the public, as Hammond had directed, became short.

p.m. and on Sunday, 3 p.m.

The opera theater company chorus will be augmented by the Southern Singers, a 22-voice chorus directed by Robert Kingsbury, associate professor of music, and members of the Opera Workshop. In addition to this full chorus, a marching band and a group of local children will appear in the cast.

Robert Bergt, new director of the University Symphony, will conduct the opera.

Sets and costumes featured in the production have been designed by Darwin Payne and Richard Boss. Payne, who also designs and directs for the Theater Department, has prepared intricate sets, according to Mrs. Wallace. "Visually, they are some of the strongest sets that I have seen in my experience here at SIU," she said.

Some of Boss' costume designs for "La Boheme," which won first place for him in the Chicago Lyric Opera's costume design contest in 1963, have been incorporated into this production.

Musical preparation of this event has been undertaken by Marjorie Marvin, associate director of the company, and the music staff.

This Puccini opera, the second Puccini production done by the company this year, is a lyric tragedy of love filled with many familiar melodies to be sung in English.

So that several opera students can perform, the opera has been double-cast. The roles for Friday and Sunday's performance are cast as follows: Marcello, a painter, will be played by Tom Shepard; Rodolfo, a poet, David Doyle; Schaunard, a musician, James Quesenberry, Jr.; Benoit, the landlord, Matthew Deffley; Colline, a philosopher, David Thomas; Mimi, Jean Briley; Pargignol, Robert Phillips; Musetta, Cassandra Carter; Alcindoro, a councillor of state, James Justice.

For the Saturday night performance, the roles are cast as follows: Marcello, Steve Markuson; Rodolfo, Stuart Brown; Colline, Ann Hawkins; Musetta, Nora Bailiff; Bostaph, Understudies for the performance are Romeo Cecilia, and John Pape.

To honor Miss Lawrence, President and Mrs. Brandt will host a reception in the lobby of the University Theater on Sunday, April 13, at 5:30 p.m. Friends of Miss Lawrence and well-wishers are cordially invited to meet her at the reception following the matinee.

Tickets, priced at $3 for the public and $1.50 for SIU students, are available at the University Theater Box Office.

Coffeehouse to feature folksinger

Rev. Frederick Douglass Kirkpatrick, a black folksinger, will give a free concert Friday at 10:30 p.m. at the Eaz-N Coffeehouse at the Wesley Community House.

Kirkpatrick will sing a program titled, "Songs of Hope, Sorrow, Love and Determination." He established the Many Races Cultural Foundation in 1968, an outgrowth of his experiences at Resurrection City during the Poor Peoples' encampment in Washington, D.C. The Hey Brother Coffeehouses are projects of this foundation.

Kirkpatrick met Martin Luther King in 1965. King persuaded him to turn his back on violence. The same year Kirkpatrick was ordained as a Baptist minister.

This April, Kirkpatrick is traveling for the national Fellowship of Reconciliation, an organization which is seeking non-violent solutions to civil rights.

The concert is sponsored by the Lutheran Center, Newman Center, Puka School, Student Christian Foundation, Wesley Community House and the SIU Free School.

Heavy doggie bags

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—According to a well-known Fresno restaurant owner, tradition was that if the service was good the waiter was left a tip. But, he says, things are changing.

The patrons instead of tipping are now leaving with parts of the table settings. He said the customers take about everything easily removed—silverware, salt and pepper shakers, sugar dispensers, glasses, crackers, ashtrays, napkins and even pancake syrup.

Some just walk out without leaving a tip or paying their bill. Most of the stolen items can be carried out in doggie bags.

The candidates for student president, and their political party, if any, are: Donald Zwicker (Action Party), Maury Richards (Progressive Coalition Party), Dan Fitzgerald, Beverly Browning, Jack Altman, Tom Jones (Surprise Party), Joel Spenner, Jim Dumont (Aardvark Party), Harry Yaseen

The candidates running for the Student Senate seat from Brush Towers are Richard Scarola (Action Party) and Kathleen Winter (Progressive Coalition Party).

