One in 8 faces harassment at SIU-C

By William Brady
Staff Writer

One of eight female SIU-C students is sexually harassed during her campus life, says William Bailly, affirmative action officer for the University.

Bailly, whose office is one of four University-decanted mediators in sexual harassment cases, based his estimate on information provided to the AA0 and sexual harassment survey results at other universities. There are about 8,000 graduate and undergraduate female students on campus. Ingrid Clarke, University ombudsman, agreed with Bailly's estimate. Barbara Burian, a campus safety representative with Women's Services, said she believes the rate is higher.

The Ombudsman and Women's Services use are sexual harassment mediators. University policy defines sexual harassment as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other conduct of a sexual nature when submission to such conduct is a condition of academic decisions or employment.

Unwelcome sexual advances include touching, grabbing, fondling, rubbing against or kissing a person without consent, said Kathryn Ward, an assistant professor in the sociology department who specializes in the study of violence against women.

Other conduct of a sexual nature includes actions or communications to people about their physique, Burian said. An example of such a comment would be "My, don't you look good today," she said.

Included are persistent sexual comments or actions that "tend the water to see if a person will bite," she said.

Burian related experiences of clients who had been sexually harassed on campus.

$1.8 million approved for SIU projects

The SIU Board of Trustees approved $1.8 million in building and renovation projects Thursday at its meeting at the School of Medicine in Springfield. Funding for the projects come from SIU-C's 1997 Build Illinois appropriations.

Replacement of the cooling system at Morris Library will cost $490,000. The present equipment at the cooling plant is over 25 years old and worn out, said Allen Haake, University supervising architetct.

The cooling plant project is the first phase of a $1.3 million plan to modernize the library's heating and cooling system in the next two or three years, Haake said. Future plans include replacing some of the cooling ducts and fan units and fixing problems in the temperature controls, he said.

Two projects at the Physical Plant, rehabilitation and replacement of steam lines going into housing and academic units on campus; and completion of a boiler rehabilitation project, cost $465,040.

The steam line project will cost $350,000. Some of the Blood donor repays debt by contributing to drive

Rick Tyner, a maintenance laborer at the Physical Plant, fainted at work in May and spent about a month in hospitals because he kept losing blood.

Doctors told Tyner he had lost half of his blood by the time he arrived at the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. The day he was there, Tyner said he received about 39 pints of blood, he said, which is more than double the 12 pints the body usually holds.

Eventually Tyner used up the blood supply at Memorial Hospital and blood had to be brought from the St. Louis Blood Bank.

The next day, after several tests and exploratory surgery failed to find the problem, Tyner was taken to Springfield where doctors discovered a ruptured blood vessel in his small intestine that had been flamed since he was born.

He received about seven pints while in Springfield.

Tyner says he owes his life to those who give blood at drives like the ones who have given blood during this drive, which ends Friday.

Thursday, Tyner began what he said will be a lifetime devotion to blood drivers by donating his first pint of blood since he got out of the hospital.

"I have a lot to pay back," Tyner said. "I'll hopefully save somebody's life by donating blood."

But this blood drive is not going as well as it was hoped, said Virian Ugent, blood drive coordinator, as the goal for this drive is 2,325 pints and the five-day total is only 1,864.

But Ugent said she still hasn't given up hope that the drive will meet its goal; however, she did say it would take a "tremendous" increase in the number of donors today as compared to past days.

"We've been able to get people through the process in 3 hours and 45 minutes," Ugent said. "And we've had some empty beds at times."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marine Commandant Gen. P.X. Kelley asked Congress and Americans for patience Thursday while the Marine Corps sorts out the Navy guards sex-for-secrets scandal.

Kelley, appearing before the Senate Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, also promised a thorough probe, "regardless of the consequences."

"I can only beg your patience while we make a concerted effort to investigate, Kelley told Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss. "It's a matter of the highest priority, to determine the facts and then take corrective actions. I promise we're not leaving any stone unturned, regardless of the consequences."

"I ask that the American people and you judge this very unique institution not by the alleged actions of a few but by the patriotic and exemplary conduct that has been our heritage," said Kelley, who is due to retire at the end of June.

Peruvian rebels open fire on restaurant; 9 injured

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Presumed Maoist rebels wearing high school uniforms opened fire in a crowded restaurant near a military base Thursday, injuring nine people, including two army officers, authorities said. The two rebels set off charges of dynamite as they fled, damaging two windows of nearby buildings, radio reports said. No group claimed responsibility for the attack and no arrests were made.

Israeli president honors victims of Nazis

BERLIN (UPI) — President Chaim Herzog of Israel honored World War II victims of the Nazis and viewed the Berlin Wall Thursday during the first visit: by an Israeli head of state to the seat of power of the German arms sales to Saudi Arabia. Herzog, accompanied by West German President Richard von Weizsaecker and West Berlin Mayor Eberhard Kornings, laid a blue and white wreath at the famed stone wall of the Plotzensee memorial to all victims of Adolf Hitler's regime.

Soviet's 2nd attempt to dock lab in space fails

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union failed Thursday in a second attempt to securely dock the 21-ton Evart laboratory with the orbiting space station Mir, and Western diplomats said official reports indicated the spacecraft might have been damaged in the linkup. Radio Moscow said the unmanned astrophysical laboratory as large as the Mir station itself linked. Thursday morning, but apparently not severely enough to allow two communards aboard Mir to cross over and activate its life-support systems.

Accused war criminal takes over his defense

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Accused Nazi war criminal John Demjanjuk, 59, a Cleveland auto worker, said Thursday he will act as his own defense attorney during his trial in a German court, after his applications to cross-examine witnesses were denied.

Lab tech accused of selling uranium to PLO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A senior laboratory technician with a top security clearance at a U.S. nuclear facility has been accused of selling classified documents and uranium to the PLO as well as raising teenage girls, setting fires and committing robberies, a new government report said Thursday. The General Accounting Office, in a report critical of the Department of Energy's personnel security practices, did not identify the technician.

Supporters of 'homeless' bill predict victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill to authorize $423.2 million for the homeless could not escape a Senate quagmire Thursday, but supporters predicted they would work Friday to show down over whether to kill language repealing a congressional pay raise. Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said he feared that if an amendment raising the salary increase was included in the bipartisan homeless aid measure, it would devastate the effort to help the homeless because the House will not accept it.

Judge says 'Brown' case ruling did its job

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — A federal judge ruled Thursday that forced racial integration in the state's public schools has been eliminated in the 33 years since the Supreme Court's landmark Brown vs. Board of Education lawsuit. U.S. District Judge Richard Rogan, who was in the revived landmark desegregation case, issued a 50-page decision rejecting allegations of racial discrimination in Topeka schools. The suit was filed eight years ago on behalf of 12 black school children and two non-grown sons and daughter of Linda Brown Smith, the original defendant.

"No group is more embarrassed by these events and more concerned" with its affect on national security than the Marine Corps, the four-star general said.

Pentagon officials said Marine Sgt. John Weirick, 26, of Eureka, Calif., was arrested at the Marine Corps Air Station at Tustin, Calif., and accused of espionage while he was a guard at the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad beginning in 1981. Weirick has not been barred from entering the U.S., and local bar owners, who would place too much responsibility on the bar owner, who cannot always know who is on the premises when those of age are buying drinks for others, senators said. The alternative would also subject students to blacklisting, Dan DeFose, a West Side senator, said, adding that the list would have repercussions for the violators. Senators voted to support a feasibility study for having an outside firm operate the University bookstore and voted to give Registered Student Organization status to five student groups. Groups given RSO status were the Cypriot Student Association, the Industrial Designers of America, the Turkish Student Association, the Palestinian Student Association and the Cricket Club.

USO votes no to proposal of city underage 'blacklist'

By William Brady

An Undergraduate Student Organization student senate proposal to have the city distribute names of underage drinking violators to local bar owners, who would suspend entry to anyone on the list for three months, was defeated by a voice vote at the USO senate meeting Wednesday.

The proposal also called for a heavy fine and liquor license revocation for bar owners when those reconvicted are caught on the bar's premises and imposition of a heavier fine for bar owners when first-time offenders are caught. The measure was proposed as an alternative to the proposed Carbondale ordinance that would require a person to be 21 to enter a bar.

The alternative is unfair to bar owners and students, opposing senators said. It would place too much responsibility on the bar owner, who cannot always know who is on the premises or when those of age are buying drinks for others, senators said. The alternative would also subject students to blacklisting, Dan DeFose, a West Side senator, said, adding that the list would have repercussions for the violators. Grinnell set for cleanup of asbestos

By Carolyn Schmidt

Removal of asbestos-containing insulation from the ceiling and walls of Grinnell Hall was approved by the SIU Board of Trustees Thursday at its meeting at the School of Medicine in Springfield.

