Bringing closure to city campaigns

DOUG LUSON/Daily Egyptian

City Council candidate Brad Cole, left, listens to some of the concerns of Steve Suddick, a sophomore in information systems technology from Bourbonnais, while campaigning on Campus Lake Sunday.

With one day until ground zero, Mayoral candidates cover Carbondale territory, issues

DAN CRAFT AND SARA BEAN
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

From jail cells to residents' doors, the three candidates for Carbondale mayor are working the voters the best they can during the final days before the April 13 election.

The 909 votes mayoral hopeful John Budzlick gathered in the Feb. 23 primary were about half the 2,037 secured by Dillard, leaving Budzlick with an uphill battle.

But those odds have not fazed Budzlick. He remains cautiously optimistic as his campaign is diligently working 12 to 14-hour days knocking on doors and talking to community members and students.

"I have worn out one pair of shoes, on my second pair now," Budzlick said Sunday. "Walked the soles right off them. If hard work does it, then we'll win it."

Current Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard spent a more low-key day Sunday "catching up on loose ends," passing out campaign literature to area churches in the morning and handling miscellaneous chores such as repairing campaign signs later in the day.

Write-in candidate Rob Taylor is planning a more dramatic demonstration for his campaign.

He plans to protest today from inside a jail cell placed in the Faner Hall breezeway, arguing that more funding for SIU should take precedence over the building of additional prisons.

The protest will be aimed at Gov. Ryan and the Illinois Board of Higher Education, who have reduced the SIU budget, rather than toward his mayoral opponents.

Neil Dillard

Dillard is stressing words such as "compromise," "negotiations" and "exploring options" throughout his campaign and plans to continue that approach in the limited time left in the race.

First elected mayor in 1987, Dillard has pointed to his record on issues ranging from relations between the city and the University to the city's efforts to help improve business along major thoroughfares in town.

Dillard is the only member in the field who wants to see the current Halloween break

As elections draw nigh, distinctions emerge among City Council candidates

TIM CHAMBERLAIN, JAY SCHWAB
AND BURKE SPEAKER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTERS

To promote more inclusion on the council, the notions of adding seats to the five-seat council or exploring a ward system to ensure all areas of the city are represented have gained steam.

For now, the four council candidates in the April 13 election will operate within the parameters of the current council structure, meaning only two of the hopefuls will emerge victorious.

The candidates — incumbent Mike Neill, Corene McDaniel, Brad Cole and Carl Flowers — have offered the public a similar set of platforms, including promoting business growth, continuing along the path of city-University cooperation and providing Carbondale residents with attentive responses to their daily concerns.

Although a mutual respect seems to exist among the candidates, underlying, subtle distinctions in their tone and vision should allow city voters to pinpoint their preferred pair.

Brad Cole

The former SIUC Undergraduate Student Government president's hopes of continuing his political involvement with the Carbondale City Council are promising after placing second in the nine-candidate primary field.

Cole, 27, believes incentives can be utilized to attract mid-sized business to town and wants against imposing too many restrictions that could deter economic development.

Cole advocates a "tenant's bill of rights" for the city's student-heavy renting population and said he is supportive of the housing ordinances currently being considered by the City Council. Strict enforcement of the current city codes, Cole says, would help alleviate some of the problems experienced by renters.

To reach out to residents in all areas of Carbondale and to promote accessibility, Cole recommends conducting citywide meetings in a variety of areas in Carbondale rather than relying solely on locations such as the Civic Center.

Cole said his background of civic involvement, including stints on the local park and library boards, have prepared him to represent the interests of Carbondale on the council.

"I have a broad variety of experiences that [help] me relate to all of the different groups in this city," Cole said.

Carl Flowers

Emphasizing a renewed consensus within the city council, SIUC graduate Carl Flowers said better council relations will garner improved city productivity.

While improving council relations, Flowers is stressing the council pay close attention to race relations within the city and conduct a community forum to provide residents the opportunity to voice their concerns.

Flowers has committed his support to the 19-year-old bar-entry age and student participation with the council.

To increase economic development, Flowers said, the city should concentrate on expanding area businesses and attracting small to mid-size businesses to provide job opportunities for residents and graduating students.

SIUC prepares for 10-year accreditation evaluation

SARA BEAN
POLITICS EDITOR

Representatives from a university and college accreditation group will be on campus today to speak with members of the SIUC community about the state of the University.

The North Central Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Institutions of Higher Education is a university and college accreditation group that requires universities to send in assessment plans during a 10-year accreditation period.

Accreditation is the basic certification that allows an institution to function as a University. It also allows the University to receive federal funding.

"This is the association that gives your degree value," Graduate and Professional Student Council President Michael Speck said. Speck is a member of a team of about 150 SIUC administrators, faculty, staff and students that conducted the self-study of the University for the accreditation process.

A draft of the report on the self-study has been on reserve in the library and on the SIU website since February for review.

Following the approval of an assessment plan, SIUC administration began preparing for the 10-year evaluation of the University by an accreditation commission that allows SIUC to have its degree programs recognized by other schools.

Every 10 years, the University is evaluated by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools Commission (NCA). The NCA is a regional commission that accredits SIUC and other schools.

Criteria for the NCA is:

The institution has clear, and publicly stated purposes consistent with its mission and appropriate to an institution of higher education.

The institution has effectively organized the human, financial and physical resources necessary to accomplish its purposes.

The institution is accomplishing its educational and other purposes.

The institution can continue to accomplish its purposes and strengthen its educational effectiveness.

The institution demonstrates integrity in its practices and relationships.

