Fee use raises lobbying questions

By Ken Seeber
Staff Writer

The word "lobbying" is a dirty word at SIU-C — depending upon whom you talk to.

"When it comes right down to it, we can't say 'lobbying' and we should all avoid using that term," said Tony Appleman, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization.

Appleman was speaking at a USO Senate Retreat Wednesday night.

Appleman was referring to a problem the USO might have in trying to get a student fee past by the SIU-C Board of Trustees.

The USO will have a referendum before the student body this semester in an attempt to get a student fee to pay for SIU-C's membership in the Illinois Student Association.

Appleman said the $4,000 or $5,000 per year raised through the student fee would be used primarily for phone bills and transportation costs in the ISA. But some of the money would be used for research to be presented to the state legislature.

The problem is in deciding if the ISA's presentations constitute a lobbying effort.

"You cannot use University money for lobbying purposes," said Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for student affairs. "It is illegal."

Paratore said that once student fees are collected, they are considered University money.

"It is somewhat illegal to take state money and use it to pay a student or another person to lobby and voice the opinions of the students," Appleman said.

Appleman said the University already may be funding a lobbying effort in the forms of a legislative liaison and a governmental relations officer.

Respectively, Clyde Choate and Sharon Buchanan-McClure serve in those post-

"Take a look at our own University," Appleman said. "What does the legislative liaison and governmental relations officer do? They lobby."

"If they were going to come down on us legally about what we do with this money through the referendum, which we cannot do without the support of the students and senate, everything will be legal and the titles will be legislative liaison and governmental relations," Appleman said.

Officials discuss starting bus line for SIU-C and city

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

Is a bus line serving both SIU-C and the surrounding community possible? It could very well be, according to University spokesman and city administrators participating Thursday in initial talks at City Hall.

The possibility of instituting a city-wide mass transit system was discussed in a brainstorming session involving Undergraduate Student Organization City Affairs Commissioner Dave Madlener, city community development director Don Monty, city planners James Rayfield and Linda Gladson, vice-president for campus services Clarence Dougherty and Madge Smith, transportation committee representative for the Partnership for Progressive Approaches to Disability Issues.

DON MONTY, in an interview conducted after the meeting, said that the city would "love to cooperate with SIU" on such a project, and would initially work in an advisory capacity providing information on past city attempts at providing mass transportation to the people of Carbondale.

"The concept is a good one," Monty said. "There has been an indication among city residents in the past of a desire for mass transportation."

He said the meeting's participants discussed "the nuts and bolts of the Northern Illinois University bus line system," which is provided by Huskie Bus Line, a subsidiary of American Transport Corporation.

THE BUS service, instituted in 1971, is funded totally by NIU through student fees, which are $26 per student per semester.

ATC provides the busses and the drivers through a leasing agreement with the university and most of the drivers hired are student workers, said Karl John, assistant manager of Huskie Bus Lines.

Students do the route planning and scheduling on their own, John said.

The bus service, located in De Kalb, operates from 7 a.m. to 2:15 a.m. daily.

MONTY SAID there was an extensive discussion of possible funding from state and federal agencies, which could be an addition to funding generated by SIU-C.

SIU-C students currently pay fees for services provided by the Recreation Center and the Student Center as part of their University bill.

Madlener said he will work through the USO to determine a reasonable student fee for a bus service similar to NIU's.

MADLENER ALSO said he would look into ways of linking the proposed service with existing University resources, such as

Limited alcohol use OK'd in amended tailgate policy

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Two revisions in University policy have been made pertaining to alcohol possession and consumption during the 1985 football season. Alcohol will be allowed in the Free Forum Area, and kegs will be allowed at tailgate parties.

Under the policy: — Kegs are allowed but restricted to Parking Lot 13, directly west of the stadium; Lots 10A and 10B, north of the stadium and Lots 43 and 53, near the Physical Plant.

— Alcohol will also be permitted in the Free Forum Area but only in individual serving containers.

— Possession and consumption of alcohol is permitted during Saturday home games from the period of three hours prior to kick off to 15 minutes prior to game time and during half-time of those games.

— SIU-C Security will strictly enforce the underage drinking law.

— The direct or indirect sale or delivery of alcoholic beverages is strictly prohibited.

— For safety reasons, the use of non-glass containers is encouraged for all beverages.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said the policy is not new, but basically the same one enforced last year, except for the two revisions.

During the last three home games of the 1984 season, alcohol was limited to individual servings and kegs were not allowed in the attempt to halt or at least reduce conduct seen as potentially dangerous or embarrassing to University officials.

After the no-keg policy was put into effect, representatives of student organizations, the Undergraduate Student Organization, University departments and the Graduate and Professional Student Council agreed to look at the situation at the end of the season.

Fighting in S. Africa leaves 19 people dead

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — The bloodiest two days of South Africa's state of emergency passed Thursday with 19 people reported killed in nationwide violence and mounting fears a miners strike set for Sunday could lead to new unrest.

A 3-year-old girl and a teenager shot to death by police were among the 19 people reported killed in the bloodiest two-day period in South Africa since March, when police shot to death 20 mourners at a funeral near Uitenhage.

There also were unconfirmed reports that three other children died in the violence — the worst ever in Cape Town and the worst since the state of emergency was imposed July 21 to curb yearlong unrest that has claimed the lives of more than 665 people.

In the black township of Guguletu, near Cape Town, rioters strung barbed wire across the streets in an attempt to decapitate policemen patrolling in armored trucks, and buildings set ablaze by arsonists formed a "ring of fire" around the city.

Fire crews and ambulances refused to enter the areas, which were far from Cape Town's white suburbs and business district.

In Bellville South, youths fought "pitched battles" with police, said a trade unionist, who asked not to be named. Black smoke from a torched paint factory billowed in the skies.

"There are heavy casualties and lots of arrests," the union leader said.

In Cape Town's black townships, which authorities ruled off limits to journalists, teachers said police fired "indiscriminately" at students and demonstrators returning from a protest march in Manenberg.

Tutu says that sanctions can swiftly end apartheid

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Reagan Administration could end South Africa's apartheid system of segregation overnight by applying the kind of sanctions imposed against Nicaragua, Bishop Desmond Tutu said Thursday. The Nobel Peace Prize winner spoke to Indianapolis radio station WTLC in a telephone interview from his home in South Africa. Tutu also said the only accurate picture of happenings in his strife-torn nation is coming from outside the news media.

Appeals court halts Three Mile Island restart

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A federal appeals court Thursday blocked the restart of Three Mile Island's undamaged nuclear reactor just hours before the unit was to be operated for the first time since its twin suffered a partial meltdown in 1979. The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said it took the action to give restart opponents more time to challenge a decision by a three-member court panel, which upheld a Nuclear Regulatory Commission vote allowing the unit to go on line.

Men charged with killing Marines admit guilt

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Three men arrested in the killings of four U.S. Marines acknowledged before a television audience they took part in the June shooting in a sidewalk cafe. Four Marines, along with two American businessmen and seven Latin Americans, were gunned down by a leftist guerrilla band June 19 in a sidewalk cafe in a posh section of San Salvador.

South Africa calls sanctions illegal, damaging

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The South African government Thursday rejected the U.N. Security Council's call for sanctions as "illegal and unacceptable" interference in the domestic affairs of a sovereign state. Foreign Minister Roelof Botha said a resolution calling for sanctions was "highly irresponsible and dangerous" because the measures could damage South Africa's neighbors as well.

Gannett closes $717 million media merger

DETROIT (UPI) — Gannett Co. Inc., the nation's largest newspaper media group, and the Evening News Association late Thursday announced agreement for a merger of their two media companies in a transaction valued at $717 million. Gannett Chairman Allen H. Neuharth and the ENA Chairman Peter B. Clark said the deal has the unanimous approval of the board of directors of both companies.

Research says students waste time studying

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Students who spend a lot of time studying may be wasting their time because "there is very little relationship between studying and grades," research by Pennsylvania State University shows. "We never would have predicted it, but studying may not pay off in high grades," Dr. Edward J. Walsh, associate professor of sociology, said Thursday. "There seems to be very little relationship between studying and grades.

Guards picket state prison claim poor work conditions

MENARD, Ill. (UPI) — Guards at the Menard Correctional Center picketed the prison Thursday following the stabbing of a 23-year-old guard by an inmate, the 10th attack on a guard this month. Charles Bedinger, president of American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 1175, said union members picketed the prison because of conditions that allowed 10 assault cases against guards this month. Lockdown conditions continued at the maximum-security state prison Thursday as officials searched for weapons, a spokesman said.

GOP hopeful once heavily funded Democrats

CHICAGO (UPI) — Multimillionaire William Farley, who is expected to announce next month if he will run for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate, has contributed heavily to Democratic candidates, local and federal election records show. Farley, 42, chief executive officer of Farley Industries, has described himself as a moderate Republican and an avid supporter of President Reagan.

GPSC president gets raise; committee to study library

By Alice Schallert
Staff Writer

An amendment providing a pay increase for Graduate and Professional Student Council President Mary Brown was approved at the council's meeting Wednesday.

The amendment, proposed by Brown at the July 24 meeting, will raise the graduate assistantship of the GPSC president from one-fourth to one-half time and decrease the salary of her civil service secretary from full to one-half time.

Discussion of the amendment centered on alternatives to funding the increase out of the GPSC budget. Options included hiring a work-study student to assist the president or allowing Brown to continue working 20 to 30 hours per week on the one-fourth time pay she was receiving.

Brown had sought alternative sources of funding and would have had to seek another position if the amendment had not been approved, she said. "I'm happy that I can put all my energy into GPSC instead of having two jobs," she said.

In other business, the council voted to set up a committee to research funding for Morris Library in fiscal year 1981.

Peter Frederick, GPSC vice president for administrative affairs, said that Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, was "very happy with the 10 percent budget increase allocated to them for fiscal year 1987." Seven percent of that increase came from the state and three percent from internal sources.

Morris Library has been under critical review since the end of the 1985 spring semester.

An amendment to the GPSC constitution regarding the impeachment of elected officers was also discussed in response to the resignation of Mike Jacobs, vice president of graduate school affairs. Jacobs resigned at the July 24 meeting and withdrew his resignation the next day.