Grinnell Hall is the dining hall and common building for Brush Towers residence halls. The estimated cost for removal is $135,000. Funding will come from student fees, the board said.

The removal will take place in the mezzanine mechanical equipment room. Insulation containing asbestos was removed in January in smaller equipment rooms in Grinnell, Neely, Schneider and Mae Smith halls and in Morris Library.

The new Grinnell insulation removal will be done on a larger equipment room, which will require all mechanical systems in the building to be shut down for at least a month. The project is planned for the summer, when the building is not in use. Plans and specifications for the removal will be prepared by the Physical Plant Engineering Services, the architecture and design committee said.

Grinnell Hall was opened in 1968. During construction of Brush Towers, insulation containing asbestos was sprayed onto the ceilings and walls of the mechanical equipment rooms to control heat loss and machine noise, a board information packet stated.
Head-hunting costs are getting too high

SIU-C HAS BEEN a headless body for almost four months, and the presidential search committee does not expect to begin narrowing choices of presidential candidates until the end of April. The final decision on the new SIU-C president is not due until mid-July.

Lawrence Dennis, chairman of the presidential search advisory committee, says he does not find the long search period unusual and that the University is doing its "level best" to find a new president. Meanwhile, the search firm of Headrick and Strategies from Chicago devours University funds in its investigation of potential candidates.

Without denying that a search should be careful, and with all due respect for both the search committees and Chancellor Pettit, there has to be a more efficient way to find a new University president. This long wait-and-search period is stealing time from the important office and money from University funds. If the University must look for a new president every five years, it will have to find some way to keep the cost of the quest from approaching the president's annual salary.

LOOKING AT SIU-C history, it seems that finding a new president has always been an arduous ordeal. The search in 1971 took six months, cost more than $25,000, and ended up with the dubious honor of hiring David Derge. In 1979, it took another $50,000 to find Warren Brandt after Derge retired. Finding Albert Somit after Brandt retired in 1979 also was a long and expensive process.

Somit's retirement was costly in more ways than one. Along with the cost of finding a replacement and the cost in time and efficiency that comes with replacing an important officer, Somit is promised a year's "shadow salary" while he takes a year off before returning to SIU-C as a professor of political science. That shadow salary will cost the University about $90,000, as a kind of reward, it seems, for Somit's five years of service.

Headrick and Strategies, Inc., the University firm currently on the trail of our next SIU sovereign, will cost the University one-third of the man's annual salary. The affair is expensive, in a phrase which sends a shiver of foreboding up any budget-conscious spine, includes transportation costs, hotel fees, paper work, and no doubt plenty of champagne lunches to keep everyone jolly. Pettit predicts that the overall cost of the search committee should come to around $50,000.

WHAT CAN BE DONE to avoid these expensive searches? One answer is to limit the time given the University to find a search. Pettit reported that the search firm met with him twice, both in January and March, to go over presidential qualifications. Since the University is already vage and unpromising, it should not have taken three months to discuss them. The firm should have gone ahead with soliciting applications and nominations and saved time for the real debates — the debates over the qualifications of actual nominees.

Since Anthony Hall has sported a revolving door since 1970, perhaps the next president should be under a contractual obligation to stay at the University for five years. A president's shadow salary upon retirement should be dependent on how many years he or she serves, and a president who drops out in a short time should receive no special recompense from the University.

Meanwhile, it is too late today, too late for the pondersome movement of the current presidential search. We can only hope that the new president will be a good one, and will stay with us for a good long time.

Nicaragua called the real threat

Ms. Adams's question should be: "Will Nicaragua invade its neighbors after it consolidated its power?" President Arias of Costa Rica is more worried about 70,000 heavily armed Sandinistas on his border than some phantom U.S. invasion.

It is well known that Nicaragua, via Cuba and the Soviet Union, supply the Marxist rebels in El Salvador and other Central American nations. They should be held responsible for the recent death of an American soldier in El Salvador.

Should we fail the Contras as we did the democratic forces at the Bay of Pigs, (Nicaraguan President Daniel) Ortega will establish his dictatorship and the Soviet Union will become the dominant military force between the Panama Canal and the Mexican border.

The fragile Democracies of Central America will falter and become a second Cuba and its Soviet fire power. The anti-Contra forces will be held responsible for Nicaragua being gobbled up by the Warsaw Pact, the "feet people" who will hold the Pan American highway in their flight to the United States, and the American blood shed to secure vital interests that Nicaraguans by the thousands have volunteered to fight for themselves.

I agree with Ms. Adams's statement: "Let the people work out their own destiny without interference from foreign governments." That's what the original Sandinistas were all about. Give them what they originally fought for: free political expression, a free press and free elections. Beware of the new boss, same as the old boss. —Jeff Thomas, Murphysboro.

Television documentary lauded

On April 7, 1987 at 9 p.m., the Public Broadcasting Service showed a documentary concerning the debility experienced by inhabitants of federal housing in inner city Chicago, and, for a brief moment the same inhabitants of federal housing in St. Louis. Special emphasis in the program is focused on the etiologies of subcultures financed by the government subsidy but not to prosper. Possible panaceas to the social service hoop-doggles were cited by experts like William Wilson and Charles Murray but no unfuddled solutions were brought to the forefront. Also no remedies were formulated, however, I feel spotlighting a segment of society that has been almost completely isolated to destroy itself was as unnecessary to the business of this society as calcium to the sustenance of a strong cardiovascular system. The program was one that hopefully was viewed by every student or individual with questions or interest in the effects of cyclical poverty on the masses. I was thoroughly impressed with the material presented and commend PBS for affording me the opportunity to view a program of such magnitude. In closing, I would like to remind all non-viewer citizens that the depictions depicted in the presentation that the founders of this country were members of the British underclass. Thanks PBS! —Darryl L. Jones, senior, political science.

Martin Luther King remembered

Once again the time has come for us to pay tribute to a great man, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. On April 4, 1968, Dr. King was assassinated by a man whose name is not even known.

Dr. King was an upstanding image to not only black people, but to all races. Dr. King stood for freedom and equal rights in an non-violent fashion. There have been many rumors as to why Dr. King was assassinated. I can only come to the conclusion that he came too close to what white society did not want him to come to. That is one step up from the two steps that have kept us back.

My mother once had a brief encounter with Dr. King. He was in Chicago and she was pregnant with me. He put his hand on her shoulder and told her to take care. When she talks about this brief encounter, it is as if she had sat and talked to him for hours. This is the great impact that this man had on people across the nation.

There are some people out there who might say that we pay too much tribute to Dr. King. He was a man that should be paid tribute everyday in our hearts. His dream will die because he was a man who had the courage to be free. —Christine Craig, senior, administrative justice.

Abbie Hoffman, Amy Carter trial begins

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—The Trustees Thursday the anti-CIA protest trial of Amy Carter, Andrew Hoffman and 13 others would be a “historic and unique trial” of CIA activities. But prosecutors told the judge in the case that the defendants would have never before been confronted sexually by authority figures.

When confronted, they do not know that there is a recourse for them, she said.

THE AAO SOUGHT help from Carol Lynn Courtney, a doctoral candidate in psychology, in preparing a questionnaire that would permit a determination of sexual harassment at SIUC.

Baily said the questionnaire’s results would direct the implementation of actions. Funding for the phase, however, has yet to be provided.

While the extent of sexual harassment at SIUC is not known, an informal policy explicitly states that sexual harassment is an abuse of power that will not be tolerated. The policy adopted in 1980, also provides informal and formal mediation for grievances.

INFORMAL MEDIATORS include the Counseling Center, Women’s Services and the Ombudsman.

BURIAN SAID that because harassment is usually one person’s word against another’s, it is difficult to establish a case or to link resistance to advances with a bad grade or bad evaluation at work.

As Baily put it, victims think that nothing will be done.

Clarke said there is silence in reporting sexual harassment because many of the victims feel that if they talk before they have been confronted sexually by authority figures.

When confronted, they do not know that there is a recourse for them, she said.

underground steam lines have been corroded from chemicals and acids in the soil and need repairing or replacing, Haake said. The steam pipes going to Thompson Point may be replaced with fiberglass pipes or some material that won’t corrode from the soil, he said.

A $133,040 plan to replace insulation and firebrick in “boiler 2” at the steam plant will be the final phase in refurbishing the plant’s four boilers, Haake said. Three of the boilers have been replaced over the last two years for a total project cost of $501,832.

“Boiler 2” is 25 years old and needs new insulation around its fire chamber to prevent burns through the boiler. Haake said the insulation is a safety precaution and makes the boiler operation more efficient. M.D. Magary Construction was awarded the contract for $444,700.