MEETINGS

The meetings are today from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at various locations: Faculty Open Forum in the Museum Auditorium, A/P Staff and Civil Service Open Forum in the Kaskaskia and Missouri Rooms of the Student Center and the Student Open Forum in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

Police Blotter

CARBONDALE

- A Carbondale woman reports that between 5 and 5:41 p.m. Thursday someone entered her unlocked car parked in the 700 block of East Grand Avenue and stole her purse. The purse and its contents were worth $245, Carbondale police said. There are no suspects in this incident.
- A 22-year-old Carbondale man reported that someone broke the driver's side window of his vehicle between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 12:10 a.m. Friday. He told Carbondale Police someone removed the face plate from his car's in-dash stereo. Burglars unsuccessfully tried to steal the stereo from the car, which was parked in the 500 block of East College Street, police said. Damage was estimated at $400. There are no suspects in the incident.

Bonding with homeless animals

Volunteers spend time entertaining lonely pets

DANA DUBRIWNY
STUDENT AFFAIRS EDITOR

When Patrick Brown volunteered to walk a dog for two hours at the first Humane Society's Pet Fair Saturday, he was not expecting love at first sight.

"I was matched up with a terrier-dachshund named Gravellette," said Brown, a junior in construction management from Evanston. "She only weighed about two pounds, and man, I could have eaten her for breakfast and still been hungry."

Brown was just one of more than 65 volunteers who came out to Turley Park to walk and play with the shelter's 22 dogs, eight puppies, eight cats, five bunnies and one ferret.

"All the animals were so cute and seemed like they were having a great time," Brown said. "In fact, everyone seemed like they were having a good time, whether they actually wanted to take a pet home with them or not."

Although Brown did not place an adoption application for a pet, he has not forgotten about Gravellette.

"The only reason I couldn't get her is because I don't have the money needed to care for a pet," he said. "It's sad though, even just spending two hours with that little ball of bliss, I feel like we bonded. "All I can hope is that a good family took her, and I can someday own a dog that is just like her."

According to the shelter manager Stacey Garcia, the 17 adoption applications filed proved the success of the fair.

"We were really nervous when we were putting this together, especially about the animals getting loose," Garcia said. "Everything went really well, though — people brought their own pets and we had a lot of applications for ours."

The fair provided entertainment and education for all who attended. A pet psychic, groomers, a veterinarian, pet sitters and animal trainers were on hand to answer any questions, and two bands created the mood for a playful afternoon.

"No one got paid," Garcia said. "Everyone donated their time, effort, money and energy — it was terrific, and we'd like to try again for the fall."

But for Brown, volunteering at the fair was more fun than it was work.

"Everyone was so appreciative, but it was really me who was thankful," Brown said. "It's not very often I can just go out, play with animals and listen to live music. I mean, I had such a great time and learned so much. I've been thinking about either changing my major or picking up a new hobby — just playing with pets."

A fascination with ghost stories

Assistant professor's intrigue of Greek and Roman ghost stories leads to book publishing

ASTARIA L. DILLARD
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Since she was a little girl, Debbie Felton has been fascinated by ghosts, witches and vampires.

While in college, she became interested in studying Greek and Roman ghost stories that were familiar to the stories she already knew.

"While studying classics, I was surprised to find out that they had a lot of ghost stories," said Felton, an assistant professor in foreign languages and literature. "It was a perfect way for me to combine my two favorite subjects."

Felton's book, "Haunted Greece and Rome: Ghost Stories from Classical Antiquity," was published in January and has sold more than 800 copies.

Debbie Felton

"I have been getting very positive responses regarding my book," she said. "It took three years because there was a lot of research involved, but the actual writing took a few months."

Included in the book is a section about urban legends. These are stories with the same plot from decade to decade, but small details are changed to accommodate the time and place of the audience.

Felton's book focuses on hauntings, such as The Haunted House in Athens, Lucian's Ghost stories and is composed of short stories with explanations of the ghost. She has used a variety of ancient stories and followed them up with modern stories to show their similarities.

David Johnson, a lecturer in foreign language, said Felton's book has been an important contribution to the explanation of ghost stories and why they have remained so popular.

"Her book is very capable of being understood by everyone," Johnson said. "Many SIUC students can read and enjoy it. It's also advanced because most scholars would be familiar with these stories."

Johnson said Felton has been successful at looking at past ghost stories and comparing them to the present stories to find out how they are alike, which is something no one else has ever done.

"It's pretty unusual for a book to be interesting, enjoyable and understanding of all things, such as this book," he said.

Supernatural beings haunt cemeteries, restrooms

KENDRA THORSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Adam Schindler sat near a headstone meditating at Starvation Acres Cemetery when he felt a presence. He sensed someone standing next to him and experienced a cold breeze on his arm.

Out of respect for the spirit, Schindler moved away from the gravestone and hoped his meditation would pacify the dark shadows and negative vibrations surrounding the site.

Schindler heard an androgynous voice softly call his name. Schindler searched for the speaker in a deserted cemetery but instead found a small light floating about five feet away from him.

Schindler, a senior in biology from Hannibal, Mo., believes awareness of metaphysical surroundings can be reached through meditation.

Schindler said cemeteries are the preferred place to come into contact with the supernatural.

"I occasionally meditate in cemeteries," Schindler said. "The reason for doing meditation in cemeteries is to conquer your mental fears."

"Meditation has made me more aware and conscious of the supernatural. I am aware of my surroundings," he said.

Schindler believes in mantra meditation — the expansion and liberation of the mind — which describes the purposes for supernatural beings roaming the earth.

"Some spirits are attached to various things such as money, loved ones or a place

Woman arrested for alleged attack on daughter

A Carbondale woman who allegedly hit her daughter in the forehead with a glass ash tray was arrested by Jackson County sheriff's deputies and charged with domestic battery Saturday afternoon.

Authorities responded to Crossing Mobile Home Park at 5:10 p.m. in reference to a call from a juvenile who said her mother, Jana Sue Riggs, 39, had hit her with an ashtray at least once during an argument. The argument began because Riggs's daughter refused to clean the trailer, police said.