"The council should have the right to impeach an elected officer who it feels is not carrying out the duties of the office," said Brown. After a re-evaluation of Jacobs and his work up to the time of his resignation, it was determined that his performance had been satisfactory and his commitment to the organization "was intact," said Brown.

The proposed merging of the GPSC and the Undergraduate Student Association also brought discussion at the council meeting. The GPSC maintains that it has a separate constituency and that having an "independent voice" is important in expressing the views of SIU-C graduate students.

Opposition to the joint committee idea stems from an incident involving "Plan C" — the search for a student representative to serve on the intercollegiate athletic committee which will review the proposal that men's and women's athletics be combined.

Brown said that she and USO President Tony Appleman, both of whom were on the search committee, had not been able to reach a consensus about the qualifications of the representative and the Board of Trustees took Appleman's recommendation due in part to the fact that the USO represents more students. If USO and GPSC were to become a joint committee, Brown said, "we'd always lose."

Three new members were elected to the GPSC Executive Board at the meeting. They are Darrell Johnson, representative for the philosophy department; Mike Botkin, representing the psychology department; and Nell Holt, representative for the microbiology department. Holt had served on the Board over the summer. Student Trustee Andy Leighton spoke at the meeting, expressing his desire to be active in GPSC meetings and be a "voice for all students" on the Board of Trustees.

Leighton listed his goals as a major expansion project for Morris Library, the representation of students concerning a referendum to fund the Illinois Student Association and the divestiture of SIU-C investments in South Africa.

Computing Affairs offering workshops

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

For those who have always wanted to broaden their "computing horizons," workshops offered by SIU-C Computing Affairs may be a means to accomplish such a task.

The 37 topical sessions offered to faculty, staff and graduate students throughout the fall semester are designed to give a brief introduction of computer concepts to computer users. Undergraduate students may also take part in the workshops, space permitting.

Leo Y. Min, director for the department, said that about 20 instructional workshops were offered last fall semester. This year, he said, "the goal was 50, but we are offering almost 70."

The workshops are planned to create an atmosphere in which people can learn to use computers without having to learn computer programming, Min said.

"We want to create an environment in which there is no threat of being failed," he said.

Some of the sessions have prerequisites, such as previous knowledge of a specific area of computers, while other workshops require registration. There is no cost nor academic credit available for the workshops, he said, but a valid SIU-C ID is required.

Most sessions have a limited seating capacity and are offered on a first come, first served basis.

Min told his staff he wanted to have about two workshops per week, but there will probably be two every day.

Prof to head therapy program

Brandon F. Greene, associate professor in the Rehabilitation Institute at SIU-C has been named coordinator of the institute's Behavior Analysis and Therapy program.

He replaces John R. Lutzker, a professor in the institute, who has accepted a position as dean of student and administrative affairs at the California School of Psychology in Los Angeles.

Greene earned a bachelor of science degree at the University of Alabama and a master's degree from the University of Kansas. He also received a degree in psychology from Florida State University.

More is merrier in game of politics

ADLAI STEVENSON III, a former U.S. senator and 1982 Illinois gubernatorial candidate, has given a strong indication that he will again run for governor of Illinois.

This is good news for the voters.

The more viable candidates from which to choose the better, and Stevenson, who lost his 1982 bid against Thompson by just over 5,000 votes out of more than 3.8 million cast, is indeed a viable candidate.

Stevenson says he won't officially announce his candidacy until sometime next month, but it's a good bet he will do so, despite the fact that Attorney General Neil Hartigan has long been considered the favorite for the Democratic nomination.

In a letter to Democratic Party leaders seeking their support, Stevenson pledged to conduct a more aggressive campaign than he did in 1982. Of that campaign he said: "I made the mistake of campaigning by gentleman's rules against an alley fighter. I will not make that mistake again."

THE BIG QUESTION: Will this convince the state's Democratic leaders?

Unfortunately, many of the decision makers, especially those in Cook County, will be more concerned with political infighting than in choosing the best Democratic candidate.

Chicago Mayor Harold Washington had previously planned to endorse Hartigan, but that will likely change with Stevenson in the race. Stevenson was one of the few prominent state Democrats who campaigned for Washington in 1983.

For that same reason it is certain that Stevenson won't receive the endorsement of the regular Democratic organization in Cook County, whose chairman, Alderman Edward Vrdolyak, is Washington's No. 1 foe in city government.

Regardless of who supports whom, the choice should be decided in a primary election. Lets hope Stevenson runs so it can be determined whom the real power brokers — the voters — think is the best candidate.

Tribute to a vision

THE TRAGIC DEATH Monday of Samantha Smith has shocked the world.

The schoolgirl, who two years ago attracted worldwide attention after she wrote a letter to the late Soviet leader Yuri Andropov expressing her fear of war, was a true testament to humanity.

Samantha's letter was more than the voice of an innocent girl frightened by the dangerous world around her; it was voice of everyone who lives in a nuclear age, where world leaders possess the power to destroy all life.

Samantha's letter was answered with an assurance that the Soviets truly wanted peace, and she was invited to visit the Soviet Union. She and her family received the VIP treatment during their two-week tour.

But many people criticized the trip as nothing more than Soviet propaganda, and, unfortunately, the critics had a valid point.

Nations, especially superpowers, tend to exploit whomever they can, whenever they can for their own political needs. Certainly such a cordial display for Samantha Smith was no exception.

But what she did was good. She made the world look at the senselessness in which we all live. Her message was not in vain.

It's just too bad that the leaders of this world cannot understand the simple logic of peace. If a 10-year-old can, they certainly should be able to.

New regulations on tailgating in effect

One dilemma remains as the dogs prepare for our home opener against Lincoln College Saturday — will tailgating be permitted?

The answer is yes, but only in designated areas three hours prior to the kickoff. Drinking privileges will end 15 minutes prior to game time. Drinking will again be allowed during half-time on Saturday home football games.

Areas designated for drinking during these times include: parking lot 13, directly west of the stadium; lot 13A, southwest of the stadium; lots 10A, 8B, north of the stadium; lots 53 and 43, near the Physical Plant, and the Free Forum area. The Free Forum area is the only designated area that does not permit kegs. Copies of this policy are available in the USO office, third floor of the Student Center.

Let's go out and support our team but let's remain responsible enough that these privileges won't be taken away again. — Tony Appleman, president, Undergraduate Student Organization.

"HOW LONG WAS IT YOU SAID UNTIL WE SEE SOME RESULTS?"

Roundup danger claims disputed

The letter "Herbicides May Not Be Safe" (July 30), pertaining to the spraying of Thompson Woods demands a rebuttal.

Common household products are more toxic than Roundup, such as nicotine, gasoline, caffeine, aspirin and table salt. A 177 pound person would have to drink one pint of Roundup to have a 50 percent chance of dying. As of 1983, there have been no reported cases of poisoning by Roundup. Like any product, when used according to label, Roundup is safe to humans as well as the squirrels and woodpeckers you were worried about.

You quoted the label "causes eye irritation," "harmful if swallowed," "may cause skin irritation." Unless the person passing through the sprayed area comes in direct contact with a heavy dose of spray, there is essentially no chance of these hazards occurring.

You worry about long term effects and sensitivity of students to fumes. What fumes? Read the label again.

Roundup is a nonresidual, nonvolatile herbicide. It has passed EPA standards, which means at least seven years extensive testing which assures safety to all but the target species if used according to the label. You should become more concerned with these "quick to the market" food substitutes which replace major food products such as sugar.

You suggested that hand crews could clean up the honeysuckle. However, this type of weed control will allow the honeysuckle to regrow. Cutting would be needed several times a year. The cost of this could become phenomenal, not to mention a waste of time and money.

Inexperienced hand crews using machetes may inflict wounds to the bark of trees, allowing penetration of insects or diseases. It cost less than $100 to treat Thompson Woods with Roundup. There will be little or no regrowth from Roundup-treated honeysuckle.

The woods look much nicer now, even the poison ivy is partially controlled and I am sure people are glad to see it gone. Young trees, including some of the species you mentioned, now have room to grow in the woods.

Good work contractors, for making Thompson Woods much more pleasant and safer to walk through. By the way, since the honeysuckle has been controlled, there has not been a single instance of rape reported. — Joseph G. Vollmer, graduate student, Plant and Soil Science.

Science book theft poses dilemma

I recently came across the empty loose-leaf binder which served as the cover for a book titled "The Human Body on File." The book consisted of over 1,000 labeled anatomical line-drawings of the human body.

It was purchased because I thought the variety and clarity of the drawings would be of value to science teachers faced with teaching anatomy units. The book cost $145 and was on our shelves less than two years.

I am in a dilemma caused by its loss. Should I replace it, spending valuable funds and take the chance of repetition of the incident, or should I write it off as a sad experience thereby denying other students access to a potentially valuable teaching tool?

An obvious answer would be to maintain it in a secure place, but a similar case could be made for many other books. Where do I draw the line?

Secure locations require supervision (usually involving student assistants), but our current divisional student wage budget yields about 80 percent of the student assistant hours it did 10 years ago.

Simply put, I cannot afford to institute a new service when services such as collection inventory have languished over the past several years. Any suggestions? — George Black, science librarian.

Reagan lied about realities of South Africa

I read at least three lies on the front page of this newspaper on Aug. 27.

The first lie is the one where Mr. Reagan said that segregation has been eliminated in South Africa. We know this is not true.

The second lie is the one which says that segregation in the United States has also been eliminated. This is not true either. If we have any doubt, we have only to ask the black American students on campus what the situation is in a city like Chicago.

Instability in South Africa, Central America, and the Middle East is not due to the presence of the Soviet Union; historic facts can show us what the truth is, and also, who is right and who is wrong.

The people of South Africa have the right to determine their own future. Why don't let them try? They also have the right to live with justice and peace in a better society. The social, economic and political conditions are the only ones that have really been stirring up the pot for many years in South Africa, nobody else. — Antonio Padrino, senior, Economics.

American greed given a bum rap

ONCE AGAIN, greed is being given a bum rap.

For the past few days, every time I turn on my TV set, there is somebody fuming about the greed of the formerly striking baseball players.

