Serb rebels provoke 2nd air attack

Los Angeles Times

SARAJEVO, Bosnia Herzegovina—Serb rebels, angered by a NATO air attack, provoked a second bombing raid Monday by defiantly intensifying an artillery assault on the town of Gorazde, barricading U.N. troops in Sarajevo and severing contacts with mediators trying to broker peace.

Serb tank and artillery fire on the densely populated eastern Bosnian city that is a U.N.-designated "safe haven" continued even after two U.S. F-18 jets bombed rebel artillery positions for a second day.

The air strikes destroyed one Serb tank and damaged two others, Maj. Dacre Holloway, a U.N. spokesman, confirmed after the American war planes dropped three bombs on the rebel position at 2:19 p.m. local time.

'Safe zones' reason for action—Clinton

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—After months of division and disarray over Bosnia policy, President Clinton and his senior advisers now appear to be committed to the selective use of airstrikes to block Serb land grabs and try to pound the Serbs back to the bargaining table.

But the Serbs continued to bombard the mostly Muslim enclave of 65,000, inflicting the heaviest casualties on the civilian population since the offensive began two weeks ago, according to U.N. officials and Western relief workers in Gorazde.

A French physician from the international

Clinton and his senior foreign policy advisers said Monday that the airstrikes will continue until the Serbs cease their attacks on Gorazde. They said the air campaign could be expanded to other U.N.-designated "safe areas," both to curb Serb attacks and to relief group Doctors Without Borders told reporters here in a ham radio exchange that 62 had been killed in the previous 24 hours, bringing the two-week death toll to more than 150.

The unrelenting attack prompted British Lt. Gen. Michael Rose, the U.N. commander for Bosnia, to threaten further reprisals unless the belligerence stopped speedily. "You've got 10 minutes or you get it again," Holloway quoted Rose as telling Serbs in his final warning.

The last heavy artillery shell reported by U.N. monitors in the besieged pocket landed at 4:09 p.m. local time, said Maj. Rob Annink, chief spokesman for the 13,000-strong U.N. mission in Bosnia. That was about 25 minutes after Rose's ultimatum, and shells continued to fall farther south for another hour, other U.N. sources reported.

The defiant posture of the rebels, who massively outgun the Bosnian government forces but present a pitiful match for NATO, suggested a deadly showdown may be in the Council discusses decrease in budget

By Diane Dove
City Reporter

The city budget, which is $1.1 million less than Carbondale's current budget, was reviewed by the City Council at a special meeting Monday night and is expected to be approved next week.

The council is proposing $2.7 million for the fiscal year 1995 budget. Last year's budget was $2.5 million. The completion of the new water treatment plant construction is the main reason for the decrease, according to City Manager, Jeff Doherty.

The proposed budget for the general government, which funds the City Council, police, fire and development services, totals $10.9 million—an increase of $1 million from last year.

Police protection and animal control would receive $5.6 million from the budget, $189 thousand more than what is projected to be spent, and $271,000 more than what was authorized in last year's budget.

The budget would award $1.6 million to the fire department, $1,560,000 more than what was authorized in last year's budget, but $160,000 less than what is expected to be spent.

The proposed budget projects a 2.3 percent increase from the fiscal year 1994 budget in general government revenues because of growth in sales tax and other revenues, Doherty said.

Senate to respond to initiative

By Katie Morrison
Administration Reporter

The SIUC Faculty Senate will meet today to recommend streamlining courses in two colleges in response to the Illinois Board of Higher Education's Priorities, Quality and Productivity initiative.

The initiative is the board's statewide effort to reduce excess spending at state universities and colleges by cutting unnecessary programs, such as those with low enrollment. The effort was implemented in the 1992 fall semester.

According to the senate's agenda, the College of Agriculture could be revamped with the recommended one program cut, consolidation of two specializations and a bachelor's degree addition.

The college's Department of Agricultural Education and Mechanization could be cut and tenured faculty would be reassigned to either a different department within the college or the Department of Workforce Education and Development within the College of Education, according to the agenda.

Faculty Senate President James Orr said tenured faculty would be placed in a department fitting their expertise.

Orr said untenured faculty are not guaranteed new positions if the department is eliminated because they do not have status tenured faculty hold.

RUSSIA UPSET OVER BOSNIA AIRSTRIKES — MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin reacted with indignation Monday that Washington had not consulted with Moscow before launching airstrikes against Serb forces in Bosnia, and Russian officials warned the West not to get sucked deeper into the Balkans war. But while the Kremlin suggested that NATO's action was wrong-headed, it stopped short of condemning the airstrikes outright. Yeltsin's special envoy for the region said he was miffed at the United Nations, but also said Serbs had misled him by assuring Russia they had no intention of attacking the Bosnian Muslim town of Gorazde. In a telephone conversation with President Clinton after the strikes were underway, Yeltsin said he warned that Moscow would not be ignored.

PEACE TALKS CONTINUE IN MIDDLE EAST — CAIRO, Egypt — Negotiators here have lost hope of concluding an agreement on Palestinian self-rule before a self-imposed Wednesday target date. But they edged on Monday toward an accord on civil administration and releasing thousands of Palestinian prisoners from Israeli jails. Chief Palestinian negotiator Nabil Shaath said most of the roadblocks that emerged in last week's difficult talks have been overcome. But he said the two sides will probably have to accept that there will be no withdrawal this week of Israeli forces from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho, as was foreseen in a historic declaration of principles signed last September in Washington.

SOUTH KOREA'S ECONOMY GAINS STRENGTH — SEOUL, South Korea — The rhetoric from North Korea is bellicose, and a fearsome array of North Korean artillery and missile launchers menaces this South Korean capital from a short distance. Yet South Korea's economy is booming along as if there were nothing to worry about — which most people here seem to think. The city limits of Seoul, a traffic-choked sprawl of office towers, hotels and apartment blocks, lie just 20 miles from the demilitarized zone separating the two Koreas. A bombardment by the communist North would not only kill and maim vast numbers of Seoul's 10 million residents, but would devastate one of Asia's miracle economies.

THERAPY PLAN SCAMS OVERWEIGHT PEOPLE — LOS ANGELES — Overweight and suffering from stress, Michael, a New Yorker, had flown cross-country to attend what was advertised as a weight-loss clinic in sunny Southern California. But when Michael reached Los Angeles, he was shocked to find himself booked into a psychiatric hospital in a run-down section of suburban Bellflower where he was diagnosed as suffering from psychotic depression and bulimia — conditions he denies ever having. Michael's is one of many stories emerging from federal and state lawsuits in Los Angeles in which insurers accuse A Place for Us of enlisting doctors and hospital staff to falsify diagnoses and medical records in order to obtain payment for treatment that — whatever its value to patients — was not covered by their health plans.

FAA MIGHT CANCEL COMPUTER CONTRACTS — WASHINGTON — Until now the Federal Aviation Administration has contended it could force back on track its Advanced Automation System, which would replace thousands of aging computers and related software in the nation's air traffic control system. But after a program once pegged at $2 billion had escalated to potentially $7 billion, officials are considering canceling parts of the contract, moving to off-the-shelf equipment or hiring new contractors.

