GOING UP—With Spring comes flower buds, rain and the search for off-campus housing. There will be 231 units available when construction at Mill and Rawlings streets is finished this summer. The apartments are designated for low-income elderly and handicapped persons. The first of a two-part series on local housing appears on Page 2.

House calls on state schools not to enroll Iranians

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

A resolution calling on Illinois universities to halt enrollment of Iranian students beginning this summer term was passed unanimously in the Illinois House of Representatives Wednesday morning.

House Resolution 694 requests that the governing bodies of public and private universities not enroll Iranian students for the 1980 summer session. The measure says Iranian students should be barred from Illinois universities until the 53 American hostages in the in Tehran are released.

The resolution, which also calls on all other states to take similar action, was introduced by Rep. Gerald Bradley, D-Bloomington, Rep. William Harris, D-Marion, and two other legislators. Bradley said the action is the "only way I know of" to vent the "feelings of frustration" of the American public.

"The resolution is a way to contribute support to the hostages," Bradley said Wednesday. "We are not upset with the students, they would be able to finish out the present term. But they would be the losers in this battle."

When asked if the resolution could endanger the lives of the hostages, Bradley said, "Their lives are already in jeopardy. The militants have already threatened to kill them."

Rep. Harris said he wouldn't have introduced the resolution if he thought it would put the hostages in any more danger.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, said he decided not to sign the resolution because he has "some reservations" about it.

"It's the popular stance to take with the current situation, but I have some concerns about the Iranians who are fleeing their country to get away from their government," Richmond said.

There are 796 Iranian students currently enrolled in Illinois state universities. At SIU-C there are 184 Iranian students enrolled; 87 are enrolled at SIU-E, 233 at University of Illinois in Champaign and 114 at U of I Circle campus in Chicago.

The resolution would not be binding on the university governing boards. It goes into executive committee hearings next week.

Trustees find they're favored in parking rules

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Some members of the SIU Board of Trustees and other administrators from the SIU system were directed by a University police officer to park in the circle drive in front of the Student Center, usually a tow-away zone, while they attended the trustees meeting Wednesday morning.

University Security Director Virgil Trummer said that according to University regulations, if a police officer directs someone to park there it is legal.

Trummer said the action was legal under a section of the University Motor Vehicle and Bicycle Regulations for 1979-80 that states, "Every person shall obey the instructions of any traffic control device, sign or notice, unless otherwise directed by a traffic control officer."

When asked why the VIPs were not directed to park in the metered visitor's lot across from the Student Center, Trummer said, "They're coming here for a meeting, for official business."

It is a common practice for Trummer to assign one, and sometimes two officers to direct members of the board to park in the drive when the board meets in Carbondale, he said.

A 1980 Buick four-door Cadillac owned by Trustee Ivan Elliott was one of five cars directed by University police to park in the drive. Another one of the cars, marked with an SIU-E parking decal, is on "semi-permanent" assignment to the SIU-E Office of Student Affairs, according to an SIU-E auxiliary enterprises spokeswoman. The other three cars were marked with SIU-C insignias.

These cars were saved from the towing hook VIPs attending the Board of Trustees Thursday because they were parked there by meeting in the Student Center.

Landlords raising rents 2 to 10 percent

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Local landlords claim that the annual summer and fall housing search is well underway and students should expect to find anywhere from a 2 percent to 10 percent increase in fall rent.

Most landlords contacted recently said they would raise rents "slightly" to pay for increased tax and insurance rates. Others said they had to increase the rent to keep up with inflation.

Sandy Jordan of Glenn Williams Apartment Rentals said about half of the company's apartments are rented for the fall and summer. Glenn Williams owns about 190 units in Carbondale including Egyptian Arms and Ptolemy Towers.

Rent for a two-bedroom apartment will be between $180 to $185 per month in the fall, Jordan said. Rent will range between $300 and $325 for the same apartment in the summer, which includes everything except electricity, she said.

Barrett Rockman, owner of about 25 houses in Carbondale, said about 45 percent of his rental units are still available for summer and fall. Rockman said rents will increase by about 6 or 7 percent. A three-bedroom house will now rent for between $385 and $420 a month, Rockman said.

Henry Fisher, who owns a "number" of houses in Carbondale, said his houses are "90 to 95 percent rented for the summer and 70 rented for next fall."

Fisher said that everyone started looking for houses or apartments about one month earlier than usual this year.

Fisher said he will be raising the rent 2 to 3 percent in some of his houses next fall. He said taxes went up by 20 percent and insurance rates increased. A three-bedroom house will cost from $325 to $420 a month depending on the location and the condition of the house, Fisher said.

All of Royal Rentals two-bedroom apartments have been rented for the summer and fall, according to an employee of the company. Royal will be increasing the fall rent by $5 in all 200 apartments in the city. Rents will range from $110 to $250 a month in the fall and from $80 to $180 in the summer, according to a Royal Rentals spokeswoman.

Garden Park Apartments is "technically full for the fall." However, the management is still accepting applications, according to Elyse Crowell, manager. Crowell said the rent in the 45 apartments at 607 E. Park St. will increase $24 a month per apartment in the fall.

Lewis Park Apartments, 800 E. Grand Ave., is also filled for the fall but has some apartments available for the summer, according to Colleen Moss of Lewis Park.

Lewis Park increased fall rates for all apartments. One-bedroom apartments increased to $195 a month, from $185; two-bedrooms went to $314, from $312; and four-bedrooms increased to $360 from $330 on one-year leases. Rent rates for nine-month leases increased more, Moss said.

Marilyn Hisgen, manager for Benning Real Estate's apartment rentals, said she is running out of two-bedroom apartments. As of last week, Hisgen said, there were only six of the 200 two-bedroom apartments still available for summer or fall rental. Benning also rents out about 40 efficiency apartments in Carbondale, some of which were available as of last week. Hisgen said rents will increase about 10 percent in the fall for those under a 12-month contract. A nine-month contract will cost more. Efficiency apartments will rent for $160 a month in the fall and two-bedroom apartments will rent for $325 a month. Both include water and gas.

One landlord, who asked to remain anonymous, said he had just started renting his 45 apartments and 23 houses in the city for the fall. He said all but about 10 percent of the units will be about the same as last year.

University Heights and Town and Country Mobile Park owner John Ham said he has about 65 percent of his units rented for next fall and about 90 percent rented for the summer.

Ham said he will increase his trailer rents by about 5 percent next fall.

Another Carbondale landlord, Clyde Swanson, said he has 70 percent of the houses and all of his apartments rented for the summer. Swanson said he hasn't started renting for fall yet, but about 80 percent or 90 percent of the current occupants told him they were staying.

In the fall Swanson said his rents will increase 3 percent to 4 percent. A three-bedroom house will cost about $350 per month in the fall, up from $335.

Carbondale landlord Paul Bryant said only about 10 percent of his units will be vacant for the summer, but some contracts expire in June, July or August. Bryant said the rent in his units will remain the same for the summer, but will increase for the fall.

Raul Ayala, manager of Wall Street Quadrangles, 1207 S. Wall St., said he has "committed" all of the 117 apartments for the fall. He added, however, that he usually gets some cancellations.

Ayala said rent will increase by about 5 percent in the fall and will range from $80 to $113 per month.

Jody Bush of Chuck's Rentals said the firm hadn't started renting its 130 trailers as of last week. Bush said the rents would increase by 10 percent.

Board to honor Frank Stanton, past CBS head

The Board of Trustees approved an honorary Doctor of Laws degree to be awarded to the former president of CBS, Frank Stanton, during the May commencement exercises.

The board also approved the membership of a community advisory board for WUSI-TV, Olney.

Stanton, former head of CBS for 25 years, will receive the honorary degree at spring commencement exercises in May.

Although he has no direct connections with SIU, he has been widely recognized for his contribution to broadcast journalism, scholarly research, international affairs and the performing arts.

He received the George Foster Peabody Award in 1961 for his efforts to bring about the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon presidential debates and a special Peabody award in 1972 for his defense of broadcast journalism in the CBS documentary, "The Selling of the President." He has also taught at Ohio State, Princeton and Columbia universities and is the author of one book and two films.

O'Brien gets Sturgis award for outstanding public service

By Paula Donner Walter
Staff Writer

William E. (Bill) O'Brien, chairman of the SIU-C department of recreation, was named the first recipient of the Lindell Sturgis Memorial Public Service Award instituted by the SIU Board of Trustees Thursday.

The Sturgis Award was established by the family of the late Lindell Sturgis, a member of the board for 21 years, to recognize outstanding service by SIU-C staff members to their communities, the region, state or nation.

In presenting the award, Trustee Ivan Elliot said the award was "typical, that it should be given for outside, non-job-related activities, because that's the way Lindell Sturgis was."

"He is one of the people instrumental in the growth of the University who I'll never forget and always appreciate. He faced difficulties well and gave good leadership to the board." Sturgis' wife, Viola, and members of the immediate family were present at the board meeting Thursday for the presentation of a commemorative plaque and a $500 check to O'Brien.

O'Brien, who was selected for the award from a field of about 20 nominees, was cited for his contributions to his hometown of Ziegler, and to the youth of Southern Illinois and the rest of the state during his 30 years at SIU-C.

During his 14 years as a National Football League referee, O'Brien has contributed his earnings to the Easter Seal Society. He has also contributed the proceeds from his many speaking engagements to other charities and service organizations.

O'Brien also has been named the winner of the 1980 Garrett Eppley Alumni Recognition Award, given by the Indiana University School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation to an alumnus who has made outstanding professional contributions on the local, state and national level.