Two persons are seeking the senate seat from Thompson Point. They are James Wire (Tea Party Now) and Joyce Holland (Progressive Coalition Party). Running unopposed for a senate seat from University Park is Vincent Harvey (Progressive Coalition Party).

Thirteen persons are seeking four senate seats from the West Side district.

They are: James Gamble (Tea Party Now); Joan Buchar (Progressive Coalition Party); Jerry Mourning (Aardvark Party); Barb Schenk (Coalition to Defend Student's Rights); Christine Ervin (Tea Party Now); David Stevens (Action Party); Ann Chusid (Aardvark Party); Athena Dadjou (Progressive Coalition Party); Robert Seely (Tea Party Now); Zane Smith (Action Party); George Hart (Aardvark Party); Dale Latt (Action Party); and Janet Gober (Coalition to Defend Student's Rights).

The three candidates seeking the open seat from the East Side district are Larry Gross (Coalition to Defend Student's Rights); Austin Randolph (Progressive Coalition Party); and Kevin Crowley.

Four students are running for the four seats from the Commuter district. The four are Bob Van Milligan (Tea Party Now); Phil Grossuennrich (Progressive Coalition Party); Carol Koerber (Progressive Coalition Party); and Gloria Jo Sloan (Action Party).

One candidate who turned in his petition on time will not appear on the ballot.

Election commissioner Mike Jenkins said Jim Belushi, a candidate for student trustee, will not appear on the ballot because he failed to attend a mandatory meeting of all candidates on April 6.

Bicentennial planning finalized

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) Concord is putting final touches on eight years of planning for a three-hour celebration of a two minute event that happened almost 200 years ago.

The event is the anniversary of the battle of North Bridge, the first major happening of the nation's bicentennial.

If everyone who wants to be part of it is allowed in, the state estimates that Concord and neighboring Lexington would require a parking lot 65 feet wide and 42 miles long.

To make sure nothing like that happens, Concord has had committees drawing up plans since 1967. The town of 17,000 full-time residents has decided to let in 7,500 cars and 120,000 people. But that will be the limit.

"Our big worry is traffic," said John O'Keefe, a spokesman for Concord's 1975 Celebrations Committee. "The crowds are expected to be very heavy."

So far, the affluent Boston suburb has set aside $117,000 for the half day of festivities. But instead of the traditional parade and fire and drum corps, most of the attention is being put on surviving the expected crowds.

With military precision, committees have drawn up plans for crowd and traffic control, medical evacuation, portable toilets and box lunches. They even have regulations on how low helicopters can fly and how fast boats can go.

The town bicentennial planners called a news briefing earlier this week and expected about 25 people to show up. Instead, some 200 reporters, cameramen and news executives crammed into the town hall.

"The 19th of April is a Town of Concord event to which the citizens of the United States are invited more this year than in past years," said John Finigan, head of the planning committee. "In spite of that invitation, we are asking them to act with the dignity and style that we have programmed.

"This is not a Roman holiday or the Fourth of July. You are invited to come, but our rules will have to be the rules of the day."

Many of the rules concern traffic. On the morning of April 19, all roads into Concord will be blocked until 5 a.m. Then cars will be allowed into parking lots in the southern part of town. When the lots are full, officials say, no one else will be let in.

The lots are miles from the center of town, and free buses will shuttle the sightseers to the celebration area.

Through the town, 550 policemen will keep order, while 400 National Guardsmen stand by. There will be 230 portable toilets, 14 ambulances, 10 first aid stations, four helicopters, two field hospitals and two Coast Guard patrol vessels on the Concord River.

The official celebrations begin with a flag ceremony and musket salute about 6:30 a.m. at North Bridge, where Concord Minute Men turned back the British in a two-minute gunfight 200 years ago.

Women split two

By Martha Sanford
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki women's softball teams split their Wednesday afternoon games, winning one and losing one, against Southeast Missouri State at Cape Girardeau.

The first team defeated SEMO's first team 7-3, on 13 Saluki hits and no errors. SEMO had 11 hits and one error. The winning pitcher, Carolyn Brady, now has a record of 2-0, following her first win last weekend against Eastern Illinois.