CHILD CARE CHALLENGED IN REPORT — WASHINGTON — "A staggering number" of this country's youngest citizens are part of a "quiet crisis" that gets scant attention from policy-makers, the media and the public, the Carnegie Corp. of New York charges in a new report. Among the troubling findings for many of the 12 million children under age 3 in the United States: — More than 25 percent are born to unmarried women. About every minute, an American adolescent has a baby. — One-quarter of women get little or no prenatal care. — Infants are the fastest-growing category of children entering foster care. — One in three victims of physical abuse is a baby.

Sporting events, directing rule senior's life

By Melissa Edwards
Entertainment Reporter

It would be an understatement to say SIUC student Dave Shimkus is a sports fan.

Shimkus, a senior in radio-television from South Holland, is no minor league player.

In addition to being the sports director for both WSU and the SIUC Night Report, he produces and hosts "SIUC Sports Weekly," is a member of Alpha Epsilon Rho and is one of the top 25 seniors at SIUC.

Sports Weekly is his baby. He developed the idea for the show at the end of last year, and through a lot of volunteer work and a $10 gallon of paint, he put the show together.

The show is a six-minute wrap-up of Saluki sports, including a spoof, which features an athlete of the week competing against one of the Sports Weekly reporters.

"Radio is a charge, a thrill," he said. "But TV is more invigorating. I love the recognition."

Shimkus is intense when he talks about his work, but to accomplish what he does in a day requires dedication. He describes himself as outgoing, motivated and disciplined.

"I arrived this morning at 5 a.m. (to work at WSU) and I'm still here (at 5:30 p.m.)," he said.

Shimkus, who was in the Marines before coming to SIUC, said those students who only have good grades but do not get involved in campus activities are missing out on what could benefit them in the future.

There is a simple reason Shimkus is so involved in his activities.

"It's not like work—I love to do it, and I may not get the opportunity

Bilingual elementary teacher stresses culturalism in class

By Doug Durso
General Assignment Reporter

Raised in a rough section of East Los Angeles where gangs rule the street, people told Chicago teacher Avela Coronado-Greeley she was inferior because of her Mexican heritage—now hard work has made her the best teacher in Illinois.

Avela Coronado-Greeley, the 1993-94 Illinois Teacher of the Year, spoke about her philosophies of teaching Monday at SIUC. She teaches third grade at Inter-American Magnet School in Chicago.

Coronado-Greeley, the first teacher of Mexican descent and bilingual to win the award, said her dream is to integrate the Mexican and English cultures so students can understand both ways of life.

She started a bilingual Inter-American Magnet School in Chicago 1975 to integrate English and Spanish cultures.

Coronado-Greeley

Coronado-Greeley said she became a teacher because she wanted her daughters to understand both Mexican and English backgrounds.

"As soon as the children were born I spoke to them in Spanish and my husband, who is Irish-American, talked to them in English, so the children were bilingual," she said. "I knew they would enter school bilingual, but come out English-dominated, and be ashamed of me for being Mexican."

Coronado-Greeley said her children would be ashamed because Mexican people are viewed as busboys, gardeners and migrant workers—not as heads of universities or teachers of the year.

"I decided at that point to open a public school which taught bilingual language and cultures," she said.

Coronado-Greeley said she opened the school in Chicago in 1975, with a friend who formerly directed a bilingual school in Mexico.

She said students raised in both English and Mexican cultures learn the language and culture from teachers and each other. Students then tell their parents what they learned and parents spread the multi-cultural knowledge through

Trustee seat available soon

By Marc Chase
General Assignment Reporter

Students hear of important decisions the SIUC Board of Trustees must make, but few realize that an elected SIUC student serves on this board to protect students' interests.

Student Trustee Mark Kochan is running for reelection this year on the Progressive Party ballot against Matt Parsons, Unity Party candidate. The two candidates will debate April 18 and elections are April 20.

Kochan said with the upcoming elections, it is important students know what the job entails.

"Many students don't know what being a student trustee is all about," Kochan said. "Consequently, they don't even bother to vote for a trustee on election day."

The board is comprised of nine members. The state governor and legislature appoint seven who have six-year terms and students at SIUC and SIU at Edwardsville elect two student trustees who each serve a one-year term.

Kochan said it is necessary for students to vote for student trustees because they represent the views of students on proposed fee increases and tuition hikes. He said in his position, he works with student government to develop recommendations and legislation to bring before the trustees.

"The most important function of student trustees is to represent graduates and undergraduates by building a consensus between Undergraduate Student Government, the Graduate and Professional Student Council and various registered student organizations," Kochan said.

Kochan said many students are unaware of the student trustee's responsibilities even though it is one of the highest

College of Science presents honors to SIUC standouts for grade points

By Stephanie Moletti
Special Assignment Reporter

SIUC's College of Science honored the top 10 percent of the 1,556 majors within the college during Honors Day, Sunday.

The college recognized 43 students for academic excellence with scholarships and awards and acknowledged students with outstanding grade-point averages.

Daniel T. Gierman and Yuzo Toya received the Stan Harris Award from the Geology Department. The award was based on scholarship, need and activities within the department.

In addition, Gierman received the Casey Lepp Memorial Scholarship as a part of the geology alumni memorial scholarships. Toya received a second award also, the George H. Fraunfelter Geology Fund.

Marion George awarded Shasta Back the William George Memorial Award. George said the award is to encourage students to pursue graduate studies in zoology.

"I don't think my husband would have approved of an award in his name, but I know he would have approved of its purpose," George said.

Scott B. Franklin, Sharon D. Klavins and Virginia A. Skeel all were recipients of the James E. Ozment Achievement Award in Natural History. The award is given to students outstanding in the study of Natural History.

Allison B. West was awarded the John W. Voigt Natural History of Plants Award. West said the award took her by surprise.

"I was not expecting it at all," she said. "It felt good to have my department behind me and it gives me a push in my studies." Chien-Ching was the recipient of the Hal Stone Memorial Chemistry Scholarship for an outstanding academic record.

Other recipients of Geology Alumni Memorial Scholarships include Paul Hilchen, the Ed Cox Memorial Scholarship; Jennifer Crawford, the Jo Porter Memorial Scholarship and James M. Durbin and Jennifer Higgins, the Geology Grant Activities Scholarship—American Federation of Mineralogical Societies.

Liberal Arts College recognizes students for high academics

By Melissa Edwards
Entertainment Reporter

Honors students and Olympic winners have more in common than people may think, John S. Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts says.

Honor students throughout the college gathered Sunday at McCleod Theater to reap some of the rewards for their hard work and dedication.

"These are our gold-medal scholars," Jackson said.

Students who have achieve a grade-point average of 3.5 or higher received certificates.

Those who received college and departmental honors also were recognized.

Vikki Stout, a senior in art education and metalsmithing from Morton Grove, won the Charles D. Tenny Memorial Scholarship and said she was surprised by the honor.

"It was unexpected—it's been a hard semester," she said.

"I guess good things happen when you least expect (them)."

Carl Sullens, a senior in history from Salem, also said he did not expect to win the William A. Pitkin Memorial Scholarship.