Algoed and Wheeler Hills will get $65,000 to replace the buildings’ 75-year-old galvanized pipes that corrode and cruds up with age, Haake said. The buildings, which will receive a total of $37,500 for the work, are out of compliance with the Life Safety Building Code.

The second phase of air conditioner installation at Grambo was approved at $276,880. Central air was installed last year in buildings 103, 104, 105 and 106. The remaining buildings, 102, 105, 106 and 107, will receive installation this summer, Haake said.

H&A Plumbing, Heating and Electric Co. Inc. of Carbondale will receive $444,700 for contract and mechanical work and $74,800 for electrical work. Feger-Construction Co. of Murphysboro was awarded $57,295 for structural work in the air conditioning project.

The Trustees approved $864,000 for resurfacing of the tennis courts near the Agriculture Building, the Communications Building and Greek Row. Also, lighting will be upgraded at lots near Lawson Hall and the Communications Building.

The board also approved $340,000 for an emergency generated Lineman System.

The AAO helped determine that harassment of female graduate students reported that they had been sexually harassed. Six percent of the graduate students and 3 percent of the undergraduates reported that sexual harassment was a reason for leaving.

A SIMILAR STUDY was conducted at the University of Illinois last year. Nearly 12 percent of the 2,000 female students who responded complained of sexual harassment from faculty and staff.

The survey indicated that of those engaging in sexual harassment, 98.5 percent were men.

Of the 98.5 percent, 42 percent were teaching or research assistants, 30.5 percent were professors or instructors, 15 percent were employee supervisors, 3.1 percent were academic advisors and 1.3 percent were department heads or deans.

THE ISSUE of sexual harassment on the campus was spotlighted when a Yale undergraduate woman filed suit against Yale University because her political science professor offered her an “A” in exchange for sexual favors.

The case established that sexual harassment of students is a violation of Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments, Capital University Law Journal, 1983.

The case also initiated law holding that any institution receiving federal financial assistance must adopt formal grievance procedures for complaints.

NASA engineers urge test firing of shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) - NASA's top engineers have recommended a test firing of a new shuttle main engine before the first post-Challenger space flight, a test that will delay launch up to two months, officials say.

Former NASA Administrator James Fletcher is expected soon as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration assesses a new launch date that sources said probably will end up slipping up to six months past the current Feb. 18, 1988, target.

"We're assessing the schedule now, we're laying all this out, the known and the uncertainties," said launch director Robert Sieck, who would not speculate on the anticipated delay. "We want to come up with a credible schedule and set a credible target for the first launch.

"That might be a readiness firing," or FRF, of Discovery's three liquid-fueled main engines is only one factor in a broad range of issues facing NASA that will determine the ultimate launch date as the agency struggles to identify and resolve a host of technical and managerial problems.

For example, of 169 modifications approved so far, only 52 have been completed and more probably will be added.

"It's a marginal game at best," said Charles Gay, shuttle operations manager at the Kennedy Space Center. "We're doing a lot of reassessing of things."

Air Force official defends U.S. military stance, plans

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Defending U.S. military strategies, Air Force Secretary John C. Poole Jr. Thursday called Soviet military ability a "threat" and said U.S. military forces as "capabilities."

"You perceive what they have as a threat. I see what we have as protective capabilities against that threat," Poole, one of 12 members of the National Security Briefing team, said to an audience of less than 30 people in Davis Auditorium.

HE ALSO defended the United States' stance on first strikes.

"The United States does not preclude first use of nuclear weapons," Poole said. "In fact, the United States only would strike first under extreme circumstances, such as if a conventional takeover of Europe were imminent.

The Soviet Union has said it will not be the first to use nuclear weapons, but Poole said he "didn't know if that is true or not."

Poole also said that Soviet military strength in conventional forces, at least in numbers, far exceeds conventional U.S. military strength.

He said the Soviets have almost twice as many tanks, armored personnel carriers, artillery weapons and combat aircraft than the United States. The number of U.S. attack helicopters, he said, exceeds that of the Soviets.

POOLE said research and scientific ability is what sets the United States ahead of the Soviets.

Poole refuted recent media reports that conventional U.S. Air force planes and weapons are clumsy and inaccurate, specifically refuting recent claims that the U.S. offensive against Libya in 1986 was hindered by poor offensive capabilities of the fighter planes used.

"I know they are wrong," Poole said of the newspaper reports. He said the pilots in the raid "hit the targets they were aiming for," saying accuracy was about 95 percent.

"OUR INGENUITY and creativity has given us the advantage since World War II," he said.

He said the advantage is growing weaker with the security breaches that have occurred in recent years.

"Once it [classified information] gets out of the hands of the United States, you just don't know who's going to get it," Poole said.

Since 1985, the United States has convicted or charged 12 people with espionage, and most recently Marine Sgt. John Joseph Weirick was arrested Wednesday under suspicion of spying for the Soviet Union while working at the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad in 1981.

WHEN ASKED what makes people "crack," Poole said: "They didn't crack; they did it for dollars."

Poole said the United States and the Soviet Union are not totally against cooperation, he said, he hopes reports that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev is working to make "the Soviet Union more democratic are true."

He said the United States will probably share some SDI research information with the Soviets "at the appropriate time" to keep the Soviets from feeling threatened.

"We want to preclude the use of space from those who would do harm to us," Poole said, defending space-based defense.

Poole's appearance was sponsored by SIU-C's Air Force ROTC unit.

Insurance costs doom airshow

By Bill Ruminski
Staff Writer

Inability to pay for insurance has forced the Rotor and Wing Association to cancel its airshow, which was to be held Saturday at the Southern Illinois Airport.

The last-minute decision to cancel the show was made by club President Phillip Simpson and faculty advisor Charles Rodriquez "because the cost of insurance, estimated at $3,500, made it impossible to put on the show."

"We, as a student organization, only have $500 to $600," Rodriquez said, and the insurance would have increased the cost of the show to almost $9,000."

"Insurance for last year's airshow was $750," he said. "The big problem is that we didn't figure out the insurance soon enough," Rodriquez said.

Richard Davis, insurance manager for Illinois State University Risk Management Office, said the insurance estimate for this year's airshow was $3,500, not $9,000, and was "right in line."

"Last year the contract did not include anything about aerobatics, but they had them," Davis said. "This year we made sure what was going to be in the program."

An aerobic flight team was scheduled to perform.

"The insurance includes the risk involved in an airshow, which the insurance estimate reflected," Davis said.

Davis said the Rotor and Wing Association, a student organization, is required to purchase insurance because it, as most student groups, is not covered by the University's insurance plan.

"The increase is due to what's happening in the world. It's almost impossible to get any insurance these days," Davis said. "I'm glad we were able to cancel it."

"I don't think we can afford to put on this airshow," Rodriquez said. "We have to find another way to help raise money."

The show, which was to be held at 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Saturday, would have featured a free show at 1 p.m. with a $100 prize for best stunt man.

"If we had the money to pay for insurance, we would have been able to hold this show," Rodriquez said.

"We will have another airshow this year," Rodriquez said. "But we will have to find a way to finance it."

Center of Earth hotter than sun

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The molten iron center of Earth apparently is about twice as hot as a molten sun's surface, and it is two degrees hotter than scientists previously believed, according to a research team reported Thursday.

This was determined by University of California Berkeley scientists using a laser beam and diamonds and Caltech scientists shooting bullets from a giant stun gun in experiments to discover the melting point of iron at the very high pressures at the planet's core.

Results of the experiments are reported in this week's issue of the Journal of Science.

Previous studies were able to measure iron's melting point at only modest pressures and estimates produced by those experiments put the temperature of Earth's core in the range of 4,900 to 6,700 degrees F.

"It makes us confident that we know how to extrapolate the melting curve and this also gives us confidence that our measurements are very good," Berkeley geophysicist Raymond Jeanloz said of the two experiments.

Jeanloz and graduate student Quentin Williams sandwiched a piece of pure iron between two small diamond anvils and then heated the structure with a laser beam.

"By squeezing the iron we achieved super high pressures," Jeanloz explained. "A diamond is the hardest material around and because they're also transparent, that means we can watch the iron melt when we send the laser through it."

He said the experiments helped to determine the melting point of iron over a greater continuous range of pressures — up to 1 million atmospheres — than ever before achieved.

Mental readiness best tool against crime, speakers say

By Paula Kurzweil Staff Writer

Mental preparedness—not guns, mace, keys or hairpins—was the advice of speakers from the Mental Safety Fee Board at a workshop for women to protect herself against an attacker.

"That was the advice of the members of the Campus Safety Fee Board gave Wednesday to participants in the first of its two-part workshop on self-defense for women." - Paula Kurzweil

The second workshop, which will be held from noon to 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Recreation Center, will focus on teaching physical defensive movements.

