Assistant coach faces rough recruiting task

by Mike Frey
Sports Editor

Herman Williams faces an unenviable task in the wake of Allen Van Winkle's resignation.

Williams, an assistant coach for the men's basketball team under Van Winkle for the past four years, has accepted the responsibility of coordinating the program along with Assistant Men's Athletic Director Bruce McCutcheon until a new coach can be found.

"I'm willing to handle the responsibility and right now, I'm trying to keep recruiting," Williams said in an interview at his office Monday afternoon. "But I think it's important to decide on a coach before too long."

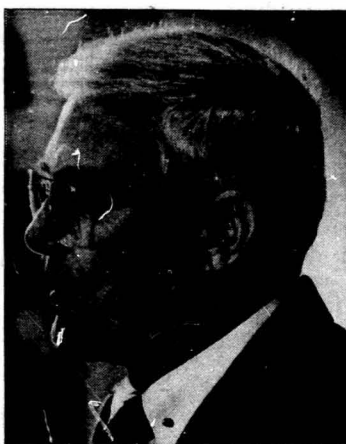

The search for a new coach will be delayed, however, until the university's internal investigation of apparent NCAA violations is completed. No timetable has been set for the completion of the investigation.

Dean Stuck, SIU-C special assistant for intercollegiate athletics, named Williams and McCutcheon to coordinate the men's basketball program on an interim basis at a press conference Tuesday morning.

"He (Williams) said he's glad to accept the responsibility," Stuck said. "McCutcheon will assist Williams on the administrative side."

Herman Williams

Stuck said Williams will handle the duties of head basketball coach until a replacement is found. Williams' responsibilities will include recruiting, and Stuck said he is free to sign players to scholarship offers.

Williams is the only member of Van Winkle's three-man staff who hasn't resigned. Assistant Stafford Stephenson resigned Thursday after admitting to apparent NCAA violations regarding cash payments to center Kenny Perry.

Ultimately, Williams must deal with these problems, but his first task is to coordinate the Salukis' recruiting efforts. The national letter-of-intent day is Wednesday, and SIU-C has failed to secure a commitment from any recruit despite having seven scholarships to offer.

That leaves Williams in a precarious position because the Salukis are losing six seniors from a 14-14 team. Williams admitted that it will be difficult to recruit because of the controversy surrounding the program.

"This put a big scar in recruiting, and it's pretty bleak at this time," Williams said. "But we might get lucky and sign one or two recruits."

Williams said the events that led Van Winkle's resignation caught him by surprise. He said he wasn't aware of the payments to Perry, but was unsure if Van Winkle knew.

"I was happy to have the opportunity to work with Coach Van Winkle and Coach Stephenson," he said. "But that's something you'll have to ask him. I had no knowledge of it."

Williams said he didn't think players other than Perry were also paid, but he didn't rule out the possibility.

"If there's any more players who've been paid I'd be surprised," Williams said.

Williams said he enjoyed working under Van Winkle, who he described as a "great coach." But Williams also said he would never "work for that type of man again."

Van Winkle was known for keeping a tight rein on his assistants, something that Williams said he tolerated because he wanted to keep his job.

New faculty salary distribution plan OK'd

By David Liss
Staff Writer

The annual hassle of figuring out how to distribute faculty salary raises will be eliminated with a recently approved increase distribution plan, Faculty Senate President Lawrence Dennis said Tuesday.

The new, more permanent faculty salary distribution plan was approved in a combined meeting of the Faculty Senate and Graduate Council.

The plan will remain in effect for five years, which means the senate and council will "not have to go through the hassle" of deciding how to distribute salary increases every year, Dennis said.

The plan calls for a 3 percent across-the-board salary increase every year if the money is available. Any increase above 3 percent will be distributed through merit increases, according to the plan.

The plan works on the basis of a percentage increase rather than a specific dollar amount increase, which allows those with higher salaries to receive a greater increase.

James Smith, a joint committee member, said that according to an Illinois Board of Higher Education study, those with the rank of instructor at SIU-C have an average salary 4 percent above the average of similar institutions, but full professors have a salary 12 percent below that average.

"Across-the-board percentage raises are not a sensible method of distributing salary increases," senate member John Gregory said in a report to the senate and council.

To deal with inequalities, 0.5 percent of the total amount available must be used for equity adjustments, according to the plan.

"I don't think that 0.5 percent is enough" for equity, said John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs. Guyon was part of the five member joint committee which put the plan together.

However, he said considering the need to "balance resources, 0.5 percent is a modest effort" towards equity.

Evaluations of faculty are the basis for deciding who will receive merit increases, according to the plan. It is "the responsibility of the departments" to set standards for evaluation, Dennis said.

Using those standards, department heads must recommend to the deans salary increases for all faculty members in the department, according to the plan.

F-Senate passes new admissions standards

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate passed a resolution by a 12-6-1 vote Tuesday to upgrade admission standards in theory at SIU-C by fall 1990, but in reality the new standards wouldn't deviate much from current standards.

If the resolution is approved by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw and the Board of Trustees, it will become University policy.

The resolution calls for the University to require freshmen to have completed high school courses specified by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to be eligible for admission. However, the resolution offers alternative admission requirements for those who haven't completed the courses and excludes certain populations from the requirements.

The exceptions to the rule would keep admission standards at SIU-C about the same as current standards, which are based on high school achievement measured by class rank and standardized test scores.

Under the resolution, freshmen entering baccalaureate programs must qualify under admission standards comparable to the current standards as well as complete certain high school courses. They are four years of English, three years of math, science and social studies and two years of electives in foreign language, art, music or vocational studies.

But students who meet class rank and score requirements

Japan's trade measures called 'a big yawn'

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan unveiled measures Tuesday to open its lucrative markets to foreign goods and Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone warned of "a terrible depression" unless the nation reduces its huge trade surplus with the United States.

Although the market-opening measures had been highly touted by the Japanese media, one U.S. official dismissed it as a "big yawn" and said it was a step backward in making Japan's key telecommunications market more accessible to American firms.

A Japanese official contended the market-opening package, the seventh announced by Japan in four years, was "not really a new trade package" but a summary of concessions made in recent trade talks with the United States.

With Japan's trade surplus with the United States at $37 billion and trade frictions worsening between the allies, both chambers of Congress have passed a non-binding resolution urging President Reagan to restrict Japanese imports unless Japan provides further access to American goods.

The Senate Finance Committee also approved last week a bill that would require the administration to curb Japanese imports — using tariffs, quotas or other means — unless Japan ends restrictive trade practices.

"We won't be able to sell our cars, our videos or our machines in the United States if Japan doesn't reduce its massive American trade surplus," he said. "I ask all of you to be on the lookout for foreign products when you visit the supermarket or department store."

Libel verdict reinstated against Washington Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Tuesday reinstated a libel verdict against the Washington Post, saying the newspaper had a "reckless disregard" for the truth in an article about former Mobil Oil Corp. President William Tavoulares. The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, in a 2-1 decision, said evidence introduced at the libel trial was sufficient to show the Post held "actual malice" toward Tavoulares when an article was published saying he used his position at Mobil Oil to set up his son in a lucrative business.

O'Neill, Gromyko discuss U.S. Soviet relations

MOSCOW (UPI) — Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and a delegation of congressmen led by House Speaker Tip O'Neill discussed superpower relations Tuesday during a meeting described by the Americans as heated, but healthy. The official Soviet Tass news agency said Gromyko stressed that Washington's rejection of the Soviet initiative to freeze deployment of medium-range missiles was a major obstacle to improved superpower relations.

Car bomb detonates near Israeli checkpoint

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A teenage guerrilla detonated a car packed with explosives near an Israeli checkpoint in southern Lebanon Tuesday, killing two Israeli soldiers and wounding two others, the Israeli military said. The teenager drove a Peugeot 504 automobile packed with some 440 pounds of TNT into a group of Israeli soldiers and vehicles on a road between the villages of Bater and Jezzine, 23 miles southeast of Beirut, the Lebanese National Resistance Front guerrilla group said.

High death toll expected in Andean landslide

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Search crews recovered the bodies of seven peasants Tuesday and searched for 70 others feared killed in an Easter Sunday landslide that smothered the Andean town of Colcabamba in 4-and-a-half feet of mud. Police said the death toll was expected to climb. Local news reports said as many as 150 people were killed, but a Civil Defense spokesman denied the reports. Civil Defense officials said rescue crews had recovered seven bodies by early Tuesday. They denied an earlier police report that 16 bodies were found.

Senator, crew prepare for shuttle countdown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Utah Sen. Jake Garn and six crewmates flew Tuesday to the Kennedy Space Center for the start of the shuttle Discovery's countdown to blastoff Friday on an on-delayed satellite-launching mission. Discovery's countdown was set to begin at 1 a.m. Wednesday. If all goes well, it will end at 7:04 a.m. Friday with the spaceship's thundering launch on the 16th shuttle mission.

Sergeant claims blacks shot without warning

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A white police sergeant testified Tuesday that no warning was given before members of his police unit opened fire on a crowd of about 4,000 blacks in the southern town of Uitengage March 21, killing at least 19. Sporadic violence continued in the Uitengage area, 540 miles south of Johannesburg with police reporting four houses, a beerhall, a church hall and a school were set ablaze by black rioters in a 24-hour period up to noon Tuesday.

Jewel closes dairy plant; salmonella linked to deaths

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The largest outbreak of salmonella food poisoning in U.S. history may have caused the deaths of two of the 1,500 people stricken in five states, health officials said Tuesday. Jewel Companies Inc. officials indefinitely closed its Hillfarm Dairy Monday night and withdrew all milk from its Jewel and Eisner food stores after a second brand of milk processed at the dairy was suspected of salmonella contamination.

