Increase of About 2,000

19,000-Plus Enrollment Expected Here in Fall

A record Carbondale Campus enrollment of 19,000 to 19,500 is expected for the 1966 fall quarter, according to Robert A. McGrath, registrar.

This will be an increase of approximately 2,000 from the 17,300 students enrolled last fall.

Registration for the fall quarter at Southern will continue through Sept. 2 with New Student Days set for Sept. 18-20 and night classes to begin Sept. 21.

SIU limits fall-term admission first-term freshmen to Illinois high school graduates who ranked in the upper half of their classes or made high scores on entrance exams, and out-of-state students with class rank in the top 40 per cent.

"There will be plenty of housing available to accommodate all students," McGrath said. Most of the housing available will be off-campus. "This is one year when students can be selective in their choice of housing," added Anita Kuo, supervisor of off-campus housing.

"This is the first year we've had a situation like this but it's still a good thing," said Mrs. Kuo. "Students probably won't be forced to live in housing which makes them uncomfortable."

Mrs. Kuo estimates about 9,000 single undergraduate students will live off-campus in September. The total off-campus figure will be boosted by about 2,500 graduate and married students, she said.

On-campus dormitories will house 4,565 students, about half men and half women, said Joseph W. Gasser of the housing office. No new dormitories will be opened on campus this year.

The remaining 3,000 or so students will be commuters. "We're still primarily an off-campus university," Mrs. Kuo said. "We have more than twice as many students off-campus than on-campus."

Deadline Nears

For Registration

The last opportunity for continuing students to register for the fall quarter is Aug. 16, 17 and 18, according to H. W. Wohlwend, assistant registrar.

The deadline for registration for continuing students was changed last week from Sept. 2 to Aug. 18. The change was because of the small number of students going through the registration process at this time, according to Wohlwend.

Mondays and Fridays at the registration and sectioning centers are reserved for new students.

Gus Bode

Gus says instead of trying to chase the Illinois Central away from campus someone ought to talk 'em into building a spur between Lentz Hall and Home Ec for one of those 100-mile-an-hour trains.

City Studies Cycle Parking Suggestion

A recommendation to give motorcycles free parking privileges in two downtown lots is under consideration by the Carbondale City Council.

Councilman William Eaton made the suggestion at Monday night's Council meeting but action was delayed for one week in order to study possible objections to the plan.

Eaton suggested that parking meters not be installed in the two recently constructed parking lots for cycles in the 200 block of West Monroe Street and on Cherry Street next to the Varsity Theater.

Posts have been installed in the two lots but not meters.

Eaton said he thought the move might generate good will between cyclists and the city. However, Councilman Frank Kirk said some motorists might resent the free parking for cycles.

Eaton suggested that the meters for the two lots be installed on University Avenue and at various places between Cherry and Oak Streets. Some of University Avenue is presently unmetered.

1,157 Will Seek

SIU Degrees at

Sept. 2 Ceremony

A total of 1,157 Carbondale Campus students have applied for degrees to be awarded at the annual summer commencement Sept. 2.

Mrs. Sue Eberhart of the Registrar's Office said applicants include 687 seeking bachelor's degrees and 470 who have applied for advanced degrees.

Awarding of the degrees in many instances will be contingent upon successful completion of current courses.

Commencement speaker will be Milton T. Edelman, associate dean of the Graduate School. Edelman also is professor of economics here, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1950.

The summer commencement exercises are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in McAndrew Stadium, but will be moved into the Arena in case of rain. A separate program for Edwardsville Campus graduates will be held Sept. 3 at Edwardsville.

'Pow-Wow' Set Tonight At Children's Camp

Crippled children attending SIU's summer camp at Little Grassy Lake will stage a "Pow-Wow" at 8 p.m. today. The public is invited.

The camp is located off the Giant City blacktop road approximately a mile south of the public access road to Little Grassy Lake.

PATHWAY TO KNOWLEDGE—Workmen had started putting in the drive leading from Campus Drive to the Technology Building complex northwest of the Arena. The School of Technology will move into the buildings during the fall term. Photographer John Baran took this picture from the upper floor of one of the buildings.