It is open to all University and community women. There is a $2.50 Recreation Center user fee for non-University women.

Because traditional weapons don't always work or are not always available, women should learn to rely on their instincts and common sense as self-defense, speakers Margaret Winters, Jennifer Horn and Lisa Larkin said.

"Self-defense should be a part of your life all the time." - Lisa Larkin

Winters told the group of eight women: "It's protecting yourself from anything outside." A large part of self-defense is awareness of the surroundings, the speakers said. This includes staying away from dangerous situations at home, work and parties, and planning alternate escape routes to avoid an attacker.

Women also should be physically in shape and walk confidently so as not to look like a victim, they said. In addition, women should take simple precautions to avoid an attack, they said.

Locking car doors, using a porch light, checking the back seat when getting into a car and parking a car in a lighted area were examples of simple precautions suggested by the group.

Because an attacker can simply be a man or a woman who makes unacceptable remarks on the street or in a bar, women may choose to defend themselves verbally with a strong tone of voice, the speakers said.

"Men are not used to a woman talking back, so they probably won't pursue the conversation further," Horn said.

Another choice women can make is to ignore the "attacker" and avoid eye contact with them, they said.

Participants practiced these self-defense skills through role-playing.

Stanford frat parties get dry look

STANFORD, Calif. (UP)—Stanford University fraternity brothers have turned away cups—alcohol and a zoee—after waking up the university president at 3 a.m. with a Monday night "Heaven and Hell" party.

Because of new liquor restrictions imposed on the Greeks' three-week spring "rush," the legendary rowdy legs party is out.

That Stanford's 27 fraternities are wooing this year's prospective freshmen with such non-traditional events as a water slide outing, softball tournaments and sushi parties.

At Sigma Alpha Epilon fraternity, which used to play host to the big togs party, "We had a lot of pop and juice and stuff," sophomore Spencer Kurtzweil said Wednesday. "A lot of chips. The big alcoholic topless-type deal won't be happening.

The Stanford frats came under fire after waking up a neighbor—Stanford president Donald Kennedy—at 3 a.m. with a Monday night "Heaven and Hell" party last fall.

That followed a fight outside a spring rush party in which a student suffered a collapsed lung.

University officials and frat leaders agreed to a new alcohol policy for this year's spring rush.

Beer and wine can be served the first week but parties have to end by 9 p.m. For the second two weeks, all booze is out and freshmen have to be sent home by 7 p.m.

Honors Day to recognize top 1,500

SIU-C's annual Honors Day will be held Sunday afternoon for about 1,500 undergraduates who have maintained a 3.5 grade point average or better.

Each of the 10 undergraduate colleges at the University will hold its own ceremony. Later a reception will be held in the Student Center ballrooms.

Acting President John C. Guyon will be the host of the reception.

At 11:15 a.m., a buffet luncheon will be served to honors students and their guests in the Student Center Renaissance Room. Tickets are $7.50 in advance or $8.50 at the door.

The schedule is:

-Agriculture, 1:30 p.m.; Agriculture Building Seminar Room 200;
- Business and Administration, 1:30 p.m.; Browne Auditorium;
- Communication and Fine Arts, 1:30 p.m.; McLeod Theater;

The SIU-C travel-study program offers a way to earn college credit this summer in England, France, Japan, Greece, the Rocky Mountains or at Disney World.

The courses, planned by International Programs and Services and offered by departments within the University, include six offered overseas and four offered off-campus in the Western United States.

Thomas Saville, director of IPS, says the courses are demanding because they are concentrated, ranging from one week to two months.

"Although the courses involve things you can study in books, it's not the same as actually seeing how things work," he said. "Things don't usually go as smoothly in reality as they do in a textbook."

The travel-study program is open to SIU-C students and professionals, other universities and the public.

While SIU-C faculty teach or supervise the courses, the foreign courses will have nationals of the country who are "experts in various fields lecture or work with the students," Saville said.

The international programs offered are "Les Impressions de la Culture, "British Television Programming, Policy and Production, "International Business Operations, "Interdisciplinary seminars in the Ancient Greek Experience, "Special Education in Japan and "History of Chemistry."

The domestic programs offered are "Field Ecology Studies in the Northern Rocky Mountains, "Design and Innovations for the Future, "Making Public Relations Work for You, and "Innovations in Educational Communications."

People interested in any of the programs must complete an application and make a down payment of $200 to $250, depending on the course. Most courses start in May. Contact IPS, 905 S. Forest, 437-5774. Saville says the courses are beneficial because they use resources, people and places not available on campus.

The courses, most of which have a minimum of 10 students, go through the same approval as other University courses. Saville said, adding that the courses "actually are more courses than most courses on campus."

Aretha tops chart on 20th debut anniversary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Aretha Franklin's duet with George Michael, "I Knew You Were Waiting," tops the Hot 100 chart this week, nearly 20 years to the day since the former gospel singer landed her first of many singles in the top 10.

Initially a gospel singer who toured with her father, the Rev. C.L. Franklin, and his evangelistic troupe as a teenager, Aretha languished for years at Columbia Records, where seemingly no one was able to arrange, produce or choose material suited to her powerful and emotive voice.

SWITCHING TO Atlantic Records in 1966, she immediately found sympathetic treatment from veteran producer Jerry Wexler. With Wexler's aid, Franklin broke into the top 10 for the first time on April 15, 1967, with "I Never Loved A Man."

But "I Knew You Were Waiting" holds even greater significance. The joint effort enabled the 41-year-old Memphis native to surpass Connie Francis as the female soloist with the most top-10 hits of the rock era. Francis accumulated 16 top 10 hits between 1958 and 1962.

FRANKLIN, WHOSE career waivered in the late 1960s when she found herself struggling with marital and alcohol troubles, returned to recording gospel music in 1972 and wasn't a voice in the pop music world for a full eight years.

Producer-artist Luther Vandross and Arista Records helped Franklin return to the forefront of pop music in 1982, when her "Jump To It" hopped its way to No. 24.

THIS WEEK WAS not so memorable for the Starship, which saw its "Nothing's Gonna Stop Us Now" back up and stop at No. 2 after only two weeks at No. 1. "Don't Dream It's Over" by Crowded House, meanwhile, rose from No. 3 to No. 3, and from the airplay it's receiving the hit will likely remain where it is or rise even further. Prince's "Sign O'The Times" jumped from No. 7 to No. 4, and Lou Gramm's "Midnight Blue" climbed from No. 8 to No. 5.

The Top LP chart during the same seven days saw relatively little change, with the Beastie Boys' "Licensed To Ill" clinging to No. 1 for a seventh week. U2's "The Joshua Tree" stepping up to No. 2 from No. 3. and Bon Jovi's "Slippery When Wet" sliding from No. 2 to No. 3.

THE HOT COUNTRY Singles chart, ruled last week by Alabama's "You've Got The Touch," is topped this time around by the Bellamy Brothers' "Kids Of The Baby Boom." Waylon Jennings' "Rose In Paradise," meanwhile, rose from No. 5 to No. 2.

T. Graham Brown's "Don't Go To Strangers" was the third most popular country single nationally, while Reba McEntire's "Let The Music Lift You Up" was the fourth and Michael Johnson's "The Moon Is Still Over Her Shoulder" the fifth.

THE BLACK SINGLES chart remains an apparent possession of Prince, whose "Sign O'The Times" from the album of the same name claims No. 1 for its second week and industry critics don't foresee an immediate change. The System's "Don't Disturb This Groove" jumped from No. 6 to No. 3. Herb Alpert's "Keep Your Eye On Me" hung in at No. 3 for a second week and "There's Nothing Better Than Love" by Luther Vandross and Gregory Hines rocketed from No. 10 to No. 4.

Shultz to shift arms talks focus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz will seek in Moscow next week to shift the emphasis in superpower nuclear arms control talks from medium-range missiles to strategic weapons, a senior official said Thursday.

Although most of the devices displayed at a news conference were found years ago, Foreign Ministry officials said eavesdropping equipment disguised as insulation strips around windows of the Soviet Embassy's administration building in Washington were "discovered just the other day." The display came in response to the growing spy scandal.

The Foreign Ministry displayed five panels with examples of listening devices and pictures of the Soviet buildings where it said they were found — the Soviet Embassy administration building, the residence for its Washington diplomat, the consulate in San Francisco, the United Nations offices and a country retreat.

Reagan: U.S. is rightfully "bugged" by eavesdropping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Thursday that even if eavesdropping "bugs" had been planted in the new Soviet Embassy, the United States has a right to be outraged over apparent spying at its post in Moscow.

"What is particularly revolting is the tactics of talking about the Soviet side in an obvious attempt to divert attention from our own flagrant violations of standards of international law and morality," said a Soviet Foreign Ministry statement.