Salmonella investigation results in milk recall

CHICAGO (UPI) — An investigation into a salmonella poisoning outbreak blamed for more than 2,000 reported cases in five states expanded Tuesday to another brand of milk and to the death of a woman being treated for the disease. Officials from Jewel Companies Inc. also ordered all 2 percent milk brands removed from its Jewel and Eisner food store shelves, including its Hillfarm and Bluebrook brands, while the investigation continues. Jewel also urged customers to throw away opened milk and ask their stores for a refund.

Student to run for trustee although ineligible

By Karen J. Berger
Staff Writer

"Larry for student trustee" will shine through stenciled letters on darkened windows on the west side of Neely Hall's 13th, 14th and 15th floors if Larry Geiler, who is running as a write-in candidate for student trustee, gets the approval of 40 residents whose dorm room windows would be decorated.

"So far I've received remarkable cooperation," Geiler said Tuesday about his first campaign promotion for student trustee as well as his first test of persuasive speaking, which he says is a necessary trait of a trustee.

However, Leo Math, chairman of the student trustee election commission, said Tuesday that Geiler wouldn't qualify under election laws because he has not been enrolled at SIU-C for a year.

"IF ELECTED, he won't be able to serve," Math said. After being informed of his ineligibility Tuesday, Geiler said he plans to run for student trustee anyway. Undergraduate Student Organization President Andy Leighton needs an opponent and students need to get involved with the election, Geiler said.

Geiler transferred to SIU-C this semester as a junior in journalism and public relations. He decided to enter the student trustee race late last week after he realized Leighton was the only candidate.

"I did support Andy, but I still believe in the integrity of an election," Geiler said. He said he was the second student to sign Leighton's candidate petition. "My campaign efforts are going to reflect my efforts as trustee, and Leighton's will reflect his."

MATH AND GEILER concurred that Geiler was going to run as an official candidate, but later decided against it. Geiler said he thought somebody else who was qualified had petitioned to run against Leighton. Math claims that Geiler withdrew because he knew he was ineligible at the time.

Geiler, whose name won't appear on the student trustee ballot, said he will campaign until the student trustee election on April 18. Geiler is also running for USO West Side senator, but says the trustee race is more important to him because it offers him a chance to serve more people.

A student trustee's job is not to represent only students, Geiler said, but to represent faculty members, SIU alumni, as well as Illinois citizens.

GEILER TRANSFERRED from Central Missouri State University, where he studied for two years. As a student there, Geiler said, he helped to write a detailed description of the duties of student trustees in Missouri as well as several newspaper articles about the position. For the last three years, Geiler said, he has professionally lobbied with national and state student organizations, such as the United States Student Association.

"I think I'm definitely a competitor," Geiler said. "I am definitely qualified."

Geiler said that as a member of the Board of Trustees he would help determine the direction of SIU's long-term policies that would serve the purpose of the University.

GEILER SAID HE wouldn't interfere with decisions about the University's daily operations, which are the responsibility of the University presidents and constituency groups. "He (Leighton) wouldn't be able to shift gears."

Also, Geiler said, students must understand that the mission of the board is not to raise tuition or cut budgets and programs, but to approve or disapprove recommendations already made by the University administration and constituency groups.

Though Geiler is not recognized as an official candidate, he says he has the interest, the leadership skills and the loyalty to university systems to be a viable student trustee.

GEILER AND LEIGHTON agreed early Tuesday that a debate would be beneficial to the election. "I would enjoy the prospect of having someone to debate," Leighton said. "It would definitely make things more interesting."

"I don't know who Larry Geiler is, where he came from or what his intentions are," said Leighton, who at the time was not aware that Geiler was ineligible under election laws.

Leighton is scheduled to campaign at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballroom D. Geiler said if he is given the opportunity he will also speak Wednesday night.

Students run write-in campaign for USO slots

Editor's note: This is the last in a series of profiles on USO presidential and vice presidential candidates.

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

Stuart Lowrey and Mark Skowronski won't appear on the ballot April 18, but they said they won't let that stop them from running for USO president and vice president.

Lowrey, senior in accounting, and Skowronski, junior in electrical engineering technology, are running a write-in campaign for the Undergraduate Student Organization positions after missing a March 19 deadline to petition for their names to appear on the ballot.

LOWREY SAID he thinks the petition deadline was poorly publicized. A large number of senatorial candidates in this year's race are also write-ins, which Lowrey said lends credence to his assertion.

As a USO senator, Skowronski was aware of the deadline, but said he was not interested in running with any of the groups that were filing at the time.

Lowrey approached Skowronski to run as his vice president a week ago Monday, Skowronski said, and he agreed.

"I SAW THAT Stuart had a good head on his shoulders. He knew what he was talking about and had his thoughts organized," Skowronski said.

Although a latecomer to the campaign and a newcomer to USO, Lowrey has some definite ideas about the USO and what he would like to accomplish if elected president.

There are two main things at issue in this year's campaign, according to Lowrey: student participation in the USO and the need for USO to pick projects that would be "of benefit to students and within the means of USO to accomplish."

SKOWRONSKI AGREED that USO projects should be more carefully chosen.

"There has been a trend over the last few years for the campaigning parties to promise the world and maybe do one or two things," Skowronski said.

"Candidates should not promise things they've done no research on," he added.

Skowronski indicated that he believes transit systems proposed by both the Phoenix and Independent Parties would not be feasible.

Another issue Skowronski said he finds most important is what he called the "inefficient" use of student activity fees.

"THOUSANDS OF dollars have been put toward programs that students have seen no benefit from," he said.

"Over $1,500 was lost on the book co-op," Skowronski said.

Skowronski is chairman of the USO finance committee, which proposes all fee allocations to the senate.

Lowrey and Skowronski said they think current management of the USO is "inefficient" and that they would like the chance to change it.

On the other hand, Lowrey and Skowronski said that the voter registration drive and the USO's charitable work are examples of programs that have worked well and should be continued.

THE USO SHOULD be an organization students can both benefit from and have an impact on, they said.

"USO's main purpose is to listen to students and be there for them," Lowrey said.

If elected, Lowrey stressed that he believed his would be a very open and honest administration.

"There will be no false promises," Lowrey said. "We'll look into everything and work 120 percent on those things we can do."

BOTH LOWREY AND Skowronski expressed a willingness to initiate research if students came to them with suggestions.

Although he has no previous USO experience, Lowrey said he has held leadership positions in a wide variety of clubs and "successful" organizations. Most recently, Lowrey was president of Alpha Kappa Psi, a business fraternity.

The two write-in candidates acknowledged that the status of their candidacy will make the road to victory a difficult one. Not only is it a disadvantage that their names will not appear on the ballot, but according to current USO election commission rules, write-in votes must be correctly spelled.

Full investigation of program needed

THE UNIVERSITY AND SURROUNDING COMMUNITY must now suffer through the embarrassment and disappointment of rebuilding its men's basketball program.

Even with the resignation of men's head basketball coach Allen Van Winkle and an assistant, the chances are that getting rid of the principle characters involved will change little unless it can be determined that the entire athletics department is clean. The troubles with the men's basketball program cast doubt on the credibility of the entire athletics department.

Only a thorough investigation conducted by Special Assistant for Intercollegiate Athletics Dean Stuck and the NCAA can cleanse the SIU-C Athletics Department of lingering suspicion.

Here in Southern Illinois, college sports programs have prided themselves on being above the kind of win-at-all-costs attitude that the larger, more competitive schools seem to operate by.

WHAT SEEMS TO BE LOST IN THIS TREND toward professionalizing college sports — particularly football and basketball — is the basic notion that college sports are, after all, amateur. The emphasis at an institution of higher learning shouldn't be so much on winning, as on teaching the value of the sport ethic.

Perhaps university administrations, athletic departments and fund-raising bodies should keep that in mind the next time they're tempted to look the other way or condone improper behavior in college athletes.

Stuck has his hands full. New in his position as special assistant, Stuck may find it difficult sorting out fact from fiction, once an investigation has begun. SIU-C President Albert Somit should make it a point to assist Stuck in any way possible.

The future of the program is now in doubt. A full-scale investigation of the entire athletics program is needed if the taint of impropriety is ever to wash clean of SIU-C athletics. But in the larger scheme of things, a change in attitude toward the purpose of college athletics in general is needed if future such problems are to be avoided.

Student apathy self-evident Yuppie syndrome setting in

In view of the exceptionally low student voter turnout in the Carbondale General Consolidated Election, (8 percent in the "towers" precinct, 2.7 percent in the Lewis Park precinct and 10 percent in the Thompson Point precinct), I must comment.

Although it is somewhat understandable that a student would not feel as if he or she is part of the Carbondale community because of their short stint here, indeed they are a part of this community.

This very community was the scene of intense student activism just a few years ago. Many of the privileges new students enjoy are the result of student intervention in SIU-C and Carbondale policy making. Student activism was strong at universities all across the nation in the 60s and the 70s and Carbondale was the scene of intense political efforts on the part of students who demanded more out of life and the democratic system.

Considerable influence over decisions which affect students every day could be wielded if the students realized the power they could have. The right to vote should be a treasured privilege in a democratic society and exercised. Today's students are apathetic, ill-informed and intent on obtaining wealth.

While the student voice of the 60s and the 70s might be criticized by some as being single-issue and self-serving, at least the 18-year-old vote was won and the sentiment of a nation ended the war in Vietnam.

Perhaps when the new Neophyte Yuppies are drafted into combat in Nicaragua or El Salvador, or any other "hot spot" Reagan and friends deem necessary to protect vital U.S. interests, the students will mobilize.