The Salukis led off the scoring with two runs in the fourth inning on two singles and a double by Nancy Rist, Marla Julian and Jan Winkler.

SEMO followed suit by scoring its only three runs in the fourth inning on a walk, fielder's choice, and two base hits.

The Salukis got off to a good start in the fifth with Lisa Kelley, Brady and Pat Matreoi on base to give Rist the opportunity to hit a three run triple. Winkler then singled, driving in Rist for four runs in the inning.

With a comfortable 6-3 lead in sixth inning, Kathy Vondrasek put the icing on the cake by hitting a homerun to make the final 7-3 score.

Coach Kay Erechtelsbauer at tributed the win to excellent team hitting and a tight Saluki defense. "We were up against a strong hitting team, and they only had two fewer hits than we did. But we made our hits count when we had women SEMO out." Erechtelsbauer said. The Saluki second team did not fare as well however, falling to SEMO's second team, 13-6. The Saluki scoring drive got off to a good start with five runs in the third inning by Peggy Fowler, Becky Benedict, Jo Licata and Terry Haas. Benedict then scored the final run in the fourth inning on a single by Licata, to give the Salukis six runs for six hits and six errors.

IM volleyball teams doubled...

By Rick Korch
Student Writer

One men's intramural sports league ends, and another soon takes its place.

Volleyball has just been served over the net, as the 40 teams in the men's league began play last week. This year's number of teams is twice as many as last year, causing Al Lary, graduate assistant in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals, to comment that "Volleyball is definitely on the rise."

Each of the five teams in the eight divisions will play four games during the regular season. Following that, a playoff will start, involving every team with a 500 or better record. The single elimination playoff will begin April 20.

Team trophies will be awarded to the first and second place teams, and each member of the winning team will also receive an individual trophy.

During the regular season, the winning team has to win two of three games in a match, but in the playoffs, the match will be increased to the best of five.

The favorites in this year's league are the Persian Eagles, who have won the volleyball championship for the past three years. Made up of Iranians, the Persian Eagles have basically the same players as last year's champs.

Also not to be counted out are last year's runners-up, Sigma Tau Gamma.

Officiating this year is being done by the SIU Volleyball Club.

"We are very fortunate to have them as officials, because of their expertise," remarked Lary.

...Co-ed league rises similarly

By Rick Korch
Student Writer

Usually when guys and girls get together in a sport, the guys tend to show-off and hog the ball, but that's not so when the two sexes team up in co-ed volleyball.

"Surprisingly, the guys aren't taking over the courts," commented Jean Paratore, coordinator of women's intramurals. "And the girls even play better when the guys are around."

Not surprisingly, there has been an increase in the number of teams participating in co-ed volleyball this year. Playing Monday and Thursday nights in Davies Gym, 47 teams are now entered in the four leagues, representing an increase of 19 over last year's 28 teams.

After the season ends on May 8, a playoff will follow, which will include only the winners of each league. The playoff date has yet to be named, but according to Paratore, "It'll have to be on the last weekend before finals start."

Since the league has just recently started, there are still many undefeated teams, and the only way to pick a favorite would be to pull a name out of a hat.

"The games are really well organized," Paratore said. "The officials, made up of physical education majors, are very consistent this year."

Six players—three guys and three girls—play at a time on each side. To prevent hogging by the guys, a rule was devised so that a girl has to hit the ball at least once out of every three hits, if it takes that long to send the ball over the net.

A rule like this may seem to result in mass confusion, but, according to Paratore, "The caliber of the games is real good."

Job open

The Women's Intramural Office is in desperate need of a supervisor for Friday night recreation from 7 to 10 p.m.

The job must be filled immediately and will continue until May 9.

To qualify, the person must already have received a degree in either physical education or recreation. Pay is $2.70 per hour.

Contact Jean Paratore at the Women's Intramural Office, 205 Davies Gym (453-5208), if interested.

IM meet set

A women's intramural track and field meet will be held simultaneously with a men's intramural meet, Saturday, April 19. Competition is open to all female students.

Track events include the 50, 100, 220, 440 and 880-yard dashes and the mile run. The long jump, shot put, high jump, softball throw and discus make up the field events planned. Entry forms are due by Wednesday, April 16, in Room 205, Davies Gym.