"(Studying) is one of my main activities," he said.

Diane Taub, SIUC associate professor in psychology, received the Outstanding Teacher Award and Robert Corruccini, a professor in anthropology, won the Facts on Singapore need to be analyzed

FACT NO. 1: SINGAPORE CURRENTLY HAS ONE of the lowest crime rates in the WORLD, today.

Fact No. 2: Singapore's population consists of four distinctly different races, namely, Chinese, Malay, Indian and Eurasian. These people live in harmony in integrated housing estates. There is no exclusive area designated for any race per se, no ghetto colonies, no suburbs dominated by one race.

Fact No. 3: Homelessness does not exist in Singapore.

Fact No. 4: Unemployment is zero in Singapore. People have jobs if they want them.

Fact No. 5: Possession of drugs and firearms can result in the death penalty for the possessor. We are talking about possession, NOT the use of.

Fact No. 6: Buying a car is one of the most expensive investments people can make in Singapore. There is a flat 250 percent tax on all imported cars, and because the republic does not manufacture cars, this goes for every single car in Singapore.

In addition, one must obtain a Certificate of Entitlement to buy a car. These certificates are obtained through bids, and bids have been known to skyrocket, as was the case last December, to $6-7,000 per certificate. This is $63,000 that must be spent before the person even gets to see a car.

THESE FACTS MIGHT INTEREST SOME READERS who do not know much about Singapore and its makeup. Details about car ownership will perhaps make sense when one relates this to the case of Michael P. Fay, of Dayton, Ohio. This name and its link with Singapore has caused much reaction in the United States among citizens, the news media, and even the president.

Fay was sentenced to six strokes of the cane, four months in prison and was fined $2,230 for spray-painting 18 cars in Singapore and stealing several street signs.

President Clinton has deplored caning as excessive, Clinton said, "We recognize that they (Singapore) have a certain right to enforce their own criminal laws, but we believe that, based on the fact and treatment of other cases, similar cases, that this punishment is extreme, and we hope very much that somehow it will be reconsidered."

The Singapore government told Clinton, in not so many words, to mind his own business and there would be no special treatment for Fay because he was a U.S. citizen.

Surprisingly, many people have written to the news media and media personalities, including Mike Royko, emphasizing their satisfaction at the punishment, and some even went as far as to say that if the United States had the same laws, they would be a crime deterrent.

THE FACTS AND DATA SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES, once you get to know the country a little better, and perhaps they will reveal why this island republic has the need for such harsh laws. Perhaps the end results do not always justify the actions, but try telling that to a people who have roofs over their heads, food to eat every day, an economy that is booming, the busiest port in the world, one of the greenest and cleanest countries in the world despite industrialization, and a tourist industry that is the country's biggest revenue maker.

Fay acted the way he did in a place where the government has a strong presence, a country where criminal acts are looked at seriously and dealt with severely, to deter the criminal or anyone else, from committing that crime again. There may be a lesson to be learned from the republic of Singapore.

Fay was wrong and should pay for the crime appropriately.

Welfare must be terminated

College students pursue undergraduate, and graduate, degrees with the hope of getting a job after graduation. If our families expect this of us, as it not fair for the government to expect the same. Apparently the government feels they have no right to ask lots of the American people, as they shell out untold billions of dollars to people who refuse to work.

Many people on welfare didn't even finish their high school education, let alone a two to four year degree. As the son of two Public Aid caseworkers I was subjected to the horror stories of those who abuse the system.

Welfare has grown so large, that people who really can work, but choose not to, draw several welfare checks a month. This practice needs to end. The Democrats who claim to be reforming the welfare system expand it or give it more tax money (e.g. The proposed gaming tax, slated for welfare reform.) These increased expenditures is almost as if we placed a large hole under the Federal Reserve.

Those who say the "Republicans are for preserving the division between rich and poor, should look more closely at the beloved Democratic Party. Giving somebody a check(s) every month not only produces nothing but also fails to elevate impoverished people from their plight. Maybe, if we were to end welfare completely these people would actually try something novel, like working for a living. If we don't terminate the welfare system now, we may as well change our name to the Welfare State of America.

—R. Robert Caillouet, freshman, financial management

Book rental proposal will cut student's cost

Maybe the University Bookstore and 750 will finally stop making a profit on the SU students.

I just read about the proposal of a book rental system written by senator John Shull and Jamn Bathon. As a non-traditional student and a pre-nursing major, it is impossible to come up with enough money each semester for books. Science and Health related books cost between $50 and $100 each or more each semester. When you need two or three of these books, plus general education books, the cost is very high. 710 and University book stores buy back books, but what they give is a joke, these businesses are in the market for money, not to help the students.

So to John and Jamn, Thanks To the SU administration, "Wake-up!!! If Eastern and Edwardsville are doing the book rental system, why aren't we."

—Ronald M. Gill, junior, pre-nursing

Cartoon inaccurately portrays Farrakahn

This letter is in reference to the cartoon editorial that compared the KLU KLUX KLAN to Minister Farrakahn, April 5, 1994.

The honorable minister Louis Farrakahn and the Nation of Islam represents strength, unity, pride and the preservation of a mighty race of people who seek peace and peace only.

The KKK are the fathers of destruction and darkness. The KKK are responsible for many of the most vicious, inhumane crimes committed on this planet we call Earth. The extermination of the black man and woman by any means necessary has always been the KKK's supreme fantasy. They have literally raped and robbed many black communities. The KKK's rapsheet speaks for itself.

Farrakahn has never murdered, raped or prayed for the destruction of another race of people. He only prays for the resurrection of his own.

Many of our inner city youths are caught up in a frenzy of self destruction, and the nation offers help 130 years after slavery. There are still many inequalities and injustices within this society. Minister teaches self help and self pride to help overcome many of these barriers.

Most of the KKK's that I've seen claim to be law abiding Christians. I don't think Jesus would approve of cross burning and lynching.

Farrakahn and the Nation of Islam do not promote such a thing.

Minister Farrakahn may not be a hero at all, including many African Americans. But to compare him to the KKK is inept.

The people who make such comparisons have little knowledge of the man and his teachings, or have let others formulate their opinion. No man's perfect, but to compare the CC to Farrakahn was imponderable and simply foul.

I consider all people my brother's and sister's as my light bronze skin is my witness. Witness to the facts that I am African, I am American Indian and who knows what else. The KKK represents the destruction of my people, Farrakahn breathes life for my people.

I remember Farrakahn's warm greetings whenever I passed his fence. I remember playing pick-up basketball games with his sons. From the ages of 14-24, I have never witnessed any lynching, rapes, murders, cross burnings, vulgarity, beer drinking, smoking or drugs being dealt by my most humble neighbor.

to see those not tenured are placed elsewhere," Orr said. "We hope they are all placed."

The senate also will vote on changing the name of the college's Department of Plant and Soil Science to Plant, Soil and General Agriculture and offering a bachelor's degree in general agriculture from that department.

The college could merge specializations in agricultural education and agricultural information into a new unit and the agriculture mechanization specialization would be renamed Agricultural Technologies.