The board also approved a five-member community advisory board for WUSI-TV in Olney. The establishment of the board is one requirement for obtaining grant funds for a public broadcasting system, according to the 1978 Public Communications Financing Act.

Members of the board, who will advise SIU's broadcasting service on programming and other station policy matters, are: Judy Gassman, editor of the Olney Daily Mail; Robert Malone, executive director of the Olney Chamber of Commerce; John Stull, a retired physician from Olney; Maxine Sutherland, of Lawrenceville; and Jack Thatcher, publisher of the Daily Clay County Advocate Press and mayor of Florida.

Legal action will back up boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said Thursday he is prepared to take legal action if necessary to prevent American athletes from participating in the Moscow Olympics this summer.

In a speech prepared for the American Society of Newspaper Editors convention in Washington, the president made it clear he does not consider the United States bound by a decision of the U.S. Olympic Committee, which meets this weekend to consider Carter's call for a boycott of the Summer Games.

Carter has demanded that Americans boycott the Moscow Games to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Israeli troops patrol southern Lebanon

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Israeli censor or Jereh changes in this report.

METULLA, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops who thrust into southern Lebanon patrolled the mountainous border region Thursday for possible Palestinian guerrillas planning raids into Israel, a U.N. spokesman said. Lebanon requested a U.N. Security Council session to discuss the "explosive situation" caused by the Israeli presence.

Israeli military sources in Metulla, Israel's northernmost town, defended the two-day-old Israeli incursion as strictly a defense move aimed at keeping Palestinian guerrillas from crossing the Lebanese-Israeli border to attack Jewish settlements as they did Monday.

9 nations demand hostage release

By The Associated Press

Western European nations told their Tehran ambassadors Thursday to "demand" that Iran release the 50 U.S. Embassy hostages. The toughly worded declaration by the nine Common Market nations stopped short of joining in U.S. sanctions against Iran, but it hinted that some action might be taken later.

After a meeting in Lisbon, Portugal, European foreign ministers said their countries policies toward Iran would be "frozen" until they receive a response from Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr as to whether he will meet their demands to release the hostages.

In Tehran, meanwhile, the Moslem militants holding the embassy made a new death threat against their American prisoners, captive for 159 days.

Rehabilitation doesn't apply

I am writing in response to John Gordon's editorial concerning John Wayne Gacy (April 4 DE). Mr. Gordon said a lot of strong statements about society's "law abiding citizens." Gordon made it clear that he holds "society" responsible for the deaths of 33 boys. Gordon said "Society taught him—along with a host of others such as Charles Manson and Richard Speck—that revenge is a high priority alternative in dealing with one's anger, and that it may be dealt with on dark streets as well as on the silver platter of the electric chair."

Mr. Gordon, if society felt this way, we would have locked him in a small room with the parents of the boys he murdered instead of offering the alternative of the "silver platter."

Did our revenge seeking society teach John Gacy that his anger could be dealt with on dark streets by giving him a prominent position in his community? What did these 33 young boys do to John Gacy that warranted his revenge?

Mr. Gordon went on to say, "However, his execution will only have such an effect on individuals who are so myopic as to see no further than their own noses." Can we not give comfort to the mother who made sure her son was properly fed and loved only to see him senselessly slaughtered by a pig of a man? Mr. Gordon, these are the parents who you call myopic individuals who cannot see past their noses ask only that this "cancer" be terminated.

Mr. Gordon, if it was your younger brother who was handcuffed, raped and turned into a piece of cement, wouldn't you find comfort in knowing that this animal was not living or breathing or doing any further harm to others?

Your anti-capital punishment argument of death-penalty prosecution and debilitation, rather than social welfare and rehabilitation doesn't apply to a man who you claim killed 33 boys because he was angered that they would not have sex with him.

Mr. Gordon the way you think frightens me. I suggest you send your letter to John Wayne Gacy, it would probably make him feel a lot better, and also don't forget to include a copy to Charlie and Richard. — Scott B. Zisook, Junior, Radio-Television

Congress should pass gun control law

Quick, what national issue has the support of the majority of the people, five of the six leading presidential candidates (except Ronny Ray-guns) and most of the newspapers, but goes nowhere at legislation time? Give up? It's gun control—specifically handguns.

Gun control doesn't get passed because there is a small but effective lobby known as the National Rifle Association that gears up a massive combination letter writing-lobbying campaign every time gun control legislation is brought before Congress. So Congress, duly impressed by as many as 200,000 letters, votes it down.

There is something ironic in the NRA fighting tooth and nail against gun control, because they are always sprouting off about how law-abiding and freedom-loving their members are. But the legislation they kill only helps criminals and restricts the freedom of citizens who are afraid to go out on the streets for fear of getting plugged by some half-wit with a hand gun.

I think that people who buy handguns for protection are buying them for the wrong reason, although I'm sure some people have ideas of blowing away some vicious criminal with their six-inch 357 magnum. This delusion makes no sense when you realize that criminals invariably have the drop on you to begin with, so reaching for a gun will most likely get yourself shot. Also, statistics show that you are six times more likely to shoot a relative or someone you know than shoot an attacker or intruder.

I think the U.S. Congress should pass a strict gun control law, because it would mean less guns, therefore less shootings, therefore less loss of human life. The whole point of gun control is not to restrict anybody's freedom or take away a constitutional right, but to save lives. — Jim Pflaum, Junior, Radio-Television

Davies Gymnasium needs your support

Fifty-five years is long enough to wait.

That's how long Davies Gymnasium has gone without any renovations or improvements.

And 55 years is just a little too long to expect a building to last without any repairs—especially if it's something used as much as Davies Gym.

The Undergraduate Student Organization is organizing a rally, scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. Friday in front of the building. The purpose of the rally is to make persons more aware of the hazards in the building. It will last until 11 a.m., but students may come and go as they please.

Students will be able to sign petitions at the rally, and will be given fact sheets on the building and addresses of congressmen should students want to write letters.

Anyone who cares about women's athletics, athletics in general or physical education should show up at the rally—if only for a few minutes to sign a petition.

SIU-C has been trying for 11 years to get funds to help get the building up-to-date. And this year the antiquated structure was 15th on a 61-item list of priorities to get funds from the Illinois Board of Higher Education—the highest priority it has ever attained.

However, the governor recommended only the first 12 priorities, in addition to a funding request for remodeling the Northern Illinois University College of Law, which ranked No. 16 on the list. Illinois State's gymnasium—which has the same floor plan and was built in the same year as Davies—has been renovated twice since its construction.

State Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, introduced legislation Friday to appropriate money for the gym, since its funding was so high on the list that didn't get IBHE funds.

Davies Gymnasium is not only used by those in women's athletics—42 physical education classes use the building and intramural basketball and volleyball contests are held there.

In fact, two intramural basketball playoff games had to be canceled this week because the floors were s-laked with rain that poured through the leaky roof.

During the winter, floorboards on one part of the basketball courts buckled up at least six inches, making half of the floor unplayable. As a result, the intramural basketball season has gone along at a snail's pace.

"We should have been done three weeks ago, but because of the condition of the floor we're still having playoffs." Intramurals Coordinator Jean Paratore said. "The floor is disgusting."

And volleyball is having its troubles, too.

"The floorboards are so weak that the anchors for the volleyball standards have pulled right out of the floor. We have to use gymnastic weights to keep the things down," Paratore said.

Students should show their support by attending the rally Friday.

Or else their grandchildren might have to.

Woody lot to close temporarily Court dismisses challenge of state's attorney primary

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Parking around Woody Hall may be hard to find Monday, as the city and University plan to close the Woody Hall parking lot while they transfer control of the lot and install new parking meters.

The 67-space parking lot, to be renamed University Parking Lot No. 5, will be closed from 7 a.m. Monday until sometime Tuesday afternoon. City crews will be taking out the 30-minute parking meters and the University will be installing new eight-hour meters during this time.

Marilyn Hogan, campus parking manager, said sections of the lot, will be open as soon as the crews finish the work.

Parking will cost 25 cents per hour from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, Hogan said. Of the 67 spaces, three will be reserved for the handicapped and will not be metered. Visitor and handicapped parking will occupy the west side of the lot, while "University affiliated" or red, blue, yellow and gold decal parking will be designated on the east side of the lot.

Hogan said that any "University affiliated" person who uses parking on the visitor side is subject to a $10 parking fine.

Vice President for Campus Services Clarence "Doc" Dougherty said he was anxious to acquire the lot from the city and include it in the overall campus parking program because the 30-minute city meters do not allow enough time for students, faculty members and others to complete their business in Woody.

The petition was filed by State's Attorney William Schwartz, who lost the March 18 primary election to Murphyboro attorney John Clemons.

Schwartz said he will not appeal the decision.

"I feel I had my day in court, and I'm satisfied," Schwartz said.

County Clerk Robert Harrell, a defendant in the petition, could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

In his petition, Schwartz asked for an invalidation of the election, a recount of the votes and an investigation into two computer errors in the tabulation of the votes on election night. The petition also called for a new computer program to be developed for future elections.

The petition also stated a procedure known as "cleaning the cards" was performed outside of the presence of election officials. Harrell has said the procedure, during which the cards are checked for errors that would prohibit them from going through the computer, took place with election officials present.

Schwartz said that because he carried the burden of proof to show sufficient reason for the recount, the ruling indicates the judge does not feel the evidence presented proved the necessity of a recount.

Schwartz said he hopes some of the points brought up in the petition, such as a review of the computer program, will still be reviewed by those in charge of the elections.