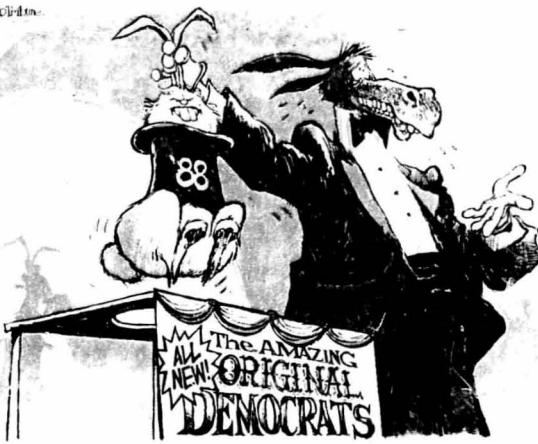

As it is, they didn't when they lost the right to consume alcohol, some civil liberties (search and seizure law) and the right to have abortions on demand.

Wake up students. You have been lulled into political complacency by a society and a president that is telling you that everything is all right with this country. It isn't. Make a difference. Vote! — Valeri Decastris, graduate student, Geography.

Search for woman reminiscent of old, seedy detective movies

PLAYING DETECTIVE is a part of a newspaperman's job. So I was intrigued when a Chicagoan named Jim walked in off the street with a mystery he wanted solved.

While driving his car that day, he had seen a door of a car ahead of him open slightly, and a black purse fall out. The car kept going, speeding up a ramp leading to an expressway.

Jim stopped and picked up the purse. He opened it and was stunned to find an envelope stuffed with money — singles, fives, tens, twenties and a few hundred-dollar bills. It came to $1,200.

He also found several letters from Poland to a woman at a Chicago address. And, issued to the same woman, was a Polish driver's license.

Jim, who wanted his name withheld, said: "I'd just like this woman to get her purse and money back."

Her address is on the letters. Why not go there yourself?

"I JUST DID. It's an apartment building, but nobody answered her bell."

Why not turn it over to the police?

"Well, she's from Poland and maybe she's overstayed her visa and is here illegally, so I don't want to bring the police in it. Could you find her?" Sure.

A search of the purse turned up a business card for a nearby tavern and another card for a Polish restaurant.

At the restaurant, the pierogis and kielbasa were excellent, but none of the waitresses, cooks or the bartender recognized the picture on the Polish drivers license.

"Why you want her?" a plump waitress asked.

WE TOLD HER about the contents of the lost purse.

Her eyes gleamed and she said: "You leave purse with me. If she come in, I give her." (Those immigrants learn the American way fast.)

We moved on to the tavern. A guy named Chester said: "She looks familiar. Yeah, I think I remember her. Uh, are you buying a round?"

Obviously, he had watched old detective movies. We bought a round for Chester. And another. Pretty soon everybody in the place said they thought they might know her, so we bought a round for the whole joint.

Finally, Chester said: "Yeah, I remember now. I think she tended bar in a place down the street."

We went to the other bar. A guy named Joe studied the picture. To jog his memory, we bought him a round. Joe's friends looked, too. We bought them a round.

"Yeah, she looks something like my sister, who tends bar for me sometimes," Joe finally said. "But she ain't my sister."

AFTER A FEW more neighborhood bars failed to turn up leads, we found ourselves in an all-night coffee shop examining the final clue in the purse. It was a couple of tickets for a musical with a receipt. The receipt from the theater box office was in the name of a man. It was a common name, like Jones or Smith, with an address on Anderson Street. We looked in the phone book. Nobody by that name was at an address on Anderson Street. We called it a night.

The next morning, I phoned Jim, the good Samaritan, and suggested that I give the purse to the cops. Not that they'd have any more success than I did, but at least they'd have the purse if the woman reported it missing.

So, two young detectives — a man and a woman in blue jeans — came by for the purse.

"I think this is a real toughy," I said. "I've run down all the leads. Hoofed all over the Polish neighborhood. Dead ends."

The young cops nodded and said: "We'll do what we can." A half hour later, they called and said: "We found her. She's on her way in."

I WENT TO the police station to meet her. She didn't speak English. Her boyfriend did, but he'd been consuming that shopping list and was a bit blurry. However, he managed to explain that the woman didn't trust banks and the $1,200 was her life's savings.

I asked the cops how they tracked her down so quickly.

"The receipt for those theater tickets. The address was on Anderson Street, right? Well, there's no Anderson Street in Chicago. So we figured that somebody in the theater office misunderstood the phone order and wrote down Anderson instead of something like Henderson. So we looked for that name on Henderson, and, bingo, there he was in the phone book. He's the woman's boyfriend. They live together. That was it."

That's the trouble with the young cops today. They don't watch enough old detective movies.

Liquor Board levies fines against Gatsby's, The Club

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

Two Carbondale bars have been fined, instead of having their liquor licenses suspended, for selling liquor to underage people.

The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission, which is also the City Council, Monday fined Gatsby's Billiards, 608 S. Illinois Ave., $1,500 for two incidents of selling liquor to people under 21 years old.

The Club, 408 S. Illinois Ave., was fined $250 for one underage liquor sale. This is the first time fines have been levied for liquor violations since they were devised by the city last year.

The fines were suggested by Assistant City Attorney Barbara Colvin and Guice Strong, the attorney representing the liquor license holders, provided the license holders plead guilty to the charges.

Strong changed pleas of not guilty to guilty for JPW Inc., the license holder for Gatsby's, as well as for DJI Inc., the license holder for The Club.

The first Gatsby's violation occurred on Jan. 13 when a Carbondale police officer saw a bartender sell beer to a 20-year-old patron.

Strong told the commission that the sale of liquor to an underage bar patron was a mistake on the part of the bartender. Colvin recommended a $1,000 fine, the maximum amount possible.

The second violation at Gatsby's involved the sale of beer to a 19-year-old customer. A Carbondale police officer witnessed the sale on Jan. 25.

A $500 fine was recommended because the customer had a hand stamped by the doorman indicating he was 21. The stamp was acquired by using false identification.

Strong tried to convince the commission that selling liquor to people under 21 is not a common practice at Gatsby's. He said Gatsby's has only had one underage violation in four years after having three violations in 1980.

Commissioner Patrick Kelley said he "would feel much better imposing a suspension," as opposed to a fine. A motion by Kelley to have the bar closed for five days, failed to come to a vote because another commissioner did not second the motion. Kelley later voted in favor of the fines.

Commissioner Neil Dillard said he favors using fines because they punish the owner while still allowing the bar to remain open and able to meet its commitments.

There was little opposition to imposing a $250 fine on The Club. A bartender was caught by police selling liquor to an underage person on Jan. 28. Strong said the fine was adequate since the bar was destroyed by fire in February.

The commission delayed setting a date for suspending the liquor license of T.J.'s Watering Hole, 315 S. Illinois Ave. The commission in February found the license holder guilty of selling liquor to an underage person. The owners of the bar have appealed the ruling to Illinois State Liquor Commission.

COACH: Rough recruiting task ahead

"He was responsible for his program," he said. "He would tell me to do something, and I'd do it."

Williams said that this did not include supervising cash payments to players, however.

Williams has roots at SIU-C dating before the Van Winkle era. He was an assistant and the top recruiter under the late Paul Lambert from 1974-1978. He left SIU-C along with Lambert to become an assistant at Auburn University. He returned to SIU-C when Van Winkle was named head coach in 1981.

He played an integral part in helping the 1976-77 Saluki team advance to the semifinals of the NCAA Midwest Regionals. Williams was primarily responsible for recruiting guard Mike Glenn to SIU-C, the Salukis' top player that year.

Because of his background, Williams could be considered a candidate for the head coaching job once the investigation is completed. But Williams said he was unsure if he would take the job if it were offered to him.

"I wouldn't take the job immediately," he said. "We'd have to sit down and iron some things out."

"I hope they're able to make a decision soon. I'd like to get support back from the University and Southern Illinois. It's hard to recruit when a player doesn't know who his coach is going to be."

Williams, 40, was raised in Birmingham, Ala. He earned bachelor's degree at Dillard University in New Orleans and a master's degree from the University of South Alabama.

STANDARDS: Requirements passed

and lack required courses would be admitted to Undergraduate Academic Services where they would be advised to complete the courses.

Veterans, people who graduated from high school before 1989 and students who graduated from high schools that didn't offer the courses would be excluded from the course work requirements.

Griffin said even if the University were to start requiring specific high school courses for admission, the quality of the students admitted wouldn't necessarily be better. He said, however, the requirements would limit education to certain groups.

Griffin said the committee added the course work requirements to the admission standards to urge high school students to take education more seriously, "but we also added exceptions to allow us to do exactly what we're doing now."

Glassblowing work shown at Allyn Hall

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

Glasswork of all colors, shapes and sizes is on display at the fourth annual Southern Glasswork exhibit at Allyn Hall.

A crystal goblet, vases, bowls and other creatively-shaped pieces of glasswork are among the 30 pieces on display.

"The goblet is a big selling item at some shows. This one is Mark Fowler's," said glassblower John Olson, as he pointed to the goblet. "He's got it down to a science."

"I've seen some things go for $30 or $40, some maybe even $75," Olson said.

Students of all majors contributed glasswork to the exhibit. No prerequisites are necessary to register for the beginners course in glassblowing, Olson said.

Glassblowing is a hobby for some people and a career for others.

"Beginners start with flat glass. Then, if they show promise in their work they start blowing glass and helping people," he said. "As they become more advanced, beginners help them."

There are now 12 students in the glassblowing class.

The Bud Series is a collection of vases created by glassblower John Cain. They were blown into bud-shaped forms and colored in the glassblowing process with swirly designs. Cain's technique is one of many involving different skills, Olson said.

Pointing to a long, narrow vase, Olson said, "This piece was placed on a pipe and swung. This creates a centrifugal force which pulls the glass out."