Further, the senate will vote to move a bachelor's degree in Communications Disorders and Sciences to Rehabilitation Services with three specializations in communication disorders and sciences, physical therapist assistant certification and rehabilitation science located in the College of Education, according to the agenda.

Other items on the agenda include adding a specialization in management information systems at the bachelor's degree in management in the College of Business and Administration and adding a student volunteer community service course to the curriculum.

Leslie Sheets, senate chairperson of the Undergraduate Education Policy Committee, said the community-service course would fulfill a state mandate that universities offer a volunteer course.

Sheets said credit received from the course would not be applicable to graduation requirements or eligibility for athletics, financial aid, student-loan status or University honors.

"The credit is an acknowledgment of the work or service you have done," he said.

Orr said although the initiative may be fueling streamlining efforts, the colleges eventually would upgrade curriculum on their own.

"They (the colleges) should be doing it (streamlining) whether PQP suggests it or not," he said.

The Faculty Senate meets at 1 p.m. today in the Student Center's Mississippi Room.

offing between the Serb nationalists who have occupied 70 percent of Bosnia and the Western powers that have long relied on a primary in their frustrated effort to stop the war.

The Serb actions were a coordinated effort at belligerence after the first deadly air strike Sunday and demonstrated that the rebels were not yet prepared to back down.

Gunned loyal to Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and Gen. Ratko Mladic, his fiercely nationalist military commander, erected barricades across the sole access road to Sarajevo airport and barred U.N. personnel, diplomats and foreign journalists from entering or leaving the city.

All humanitarian relief flights and aid convoys were suspended as a security precaution, and a U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees official in Sarajevo reported what appeared to be deliberate targeting of the relief agency's staff and facilities in Gorazde. One shell landed so close to the U.N. refugee agency office that it blew out the windows and sent the staff running for cover in basement shelters, said agency spokesman Kris Jarowski.

The 13 U.N. military personnel in the enclave also came under sniper fire from Serb positions and were forced to take cover in their bunkers, U.N. sources said.

A statement issued from Karadzic's mountain stronghold in Pale, about 10 miles east of here, said the Bosnian Serbs were breaking all contacts with the U.N. Protection Force.

The only remaining channel of communication to the rebels appears to be Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Vitaly S. Churkin, who met with Serb leaders in Belgrade, then headed for consultations with Karadzic and Mladic.

Churkin expressed confidence after his talks with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic that he could rescue the negotiations aimed at an overall peace settlement in Bosnia.

persuade the Serbs that they have no choice but to return to peace negotiations.

Following Russian objections, administration officials asserted that the NATO planes were simply acting under authority of a U.N. resolution authorizing "close air support" for U.N. peacekeeping troops under siege—12 U.N. military observers, in the case of Gorazde.

In practice, however, the administration's invocation of the U.N. resolution appears to be little more than a fig leaf to justify a much wider role for NATO airpower in a conflict where Western military powers have previously professed strict neutrality. Administration officials said, in effect, that they have given the senior U.N. commander in Bosnia, British Lt. Gen. Michael Rose, virtual carte blanche to call in airstrikes whenever he deems it necessary.

"It will be up to the United Nations commander," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said at a briefing Monday. He said the Serbs should understand that the United States and NATO "stand ready to act again if necessary."

Madeline K. Albright, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said on NBC Monday the Gorazde model could be applied to other U.N.-designated "safe areas" where peacekeepers are threatened by Serb attacks. "We'll have to see as far as the other safe areas are concerned," Albright said. "I do think, however, that what has happened in Gorazde... should be seen as a signal for the other safe havens." Administration officials expressed hope that no further airstrikes would be necessary, citing intelligence estimates that Serb forces had achieved most of their territorial goals even before the latest assault on Gorazde.

"Everyone hopes the Serbs will get the message and calm down," said a senior Pentagon official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Still, the official added, the Serbs "are extremely irritated by this.... This is the question that has been hanging over the use of airpower from the very start. Once you cross the line and engage, are you going to provoke a reaction or will they get the message that they shouldn't fool around with Gorazde?"

Russia also remained something of a wild card in the administration's plans. Russian President Boris Yeltsin expressed irritation that his country was not consulted prior to the airstrikes, Clinton said. But administration officials also expressed hope that Russia, traditional ally of the Serbs, could use its influence to force a more compliant posture.

Clinton asked Yeltsin for his help during their phone conversation Monday, a senior administration official said.

At the same time, Clinton joined other administration officials Monday in seeking to prepare the public for the possibility of further airstrikes.

projected at about $11 million in the proposed budget.

Doherty said the budget was planned around four main goals: To promote economic development and community growth, to provide quality services with fiscal responsibility; to encourage citizen participation and community pride; and to strengthen and promote neighborhood living.

"When we look at our goals and objectives, we're looking not only at FY95, we're looking at our future as well," Doherty said.

Mayor Neil Dillard praised the council's work in keeping the budget down, saying "I think the council has done well to help us keep our budget in line so we can move into the later part of the 90s."

Asian-American students unite

By Angela Hyland
Minorities Reporter

SIUC student Thuhien Nguyen joined the International Student Council to have a more active role in voicing concerns, but was told she would be ineligible to run for a leadership position.

The council allows only international students to run for president and because Nguyen, an Asian American, is a U.S. citizen, she was disqualified.

"That's when I realized that we needed to start a group for Asian Americans," she said.

The United Asian American Coalition was formed last semester and currently is taking an active role in organizing activities for Asian American Awareness month.

Nguyen said it is common for people to overlook the needs of Asian Americans because ethnicity is seen before citizenship.

International students view Asian Americans primarily as U.S. citizens, while Caucasians perceive them as minorities, she said.

"We get mixed up with international students because we all look alike — at least that's what someone from another (European) culture would say," Nguyen said.

Coalition member Matt Jang said he hopes the organization, which formed last semester, will help change stereotypes.

Many Caucasians perceive Asian Americans as mentally superior, yet physically inferior to the majority of the population, Jang said. He added that he would like people to see the individual rather than the stereotype.

"We have to deal with racism just like any other minority," Jang said. Nguyen said she would like to see the coalition become an umbrella group for all Asian American groups, having duties similar to the Black Affairs Council.

The need for such an organization is evident by the number of students in attendance, she said.

"We have new members coming every single meeting," she said. "We're growing very fast."

The coalition now has about 40 official members, but she said other students attend who have not chosen to join and pay the $10 membership dues.

At a recent Midwest conference at the University of Illinois, 31 Asian-American students attended, more than any other group in the area.

Coalition member Teresa Lu said the number was large because of difficulties facing Asian Americans.

During her first week at SIUC, a student told Lu the only reason she was accepted into the graduate program was because she was a minority.

"I'm tired of having people look at me and that's what they see," she said.

Lu said it upset her that a person could make a judgment about her capabilities without knowing her.

Rwandan death tolls 20,000; foreigners evacuate country

Los Angeles Times

BRUSSELS, Belgium—Arid continued fighting and tales of horrific carnage, the emergency evacuation of Westerners from Rwanda gathered pace Monday as more than 100 Belgian nationals were flown out of the country and others awaited rescue in the beleaguered capital, Kigali.