"If some of the points are reviewed, I've accomplished a lot with the petition.

Judge rules in favor of landlord; students must pay back rent, vacate

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

Jackson County Circuit Court Judge James Williamson has ordered three SIU-C students to pay $1,405 in rent to their Carbondale landlord who brought a suit against them for not paying rent since last July.

Jeffrey Woodruff named Alan Spanjer, Steve Goranson and Gary Adelman, all of 408 S. Ash, as defendants in the suit. Woodruff charged the tenants with forcible entry and detainer when they did not move out after Woodruff served them with an eviction notice Feb. 6.

Woodruff, represented by William Broom, said he had made a verbal agreement with the tenants at the beginning of fall semester to lower the rent from $275 per month to $210 per month because Woodruff had not met all of his obligations outlined in the lease.

The tenants, represented by C. Robert Hall of Carbondale, claimed they did not agree to the verbal modification of the lease.

Of his ruling, Judge Williamson said he felt there was a verbal agreement reached, although there was conflicting evidence on the agreement.

An addition to the basic lease signed by the tenants required Woodruff to convert part of the attic of the house into a third bedroom, repair or replace the back door and repaint the interior of the house as needed, among other things.

Woodruff admitted that he did not complete all of the points outlined in the contract and said he offered the tenants a reduction in rent, house furnishings and garbage pick-up to compensate for the obligations he did not meet. Woodruff said the tenants agreed to the modification.

However, the tenants say that although they discussed the modification, it was not binding on them.

"We told him that we'd pay lower rent if he started fixing the house right away. But he didn't, so there was no agreement," Goranson said. Adelman said he and his roommates had talked about the rent reduction, but had not agreed to it.

AFRICAN DAY CELEBRATION

Africa day celebration is a memorable event which is observed in all parts of the world every year to commemorate the birth of the organization of African Unity (O.A.U.). It marks that historic day in 1963 when leaders of African Nations met at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, to map out a framework for continental unity and cooperation that is symbolized by the O.A.U.

The celebration presents an occasion when the attention of the people of the world is focused on Africa's progress and problems. Highlighting these issues, it is hoped, will promote people's understanding, appreciation and concern for Africa's political, economic and social success and failures.

This year's celebration at SIU-C will focus on Africa's position at the threshold of the 80's - twenty years after the early waves of independence started blowing through the continent which today is emerging as an invaluable source for man's economic, social and cultural needs.

Student-crafted clothes to be shown

By Renault Rose

Student Writer

Multi-colored lights sparkle upon glittering costumes. Chic models glide on stage and cruise to the beat of smooth, swinging progressive jazz. This will be the scene Friday when the "All That Jazz" fashion show is presented in the Quigley Hall Auditorium.

Clothes crafted by students in clothing and textiles classes will model their own creations in three shows at 11 and 11:40 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. Although most of the outfits are reproductions of works by such designers as Ralph Lauren, Yves Saint Laurent and others, some of the apparel are original designs by the students.

Clothing for each of the four seasons will be presented in the show in the categories of formalwear, casual and sportswear. Suits for businesswomen will be highlighted.

Harmonizing the show's production activities is student chairperson Cindy Roach. She said the task of managing such a show is far from simple.

"I didn't know how much could go wrong in a day before I volunteered for this job," she said. "Every day is a test to make sure things are running smoothly."

Choreography, or structuring the model's movements on stage, is essential to any fashion show. This area is being supervised by Laura Enloe, junior in clothing and textiles.

"Arranging the model's movements on stage is really what choreography is all about," Enloe explained. "I try to point out the 'do's and don'ts' since this is the initial modeling experience for most of the girls."

The show is being presented as part of the University's high school and community college student guest day.

Shryock slates Waters

The classic electric blues of Muddy "Mississippi" Waters and his band will be presented at 8 p.m. April 23 in Shryock Auditorium. A special guest is due to be announced. Reserved seat tickets will be priced at $7, and a date for sales will be set next week.

Waters, 65, was leading his own quartet by the age of 15 back in 1930. His recordings include "Fathers and Sons," "The London Muddy Waters Sessions," "Hard Again" and "Chess Blues Masters," a compilation LP. A Grammy in 1972 for "The London Muddy Waters Sessions" and a 1977 Rolling Stone Critics Award for "Hard Again" are among the 15 awards he has won.

Speaking of Waters, Robert Palmer of the New York Times wrote: "Mr. Waters' hour on stage seemed more like 15 minutes. He prowled restlessly, roaring out the assertive lyrics of 'Mannish Boy' and turning in a two chorus slide guitar solo that brought down the house... it was one of the finest blues performances in years."

Stairs make the upper floors of Woody Hall and other campus buildings inaccessible to Joyce Shepherd and other students in wheelchairs. The problem in Woody Hall will soon be corrected - an elevator is under construction in the building.

Inaccessibility a hardship for handicapped

By Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer

It is a cruel and effective form of segregation which limits a person's ability to mix with the mainstream of society.

Things that able-bodied persons freely negotiate each day—stairs, heavy doors, steep curbs and slim hallways—are the barriers that serve to isolate and segregate handicapped persons.

Inaccessibility is the disabled person's swear word.

Removing those physical barriers will allow for the kind of contact that is needed for us to know one another," says Dave Biscardi, a graduate student in psychology.

Biscardi knows those barriers from both sides. Once an athletic, active teenager who lettered in high school golf, Biscardi has been in a wheelchair since a fall from a tree left him paralyzed eight years ago. Though physical barriers aren't the only factors which isolate the handicapped, he feels their removal is the key to acceptance.

"Breaking down those barriers will be the initial step in the process of the disabled person's integration back into society," Biscardi said.

That process has already begun. Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act calls for barrier-free design in all facilities under construction past 1977. State codes and city ordinances throughout the country require modifications to enhance access for the handicapped.

Of the state codes, Illinois' is one of the finest, according to Ron Blosser, SIU-C coordinator for Specialized Student Services. And Blosser feels that in terms of access the SIU-C campus is "pretty good" when compared to other universities.

"Our campus is probably more accessible than others across the country," he said.

Biscardi agrees. "This campus is very accessible for me. Many disabled students come here because accessibility is very good compared to other places," he said. But Biscardi, who retains the use of his arms and upper body, added, "I don't have that many problems, but I'm one person with a less severe handicap than others."

Carl Terp, paralyzed from the neck down in a diving accident two years ago, also feels that accessibility on the SIU-C campus is quite good.

"Overall, I'd say the campus is really excellent as far as getting around in a wheelchair," said the freshman in accounting.

And Earl Czaskowski, a junior in agriculture who is blind, says he has no problems with access around campus.

Blosser said that while the campus isn't 100 percent barrier-free, "in terms of physical access, students aren't precluded from any academic programs. If a class is on an inaccessible floor or building, it will be moved if a disabled student registers," he said.

Arunas "Arnie" Venclauskas (right) takes a break from Venclauskas at Bailey Hall and has been his attendant and friend for the past two years. Bernstein lives just down the hall

Student tells of change in attitude since becoming 'wheelie' attendant

By Ken Mac Garrigue
Staff Writer

"Students think that wheelies are robots. We are feeling human beings. We study, we go to parties, we go on dates like anybody else. You have to understand that the handicapped student is a human being too."

Arunas "Arnie" Venclauskas has been in a wheelchair all his life. His wheelchair isolates him from people. He has cerebral palsy, which distorts his voice, making it hard for people to understand him. Some assume he's retarded—but he's not. Venclauskas graduates next year from SIU with a B.A. in rehabilitation services.

The last two years at SIU have been made somewhat easier for him by having people around who take the time to listen when others can't be bothered. They're called attendants, and an attendant is someone a wheelie can count on. Arnie Bernstein has been an attendant for Venclauskas for the last two years.

"The general population is ignorant about what it's like to be with the handicapped," said Bernstein, a sophomore in cinema and photography. This ignorance inevitably leads to stereotypes, he said.

"That's how I was before I started working for Arunas," he said. "It's a hard stereotype to break. If you don't know the person, of course there's the tendency to feel sorry for him. If you don't know someone it's easy to make a generalization."

Before coming to SIU Bernstein had little exposure to handicapped people. He said he took the job initially because he needed the money, but added that the money has since ceased to concern him much. Instead, he said, he does it because he wants to.

"If I really wanted money I'd go to another job. This one doesn't pay well at all. Money is just part of the job."

This summer he's planning on working in a camp for kids who are handicapped or disabled. "This has nothing to do with my major—it's just something I enjoy."

The life of an attendant is not glamorous, Bernstein said. Taking care of another human being is tough work. Showers have to be given, and there's feeding, dressing, going to the

Training of attendants to be focus of seminar

By Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer

Dr. E. Shannon Stauffer, chairman of the orthopedic division of the SIU School of Medicine, will be the featured speaker at an attendant training seminar Wednesday in Wham 219. The seminar will begin at 8:30 a.m. and last until 12:15 p.m.

Sam Goodin, an administrative graduate assistant at Specialized Student Services, said the seminar is normally open only to persons interested in working as attendants for handicapped students. But, he said, others in human service fields are welcome to attend this year because of Stauffer's appearance.

According to Goodin, Stauffer is a widely recognized expert in spinal cord injury and rehabilitation. He will speak about the medical complications which can arise with quadriplegics, cerebral palsy victims and other handicapped persons and what their attendants can do to avoid and treat these complications.

The seminar is sponsored yearly by Specialized Student Services to train prospective attendants of handicapped students on campus. The seminar will also include presentations in nursing care, transfer techniques and wheelchair maintenance.