The Soviet display of spying paraphernalia came one day after the Soviets charged that the United States was inventing the embassy spy scandal to prevent progress during Shultz's visit, for talks expected to focus on arms control.

Gorbachev urges Czechs to move ahead with Soviets

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reform policies have been resisted by the Prague leadership, arrived for his first official visit to Czechoslovakia Thursday and said the two countries should "move forward together."

Gorbachev, accompanied by his wife, Raisa, was met at the airport by President Gustav Husak, 74, and other government and Communist Party dignitaries, then headed for Prague's Hradcany Castle for a first round of talks.

"In our recent talks in Peking, we agreed to continue and speed up the dialogue between the two countries," Husak said, according to the official news agency CTK.

But later, during dinner toasts, Gorbachev emphasized the close cooperation between the two countries while Husak endorsed the Gorbachev reforms.

Husak said the developments taking place in the Soviet Union "have met with extraordinary interest" and have the full support of the Czechoslovak Communist party.

But he stopped short of promising to implement the Gorbachev reforms, saying instead they provide "an important source of inspiration."

Earlier, Gorbachev laid flowers at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the grave of Klement Gottwald, the first communist president of Czechoslovakia, before beginning talks with Husak.

He was given a key to the city by Prague Lord Mayor Frantisek Sital and greeted crowds along Na Prikopa Street, where he was applauded and cheered by shouts of "druzhba," the Russian word for friendship.

"It's incredible. The whole atmosphere is new and different," said one young woman.

Police use dogs against strikers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police with dogs and whips broke up a crowd of striking black postal and transport workers outside a national post office hall Thursday and several hundred other workers were arrested south of the city union officials said.

In Pretoria, authorities said police Constable Danie Boshoff, 19, shot in the head during a demonstration Wednesday with black nationalist guerrillas, died Thursday at Johannesburg Hospital.

Evacuation supervised by Syrians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian officers who ended a five-month Muslem militia siege of southern Beirut's Palestinian refugee camps supervised the evacuation Thursday of 47 badly wounded Palestinians from a damaged shantytown hospital.

As the evacuation proceeded at the Burj Al Barajneh refugee camp, two guerrillas vowed they would not give up their positions to the Syrians, who took control of west Beirut in February to end three years of anarchist-plagued militia rule.

"The aim of this war was to destroy the Palestinian gun but it will not be destroyed. We are going to carry on the struggle," said a guerrilla from the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

REO remembers its roots
as classic oldies save show

By Ellen Cook
Entertainment Editor

Early into REO Speedwagon's performance Wednesday night, lead singer Kevin Cronin told the crowd in the SIU Arena that he was experiencing a "flashback."

Cronin said the band has played in Carbondale "more than any other town in the United States," mentioning performances that date back to the late 1960s and early '70s.

In those days, REO's repertoire included such classics as "Golden Country" and "Ridin' the Storm Out," strong songs that deserved radio play but rarely received it.

With the release of the "High Infidelity" album, Cronin saw a rise in both radio play and popularity. The album featured the first of the many ballads and Top 40 hits that soon would replace the hard-driving sound of REO's earlier days.

Fortunately, it was the last ballad and the last weak song of the night. Starting with a strong version of "Back on the Road Again," REO launched into a barrage of hits, both old and new, that showcased the talents and energy of the bandmembers.

Although Cronin and Richrath garnered most of the playing the first notes of "Golden Country," it seemed that the band was going to play some of its older music, but the powerful performance was followed with Cronin's sweetly sentimental ballad "I Can't Fight this Feeling."

Many of the songs sounded the same, and the performance began to suffer from a lack of variety. When guitarist Gary Richrath began

Man robs bank in search for abandoned child

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A man who traveled across the country to rob a savings and loan institution this week took $380 from a teller, then threw it on the floor, sat down and wept until police came to arrest him.

The Wednesday San Diego Tribune reported that, Johnny Lee King, 57, said while in a jailhouse that he robbed the bank Tuesday as a publicity ploy aimed at finding the daughter he abandoned 12 years ago. "I didn't want the money," King, an FBI custody facing bank robbery charges, was quoted as saying. "I didn't want to hurt nobody. I didn't want to try to scare nobody. I just want to find my daughter."

King said he had not seen his daughter, Toni Lee King, since he left her in Michigan 12 years ago when she was 11. He arrived in San Diego Sunday night from Florida believing she may have been adopted in California, where she was born.

King, a single parent, said he abandoned his daughter because he was facing fraud charges at the time and wouldn't be able to support her if he was in prison.

Gary Richrath, lead guitarist for REO Speedwagon, jokes with the crowd while playing during Wednesday's concert.

fans' attention, bassist Bruce Hall and drummer Alan Gratzer proved to be among the most talented, yet underrated, members of the band. Hall and Gratzer worked together to put a driving beat beneath each song, and from "Tough Guys" to "Don't Let Him Go," the importance of their roles was evident.

Keyboardist Neil Daugherty was spotlighted during an inspired version of "Roll With the Changes," after which the band members left the stage, soon to return for a six-song encore that included " Riders the Storm Out," "Don't Let Him Go," "Time For Me To Fly" and an obligatory guitar solo from Richrath.

In one of the best songs of the evening, the band toppled off the encore with its version of "Johnny B. Goode." Georgia Satellites guitarist Rick Richards came on stage to add the sharp guitar sound that was evident in his earlier performance with the Satellites.

The Satellites opened the night with a performance that featured songs from their latest self-titled album. Most of the songs had a bluesy feel that seemed perfect for lead singer Dan Baird's hiccupping whine, and the audience received each song with well-mannered applause.

But when the Satellites performed the hits "Keep Your Hands to Yourself" and "Battlehip Chains," audience members jumpped to their feet to sing along with the band, leading Baird to describe a flashback similar to Cronin's. In reference to the band's performance on Grand Avenue last year, Baird remarked that the scene reminded him a little of Halloween.

Angling for illegal lumpers could be a costly fish story

By JoDe Rimer
Staff Writer

Something fishy is going on at a Southern Illinois lake this season, and if you're an amateur angler, you may be the bait for a $500 fine.
Six areas have limits on the size of fish anglers can keep. Those who don't select their fish with care can be penalized up to $500 per fish, says John Will, a conservation department official.
"It's fairly serious," Will said. "Most people aren't aware of the laws."

Bill Boyd, a U.S. Department of Conservation fishery biologist, said the new limits were established to save the lake's ecosystem. Boyd said the limits have been needed for quite a while.

The new regulations, which become operational this season, will affect Little Crassy, Devil's Kitchen, Kinkaid, Crab Orchard and Cedar lakes, and the Lake of Egypt.

The new limits prohibit the removal of bass that measure from 12 to 15 inches from Little Crassy and Devil's Kitchen; bass that measure 15 inches except hybrid, striped and white bass, which must measure 17 inches or above, from Crab Orchard; bass that measure 15 inches except walleye, which must be from three to 16 inches, and hybrid striped bass, which must be from three to 18 inches at the Lake of Egypt; bass at Cedar Lake must measure 15 inches except striped bass, which must measure 17 inches.

"When there's an imbalance, the whole lake is at stake," Boyd said.

The new limits also have been set to protect medium-sized bass -- from 12 to 15 inches -- Boyd said. Medium-size bass are important fish to have in lakes because they prey on smaller forage fish. Protecting the bass is essential to controlling forage populations and maintaining the health of the lake, Boyd said.

Forage fish reproduce faster than other fish, Boyd said, and controlled populations may disturb the nature of the lake. "Lakes are like little aquaria," Boyd said.

WASHBURN SAID the new limits will affect area fishing groups, but most people respect the limits because the futures of the lakes are at stake.

"I'm surprised it took them this long to set limits," Washburn said.

For professional anglers, like Washburn, determining a medium-sized fish isn't a problem. But amateurs should keep their wits about them when setting the hook, even if they want to take home.

Washburn suggests a measuring device when fishing. She uses a bump-board ruler -- a ruler that can be attached to a boat.

BOYD SAID, "If you handle a lot of fish, you know the sizes, but if you're an amateur, to be legal, you're going to have to bring some sort of measuring stick."

Tom Harris, Carbondale lake and forestry director, said he intends to enforce the new limits and will have people watching anglers illegally keep fish.

Although the limits are new, Harris said he already has made plans for a boat patrol and check-in point at the boat access area.
Nutritionist says self-image linked to 'good or bad' food

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

People often think of themselves as good or bad depending on the types of food they choose to eat, says Kate Zager, nutrition coordinator at the Wellness Center.

Zager, speaking at the Student Center Wednesday at the Wellness Center's "What's New in Nutrition" workshop, said people "generally look at food as good food or bad food," depending on how nutritious it is. Many people then begin to mirror their self-image to the quality of the foods they eat, she said.