The glassblowing process begins by dipping a long rod into the 2,500 degree heating unit and attaching a small amount of glass to the end.

From here the process involves heating, cooling, blowing, shaping, swinging and dipping the glass back into the heating unit. Air and water cool the finished piece and help keep its shape.

The glassblowing program at SIU-C was started in the 1970s and has grown slowly because of the equipment expense.

Railroad line abandonment approved by commission

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

The U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission last week reversed one of its previous decisions and gave its approval to the abandonment of 31 miles of railroad line from Carbondale to Campbell Hill, an aide of Sen. Paul Simon said Tuesday.

The mayor of Murphysboro, however, said Tuesday that his town will probably appeal the decision.

David Carle, transportation aide to the senator, said that the decision, which was first announced Monday evening, had come about as the result of an appeal by Illinois Central Gulf Railroad, the owner of the rail line.

A judge of the ICC had ruled in January of this year that the rail line could not be abandoned as the result of a four-day hearing organized in November of 1984 by the prompting of then-U.S. Rep. Simon. Last week's decision overturned that ruling.

The ICC announced its intention to abandon the line in July 1984 after it had determined that the line did "not generate enough traffic to support itself." ICG public relations person Cathy Westphel said.

The abandonment is part of an ongoing program of the ICG to either abandon or sell unprofitable rail lines, Westphel said.

"We are not adverse to selling it, but obviously no one wants to buy it," Westphel said of the Carbondale to Campbell Hill line.

Westphel said that the ICG is pleased with the latest ICC ruling.

Simon intervened in August, Carle said, with the intention of facilitating the sale of the line.

Great American Tours on Rails, a Cincinnati company, expressed a great deal of interest in buying the line last fall with the intention of continuing operation of a freight service.

GATOR, however, had said that the sale price for the line was too high.

Alfred Nippert, president of GATOR, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Carle said that along with its decision, the ICC also lowered the sale price for the rail line, from approximately $2.4 million to $1.8 million.

"That makes it easier for us to find a purchaser," Carle said.

Mayor Sydney Appleton of Murphysboro, who had submitted testimony against the abandonment at hearings in November, said Tuesday that the new rail line price is probably still higher than what GATOR would like.

However, Appleton said that a new potential purchaser has been found for a seven-mile short line running through Murphysboro which is part of the 31-mile route.

"We're vitally interested in the short line because we'll lose all rail coming into the city without it," Appleton said.

Appleton also said that in discussions with his city attorney since the new ruling was announced, he's become "sure that we'll put in an appeal of the decision."

Playwrights tell of script rejections

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Glen DeCosta and Mary Watson know all about the tribulations of a budding playwright.

DeCosta, president of the Chicago Dramatists Workshop, will tell you how the first screenplay he ever wrote was reviewed by several prominent directors and even procured him an agent — but was rejected everywhere it was sent.

Mary Watson, whose play "Lizabeth and the Beauty Queens" was produced at Chicago's Goodman Theater in 1982, has "buried" her "just awful" first play.

EVEN THE MORE successful "Lizabeth" had problems getting accepted. When Watson submitted it to the dramaturgs at the Midwest Playwrights Program, they reduced it from 113 pages to 47, eliminated two characters, and axed an entire set. But Watson says it is the best thing that ever happened to her.

"I had been taking lessons, but I needed guidance in my writing. I got to learn my strengths as a playwright," she explained.

Watson and DeCosta were at SIU-C Sunday through Tuesday to evaluate student plays and shed light on the playwrighting process.

A staged reading of DeCosta's play, "A Constant Wish," was held in the Laboratory Theater Tuesday.

BOTH ARE LIVING testimony to the saying that it is never too late to begin a new career. Thirty-five-year-old DeCosta wrote his first play only ten years ago, although he says that he "always had artistic inclinations." Until then he had been married to his high school sweetheart, who discouraged his playwrighting attempts.

"She believed in the sanctity of the forty-hour work week," commented the now-divorced DeCosta.

Watson also found family considerations a deterrent to her career. The forty-seven-year-old divorced mother of four used to write student productions while in college, but stopped after she got married. Twenty years passed until she wrote her next play in 1986.

WATSON SAID most of her plays are of a somewhat autobiographical nature, since most of them focus on middle-aged women in the throes of a personal crisis.

This choice of theme causes problems in finding theaters to produce the plays, since most audiences do not want to see plays about women over forty, she said. Watson said she also finds that the script readers who make the decisions whether to accept a play are usually "thirty years old or under."

DeCosta also has problems with script readers.

"MANY PLAYS WON'T" get to the director because the script reader doesn't have the same frame of reference. They are very caught up in the academic world; it's amazing how many of them don't know what's happening in the real world.

"I don't care if I never see a play about a poet or an actor again. I mean, a punch press operator doesn't care what happens to a poet — he's got worrying about getting laid off," DeCosta said.

DeCosta is also irritated by audiences who have their own ideas about how a play should end.

"EVERY ONCE IN A while you get pinwheel comments. Every once in a while you get someone who wants Rhett Butler to stay with Scarlett O'Hara," he groused.

DeCosta, who sees many first-time playwright productions at the dramatists' workshop, said he finds that most amateur playwrights are too issue-oriented in their approach.

"They are too issue-oriented and not enough personal-oriented," said DeCosta. "I also see a preponderance of essays; everyone wants to get up on a soapbox. It's like they stood a novel up on its feet."

Even when the playwrights use autobiographical material, DeCosta finds that they are too faithful to the facts of the event and less willing to extrapolate.

"I tell the playwrights at the workshop to take the very basics of an event, and fictionalize wildly," explained DeCosta. "Otherwise, it's just a case of 'You had to be there.'"

Musician stabs himself aboard plane

PEKING (UPI) — A musician touring with the British rock duo Wham! went berserk aboard a Chinese airliner, stabbed himself in the stomach and invaded the cockpit of the plane, sending it into a nosedive before he was subdued, it was reported Tuesday.

The musician, identified only as a Portuguese trumpeter in his early 30s named Oliveira, was under observation at a Peking hospital, Portuguese Ambassador Antonio da Costa Lobo said.

A British Embassy

spokesman said the incident took place Monday on a scheduled flight from Peking to Canton. Wham! members Andrew Ridgeley and George Michael and other members of their entourage were not aboard the aircraft at the time.

"The plane immediately returned to Peking and dropped off the man before continuing to Guangzhou (Canton)," the spokesman said.

A spokesman for the state-run Civil Aviation Administration of China confirmed that a jetliner bound for Canton had returned to Peking shortly after takeoff Monday but refused to provide further details.

Diplomats said passengers reported the Civil Aviation Administration of China (CAAC) airliner plunged into a nosedive after the man barged into the cockpit shortly after takeoff from Peking.

The crew brought the aircraft under control after the man, a member of Wham!'s back-up band, was subdued by passengers and crewmembers.

The British spokesman said

Ridgeley, Michael and their co-managers, Jazz Summers and Simon Napier-Bell, flew to Canton on a later flight.

Wham! and a supporting crew of more than 100 people arrived in China last week for two unprecedented rock concerts. More than 10,000 people attended a Sunday night performance in Peking's Workers Gymnasium.

The British spokesman said witnesses reported the man stabbed himself in the stomach before forcing his way into the cockpit.

Rea introduces state traffic bill to increase fines for violations

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Jim Rea to increase fines for moving traffic violations was heard Tuesday in the state House Transportation Committee, according to Rea.

The money generated by the $5 increase would be used to provide additional funds for local governments for emergency medical services, Rea said. He said the money is especially needed in areas that can't easily afford to buy a great deal of emergency equipment.

"This is a serious problem in many areas in the state, especially rural areas," the Democrat from Christopher said. House Bill 545 would authorize the Department of Public Health to give back the money on a prorated basis to the counties where the fine monies were collected, Rea said.

The bill would also amend the Vehicle Code, the State Finance Act and the Civil Administrative Code to allow for the fine increase.

Rea said he is not aware if similar legislation has been tried before, but that he has seen an increasing amount of interest expressed in the legislation from people in the health field from around the state.

However, Richard E. Richman, presiding judge of the Jackson County Circuit Court, disagrees with Rea's plan, calling it "just another unnecessary fine" and saying it is a way of "hoodwinking the public."

"Instead of raising taxes as they should, they're levying fines," Richman said.

Richman said that the fine would be an inconvenience both to the public and the courts, because "when people get these fines they blame the courts," not the legislature.

Kevin Buenerkemper, director of the Jackson County Ambulance Service, and Howard Long, ambulance committee chairman of the Jackson County Board, declined to comment on the bill.

Religious, medical ethics expert to speak on ethics of transplants

An expert on religious and medical ethics will lecture on "The Gift of Life: Ethical Problems in Organ Transplantation" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Lawson Hall 141.

James F. Childress, professor of religious studies and medical education at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, has written several books on moral responsibility and serves on the editorial board of "Bioethics Reporter," "Journal of Medicine and Philosophy," and "Journal of Health Politics, Policy and Law."

He often speaks on medical ethics to physicians and medical school teachers and directs a weekly panel discussion at UVA that covers topics such as treatment of defective newborns, fetal surgery and suicide. He has appeared on NBC's "Today" show twice.

Childress will also give an informal talk at noon Thursday on "From Respirators to Feeding Tubes: Is It Always Morally Obligatory to Provide Nutrition and Hydration to Dying Patients?" The talk, in Lindgren Hall 265, will be for medical students, but the public is invited.

The Leys Memorial Lecture honors Wayne A.R. Leys, professor of philosophy at SIUC from 1964 until his death in 1973. It is sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and supported by a fund started by friends of Leys and his wife, Helen.