Goodin said the individual students hire their own attendants from a list of referrals from his office. He said people who have attended the seminar are normally given priority over others by the handicapped students when hiring.

Between 15 and 20 attendants will be needed next fall, Goodin said. The attendants' jobs will vary depending on the extent of the person's disabilities. Goodin said they are normally required to work in the mornings and in the evenings.

"Working as an attendant isn't always a job," Goodin said. "It often turns into a relationship. It's a good jumping off point for people interested in the help service fields."

Attendant describes his job as tough, 'something I enjoy'

bathroom, and a multitude of activities where a helping hand or two is sometimes needed.

"He complains, says I don't work hard enough," Bernstein said with a grin. "Getting him into the shower is a problem. I'm 5'5" and he's 6'4." Lifting him does get to be complicated."

"Having a sense of humor helps," Bernstein said. "He jokes about it, I joke about it."

Attendants have to be around when they're needed, Bernstein said. They have to be prepared for anything, be it an accident, sickness, or a wheelchair break down.

"The attendants are somebody they can count on," he said. "Like for instance, last week Arunas tipped over in the woods and I had to pull on my pants and run over there and push him all the way back."

Bernstein estimated he works 3-4 hours every weekday on his job and alternates every other weekend with another attendant. He and Arunas are now good friends, he said.

"Obviously, you put in this much time, you've got to develop some closeness," he said. "I've gotten close to Armie. We still fight a lot, don't keep it down inside." He stopped. "It's the person, not the handicap."

SIU-C handicapped find barriers, but accessibility here 'pretty good'

He added that SIU-C offers services that will help students work around access problems. Among these are a van service to help with transportation and a wheelchair repair shop. "These are services that directly enhance accessibility."

Still, all agree that there is room for improvement. Blosser lists a number of problems. A lack of an elevator in Woody Hall is one which is due to be alleviated. An elevator is now under construction in the B-wing and should be in operation by fall of next year, he said.

He also said there is a need for more and better curb cuts (ramps), modified bathrooms, widened doors, and improved signage for the visually handicapped.

Biscardi also pointed to the lack of a Woody Hall elevator, which he said is particularly troublesome for him because he works there. He would like to see a ramp and facilities at Campus Beach which would make it easier for handicapped persons to swim there.

Terp said that elevators in the Agriculture Building and others could be modified to be more easily operable. The asphalt at the bottom of ramps could be better maintained and doors in Panser should swing both ways to make getting around in that building easier.

He also said that a lack of elevators in the Thompson Point dormitories keeps him from associating with persons on the upper floors.

transportation for the handicapped, also.

Though they all agree that Carbondale is very accessible compared to other cities, problems exist here also. Biscardi, who drives, said that handicapped parking spots are plentiful, but he added that curb cuts are often extremely steep.

Finding suitable off-campus housing is a problem that Terp has encountered. Carbondale Towers and Mill Street Apartments, 271 units of federally subsidized housing, are scheduled to be partially available for rental beginning May.

Still, Biscardi, Blosser, Terp and Czaskowski say accessibility is less of a problem at U-C and in Carbondale than elsewhere. And while change is coming throughout the country, they say it is gradual.

"Things are changing, but they are kind of half-ass backwards and real slow," Terp said.

But they are changing. Eventually, inaccessibility may be a word that is no longer in the disabled person's vocabulary.

Physically disabled rough it on wilderness survival trip

By Robin Saponar
Staff Writer

A week of outdoor recreation may be a common activity for some students, but for a group of physically disabled students it was an event.

The students spent the week of spring break at Touch of Nature in a "survival-type trip." Richard DeAngelis, assistant coordinator of intramural recreation, said,

"The trip gave physically disabled students the same type of experience that able-bodied students would get," he said. "This has never been done before on this campus with cerebral palsy students."

For two days of the trip they went canoeing. Students left their wheelchairs behind and tried to get out of the canoes with a minimal amount of assistance from the staff.

"The thing I was most pleased with in the camping program was the amount of things they were willing to try themselves," DeAngelis said. "They were doing more than they thought they could do in the beginning."

The trip is one of many sports offered for disabled students. DeAngelis said SIU-C offers "almost every sport available in an able-bodied world."

DeAngelis said that for the first time in the history of Illinois the National Association of Sports for Cerebral Palsy will hold competitions in track and field. The competitions will be held in August in Chicago. He hopes to have about 15 participants from SIU-C.

"We hope to win—we always want to win," he said. "An added advantage is that as a student participates more in physical activities, he can do more for himself.

"It shows up in other things, a side effect to the programs," DeAngelis said. "I think it's beneficial. A very important factor especially with this population—they're willing to try more things."

Some of the other sports offered are track and field, football, volleyball, soccer, bowling, canoeing, swimming and basketball.

Mike Conroy, a senior in university studies, is a member of the intramural basketball team, the "Squids."

a volcano?

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — The American free enterprise system is proving equal to the challenge of making a buck from the eruption of Mount St. Helens.

Hawkers and vendors are peddling T-shirts, beer mugs and other souvenirs of the first volcanic eruption in the continental United States since 1915.

And then there are such items as volcano ice cream sundaes, volcano cocktails and one "eruption sale" after another.

T-shirt sales erupted almost as fast as the mountain. They appeared on the slopes within two days of the first spitting of steam on March 27.

T-shirts proclaiming "I survived Mount St. Helens Eruption 1980" were selling for $7.50 apiece at nearby Couar, Wash.

"Buying a wheelchair is like buying a stereo," said Gary Pollock, owner of Stonehead Medical Supply store. Stonehead is Carbondale's only supplier of wheelchairs.

Small store has special clientele; sells wheelchairs, related supplies

By Carrie Sweeney
Staff Writer

There is a small store located off one of Carbondale's busiest streets which remains almost unnoticed by those who drive past. Only one van is parked next to the old one-story building and there are no customers lined up at the cash register.

For those who do spot this store, it does not appear to be the best place in town to shop. For those who do business here, there is no other place in Carbondale like it.

The Stonehead Medical Supply store has limited stock to choose from, yet each of the items available is essential to the store's clientele; the handicapped.

As the only supply house in Carbondale, Stonehead sells about 70 wheelchairs a year, of which, about 45 are specially-ordered power chairs, said owner Gary Pollock. SIU-C students, he added, make up a fairly large percentage of his clientele.

"Buying a wheelchair is like buying a stereo; there is a complete price range and many different models to choose from.

person and fit him to a wheelchair that meets his needs," Pollock said.

Although the majority of business stems from special orders, some institutional wheelchairs are sold out of stock, Pollock said. These average about $300 in price and the chrome frames and upholstery are of lower quality than the other models. A good quality manual, he added, runs about $670.

Most of the special orders are for power-controlled wheelchairs, which are priced at about $2,400. The chairs run on two 12-volt batteries and are controlled by a lever located on either arm of the chair. These chairs, Pollock said, can go up to 4.8 miles per hour, but must be recharged each night.

"As with most motorized things, the wheelchairs do break down. The batteries must be replaced periodically, which costs about $100, and the tires and inner-tubes are usual repairs, with replacement of the back tires and inner-tubes about $50 and the front ones about $20," Pollock explained.

Features such as removable arms and swing-away foot rests are standard and come with most of the power chairs, but options such as cushioned seats, head supports, removable trays, special hand rims, seatbelts, elevated legs and reclining backs are extra, Pollock said.

"With enough options, a standard manual wheelchair can cost up to $1,000. It's really not that uncommon," he added.

"There are chairs with devices that enable the chin to control all the movements. The control box is set up at chin height instead of on the arm of the chair," Pollock said.

In addition, there are chairs operated by the sip and puff method where pressure from blowing into a device moves a switch in the control box to move the chair, he said.

"The manufacturers say that eventually they will have a model you can operate by just talking to it. With all of the technology today, I see no reason why they can't do it," he said.

and you are in the word squid, they decided to adopt the name for their team.

The Squids play during the regular basketball season. The team practices twice a week during the season, competing in about a dozen games in St. Louis, Springfield and "a lot of towns in between."

There are certain modifications in the basketball games the Squids play. "Instead of a 3-second zone, we get five seconds. For every two strokes of the wheel you have to bounce the ball once," Conroy said. "There are chairs specially designed for basketball which are lighter and more maneuverable."

Conroy is 6 feet 8 inches tall and played basketball before being injured in a car accident three years ago. He said that now when he plays basketball, he plays with a different perspective.

"Your play is more scientific. Playing basketball in a wheelchair you have to get to the ball first," he said. "On your feet you can get there after your opponent and go around him."

Conroy also enjoys archery although he said he hasn't practiced much. He signed up for an archery class, but he had to drop it.

"In case of rain they were going to hold the class upstairs in Davies Gymnasium," he said. "I couldn't get up there."

Conroy plans to compete in the Little Egypt games, which are regional qualifying meets for the National Wheelchair Athletic Games. He will participate in archery and other track and field events including shotput, javelin and discus.

He said the national meet will be held in June or July in Champaign. Last year the nationals were held in New York City and he didn't attend because they were held so far away.

He has ended his second and final season playing basketball for the Squids with positive feelings.

"I've met a lot of people doing it and had a lot of good times," he said. "I've enjoyed the traveling. It's good recreation—just good clean fun."

Group's goal is to make public aware of handicapped's needs

By Carrie Sweeney
Staff Writer

Accessibility for handicapped students at SIU-C is considered by most to be superior when compared to other colleges and universities across the country. Nonetheless, problems still exist—problems that the Handicapped Student Rights Organization is trying to solve.