"How much money do those greedy players need?" shrieks a little old lady.

"Those greedy guys already get too much," mutters a teenager.

These are the same unkind remarks that were made about greed in 1981 when the players went on strike.

And it just shows that most Americans are still ignorant of their history and our present condition.

Greed happens to be a vital cornerstone of the American way of life. Why, without greed there might not even be an America as we know it.

What was it that brought the earliest explorers to these shores? Greed. Just look at the pile of stolen silver these Spaniards were taking home when their ships went down off Florida.

The earliest settlers were some of the greediest people on earth. They swindled the Indians every chance they had. Then they brought slaves in from Africa to help them increase their pile.

READ a history of the growth of the great cities and the men who made them great. Swindlers, hustlers, con men, exploiters, sweat shop operators, politicians, all with a common goal: grab as much as you can from anybody you can.

Greed happens to be a vital cornerstone of the American way of life. Why, without greed there might not even be an America as we know it.

An heir to one of Chicago's oldest and biggest fortunes once told me: "My great-grandfather was a crook. All of those guys his days were crooks. If they did the things today that they did then, they would all be in jail."

No they wouldn't. They'd just hire smart lawyers and become pillars of the community.

For a time, during the 1960's, America went through a strange outburst of idealism. The poor, the helpless, the wretched, the downtrodden, were going to be helped. Young people walked around with flowers in their hair and stars in their eyes.

Then people said: "Wait a minute. Do you know what this costs?" And they snapped out of this unnatural condition and returned to the noble philosophy of "me first — and me second, too."

Mike Royko

AND IN a twinkling, they threw away their flowers, got haircuts, enrolled for MBAs, and set about collecting Cuisinarts and BMWs.

If greed is so unpopular, why did the voters overwhelmingly choose an administration that considers greed a national virtue? They could hang a sign at the White House gate saying: "Sorry, I gave at the office."

And consider some of our current heroes. The young worship millionaire rock stars who see how many of them they can cram into a stadium at $20 a head. The yokels fawn over dope-snorting country singers who travel in private jets. The most popular weekly TV shows are about the rich, the cruel and the greedy.

The hottest book on last year's best-seller lists was by an automaker, describing his genius for fattening his own bottom line.

The most successful men in today's business world are those who have mastered the art of taking over a company, ripping it apart for their own profit and moving on to another unwary victim.

AND WHAT except greed, is behind all the ups and downs of the Dow Jones, the price of pork bellies, the morning fix on gold and all the other machinations of Wall Street and LaSalle Street?

Every day, thousands of Americans sue thousands of other Americans, demanding millions of dollars for the most trivial of affronts. Why do they do it? Greed. If they were honest, the lawyers would tell them that. But they don't because they want their piece of the action, too. So why should we be upset because some 275 hither figures that if Gene Autry is goofy enough to pay him $1 million a year, he ought to take it.

If the people who are yelling about greed were suddenly offered a 1,000 percent raise for doing whatever they do for a living, I doubt if many of them would say:

"Gosh, boss, that's kind of you, but I have to refuse. I'm just not worth that much."

So let's have no more slurs against greed. What are you — un-American?

Sandinistas need freedom to pursue their own destiny

Five years ago, a year after Somoza was ousted, I spent 10 days in Nicaragua with a group of educators and social scientists interested in the anti-illiteracy effort the government there was conducting.

There were no "contras" at that time and I had the distinct impression that most of the population was supporting the Sandinistas and eager to be friends with the United States. There were complaints and criticisms from some I talked with, but, on the whole, a sense of relief that Somoza was gone, that there were improvements in living standards, and that democratic measures and social services were being extended. The Carter administration had recognized the new regime and trade and normal relations seemed to be in the offing.

Deterioration began after Reagan became President and every hostile measure by our government was countered by a defensive step by the Sandinistas: arming the populace (by the way, a dangerous step by any repressive government that wants to keep its power), calling on Cuba and the U.S.S.R. for military equipment, relocating the Indians on the east coast, and clamping down on some who were seen to be collaborating with the CIA — all of that came after the hostile rhetoric and acts by the United States.

Historically, the Nicaraguans have good reason to distrust the United States. Our government has put the Somoza dynasty in power, supported the landowners and the United Fruit Co.'s exploitation of the peasants, and collaborated in the 1934 assassination of General Sandino, who was no Marxist but a military leader in the Nicaraguan army in the 1920's. He refused to take orders from the United States Marines who occupied and dominated that country between 1912 and 1933.

In 1980 it looked like that was all behind us and normal relations would make Nicaragua a free and a more prosperous, independent Central American nation. Certainly, that was the impression I got from observations and conversations with government officials, educators, businessmen, and workers I talked to. I note that the Hammond Almanac of 1981 described the new government of Nicaragua as "having joined the non-aligned nations and seeking good relations with both communist and western bloc."

I admit that situation no longer exists. The bitter hostility today makes an overt war more likely, and a successful revolution by the "contras" would probably result in a regime like Pinochet's in Chile — a repressive, brutal dictatorship. As for "communism": that has become so vague an epithet that it is applied to almost any third world government that doesn't accept our "leadership."

If anything is making Nicaraguans "communist" it's our hostile policy that's turning their aspirations for independence towards seeking help from the Soviet Union, Cuba, and the Eastern Bloc. And that's sad because they won't get it that way, either.

I am no "Witness for Peace" member. I make no brief for ideology of the Sandinistas, Cubans or the "contras." But in this respect the Witnesses are right: the Nicaraguans are no threat to us and they deserve a chance to determine their own destiny in their own way. If they are given that chance I believe they will succeed in establishing a far more democratic system than most of the Latin American nations — certainly far freer than Guatemala, Honduras and Chile, that we support so strongly. But even the Contadora group of our Latin American neighbors can't get our government's cooperation.

The present United States government policy toward Nicaragua is hypocritical and may lead to a costly war and unjust suffering on both sides. We ought not to be supporting "contras" in Nicaragua or anywhere else; but if we were truly interested in democracy, the best place for "contras" would be South Africa. — A. J. Auerbach, professor emeritus.

Unclear markings in parking lot create problems, anger student

I am passionately irate, irked, maddened and infuriated.

It is Monday night, right after Dallas beat Chicago. I walk out to my car, get in, fire up the engine, buckle-up and put it in reverse. Looking back through my rear-view mirror I see that I cannot leave because I am blocked in by the SIU-C police.

I have unknowingly parked in someone's reserved space. There is nothing I can do but wait until the tow truck gets there, pay the man $11.75, and go on my unmerry way. But wait, while I am paying the man with the truck, a $10 parking ticket is being placed on my front window.

The problem is not the money. The problem is not with the police or with the man with the truck. The problem is also not with the resident of Evergreen Terrace. The problem is with the fact that it was not communicated to me that I should not park where I did. In fact, the police officer had a hard time explaining to me where I was allowed to park at Evergreen Terrace.

The police officer also had a hard time showing me that the space was actually marked. The marking was so worn and faded, we almost could not make out who the space was for. No signs, no clear markings, nothing. I am sure that it is probably written on the back of the map the parking office gives out when you buy a parking sticker. You know, in print so small you can barely read it with the assistance of a microscope.

Something is wrong here. If we are going to have a parking code, let everybody know what it is. That means printing the rules and regulations in decipherable type face. That means posting signs if guests or visitors to a University housing facility are not supposed to park in special or reserved spaces. That also means giving a current list of parking sticker recipients to the police and persons who give out tickets.

I have never challenged a parking or traffic ticket in my life, even the ones I thought were not exactly fair. I think I'm going to challenge this one. — William Joseph Thompson, graduate student, Speech Communication.

Carbondale receives $12,500 for wellness center development

By Wm. Bryan DeVasher
Staff Writer

The city of Carbondale, through an agreement with the Illinois Farmers Union, has been granted $12,500 for the development of a community wellness center.

The grant agreement, which was approved at the last City Council meeting, will allow the development of programs as alternatives to service cuts in the city's Comprehensive Health Service Program. Many of the health service's programs were cut this year because of belt-tightening in the city budget.

The center will be operated in cooperation with Comprehensive Health Planning of Southern Illinois, the SIU-C College of Human Resources, the SIU-C Health Services and the Jackson County Public Health Department. The center will send monthly progress reports to the Illinois Farmers Union, the backers of the grant.

Programs at the center will include substance and alcohol abuse counseling, stress management classes, career counseling, weight loss counseling and general health counseling and advisement. Classes on learning to stop smoking and vocational and educational assessment services will also be offered.

All Jackson County residents will be eligible to use the center. However, the target population will be the economically disadvantaged, the elderly and the unemployed.

"The center will be open to all Jackson County residents," said Don Monty, director of community services. "But the center will especially benefit the economically disadvantaged because they might not be able to receive these types of services otherwise."

Monty said the program will also benefit SIU-C students with children because university policy allows only SIU-C students, faculty and staff to use the university's health programs.

"By and large only SIU-C students are allowed to use the university's health service," Monty said. "Their dependents, however, are not allowed to use university health services unless the dependents are enrolled at SIU-C. And since students are generally in a low income bracket, the center will allow health service they may not be able to afford normally."

A record of services and who uses them will be maintained by Comprehensive Health Care and Community Health Care. These organizations will provide the Illinois Farmers Union with monthly reports which will include the characteristics of center users.

The wellness center program is tentatively scheduled to begin within the next month, according to Robert Stalls, director of human resources. Stalls said the city will make an announcement within the next few weeks regarding employment opportunities at the center.

"The center will be run by a mixture of paid workers, graduate students from SIU-C and volunteers," Stalls said.

The center will utilize unused space at the Erma C. Hayes Community Center, 441 E. Willow. Monty said, however, that if the site proves to be inconvenient to residents an alternative site will be sought.

the University transport service.

"I would like to cut some possible forms of overhead from the proposed system," Madlener said. This could be done by using the transport service radio dispatcher for the bus line, for example.

Monty said that if the proposed bus service is presented to the city council as something requiring a major capital investment from the city, it may not be well-received by council members.

Monty said copies of documents on the program at De Kalb were presented by Clarence Dougherty to those at the meeting for further study of the project.