Correction

Paul Antonacci did not resign his position as a Graduate and Professional Student Council representative last fall as reported in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

GPSC President Glenn Stolar said Antonacci is still a representative.

Elections to be held for GPSC officers

A full agenda is scheduled for the Graduate and Professional Student Council meeting 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Candidates for the officer positions for the 1985-1986 school year will present brief speeches.

Also scheduled is a discussion of a resolution recommending that student opinions become a formal part of the Board of Trustees' annual evaluation process of the chancellor and the president. The resolution also recommends that the five-year review process, which the trustees proposed to eliminate, be performed in 1986.

Summer advisement for graduate students and graduate assistant workload will also be discussed.

Swedish doctors perform artificial heart transplant

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A 52-year-old man who vowed "I'm darn well gonna make it" had his ailing heart replaced with an artificial heart pump in the first such operation performed outside the United States, doctors announced Tuesday.

Doctors at prestigious Karolinska Hospital — headquarters of the panel that awards the Nobel Prize for medicine — announced the operation after the patient was taken off a respirator.

A team of a dozen doctors implanted the U.S.-made Jarvik-7 heart in the Swedish patient during a 10-hour operation Sunday. It was the world's fourth artificial heart implant and the first performed outside the United States.

Officials said the patient — who asked that his name be withheld — had a history of cardiac arrests but was too weak to undergo a heart transplant.

Hospital officials said that before being wheeled into the operating room, the man vowed, "I'm darn well gonna make it."

"The operation took quite a long time because the patient was in very bad shape and bled a lot," said Dr. Bjarne Semb, who led the surgical team. "He is relatively fine and has talked to us. It was a successful operation but it is too early to tell if he will make it."

Semb, 45, head of the Karolinska heart surgery clinic since last year, is only the second surgeon to implant an artificial heart. All three previous operations were performed by Dr. William C. DeVries. Two of DeVries patients have survived.

Semb, a Norwegian, said his team had planned for its first heart implant for several months and would be willing to perform such surgery again.

In Louisville, Ky., a spokesman for DeVries said Semb consulted with DeVries by telephone early Monday. The spokesman said DeVries looks forward to active collaboration with Semb and his colleagues.

"Until then, Dr. DeVries sends his congratulations and his hopes for success to Dr. Semb, his patient, and the entire project," the spokesman said.

The only other two men living with artificial hearts, Bill Schroeder of Jasper, Ind., and Murray Haydon of Louisville, both were reported doing well Tuesday in Louisville.

Haydon, 58, who received his Jarvik-7 heart Feb. 17, was in serious but stable condition at Humana Hospital Audubon. Doctors said he is being weaned off a respirator.

Broadcast engineers, University agree to schedule other meetings who are represented by Local 702 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, have been working without a contract since August. During the last week in February the union gave SIU-C a five-day notice of an intent to strike if the labor dispute remained unresolved.

Both sides agreed in March to continue negotiations with the aid of mediator Ray Hall from the Federal Mediation and Conciliatory Service located in Evansville, Ind.

Gary Roan, representative of Local 702 of the IBEW which represents the Broadcast Engineers, has said the reasons for the labor deadlock have been SIU-C's vacillation on the issues and the apparent attempt by SIU-C to replace engineers with students.

Keith Sanders, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said in a news conference in February that the main issues are the reluctance of the engineers to train students in the SIU-C television and radio facilities and the high labor cost of the operation of the University-sponsored PBS stations.

Black Studies faculty requests reinstatement of basic courses

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

The Black American Studies faculty has submitted a revised course proposal to reintroduce BAS courses withdrawn from the general studies curriculum.

The proposal will ultimately be reviewed and decided on by the General Education Curriculum Committee after it has gone through the University's administrative process, said the Dean of the College of Human Resources Seymour Bryson.

GECC 109, "Introduction to Black America" and GEB 135, "The Third World: The African Model" were withdrawn from the SIU-C core curriculum during the fall 1984 semester.

Bryson said he has reviewed the initial proposal submitted by the BAS faculty, but has asked the faculty to clarify points of the document before continuing the process.

He said the proposal is in the reviewing process, which may last about two weeks. Before the GECC receives the revised course outline, the efforts of the proposal should focus on being consistent with the recommended guidelines that were set by the GECC, Bryson said.

Whether or not the GECC approves the BAS proposal, Bryson said that it would be unrealistic to think that these courses will be reinstated by the fall 1985 semester.

"Things just don't happen that quickly," Bryson said.

Marlon Morris, assistant coordinator for the Black Affairs Council, said the administration is "taking us through a bureaucratic treadmill. The proposal shouldn't have to sit on Dr. Bryson's desk," he said.

Marvin Kleinau, GECC chairman, said the earliest the proposal can be reviewed and discussed by the GECC is May 8.

After the GECC receives the proposal "one of two things can happen. We can make a spontaneous decision," or it can be advanced to a subcommittee for further deliberation.

"It's a matter of time," Kleinau said.

Student volunteerism high for spring cleaning efforts

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Carbondale's spring Clean-up Day is slated for Saturday, and while volunteer response from SIU-C campus organizations has been good, local business participation in the annual event has been slack.

Howard Brookins, the Undergraduate Student Organization's clean-up day student coordinator, said response from local grocery stores has been "really slow." The stores had been asked to donate food for the Clean-up Festival.

Individuals and groups such as the Girl Scouts, Carbondale's Hill House and the SIU-C fraternities and sororities constitute the bulk of the effort, he said.

Brookins said about 200 people and groups are already committed to the project. He hopes to have 500 people involved in the campaign.

"Most of the people who volunteer usually just show up on that day," Brookins said. "We try to get them to pre-register so we can estimate how many will be there."

Clean-up crews will register and check-in at 9 a.m. at Turley Park on W-st Main Street. The clean-up will begin at 10 a.m.

Competitions will be held for most trash collected, based on trash weight. Judging will begin at noon at Attucks Park on North Wall Street. Hats, T-shirts, and food will be given as prizes.

Clean-up Day has been an annual event since 1980 and is sponsored this year by the USO, Miller Brewing Co., Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Marion and Sound Core of Carbondale.

The Clean-up Festival will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. Food and drinks from Pepsi and local eateries will be available. Entertainment will be provided by the Black Fire Dancers, Dr. Bombay and the SIU-C Tae Kwon Do Club.

For more information or to register to participate in the clean-up, call Brookins at 536-3381.

Scientist says Star Wars shield unfeasible, 'ruinously expensive'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Scientist Carl Sagan said Tuesday the defense industry welcomes the proposed federal funding for President Reagan's "Star Wars" nuclear shield system although it is unworkable and "ruinously expensive."

"Before Star Wars sprang from the president's brow, the amount spent for nuclear weapons was a small fraction of what was spent for conventional weapon," said Sagan. "Now that we have Star Wars waved before the defense industry, it will become juggernaut."

"Once a thing gets going, it's hard to stop if it's making money. That's why conservative groups have argued for as much money to be spent on Star Wars before the president leaves office in 1989."

Sagan made the comments at a news conference following a speech before about 14,000 teachers and educators attending the conference of the National Catholic Educational Association.

Sagan said the theory behind using a computer-operated laser system to shoot down incoming nuclear warheads is critically flawed.

"It can only stop a certain fraction of the nuclear warheads coming in," he said. "Nobody — not even the most ardent administration supporter — believes a shield that will stop all Soviet warheads is technically feasible.

"If 10 percent get through, that's 1,000 warheads — enough to destroy the United States."

Another problem with Star Wars, Sagan said, is it cannot be tested without an actual nuclear war.

"You're betting the human species on that untried, untested computer system," he said.

Carbondale man receives attempted murder charge

A Carbondale man was charged with attempted murder and aggravated battery in connection with a fight Monday afternoon at 516 S. Rawlings St., a spokesman for the Carbondale Police Department said.

A police officer responded to a disturbance call at the Pyramids apartment complex at 12:23 p.m. and saw Bing Li, 25, striking a man with a hammer.

After the fight was broken up, the victim, Zhao Yujian, 37, of 516 S. Rawlings St., was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and released after receiving stitches on his head.

Li, of 606 W. College St., was appointed a public defender at a Tuesday afternoon bond hearing and is being held at Jackson County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

China trip talk set

Paul and Kathleen Trescott will talk about their experiences in China at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the First Presbyterian Church at 31 S. University Ave. in Carbondale.

Paul Trescott won a Fulbright Award to teach economics at Peking University in Beijing, China. He taught money and banking and international finance to seniors and graduate students in the world economics department during the 1983-84 school year.

He also gave presentations at several other universities in China.

Kathleen Trescott taught English to students in the world economics department, worked as a consultant to a group of Peking University English teachers, made presentations at high schools, and helped a class of scientists prepare for their English proficiency exams.

The Trescotts will discuss China's economy, education system, travel and transportation, attractions, and lifestyle.

The presentation is open to the public.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE...

YOU CAN STILL APPLY FOR FINANCIAL AID

It's true...the April 1 deadline to mail the 1985-86 ACT/Family Financial Statement (ACT/FFS) has passed...and it's true that those ACT/FFS forms mailed by April 1 will be given priority consideration for SIU Campus-Based Aid (SEOG, NDSL, STS, CW). Applications postmarked after April 1, will be considered for Campus-Based Aid on a funds-available basis.

ALTHOUGH APRIL 1 WAS THE PRIORITY DATE FOR CAMPUS-BASED AID CONSIDERATION, IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO APPLY FOR OTHER FINANCIAL AID PROGRAMS...

You can still apply for the Pell Grant, the ISSC Monetary Award, and the Student Work Program. Mail your 1985-86 ACT/FFS as soon as possible to allow adequate time for processing before the Fall Semester begins.