In the fall of 1979, a group of handicapped students at SIU-C met for lunch each weekday to discuss some of the common obstacles they encountered. Eventually, the number in the group grew until the positive feedback from the sharing of experiences and solutions led them to form an organized group. Diane Karp, secretary of the organization, said,

Members of the group, which was officially organized in February, 1980, say their main objective is to make people more aware of the handicapped's needs.

"We would like for people on campus and in the community to recognize the problems that we face every day," Karp said. "Right now we're just dealing with SIU and Carbondale, but we also want to expand and promote new state legislation that will make ramps mandatory in all places and will increase state funding for rehabilitation services."

Karp added that improvements have been made over the years by the state legislature and recently Gov. Thompson passed a law allowing police to ticket those vehicles parked in handicapped spaces. However, the law also requires all handicapped drivers to have some kind of identifiable sticker in order to park in the reserved areas.

Although Karp feels that the law is a step in the right direction, she said that many handicapped drivers feel differently.

"Some disabled people object to having a special sticker or license plate on their car that points them out as handicapped. There are instances that I know of where people have been taken advantage of because they are handicapped."

"Having special stickers for the handicapped is a way of segregating the disabled from the nondisabled, and although I personally don't mind, I can see why some people do," Karp explained.

After pausing to laugh, Karp added, "At least with a sticker in the back window of my car I'm assured first priority on parking spaces."

In Carbondale, tickets can only be issued in the parking lot of a store which has a contract with the police department to do so. The University Mall, Karp said, has such a contract, but many places don't.

"Our group is trying to get K-Mart and National Food Store to also contract with the police. These stores have signs for handicapped parking, but they aren't doing anything about enforcing those signs," she said.

Karp also feels strongly about the state budgetary cuts that might limit the funding for rehabilitation services. This, she said, is an issue the group eventually hopes to lobby for.

Such group plans as these, however, are just in the preliminary stages and unfortunately, Karp, who graduates in May, won't be at SIU-C to help the issue along. Nonetheless, she hopes to help the group make known as many problems as possible so that others will have a much easier time adjusting.

"Compared to most universities, SIU is very accessible. But there is still so much more to be done."

"Handicapped students have been pushing for a long time to get an elevator put in Woody Hall and finally the school has started the construction process. Right now whenever wheelies need to go to one of the offices on the second or third floor they have to call upstairs and have the person come down," Karp said.

Members of the Handicapped Rights Group, which is open to anyone interested, disabled or not, plan to talk to the Student Center Board next week about the lack of accessibility. In the Renaissance Room, Karp said,

SIU to stage 'Gumball Rally' ...with wheelchairs, not cars

By Ken Mac Garrigue
Staff Writer

It started with a movie and ended with a wheelchair race. A movie called the "Gumball Rally" involved a car race from New York to California with the first car to get there declared the winner. There were no rules.

The Advisory Board for Special Populations (i.e., handicapped students) at SIU-C saw the movie and started reading up on auto race rallies, where cars race against the clock in competitions that judge both driving skill and speed.

Combine both ideas and you come up with SIU-C's own "Gumball Rally," a race around campus in wheelchairs instead of cars with checkpoints and no rules except one—you have to stay in your wheelchair.

The great wheelchair race is to be held Saturday. It starts at 1:00 p.m. at the Boat Dock. Able-bodied people will also participate using manual wheelchairs. A few hours in a wheelchair can often illustrate first-hand some of the problems the handicapped face every day.

"It provides an awareness for those people who aren't in wheelchairs to see how it feels to get around campus in one," Richard DeAngelis, organizer of the rally, said.

"It makes you more aware of the barriers you normally don't notice. We walk through the grass to get from one point to another and don't think anything of it. Try wheeling through it sometime."

The rally is primarily for those who must spend all their time in a wheelchair, not just a few hours. Letters were sent out to some of the parents of disabled students, DeAngelis said, in the hopes they'd attend or even compete.

He said it's difficult to get parents to compete, but just having them see their son or daughter maneuver around cones, up ramps, around trees, under tunnels and through a treacherous obstacle course at a breakneck pace can sometimes open a few parents' eyes.

"It makes them more aware that their kids, their children, are doing other things than just going to class," he said. "They're saying to them that they CAN do other things. A lot of times parents tend to over-protect an individual who's handicapped."

The Gumball Rally consists of three parts: a rally leg, an obstacle leg and a finish leg. Participants must complete the course in a wheelchair while competing with other participants in the same category for the lowest overall time.

After three years, the Gumball Rally has gone through some refinement. One change has been deciding who competes against whom.

To equalize the competition, there are seven categories for wheelchairs, DeAngelis said. For instance, the new electric wheelchair can reach speeds of up to 15 mph, while the old one can go only 5-6 mph, he said. Each now competes against those in wheelchairs with similar modifications.

The most competitive categories are the motorized chair and the able-bodied ones, DeAngelis said. The times are close and the people are competitive.

"Some are 'out to kill' as the saying goes," DeAngelis said. "There are some long-standing rivalries between many of the students."

The competition also takes into account a person's knowledge of the campus—or lack thereof.

"It gives you a chance to really find your way around campus. You'd be surprised how many seniors don't know what the buildings are. You tell them to show up at the stadium and they'll show up at the Arena."

There will be a picnic at 4:30 p.m. at the Boat Dock area following the rally.

Take your mark, get set ...

Handicapped students voice needs

the only entrance accessible by wheelchairs has been blocked off, supposedly to prevent people from walking off with food.

In addition, she said, getting into and around the bookstore is a hindrance.

"The aisles in the wheelchair entrances are too narrow for most wheelchairs to get through. Also, other people are going through the special lines at the cash registers and it's difficult to get people to move."

"A special entrance for wheelchairs was set up by the book return, but now that whole side of the store has also been blocked off." This, Karp said, is a violation of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which states that all public facilities must be accessible by the handicapped.

Bathrooms, Karp explained, are also a problem on campus. The bathrooms in Wham, Woody Hall, Morris Library and some in the Student Center are well structured for admittance by wheelchairs, she said.

"Faner Hall has a lot of problems. All of the bathrooms are very small and hard to get in and out of. Also, some bathrooms in the Student Center have too many doors for a person in a wheelchair to deal with," Karp said.

"The resolution of these problems by the group will make accessibility around campus much easier for the wheelies. It seems that doors that are too narrow or too difficult to open by a wheelchair are the biggest obstacles we need changed," Karp said.

According to Karp, getting into other campus facilities, such as McAndrew Stadium and the Arena, isn't really a problem. She added, though, that the time spent there is a different story.

"Getting seated at a concert isn't a problem at all. The problems start when people get enthused and stand up during a performance because all the wheelies have to strain their necks to see."

"Once I even had a person stand on my footrest just to get a closer look at the performer," Karp added with a laugh.

1980 coin proofs available Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's coin-collecting time again: The Bureau of the Mint begins accepting orders for 1980 proof sets on Tuesday.

The 1980 sets are priced at $10 each, which includes postage and handling. There is a limit of five sets per customer.

The 1980 proof sets contain six coins: dollar, half dollar, quarter, dime, nickel and penny. The proof coins are produced only at the San Francisco assay office and bear an "S" mint mark.

Mint Director Stella B. Hackel said the sets are in a new package, which was redesigned to accommodate the dollar coin.

Collectors on the mint's mailing list will receive order cards, others can order the sets by writing the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint St., San Francisco, Calif., 94175.

Disc jockey describes new albums

Editor's Note: The following is a list of new music releases compiled by Earl Jive of WTAO radio. This will be a weekly music feature in the Daily Egyptian Friday Focus edition. By Earl Jive
WTAO Radio

We start off with a flood of live double album sets. The Little River bands "Backstage Pass," Ian Hunter's "Welcome to the Club," B.B. King's "Now Appearing at Ole Miss" and Oregon's "In Performance" all have recent live releases.

Most of these are rehashes of each artist's past repertoire. But if you didn't get enough of it when it was original, here's your chance to OD on the group of your choice. Each LP does include one or two new things in addition to the old standards.

A Music Review

Included in this group should be the latest REO Speedwagon effort, "A Decade of Rock 'n' Roll—1970-1980." This is an anthology of tunes from previous albums, but substitutes new live versions for some of the more popular tunes. The most interesting rehash, however, is the Beatles' "Rarities" which features hard-to-get flip sides, alternate versions of stereo and mono songs and even a copy of the original cover photo for "Yesterday and Today." This is complete with the Fab Four outfitted in butcher smocks with decapitated baby dolls and bloody meat. It's almost like getting a new Beatles album.

"Duke," by Genesis, is a very tasty and accessible new LP. I'm sure there's a story here, but I haven't gotten past just enjoying the music.

Groupies love Friday ghoulish friends

By Ken Mac Garrigue

Staff Writer
Students not out partying at 10 o'clock Friday night are often sitting next to their TVs waiting to be scared.

The Wolfman, Dracula, Frankenstein, the Mummy, Boris, Lon, Vincent and other horror stars have each made at least one TV appearance on Channel 8's "Horror Classic."

No commercials—that's the best thing—and its early starting time make "Horror Classic" a MUST SEE in some students' academic calendars.

In fact, the show has developed somewhat of a cult following around these parts. Some students watch it as faithfully as they do such other college tube favorites as Saturday Night Live, WKRP in Cincinnati, MASH, 60 Minutes, The Price Is Right and All My Children.