"There is a pretty intricate relationship between people and what they eat," Zager said.

PEOPLE OFTEN feel so guilty about choosing food low in nutrition, they begin to think poorly of themselves, she said.

"Because they know what they should do, when they don't do it they look at themselves as being bad, based on their food choices," Zager said.

The workshop was designed to give new information on such aspects of nutrition as eating, food supplements and exercise. Those attending divided into small groups to discuss those issues and then compare their ideas to facts supplied by Zager.

Zager said she believes low-calorie diets, currently a popular wave to lose weight, will lose favor in the next few years because of health aspects.

"WHEN YOU restrict caloric intake, you body feels like it's going into a state of starvation," she said.

A low-calorie diet for a man would usually mean consuming less than 1,500 calories a day and for a woman less than 1,200 calories a day, Zager said.

"Your body's first priority is energy," Zager said. "It wants to feel like it's being steadily fed all day so it can perform all of its functions.

A low calorie diet forces the basal metabolic rate to fall, meaning that the body will burn fewer calories. Thus, eating less still may not lead to weight loss, she said.

Most of the weight lost during diets is muscle, Zager explained. With the loss of that lean muscle tissue, the body increases its proportion of fat, so dieting can actually make a person fatter, she said.

Zager said she's met many college women who worry about trying to maintain their high school weight. She explained that some weight gain is normal and should be expected for women between the ages of 17 and 21. Biologically, women are supposed to have a bit of extra fat as it is necessary during childbearing years, Zager said.

Women can calculate the minimum number of calories they need each day by multiplying their current weight by ten. Then, if they lead a sedentary lifestyle, they should add another 30 percent to that number. If they lead an active lifestyle, 40 to 45 percent should be added.

FOR EXAMPLE, if a woman with a sedentary lifestyle weighed 130 pounds, she would multiply that by ten to get 1,300 calories per day. Then, the extra 30 percent would add another 390 calories to make the total 1,690 calories needed per day.

Zager advised those at the workshop to eat such whole foods as fresh fruits, vegetables and lighter meats including chicken, which is low in fat.

"A low-fat diet is a diet that prevents cancer, prevents heart disease and obesity," Zager said.

Fossils of giant anteater found in North America

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists reported Thursday they have found the first fossil evidence that a giant anteater, a creature up to 7 feet long, once lived in North America.

Writing in the Journal of Science, Christopher Shaw of the George C. Page Museum in Los Angeles and H. Gregory McDonald of the Cincinnati Museum of Natural History said they discovered a wrist bone of the giant anteater in sediments northeast of El Golfo de Santa Clara, Sonora, Mexico.

The scientists said that the fossil bone is identical to the wrist bone of the modern giant anteater that now lives in South America but occasionally ranges as far north as Guatemala and southern Belize. No fossils of the giant anteater have been found in Central America yet.
Members of the Dance Brigade perform "Immigration," the first dance in its "Blood Roots" collection. The Brigade, an all-woman dance troupe, performed Wednesday.

Dance Brigade gives crowd something to think about

By Mary Caudle
Staff Writer

The Dance Brigade gave the audience some strong messages to take home from a collection of performances at Shryock Auditorium Wednesday night.

But the five-member, all-female dance troupe's main message was conveyed by the members themselves: As dancers, they don't fit popular stereotypes. They have muscles rather than dancer-emaciated bodies and they use them to show strength as well as grace.

The dance troupe incorporated theater, comedy, sign language and martial arts into a dance performance collection, "BloodRoots." Covering such wide-ranging topics as the consciousness-raising of women in the 60s to the plight of endangered species, the collection projected a growing awareness and strength in women and others who have been oppressed.

MEMBERS KIM Epifano, Tiona Gundy, Nina Pichter, Krissy Keefer and Maria Pendones proved themselves to be strong dancers and performers throughout the evening in performances that were both imaginative and provocative, often hitting frighteningly close-to-home on social issues.

"Bring the War Home," especially, in its tribute to one woman's transformation during the 60s, captured the plight of the housewife who "cooks and cleans and scrubs the floor when she gets mad" and finally acquires the awareness to scream, "I hate football!"

FORMED THREE years ago as an offshoot of the San Francisco-based dance group Wallflower Order, The Dance Brigade has been bringing social and political messages to the stage since its beginning, according to Krissy Keefer, one of the founders of the group.

"Our messages have sprung from a lot of different things," she said. "Mainly it was that we were coming into awareness of ourselves as feminists. We were all out of college and the women's movement was in full gear and we were joining that.

"AND IT was that combination of having and wanting and needing an audience, which turned out to be the women’s community of Eugene, Ore., that reinforced our feminist messages — the audience reinforces your cause.”

Keef er said the troupe also toured with women’s music singer Holly Near, performing for non-intervention in Chile. “That gave us a whole new sense of ourselves politically,” she said. “All these things have played a part in forming our messages.”

THEY CONSIDER themselves a dance rather than a theatrical company “because that’s our strength and that’s what we’re most innovative in,” Keef er said. “Actually we’re more of a performing experience. We’re performance art but we’re not avant-garde, we’re political.”

Innovative performance techniques in the ‘BloodRoots’ collection included dancers appearing to become 10 feet tall in their rendition of “Go Ask Alice,” simulating an assembly line of immigrant women in the factory in “Immigration,” and the use of sign language in “10th-round” in “If I were 1.”

SNAFFLES OF music, telecasts and dialogue were used between pieces, often adding and expanding on the dancers’ messages. For example, Nina Fichter says at the introduction of a piece in both speech and sign language, “Who you choose to love ... reflects your values.” Human experience was stressed throughout the collection.

“Why people enjoy our performances,” Keef er said. “It’s not about modern dance. It’s about suffering and pain and joy — emotion. Our material is very accessible.”

Despite its success with audiences, The Dance Brigade still has to scramble to make ends meet. “It’s for political reasons,” Keef er explained. “Many people just don’t want to give women money. If we had men in our group and a man as assistant director, we’d have 10 times as much.”

The group tries to make up the difference by selling t-shirts, posters and “passing the hat” at their performances. “And we’ve been lucky that our audience has always been our support,” Keef er added.

The Dance Brigade is planning a tour of Latin America and will perform at the 1987 Michigan Women’s Music Festival. With part-time jobs to support themselves, the members of The Dance Brigade say they enjoy what they’re doing and will continue as long as they can because “it’s not somebody telling us what to do, and we know exactly why we’re doing it,” Keef er said. “It’s ours.”

Being temporarily without medical coverage doesn’t mean you’re temporarily without medical problems.

Saying goodbye to your alma mater may also mean saying goodbye to medical protection. Because students often lose coverage under their family’s medical policy upon graduation.

Mets power by Pirates

NEW YORK (UPI) — Darryl Strawberry homered for the second straight game then doubled to set up the winning run Thursday, giving the New York Mets a 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds hit back-to-back home runs in the sixth inning, staking the Mets to a winning lead.

After the Pirates tied the score, Strawberry led off the seventh with a double off Logan Easley, 0-1, making his major-league debut. Strawberry advanced on an infield out and scored on a sacrifice fly by Howard Johnson.

Cards, Cox club Cubs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Terry Pendleton belted a two-run homer and Vince Coleman scored two runs and stole four bases Thursday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Danny Cox, 1-4, allowed just one hit — a leadoff homer to Ryne Sandberg in the sixth — over 6 1/3 innings. Cox equalled a career high with eight strikeouts, but also walked six.

Todd Worrell pitched the final 2 1/3 innings, relieving Bill Dawley, to earn his first save. St. Louis stole six bases in the game, including the four by Coleman which equalled a career high.

Pendleton, who hit just one homer all last year, hit his two-run shot in the sixth.

Ueberroth says affirmative action or he will resign

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said Wednesday night he would threaten to resign if the sport failed to make progress on affirmative action for blacks and other minorities.

Ueberroth made the assertion on "Nightline," the program where, two nights earlier, Los Angeles Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis made racial remarks prompting his firing.

Asking by moderator Ted Koppel if he would risk his position to improve job opportunities for minorities, Ueberroth said, "Yes."

"I believe strongly in the issue," he said. "We would not have brought it up and gone public with it and blantly said baseball needs to improve late last year if we didn't intend to do something about it. We would have ignored it."

Ueberroth appeared with Oakland Athletics slugger Reggie Jackson and Dr. Harry Edwards, associate professor of sociology at Cal-Berkeley.

During baseball's winter meetings, Ueberroth called for increased opportunities for minorities in baseball. Not one of the 26 teams has a black manager or general manager. Campanis' comments focused new attention on the issue.

"I don't have a reputation for lip service," Ueberroth said. "This is the first year baseball has attacked affirmative action and said, 'Let's get going.' I think we'll have progress that will be substantial."