As a result of her injuries, the victim was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for treatment of a laceration to the head and released to Department of Children and Family Services for foster care.

Along with domestic battery, Riggs was charged with endangering the life or health of a child. She was taken to Jackson County Jail, pending an appearance before a judge.

Chemical explosion injures six at San Jose State

Six people were injured after a chemical explosion hit a laboratory at San Jose State University.

The April 7 blast happened shortly after 11 a.m. when two or three students conducting a chemical experiment poured nitric acid into a beaker containing ethanol residue.

Six people, including the class' instructor, were exposed to chemicals and flying glass. Five were taken to the hospital for minor cuts and chemical exposure. The instructor was treated at the scene.

Fire officials who responded to the scene said damage was contained to the classroom and that no environmental problems were anticipated.

Landlord/tenant	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Being proactive in the development of mutually beneficial solutions for both tenants and landlords, and then appropriately enforcing current city codes and ordinances to ensure safe, habitable environments in rental housing. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports increasing the number of housing inspectors in the community and making landlords more responsible for the maintenance of rental property that meets city codes. Supports some form of city ordinance that addresses issues such as 24-hour notice to enter. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> All citizens of Carbondale are entitled to decent and affordable housing. An acceptable argument between the tenant and the landlord should be worked out as soon as possible. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Suggests meeting of the minds, additional landlord competition such as the proposed 1,000 person complex will help upgrade existing apartments.
Halloween	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports an organized event, only if community and civic organizations, the city and landlords, and then appropriately enforcing current city codes and ordinances to ensure safe, habitable environments in rental housing. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I would support a well organized event, i.e. a Fall Festival, in the Grand Avenue area, near the Student Recreation Center. This well organized event would be focused, not only on students, but also members of the community. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports an organized Halloween event where the citizens of Carbondale work together and all citizens have the opportunity to express feelings and be in a safe environment. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We should be able to reopen the Strip in a few years.
Pig Out	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports these community events. Continuing these programs will strengthen their appeal over the years. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Support the continuation of the Main Street Pig Out. The key to the continued development of this program is "cooperation" and "collaboration." 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The organizer should provide a larger area so that more music as well as special activities and carnival rides can be included. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Pig Out has been a positive downtown event. We need more families to attend.
The Strip	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The new police chief will play an integral role in developing a cooperative and student friendly attitude. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Main Street program is designed to increase business on the Strip and bring the business owners together. I think that more efforts should be made to attract small shops to the southern part of the Strip. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Business owners on the Strip should become more organized and present planned events. Organizational meetings should include student and civic representation as well as the police department to provide a fun, controlled event. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We need to help students have a pleasant experience when dealing with businesses on the Strip.
City/University Relations	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Will continue to have open communication between city and University administrators, as well as with students. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports a community-led, no referendum, to increase the number of council members from five to seven, with one seat designated for a student representative. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> There should be regularly scheduled meetings with the University administration. Planned activities for the University and the City should be developed and progress reviewed on a regular basis. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We need to continue to have student representatives of council meetings, student participation fluctuates greatly from year to year.
Air Service	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Supports more and better air service from this area to both Chicago and St. Louis to further our business development efforts. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I support the reestablishment of the direct air service between Carbondale and Chicago. I would work with SIUC, the Chambers of Commerce of Carbondale, Murphysboro and other communities, along with the CDC. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Before I can support air service to Chicago I would need to develop a survey of potential users. If the survey is favorable then dialogue with SI Airport and other major airlines can begin. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I support air service to Chicago, but I do not think the city can subsidize it.
Bar-entry age	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Would maintain the current bar entry age. It has not proven to be problematic and I believe young people need to have the opportunity to interact in a variety of social settings. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I support retention of the current entry age, coupled with the recently implemented Community Service program for first time offenders. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> If the bar-entry age should come up while I am seated on the council, I can only promise to listen to the reason for change. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Favors retaining the bar-entry age at 19.
University Mall	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Does not generally support the use of mall space for offices. This location would be beneficial to the mall by bringing in a set number of patrons to the mall every day. The city must be fair in its efforts to offer incentives to mall merchants wanting to locate or remain in Carbondale's. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I could support utilization of one of the spaces for office space. I suggest some form of incentive package and would be tied to the stores making a commitment to new merchants, the city and the community. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> I support using the University Mall for office space. It would be devastating to lose a major business such as Southern Illinois Healthcare. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The mall owners should use the space in any way they choose. The city does not share in their profits or losses. We might provide limited subsidies to attract stores that will bring in sales tax revenue greater than the subsidy.
Recruitment/Retention	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The city should play a major role in providing good housing facilities, fine dining and shopping outlets, friendly service and assistance, and be supportive of the Chamber of Commerce business efforts. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The inclusion of student and student interest areas on the City of Carbondale Website would make the City and University seem like more seamless system. Will examine a plan for city staff and other community leaders being available during the week of new student check-in. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> City Council members are ambassadors for the city and should serve the same function for the University. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The city should work in any way we can to improve recruitment and retention.
Economic Development	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Actively recruit small- and mid-sized manufacturing plants, support current business and avoid placing too many restrictions on building and operating within city limits. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Our focus should be on attracting the small to mid-size business that may employ up to 100 employees at a decent and fair wage. Another goal of the city should be to assist current business owners in expanding their businesses. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The City needs to help businesses that are already in town, then look for new businesses. The Dunn-Richmond Center is an excellent tool for businesses and should be utilized. Would look into offering incentives for new businesses. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The city can make the biggest economic impact by helping to retain SAUC students. We need to continue to work with the Chamber of Commerce and Carbondale Business Development to attract other businesses.

and council hopeful. Flowers hopes to display his leadership through representing the needs of the city and the University.