"THIS KIND of project will take a lot of time and effort if it is to work," Monty said.

He said that SIU-C, especially its student population, should determine the demand for a mass transit service and that they should also map out possible routes and the frequency these routes will be used, as well as looking into ways to fund the project.

Monty said the city will look into possible funding for the project.

"THERE IS also a need to determine who will use such a service," Monty said, adding that that is something else students should determine.

Madlener said he would "check with NIU for further information" regarding the running of their bus system.

He said the next discussion of the proposed mass transit service will be Sept. 5 at the Student Center at 2 p.m. and will include representatives from the American Transit Corp.

'Giant' flea market expected to be Sesser's biggest

The "Giant Labor Day Flea Market-1985," sponsored by the Sesser Area Chamber of Commerce and the City of Sesser, will be held Saturday in downtown Sesser from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This year's flea market, which is the being held for the second time this year, is expected to attract over 100 dealers from throughout Southern Illinois and the midwest.

Gary J. Szczyblewski, president of the Sesser Area Chamber of Commerce, said that applications from dealers are far in excess of last year's response and that it is possible that some applications will have to be refused because the event is limited to space for 150 dealers.

People interested in reserving a dealer space can contact Suzanne Moyers at 625-5813, or write Box 564, Sesser, Ill., 62884.

Student agriculture writers, broadcasters win honors

By University News Service

A group of Illinois college students interested in agricultural writing and broadcasting have won top national honors in a contest for student-produced agricultural newspapers.

Student member of an SIU-C club called Agricultural Communicators of Tomorrow won first place with their newspaper AgReporter. The contest was sponsored by the national association of ACT clubs, which has about 250 members in 22 U.S. universities.

The awards were presented at the ACT national meeting August in Minneapolis.

AgReporter, an eight-page newspaper, goes to about 6,000 students and alumni of the SIU-C School of Agriculture twice each year. Both of the contest's professional judges ranked it tops in the contest. One judge gave it a perfect 100 score.

Students wrote and edited articles, took photographs, created original graphics and designed the publication with the advise of a faculty managing editor.

Alicia Schmitt of Aurora won second in individual competition in the photo series category. Her black and white photographs were of a Southern Illinois deer festival.

Schmitt, a senior in agricultural journalism, is president of the SIU ACT chapter.

Bill Goy of Medota took third place in a video productions category with a segment from a three-part series on farmer's economic problems he produced for his local television station. Goy is a senior in agricultural broadcasting.

"How can you not be proud?" said the student's adviser, Gordon L. Billingsley.

"You teach, advise and train your students as best you can, and then this," Billingsley said.

Billingsley is public information specialist for the School of Agriculture and is an adjunct instructor in agricultural communication in the Department of Agricultural Education and Mechanization.

New center to help disabled be independent

By Susan Sarkauskas
Staff Writer

The Southern Illinois Center for Independent Living plans to open by Oct. 1.

All it needs is to find an office, hire a staff and find volunteers to run the yet-to-be-financialized programs it intends to offer to disabled people.

What SICIL, a not-for-profit corporation, does have is a $104,166 grant from the Illinois Department of Rehabilitation Services, valid from Sept. 1 through June 30, 1986.

THE MONEY is to be used to benefit disabled people and their families through advocacy and education programs aimed at removing barriers and allowing greater personal independence, according to an Aug. 5 IDRS news release.

Although the center will be in Carbondale, it will serve people from Jackson, Williamson, Franklin and Perry counties.

Carbondale was chosen because a large number of disabled persons live there and because it is the most accessible town in the four counties, said Dale Shelton, a member of the SICIL board of directors. "The City of Carbondale has been very positive about making it accessible to persons with disabilities," Shelton said.

CARBONDALE WAS also chosen because of its proximity to SIU-C, from which the Center hopes to draw practicum students and volunteers to help with its counseling and training programs, Shelton said.

The board expects to find an office by Oct. 1, as well as hire an executive director, an assistant to the director and consumer affairs and skills training coordinators, Shelton said.

"A lot of the details need to be worked out," Shelton said, although the board did submit budget and programming proposals to the IDRS this week.

"THE PURPOSE of the center will be to promote and encourage and facilitate the goals of independence for disabled people," Shelton said. To this end, the center will offer programs in personal health maintenance, personal business management and household management.

It is also planning to offer training in personal care assistance management — teaching disabled people how to be good employers, Shelton said.

He said the center may help disabled people find good personal care attendants by developing a screening process and developing a pool of attendants, Shelton said.

ADAPTIVE EQUIPMENT maintenance skills will be taught, such as wheelchair repair, so disabled people can either repair their own equipment or explain what needs to be done to another person, rather than being inconvenienced by waiting on a repair shop.

Counseling will also be offered at the center, both individual and family. A peer counseling system may be set up, with disabled people helping other disabled people.

Self-advocacy will be emphasized at the center. Helping people learn to help themselves is important, Shelton said, because the center "is a very small program" that can't do everything for everybody. Programs will be aimed at helping people learn where to turn for help on their own as well as through the center.

ONE SPECIAL service the center will offer is a message-relay system for the deaf. The office will be equipped with a telecommunications typewriter device. Deaf students can call the office through a teletypewriter and their message will be printed out at the office. A staff member will then use a regular phone to relay the message.

"Lots of people in our region don't realize the kind of details involved in the lives of people who are disabled," Shelton said.

The grant is looked upon by the state as seed money and the center is expected to look for other means of funding, although the grant is expected to be renewed next year, Shelton said.

THE CENTER will not duplicate existing services, he said, although it will work with various city, county and University human resources agencies, including the SIU Rehabilitation Institute, where Shelton works as a program manager.

Many of the SICIL board of directors were members of the Partnership for Progressive Approaches to Disability Issues, Shelton said. They began applying for the grant April 1, and were competing against 16 other communities. Six communities were chosen to receive the grants, he said.

SICIL WAS one of six Centers for Independent Living chosen this year to receive funding. Centers will be established in Alton, Bloomington-Normal, Champaign, Oak Park and Elgin.

Beethoven Society is helping pianists

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The SIU-C School of Music is continuing its grow and enrich the University's fine arts program, says to Donald Beattie, assistant professor for the School of Music.

The Beethoven Society for Pianists is one of the most recent accreditations.

Established by Beattie, the society is devoted to helping high school and college students, adults, teachers and other interested members further their piano studies and improve their performances.

Currently, 75 members belong to the society, said Beattie.

"I hope for a slow, steady growth of membership," he said. "I hope by the end of the year our membership will be 200."

The society will perform in two all-day recitals during the school year, Nov. 16 and April 19.

Internationally-known pianist Ivan Frazier will play an evening recital at Shryock Nov. 4 at 8 o'clock.

Guest artist Kenneth Drake will speak at the society meeting and play at the recital Nov. 16, while guest artists Maurice Hinson and Reginald Gerig will speak and play at the meeting April 19.

Last year piano music was heard from noon to 5 p.m., said Beattie. "This year it will be heard all day."

"Kenneth Drake will bring his 1816 Broadway piano. It's much like Beethoven's," he said.

The recitals will be open to students and the public for their listening enjoyment and furthering their appreciation of piano music.

"Last year I raised $3,000 to support this program," Beattie said. "This year I hope to have $4,000."

Eight high school pianists were awarded $1,000, with awards ranging from $50 to $250.

The recitals are not meant to be competitive, Beattie said.

"It's to be an exciting opportunity for high school students to get together with other pianists. It's a good social experience and an incentive to inspire piano studies," he said.

"I would like to offer college piano scholarships and continue to bring in guest artists," Beattie said, considering future recitals.

Beattie said he hopes to bring in people from western Kentucky, southern Indiana and Illinois.

Egyptian Diving club plunges into activities

By Mary Lung
Staff Writer

The Egyptian Divers, SIU-C's skin and scuba diving club, offers an alternative to a vacation of just sitting on a beach.

The club members and their friends are going to Cozumel, Mexico, over Thanksgiving break, where they will skin and scuba dive during the day and absorb the local nightlife, or relax at night.

Each semester beginning skin and scuba diving classes are offered, enabling students to learn the technique.

An advanced class is offered once a year and the Egyptian Divers sometimes have refresher courses for those already certified.

To dive with the club, participants must receive certification from a professional organization such as the YMCA, or the Naui-National Association of Underwater Instructors after completion of both classroom and practical training.

The skin and scuba diving class for the spring semester is taught by Pete Carroll and is offered under the general studies curriculum. Students will be invited to go on a spring break trip sponsored by the club to Panama City, Florida.

The instruction offered is comprehensive, said Egyptian Divers President Lou Ann Wood.

Pete Carroll and Jim Meeks are the only skin and scuba diving instructors at the University. Carroll is active in the Egyptian Divers and said he hopes to sponsor a diving trip to the Bahamas over Christmas break.

Members work at car washes, auctions, bake sales, and Daily Egyptian newspaper stuffings to raise money for the club. They are now planning a slave auction, a 'scubalympics' and an underwater marathon.

The club meets on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in the first aid room in Pulliam Hall.

Prehistoric Indian relics found during dig at New Massillon site

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

Archaeologists working for SIU-C's Center for Archaeological Investigations discovered remains of a prehistoric Indian village during excavation of the New Massillon site in Wayne County, according to associate director of the facility, Brian Butler. One of the projects that the center was involved in during the summer was the New Massillon excavation which uncovered remnants of possible public ceremonial structures associated with a prehistoric Mississippian Culture Indian village site.

THE SITE, located adjacent to the Little Wabash River in eastern Wayne County, was excavated in order to preserve information from the site prior to proposed Illinois Department of Transportation construction on a bridge nearby. Work on the bridge threatened to destroy a portion of the prehistoric village.

One of the main archaeological features found on the site was a platform mound constructed by prehistoric Indians who once lived there, according to Butler.

Further excavation of the platform mound revealed evidence of large buildings, which Butler says were possibly ceremonial in nature.

THE BUILDINGS, Butler said, were "somewhat larger than most domestic structures" and contained internal partitions and "specially prepared" clay hearths.

"They don't appear to be ordinary houses," said Butler.