Research Will Be Emphasized

Student Teachers to Be 'Phased Out' In Proposed Changes for U-School

Student teachers will eventually be "phased-out" of the University School system, according to Troy W. Edwards, assistant dean of the College of Education.

The school, located north of Morris Library, has classes for nursery through high school. The anticipated enrollment for the fall is 600.

According to Edwards, the school has been an experimental and demonstrational center for a number of years. It is used by the College of Education as an observation laboratory.

"Our intention is to convert the school into something more than an experiment," Edwards said. "We cannot demonstrate teaching methodology effectively to our education students if we have student teachers in the laboratory school, because they are learning themselves."

According to Roger E. Robinson, the principal of University School, new emphasis will be on research because it "will bring in more outside money."

"This is another reason why we will have to lessen the number of student teachers," Robinson said. "They will now be assigned to University School only under special circumstances."

Faculty members, teachers and administrators in the College of Education are working on a new proposal to make the school one of the foremost educational research centers in the country, Robinson said.

"We would like to entice productive researchers to the school to form a research and service center for SIU and the area," Robinson said.

"One of the programs planned is a bilingual program beginning in kindergarten, where children would be taught as though they were fluent in Spanish as well as English," he said.

The program will be delayed in starting, pending word from the federal government about a request for a $1.5 million research grant.

"It will be another two or three months before we hear about the grant," Robinson said.

Another aspect of the experimental research program is the possibility of dealing with the behavioral patterns of students. Plans may include an in-service training center for teachers where prominent behavioral psychologists would be on the faculty in advisory positions.

"We are now taking a more positive attitude about the future," Robinson said, "and we hope that in the near future the University School will be a great educational asset to SIU."

Hiding Actions Becomes Difficult

Big School, Small Town and Morality

By E. Claude Coleman
Last of Three Articles

By this time there was moral breakdown everywhere, and parents did not know what to do with their kids. They would say to each other, "It's got to you just about have to have a college education to get by nowadays." The kids thought this might be a trap but they had heard stories from their older brothers and sisters about the goings-on at the colleges and they would say "O. K." They never let on that they wanted to go to college because it was the most direct and obvious way of getting away from too much supervision and they would still have spending money and be living high on the hog. Gradually this thing built into a racket. You could go to college and do just a little bit of studying and you could write or call home about exams and term papers and a thousand pages to read and an experiment you were doing. The old folks would say "Keep your chin up" and the old man would slip an extra twenty in the next letter and every time they got a chance they would work their child into the conversation down at the Elks Club and tell how hard he was studying and about the experiment he was doing.

What the old folks did not always know was that their boy's experiment was being carried on with a little gal he had met in biology laboratory, and never before did two young folks learn about biology at such a rapid rate or with such eager enthusiasm.

They became so eager, as a matter of fact, that they continued their experiment when classes were not in session, sometimes late on Saturday and Sunday nights in all sorts of odd places like Snider's Hill, bridal paths (some people will say I don't know how to spell "bridal" but I have it the way I want it) and vacant rooms in classroom buildings and the Library. Sometimes they would sneak into each other's dormitory rooms and continue their experiments.

I am guessing you know what I am talking about without my drawing pictures. You can see for yourselves how it was. These students were carrying their experiments in biology way beyond the assignments and they neglected sometimes to do their lessons in English, calculus, history and philosophy, until at the end of the school year the young man would think the sky had broken into little pieces and fallen on his head.

He had failed some of his courses and his draft board was trying to fill its quota and might send him "Greetings" just any day now. The little gal had fouled up their biology experiment by forgetting to take her pills. He had been on the campus for a year, and no faculty member had so much as given him the time of day, and the clerks in the stores were unfriendly. Every time he drove his Honda on or off campus some policeman stopped him and checked his brakes, his lights and his I.D. card. "To hell with everything," he would say. "For half a cent I would go on a panty raid and thumb my nose at a pretty policeman."