The decision whether or not to watch "Horror Classic" usually depends on two things: 1) what the movie is they show that night (your big time horror flicks like King Kong will draw more fans), and 2) what other social activities present themselves at that time of night (like a party or a Roman orgy).

Another possible reason for the success of "Horror Classic" is its early starting time. This means viewers can be scared or be amused just as the drugs, beer or warm milk (state your pleasure) start to take effect.

Chicago TV watchers point out that Sven Goli on Channel 32 in Chicago has prepared them well for Friday nights of "Horror Classic." Both come on Friday around 10 p.m. Both show top quality horror flicks.

There is one slight difference though—"Horror Classic" lacks a true ghost host like Mr. Goli. Ed Copple hosts "Horror Classic" sans white face makeup and minus a coffin. Why? One assumes that this is because college students are too "sophisticated" for such things as seeing the village idiot dressed up in a Dracula costume and speaking in a third-rate Transylvanian accent. Blah!!

This week's Horror Classic is a killer. It's called "The Mummy's Tomb" (10 p.m. Friday, of course), and it's about an Egyptian fanatic who brings a mummy back to life and sends it out to do his dirty work. Yes, and in it the mummy will walk in slow motion and still catch its victims

Nile's lyrics, melodies make debut refreshing

By Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer

The delightful audacity and potential of a lyric like "What a fine thing to make love and survive" is something to behold. It offers the notion that the two may be delicately intertwined. That romance may be the ultimate refuge. And that survival isn't really such a bad thing at all.

It is a lyric that is the essence of the man and the album from whence it came.

It's author, Willie Nile, may not share Bruce Springsteen's passionate conviction that there is a promised land. But with his upbeat debut album, "Willie Nile," he suggests, with a friendly reassurance, that together we can survive quite nicely in this one.

Nile does this with a combination of pleasant, uplifting lyrics and direct, clean pop melodies. He retrieves the long dormant freshness of early rockabilly and adds a depth that pure pop hasn't seen much of since the death of the Beatles.

This is a musician who invites comparison. He has a light, quavering voice that rings of Steve Forbert. His danceable rockers could easily pass for Buddy Holly numbers and when he moves toward sophistication, early Dylan comes to mind.

If his music smacks of imitation, that's all right because he does it so well. Lyrically, however, he is an original.

Nile is a romantic in the true sense of the word and nearly every song on "Willie Nile" encompasses that combination of love and survival.

"Vagabond Moon," the song that houses that wonderful lyric, may be the best of all. A rolling rocker reminiscent of Forbert's "Romeo's Tune," it sets the pace for the rest of the album. For instance this line: "Why be there waiting, hiding and grieving, When we could be rolling 'neath the vagabond moon."

The song that best reflects his idea of love as refuge is "Across the River." Acknowledging that things aren't right, that people are indeed starving, he suggests that in a lover's arms we can find shelter and the stamina to deal with it all.

Another of these is "Old Men Sleeping on the Bowery." Comparing the lifestyles of skid row habitues, a slick jet-setter and two young lovers on his rooftop, Nile leaves no question as to who he thinks has the best of things.

"That's the Reason" and "Behind the Cathedral" are two more songs that reveal the author's respect for romance. But there are also indications here that when Nile speaks of love and survival he means that love is one of those things we can survive. "It's All Over" and "I'm Not Waiting" are two not-so-remorseful tunes that rehash fallen love affairs.

Nile also shows an acute sense of irony here. "Dear Lord," "They'll Build a Statue of You" and "She's So Cold" all feature interesting, comical lyrics.

The entire album is highlighted by the crisp guitar work of Clay Barnes and Peter Hoffman. Barnes provides the rockabilly influence that is most evident on marvelous rockers like "She's So Cold," "I'm Not Waiting," and "That's the Reason." The latter is a song

Tucker band's 'Tenth' album enjoyable, but not innovative

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

When the Marshall Tucker Band visited SIU in March, lead guitarist Toy Caldwell said the band's new album was "the best thing we've ever done."

But contrary to what Toy says, this is not the group's best effort. The material here is about as innovative as the album's cover. Blah.

What Toy should have said was that this record, "Tenth," is about the same as the nine previous Marsnail Tucker Band albums: another enjoyable, steady lp that combines southern rock with rhythm and blues.

This is the band's second release on Warner Brothers records. Their first effort on the new label, "Running Like the Wind," which departed from the country and blues tunes they were known for, was a refreshing change to a jazz-oriented collection featuring the talents of Jerry Eubanks on saxophones and flute.

"Tenth" consists of 10 songs, more than any of their other albums, but only one cut has the jazz influences of their previous work. Maybe Warner Brothers and the band are looking for more airplay; something the group hasn't known since "Heard It In A Love Song" was a popular FM hit three years ago.

Ironically, "Cattle Drive," a title which would imply that the song is a twangy, western tune, is actually the album's jazziest tune, featuring Eubanks on flute and Toy with yet another extended lead solo.

The brightest spots here are two songs penned by seldom-noted rhythm guitarist George McCorkle. He takes the lead guitar away from Toy and shows that he can pick a lead riff as well as anyone. Although this is a bluesy, depressing song, it is the highlight of side one.

A Music
Review

The remainder of side one consists of "It Takes Time," a radio-oriented song which may be the first single released, and two typically MTB mellow songs, "Without You," and "See You One More Time."

The second side opens with the album's best, and most upbeat tune, "Gospel Singing Man." Written by McCorkle, it maintains a basic bass and drums boogie beat throughout and later features a good acoustic flat-top pickin' lead from Toy. The song also has some soulful, gospel background singing from five female vocalists. They add a "heavenly" touch to the song, but they take away from the raw drive the band was able to muster in this number.

The rest of side two is lackluster. "Save My Soul" begins as another blues number with Toy showing a surprising fine blues voice, but ends with Toy jamming away on lead, again.

"Sing My Blues" qualifies as the band's worst song. Terrible lyrics and a Z.Z. Top rock-sounding lead take away from the usual quality blues work the band is noted for.

"Jimi" is an instrumental that doesn't sound much like any Hendrix I've ever heard and "Foolish Dreaming" concludes the album with a nice, mellow tune, again, written by McCorkle.

At least "Tenth" shows that the Marshall Tucker Band is not really the Toy Caldwell Band as McCorkle finally emerges as a songwriter and guitarist. Unfortunately, the only reason to buy this record would be for the posterity of one's personal MTB collection. If you want to hear this new lp, just play one of your older Tucker albums. You'll get the idea.

Ronstadt, senator to be investigated

DENVER (AP) — The Federal Election Commission has been asked to investigate whether Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and singer Linda Ronstadt violated campaign finance laws in arranging a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, concert.

The National Republican Senatorial Committee filed a complaint with the commission on Tuesday. It alleged Ms. Ronstadt originally planned a concert scheduled for April 21 as a commercial event, but then made it a Hart benefit.

Howard "Bo" Callaway — former Secretary of the Army, 1976 campaign manager for then-President Gerald Ford and a Republican challenger for Hart's senate seat this year — charged last week that 7,000 tickets to the concert were sold before there was adequate notice of the political nature of the event.

The Hart re-election campaign committee also was named in the complaint.

Undertones good dance band, earn lower marks elsewhere

Name: The Undertones.
Age: Born in the '60s.
Hometown: Ireland.
File Under: rock, punk, new wave (pick one)

Comments: All the Undertones have on their minds is cars and girls. That's it—they live for cars and girls, which is fine if you're part of an American band, but not OK if you're a Northern Ireland rocker. These guys are all about 19 or 20 years old—just out of high school—so maybe that's all they want to write about. If you're looking for socio-political statements from the Undertones, look someplace else. Undertones is a dance band. The members are talented rockers whose music is fast and loud, simple and uncomplicated. Unfortunately, they don't have a lot to say.

Side One: The A side is the better of the two, and could receive good "party play" in certain circles. Although none of the tunes look like top ten material, "Jump Boys" is perhaps the best! The chords are somewhat similar to "I Can't Explain" by the Who. The chorus is what makes "Jump Boys" jump. The verse line changes beat, becoming a hard driving tune compared with the jerky, jerky, slippin' and slidin' low but happy chorus. And there you have it, a simple three-chord rocker.

Speaking of three-chord rock bands, the Undertones record on Sire Records, which is the Ramones' record turf. The Undertones play music at the Ramone-like speed of sound: none of the 16 tunes is over 2:36. Sometimes you wish they'd play each a little longer cause once you get into a song...it f-f-fades out...and you're listening to the next track, still humming the last one.

Other good songs on the A Side are "Male Model," "I Gotta Getta" and "Teenage Kicks." Each ends all too soon.

Side 2: The best of the bunch on the flip side is "True Confessions," in which the boys slow down things and find a nice chord or two that really sets the mood for this piece.

Improvement is also needed in album cover art. With thousands of albums to choose from, sometimes people choose an album on how it looks as well as how it sounds (strange but true). Spend some time next time and come up with something memorable. This album cover looks slapped together.

Final comments:

The Undertones DO have talent. There's no question about it. If they're able to harness this talent, the sky's the limit.

Final grade....B.

that Buddy Holly surely would have gotten around to writing had he not met such a premature demise.

Hoffman delivers a rawer, more innovative sound on "Old Men Sleeping on the Bowery" and others.

But it is Nile himself who comes through with the album's finest lead work. Though he hangs back on rhythm through most of the LP, he steps up on the last song, "Sing Me a Song" and provides the magnificent Dylan-esque riffs.