In addition, if you are applying for a Guaranteed Student Loan for the 1985-86 academic year, you must have a current ACT/FFS on file before your loan application can be processed in our office. Loan applications are available from your lending institution.

Reading the ACT/FFS instructions will take an extra 15 minutes but, having to make corrections will take an extra 6 weeks and will delay the processing of your financial aid. COMPLETE THE FORM CORRECTLY THE FIRST TIME.

The 1985-86 ACT/FFS forms are available at Student Work and Financial Assistance, Woody Hall, B-Wing, Third Floor.

Paid for by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Correction

Because of erroneous information supplied to the reporter, it was incorrectly reported in Monday's Daily Egyptian that the Graduate and Professional Student Council requires 2,000 votes for student trustee for the results of the election to be ratified.

The GPSC desires 2,000 votes, GPSC President Glenn Stolar said. It is not required.

Campaign set to better education awareness

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Improving student awareness of and involvement in educational issues is the goal of nationwide student governments' RAISE-Educational Awareness Week campaign April 15-19.

SIU-C's Undergraduate Student Organization is the mainstay for the Raise Awareness of Issues for Students and Education campaign, which involves more than 210 campuses in 14 states, said Perry Lewin, USO chief-of-staff.

"Most of the schools involved are from the Midwest," he said, "but schools from the East are getting involved."

Lewin said once a school's student government shows an interest in the week-long project, a packet of information is set to them. The information includes tips on having activities, fund-raising and contacting local and state legislators.

The USO wants to obtain more than one million student's signatures on an education quality and access petition, Lewin said. The petition states that students "strongly oppose any proposed cuts in the funding of higher education, any increases in tuition rates or any other changes that have a negative effective on accessibility and/or quality of higher education."

"With the number of schools involved in the campaign, getting a million signatures may not be too difficult," Lewin said. "Having that many names might get some action from state and federal legislators."

He also said the large number of names will show legislators that students aren't going to "sit back and take the subject (of cuts in education) lightly."

The week-long campaign will begin with a press conference on Monday and ends with a rally on Friday. Lewin said the USO is trying to get federal, state and local legislators to appear and approach the issue of funding for higher education.

"It would show that they have some interest in it and could possibly get more students involved," he said.

Hotline for child abusers started

NEW YORK (UPI) — A child abuse telephone hotline opened Tuesday in New York City aimed at providing counseling to parents who are "hidden" abusers — those who do not fit normal stereotypes and refuse to admit they are causing harm.

The telephone counseling service was offered by a group called Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect, or SCAN.

The group and its hotline, almost a victim of federal cuts in social services, has been partially funded by the Southland Corp., a Texas-based business that is best known for franchising 7-Eleven stores.

At a Manhattan news conference, corporation officials said the firm was donating $250,000 for the first six months of SCAN's child abuse prevention campaign in the New York City area.

Dr. Joyce Brothers, a spokeswoman for the group, said the "hidden" child abusers are those parents who do not fit into typical stereotypes. More often than not, she said, the abusers are middle-class professionals.

Her statements were backed up by Dr. Vincent Fontana, medical director of the New York Foundling Hospital and chairman of the Mayor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect.

"There is a fallacy that child abusers are crazy and monsters," Fontana said. "Ninety-nine percent are hidden child abusers who are just finding it difficult to cope."

"There is also a misconception that all child abusers are Black, Puerto Rican or live in the ghetto, but they come from all backgrounds and income levels," he said.

He said more than 100 New York City children are killed annually by abuse from their parents.

The New York State Department of Social Services last year received more than 100,000 reports of child abuse, a figure many experts believe is low because thousands of cases go unreported.

Local dentist free on bond

Allan B. Azevedo, a Murphysboro dentist accused of arranging the execution-style murder of his ex-wife four years ago, was released Tuesday after posting the required 10 percent of his $300,000 bail.

Azevedo's bail was originally set at $1 million. He was in custody at the Jackson County Jail for over a month despite his attorney's attempts to have his bail further lowered.

Azevedo, a native of India, signed an extradition waiver Tuesday. Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman set certain conditions for his release.

Azevedo relinquished his citizenship papers, his passport and the passports of his three children, ages 6, 11 and 16, who all attend school in Murphysboro.

He is also required to report to a probation officer each Monday and Thursday at 8:30 a.m. at the courthouse.

A preliminary hearing is set for June 3 at 9:30 a.m.

Azevedo's arrest followed a four year investigation into the death of his ex-wife, Marie Azevedo, whose bullet-riddled body was found April 1, 1981, in a secluded area northeast of Carbondale.

Moreland drives home two runs to boost Cub victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rick Sutcliffe and Lee Smith combined on a six-hitter and Keith Moreland drove in two runs Tuesday to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the season opener for both clubs.

Sutcliffe, last year's Cy Young Award winner, won his 15th straight over two years, breaking the Cubs' record set by Ed Reulbach who won 14 straight for Chicago in 1909. Smith relieved after Sutcliffe permitted a run in the eighth and retired the Pirates in the ninth to gain the save.

Moreland had an RBI single in the first and belted a solo homer off starter Rick Rhoden to lead off the fourth for the defending National League Eastern Division champions. A sellout crowd of 34,551 braved 35 degree weather for the opener.

In the first, Bob Dernier led off with a single but was picked off. One out later, Gary Matthews doubled over first base and went to third on Leon Durham's infield single.

Moreland followed with a single to left, scoring Matthews.

Moreland led off the fourth by lining a 3-1 pitch over the left field wall.

Pinch hitter Lee Mazzilli led off the eighth with a double and Ray walked with one out. Bill Madlock flied out but Jason Thompson followed with an RBI single to center, scoring Mazzilli.

Smith relieved and got George Hendrick to strike out to end the inning.

Rookie Boston sparks White Sox victory over Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Rookie Darryl Boston drove in one run and scored another Tuesday to help Tom Seaver to his 289th career triumph and spark the Chicago White Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers in the season opener for both teams.

Seaver, making a record 15th Opening Day start, boosted his Opening Day record to 7-1. The 40-year-old right-hander allowed five hits and two runs in 6 two-thirds innings before giving way to Bob James, who went the last 2 one-third innings for a save.

The Brewers committed five errors and three of the White Sox's runs were unearned.

The White Sox jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first off loser Moose Haas. Rudy Law was safe when second baseman Jim Gantner dropped his pop fly and, after Harold Baines walked, Law scored on Greg Walker's single to right. Baines moved to third on the single and scored when Gantner committed his second error of the inning by throwing wildly to first on a grounder hit by Luis Salazar.

The White Sox added a run in the fourth as Boston looped a double to left, went to third on a sacrifice by Marc Hill and scored on a sacrifice fly by Julio Cruz.

The Brewers managed to cut the lead to 3-2 in the seventh. Ted Simmons hit a two-out single, rookie Doug Loman doubled and Seaver then uncorked a pair of wild pitches to score both runners.

The White Sox added an insurance run in the eighth when Salazar reached on a two-base throwing error by Haas and scored on a single to center by Boston.

Trammell overcomes pain in arm, shoulder to play well at shortstop

DETROIT (UPI) — Alan Trammell never gave it a second thought when he glided over, fielded the last ball hit and made a hard, accurate throw to end the Detroit Tigers' first game of the 1985 season.

He didn't have to. The pain was gone.

"It feels good to be able to throw the ball without having it hurt," Trammell said. Trammell, Detroit's All-Star shortstop, "I have no pain in my arm, no pain in my shoulder.

"I always felt I'd be ready. You have to think positively. And the last couple of weeks there have been no setbacks."

Trammell's shoulder, which underwent arthroscopic surgery immediately following the 1984 World Series, was a minor cause for concern for the Tigers. He also underwent minor knee surgery but it quickly became evident that was a success.

Shoulders and arms are different, though.

Trammell once was a model at short. He never muffs the easy ones and his hard, accurate overhand throws looked like they came straight out of a textbook.

However, since his elbow and shoulder started bothering him two seasons ago, Trammell no longer throws everything to first like Rickey Henderson was the runner.

And some throws go three-quarters instead of straight over the top.

The native of San Diego took some time off this winter to recuperate, then began working out with the same Padres he and his Tiger teammates had beaten, 4-1, in the World Series.

He quickly found his arm to be pain-free but weak. He is now exercising regularly and has turned his attention to helping Detroit do what is statistically unlikely these days — repeating as World Champions.

Carter's blast lifts Mets past Cards

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gary Carter made his debut in a New York uniform in a memorable one Tuesday by belting a one-out homer in the 10th inning to give the Mets a 6-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Carter, who earlier had committed a rare passed ball to help the Cardinals score a run, connected off Neil Allen and made a winner of Tom Gorman.

A crowd of 46,781, including vice president George Bush and Ecuador president Leon Febres Cordero, watched the Mets notch their 10th Opening Day victory in their last 11 tries.

Carter, acquired from Montreal in the off-season, went 2-for-4 and twice was hit by pitches in his debut with the Mets.

Outfielder Jack Clark, an off-season acquisition of the Cardinals, homered and also drove in the tying run in the ninth when he drew a bases-loaded walk from reliever Doug Sisk.

New York took a 2-0 lead in the first off starter Joaquin Andujar. Mookie Wilson singled, stole second and scored on a single by Keith Hernandez. After Carter was hit by a pitch, Darryl Strawberry and Howard Johnson walked, forcing home a run.

St. Louis pulled to within 2-1 in the second on Clark's homer and tied the score 2-2 in the third when Lonnie Smith singled, moved to third on a double by Tom Herr and scored on Carter's passed ball.

George Foster put the Mets ahead 3-2 in the third by hitting a 1-1 pitch for a home run.

New York starter Dwight Gooden helped extend the lead to 4-2 in the fourth when he singled, went to second on Wally Backman's bunt single and scored on a single by Hernandez.