Construction of the structures involved digging a trench around the foundation area of the building site and building a vertical wall in the trench with poles to support the structure. The poles were then covered with thatch or grass covered with mud to make walls and a roof, Butler says that a wooden palisade also surrounded the mound area.

IN SPITE of the features found at the site few actual artifacts were recovered. Butler said that some pottery, pieces of stone tools and a few small triangular projectile points were found in association with the village. He believes that few artifacts were found because of extensive erosion at the site.

Butler estimates that the village was occupied by Mississippian Culture Indians at sometime between 1100 to 1300 A.D. Organic material from the site will be radiocarbon dated by a commercial laboratory to obtain an accurate date as to when the village was occupied.

The New Massillon site was also once occupied by a small 19th century town of the same name, according to Butler.

PIONEERS FOUNDED the town sometime during the 1840s, says Butler, but many of the settlers later moved to the town of Mount Erie where railroad expansion was expected to take place. However, the railroad never came to Mount Erie and New Massillon turned out to be a poor location for settlement.

The town, said Butler, "turned out to be in the wrong place."

Farm Aid tickets continue to sell for U of I concert

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPD) — No official estimate of ticket sales for the Farm Aid benefit concert were available late Thursday, officials said, but sales were expected to continue Friday.

The Sept. 22 concert, to feature Willie Nelson and Bob Dylan, among others, will be held at the University of Illinois football stadium and is to help the nation's farmers.

Tickets went on sale Wednesday for $17.50 each.

Agriculture officials meeting in Chicago Thursday indicated the money eventually raised — estimated at anywhere between $30 million and $50 million — should be used to reduce interest rates.

Vicki Rose of the Howard Bloom Agency in New York, which is handling publicity for the event, said Thursday evening no estimate of ticket sales was available. Officials with an advance team in Champaign said they also had no official sales estimate.

Tom Parkinson, director of the U of I Assembly Hall where tickets were being sold, said the box office would be open on Friday. "Our phones continue as busy as yesterday," Parkinson said.

Tickets were also being sold at Ticketmaster outlets. Telephone orders were being taken at 1-800-548-4000 and, inside Illinois, at 1-800-621-5227.

Some of the 37 confirmed in-person performers include: Alabama, Beach Boys, Charlie Daniels Band, Waylon Jennings, Billy Joel, John Cougar Mellencamp, Joni Mitchell and Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers.

Members of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture met to discuss how to best spend the money raised from ticket sales, donations and broadcast rights to the musical extravaganza.

Farmers, farm groups and agriculture leaders also are being asked how to spend the money.

The concert will be televised nationally on a cable network.

Strong offensive line highlights '85 Salukis

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

The 1984 football Salukis went through a year of frustration by going 3-8 just a year after winning the Division I-AA national championship. The team hopes to improve on that record through one of their strengths — the offensive line.

All five of last year's starters will be returning this year to open holes for running backs and protect the quarterback.

Adding depth at the tackle position are second stringers J.P. Waters, freshman, and Dave Smith, a sophomore letterman, and third string freshmen Brian Beals and Bob

The starting guards, if injured, can be replaced by sophomore blockers Robert Howell and Ed Dockweiler and by third stringers Eric Jorgenson, junior, and Vic Renaud, freshman.

Charles Wilson, junior, who has been a second string right guard, is still recovering from a strained knee suffered in Saturday's scrimmage.

Though freshman Kevin Brown is listed as starting quarterback, he could be replaced by sophomore Pat King, who threw for 478 yards last year with two touchdowns and eight interceptions, if Brown does not perform efficiently.

Walk-on freshman Jerry Gleisner is listed as a third string passer while junior Joe Graves is recovering from an injured shoulder after being racked up in Saturday's scrimmage.

SALUKIS: Rebuilding continues

One who will catch passes at the split end position is freshman Paul Patterson. Junior Sebron Spivey was downgraded to second string because he suffered a bone bruise in his leg at the first scrimmage. Freshman Rob Derricote will play if the injury count is high.

Derrick McClellon, junior, and Bobby Sloan, sophomore, are fighting it out for the tight end position, but for now McClellon gets the nod. Randy Brave, freshman, is listed on third string. Junior Rod Landon, who is recovering from knee surgery, will play in the second quarter of Saturday's game and see limited action until the knee is stronger.

James Stevenson, senior, is listed to start at flanker. Nate McGhee, sophomore, and Wesley Yates, freshman, supply depth.

Spearheading the rushing attack is junior fullback Bruce Phibbs, the Salukis' top rusher in 1984. Phibbs has had problems with a calcium deposit in his shoulder, and junior John Moore and freshman Robert Smith will play if further complications arise.

Starting tailback will be sophomore Byron Mitchell, while junior Mel Kirksey and freshman Anthony Vaughn wait in the wings. Junior Malcolm Liggins is recovering from a rib injury and could play Saturday.

Sharing punting duties will be junior Drew Morrison and senior Frank Pasquino.

The powerful leg of place-kicker Ron Miller, junior, could become a major scoring tool. He has set the NCAA record for consecutive extra points, 80, and SIU-C record for points in a season, 110.

While the offense will try to score points, the defense will attempt to prevent them. They will need to, as they allowed 279 points in 1984, many of them on big plays.

In the second string at end are Jim

White, junior, and Vernon Gurley, sophomore. Freshmen Shannon Ferbrache and Willie Jones make up third string.

Substitutes for middle guard are freshmen Rob Mason and Brad Crouse. Three-year letterman Sterling Haywood, senior, who has had a sore shoulder, may be able to start Saturday if his good progress continues.

At strong safety, Charles Bell, freshman, will start. Dennis Bean, freshman, and Shane Watson, sophomore, supply depth.

WINI to carry all Saluki games

Radio station WINI, 1420 on the AM dial, will broadcast all Saluki football games.

Games will be broadcast live, with WINI General Manager Dale Adkins doing the play-by-play, joined by various guest color commentators.

Inexperience, youth typifies Lincoln team

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

If last year's record of the Lincoln University Blue Tigers is any indication of how they will perform this season, head coach Ray Dorr's football Salukis will be heavy favorites at home in McAndrew Stadium this Saturday at 4 p.m.

Head coach Clark Frost's team, based in Jefferson City, Mo., had a record of no wins, 10 losses and one tie and had no wins in five decisions in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 1984. They have been 3-26-2 over the past three seasons.

Does Coach Dorr think it will be difficult hard the Salukis to be mentally prepared for a team that seems to be a pushover?

"It's not going to be hard to get up because this is our first game. I think our kids are ready to play. If you're worried about a letdown, it shouldn't be at your first ball game," he said.

One still has to be careful against the letdowns, Dorr said.

"Anytime you get an underdog that stays in the ball game, they're going to get a little better and get more confidence in themselves and it will be a tight football game," Dorr said.

If Lincoln has a strength, it seems to be on defense, Dorr said.

"The majority of their returning players are defensive players. Their secondary practically remains intact," Dorr said.

LINCOLN: Underdog seeks upset

Leading the Lincoln secondary is All-Conference senior cornerback Tom Gray, who had 26 unassisted tackles and two interceptions last year.

R.J. Hill, junior strong safety, is returning after having 17 solo tackles and 32 tackles 1984.

The rest of the defensive secondary is a little inexperienced, as freshman Ken McMurtry will play free safety and Andrew Carroll, a senior, was used only as a spot player last year.

The Blue Tigers use a basic 5-2 defense. Although the front line is suspect in a couple of spots, they have some good returning players.

At left defensive end is three-year letterman Mark Gooden, a senior, who had 32 unassisted tackles and three sacks in nine games last season.

At the other end spot is sophomore William Jackson, who saw little action in 1984. Supplying depth at the position are freshmen Jeff Phillips and Aaron Moore.

The defensive tackle position is strong. Senior David Cochran, who was on the MIAA All-Conference second team, had 21 unassisted tackles and two sacks in '84. Ronald Bohanna, junior, led the team with five quarterback sacks. Robert Sims, senior, can also contribute to the pass rush if needed.

The nose tackle position is inexperienced, as Keith Sanders is a freshman. Junior Desmond Barber, who is also starting at offensive tackle, can play if Sanders can't do the job.

The big tackler is junior linebacker Walter Artis, who had 37 unassisted tackles and led the team with 100 tackles in '84.

The other linebacker, Terrell Davis, senior, hurt his ankle early last year and could only be used as a spot starter. The Blue Tigers are hoping Davis will see more playing time in 1985. Second string linebackers are Leather Branch, sophomore, and Derrick Morrison, junior.

The offense uses a wishbone formation, which the Blue Tigers have started just this year, Dorr said.

Clark Frost,
Lincoln head coach

Two of the three Lincoln running backs are lettermen, but saw little action at the position last year. Senior Michael Worthy was converted to halfback after playing at defensive back the year before. Fullback Garland Burriss, a senior, started at the position in 1984 but saw little action because of an injury. Freshman walk-on Gary Elam will start as the second halfback.

Supplying depth are James Poore, senior, and Winston Ferguson, junior, at halfback and James McCatharon, freshman, at fullback.

The quarterback spot is severely inexperienced, as starter Michael Banks and second stringer James Carrey are freshmen.

Catching passes will be junior tight end Joe Martin, who was converted from the offensive tackle position. His 6-foot-5, 245-pound frame will provide a big target for quarterbacks. On the sidelines will be freshman Chris Anderson.

Pep squads strive for maximum fan support

By Mary Lung
Staff Writer

The SIU-C cheerleaders and the Saluki Shakers pompon squad are psyched up, limbered up and ready for another year of supporting the SIU-C football and basketball teams.

They are also ready for another year of appearing at SIU-C affairs big and small, professional sports games and fundraisers.

The squads are coordinated by Rick Gant of SPC. Gant has been coordinator since August.

Eight men and nine women, and one woman as alternate, make up the cheerleading squad. There are 14 Saluki Shakers.

The cheerleaders are Dan Bawinkel, Lisa Forbes, Kathy Hammel, Patricia Hampton, Amy Hughes, Tatia James (alternate), Leigh Laughlin, Tim Mullins, Dave Palmisano, Scott Pasley, Chad Ruback, Dennis Saldana, Brad Schneider, Teresa Taylor, Tom VonBokel, Becky Walker, and Barbie Walters. The captains are Dennis Saldana and Leigh Laughlin. There are returning cheerleaders.