"I can commit to being fair in making decisions in the best interest of everyone — including students, including residents, including everyone," Flowers said.

Corene McDaniel

Corene McDaniel is a self-described "people person" who has perfected her skills as a listener by owning a hair salon in Carbondale.

By being a good listener, McDaniel said she hears the voice of the people calling for economic development and improved business growth in Carbondale.

McDaniel said the city needs to improve its image to encourage businesses to locate and resident businesses to expand.

Although the 50-year-old McDaniel has no city government experience, she said her goals include promoting a responsible city council and strengthening the bond among Carbondale's diverse residents.

McDaniel finished third behind Brad Cole and Mike Neill in the Feb. 23 elections but said the citizens will be best represented through her election.

"I'm not one to just sit back and watch others do things," McDaniel said. "I'll work to make the interest of the people known."

Michael Neill

Incumbent City Councilman Michael Neill, a native of Carbondale, brings his business experience along with a love of his hometown to the City Council race.

Neill, a vice president and trust officer with First National Bank and Trust, said one of the things that excites him most about the possibility of another four years on the City Council would be seeing the completion of the Superblock educational complex.

Along with watching the Superblock take shape, Neill said another important job for the Council will be aiding the University in recruitment and retention. He said growth for SIUC will equal growth for the entire community.

Though he is the lone incumbent candidate for City Council, Neill does not think that gives him any distinct advantage over his rival candidates.

"Being an incumbent gives you a certain amount of name recognition, but my opponents have had the time to build up their name recognition, too," Neill said. "And Carbondale is always a wide-open race."

Landlord/Tenant

• Best course of action for property owners/tenant return is to proceed with Task Force meetings. From the available information most of the property owners are opposed to the ordinances. The tenants are adamant to secure some legal ordinances approved by Council. This division must be moved to some area of compromise. I plan to work toward that objectiv-

Economic Development

• The city government must first assist existing local businesses, then help new local businesses get started, and then recruit appropriate employers for our community.

Halloween

• I support the continued fall break during the last Friday and Saturday of October for Fall 1999. I will lobby for the continued fall break for Fall 2000.

Pig Out

• I support organized events like the Main Street Pig Out. I believe the event is working as intended and desired.

Union

• The relations among business owners and operators on South Illinois Avenue seem to be very good. The location of these businesses on U.S. Route 51 Northbound and with old narrow sidewalks will continue to create problems for the business owners and the City and Carbondale administration and Council. We must continue to talk and improve the infrastructure in that area.

City/University Relations

• The relationship between and with the University and the city is excellent. I believe Communication lines are open and used. The SIU Security Office and the Carbondale Police Department work very well together. New elected student leadership will be invited and sought out to work with in the coming year.

Air Services

• Direct air service to Springfield and Chicago is being worked on at this time. We need and desire this service.

Bar-entry age

• I will maintain the bar-entry age at 19.

University Mall

• I support using space in the University Mall office where appropriate. Every mall and shopping center in Carbondale has office space rental now. We are exploring options with the owner bank. Negotiations will have to be used. Which area the city should/must provide is open to negotiations.

Recruitment/Retention

• The city government and citizens should do everything reasonable to make Carbondale an attractive and viable community for our students and potential students and residents. Continue to support high quality welcome receptions, entertainment and living conditions.

• Enforce three ordinances originally proposed by USPC to the City Council for action. Wants to participate in Task Force meetings and help negotiate a compromise between tenants and property owners.

• Believes city should offer some form of incentive to bring in higher paying jobs. Would like Carbondale to investigate becoming its own natural gas provider. Advocates the development of a light industrial park along Rt. 10 on the east side of town.

• Supports changing city and University plan to close campus and bars on Halloween. Supports a community-oriented organization event, similar to the Soviet Concert.

• Answers were not supplied to the DAILY EGYPTIAN as of press time. Check the on-line edition at www.dailyegyptian.com for responses.

• Answers were not supplied to the DAILY EGYPTIAN as of press time.

• Believes there has been noticeable improvements in relations since his election to City Council. Supports more foot patrols in industrial neighborhoods to improve the relationships between police and community. Believes the city currently has the wrong philosophy — and should work with, not against the people.

• Answers were not supplied to the DAILY EGYPTIAN as of press time.

• Supports maintaining the current bar-entry age of 19. Voted to lower the age from 21 in 1997.

• Is not happy with using the mall for office space, but values the retention of the jobs offered by Southern Illinois Healthcare. Believes city should work to save the mall.

• Answers were not supplied to the DAILY EGYPTIAN as of press time.

• Supports approval of the six GPSC ordinances, possibly targeting property owners with 50-plus units.

• Interactive and entertaining mall Emphasize SIU as the dominant business in town.

• Supports organized Halloween event to unite and build confidence between city and University, to gain respect from the rest of the state and to improve recruitment and retention and to bring more money to local merchants and RSOs.

• Supports the Pig Out, believes it should be restructured to attract more monies.

• Believes city should keep bars open to 6 a.m. on Friday and Saturday.

• Believes keeping bars open would benefit everyone both spiritually and economically.

• Supports Carbondale to Chicago air service. Would lobby for funding from the state.

• Would keep the bar-entry age at 19.

• Opposes office space in the mall. Believes creation of an interactive and entertaining mall, which would be a great location for a nice dance club.

• City should place recruitment and retention within top priorities.

What's it like getting $150 a month cash at the DCI Plasma Center?