Some of the students did not get into quite so much trouble. They read their textbooks in anthropology and sociology and they said, "Why do we have these hole-in-the-corner affairs just to do what comes went home to stay, and some others left in disgust; but the great majority stayed on campus to continue their biological experiments. The newspapers had a field day because they not only got some good pictures and some fancy quotations from puzzled personnel who kept scratching their heads and wondering what they could do for the best interests of the university, but they also had editorial material for several days ahead.

They even interviewed people, asking if there had been a moral breakdown and everyone said, "Of course not." So the excitement was over until the next time and everyone settled down to a hot dry summer.

Well, I have completed my history of moral collapse, and if it were a good history I suppose there would be a moral to it, as there is in Arnold Toynbee and Thucydides; but I guess there is no moral here, except that it is hard to run a big university in a small town. Maybe if we had a bigger town we could cover up a lot better.

As things are, we have to struggle along in full view of everybody, including the old ladies who say "Tsk! Tsk! Tsk!" When people are learning their lessons about the old rules, struggling to find some new ones and maybe wanting to come up with some fresh ideas that would improve human relations for a long time to come and maybe even make everyone understand fully about this moral breakdown business, it would seem we could do it a lot better if so many people were not looking on all the time. It's a little like a doctor doing very delicate heart surgery in a theater before hundreds of people.

Maybe, however, this is a situation where all the help of the spectators is needed. If the faculty would stir itself and become actively interested in student welfare, and if the townspeople, instead of being standoffish and critical about students, would make friends of them and bust themselves trying to be friendly and helpful, maybe we could still have a good big university in a small town.

naturally?" They petitioned the dean for interdormitory visiting hours. The dean was so upset he forgot to tell his story about playing "Spin the Platter" with the girls when he was a young buck and finally came up with a statement that the university, while it fully understood the situation, could not lend a helping hand to the students' hasty experiments in biology. Boiled down to its essence this statement seemed to be saying that the university was afraid of the old ladies who said "Tsk! Tsk! Tsk! What is this world coming to?"

So there was moral collapse everywhere and the boys put on a series of protest demonstrations without quite knowing why and they solved nothing. But they alarmed the townspeople who said "I told you so," and the old ladies said "What is this world coming to? Now when I was a girl, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera."

The policemen got tired and sleepy after a while and knocked some heads together and said "It could have been a lot worse. I think we handled it pretty well." The faculty stayed home and viewed everything with deep concern and said "They (meaning the administrators) have got to get busy and do something."

Everything ended happily, of course. The bad students

Computers to Aid Future Learning

by Robert M. Hutchins

Although most of the discussion of automation has centered on its effects on employment, its consequences for the school and the home are likely to be quite as spectacular and even more certain than the reduction of the hours of labor.

The argument still goes on about employment. The official view is that the technological revolution will dislocate labor only temporarily. There is so much work to be done that eventually everybody able and willing to work will have a job.

This seems to me to underestimate the computer by treating it as though it were just another invention, whereas it cannot be compared with any mechanical device in history. It adds a new dimension to the powers of men and to human life.

To suppose that so fundamental a change can leave the economic system virtually untouched is to ignore the radical nature of the new instrument that mankind now has at its disposal. I believe that wherever the computer establishes itself—and it is rapidly doing so everywhere—it will eventually reduce labor as we have understood it and may reduce it almost to the vanishing point.

It may also eliminate the school, the college and the university as we have understood them.

We have understood them as collections of buildings necessary to bring together students, teachers, books and laboratory equipment.

At the risk of imperiling bond issues and appropriations for such buildings, I must say that the technological revolution threatens them with obsolescence.

Technology will free education from limitations of space, staff and time.

A glimpse of the future comes from an experiment in progress at Palo Alto, Calif. Some 150 pupils in the first grade are receiving instruction in reading and mathematics from a computer located miles away at Stanford University. A teacher is on hand to help those who fall behind, but the lessons come from the computer over the teletype to a television screen.

The computer submits the question, states the time limit for answering them and reports if the answer is correct.

The computer could be located anywhere. The screen could be located in the home. The teacher could be like a visiting nurse, calling round at intervals to ask how the pupil was doing.