Tom VonBokel was recently in the national spotlight when he appeared on "The David Letterman Show" and drank a pitcher of iced tea while holding the pitcher in his teeth.

The Saluki Shakers, an all-woman squad, are Denise Deen, Shelley Fichtel, Terri Graeff, Angie Halteman, Wendy Hewitt, Susan Howard, Kelly Morganstern, Cindy Mueller, Sheri Naugle, Gina Nelson, Diane Payne, Cindy Rip'ey, Christi Sullivan, and Joan VanHoorebeke. The captain is Cindy Mueller. Nine Shakers return from last year's squad Shakers.

The cheerleaders and the Shakers are active squads, participating in many events each year. Both squads recently returned from summer camps in Memphis, Tenn., where the cheerleaders attended the Universal Cheerleading Camp and the Shakers attended the Universal Dance Camp.

The Saluki Shakers pompon squad practices a new dance step. The Shakers are a regular feature at Saluki home games.

The UCA camp was attended by 100 to 150 college squads, and had four size divisions. The Saluki squad was in the A Division, or medium size, which had 50 to 60 squads.

The SIU-C cheerleaders made it to the final top-ten elimination round at the camp, in both the floor cheer and sideline cheer categories. The floor cheers incorporated a mount into their routine, and the sideline cheers included stunts and tumbling.

The Shakers' camp was not competitively oriented, and the Shakers received both blue and red ribbons for their exhibitions.

The squads cheer for as many football and basketball games as they possibly can, missing only football games that are extremely far away and all the away basketball games. They cheer at women's and men's basketball games.

Both squads will appear at an E-Night pep rally and at a Hall-of-Fame golf fundraiser, as well as in the SIU-C Homecoming Parade and various other functions.

The Saluki Shakers left Thursday with the Marching Salukis to appear at a fundraiser in St. Louis' Queeny Park for the football Cardinals. They return to St. Louis October 27 to perform at Busch Stadium during a Cardinals' game. On November 10 they will appear during a Chicago Bears' game at Soldier Field.

To become a cheerleader or Shaker requires a lot of practice and hard work, and the squads we have this year are doing both, with visible results.

"I've been here for four years," says Gant, "and just from sitting in the stands I can see lots of improvements." This was the first year the cheerleaders received any gold ribbons, says Gant, and "this was the first time our cheerleading squad was ever selected to compete in the championships."

The Saluki mascot is another spirit leader for SIU-C. One man and one woman are chosen as mascots. The part is taken by SIU-C students.

The Mascots have traditionally moved around the sidelines, exhorting the crowd to cheer and get excited. This year they will also be incorporated into cheers and stunts with the cheerleaders.

Artificial heart implanted in 25-year-old man

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The world's ninth and youngest recipient of an artificial heart was reported doing well Thursday following a four-hour, 18-minute operation described by a surgeon as a "bridge to life."

Michael Drummond, 25, of Phoenix, was in "critical but stable" condition after receiving the Jarvik 7 man-made blood pump to keep him alive until a human heart donor could be found, doctors said.

"The operation went well," said Dr. Jack G. Copeland, head of the University of Arizona Medical Center surgical team who gained worldwide attention when he implanted an unapproved man-made heart earlier this year.

DRUMMOND — WHO worked as assistant manager at a Safeway supermarket in Cottonwood, Ariz., for four years before taking a leave on the advice of his doctor — will face a "second hurdle" when he undergoes the transplant as soon as his condition stabilizes and a donor becomes available, Copeland said.

"We caught him in the process of dying and were able to rescue him with the artificial heart," the surgeon told reporters after the operation.

COPELAND AT first said the procedure had lasted six hours, but he was including the one hour and 42 minutes it took doctors and nurses to scrub and prep the patient in preparation for the surgery.

Drummond was "extremely ill" and was referred to the University of Arizona Aug. 26 because he suffered from cardiomyopathy, a deterioration of the heart muscle that kills some 100,000 Americans each year, Copeland said.

He was transferred to the university medical center from the intensive care unit of a Youngtown, Ariz., hospital. He had been in "good health" until March.

DR. ROBERT Jarvik, inventor of the Jarvik 7 mechanical heart, flew to Tucson to observe the operation and said it was "striking" and "pleasing" to him that such a young man could be saved. The other eight artificial heart recipients ranged in age from 33 to 62.

Jarvik arrived just as the procedure was being completed and characterized the surgery as "routine." He said the operation "went without a hitch."

Drummond has a chance at a normal lifespan if he receives a human heart transplant, Jarvik said.

COPELAND EXPRESSED satisfaction with the technical and surgical aspects of the implant operation, which he said was "a bit tougher" to perform than a human heart transplant.

Following the surgery, Drummond's blood pressure was normal and other vital signs were good, although he remained unconscious from the anesthetic.

Copeland said that prior to the operation, Drummond's condition had deteriorated and his life expectancy was "very short" without use of the Jarvik 7.

"WE FELT we were getting a clear message from his heart that he didn't have much time to survive," Copeland said.

The implant as a "bridge to life" was the "best intervention" available since a nationwide search had failed to turn up a suitable donor heart, the doctor said. It appeared for a time Wednesday that a heart would be available from Dallas, but the tissue turned out to be diseased.

Drummond spent 117 minutes on a heart-lung machine during the implant, Copeland said.

THE SURGEON said he felt the maximum period a mechanical heart could remain implanted would be a year and that a heart transplant was preferable to avoid the onset of various medical complications.

The hospital received Food and Drug Administration approval Aug. 16 to use the Jarvik 7 in up to 10 clinical cases as an emergency bridge for patients requiring heart replacement.

The first Jarvik 7 heart was implanted as the world's first permanent artificial blood pump in Barney Clark, 61, a Seattle area dentist, in 1982. He survived 112 days. Since then, four other men have received Jarvik 7 hearts, and three survive.

TWO OTHER artificial hearts were implanted in Houston hospitals as temporary life-saving measures.

Marvin Gaye film proceeds IRS directed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The film and television rights to the life story of slain soul singer Marvin Gaye were sold Thursday to Motown Records, but any proceeds probably will go to the Internal Revenue Service for unpaid taxes, attorneys said.

Motown lawyer Elliot Chaim agreed at a Superior Court auction to pay $101,000 to Gaye's estate for the rights to make a two-hour film on the singer's life in the next 18 months. The estate also would receive 2.5 percent of the film's net profits.

Gaye was 44 when he was shot to death by his father in April 1984 at the family's home in Los Angeles. Marvin Gay Sr., 70, was placed on probation after pleading guilty to voluntary manslaughter.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Magnuson said proceeds from the sale of film rights and Gaye's $1 million estate will be applied to about $4.2 million the singer allegedly owed in unpaid taxes from 1974 through 1980.

Gaye, who made such hits as "I Heard It Through the Grapevine," "What's Going On," "Ain't No Mountain High Enough," and "Sexual Healing" for which he won a Grammy in 1983, often alluded to his troubles with the IRS in his songs.

Motown's bid was accepted over a more lucrative offer from New York retailer, Richard Pollock, and actor-producer John Philip.

The pair's attorney, Robert Gaulin, noting that Gaye was married to the sister of Motown founder Berry Gordy Jr., complained that the decision in favor of Motown "was already made before today."

Public Aid OKs funds for transplant

CARTERVILLE, Ill. (UPI) The Illinois Department of Public Aid, with a "red flag" treatment to cutting red tape, has approved the estimated $125,000 cost of a bone marrow transplant for a 7-year-old boy with bone cancer, State Sen. Glenn Poshard said Wednesday.

Poshard said the boy, Jeff Kerley, is scheduled to enter Case Western Hospital in Cleveland Sept. 9 in preparation for the bone marrow transplant.

Poshard arranged an appointment for Jeff's family with the Williamson County Department of Public Aid at Marion as a last resort after the family's insurance carrier said it would not pay for the operation, Poshard said.

"I can't praise too highly Director Bob McCoskey and his secretary, Phyllis Smith, in that office," said Poshard. "They gave the red flag treatment to this case and stayed with it."

Poshard said his secretary, Judy Maddox, also had worked diligently in following through on the appeal for assistance for the family. He said his office was notified of the public aid departments' medical review board by an aide to department director Gregory Coler.

"The timing was critical because Jeff's bone cancer is in remission now," said Poshard.

Poshard said the state assistance will cover the costs of the operation and follow-up care for one year.

He said there is about $2 million in state funds to help finance experimental operations "but bone marrow transplants are no longer considered experimental."

Poshard said there will be other family expenses for the Ron Kerley family that the state aid will not cover, including living expenses for the boy's mother for about three months while she is in Cleveland with Jeff.

A series of benefits including gospel sings and car washes have been sponsored by friends and organizations in several Southern Illinois towns. They have netted about $17,000 thus far and will continue.

McCoskey said Poshard called the public aid office and arranged for an appointment for the Kerley family last week.

"It was a very, very unusual situation, and we expedited it beyond belief," said McCoskey.

Administration of Justice prof retiring after 12 years at SIU-C

By S. Viji
Staff Writer

Professor Joseph S. Coughlin, Director of Administration of Justice Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, will deliver his last lecture on criminal justice management this week.

He retires this month, after 12 years of "invigorating and interesting" teaching experience — all of which he gained at SIU-C.

As preoccupations go, his has been the study of crime and its management for the last 40 years. Coughlin began as a police officer and went on to become a prison guidance officer, parole officer and later an administrator in numerous correctional boards before accepting a teaching position here.

Coughlin has also acted as president to the American Correctional Association and chairman to several national and state-wide correctional institutions.

"But teaching the subject was what I wanted to do eventually, and it has been an invigorating experience for me," he said.

There has been a disheartening setback in the profession for him. It is the shift in interest in public attitude, even in his students.

"When I first started teaching," he said, "two-thirds of the students were interested in rehabilitation of criminals. But now two-thirds of them are more interested in law enforcement."

"It actually reflects the

public policy of criminal justice. We have gone from the time of correcting people to punishing them," Coughlin said.