I'll tell you. My name is Joseph. I'm a student at SIU. And I have donated plasma dozens of times at DCI Biologicals Plasma Center. What is it like donating plasma at DCI? Very satisfying. Besides earning up to $150 a month (you get paid in cash at the end of your donation) you will be saving human lives! And exactly how is plasma used to save human lives? In a number of different ways. Donated plasma is used in the preparation of the following: Clotting concentrates for hemophiliacs; Rogam shots for pregnant women with Rh-negative blood; volume expanders which maintain blood volume until whole blood is available and are used on emergencies for shock and burn victims; vaccines for tetanus, mumps, hepatitis, and other diseases; blood-typing serums; and many other products. Sound interesting?

Q: Does it hurt?
A: It's only a pin prick! Otherwise, it is totally painless.

Q: How long does the procedure last?
A: One to One and One half hours

Q: Where is the DCI?
A: It's only a few blocks from SIU

Q: What is the DCI Plasma Center like?
A: The staff is very friendly. You can relax (the donation chairs are quite comfortable), read, study, talk with the staff and other donors, or just daydream. The people who work at the DCI Plasma Center care about you and will answer any questions about your health. In order to operate, the DCI Plasma Center has to meet strict federal regulations, so it is a safe place, and plasma --which is 97% water -- is quick and easy for your body to replace (unlike whole blood). So what are you waiting for? There is a continual shortage of plasma in the world. Donate today, earn some cash, and save someone's life.

CASUALTIES: "World War III" fighting competition participants battle it out in the ring.

JUSTIN JONES

"Power bombs" were the only bombs dropped during "World War III" submission fighting competition in Carbondale Saturday night.

More than 350 people watched "World War III," a submission fighting championship, at the Southern Illinois Sports Club, 1215 E. Walnut St.

The competition showcased eight martial art styles during an eight-fight ballet. Fighting styles included judo, which focuses on throwing techniques; shootfighting, a combination of wrestling, kick boxing and jiu-jitsu; and pancration, a style developed around submission holds.

Fighters came from as far as Minneapolis to test their abilities and go up against some of the best fighters in the Midwestern region, including Dave Meannie, the 10th-ranked pancration fighter in the United States.

Carbondale hopeful Jason Billings, a sophomore in administration of justice from Miller City, was the first fighter to enter the ring as the crowd roared in excitement during the amateur fights. Billings returned to World War III after battling to a win during the World War II competition at the Sports Center in November.

"The only way to excel as a fighter is to do competitions like this," Billings said. "It's not how many times you lose, it's how many times you get back into the ring." Billings fought against "an extremely good fighter," he said, who trained under the same discipline, Brazilian jiu-jitsu, a martial art brought to the United States by the Gracie family.

In the mid-1920s, Carlos Gracie went to Japan to learn Japanese judo and brought it back to Brazil. Brazilian jiu-jitsu was then modified by the Gracie family to use less strength and be more effective against larger opponents. As punches flew and bodies dropped Saturday night, the surge of excitement increased when C.J. Fernandez, a professional shoot-fighter from Belleville, unleashed a vicious right kick and knocked his opponent, Gary Areno, to the ground, leaving a few of Areno's teeth on the mat.

The Facts Speak for Themselves

Fact
 1. According to the City Manager's sworn testimony the Carbondale Police Department has not met its affirmative action goals one time the entire 42 years Dillard has been in office.

Fact
 2. The requirements for promotion in the Carbondale Police Department were changed to deny Patrolman Gerald Edwards his promotion.

Fact
 3. The City of Carbondale paid Gerald Edwards $150,000 of the taxpayers' money, and gave him a promotion to settle his discrimination suit.

Fact
 4. Dillard said it wasn't an issue and slammed John Budslick for making it public. John Budslick thinks it is an issue and believes the citizens of this community deserve to know the truth.

Pandemonium then broke out in the small arena with cheers and boos when a referee stopped the fight.

"The time on the ground wasn't long enough," Billings said. Billings, and other fighters in his discipline, are trained to fight and wear their opponent down on the ground.

"Some of the fighters were disappointed with the early break-up calls," Billings said.

Tom Miller, an on-air personality at WXLT-FM, was the ringside announcer at the World War II and World War III competitions.

He said he thought the fights went much smoother this time than during World War II, particularly because of the addition of a ringside doctor. Unlike ultimate fighting, which essentially has no rules, submission fighting has about 20 rules. Ultimate fighting has been outlawed in 48 states because of its savage-like behavior.

Ultimate fighting competitions are decided by submission, which typically is called by the referee or by a knock out.

A submission fighter can win a competition in a variety of situations: by successfully "tapping out" his opponent, a referee stopping the fight, a knockout, a doctor's decision, a disqualification or by the opponent's corner throwing in the towel.

World War III was brought to Southern Illinois with the cooperation of area businesses to bring the fights back to Carbondale. Plans already are underway for the submission fights to drop back into Carbondale in the fall.

Despite the violent nature of submission fighting, the fighters had a great deal of respect for each other before and after the fight.

"Fights like these, there is nothing personal," Billings said. "It was more of a gentleman's fight."

13-year-old prodigy wows scientists with fossil research

FRANK KLIMAS
 DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Sean Belcher addresses a crowd of scientists and onlookers about his fossil research.

Belcher is surrounded by 39 other graduate and professional research presentations Friday afternoon at the Student Center — he is only 13 years old.

The 91st Annual Meeting of the Illinois State Academy of Science offers an opportunity for scientists and graduate researchers to present data to the professional science community in many disciplines. There are 500 members of the academy ranging from scientists and educators from all areas.

Belcher began studying fossils in the Carterville area three years ago. While in grade school, he started working with an SIUC geophysicist, Harvey Henson, after a school field trip. Belcher soon began visiting Parkinson Laboratory to study, with Henson later, and other students joined him.

"I wanted to know what life was like 300 million years ago," Belcher said.

The young researcher explained the Pennsylvanian era, a time before dinosaurs, when Southern Illinois was the bottom of a shallow ocean. Plants were common and animal life was limited to microscopic organisms.