Times slated

Anyone attending Archery Club on Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. must be at Davies Gym before 1:30 if they need to check out equipment.

After 1:30, the gym will be locked, and the supervisor and participants will be meeting at the archery range.

Those with their own equipment should report directly to the range at 1:30.

Saluki batting mark reflects win skein

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

On the rise, to say the least. That's the Saluki batting mark, not just the team record that has improved drastically since the western swing in March.

The Salukis won the final game of the California-Riverside tournament against Cornell to salvage a 3-6-1 mark after that trip, but have since won 11 straight in accumulating a 148-1 record.

Firstbaseman Frank Hunsaker, a converted catcher, leads a trio of .300 hitters, with a .368 mark. Secondbaseman Howie Mitchell and thirdbaseman Jim Locascio follow at .333 and .311, respectively, and designated hitter Bert Newman just misses at .299.

The team's most productive hitter, scoring-wise, has been left-fielder Steve Shartzter. He has driven in 15 runs to Hunsaker's 13 and has scored 16 runs behind Mitchell's 18 and Locascio's 7.17.

Shartzter also leads with five doubles and has one each of the team's three triples and three homers. Mitchell has a pair of triples, and freshman rightfielder George Vukovich has a pair of homers.

Newman, who tied the school record with 34 stolen bases a year ago, apparently will fly past that mark with plenty to spare. He already has swiped 16 in the 21 games.

On the pitching end, things are on the downside, as they should be. Ace righthander Ron Hodges is the big winner with a 4-1 mark, but a 3.43 ERA. Tim Verpaele (2-1) and Jim Adkins (2-0) top the staff with 2.14 and 2.29 ERA's, respectively. They also stand as the team's workhorses, with Hodges having pitched almost 45 innings already. He also leads with 32 strikeouts, but Robin Derry has a far better ratio, fanning 26 in 21 innings.

As a team, the ERA is almost a run under the opposition at 3.74. The Salukis have outthit their foes .281 to .242.

While defense has been the Salukis' forte of late, the team statistics haven't caught up enough from the western trip to show that. The Salukis have completed 29 double-plays to the opposition's eight, but have given up 30 unearned runs, same as their foes.

Biking set

Women's Intramurals will sponsor Bike Day Sunday at 10 a.m. Three events will be run, including an obstacle course, a coasting contest and how far a person can ride his bicycle on a 2-by-4.

All SIU students are invited to test their speed and agility, and prizes will be awarded to the winners of the events.

Anyone interested should stop by the Women's Intramural Office in Room 205, Davies Gym, to fill out an entry form. All forms must be in by Friday.

Clues help

The Southern Illinois Road Runners held its first annual Petrie's Puzzlement Sunday. The object of the event was to locate and decipher clues to Progress Course, which was about six miles.

The first place team of Sharon Russell, Marilyn Good, Walt Sundberg and Doug Flahive finished with a time of 1 hour, 21 minutes and 10 seconds. The second place team of Ken Ackerman, Bill Riggs and Louis Strubhart was just over three minutes behind with a time of 1 hour, 24 minutes and 40 seconds.

The Road Runners' next event will be Sunday.

Racquetball slated

The Office of Recreation and Intramurals has announced its annual racquetball tournament which will include both men's singles, doubles and mixed doubles competition.

The tournament will be held on the handball courts east of the SIU Arena April 14-18 at 4:30, 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Students wishing to participate must be registered with the intramural office by 5 p.m. Friday.

All tournament pairings and court assignments must be picked up at the intramural office Monday.

Tournament matches will consist of the best of three games, with each game played to 21 points. Mixed doubles competition will compete to only 15 points per game.

The matches will be governed by official racquetball rules. Ceiling interference will be played as agreed upon by participants.

All participants must report to the tennis court shack and the tournament supervisor before and after each scheduled match.

Rally extravaganza Sunday

The Grand Touring Auto Club is holding its annual rally extravaganza Sunday, starting at the SIU Arena parking lot. Late registration is at 8:30 a.m., driver's meeting at 9 a.m., and the first car off at 9:30 a.m.