"I think it's very short-sighted. For one thing, the majority of people who commit crimes don't get apprehended," he said, "only a selected few get punished." "We'll discover that this movement towards punishment is not going to solve the problem; only prove to be terribly expensive," he added.

However, his retirement won't spell the end of his ties with crime study or its management.

Associate dean appointed for School of Agriculture

Donald M. Elkins, a professor of plant and soil science at SIU-C, has been appointed as associate dean for instruction of the School of Agriculture.

Elkins, who was appointed by Dean Gilbert H. Kroering to succeed William A. Doerr, will begin his duties Sept. 1.

Elkins, 44, has won regional and state honors for his teaching at SIU-C and has been honored as the top agriculture professor in the country by the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture. He has also been named as the top agronomy professor in the nation by the American Society of Agronomy.

Elkins joined SIU-C as an assistant professor of plant and soil science in 1967. He was promoted to associate professor in 1971 and to professor in 1974.

Young people with AIDS can still attend schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In its first set of guidelines for children with AIDS, the government said Thursday there is no reason to prevent young victims of the disease or children infected with an AIDS-related virus infection from attending school.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta reiterated there was no evidence the disease could be transmitted through casual contact in the classroom, school showers, day-care centers, gyms or elsewhere, and recommended common sense hygienic procedures be followed in situations where there might be any doubt.

"The most important thing is that for the school-age child, although each child has to be considered on an individual basis, most of them pose no risk in a school setting," said Dr. Martha Rogers, a CDC medical epidemiologist. "Therefore, most of them should attend regular school. There's no medical reason to keep them out."

In one celebrated case in Kokomo, Ind., a 13-year-old boy who already had hemophilia and contracted AIDS from use of blood clotting factor made from contaminated blood has been kept out of school. His mother is appealing the school's decision.

The exception might be a developmentally or neurologically retarded child who has poor control of bodily functions, Rogers said. Special steps should be taken to minimize contact with the child's secretions.

Anyone with an open cut or wound should wear gloves to prevent contact with children's body fluids, if only to avoid contracting other diseases, the guidelines said. Diaper-changing areas and other soiled surfaces should be thoroughly disinfected.

The guidelines said, "Mandatory screening (for HTLV-3 virus infection) as a condition for school entry is not warranted," but foster-care and adoption agencies probably should screen children since prospective parents will have to make decisions about the youngsters' medical care.

Children with AIDS or related infections might be more likely to be harmed by attending school, since their immune systems are unable to battle disease effectively. Decisions about them should be made individually in consultation with doctors, the guidelines said.

The virus believed to cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome, HTLV-3, is transmitted by intimate sexual contact, use of contaminated needles or blood products.

In children, the virus has also been transmitted from the mother's bloodstream before birth or through contact with the birth canal.

Evidence of HTLV-3 has also been found in saliva and tears, but no cases of transmission through contact with these have been reported, the CDC said.

As of Aug. 20, 183 of the 12,599 reported cases of AIDS in the United States were among children under age 18. The number was expected to double within the next year.

The cases reported represented the most severe form of HTLV-3 infection. The number with less severe infections is probably much larger, the CDC said.

Rogers said the guidelines, the government's first, were drawn up in response to a deluge of calls to the CDC from parents, teachers and school officials with questions about how to protect children against AIDS infection.

The guidelines also recommended that since AIDS-related virus has been found in tears, ophthalmologists and others in eye-care professions wash hands after contact with teardrops and sterilize trial contact lenses and instruments that come into contact with the eyes.

Night Stalker's total may be 17; three more killings appear likely

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police Thursday tentatively linked three more killings committed early this year to the dreaded Night Stalker, saying there were "certain similarities" to 14 slayings previously attributed to the random killer.

Police also revealed in a bulletin to be distributed at gas stations and stores around California that they believe the Night Stalker has used a .22-caliber revolver or a .25-caliber automatic pistol in some of the slayings.

THE BULLETIN said, "As of August 29, the suspect is believed to have committed 17 murders."

Police Cmdr. William Booth then told reporters, "We are now looking back to February and there are three possibilities. The 14 count had only gone back to March."

He did not elaborate on what the "certain similarities" might be and did not indicate where the earlier killings occurred.

Meanwhile, detectives in suburban Orange County announced fingerprints had been found in a stolen orange Toyota believed used by the killer in his attack at a home in Mission Viejo last weekend.

"WE'RE RUNNING them through the Orange County (criminal) computer system and the system in Sacramento," said Larry Ragle, director of the sheriff's Forensic Sciences Department.

Investigators continued to comb the car for other possible prints, hair samples and clothing fibers.

In another development, the multi-agency Stalker task force was notified Thursday morning of the slaying of a woman in her late 20s in her apartment in suburban Orange, but police said they did not immediately know if it was connected.

"WE DON'T have any evidence to indicate that it is, and have none to indicate that it isn't," Lt. Mike Leintz said. "I guess you could say that it could be."

It was reported earlier Thursday that police have talked to construction workers near several homes where the Night Stalker has attacked people in their sleep, showing them a photograph and asking whether they had seen anyone resembling the man.

Workers at the sites of three slayings told the Los Angeles Times that detectives had asked them whether they know anyone resembling the killer.

AT ONE construction site, a block from the home of a couple shot to death in March, workers said detectives had shown them two composite drawings and a photograph—presumably a police mug shot with the booking number covered.

David Leestma in mission control.

"That's what I'm looking at," said van Hoften, who will grab the dormant $85 million Syncom 3 satellite Saturday so he and fellow spacewalker William Fisher can attempt repairs.

MARVIN MIXON, vice president of Hughes Communications Inc., the company that owns the Syncom satellites, reported later that the new spacecraft was working perfectly, climbing toward a stationary orbit 22,300 miles high. "It's a wonderful day for all of us," he said.

Shuttle launches third satellite into orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Discovery's astronauts launched their last satellite Thursday, then directed the shuttle in pursuit of the disabled Syncom 3 communications station, which two spacewalkers will try to catch and fix this weekend.

The five-man space crew also got a bird's-eye look at Hurricane Elena, churning up the Gulf of Mexico 218 miles below. Commander Joe Engle said it looked like it could grow into a "whoomer."

Elena aimed its winds at a stretch of Gulf coast between Louisiana and Florida but NASA was prepared to move shuttle control from Houston to a backup center near Washington if the storm turned and threatened southeast Texas.

THE ASTRONAUTS completed the mission's No. 1 objective when they launched their third satellite, sending the Syncom 4 sailing out of the cargo bay spinning like a giant Frisbee in slow-motion. The satellite was an improved model of the Syncom 3 the astronauts will attempt to salvage.

"Syncom's away, Houston!" said astronaut James van Hoften.

"You get to wrestle with one just like that in a couple of days," replied astronaut

Ag professor invents device to protect crops

By Norm Heikens
Staff Writer

Pesky weeds in corn and soybean fields may not stand a fighting chance if Bob Wolff's new sprayer works out as well as he expects.

Wolff, a professor in agricultural education and mechanization at SIU-C, has invented a sprayer that covers leaves of crops and weeds both top and bottom with spray.

The machine shoots out a stream of solution beside the crop, which is then blown into the crop by a 40 mph blast of air.

The mist swirls around the leaves, covering them with chemicals.

"It will do everything the conventional sprayer will do and will do it better," Wolff said. His observations have yet to be proven in studies, he cautioned.

Conventional machines spray the top and sides of the crop canopy only, which concentrates the chemical on the outer edges of the canopy and doesn't always cover the inner leaves, he explained. The undersides of the leaves are also left uncovered.

Wolff, who developed the rig for a New Jersey Fertilizer company, said the project began in earnest in 1980, but that he had been tinkering with the idea for the previous five years.

It was kept a secret until Aug. 13, when an announcement was made by the company after a patent application had been made.

Although the sprayer was designed for foliar application of fertilizer, Wolff expects it to find its way into use as a herbicide and pesticide sprayer after it has been marketed.

"This machine was developed in an attempt to be able to control the deposition of foliar fertilizer on corn and soybeans," Wolff said, "but I think it has a wider range of application than foliar fertilizer."

If the invention is marketed in Illinois, it will more likely be used for herbicide and pesticide application because foliar feeding isn't a common practice.

The professor decided that he could build a better machine after examining what was available commercially, he said.

Another advantage of the new sprayer is that it requires fewer gallons of water to effectively cover the crop, he said. It can cover an acre with as little as five gallons.

Water is used to dilute chemicals that sometime must be spread as thin as one pint to an acre because sprayers cannot meter such a small amount accurately. Conventional sprayers often need from 10 to 15 gallons to operate effectively.

Seatbelt law to be put to test this weekend

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois is only one of four states with mandatory seat-belt laws, but it's too early to tell whether that will have any beneficial effect this holiday weekend, a National Safety Council statistician said Thursday.

The council estimates between 450 and 550 people may die in accidents nationwide over the Labor Day weekend this year, and as many as 23,000 may suffer disabling injuries.

Drivers were advised to wear seat belts, refrain from drinking and driving, observe posted speed limits and not to be in such a hurry to get someplace.

"It is better to arrive safely and a few minutes late than to not arrive at all," the council said.

Last year a total of 451 people died and 21,000 were seriously injured over the three-day holiday weekend. California had the most traffic fatalities with 67, followed by Texas with 41.

There were 23 traffic fatalities on Illinois roads last Labor Day weekend, 12 of which were in Chicago. In the city alone, there were 1,621 traffic accidents.

The council's 1985 estimate is the same as last year's, despite seat-belt laws that took effect recently in Illinois, New York, New Jersey and Michigan.

"There has not been enough time to evaluate the effectiveness of those laws," said Barbara Carraro, supervisor of motor vehicle statistics for the council. However, New York, the only state to have accumulated enough statistics, has seen a 27 percent decrease in traffic fatalities during the first three months the law was in effect.

Carraro said many other traffic factors remain the same as last year, such as the availability of gasoline and the increase in vehicle occupancy during the holidays.

Carraro said normally there is an average of 1.9 people per vehicle on the road, but on holidays, "you have the whole family in the car."