The Belgian Defense Ministry here said about 250 of the 3,000 Belgians working in Rwanda had been flown to Nairobi by late Monday and that others were expected to leave the war-torn country soon despite the dangers of the rescue operation.

Frederic Francois, a Belgian television reporter in the capital, reported that a Belgian military convoy moving from Kigali Airport into the city had been caught briefly in fighting Monday between the mainly Hutu Rwandan government forces and units of the dissident Rwanda Patriotic Front, a rebel army made up mainly of ethnic Tutsis.

"Like every night, we've heard bullets whistling through the Kigali night," he said.

There were other reports of convoys of Westerners — seeking to avoid some of the heaviest fighting on the main approach road to the airport — making their way through muddy side streets littered with bodies and exclaiming with the moans of the wounded.

But the worst reports of atrocities seemed to come Monday from hospitals, where troops were said to have slaughtered patients.

In one incident, soldiers repeatedly bayoneted two civilians, who had sought medical care, in full view of doctors, nurses and patients in a crowded emergency room of Kigali's central hospital.

Francois reported that about 150 or 160 Westerners of various nationalities had taken shelter at a French school in Kigali as they waited evacuation, while another 40 Belgians had arrived in the capital from outlying areas.

There were also reports that bands of mainly young Rwandan men armed with machetes, spears, and bows and arrows were roaming the city.

About 400 Belgian troops are now in Rwanda as part of the rescue operation, and the country's Defense Minister Leo Delcroix indicated Sunday it could take days before all remaining aid and development workers from his country could be airlifted to safety.

"Like every night, we've heard bullets whistling through the Kigali night."

—Frederic Francois

A Belgian Defense Ministry spokesman here said an agreed cease-fire between the two warring groups had still failed to take hold.

"In Kigali, the cease-fire has not held," Col. Freddy van der Weghe told reporters.

"The (Rwandan) army has been firing sporadically using heavy weapons. The situation is still unstable (and) there is still shooting between the RPF and the army."

He said there were unconfirmed reports that a Rwandan front battalion had entered the city.

The majority of French, American and other Westerners trapped by the convulsion of violence and ethnic warfare that erupted in the central African nation after last Wednesday's presidential assassination have reportedly already fled the country.

Some managed to get through by road to neighboring Burundi in the south or to Zaire in the northwest, while others were evacuated last weekend by French or Canadian aircraft from Kigali Airport.

International committee collects songs for kids

By Emily Priddy
International Reporter

Local children soon can learn songs enjoyed by kids in other parts of the world, thanks to a committee of SIUC students and faculty.

Naseem Ahmed, a research project specialist at SIUC International Programs and Services, said a committee of University faculty and students is compiling a tape and songbook of children's folk songs from around the world.

Committee member JoAnn Nelson said the group will look at submissions from international students, faculty and their families.

"We've been stressing international students, but (participants) certainly could be faculty from places other than our country (or international) families," Nelson said. "We certainly would encourage a wide range of participants."

People whose contributions are selected for the project will receive a cash award of about $40 and a copy of the songbook and cassette, Nelson said.

Selection of songs will be based on their suitability for children, diversity of purposes and representation of the global community, Nelson said.

Nelson said the number of songs selected will depend on the length of each submission and the quality of the entries.

The music project is similar to "Rainbows," a book of international children's stories published two years ago.

Ahmed said.

Initially, the group gave away 500 copies of the storybook, but more than 500 additional copies were printed and sold because of the enormous response from local schools and organizations and national interest, Ahmed said.

"I expect a similar kind of response for the music book," she said.

Nelson said students from African, Asian, South American and European countries have submitted songs to the project.

Songs will be printed in both English and the original language, with phonetic spellings to help children pronounce words correctly, Ahmed said.

Students' response to the committee's request for music has been positive, Nelson said.

"(Students) enjoy participating and having people appreciate their language," she said. Music also is a good way to teach children about other cultures, Ahmed said.

"I just think this (will) be a window into (local children's) learning about other children in other parts of the world," she said. "I think children's songs (are) most appropriate to young children. That's one thing that's universal among children."

A grant from the national Association of International Educators will pay for the creation and free distribution of 500 copies of the book and cassette, Ahmed said.

She said the project probably will be completed some time during the fall semester.

Guitar ensemble to perform

By Kyle J. Chapman
Entertainment Reporter

SIUC Guitar Ensemble is performing tonight in the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall and will present selections from the classical guitar. Professor Joseph Breznikar, of the School of Music, will direct the performance.

The SIUC Guitar Ensemble consists of a guitar trio, a quintet and several quartets. The group represents the best of the guitarists in the school's program.

Breznikar said the music played by this ensemble is the best in terms of form.

"The group has 15 members who are all music majors and they represent the most talented of the guitar students," Breznikar said. "Their playing represents the best in terms of technicality and musicality — they are students who truly love playing and learning the guitar."

Christopher Keith, a sophomore in music business who is performing in the quartet, said the ensemble did not have a lot of time to prepare and the selections will be pretty hard but everyone is ready to go.

"My ensemble group will perform a piece called 'Le Vieux Chateau' which means 'The Old Castle,'" Keith said. "There's going to be three quartets performing a 3-piece movement and after that they'll perform a piece by Mozart."

Keith said a group of classical guitarists have done a recording and it will be available to SIUC students next month.

"SIUC Classical Guitar Society will have a recording coming out on May 3 featuring solo and ensemble performances and they're going to be selling locally," Keith said.

The ensemble will perform tonight at 8 p.m. in the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall. There is no admission fee.

Memphis trip to be given in 'Days'

By Matthew Lamacki
Entertainment Reporter

An SIUC student along with a guest will have a chance to visit Memphis, Tenn., the home of jazz and the blues, to experience its wild nightlife, great food, bars and alluring historical exhibits.

The Ramada Hotel in downtown Memphis is giving away two nights of free lodging in a drawing on the last day of Student Program Council's Dawg Days of Spring 1994.

The Dawg Days is a 10-day series of events sponsored by the council from April 15-24.

Paul Mitchell, co-coordinator of the event, said Memphis was chosen for the giveaway after a survey was completed.

"Most people in the survey said Memphis would be a great place and so that's how the decision was made," he said.

Event coordinator Angela Bridges said the eligibility rules and entering the contest are simple. She said contestants must be 18 years old, an SIUC student. Students must write their name on a piece of paper and drop it in one of the boxes marked "I Want To Go To Memphis."

"The boxes will be at every 'Dawg Days' event, like the concerts, the comedy specials, the films and the volleyball tournament, and there is no limit on the number of entries," she said.

The winner will be announced April 24 during the Renee Hicks comedy special at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Candace Dusenberry, director of sales at the Ramada Inn, said Memphis has a lot to offer to visitors.

"There are such things as Mud Island and Beale Street, which is similar to Mardi Gras in the way people are out on the street," she said.

"Mud Island is a tourist attraction located along the Mississippi River which gives tours each day," she said. "Beale Street is known as the home of the 'blues' and it is where B.B. King often plays," she said.

Dusenberry said there are historical attractions such as the Civil Rights Museum and Graceland.