The effects on the home could be as dramatic as those on the school. The family might become a learning unit.

The great question about the reduction of the hours of labor always is: What are we going to do with ourselves?

One thing we might do is learn; and we might do it all our lives.

The new technology could make it possible to develop a learning society. Every home could be equipped with a television set that would give access to educational material of every kind at every level. The knowledge and wisdom of the race would be available at last to every member of it.

The problem of technology in education is the same as that of technology generally: What are we going to use it for?

These devices may strengthen the worst tendencies in education, which are to confuse it with training and the accumulation of information; these are objects they can easily accomplish. They may diminish the attention given to reasoning and judgment; they may reduce discussion; they may promote centralization.

But these results, which would be deplorable, are not inevitable. The computer has great flexibility. Everything depends on the conception of education held by the people in charge. That is what determines the educational program today.

Hence, it is imperative to begin thinking now about how the enormous power of educational technology is to be guided and controlled. The giant corporations are already moving into the field; the scent of big money is in the air.

One of the most important social changes in history is impending. We shall have to develop new social and political institutions to cope with it.

Cab Companies Commended For Positions in Fare Talks

To the editor:

A public hearing was held Aug. 3 by a Carbondale City Council to hear testimony concerning the lowering of taxi fares to University student housing areas.

The owner of Home Cab Co., who asked for the hearing, felt that the rates, which were set by the Council last May, were too high for these areas and that a reduction was in order. The owner of Campus Cab Co. agreed with him.

The owner of Yellow Cab Co., who had originally asked for the fare hike, was opposed to the reduction and spoke strongly against it. He also said he did not particularly care to go to these student living areas anymore. It will be interesting to see whose views will prevail in the Council's final decision.

I feel that the owners of Home and Campus Cab companies are to be commended for trying to get the rates lowered for students, and that the students of SIU should return this favor by calling these companies whenever it is necessary to use a taxi.

I have worked closely with the owners of Home and Campus Cab companies in trying to get the fares lowered and I feel that these two gentlemen have an interest in the student welfare.

Also, I feel that I can safely say that if a student has a legitimate complaint about the service he receives from either company, a call to Mr. Reed of the Home Cab Co. or Mr. Ellis of Campus Cab Co. will get the problem straightened out fairly.

Ronald Centanni, former city relations commissioner.

'Enclaves' Will End That War

By Arthur Hoppe (San Francisco Chronicle)

There's growing agreement, I'm glad to say, on the war in Viet Nam: We can't win it, we can't lose it, we can't stop it and we can't afford it.

In their unending search for a solution to these problems, the experts have now come up with another. It's called "The Enclave Theory." I think it's great.

What we must do, says the theory, is to withdraw our troops in Viet Nam into fortified enclaves, preferably along the coast where they can be supplied by sea. In these redoubts, small forces could hold out for years and years and years, periodically showing the flag, sporadically defending Vietnamese soil and constantly symbolizing our will to resist—all at a considerable saving in cost. Not to mention wear and tear on the local peasants.

All that remains is to decide where these enclaves should be located. Fortunately, I have at hand a brilliant paper by that well-known expert, Richard Scott, which he has modestly entitled: "The Solution to the Mess in Viet Nam."

Mr. Scott begins by noting the location in the South China Sea, a scant 50 miles off the Viet Nam coast, of Poulo Condore Island—definitely recognized as Vietnamese soil in all standard atlases.

"I humbly propose," writes Mr. Scott, "that we take all the Loyal Democratic Freedom-Loving Vietnamese, both of them, and establish a government in exile on Poulo Condore Island.

"We will call the island Nationalist Viet Nam. And we will immediately launch a vigorous policy to keep the outlaw regime on Mainland Viet Nam from taking Nationalist Viet Nam's rightful seat in the United Nations.

"Even Mr. Rusk can see that this policy will lead to at least 18 years of peace in Southeast Asia."

Mr. Scott's choice of Poulo Condore Island as an enclave of Vietnamese soil to defend appears ideal. We would, of course, declare it a bastion of democracy, an invaluable ally and an integral part of America's defense perimeter.