Campanis, who was in his fifth decade with the Dodgers organization, appeared on "Nightline." Monday. The program focused on Jackie Robinson, who 40 years ago broke baseball's color barrier by playing for the Dodgers.

Campanis said blacks lacked some "necessities" to manage in the big leagues. He issued an apology Tuesday, but Wednesday, the Dodgers requested and received his resignation.

"Obviously, the individual doesn't speak for baseball, he spoke for himself," Ueberroth said. "He doesn't speak for the Dodgers as the Dodgers proved very clearly today."

"But does baseball have a problem? I think we identified it early on in the year. We went public in the largest baseball press conference there is, and said, 'If we're going to honor Jackie Robinson, we better look to opportunities for minorities in baseball."

Intramural Basketball marked the end of season play with the final three championship games held Wednesday night at Davies Gym.

The Blue Moons, 8-1, handily defeated the 8-1 Pretty Boys in the men's A open division with a 60-46 score.

Calling his team the Rodney Dangerfield of Intramurals because "we don't get no respect," team captain Linzi Ledbetter said he was still hopeful about how the team played as it garnered its third 1M championship in four years.

Graduate student Craig Rios, a four-year veteran of the team, agreed with Ledbetter, saying that despite the team's winning 8-7, they have only once been favored.

Rios, with 13 points including three 3-pointers, led scoring for the Blue Moons, followed by Roy Birch with 12 and Mark Etzel and Andre McCaselli with 10 points each.

Anthony Allen and Travis Smith led the Pretty Boys with 10 points each.

Touch-N-Go and The Fellas met for the men's 6-feet-and-under match.

Both teams matched up with 8-1 records and the score stayed close throughout the game. Touch-N-Go's led by two points with eight seconds remaining when the Fellas knotted the score. Going into overtime, Touch-N-Go took the match on a 3-point shooting from the free-throw stripe to win 52-46.

Lead scorer in the match was Denny Baggett of Touch-N-Go with 24 points.

Dave Hogan and Gary Logan of The Fellas hit double-digit scores respectively with 10 and 12 points.

R. Force beat the Soul Patrol in the women's A match with a 26-24 score.

The force was with high scorer Angela Anello as she nailed 16 points for the winners.

Katrina Phillips led scoring for the Soul Patrol with 8 points, which included two three-point shots.

The Soul Patrol had trouble with fouls in the second half and that helped net R. Force 11-50 from the charity stripe.

Pastorini, woman, Porsche drive way to police charges

HOUSTON (UPI) — Former Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini was charged Wednesday with public intoxication and assault for fighting with police officers who stopped his female companion for drunken driving.

Pastorini, who took up professional drag racing after leaving football in 1983, posted $319 bond and was freed shortly after 2 a.m., said police Lt. Al Baker. His companion, Donna Kindred, also posted $500 bond on a drunken driving charge.

The two were arrested after police chased a Porsche driven by Kindred at speeds of up to 90 mph, a police spokesman said.

"Pastorini was in the passenger seat," said the traffic division spokesman, who declined to give his name. "He insisted she was driving only 65. The officers were talking to the driver and Pastorini exited the vehicle and started to stagger around the car. The officers asked him to have a seat in the car."

"Pastorini started cussing at the officers, along with racial slurs to one of the officers. The officer, advised Pastorini he was under arrest for public intoxication. At this time, Pastorini took a swing at one of the officers. The officer ducked, but Pastorini took a swing at the other officer and hit him."

After Pastorini was placed in the back of a police car, he tried to kick out one of the rear windows, the spokesman said. Pastorini, 37, and Kindred were taken to the police station, where a breathalyzer test showed Kindred with a blood alcohol level of 1.2. A level of 10 is considered legally intoxicated.

Pastorini faces a maximum fine of $400 if convicted of both Class C misdemeanor charges.

The undefeated men's rugby team plays host to Eastern Illinois at the rugby pitch south of Abe Martin Field at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Halfback John Brodland says the team looks forward to beating the challengers from Eastern.

Steve Siak, who missed last week's match because of an injured knee, will be back in action for Sunday's game.

WOMENS RUGBY: The battered 3-2 women's rugby team will take on Iowa City rugby in a road match Saturday at 11 a.m.

The team plans on playing sevens, using seven players instead of 15 because of injured players. Padra Quinn is still out of action with a sore leg from the season opener. Anita Coleman remains sidelined with a severely bruised leg that was injured in last week's St. Louis tournament.

A.J. Bishel, also injured in St. Louis, may be out of action for the season. Bishel sustained a broken right hand and hyperextended elbow after being tackled during the first game of the tourney.

Coach tee’d, men golfers try Lick Creek

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

SIU-C men’s golf coach Lew Hartzog wants to see his team play up to the level he feels they’re capable of playing. “I’m really disturbed with the play of a few people,” Hartzog said. “These are better golfers than what the scorecards show this season. And with the exception of last week, I think the weather has been good enough for them to get their games on track.”

Hartzog hopes his Salukis can come through Saturday and Sunday in the nine-team Bradley Invitational at the par-72 Lick Creek Golf Course in Peoria.

“I’m giving the older guys another chance before I try any line-up changes,” Hartzog said. “Next week I’ll make a decision based on this weekend’s performances, and that will be the team I’ll go with in the conference tournament.”

The golfers competing in the Bradley meet are senior co-captains Jay Sala and Mike Tucker and juniors Jeff Mullican and Bobby Pavalonis. Freshman Mike Cowen will get his first crack of the spring at A-team competition after an impressive showing for the B-squad at the SIU-Edwardsville Invitational earlier in the season.

“We had a good week of practice, and if we play like I know we can, we have a good chance in this tournament,” Hartzog said.

The tourney features Missouri Valley Conference rivals Drake, Illinois State and host Bradley. Also competing are Iowa, Iowa State, Northern Iowa, Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois. Hartzog reflected on the Saluki season thus far. “Right now, I’d say we’re looking at fourth in the conference. There’s no question that Tulsa is in the top team, followed by Wichita State and Illinois State. But if a team gets hot while another stumps, anything can happen.”

Dallas kicker plea-bargains for probation, $2,000 fine

DENTON, Texas (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien pleaded guilty Wednesday to indecency with a child and was placed on 10 years probation and fined $2,000.

Septien, accused of fondling a neighbor’s 10-year-old child in December, had been indicted on charges of aggravated sexual assault but entered a guilty plea to the lesser indecency charge as part of a plea-bargain arrangement, said J.W. Johnson of the Denton County district attorney’s office.

Johnson said Septien was granted deferred probation, which means that if he lives up to all the terms imposed by probation officers, he can petition the court in 10 years to have the case removed from his record.

Septien entered the plea before state District Judge John Narunza, who had been scheduled to try him on the sexual abuse charge, a first-degree felony punishable up to 99 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Septien made no statement during the hearing other than to plead guilty, said Johnson. Under terms of his sentence, Septien must undergo counseling, report to a probation officer twice a month and spend 45 days in jail.

The Saluki men’s tennis team will put its four-game winning streak on the line Saturday when St. Louis University invades the Arena tennis courts to challenge the SIU-C in a 2 p.m. match-up.

Aside from being pleased with the recent performances of his youthful lineup, coach Dick LeFevre said he thinks his squad is executing well in all phases of competition. However, he added that there’s still room for stability in the No. 2 and No. 3 doubles pairs.

After the Salukis smashed Evansville 8-1 Tuesday, LeFevre said his troip is on a roll. He said it’s a good idea to have a confident and positive approach -'when competing, but added that when you start thinking you can beat anybody, it sometimes causes the players to slack up in ef-

The veteran coach said it’s important that the players not take a lightweight approach to any of the opposition. Despite not knowing very much about the Billikens’ tennis team, LeFevre said he expects the Salukis to come away from the weekend’s action victorious.

After Saturday’s match-up, SIU-C will have a one-week lay-off before opening up tough Missouri Valley Conference play against the Indiana State Sycamores.