"Graceland, which is where Elvis Presley is from, is of course a very popular tourist attraction," she said.

Dusenberry said the hotel is close to the new trolleys in downtown Memphis and they are much cheaper than traveling by taxi cab.

Mitchell said the winner must first check with the hotel to set a date.

"The winner will in effect be given a coupon and it can be used any time at the hotel's discretion," Mitchell said. "The winner must call the hotel ahead of time and set up a date to use the coupon."

Bridges said the winners must provide their own transportation to Memphis and the hotel will cover both nights of stay.

Life's too short.

the community.

Coronado-Greeley said in this way, the school would become a reflection of the community. The teaching approach at the school includes more hands-on learning.

Students work on projects and demonstrations together and use textbooks as a reference.

The school, which teaches students from preschool to eighth grade, started with 60 students and now has 650 and a waiting list of more than 1,000.

About 80 percent of the students are minority and 61 percent are from low-income families, Coronado-Greeley said.

There were 360 applicants for the teacher honor and that number was cut to 12. A board of 10 former award winners interviewed finalists and recommended three to the superintendent of schools, who chose the winner.

positions in student government because it is a low-profile office.

"A large obstacle for student trustees is that it is a one-man office," Kochan said. "It is not like USG in that I have no staff, and few students really know I even exist."

Kochan said student trustees make themselves known to students by attending Undergraduate Student Government and Graduate and Professional Student Council meetings as well as being accessible to students.

"Student trustees are responsible for voicing students' concerns on a wide range of issues including tuition, fees and mass transit issues," Kochan said. "Whoever the trustee is cannot do their job efficiently if students don't contact the trustee to voice their concerns."

Kochan said the student trustee also must make the SUC administration and Board of Trustees accountable to the students and Illinois taxpayers for decisions they make regarding tuition and fee hikes such as the recently proposed athletic fee increase.

"It is the job of a student trustee to make sure money that is generated from tuition and fees is spent in the most efficient manner," he said.

Former Student Trustee Bill Hall, who served three terms, said many students do not take full advantage of the services student trustees can provide.

"Many students bring their complaints to University staff rather than bringing the problem to the student trustee to be solved," Hall said. "By doing this, the student trustee remains ignorant of student concerns."

Hall said because student trustees are the only board members on campus everyday, students can voice their problems to them.

The debate between the two candidates will be at 8 p.m. April 18 in the Renaissance Room of the Student Center. Questions from the media will be entertained at 8:30 p.m. Polling locations for student trustee and USG elections are the Old Main area of the Student Center, Lentz Hall snack bar and Trueblood Hall snack bar.

Defense industry expects boost— U.S. plans to sell fighters to Israel

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The United States will sell Israel 25 of McDonnell-Douglas's upgraded F-15I fighter-bombers for $2.4 billion, the Defense Department announced Monday.

The planned sale, first reported last January, will include five more planes than the 20 contemplated in the original announcement.

Aviation experts have said that the F-15I would be the most sophisticated attack jets ever sold by the United States to a foreign air force.

Israel already has 51 older model F-15s. But the F-15I would be specially upgraded to meet Israeli specifications for long-range, nighttime and heavy weather attack.

The Israelis became interested in acquiring a plane with these capabilities late last year when its secret negotiations with the Palestine Liberation Organization lessened the threat of conflict with Israel's immediate neighbors.

At that point, the Israelis, who also had been considering adding to their existing fleet of 207 General Dynamics-made F-16s, decided to buy the F-15I instead.

Israeli sources said that since the upgraded F-15s can carry bomb loads long distances without refueling, they would fit better into Israel's evolving air warfare doctrine, which envisions fighting such distant potential adversaries as Iran, Iraq and Libya.

The planes would be paid for out of the $1.8 billion that the United States provides in annual military assistance to the Jewish state.

Israel also receives $1.2 billion a year in economic aid for a total of $3 billion.

That makes it the largest single recipient of American foreign aid, and the Clinton administration has pledged to continue its assistance at that level.

The F-15I is similar to the 72 F-15XPs being sold to Saudi Arabia.

However, in keeping with U.S. pledges to maintain Israel's qualitative edge in Middle East weaponry, the F-15I will have more sophisticated radar and other systems than the Saudi model.

U.S. officials said that in order to ensure U.S. superiority, the Israeli version will be less advanced than the one being developed for the U.S. Air Force.

The sale is expected to provide a big boost for the economy of St. Louis, where McDonnell-Douglas manufactures the F-15.

It currently has about 5,000 workers producing the plane, but the numbers probably will grow significantly to manufacture the additional planes for Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Scientists discover new way of treating cancer

By Boyce Rensberger
The Washington Post

Scientists have discovered what they say may be the single most crucial event that makes all cancer cells effectively immortal and allows them to multiply indefinitely.

They say this knowledge could lead fairly quickly to an entirely new form of cancer treatment that could be effective against many or perhaps all forms of the disease.

The crucial event is that highly malignant cancer cells somehow reactivate a long-dormant gene and make an enzyme that reverses a normal process of aging within the cell.

As a result, cancer cells can keep on multiplying indefinitely, even as normal cells, whose gene for the enzyme stays dormant, grow old and break down.

Ironically, it is the virtual immortality of the cancer cells that usually dooms the individual in whom they arise.

The person's death, of course, kills even "immortal" cancer cells.

The researchers, who are publishing their findings in Tuesday's issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, said Monday they might be just two years away from starting tests of a drug that they hope will block the enzyme in human cancer patients.

If the hypothetical treatment worked, cancer cells would, theoretically, lose the benefit of their special enzyme, age quickly and die.

Although the findings are just emerging from the realm of basic science, not even animals have been tested. Leaders of biomedical research hailed them as

Researchers optimistic about creating, destroying bad cells major advances.

"We're quite optimistic that this is a unique opportunity for inhibiting the growth of cancer cells," said Huber Warner, an official of the National Institute on Aging, one of the National Institutes of Health, which sponsored the research along with the Cancer Research Society of Quebec.

"The immediate importance and most exciting aspect of this work," Warner said, "is the possibility of targeting cancer cells specifically in treatment" without harming normal cells, many of which are killed in conventional chemotherapy, causing severe side effects.

A drug that blocked the enzyme should, theoretically, pose no risk to normal cells because it is believed that they do not make the enzyme in the first place.

There is, however, one known exception: gonadal cells that make sperm and eggs. They make and use the enzyme because they must be effectively immortal to transmit life to a new generation.

A drug that blocked the enzyme might damage these cells and perhaps cause sterility or birth defects.

The new research was led by Calvin B. Harley at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario. Harley is temporarily on leave from McMaster and working at Geron Corp., a biotechnology firm in Menlo Park, Calif., that is looking for an enzyme-blocking drug. Collaborating in the research at McMaster were Christopher M. Counter, Hal W. Hirte and Silvia Bacchetti.

What Harley and his Canadian colleagues found was the first direct proof that human cancer cells make an enzyme called telomerase and that normal human cells (except for those of the gonads) do not.

Cell and molecular biologists in many labs have been on the trail of telomerase for several years because of tantalizing evidence of its role in cancer and the aging process.