I have just undergone the most frustrating and demoralizing week ever thrust upon a mere mortal.

To start with, I had one of my better versions of the Black Plague—a severe sinus infection. My sinuses are so sensitive they can pick up ragweed 50 miles away. In all out engaging any further traumatic events. But later that night, as I was going down some dormitory steps, I missed one and fell on my left ankle. After determining the ankle was not swollen, I was able to crawl into bed without further injury.

I awoke in the morning with a tremendous throbbing in my leg. I was afraid to look but, after a bit of silent meditation to build up my courage, I threw off the cover and peered at the ankle. During the fairness to those who have never had this experience, I must admit that it's not really too bad. Unless, of course, you don't relish the idea of alternately feeling like a clogged drain pipe and a leaky faucet.

I couldn't see going way out to the Health Service, so I bought some pills at the drug store and decided to try to outlast it.

Those pills were really something. They didn't help my cold and kept me in a constant state of drowsiness. I was so drugged I thought I was in the Twilight Zone. A moral LSD trip if you will.

On one such trip, I decided to study for my mid-term in my 3:30 class. I gathered my book and notes and put in a couple hours of serious (maybe lackadaisical would be a better word) study. I glanced at my watch, noticed it was almost three and decided to go meet my girl as she left work. I arrived a few minutes early and sat on the steps once again reviewing the notes.

She came out with a quizzical look and ventured pondering "What are you doing here?"

"I came to get you. Now you can walk with me over to my 3:30 test."

"Fine. Only one thing, your test was at 2:30."

Oh, well, there is nothing that will live up a class as much as some nut coming in 30 minutes late for the mid-term.

Somehow I almost managed to go the rest of the day with-night, it had turned the loveliest shade of purple and ballooned to the size of a softball.

My ankle was throbbing and my nose was still running.

Now I could see going to the Health Service. So off I went to get a complete overhaul. The X-rays proved negative, much to the chagrin of a pretty young nurse who wanted very badly to put a cast on my leg. Other than that she seemed normal.

I was given a prescription and sent home with enough pills to start my own drug store. I am currently taking cold pills, sinus pills, pain pills, pills to break up any clotting in the ankle and pep pills to combat the effect of the other pills.

Normally, this would seem a big enough cross to bear but I wasn't finished yet. I spent Friday evening watching a football game on television and, now, my girl is mad at me because I "would rather watch the football game than talk to me."

For once in her life she was right, but why did it have to be the last week.

In hopes that better things were in store, I checked my horoscope and found that "Misfortune increases through the middle of the month."

Well, that was the last straw brother. I'm going straight to bed, stay there till the end of the month and pray the roof doesn't cave in on my poor star-crossed body.

Recreation for the Retarded To Be Topic of Conference

Recreation and physical fitness programs for the mentally retarded will be the subject of a two-day Midwestern conference at SIU starting Friday.

The main speaker for the conference will be Canadian physical education specialist Frank Hayden, who is a consultant to the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in Washington.

The group will spend the first morning at the A.L. Bowen Children's Center in Harrisburg, where an intensive fitness, physical education and recreation program has been instituted for residents.

Included in an afternoon program at the Arena will be a demonstration of testing and corrective exercises developed in the Department of Physical Education for men.

Hayden will speak at a banquet at 6:30 p.m. in the University Center.

John Morris, director of special recreation for the Chicago Park District, will moderate a panel discussion Saturday morning.

Lunar Orbiter Headed for Moon; Potential Landing Sites Sought

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The United States Wednesday rocketed a Lunar Orbiter spacecraft toward an intended orbit about the moon, hoping to obtain clear pictures of the hidden backside, Surveyor 1 and nine potential astronaut landing sites.

An Atlas-Agena rocket thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 2:26 p.m. (CDT) to start the flying photography laboratory on its planned 235,446-mile journey.

If Lunar Orbiter successfully sends back pictures of the nine zones of interest, the space agency will be able to start narrowing down the selection of a landing spot for the first U.S. man-to-the-moon expedition, scheduled in two or three years.