Saluki women get Gateway golf tuneup
By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer
The SIU-C women's golf team swings into action in the 34-hole Missouri Tiger Invitational Saturday and Sunday at the par-72 University of Missouri Golf Course in Columbia, Mo.
"Everybody's been hitting the ball real well," Saluki coach Diane Daugherty said. "We're especially excited about this tournament because all our conference competition will be there and the Gateway championship is only two weeks away.
The Salukis have six of the top individual averages in the Gateway conference this spring. The six will play in this weekend's tourney, with the four lowest scores counting toward the team total.
Junior Tina Kowalowski leads the conference with a 78.1 average through 14 rounds of play. Freshman Julie Shumaker is third with 82.2 through 14 rounds. Senior co-captains Pat Putman and Vicki Higgerston hold the fifth and seventh spots respectively with 82.5 through 15 and 84 through 14. Freshman Lisa Johnson stands at 11th with 84.5 through 10 and sophomore Peggy Ellsworth is 12th with 85.3 through 11.
The Salukis will contend in an 11-team field featuring Gateway Conference foes Illinois State, Northern Iowa, Southwest Missouri State and Wichita State. Big Eight schools Iowa State, Kansas, Nebraska and host Missouri are also slated to compete, in addition to Mississippi and Stephens College (Columbia, Mo).
"I've played this course and it's pretty tough," said Daugherty, a former volleyball and softball coach at Stephens College. "Realistically, with such strong teams as Iowa State and Kansas, I'd be pleased if we could place in the top three."
After this weekend's action, the Salukis will return to Carbondale to prepare for the Gateway Conference Championship Tournament to be held April 24-25 at Wichita, Kan.

Schramm issued a terse, one-line statement Wednesday, saying, "The matter has been resolved by the court. Septline is still a member of the football team."
"The court has made its ruling and hopefully the matter is now closed," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry.
The veteran NFL kicker had maintained his innocence to the charge, which prosecutors said occurred Dec. 27 in the Denton County suburb of The Colony.
Septline is the Cowboys' leading career scorer with 874 points.

INJURIES
SLow track women enroute to Miami of Ohio
By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer
Key injuries could make this weekend an adventure for the SIU-C women's track team as it journeys to Miami of Ohio.
All-America middle distance runner Carlon Blackman and 400-meter specialist Angie Nunn are questionable for the Miami Invitational. Both have pulled hamstring-injuries sustained at the SEmotion Relays in Cape Girardeau last weekend.
Field event specialist Rhonda McNeil is also questionable, and appears to be suffering from a pinched nerve in her neck, although trainers are still uncertain of the nature of the injury.
Once again, the Salukis are faced with a tough field that includes Purdue and Gateway foes Illinois State and Indiana State, along with Ohio State, Miami (Ohio), Ball State and Central Michigan.
The Salukis have faced Purdue many times this season, and have had trouble competing with the Boilermakers-long-distance runners and overall team depth. Ohio State features a strong sprint squad, while Illinois State's Angie Taylor (sprints and long jump) and Rosalind Casady (distance) are familiar rivals.
The Salukis last faced Illinois State and Purdue at the SEmotion Relays last Friday and Saturday.
Salukis resume MVC action
Baseballers battle Braves in Peoria pairs
By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The baseball Salukis, having already bettered their Missouri Valley Conference record of a year ago, will meet their second conference foe, the Bradley Braves, for Saturday and Sunday doubleheaders in Peoria.

SIU-C, which is 3-1 in MVC play and 21-7 overall, has played only the Creighton Bluejays to start the MVC schedule this weekend in Omaha, Neb.

Saluki coach Richard "Itch" Jones' squad will move toward defending its league title when it meets the Braves. Bradley dropped three of four to SIU-C last season at Abe Martin Field.

Bradley flashes a 2-1 mark this season and its starting rotation of Paul DeJanes, Mike Boyer, Roger Smithberg and Brian Dour sports a combined record of 16-4.

DeJanes holds a 1.74 ERA and a 1-1 record. He's struck out 42 in 42.2 innings pitched.

The Salukis' ace hurler, Dale Kisten has a 1.90 ERA. The senior from Des Plaines has fanned 36 batters in 42.2 innings this year.

Kisten struck out 11 in last weekend's MVC opener against the Creighton Bluejays. He went the distance and raised his record to 5-1.

Another top Saluki hurler is Todd Neibel, who is 3-1 on the season. Netzel finished last season with a 5.84 ERA, but has improved.

Chris Bend, a freshman pitcher from Chestertown, Ind., is the Salukis' lader in the W-L column at 4-0. Bend struck out 15 in 23.2 innings pitched.

Bradley will test the Salukis' fielding skills when it sends its best hitting hitter, Tim Foley, to the plate. In the Braves' first 27 games this season, Foley hit .400 with six home runs, three doubles and .28 RBI.

Darren Epley is another offensive power for the Braves. Epley hit .390 with 12 doubles and 26 RBI in his first 27 games. Both Foley and Epley fall behind Saluki Jim Limperis in the batting average department.

Limperis, in the same number of games, hit .414 with 27 RBI, six doubles and one homer. SIU-C's first baseman proved he can come through in the clutch, having hit a game-winning RBI this season.

Nicklaus enjoys tough course conditions

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The world's greatest players took a nasty beating from one of the world's greatest golf courses Thursday.

With the winds rushing through the pines at the Augusta National Golf Club and with the greens taking on the consistency of concrete, the opening round of the Masters turned into a day of survival.

John Cook survived the best shooting a 3-under-par 69 that gave him a one-shot lead with three long rounds to go. Close behind, however, were many of the game's superstars, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus who lined up to make a run at the year's first major championship.

One after another, the elite field of 86 competitors found all-but-impossible puts on the glassy greens.

"The average player wouldn't have a clue how to hit a putt on these greens," said two-time Masters champion Tom Watson, whose opening-round 71 put him in position to challenge for his first win in three years. "The golf course is playing just like I thought it would. There won't be many scores under par when this tournament is over. And that's the way it should be."

Watson joined Nicklaus, traditional challenger Tom Kite, former Masters titholders Bernhard Langer and Steve Billettserre, 1986 British Open champion Greg Norman and youthful stars Corey Pavin and Payne Stewart among the front-runners Thursday.

But on a sunny, blustery day which saw the Augusta National course put forth its most formidable defense, Cook was one of the few unscathed.

"The greens have to be as fast as I've ever seen," said Cook, an eight-year tour veteran who has not won in four years. "At No. 16 I had one of the scariest putts of my life. If the ball had missed the hole it would have rolled to the front edge of the green."

Instead, Cook made a 12-foot birdie at the 17th and birdied the 18th as well to grab the lead. One shot behind at 2-under 70 was Augusta native Larry Mine, who birdied the final two holes.

At 71 came Watson, Langer, Pavin, Stewart, Calvin Peete and Curtis Strange, who was 3-under through nine holes but became one of many to run afoul of the wind and the greens during his trip around the treacherous back side.

Mac O'Grady, Jay Haas and 50-year-old Tommy Aaron, Scott Simpson and D.A. Weiskopf were at 72 while the group at 73 included Ken Rutledge, Norman, David Graham, Lanny Wadkins and Masters single-round holder Nick Price.

Nicklaus shot a 74, the same score he posted in the opening round last year before coming back to win his fifth title. He could have shot a much lower score Thursday had he been able to add par to the two pars on the back nine.

Nicklaus, who finished second at the par-5 13th which he left too far for the pin. But he hit the bank in front of the green and jumped back into Rae's Creek. That resulted in a double bogey and he took four to get down from the back edge of the 15th for a bogey.

Augusta masters pros, wins round 1

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — An opening round 74 left Jack Nicklaus in a position he has often found comfortable — five shots off the lead and a little more room to grow.

The six-time Masters champion said he often endured rather than mastered the swift greens at Augusta National Golf Club Thursday. But he appreciated the challenge.

"We don't see conditions like this on the tour," Nicklaus, 47, said. "You've got to stay composed, you've got to be patient. You've got to know when to be aggressive and when not to be aggressive. You've got to know when to take your lumps, and when to try and get some of those lumps back."

"I like it hard and fast."

The 74 was the same score he opened with a year ago, when he was six shots off the lead after one round, and the fact that he played the two par 5s in the back nine in 5-over par gave Nicklaus hope that he could score better in the final three rounds.

Board okays $1.81 million to fix stadium

By Darci Allen

Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees Thursday approved the funding mechanisms for the $1.81 million renovation of McAndrew Stadium.

The ramp track, artificial turf and field lighting will be replaced.

At a meeting at the SIU School of Medicine in Springfield, the board voted to increase $500,000 in revenue bonds to help pay for the $410,000 in field replacement. The rest of the money will come from a student recreation, repair, replacement and modernization reserve fund, says Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Refurbishing of the track and artificial turf is expected to take place in time for the fall baseball season.

Work on the lights, which is estimated at $360,000, will be delayed until more money is available.

Swinburne said the work will not interfere with the athletic fee students already pay.

McAndrew's Astroturf was replaced in 1979 and the track was resurfaced in 1981. Weather and heat have been causes for deterioration that has some university officials concerned about the safety of the athletes.

Student fees, user fees and interest on a bond will be used to repay the bonds. Officials estimate that the bond sale arrangements will allow the University to issue revenue bonds up to $1 million to cover changes that may be necessary in the field and facilities.

They don't anticipate having to use the emergency fund.

Further approval for the project is up to administrators from the Illinois Board of Higher Education.