Belcher's colleagues flank him as he explains the fossil research conducted by the group in Carterville. The five other members of the research team — Hunter Bruin, Phillip Szymcek, Seth Benefiel, Chad Skelcher and Hope David — range in age from 11 to 16.

David, the youngest member of the Basics In Geology (B.I.G.) program, is 11 years old. She enjoys being part of the group for her own reasons but likes science.

"I don't really know, it's just fun," David said. "I heard I could hang out with high school boys."

Henson, a research project specialist with the geology department, developed the B.I.G. program in 1995 as an experimental extension to outreach efforts of the geology department.

According to Henson, participants are involved in "real science" and provide a significant contribution to the department.

Kelly Webb, a graduate student in geology from Murphysboro, worked on the B.I.G. research and believes the research the young participants contribute is significant because it illustrates to graduate students the useful perspective of geology that kids have.

"This is good for them," Webb said. "We learn from them, they learn from us."

"At this time, I think the break is both appropriate and needed," Dillard said. He added that the Main Street Pig Out is an excellent alternative that benefits the entire community.

He also has cautiously approached change in areas such as improved travel to major cities. Dillard supports direct air service to Chicago and Springfield and would be in favor of a high-speed train route if concerns over how such a route might affect communities along the line could be resolved.

Dillard also favors using empty space in University Mall for offices. Because of the possible lack of long-term viability in the retail industry, Dillard said, other options must be considered to keep the mall open.

He also supports possible incentives on the part of the city to attract businesses to the mall. The specific types of incentives that might be offered by the city, Dillard said, are open to negotiations.

Dillard said a recently formed task force is the best option to achieving the compromise on landlord/tenant issues that he sees as essential.

John Budsluck

"Nothing special, just more hard work" is how Budsluck characterized his plans for the final days preceding the election.

Budsluck, regarded as a student-friendly candidate, has been emphasizing issues supporting student positions and those of interest to other Carbondale citizens. Among new ideas he has brought forth are making Carbondale its own gas provider and developing an industrial park along Route 13 east of town.

His stances on issues such as Halloween and University Mall also put him at odds with other candidates.

Budsluck supports an organized event in Carbondale for Halloween and is opposed to a proposed plan that allows Southern Illinois Healthcare and others to occupy space in the mall with offices rather than retail stores.

Budsluck also supports incentives on the part of the city to bring in new businesses.

Budsluck has targeted computer and other high-tech industries in particular.

In University-city relations, Budsluck wants to "get students more involved in the city" and hopes to improve relations between students and police by having officers walking more beats and getting to know students.

In the landlord/tenant arena, Budsluck has offered support for several ordinances originally proposed by the Graduate and Professional Student Council.

Rob Taylor

Taylor's "Four Fat Tigers Campaign," designed to help improve Carbondale through a better SIUC, focuses on four issues Taylor says are top priorities in gaining more state funding for the University.

"SIU is the economic engine of Carbondale," Taylor said. Improved relations between the city and University "will benefit everyone."

Taylor said improvements in areas such as relations between police and community members, rental housing, Halloween events and the representation on the City Council are the keys to higher funding from the state to SIUC.

Taylor has voiced support for the six ordinances proposed to the Council by the GPSC.

A council based on the ward system, which Taylor advocates, would give a fairer representation of groups throughout the city and ensure that the interests of a few could not overrule the majority.

Taylor, whose name will not appear on the ballot, said his chances as a write-in candidate are slim but that as long as the issues are brought forth, his mission has been accomplished.

"We ran a 17-day, $500 campaign," Taylor said. "But the issues are out, and that's really why I'm doing this."

Charles Hammond, associate professor in Chinese, who researches Chinese ghosts, said Felton's book is well-written and interesting.

"Her book is like an useful tool for me," Hammond said. "I use it to look at the similarities with Chinese civilization."

Hammond said Felton discusses many intriguing ghost stories and it is interesting to see how people in the classical world have similar beliefs in ghosts as many people do now.

"Her book has been widely received," he said. "It appeals to a large audience, many people are expressing interest in it."

Felton said she would eventually like to write another book about witches or vampires because they are very eerie, good stories.

Although Felton likes the supernatural because it is spooky and mysterious, she does not believe in it.

"I would have to see a ghost to believe in them," she said.

"The urban legends may have some bias in fact, but a lot of them are pretty hard to believe — they are just for fun and to scare people."

She said all ghosts come back for the same reasons — to take up old routines, seek justice or take revenge.

"I think it's all about unfinished business — the soul has to be at rest," she said.

Felton thinks ghost stories sell because people find them interesting.

"I think they are so popular because people love a good ghost story," Felton said.

where they lived," Schindler said. "When they die that is what they are thinking of, and that is what they continue to cling to."

Schindler said spirits can be created by the individual who witnesses them. He said there are luminous bodies, which represent good spirits with well intentions, but there can be negative black shadows, which are dismembered souls.

"A lot of times ghosts that give a scary experience are actually mental projections of one's fears," he said. "The mind is so strong that other people may witness another's mental projection."

A member of the janitorial staff of SIUC who would like to keep her name anonymous reported eerie feelings while maintaining the halls of Faner Hall late one evening.

She felt a presence behind her while cleaning a women's restroom in January 1998. Sensing she was not alone, she turned around and discovered what she thought to be a supernatural being.

A girl with a wide-striped sweater appeared to walk into the first stall of the bathroom. According to the woman, the girl had a transparent appearance and was not three-dimensional.

"She looked at me, and I looked at her," she said. "She wasn't white or green — she kind of looked like a slide being projected onto the wall."

Her second experience occurred within three weeks of the first sighting. While working after hours on the second floor of Faner, she was joined by a student who was apparently on her way to class.

The girl was a different individual with a backpack and appeared for only a split second before vanishing.