The flight control center said several hours of tracking would be required to determine if Lunar Orbiter was on the proper course at the desired speed of 24,400 miles an hour.

The flight plan called for the spacecraft to execute several intricate maneuvers as it vaulted across the heavens toward its distant target.

The early portion of the mission appeared normal as the Atlas-Agena, 10 stories tall, sped out over the Atlantic Ocean trailing a blazing exhaust flame.

The control center reported four minutes after liftoff that "everything is going well... All vehicle systems are excellent. We have a very good mission at this time."

Marines, Koreans Kill 310 in Battles

SAIGON, South Vietnam—(AP)—South Korean troops and U.S. Marines, once allies in another war, smashed the enemy Wednesday in two battles about 140 miles apart, and reported killing at least 310.

In their biggest battle of the war, South Koreans, in company strength, and five U.S. tanks shot to pieces a battalion of 600 North Vietnamese who charged in human waves through the central highland jungles. The Koreans reported 170 enemy dead and many arms captured.

To the north, elements of the U.S. 5th Marine Regiment, which fought alongside the Koreans in the Korean War, attacked a dug-in Viet Cong force and estimated they killed 140 in a battle 35 miles south of Da Nang, the Leathernecks' northern base. Fighting continued after nightfall.

Rights Leaders Change Plans; Archbishop Asks New Tactics

CHICAGO (AP)—Civil rights advocates postponed Wednesday two marches which officials feared would provoke violence and Archbishop John Patrick Cody urged that march leaders "prayerfully reconsider" their methods in striving for open housing.

After a meeting that ran through most of the night, civi-

Open Housing Order Stopped by Injunction

SPRINGFIELD —(AP)—Associate circuit judge Howard White issued a temporary injunction Wednesday restraining enforcement of Gov. Otto Kerner's open housing order against all real estate dealers. Previously, Judge White had banned enforcement against 2,500 realtors who filed petitions.

il rights leaders announced that no march would be made today in the racially sensitive, all-white Bogan area on Chicago's Southwest side. They said a new destination will be selected for a march later.

The civil rights leaders also announced there will be no march this week in Cicero, where the Illinois National Guard was called out 15 years ago when a Negro couple moved into the western suburb.

Archbishop Cody, who has taken a strong stand for racial justice, issued a statement calling on civil rights leaders to "prayerfully reconsider the methods now being employed to achieve their altogether just and laudable purposes."

Citing the violence that has attended such recent marches in Chicago, the Roman Catholic archbishop said: "They have not been guilty of violence and lawlessness. Others have. But the actions of these others are now a circumstance which they must take into account in assessing their activities."

"It is truly sad, indeed deplorable, that citizens should ever have to be asked to suspend the exercise of their rights because of the evil-doing of others."

Rights Bill Wins Praise Of Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson applauded Wednesday House passage of a new civil rights bill but the White House indicated the administration may try to get the Senate to strengthen a controversial fair housing section.

The House approved the third major civil rights bill in three years Tuesday and the President said in a statement that this action "erected an important new milestone on the nation's journey toward equality of justice and of opportunity for all our citizens."

"The provisions it has enacted to deal with terror inflicted on civil rights workers, the quality of justice afforded by the jury system, and enforcement of school desegregation are important steps toward resolving the great domestic struggle of our generation," Johnson said.

But he noted that the open housing provision approved by the House was less comprehensive than he had sought, and he voiced regret at the omissions.

He voiced a hope and expectation the Senate will get to final action on the bill without unnecessary delay.

Asked whether Johnson is asking the Senate to approve the same open housing provisions as the House, White House press secretary BILL D. Moyers replied in the negative.

"I am sure," he said, "that the original proposal is still desired by the administration as it was."

Strikes Disease Strikes in Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—What has been termed a "weird neurological disease" has sent 17 persons to Parkland Hospital in the last few days, city health authorities said.

A Parkland spokesman said a man, 21, died from the malady with the other patients' conditions listed as from good to critical. Age range of the victims is from 21 to 87, Dr. Hal J. Dewlett, city health director, said.