This rally is a Time Speed Distance Rally, which means that the competition is based on keeping to a given legal speed following the designated route. Cars are timed at checkpoints along the route. The rally team which is closest to perfect time on all the legs wins.

Each rally team will consist of only two people, a driver and a navigator, the navigator being responsible for keeping the team on time and on course. Necessary equipment needed to rally is a working speedometer and odometer, a watch, pencil and paper and a clipboard or some hard surface to write on.

Participants are split into two classes based on the degree of past rally experience the team has. Classes are designated as Novice Class and Experienced Class. Most GTAC members will participate in the Experienced Class.

Trophies will be presented to the top three finishers in each class. Special awards will be presented to the top finishers in VW, Dodge, Plymouth, Corvette, Datsun 240, 260 or 280Z, Porsche, Mercedes, All-Woman Rally team and Greek rally team. Besides these valuable pieces of merchandise, awards are being presented by over 25 co-sponsoring Carbondale merchants.

A partial list of these awards include: free gasoline, tune-up parts, gift certificates, theatre passes, free meals, record albums, and a few cases of favored liquid refreshments. The merchandise awards total over $400.

Each rally team will receive a packet of goodies consisting of stickers, maps, assorted complementary items and two dash plaques. The rally will be approximately 200 miles in length, and there will be a gas and lunch break and a restaurant at the finish, where the results will be announced and the prizes awarded.

In addition, several of the area automobile dealers will have new models on display at the starting point, including the new rotary engine Mazdas.

To enter or for further information on the rally, call Ray Schneider at 549-0209 or Rob Bates at 549-8628.

Illini coach calm about SIU meet

By Dave Wieczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

To track coach Lew Hartzog and his team, Saturday's meet with Illinois' Fighting Illini is the most important dual meet of the outdoor season.

However, Illinois coach Gary Wieneke is not trying to get his team as high as Neely Hall.

"There's no question about the rivalry between these two schools—it's just a natural rivalry—but it really doesn't mean that much more to us than any other dual meet," Wieneke said in a telephone interview Wednesday morning.

"I think I look at it a little different in weighing competition," he said. "When we run against Southern, I can't say we're not fired up, but we're probably not any more fired up for them than when we run against Indiana."

Illinois may not be as psyched for this meet as SIU because they do not have any special reason for wanting to crush SIU. But the Salukis do have reason to be psyched. Last Feb. 8 at the Illinois Intercollegiate, SIU set a new record for the meet in the mile relay and the victory gave SIU the necessary points to win the meet, beating Illinois.

However, Wayne Carmody was called for a foul, and the Saluki team was disqualified from the race. As result, Illinois backed into first place, with the Salukis second. This incident has given the SIU team even more incentive for wanting to beat Illinois.

Although Hartzog and his runners have had that "loss" on their minds since February, Wieneke doesn't think it has any effect on his team and says

Hartzog is using the incident as an impetus for his own team. "If it wasn't that (Intercollegiate episode), Lew would find something else to fire up his guys," Wieneke remarked.

"There are things about this meet that are good," he admitted. "Because of the competition between the two teams, the athletes come out with good performances which serve as stepping stones to better performances later in the year."

Saturday's meet actually will be Illinois' third outdoor meet of the season. The Illini finished third at the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers Classic and last week competed against the Chicago Track Club and Notre Dame, but no team scores were kept. SIU has competed in two outdoor meets—Auburn and the Florida Relays. Last week's trip to the Texas Relays was canceled because of injuries and illness.

SIU may have another psychological advantage over Illinois come Saturday. Deep in the minds of many SIU athletes has been the statement made by Cecil Coleman, Illinois athletic director, several months ago at a quarterback luncheon.

Coleman said, "SIU will never see the day when it can touch us again in track."

Obviously the Salukis will be out to make Coleman eat his words, but Wieneke preferred not to discuss the athletic director's statement too much.

"I really don't want to go into that," Wieneke said. "I can't say for sure whether he made that statement, but whether he did or not, we would compete the same way. We just want to go there (SIU) and run and compete with pride."