In the New York fifth, Foster singled and scored when Rafael Santana doubled into the left field corner to put the Mets ahead 5-2.

St. Louis knocked out Gooden in the seventh on back-to-back singles by Andy Van Slyke and Ozzie Smith. Sisk relieved and retired two batters before giving up a two-run single to Herr. Gooden, the NL strikeout king last year, fanned six.

The Cardinals scored twice in the ninth to tie the score. With one out, pinch hitter Willie McGee singled and pinch hitter Ivan DeJesus ran for him. Lonnie Smith then was hit by a pitch and Herr followed with his third hit to load the bases. After Terry Pendleton was caught looking at a third strike, Clark walked on five pitches to force home the tying run.

Strawberry left the game in the seventh inning with a bruised tendon in his right wrist. He injured his wrist while attempting a diving catch on Lonnie Smith's single.

Stars named to Olympic Hall

SALISBURY, N.C. (UPI) — Mary Lou Retton, Edwin Moses, Carl Lewis and Greg Louganis were elected to the United States Olympic Hall of Fame Monday during the annual meeting of the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association.

Retton, 17, is the youngest person ever to receive the honor and the first gymnast ever to be inducted. Retton, of Fairmont, W. Va., won the women's all-around gymnastics title in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Hurdler Moses, sprinter-long jumper Lewis and diver Louganis also won gold medals during the 1984 Games.

Moses was the 1976 and 1984 Olympic 400-meter hurdles champion and world record holder and was the top vote-getter among the 35 nominees. Lewis won four gold medals in the 1984 games and Louganis picked up two in diving.

Balloting was by NSSA members. The inductees were announced by USOC President Bob Martin.

Kansas City could receive CBA franchise

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Commissioner Jim Drucker of the Continental Basketball Association met with city officials and possible investors Tuesday with hopes of establishing a franchise in Kansas City for the 1985-86 season.

Kansas City has housed the National Basketball Association Kings for the past 13 seasons but the club has already announced its intention of moving to Sacramento, Calif., next season.

Drucker said the 14-team CBA wants to expand by two teams for the 1985-86 season with Kansas City the top candidate because it is already an established basketball market. He said the CBA is also looking at San Diego, Fort Wayne, Ind., Beaumont, Texas and Austin, Texas.

"Kansas City is important to the CBA," Drucker said. "It continues our growth into larger markets. In the past three years we have moved into Detroit, Tampa, Toronto, Baltimore, Cincinnati and Louisville. A Kansas City team would continue the CBA's trend into cities with larger populations."

Player, student plead guilty in point-shaving scandal

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Senior guard Bobby Thompson and another Tulane University student entered surprise guilty pleas Tuesday to charges they conspired to commit sports bribery in the basketball team's point-shaving scandal.

"They weren't even on the docket," a court clerk said. "They apparently wanted to plead guilty and get it over with as fast as possible."

Thompson and David Rothenberg, a senior economics major from Wilton, Conn., both had been charged with conspiracy to commit sports bribery — the mildest of the indictments returned by a grand jury against eight people last week.

Thompson pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy and Rothenberg to two counts. Rothenberg also pleaded guilty to one count of cocaine possession, a new charge, the clerk said.

Judge Alvin Oser said he will sentence the two July 9. Conspiracy carries a maximum sentence of 2.5 years in prison and a $5,000 fine, the drug charge five years and $5,000.

Lawyers for the others players — star center John "Hot Rod" Williams and sophomore swingman David Dominique — have said their clients will plead innocent at the arraignment scheduled Monday.

The two are charged with sports bribery and conspiracy on grounds they manipulated the point spread in Metro Conference games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State for $19,500.

Their lawyers went to court separately Tuesday, asking the judge not to let Tulane destroy film and statistics from the games in which Williams and Dominique played.

"We are hearing that Tulane has ended its basketball program, and we don't want defense evidence to wind up in a warehouse somewhere it can't be found," said attorney Edwards Castaing Jr., who represents Dominique.

Tulane President Eamon Kelly has recommended dropping men's basketball entirely at Tulane but has met strong resistance from students and alumni. The Board of Administrators is to vote on his suggestion next week.

Attorney Russell Schonekas of New Orleans had said earlier Thompson would cooperate with prosecutors if he could plead guilty to just one count of conspiracy. Thompson testified to the grand jury last Thursday before indictments were returned.

Two of Rothenberg's fraternity brothers were also charged, along with two suspected New Orleans bookmakers.

Two other players, senior forwards Clyde Eads and Jon Johnson, were given immunity to testify against their teammates.

When news of the point-shaving allegations first broke in late March, Coach Ned Fowler said the game films revealed no evidence the players were deliberately missing shots.

Fowler and two assistants resigned last week under fire for making cash payments to players, including $100 a week to Williams last season.

Williams also reportedly told prosecutors he was paid $10,000 in a shoebox when he signed to play for Tulane in 1981. That money allegedly came through an assistant coach before Fowler joined Tulane.

Johnson ignores injury, gets set for NBA playoffs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The playback, thousands of times repeated in his mind, is nearly done. Magic Johnson is gearing for payback.

The right knee throbs, but that's pain Johnson can endure. Last season's playoffs, which ended with a crushing, seventh-game loss to the Boston Celtics in the NBA finals, stings more — 10 months later.

"Whether it hurts or not, I'll be ready for the playoffs," Johnson said days before the league's post-season was to begin for his Los Angeles Lakers. "I've waited too long to worry about this knee."

Johnson is 25 now, a six-year veteran. His first season, he smiled a lot, passed spectacularly, and guided the Lakers to the league title. Los Angeles was stunned in the first round in 1981, but made amends with another championship the next year. The following two years brought Western Conference championships, but failures against Philadelphia and Boston in the league finals.

To Johnson, the 82 regular-season games serve only as an appetizer to the run for the title. While storming through the Western Conference this season, the Lakers managed to win games despite a natural loss of interest.

"Right now we just want to win and get them over," Johnson said a week before the end of the regular season when the Lakers committed 30 turnovers in a national televised game but nevertheless downed Portland in overtime. "Why be disappointed. We won. We want to save some for next week and the week after that."

"It's just hard to keep it up right now. You can't see anything in sight. When April 19 and 20 comes, you see the big silver trophy and you can go 48 minutes. Now it's Denver Tuesday, Golden State Thursday..."

Beginning this week, it will be Phoenix to begin what many believe will be the Lakers' fourth straight appearance in the finals. The record is impressive, matched by the effectiveness of Johnson and Byron Scott in the backcourt, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar at center and James Worthy and Kurt Rambis up front.

"We're playing well, but I want us to play even better because we can," Johnson said. "Our best is not going to get it done. We have to play above our best, super-great to win the championship."

BUDGET: Van Winkle cites cuts reported the alleged violation to Men's Athletics Director Lew Hartzog.

According to Van Winkle, the other two factors that led to his resignation were the misunderstanding between Bruce Swinburne and Hartzog, and the resignation of former assistant coach Stafford Stephenson.

Last month, Swinburne said he and Hartzog discussed hiring former Saluki assistant coach George Iubelt on an interim basis if Van Winkle were to leave.

Hartzog said he thought he received permission from Swinburne, formerly the top athletics administrator at SIU-C, to talk to Iubelt about the head coaching position.

Van Winkle said he agreed with Swinburne's version of the story.

"I agreed with everything Swinburne said in terms of the day-by-day unfolding of all the things that happened," Van Winkle said.

"You had the episode of Lew's mishap and the month of publicity about that, which I tried not to say anything about and just go about my work. I have always been the coach, and my status never changed until I decided to resign today."

Stephenson resigned Thursday after admitting that he knew about payments made to Perry.

"Stafford stated his motives were to help Kenny and his wife, no more than that," Van Winkle said. "So professionally, I'm extremely upset and didn't approve of any of it."

"Personally, it's a difficult situation because Stafford is one of the finest men I ever met."

athletics director, to assist Williams with administrative aspects of the team.

Stuck said he hasn't had enough time to decide on a method to replace Van Winkle, but he opened the field with his comment that "certainly anyone can be a candidate."

The investigation takes first priority for Stuck, who appealed to the media by saying:

"I would like to ask anyone, friends of SIU or even enemies of SIU, if they have anything that will assist me, please come forward and talk to me."

Shari Rhode, University legal counsel, has been involved with the investigation for her client, SIU-C. She said she has not looked at Van Winkle's contract, but since he resigned, the university does not have to continue to honor it.

A's Norris arrested again

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The occasionally brilliant baseball career of Oakland A's pitcher Mike Norris may have reached its final inning after the pitcher's second arrest for driving under the influence in less than a month.

University of California-Berkeley officials reported late Monday that Norris was booked by campus police early Sunday morning for driving under the influence after his car was spotted weaving with its bright lights.

Authorities said Norris was stopped and a field sobriety test was given which the pitcher failed. The righthander was released on bail and ordered to face arraignment on April 26.

Norris' arrest was his second in nearly a month. On Feb. 13, the pitcher was stopped by San Leandro, Calif., police after leading them on a high-speed chase down a highway south of Oakland. He was arrested and booked with possession of cocaine and several misdemeanors.

Richardson named cage coach at Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Nolan Richardson, whose arrival at the University of Tulsa made the Golden Hurricane a national power, Tuesday moved 90 miles to the east to accept the head basketball coaching job at the University of Arkansas.

Richardson was named at a news conference in Fayetteville by Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles, following a week-long search to replace 11-year veteran Eddie Sutton. Sutton left the Razorbacks job to coach the University of Kentucky.

The appointment made Richardson the first black head coach in any men's sport in the Southwest Conference.