The janitor said she questioned her mental well-being after the confrontations of two spirits within the short time span.

"I questioned my sanity many times, and I asked myself if I really saw it," she said. "I am not scared of the supernatural world, maybe that is why I see them."

Nick Hnatiw, a freshman in mechanical engineering from Schaumburg, said he believes in the supernatural but has never had a supernatural experience.

Hnatiw said after energy is passed out of the body it must take another form, which he believes is a spiritual being.

"The body is full of energy and it has to go somewhere, [so] it will go to the spirit," Hnatiw said.

Hnatiw expressed his interest in experiencing a supernatural presence. He thinks it would encourage learning about the spirits.

"I definitely would love to have a supernatural experience," he said. "[Spirits] could teach me something I don't know."

He believes spirits are everywhere because after life ends, the living have no choice but to become spirits.

"Energy can't be destroyed," Hnatiw said. "Becoming a spirit is just the next stage."

Track and field keeps tracking down victory

Rob Allin
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

No team scores were kept at the Sea Ray Relays this weekend, but the SIUC track and field teams definitely scored near the top in the effort category.

Both Saluki squads turned in a slew of season-best performances last weekend in Knoxville, Tenn.

The Relays featured more than 100 colleges, universities and private clubs. The stiff competition gave the athletes reason to push harder than ever this season.

"It was a terrific meet for us against a very competitive field," men's coach Bill Cornell said. "I'm pretty excited about all the personal bests we had."

Senior Joseph Parks made the biggest impact for the men, finishing third in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a personal-best time of 8 minutes, 56.9 seconds.

Parks was the first collegiate runner to cross the finish line, and he was only 3.77 seconds behind Nike-sponsored runner Ray Hughes.

Junior Elliott Young also turned in a top-notch performance, finishing third in the javelin, although his throw of 194 feet, 10 inches was about seven feet short of his season-best attempt.

Other season bests included senior Romante Archer (21.95 in 200-meter dash), senior Baye Wilson (49.46, 400), junior Matt McClelland (3:56.65, 1500-meter run), senior Jeremy Parks (15:21.89, 5000) and junior Eric Rushing (9:49.65).

The field athletes also showed improvement. The decathlon event saw junior Allen Lakomik shine with a season best of 6,190 points.

Freshman Chad Harris leaped 15-1 1/2 for a personal best, while senior Mike Sandusky reached top 10 status in the Missouri Valley Conference for the hammer throw with a toss of 157-2.

Cornell said he expects more of the same next weekend, when his team heads to Arkansas for another stacked meet.

"It'll be a little more top-notch competition and a chance for us to keep getting better and better," Cornell said.

"We're making progress. We've got a few nagging injuries we've got to get cleaned up, but I'm pretty pleased right now."

The women's team also continued its climb up the MVC season-best lists in Knoxville, Tenn.

"There were some really outstanding performances," women's coach Don DeNoon said. "After this weekend) I've got a good, strong feeling that we're improving and we're healthy."

Junior Joy Cutrano widened her MVC lead in the 3,000, improving her top time by nine seconds with a second-place 9:58.17 effort.

Sophomore Becky Cox moved among the MVC front-runners with a 4:45.52 season's best in the 1,500.

Junior Jenny Monaco was another standout runner, taking seventh in the 5,000 with a time of 18:53.21.

dash) and sophomore Shaneka Williams (24:35, 200) also set season marks.

The Salukis also received their usual strong performances from sophomore throwers Tawnjai Ames and Caryn Poliquin. Ames beat out some key MVC opponents for fourth in the shot put (47-7 1/4), while Poliquin impressed in the shot put, hammer throw and discus, setting a personal-best in the latter (143-1).

"When you get down to looking at our team and how they compare to the rest of the conference, we have someone in the top three or four in every event except javelin and pole vault," DeNoon said.

DeNoon added that his athletes are keeping pace with steady improvements from earlier in the year, when they finished fourth in the indoor MVC championships.

"We certainly had some optimism that we'd have a better team outdoor than indoor, and our performances have reflected that," DeNoon said.

"We're equal, probably, better, than we thought we'd be at this time."

catch."

Shasteen's two touchdown receptions helped both Poteete's cause to prevent a quarterback controversy and Kobe's cause to keep one going.

Poteete connected on six of his 12 passes for 82 yards and the touchdown. Kobe challenged with 9-of-17 for 109 yards. Sophomore Tyler Paopao even argued his case, hitting on 5-of-11 passes for 69 yards and connecting with sophomore Charlie Teague for a touchdown.

Creighton first baseman/pitcher Peyton Lewis (5-0) defeated the Salukis in two ways — first with his arm Friday and then with his bat. Lewis pitched six innings, allowing one earned run. He also was 6-for-12 at the plate during the series.

Bluejay third baseman Ryan Gripp, who hit 8-for-13 in the series, was the other Saluki killer.

"They all showed their spurs, which we've seen this spring," Quarless said about his quarterbacks. "They have their moments. I thought at times each looked well and other times each looked poor."

Carpenter, who became the leading rusher in school history, was his normal self. He bulled over would-be tacklers for 83 yards on 18 carries. A solid performance, considering he missed a good portion of spring practice because of class obligations.

Defensively, junior lineman Brian Broussard did his best to stop Carpenter's maroon team. Broussard led the defense with three sacks and forced a fumble.

He hit three home runs with nine RBIs.

Finding the positives for SIUC is not that easy.

Senior pitchers Jason Frasor (4-1), Dave Piazza (3-3) and Brad Heuring (3-1) all suffered losses. The only starter not given a loss was Adam Biggs, who pitched in the 12-11, 10-inning affair Saturday afternoon.

The offense did not fare any better.

The first three batters of the Saluki lineup — Steve Ruggeri, Joe

"He works really hard. Brian always has," Quarless said. "I'm not sure if a couple times when he broke free, if there wasn't some missed assignments up front offensively."