Players' spokesman Fehr girding for battle with baseball's owners

Los Angeles Times

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz.—It is late in spring training, and the man often characterized as the most powerful in baseball has the top down on his rental car, soaking up the Arizona rays as he marvels at the growth and development he sees when returning to the Valley of the Sun each spring.

It is growth similar to that of the Major League Baseball Players Association since Don Fehr became executive director in 1983, a span during which he has had to ward off repeated attempts by the owners to reduce and restrict player rights through collective bargaining and collusion.

Fehr is now girding for another bargaining battle. The owners want to impose a salary cap that the union is unlikely to approve, and Fehr recently wound up a 32-day tour of the spring camps in which he reviewed for the players a history of troubled negotiations with the owners, urged the need for solidarity and discussed the possibility of a strike in September, or as early as the All-Star break, if there is no settlement.

The last month of the regular season represents the last leverage for the union before the start of the expanded playoffs and World Series.

"A strike is the last resort, but it's hard to envision going into the off-season without protection against a declaration of impasse by the owners and the unilateral imposition of a new (economic) system," Fehr said.

"That would be an absolute conflagration, but it may be what the owners want. We've heard rumors that some owners want to shut down the industry for a year and a half or more. How's that for acting in the fans' best interest?

"I mean, that kind of talk is not about money but control, and I think that's what this is all about—establishing who's in charge. Funny, I always thought that the owners' primary interest was winning baseball games."

Funny? No one has ever accused Fehr of being funny, at least not in public.

Bland? To a degree. Blunt? To a larger degree.

His is a humor wrapped in irony and acerbic wit. His is a skepticism born in the delusional decade of the '60s and hardened by too many battles with management.

Antisocial and reclusive, as portrayed in a national magazine? Not entirely.

Articulate and well-read? Definitely.

"The most powerful man in baseball?" "I don't know what that means," Fehr said. "I don't own anything. I'm not involved in the management of any clubs."

"Where that comes from, I guess, is that the players have rights and I'm the person who stands up for those rights and says no to certain things."

"Since there's no commissioner, the owners appear drifting and diffused, but the players don't. The players always present a united front. I'm the players' spokesman, so I appear to have more power than I do. That's where it comes from, but I don't take it seriously. I don't have much desire for publicity and notoriety. I know it's important for me to be recognized to the extent that I'm considered authoritative when speaking on the players' behalf, but the rest of it is nonsense. I'll be happy when I can slip into obscurity."

fluke, said head coach Diane Daugherty.

"She won the tournament at Tennessee Tech last fall and I knew she had the talent to repeat it," she said. "I don't expect her to do it at every tournament, but I know she has the talent to finish strong."

Daugherty said she was also pleased with Eller's scores considering the conditions.

"Lieschen is capable of scoring in the low 70s and she was playing a very good game of golf on a very windy day," she said.

Joining Eller near the top finishers were Laura Stefanich and Molly Hudgins, both tying with a score of 84 to tie for 11th place in the field.

Daugherty said the performances of Stefanich and Hudgins were very respectable, and she knows she can see better things from them.

"Laura is starting to play consistent golf now in her third year of play, and if it wasn't some problems with her putting in the last nine holes, she would have been right up there," she said. "Molly is a hard worker and it is really paying off because she has not had much experience in tournaments."

The Salukis will need to keep up their momentum as they head into the Southern Intercollegiate in Athens, Ga. this weekend where they will face some of the top teams in the nation.

Daugherty said 15 out of the 25 teams that will be present at the tournament will be ranked in the Top 25 in the nation.

"We have faced the same thing at LSU over spring break," she said. "We are just going to go after scores to prepare for the Missouri Valley Conference tournament that is coming up in a few weeks."

Daugherty knows her team can do well, but she does not want to worry about placing this weekend.

"My goal would be for us to finish around 320. If we finish last and we have a score of 320, I'll be happy," she said. "Right now I am concerned about us being competitive in our conference."

Boat racer Capaldi dies in California boat crash

Los Angeles Times

SAN DIMAS, Calif.—Drag-boat racer Tim Capaldi, 31, of Los Angeles was killed Sunday when his boat crashed during the International Hot Boat Association Spring nationals at Puddingstone Lake in San Dimas.

Capaldi, a three-time IHBA blown alcohol hydro world champion, was going nearly 200 mph when his boat, Mission Possible, crashed during a first-round elimination race.

Karin Mosher, publicist for Capaldi Racing, said there was still a heartbeat when Capaldi was pulled from the lake by helicopter, and he was airlifted to Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in Glendora. Mosher said the cause of the crash was not immediately known. Capaldi was engaged to be married May 7 to Shelly Cooke of Los Angeles. He is survived by his parents, Ray and Jo Capaldi of Paso Robles, Calif., and a sister, Teri.

Capaldi is not the first boating fatality at Puddingstone, located in the Frank G. Bonelli County Regional Park.

On Oct. 4, 1992, Denver Mullins, 48, of Rialto, Calif., drowned in a boating accident, and on June 11, 1989, Bill Thomas Jr., 33, of Alta Loma, Calif., was killed when he boat flipped during a world-record attempt. Jerry Fulgham of Whittier, Calif., lost an arm in a crash at Puddingstone in September, 1987, and Capaldi suffered a broken back, hand and shoulder there in 1989.

Capaldi, the first to drive a boat in the blown alcohol hydro class more than 200 mph, came back from that accident to win the 1989 class championship, but he then retired from the sport because of safety concerns.

Milutinovic faces challenge with U.S. team in World Cup matches

By Julie Cart
Los Angeles Times

World Cup decisions that once appeared clear cut for U.S. national team coach Bora Milutinovic have clouded of late, what with injuries and tight championship races in various European leagues.

Milutinovic has 35 players on his roster, the majority of them at the Mission Viejo, Calif., training facility and about a dozen playing overseas. In the case of U.S. players in the English first division, good news for their clubs is bad news for Milutinovic. For example, midfielder John Harkes plays for Derby County, which is in contention for a spot in the playoffs that could earn it a promotion to the Premier League. Same goes for Tab Ramos with Real Betis in the Spanish second division.

What this means to Milutinovic is that he may not get some of his key offensive players back until the end of May, less than three weeks before the World Cup begins.

Then there is the rash of injuries U.S. players have suffered lately. Roy Wegerle, who plays for Coventry City in the Premier League, has suffered the most recent and potentially devastating injury. Last week, Wegerle had surgery on his right knee, for the second time since January. He is not expected to return to the team before the end of the season, the first week in May.

Salukis fell to the Shockers by the score of 2-7. The only bright spots for the SIUC netters was the play of No. 6 singles star Melissa Saitta, who defeated Kim Doze by a landslide 6-1, 6-1.

The Saluki doubles teams didn't perform up to par, but did manage to sneak a win away from Wichita State when the No. 1 doubles team of Liz Gardner and Leesa Joseph defeated JoEllen Walker and Amelia van der Merwe in exciting doubles team action 8-6.

"We didn't play up to our ability at all this past weekend," Auld added. "I don't know if we are drained from traveling in the beginning of the season or we are just in a bad slump."