"The more and more I thought about it, the more I wanted to become a Razorback," Richardson said. "It's a great challenge to me. At Tulsa University, the challenge was different. The challenge here is to lead it all the way to the top. At Tulsa, the challenge was to build it first."

Broyles said Richardson, like Sutton and Razorback football coach Ken Hatfield, received a five-year contract that will be extended at the end of each season.

Richardson used junior college players to build the Tulsa program, but said he had not recruited the junior colleges for the last two years and probably would not at Arkansas.

Despite rumors of offers that were rejected by other coaches, Broyles said Richardson was the only coach that was offered the job.

"The search was not just for someone who would maintain the excellent program that Coach Sutton built here, but someone that would have the potential of raising it to even greater heights," Broyles said. "That was the test I used in making this decision, and I am convinced that Nolan Richardson is the man for the job."

Tulsa organizes search committee to find new head basketball coach

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Formation of a search committee to find a replacement for University of Tulsa head basketball coach Nolan Richardson was announced within hours of Richardson's own announcement Tuesday that he was resigning to become basketball coach at the University of Arkansas.

Tulsa University President J. Pascal Twyman said applications would be taken through April 23, with a hiring possible "within a few days after that deadline."

Twyman said the committee was composed of five university and community leaders. Committee members met in an organizational session early Tuesday afternoon, immediately upon learning of Richardson's resignation, Twyman said.

"Nolan meant a great deal to TU and the city during his five years here," Twyman said. "Our becoming a top 20 basketball program is mostly due to the hard work of Nolan and his staff."

Twyman said Richardson "was wavering until late this morning on the decision. We certainly wish him and his family the best of luck."

Richardson was Missouri Valley Conference coach of the year this season.

Recruiting troubles face Sutton

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP) — New Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton, whose first recruiting class at Arkansas included college stars Ron Brewer and Marvin Delph, will learn in the next few days how much a late start has hurt recruiting at Kentucky.

Sutton was named to replace retiring Joe B. Hall April 2, and has spent much of his time on the road recruiting with associate coach Leonard Hamilton. The two visited Mississippi and Texas in search of high school talent.

Sutton, who spent 11 years at Arkansas, said it would be difficult to determine what affect the coaching change would have on recruiting.

"Sometimes it's an advantage and sometimes it's not," Sutton said. "When I went to Arkansas, one of the best groups I had came in the first year."

Brewer, who played in the NBA, and Delph, who played with the touring Athletes in Action team, combined with current NBA star Sidney Moncrief to propel the Razorbacks to the 1978 NCAA Final Four.

"With Kentucky, the school and the tradition do a lot of the recruiting," Sutton said. "So we may not be hurt."

Saluki baseball team splits twin bill with St. Francis

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

The junior year is a critical one for college baseball players who hope to continue in the sport professionally, and SIU-C's Robert Jones continues to show strong evidence that he is cut out to play in the big leagues.

Jones' opposite field home run with the bases loaded in the bottom of the third inning proved to be the winner as the Salukis defeated the College of St. Francis 6-3 on Tuesday to earn a split of the team's second double-header in as many days at Abe Martin Field.

Jones' ninth shot of the year was his third in two days and helped give SIU-C its 20th win of the season after St. Francis captured the first contest 2-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Rob Alexander.

The Salukis' third-year designated hitter drove in five runs with 3-for-3 hitting to raise his average to .358, second on the team only to Jay Burch's .396. In the last 10 games Jones has 15 hits, six of them round-trippers, and 16 RBI.

"Everybody has their time to hit the ball hard, and I guess this is my time," Jones said. "Earlier in the season I was going up and trying to make something happen instead of just letting it happen."

The Salukis scored one run in the first inning off CSF starter Mike Papierski on a double by Burch and an RBI-single by Jones, and four more in the third on Jones' grand slam, but the Fighting Saints came back with three runs in the top of the fourth off Saluki pitchers George Goich (1-0) and Mark Wooden to tighten the gap.

Goich, who was brought up from the junior-varsity squad on Monday, pitched into the fourth inning for the Salukis, giving up two runs and picking up his first win for SIU-C (20-13).

"We were pleased with Goich. If he hadn't gone three innings, we would've been in trouble today because we were down to three pitchers," SIU-C coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said.

Wooden pitched the fourth and fifth innings, and Rich Koch went from there to earn his fourth save and combine with Goich and Wooden to hold the Saints to two base hits.

Chuck Verschoore scored SIU-C's final run in the fourth on a wild pitch to complete the scoring, as the Salukis finished their two-day series with St. Francis (13-19) by winning three of four games.

In the opening contest St. Francis got all the runs it needed in the second inning when second baseman Rich Ryser singled in Papierski and Terry O'Brian to put the Saints up 2-0. Alexander went the distance for CSF, striking out seven while walking none.

"Alexander pitched a good ballgame," Jones said. "He struck out six batters in the first three innings, and the game was about half over before we even made good contact. But Paul Saikia also pitched a fine game for us."

Saikia struck out 10 batters and picked up his second complete game, but because the Salukis failed to support him, his record fell to 2-3.

Second baseman Mike Gellinger collected three of the Salukis' five hits and improved his average to .345, tying him for third on the club with Terry Jones. Jones, who has a torn muscle in his back, missed all four games against CSF, and was replaced at shortstop by Jay Hammond.

The Salukis' junior-varsity squad will host Three Rivers College for a 2 p.m. double-header on Wednesday at Abe Martin, with varsity hopefuls Lee Meyer and Dale Kisten scheduled to pitch.

Van Winkle resigns as cage coach

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Allen Van Winkle resigned as head Saluki men's basketball coach Tuesday despite earlier statements that he would remain.

Van Winkle said in his letter of resignation that his decision is "in no way based upon the allegation of Roy S. White."

Dean Stuck, special assistant for intercollegiate athletics, said the investigation into apparent NCAA violations has not turned up any evidence to support White's statements that Van Winkle knew about payments to Saluki Kenny Perry.

Tuesday, Stuck said he had not yet talked to Perry, but had spoken with almost all of the players. Stuck has also been in contact with the NCAA and said he has no indication that any sport other than basketball was involved.

"I told him (Dave Berst, Director of NCAA Enforcement) where I was in the investigation. When it's complete, I'll send a report to them. Until then, I'm not in a position to say anything," Stuck said.

Herman Williams, the remaining assistant coach from Van Winkle's three-man staff, will oversee men's basketball until that time. With national letter-of-intent day at hand, Stuck told

Williams to "proceed as he has been working and to be honest and up front with every player he talks to."

Stuck said he's had no indication that Williams knew anything about the payments. Stuck also named Bruce McCutcheon, assistant men's

Van Winkle says budget cuts hurt

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

After taking the blame for a 14-14 season, Allen Van Winkle resigned Tuesday as the SIU-C men's basketball coach.

Van Winkle said he first thought about resigning in February when the SIU-C athletic department made budget cuts.

"I think more than anything, that (the budget cuts) kind of broke my spirit a little," Van Winkle said in an interview Tuesday from his home.

"The cancellation of the basketball banquet, busing to Wichita State and West Texas State, and the fact that in a middle of a recruiting year people would make cuts."

In a letter of resignation submitted to SIU-C President Albert Somit, Van Winkle said, "It is with extreme regret and anguish that I hereby submit my resignation as basketball coach for Southern Illinois University. There is no doubt that the program has made remarkable improvement in four short years.

"I would have liked to continue improving the program but find myself in an impossible situation. My decision to resign is based upon the lack of commitment which the University has made to the Division I basketball program."

Van Winkle said that his attorney is exploring legal action against Carbondale chiropractor Roy White, who made payments of $900 a month for two years to Saluki center Kenny Perry.

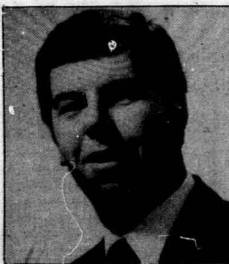

White said that Van Winkle arranged the deal for Perry to receive the payments.

But Van Winkle said he didn't know Perry was receiving money.

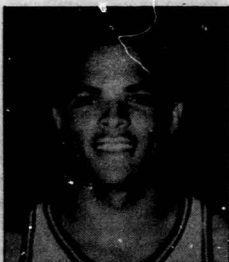

"I only offered scholarships and I instructed my assistants to work in the same matter," Van Winkle said.

Van Winkle said that if he knew Perry was receiving money, he would have

George thinks Van Winkle knew

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Senior forward Chris George says he thinks former SIU-C men's basketball coach Allen Van Winkle knew about cash payments made to center Kenny Perry.

"I think he knew because it's impossible for a head coach not to know that one of his players is getting paid," George said Tuesday.

"I really don't have any proof, it's just my personal opinion," he said. "I'm just trying to tell you how it is. I got nothing against Van Winkle."

Van Winkle resigned Tuesday, citing the lack of commitment SIU-C has made to its Division I basketball program.

"He might as well resign, because I felt he was going to get fired," George said. "It (Van Winkle's announcement) came as no surprise to me."

Van Winkle couldn't be reached to respond to George's comment. He said previously that he had no knowledge that Perry was receiving payments from Roy White, a Carbondale chiropractor.

George said he didn't know Perry was receiving money and he doesn't think any of his teammates were receiving a similar deal.

"Coach Van Winkle told us that everything he does is clean," George said.

"It seems that it was because he didn't give us anything because of NCAA rules. He went by the book with everything, that's why I was shocked (that Perry was receiving money)."

George said he didn't know if Perry really needed the money.

"If it was me, I wouldn't have taken the money," George said. "But I don't know what his situation was, with his family and kids."

George was the Salukis' top reserve in the 1983-84 season, averaging 5.2 points and 3.0 rebounds. He had his playing time reduced this season, and his season averages slipped.