Defensive back Chad Furler picked off a Kobe pass and returned it 68 yards for a touchdown. Hayward intercepted a Poteete pass returning it 48 yards before Poteete cut off his path to the end zone.

"I saw some big plays that you like to see," Quarless said. "I thought our kids played hard, just like we wanted. Maybe it could have been a little more physical, although I thought they got after it, at times, pretty good."

Schley and Scott Boyd — did not offer any support for SIUC, going 7-for-31 at the plate Friday and Saturday.

Getting outscored 34-18, the Salukis' offense has seemed to flatline since winning 20 of their first 24 games earlier in the season.

Junior right fielder Marty Worsley (6-for-17, HR) and Dave Pohlman (4-for-11, HR) went deep for the Salukis on the weekend. The only other Saluki hitter to show signs of life was junior first baseman Jeff Houston (5-for-15).

their ability to get the two-out and two-strike hits inning after inning.

Their relief pitching was solid when they needed to be, and everyone understood their role.

One through nine in the lineup, the Salukis had no downfalls.

But now Callahan is painting over his masterpiece in order to create a new Picasso, but it has not worked.

Junior Steve Ruggeri and No. 3 and 4 hitters Scott Boyd and Jeff Houston all have struggled as of late.

The defense, which Callahan said was better than last year, has started to fall at the worst of times. Sixteen errors in the last eight games only has tipped the edge of the iceberg for the limping Salukis.

Their inability to do just about anything right the last eight games has this reporter wondering if this is just a cruel April Fool's joke.

With a 3-3 February and 17-1 March, maybe the Salukis are just victims of a cruel joke that will end with victories at home before they hit the road for their next 10 games.

Hopefully, the Salukis will check into the hospital and let the doctors fix all of their woes before Wednesday's game.

If it works, I'll be the next in line. Because if it cures them the stuff has to be good.

Salukis in search of lost magic

The SIUC baseball team might want to consider checking into Memorial Hospital of Carbondale on its way back from Omaha, Neb., because it is looking a little pale.

A 20-4 overall mark, and 7-1 record in the Missouri Valley Conference on April 1 had things going well for the Salukis, but some strange illness has struck the team.

Poundings by Southwest Missouri State University last weekend and Creighton University this weekend have changed the Salukis from contenders to pretenders in just a matter of weeks.

MIKE BJORKLUND
SPORTS REPORTER

Nothing could go wrong for SIUC early in the season. The hitting was remarkable. The pitching was great.

Seniors Jason Fraser, David Piazza and Brad Heuring all seemed to be recovering nicely from previous injuries, allowing the SIUC offense to do its job. But that, too, has calmed down to the point of extinction.

Maybe it was its early non-conference schedule that allowed SIUC to get off to its best start since 1990. Or maybe it was a boost of momentum that just carried them to a No. 38 ranking in the nation. Whatever the case, the Salukis were right there with the big boys.

Eight games later, the Salukis are 21-11 and 7-8 in the MVC.

And it will not get any easier. With a much-improved Murray State University (21-10-1) ballclub coming to town Wednesday and No. 12 Wichita State University (30-8) two days later, this was not the time, nor the place, for this slide to happen.

SIUC coach Dan Callahan understood going into the season that the Salukis were definitely not as bad as their ninth-place finish in the MVC last season. Nor could he predict that his team would be as good as they were.

With fans making their way to "The Hill" and Abe Martin Field for the first time in a while, the Salukis were living the good life.

What made the Salukis so good was

Maroon team takes 19-15 win over White squad in intrasquad scrimmage

PAUL WLEKLINSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Nobody was expecting the SIUC football team to be in mid-season form for Saturday's intrasquad scrimmage at McAndrew Stadium.

Heck, being in preseason form with just three weeks of practice and more than five months until the season opener is a task in itself with key absences because of injuries and student responsibilities.

In the end, it was senior running back Karlton Carpenter's Maroon team defeating the White team 19-15.

SIUC football coach Jan Quarless is hardly concerned with the outcome. He knows that the incoming recruiting class, along with this week's absences, will fill the voids come August.

"A little sloppy I think," Quarless said about the scrimmage. "When you have your offensive line, like I said a M.A.S.H. unit, there was pressure on the quarterbacks, so they didn't get a chance to settle their feet. Consequently, I thought they didn't make some good decisions."

One good decision by the quarterbacks was to look to for sophomore wide receiver Mark Shasteen. In fact, it was made seven times, resulting in 109 receiving yards and two touchdowns. Shasteen was on the receiving end of touchdown strikes from junior college transfer Shared Potete and sophomore Kevin Kobe.

"Mark made a bunch of catches, and he has to do that," Quarless said. "We tell him the ball is going to come his way. I think the thing that is really important is he has to make some tougher catches. When he gets wide open, he makes those catches. But I'm talking about the tougher one over the middle when it's third and five, and you've got to have that

Baseball team swept away from Omaha

MIKE BJORKLUND
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Hoping to reverse their bad fortunes as of late, Saluki baseball coach Dan Callahan and company did not get the desired results in Omaha, Neb.

Creighton University swept SIUC in four games by the scores of 6-2, 12-11, 13-4 and 3-1 this weekend.

With Sunday's 6-2 loss to the Bluejays, the Salukis (21-11, 7-8 in the Missouri Valley Conference) now have lost seven of their last eight games, dropping to fifth place in the MVC with Murray State University and No. 12 Wichita State coming to town later this week.

Similar to the drubbing the Salukis took last weekend at Abe Martin Field to Southwest Missouri State University, the Bluejays offense was as potent, if not more potent, than the Bears' sluggers.

COMING HOME

• Next up for the Salukis is Murray State University Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Abe Martin Field.