It's the optimistic sense of survival, though, that provides the real spark on this excellent album. Nile may not have invented it, but he employs it to the hilt. And brings it across in a convincing manner that makes that makes you want to grab your lover, put on Willie Nile, make love, and—yes indeed—survive.

Also, there is Angel City, from Australia, with a debut American effort titled "Face to Face." The Joe Perry Project's "Let the Music Do the Talking," Triumph's "Progressions of Power" and the Pat Travers Band with "Crash and Burn."

In the country vein, Kenny Rogers' "Gideon" and Ray Stevens' "Shriner's Conversion" are really hot.

Jazz-wise, Earl Klugh's "Dream Come True," Ronnie Laws' "Every Generation" and David Sanborn's "Hideaway" seem to be taking the lead.

On the soul scene, albums by The Whispers, Raydio, The Isley Brothers and The Brothers Johnson are the spiciest. Not to mention the latest by Rufus and Chaka Khan.

Golf team on par with field at ECU

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

Hoping to shake the perpetual role of David against college golf's Goliaths, the SIU men's golf team will be in bluegrass country Saturday and Sunday in the Eastern Kentucky Invitational Tournament.

The 54-hole tournament will have a 36-hole round Saturday and a final 18-hole round Sunday. Eastern Kentucky's Arlington Country Club, par 72, will be a welcome sight to the Salukis after the tight, difficult courses they have played the past three weekends.

"It's an easier course," said Coach Walt Siemsglusz. "It should give everyone a good chance to put some good scores up. It's very hilly and not overly long. It's fairly wide open, too, so it doesn't tend to penalize a player for one bad shot."

But Siemsglusz pointed out another factor that may contribute to strong Saluki performance. Although he admitted the title probably will go to defending NCAA champion Ohio State or host Eastern Kentucky, he felt the 24-team is comprised of many teams in the same situation as SIU.

"Since they'll be at home, Eastern Kentucky can challenge Ohio State," Siemsglusz said. "A few good scores at home might give Ohio State all it can handle."

"I haven't seen many of the teams that will be there," Siemsglusz said. "Last week, we finished 15th, and that sounded bad. But we were going against a lot of teams that already had been playing weeks before us."

"But this week, most of the teams will be northern schools which haven't played much more than we have, so I hope that makes it a little more competitive. We could end up anywhere from fifth to 10th," he added.

So instead of trying to look respectable against national powers as they have had to do in the Gulf Coast Intercollegiate and the Southeastern Intercollegiate, the Salukis may get the chance to throw their weight around for a change.

The Salukis can expect some familiar faces when they arrive at Eastern Kentucky. The most familiar will be the University of Tennessee, which won the Southeastern Intercollegiate last weekend in Montgomery, Ala. Tennessee's Southeastern Conference neighbor, Kentucky, also will be there.

Siemsglusz listed Michigan, Louisville, Detroit, West Virginia and Bowling Green as teams to watch. The only other Missouri Valley team in the tourney is Indiana State.

"We're pretty much in the same boat as them (ISU)," Siemsglusz said. "If we can play close to them, it gives us someone to compare ourselves to on a regional basis. It also gives us someone we can try especially hard to beat."

Individually, it will be the same Saluki team going to Eastern Kentucky that finished 15th at the Southeastern Intercollegiate. But the quintet of Butch Poshard, Doug Clemens, Todd O'Reilly, Doug Jarrett and Jim Reburn is a group Siemsglusz feels he has to go with at the present time.

"Individual-wise, the guys found out they could play with the best in the country last week," Siemsglusz said. "That gave them a lot of confidence."

The monkey wrench that was thrown into the team's progress early in the season hasn't been dislodged from the machinery, however.

"The rain early in the week hurt us again," Siemsglusz said.

Friday's single game begins at 3 p.m. with SIU's All-American Bob Schroeck going against ISU's ace, Kevin Cook. The first game of Saturday's double-header begins at 1 p.m., with the nightcap immediately following.

Netters look for eighth win against Memphis State

Rest and relaxation—that's what tennis is all about. At least that's what the men's tennis team must be thinking. They'll only compete once this weekend, compared to three matches last weekend at the Oklahoma City Invitational.

The Salukis, holders of a 7-14 record, will travel to Memphis State University for a match with the Tigers on Sunday. Coach Dick LeFevre's team lost to MSU, 6-3, last year.

At the Oklahoma City Invitational, SIU lost to Oklahoma, 6-3, and West Texas State, 7-2.

to Bill Madlock in the eighth and a pinch single to Lee Lacy to start the ninth.

Vuckovich struck out nine, including three in the ninth, and walked two in posting his fourth career shutout.

Bert Blyleven, who hurled the first five innings for the Pirates, was the loser. St. Louis managed just three hits off Blyleven and reliever Enrique Romo.

Former St. Louis star Lou Brock, who retired following last season, threw out the first ball before a crowd of 43,687, the Cards' largest for a home opener in 10 years.

Swan leads Mets over Cubs

By The Associated Press

Craig Swan scattered seven hits over seven innings and drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single, leading the New York Mets to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday.

It was the sixth straight opening-day victory for the Mets, who also got a pair of runs batted in from Jerry Morales.

Swan, who had two hits and a walk, drilled his two-run single off loser Rick Reuschel in the sixth inning when New York snapped a 1-1 tie with four runs.

Lee Mazzilli opened the sixth with a walk. Steve Henderson doubled into the right-field

Cards win opener over Bucs

By The Associated Press

Pete Vuckovich pitched a three-hitter and George Hendrick doubled home Bobby Bonds in the second inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in their season opener Thursday in Busch Memorial Stadium.

Bonds, acquired this winter from the Cleveland Indians, drew a walk with one out in the second and came around to score on Hendrick's double over third base.

Vuckovich faced only 16 Pirates before Phil Garner singled with one out in the sixth. He also gave up a one-out single

Slumping lady netters ready for busy four-match weekend

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

Slumping of late, the women's tennis team will hope to reverse its fortunes when it begins a stretch of four matches in three days Saturday.

The Salukis, 4-2 for the season, including last week's 5-4 loss to Memphis State and eighth-place finish at the 19th annual Southern Tennis Tourney, begin the weekend with matches against Bell State and the Big Ten's Purdue at West Lafayette, Ind.

On Sunday, SIU will square off against intrastate rival Eastern Illinois at Charleston. The Salukis will complete the three-day stretch Monday against Principia College in SIU's final home match of the spring season.

"We really can use a weekend like this to get our games down," Saluki Coach Judy Auld said. "We're not playing badly; as a matter of fact, we've never been playing better at this point in a season, but we can always use the competition."

Auld expects Purdue and Eastern Illinois to be the tougher tests of the four matches, but adds that both Ball State and Principia are capable teams.

"I don't want to think we might be overlooking Ball

State, but we do play them before we play Purdue," she said, "so we may not be concentrating as best as we could.

"And Principia could catch us on an off day following the busy weekend," she added.

Auld isn't certain of Purdue's overall depth, but she does know that the Brileermakers' top three players are comparable to SIU's. Playing the No. 1 and 2 singles positions for Purdue will be freshmen Anna and Avra Jain. At No. 3 singles is junior Nancy Brand.

"Lisa (Warrem) has beaten both of the Jain sisters during high school days," Auld said. "But with Brand, our top three players definitely will be tested.

"As for Eastern," the fifth-year coach added. "They'll be up to beat us since we beat them, 6-3, last fall. They're a consistent, good-performing team, so we'll be ready for them, too."

The Salukis' top three singles players have a combined record of 11-15—not the most competitive by any means. But, Auld said, Jeannie Jones and Mauri Kohler, the Nos. 1 and 3 players, may have turned the corner in the Southern Tourney.

"Jeannie needed a couple wins at the Southern tourney and got them," Auld said of the junior from Anna. "Her and Mauri seem to have gotten their games to where they were last summer."

Warrem, the Salukis' No. 2 player, has SIU's best singles record, 7-2.

Auld said she may move the doubles team of Warrem and Carol Foss to the No. 1 position in an effort to boost the Salukis' competitiveness. The twosome has a 5-2 record, second best for SIU.

"I don't like to make changes unless the team or person I move is playing better than the team or person I'm changing them with," Auld explained. "Right now, Carol and Lisa are playing very well and it may be to our advantage to move them into the No. 1 slot."

Foss and Warrem would replace Jones and Kohler if the switch is made. Jones and Kohler have a 2-5 record.

"Carol and Lisa have really helped each other," Auld said. "Carol's had so much experience in doubles and Lisa talent, it's rubbed off on each other. They're a good, consistent team."

In high school, Foss was a doubles champion and Warrem a top-12 finisher in the Illinois state singles tournament.

Lady golfers open shortened year

By Ed Dougherty
Staff Writer

The women's golf team will open its abbreviated but difficult schedule on the road Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of Kentucky's Lady Kat Invitational Golf Tournament in Lexington, Ky.

The Salukis will try to get off to quick start under first-year Coach Mary Beth McGirr. SIU has just three spring meets. Two are on the road and one is at home.

It is the first year the Salukis have entered the tough 15-member field, which includes last year's top finishers, North Carolina and Kentucky. Among the other teams entered at tournament, which will be held at the Spring Lake Country Club, are Alabama, Duke, Missouri, Wake Forest and Western Kentucky.

SIU was invited to the tournament when Big Ten power Indiana decided to drop out, McGirr said.

McGirr said she will be using all seniors at the meet. The No. 1 position will be held by Sandy Lemon. The Nos. 2, 3 and 4 players will be Sue Fazio, Judy Dohrmann and Kim Birch, but not necessarily in that order, McGirr said. The No. 5 player will Lori Sackman.