"I think it will be an outstanding meet Saturday. It will be a typical SIU-Illinois meet."

Which means in all probability, the outcome of the meet won't be decided until the running of the final event—the mile relay.

Decathlon star maps out plans

Hancock aims for Illini, then Olympics

By Dave Wieczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The scene is the 1968 Olympic Games, Mexico City. American Bill Toomey has just won the 1,500 meter run, thus climaxing one of the greatest feats in United States sports history, by winning the decathlon competition.

It was thrilling to watch Toomey throughout the grueling and challenging 10-event competition. Chills went up the spines of many Americans who watched Toomey win the gold medal.

The scene now shifts to Southern Illinois University at Carbondale—1975. There is another man grooming himself for the ultimate in amateur competition—the Olympics—his name is Bill Hancock. He has yet to do the great things that Toomey did in '68, but Hancock is preparing himself for a shot at the '76 Olympic team and a chance to bring the decathlon gold medal back to the U.S.

"I'm going to graduate next fall, but I think I'll stick around for another year and work on my masters," said the senior from Glasford, Ill., this week. "I'll probably work out with the team and take advantage of the coaching. I want to give one more year toward the Olympics."

Hancock and his teammates have a grudge match coming up with Illinois this weekend, but he was more than willing to talk about his track and field future as he stood a few feet in front of a wooden hurdle at McAndrew Stadium Tuesday afternoon.

"Most guys who compete in the decathlon at the olympics are out of school for two or three years, because it takes that long to get all the skills developed. I think with one year out of school I'll be okay," Hancock commented, as some of his teammates sprinted by.

"I'm sitting just right now," he said concerning his own development. "Next year I'll cut my school work load down so I can concentrate more on training."

Hancock, 6-foot-2, 165 pounds, only began competing in the decathlon a couple of years ago although he admits to having given it some thought in high school.

"I really got into it here (SIU) when I started competing in several events," he said.

High jumping is Hancock's best individual event and it is also his favorite, mainly "because I've always been best in it. Of the other events I picked up here. I like pole vaulting the best."

High jumping has indeed been Hancock's best event, setting a world record in decathlon competition by jumping 7-1, and he also holds the SIU outdoor record with the same jump. He has gone over 15 in pole vaulting.

"I'm in shape for just about every event but the 1,500 meter run," he said with a trace of guilt crossing his face. "I haven't been running distance, although I know I should be. Mainly I've been working on speed and strength, but I'm going to start running long distance."

With 10 events to become skillful at, what does Hancock's weekly workout schedule look like?

"Three days a week I work on quick sprints—60 yards," he explained. "Early in the season, I lifted weights a lot. On the off days now, I'll run longer distances."

He still does a lot of running and weight lifting and works on one or two events each day. But doesn't he ever run out of energy after the draining two-day competition?

"Not really," Hancock said. "Some people say they wear out, but not me. I'm usually ready to go the next day. The decathlon is usually run two days before the regular part of the meet—like at the Florida Relays—and I can come back after that competition and compete in the high jump."

"Sometimes my form will not be good, but I still have my strength."

For Hancock and the rest of the team, the biggest dual meet of the season is Saturday against the Illini and there is nothing he would like more than to send coach Gary Wieneke and his Champaign kids back home with a loss.

"They have beaten us once outdoors in the time that I've been here, as far as I can remember," Hancock said looking back. "They beat us indoors this year, but they shouldn't have."

With that last remark, Hancock was referring to the Illinois Intercollegiate and the disqualification of the SIU mile relay team that gave Illinois the championship over the Salukis.

"I don't think we get the recognition down here that we should, considering the team we have," he added. "I would like to beat Illinois one more time before I leave here."

That just may happen if Hancock has a good day in the events he is scheduled for—javelin, long jump, high jump, high hurdles and maybe the pole vault.

Saturday will be one of the last two times Hancock will be competing before the home crowd. The last time will be when SIU hosts Oklahoma State on Kentucky Derby day, May 3.

Of course, SIU fans may see Hancock perform again, on television, if he is lucky and gets a few breaks. Hancock just might be giving a spine-chilling performance from Montreal.