With physicians here so far unable to pinpoint the nature of the disease, Dr. Dewlett asked the help of specialists from the U.S. Public Health Service's communicable disease center in Atlanta, Ga.

Symptoms have included twitching of limbs, stiff neck, fever, headaches, involuntary rapid movement of the eyeball and unconsciousness.

Most patients are only "moderately sick," said Dr. Dewlett.

No Action on Gun Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee took no action Wednesday on a bill to control gun sales except to agree to consider it at its next meeting. No date was set.

2 Marion Youths Arraigned On Freight Derailing Charge

MARION, Ill. (AP)—Two teen-age youths were arraigned Wednesday before Judge Lon Haney of Circuit Court in connection with the derailment of a Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad freight train.

The boys were arrested Monday and charged with criminal damage to property. An additional charge of criminal damage to railroad property was added at Wednesday's arraignment.

A public defender was appointed to defend the youths, one of whom was identified as Carl Neafus, 17, of Marion.

The other boy was identified as Jesse Watkins, 13, also of Marion.

Judge Haney granted continuance of several days to the boys' attorney, George Morgan, who substituted for his law partner, Charles Winters, who was out of town.

Authorities said the youths admitted placing rocks in a switch and removing warning flags, causing the train to derail Saturday near Marion. Three crewmen were injured. Two are still hospitalized. Officials have estimated more than $500,000 damage was caused by the derailment, which also put telephone service out for a time because of severed cables.

The youths, who had been released to the custody of their parents, were being held in the Williamson County Jail for failure to make bond of $8,000.

U Thant Will Announce Sept. 1 If He'll Seek New U. N. Term

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U Thant of Burma will announce on Sept. 1 or 2—after his return from a trip to Mexico and Chile—whether he intends to step down as U.N. secretary-general, a spokesman said today.

The spokesman said Thant had no comment on published reports that he had already made up his mind to leave his U.N. post and had communicated his decision to key U.N. delegates.

Thant had announced previously he would make his decision known by the end of this month. A spokesman said Thant would return Aug. 31 from a week-long trip during which he will dedicate a new building for the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America at Santiago, Chile.

Thant is under considerable pressure to seek a new five-year term. His present term expires Nov. 3.

A delegation from the powerful 36-nation African group called on him last Friday and asked him to stay on the job. A spokesman said Thant would take their views into account.

SIU Coeds to Represent U. S., Canada

Gymnasts Entered in World Games

By Mike Schwebel

The girls are in the sporting news again, with SIU gymnast Donna Schaezner getting her share of honors in week-long competition recently ended in Champaign.

Miss Schaezner, a junior from Milwaukee, won a berth on the U.S. women's gymnastics team which will compete in the World Games in Germany beginning Sept. 1.

Another SIU coed performing for coach Herb Vogel, Irene Hayworth, will also be attle for the seventh spot on the roster.

The final point totals gave Miss Schaezner 133.129, with Miss Tanak gaining 133.029, just one-tenth of a point off.

The battle covered performances in 16 events, with the two contestants staying within fractions of points of each other.

A third place finish in the last event, the floor exercise, game gave Miss Schaezner enough for the final decision.

The U.S. team will train at Grossinger resort, New York.

Jose Villarete isn't very big physically and he wasn't the number one man on SIU tennis coach Dick LeFevre's Spring squad, but the sophomore from Manila is making a name for himself on the tournament circuit.

Villarete's latest accomplishment was an upset victory over highly regarded John Pickens of Rice University in opening play in the Meadow Club Invitation Grass Court Tennis Tournament.

The 9-7, 4-6, 6-4 win came on Monday at Southampton, N.Y., as Villarete improves with nearly every match.

Although it is highly improbable that Villarete will be able to reach the finals of any of the tour stops, his performances in his first year on the tour have been outstanding.

Miss Hayworth will be competing as a representative of Canada, however.

A former Saluki gymnast, Dale McClements Flanssas, now of Seattle, also won a berth on the seven member U.S. squad.

Miss Schaezner was forced to go down to the last event to edge Joyce Tanak of Se-