North Carolina and Kentucky are pretty much the favorites," McGirr said. "I'm not sure how well we'll do. We haven't played enough to get a feel of how well we can play."

McGirr said she has to set realistic goals for her team. SIU just is not as good as other schools because of the amount of money SIU spends on women's golf, McGirr said.

"If we finish eighth or 10th," McGirr said, "we'd be doing pretty good. I'd be very happy if we finished eighth."

After the Lady Kat Invitational, the Salukis will travel to Huntington W.V. for the Marshall University Invitational April 18-19. SIU then will return home for a triangular meet against SIU-Edwardsville and Illinois State May 2-3 in the Saluki Invitational.

Orioles' 4-run first downs Chisox

By The Associated Press

Eddie Murray's two-run double keyed a four-run first inning Thursday that carried Jim Palmer and the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox in their season opener.

Palmer, an eight-time 20-game winner, posted his 25th career triumph and fifth in six opening day assignments, with relief help from Tim Stoddard. Palmer worked seven innings, allowing two runs on six hits, striking out four and walking four.

White Sox starter Steve Trout was the loser in the game played in 40-degree weather under cloudy skies.

Al Bumbry opened the game with a looping double to left. Mark Belanger followed with a sacrifice bunt but was safe at first when Lamar Johnson dropped Trout's throw for an error.

After Ken Singleton was hit by a pitch to load the bases, Murray doubled to left two runs. Singleton scored on a balk by Trout and Murray came in on an infield out by Doug DeCinces.

The Orioles added a run in the second on a triple by Rick Dempsey and a sacrifice by Bumbry.

Palmer had a four-hit shutout going into the seventh before Chicago scored a pair of runs on a two-out single by Alan Banister and a throwing error by Dempsey.

The White Sox added a run in the eighth off Stoddard on an error by Orioles second baseman Rich Dauer.

Salukis look for revenge against ISU

Saluki outfielder Jerry Miller, who hit a grand slam homer last weekend at Louisville, will be one of many SIU players counted on for strong hitting during this weekend's three-game series with Indiana State at Abe Martin Field.

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Considering that the SIU baseball team has defeated Indiana State 33 of the 37 times the two teams have met, some people might wonder why the Salukis are considering this weekend's three-game series at Abe Martin crucial.

SIU Coach Itchy Jones and his players not only consider the 17-12 Sycamores a tough team, but the 10-8 Salukis also are out for some revenge.

Two of ISU's four victories against SIU came last season in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, which knocked the Salukis out of contention for a College World Series appearance. Jones said because of last season's MVC tournament and the proximity of the two schools, a good rivalry exists.

"We like to play against Indiana State," Jones said. "Even though we've won most of the games, they've been good, close ones."

"It should be a good series, a chance to see one another before the Valley tournament, and of course, a chance to get a little even," Jones added.

"SIU has become a much better team in recent years. Their program has greatly improved," he said. "They play a strong schedule, which means they get better all the time."

One person who knows how much the Sycamores have improved is Coach Bob Warn. An SIU graduate and native of Crystal Lake, Warn credits his club's recent success with helping to kindle an SIU-ISU rivalry.

"We enjoy playing SIU any time," Warn said. "Some of our games in the past few seasons have the kind of games fans love. 3-2 games with great defense. No one really enjoys watching a 15-0 romp. People want to see close, exciting games."

"In the past, SIU dominated us completely, but things have changed," he said. "Everyone in the nation has gotten stronger and things are more balanced out, making it hard for one or two teams to always be on top."

"People are used to talking about Indiana State basketball or football, but now baseball is being talked about," Warn added.

Ironically, Warn said it has been basketball and other sports which have helped to develop ISU's baseball program.

"Having people like Larry Bird and Kurt Thomas get national attention certainly hasn't done us any harm," he said. "Of course, we've done a whole lot on our own, too."

"About 85 percent of our schedule is now against top-notch teams like the Salukis and the schools up in Michigan," Warn said. "We've done a great deal to make baseball a big spectator sport at home."

The Sycamores now play in a new stadium which will have lights installed in the near future.

Like Jones, Warn sees this weekend's series as important for both clubs.

"These three games will give us a chance to compare ourselves to SIU and see how well we're progressing," Warn said. "The games are important because three wins are three wins, but the series might lose some of its edge because we'll play again at the Valley tour-

Thinclads seek second straight win at Murray St.

A sore but enthusiastic women's track team will be looking for its second straight victory when it travels to Murray Ky., for the Murray State Invitational Saturday.

Coach Claudia Blackman said her team is a little sore because of the last two meets and this week's hard workouts, but added that the team will be ready Saturday.

"Everybody is going to be up for this meet," Blackman said.

"This is the last week to qualify for the Drake Relays."

It will be the second time in the past three years SIU has attended the Murray State meet. In 1978, the Salukis finished fourth behind Western Kentucky, Murray State and Illinois State. Last year, the Salukis went to the Illinois Invitational, but decided to return to Murray State because of the calmer winds and warmer temperatures, Blackman said.

Memphis State won last year's meet out of a field of 12 teams and should be in the running for this year's title because of its strong group of sprinters, Blackman said.

The coach said she was not sure what other teams were going to be at the meet, but added that she is certain it will be a competitive field.

"I think we have a chance to win this meet," Blackman said. "I feel like we're in the ballpark with any of them."

There will be a few changes in SIU's lineup, Blackman said. Lindy Nelson will be back in the 5,000-meter run, but she also will be on the new two-mile relay team. Other members of the two-mile squad will be Cathy Chiarello, Nola Putman and Cindy Clausen.

Blackman said the new combination of runners in the two-mile relay could result in a new SIU record. The current record of 9:37.6 was set at Illinois State in 1978 by Ronnie Vaccaro, Moe Allmendinger, Peggy Evans and Chiarello.

Blackman said a revised 440-yard relay team also could break a school record. The team of Marla Harrison, Elizabeth Shoaff, Carmen Cannon and Patricia Cole would have to run the relay under 49.9, the record set in 1978 by Donna Bushelle, Harrison, Rhonda Kinchlow and Grace Lloyd at McAndrew Stadium.

An SIU domed stadium: Save it for a rainy day

Editor's note: The following is an imaginary conversation between a pair of SIU students. Although the dialogue is imaginary, who's to say something similar to this hasn't taken place this spring?

Deep in the heart of Schneider Tower sit two members of the "Hill Gang," that group of SIU baseball fans famous for its consumption of Busch, Olympia and various other liquid beverages. It's a Saturday afternoon, and the two students should be out watching a Saluki double-header.

Into each SIU baseball season, however, a little (or a lot) of rain must fall. Such is the case on this particular Saturday. The two fans stare glumly out the dorm room window, gazing drearily at the dreary sky. On a table sits a cooler full of beer.

"It just has to rain every time we have a home baseball game," one of the fans says, opening a bottle of beer while he talks. "This happens every spring."

"Yeah," the other fan mutters. "The weather's always nice while the team is out of town, but once Itchy Jones and his boys get back to SIU, Carbondale turns into the rainiest place this side of Portland, Ore."

"Surely there must be some way SIU could build a domed stadium for its baseball team," Fan No. 1 says, draining his bottle. "The team deserves it. It wins 80 percent of its games every year. Heck, the Houston Astros have a dome, and they've never won a pennant."

"Our dome could have astroturf and all those other modern things," dreams Fan No. 2. "Astroturf may contribute to knee injuries, but at least it doesn't die or get wet like Abe Martin Field's grass."

"The stadium would need one of those fancy scoreboards to replace the one at Abe Martin, which has half of its lights burnt out," adds Fan No. 2. "Our scoreboard could flash instant replays, shoot fireworks and do most everything but show the score."

"As for the seating, all the chairs are to be padded and reclining. None of this bleacher garbage," says Fan No. 1, popping open his fourth brew. "Of course, there couldn't be a Hill, but to keep the tradition alive, they could serve free beer to anyone who sits behind first base."

"Sounds like a great idea," responds Fan No. 2. "Of course, this stadium would have to be used for other sports besides baseball. You can play just about anything inside a domed stadium."

"You are right, Budweiser Breath," says Fan No. 1. "The football team needs a new stadium, so it could play there in the fall. SIU fans will watch football anywhere girls can be passed up to the top row."

"Since Lew Hartzog has wanted an indoor track for years, a track could be installed around the field. And with Title IX and everything, the University can't afford to be sexist, so the women's softball, track and field hockey teams also will be allowed to perform there."

"This canopied Coliseum will bring national recognition to SIU," continues Fan No. 1 as he starts on his second six-pack. "We'll be famous. Even the Chicago newspapers will notice."

Fan No. 2 smiles at this thought, but suddenly, the smile turns into a frown.

"There's just one liiiiiiiiitle problem with this whole thing," he says.

"What's that?"

"Money," answers Fan No. 2. "With inflation and the fact that SIU is short of cash as it is, there's no way the University could shell out a few hundred million for a domed stadium."

"I never thought of that," Fan No. 1 says, sobering up quickly. "I'm not sure there's enough money around here to build a nice doghouse."

"Aw, it's not that bad," says Fan No. 2, smiling. "It wouldn't be SIU baseball without the fish air, the wind, real grass, real dirt and, of course, the Hill."

"Well, I guess you're right," Fan No. 1 says. "It would be a shame to change the way SIU baseball is now when everyone has so much fun. And the Salukis don't need a concrete-and-steel monster to play winning baseball. No, I'll take things the way they are, rainouts and all."