SIUC's luck didn't get any better as they took on Southwest Missouri State in a Saturday morning match-up at the University Courts. The Salukis could only manage to gain one win from the Bears in a disappointing 1-5 loss with no doubles play.

The only win came from Joseph who was playing in the No. 3 spot when she defeated Eva Gonzalez 6-3, 6-0.

Auld added that her team isn't proud of the way they have been performing.

"We just want to get back to the way we played three weeks ago,"

Auld said. "The girls are not pleased in the way we have been competing."

The Salukis record now moves to 5-13 on the season, 4-10 in conference match-ups. SIUC will seek home relief as they host Evansville and SIU-Edwardsville at the University Courts this Saturday. This will be the last meet for the Salukis before they head to Illinois State for the Missouri Valley Conference Championships April 21-23.

"We have got to quit forcing shots," Auld added. "We need to make good consistent shots and quit worrying about the great ones."

SMSU Saturday, losing 10-4 and 4-3. The immediate schedule doesn't let up either, as SIUC heads to Wichita State this Saturday after two non-conference tune ups this week.

"We're playing the preseason top three right out of the gate," Rigglesman said. "We have got to go to Wichita State and win and then the next four weeks after that we'll make our mark."

Indiana State (2-4), Illinois State (1-5) and Northern Iowa (1-5) round off the MVC's bottom three teams.

The Salukis will be in action this afternoon at Abe Martin Field as SIUC plays host to Southeast Missouri State. First pitch is slated for 3 p.m.

Softball team goes north to battle EIU

By Chris Walker
Sports Reporter

The SIUC softball team, winners of 12 of their last 15, will head into Charleston, Ill. today for two non-conference games against Eastern Illinois.

The two teams were scheduled to face each other earlier this season in the Southern Classic but that game was postponed due to weather.

SIUC head coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said EIU is a good ball club and SIUC will need to play good defense to win.

The Salukis, who played six games in three days last week, have not had to worry about much on the offensive end. They received some excellent offensive play from Mandy Miller, Jamie Schutteck, Laurie Wilson, and Jami Koss to improve their team batting average to a season high .312.

Miller hit at a .500 clip last week and is hitting .480 in her last 10 games.

Schutteck hit .471 last week with four rbi's, Wilson hit .375 with four rbi's, and Koss hit .375 with two triples and a homerun. Koss has 10 runs, four stolen bases, and a .462 batting average in her last eight starts as the Saluki leadoff hitter.

Jamie Schutteck has led the Salukis throughout the season. Her .451 average is tops on the team and she has racked up a 7-3 record on the mound with a 2.35 era.

EIU (11-12) will look to move above the .500 mark and the Salukis, if they can sweep, will get their 20th victory on the season.

The Panthers received a blow earlier this season when pitcher Coli Turley went out with an injury. Turley's era was 1.73 when she went down and the staff's era has risen to 2.79 as a result.

The Salukis will challenge the Panther hitters with any of their three pitchers who have combined for a 2.25 era. The Panthers are only hitting .264 as a team, but have four players who are hitting above .300.

Brechtelsbauer said she thought SIUC would be one of the top defenses in the conference but injuries have had their effect on how the Salukis have played.

"You can't give up to injuries," she said. "But we don't have the speed and quickness to make as many good plays."

The Salukis recent injury woes include Becky Lis and Jenny Klotz. Both player's are expected to play today. Lis is suffering from a bruised thigh and Klotz with a bruised knee. The lineup did receive a boost when injured third baseman Maura Hasenstab returned to the lineup over the weekend.

The doubleheader begins today at 3 p.m.

Bad weather, more injuries haunt tennis

By James J. Fares
Sports Reporter

The Salukis found out the hard way that home cooking isn't always good for you as the SIUC women's tennis team attempted to host matches at home but were disappointed by bad weather and bad luck.

With the recent rash of injuries and a roster full of inexperience, something had to go wrong for the Saluki women this past weekend.

But did it have to happen when they were playing the conference foes?

The Saluki women had a bit of trouble this past weekend as they opened their weekend competition against Wichita State, then moved on the next day to take on Southwest Missouri State, then were rained out against Illinois State for the late match on Saturday.

Head coach Judy Auld said that the Salukis aren't playing the kind of tennis they know how to play.

"Since we have come back from spring break we have been real flat and slow," Auld said. "We have just been playing with no emotion."

Baseball standings in MVC going as predicted

By Grant Deady
Sports Reporter

After the first two weekends of Missouri Valley Conference baseball action, all things are going as predicted.

Wichita State was the preseason favorite to win the MVC crown and was college baseball's preseason No. 1. So far, the Shockers are living up to expectations as WSU posts an unblemished 6-0 mark in the Valley and is 22-7 overall. WSU has won 11 straight games and is ranked eighth in the country by Collegiate Baseball Magazine.

Southwest Missouri State is also undefeated (5-0) in league play after taking two games from the Salukis over the weekend. The third game between the Bears and SIUC was rained out and SMSU was awarded a seven inning 10-4 victory over the Dawgs after rain interrupted game two of the series.

Bradley fell to 3-3 in the MVC after losing two out of three last weekend at Creighton. Brave pitchers gave up 32 runs to the Bluejays in the three-game series and will host Indiana State this weekend in Peoria.

Creighton was able to rebound from its opening weekend series with the Salukis where the Jays lost two of three and now stand at 3-3 in the MVC. CU will take on Illinois State in Omaha, Neb., beginning Friday.

SIUC (15-13, 2-3) now occupies the Valley's fifth place spot, one notch higher than the preseason coaches poll tabbed them at. But Saluki head coach Sam Riggleman said he's not planning on finishing as low as the forecasters predicted.

"I hope they (the standings) don't end up like the preseason rankings," he said. "I don't want to end up in sixth."

Braves running away early

By Allan Malamud
Los Angeles Times

Any day now, the Atlanta Braves should clinch a National League playoff berth.

The Los Angeles Dodgers' nine-hit explosion Sunday rocketed their team batting average from .154 to .158.

If the Braves don't re-sign third baseman Terry Pendleton, the Dodgers ought to be ready with pen in hand.

They had their chance in 1991 when Pendleton left the St. Louis Cardinals. He was born in Los Angeles, attended Oxnard (Calif.) Junior College, and always wanted to become a Dodger. But they didn't make him an offer three years ago because the front office still felt Jeff Hamilton was their third baseman of the future.

Ryan Klesko—the Braves' 6-foot-3, 220-pound, left-handed hitting rookie outfielder—is so powerful that he hit an opposite-field home run off Orel Hershiser in the first inning with what appeared to be little more than a check swing.

Women's golf team takes invite, stops Arkansas St, W. Kentucky

by Karyn Viverito

Before the nasty weather set in last weekend, the SIUC women's golf team was able to pull together a first place victory at the Lady Topper Invitational.

SIUC tied with Arkansas State and invite host Western Kentucky, racking up winning low score of 331, before rain cancelled the final round of the tournament.

Lieschen Eller proved to be the storm that SIUC was brewing on its competition as she was the invite's medalist with a best low score of 77.

Eller proved also that her first tournament win back in the spring was no