More small cars on the roads also make holiday driving more dangerous, Carraro said.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission ignores investigation of 5 plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission, recently criticized for failing to address equipment problems at an Ohio nuclear plant, has allowed safety concerns to linger at five other nuclear units, according to an internal NRC memo released Thursday.

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of a House subcommittee on energy conservation and power, released an NRC memo that cited low-level safety concerns at four plants and a more significant problem at a fifth.

The plants involved were Browns Ferry Units Nos. 1, 2 and 3 near Decatur, Ala., Fort St. Vrain near Denver, Rancho Seco near Sacramento, Calif., San Onofre Unit No. 1 near San Clemente, Calif., and Palisades near South Haven, Mich.

WITH THE exception of Palisades, the safety problems were not serious, said the memo authored by William Dircks, the NRC's executive director of operations.

However, Dircks wrote, "While none of the issues have been identified as having high safety priority, the overall number of issues or the recent operational problems at these plants is cause for concern."

"One plant, Palisades, has a single issue which the staff feels is of importance and corrective action has been outstanding for an extended period of time," Dircks added.

Markey strongly criticized the NRC earlier this summer for failing to force Toledo Edison Co. to correct equipment problems at its Davis-Besse nuclear plant that were known for six years.

THE NRC'S regulatory lapse at Davis-Besse became known this past June when the plant had to abruptly shut down because of extensive equipment failures, including crucial water pumps that help cool the reactor.

Markey and other critics noted that, since 1979, the NRC has recommended Toledo Edison install a backup pump, but the agency never forced compliance.

Markey characterized the Davis-Besse incident as the most serious nuclear power plant failure since the Three Mile Island accident in 1979.

"For several months I have been pushing the NRC to conduct an internal investigation to find whether the recent incident at Davis-Besse was an isolated episode or part of a wider pattern of regulatory failure," Markey said in a statement.

"A RECENT internal NRC memorandum unfortunately reveals that Davis-Besse is not alone," he said. "This internal document reveals that a number of important safety issues have been lurking in NRC's closet for many years."

Markey said his subcommittee would examine the NRC's regulatory performance in hearings this fall.

The NRC memo said these are lingering safety problems at the five cited plants:

—Palisades. Modifications are needed to address the repeated failure of a main steam isolation valve to close following shutdown and cooling of the reactor, jeopardizing the steam generators.

—SAN ONOFRE Unit No. 1. Modifications are needed to improve fire protection and the unit's resistance to earth quake damage. Fifty-two pieces of equipment need replacement of improvements.

—Rancho Seco. Modifications are needed to strengthen pipe supports.

—Fort St. Vrain. Numerous potential problems involving reactor control rod drive mechanisms, fire protection and management control, among other issues.

Police find no trace of children allegedly killed in 'snuff films'

ATASCADERO, Calif. (UPI) — Police finished digging Thursday without finding any evidence at the last of three sites where bodies of children allegedly killed in cult rituals and pornographic "snuff films" were buried.

State Department of Justice investigators and Atascadero police completed nearly four days of excavation and found only animal remains unrelated to the case, said Police Chief Richard McHale.

Police are still not convinced a crime did not occur in the area midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco and will continue with other facets of the investigation, McHale said.

The digging began Monday on the basis of allegation by two children that they saw other youngsters being killed — and the slayings filmed — in activities related to a child molestation ring in neighboring Kern County.

Justice Department spokesman Jerry Chisum said no remains were found at any of the locations, but added the remains could have been too small to detect.

Authorities have been tight-lipped about the accusations made by the two children. One of the allegations was that snuff films, which involve the filming of murders, were made by the child molesters.

Atascadero Police Sgt. William Watton confirmed Wednesday that children had claimed the films were made at the home of Rodney and Linda Phelps in Atascadero.

The three sites where the excavation took place are all located on property adjoining the abandoned home of the Phelps, who jumped bail before their trial on child molestation charges last summer.

According to court documents, motion picture equipment was seized in a related raid in Kern County in 1982 and the victims said they were shown movies in which children were stabbed. Watton said no such films have been found.

Watton said the youngsters indicated that "10 to 15" children might have been killed and buried in the area around Atascadero. He also said there have been no reports of large numbers of children missing in the area.

Local high schools resume football rivalries

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

In what is considered to be the biggest football rivalry in Southern Illinois, Carbondale Community High School and Murphysboro High will square off at 8 p.m. Friday in the season opener for both schools.

Carbondale, a member of the South Seven Conference, is picked to finish behind Marion, Mount Vernon and Harrisburg, but coach Jim Lovin thinks the Terriers might do better.

"I'm not going to predict a winner or a score of Friday's game," said Lovin, "but I will say that our guys will be physically ready and will come out playing aggressive."

With a third place finish last year, Lovin thinks the conference will be tougher all-around than last year.

"The conference is really loaded with talent this year," Lovin said.

"I really think that this year's team could have won the conference last year," Lovin said. "Marion will be tough because of their speed, plus they have a schedule that favors their chances.

"But I still think we'll be a challenger for the conference title," Lovin added.

Marion faces all three of its major opponents on its home field.

Commenting on the Murphysboro team, Lovin says that they will be tough this year and even tougher next season.

"Charlie Cottle has done a real fine job in rebuilding the program at Murphysboro," Lovin said of the Murphysboro coach, whose team is a member of the Southwest Egyptian Conference.

"Murphysboro has dominated the conference for quite a while and will probably continue to do so in the future," Lovin said.

Lovin said that Murphysboro would like to become a member of the South Seven Conference, which has schools with larger enrollments. Murphysboro has the largest enrollment of all Southwest Egyptian Conference schools.

Du Quoin has been picked to win the conference title, with stiff competition expected from Anna-Jonesboro and Murphysboro. Last year, the three clubs tied for the conference crown.

Assistant coach Mark Bullock said that "although it is a rebuilding year, we will challenge for the conference title."

Bullock said that Murphysboro is returning only five starters from last year's club.

Runners' club race to benefit Women's Center

By Sandra Todd
Staff Writer

Promoting physical fitness and sponsoring various fitness events throughout the year are goals of the River to River Runners' club.

The club is involved with 20 different races per year, and sponsors five of its own events.

An upcoming event of the River to River Runners is a five-kilometer race Saturday Oct. 12, but it has a twist: it's limited just to women.

"The purpose of the race is to create an awareness of domestic violence," said Club President Mark Pagano.

Pagano, an SIU-C assistant professor in mechanical engineering technology, said that all proceeds of the event will go to the Carbondale Women's Center in an effort to help prevent such violence.

Pagano added that races for strictly for women are rare. "It's a chance to put on a quality event for women only," said Pagano.

The race will start in Evergreen Park and will be run on a scenic, flat course.

Trophies will be awarded to the overall winner and to the first five finishers in each age group. Trophies will also be awarded to all non-placing first-time race finishers.

Besides getting ahead in the physical fitness game, the club provides members with such benefits as a subscription to their bi-monthly paper, the "River to River Reporter," a half-price discount on all club-sponsored events and other specified races, and a chance to be with a fitness-conscious group.

Pagano explained that once a month club members gather for a "prediction run."

Before the run, each person tries to predict how long it will take them to run a specified distance. The person whose time is closest to their prediction at the end of the run

"After the prediction run, we usually have a picnic or go out for pizza together," said Pagano.

Since the club's formation in 1981, its membership has exceeded 300, with members from seven states. About 50 percent of the members are Carbondale residents.

Some other club-sponsored events include the Spring-out run — a five kilometer run, a biathlon — 20 miles cycling and a 10 kilometer run; the Herrifest, an event including a half-marathon, a 10 kilometer run, a straightaway mile sprint and a fun mile for children; Sohn's Fathers' Day Bike Classic, to promote father-and-son relationships; and the Turkey Trot, which has five and 10 kilometer runs.

The club has an annual banquet at which the Southern Illinois Runner of the Year is recognized. Mileage accomplishments and those with the most prediction points are awarded as well.

Membership costs $10 for individuals and $14 for a family. For more information on the club, contact Mark Pagano.

Originality key to Marching Salukis

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

During the past 25 Saluki football seasons, many times the most entertaining players on the field didn't wear numbered jerseys and helmets.

Attired in the tuxedos and homburgs that set them apart from most college marching bands, the Marching Salukis have entertained football crowds not only with top-notch music, but also with their own brand of colorful craziness.

With spirit and support for Saluki teams a primary goal, the Marching Salukis fire up the student side of McAndrew Stadium with such cheers as:

Mow the lawn!
Cut the grass!
C'mon (opposing team),
Kiss our Astroturf!

The cheers, antics, funny suits and other traditions have passed down since 1960. Mike Hanes, who directs the band, was, in 1960, a graduate assistant under then-director Don Canady.

"We wanted to play jazz and we said, 'Why should we look like soldiers?' So the idea for the tuxedo came about because at that time it was a dance band standard," Hanes said.

The homburg, which Hanes calls "the most distinctive part of the uniform," was added because the band had to have some kind of formal dress hat to wear outdoors with the tuxedos.

Hanes, 44, has directed the Marching Salukis for 20 years, minus a two-year stint in Army bands during the Vietnam War. Upon completion of a master's in music education at SIU-C, he landed the job because, "I was in the right place at the right time" when Canady left.

The off-beat traditions stayed alive through the years under Hanes' guidance because nobody pressured the Marching Salukis to conform.

"The alumni and administration have been very supportive of the fact that we've got something different going for us that's noticed in the public eye," Hanes said.

"When you have a group that's departed from the norm, that opens up possibilities. People expect us to be in tuxedos and homburgs doing the unexpected, and they enjoy it."

Rick Brady, a drum major in his sixth season with the band, agrees.

"I like the idea that we're different from a lot of other college bands — the uniforms, the style of marching and the music we play. Even the general spirit is different from any other college band I've seen or heard about," Brady said.

The Marching Salukis may or may not have been the first band to do march to swing and jazz, Hanes says. However, he's noticed that more and more college bands across the country are playing same kind of music the Marching Salukis have played all along.

"Now, our typical arrangements aren't so unique so we'll have to try harder to keep ours fresh and new," Hanes said.

The Marching Saluki version of the "Star Spangled Banner" won national notice in the late '60s and early '70s when halftime shows were televised.

The goosebumps raised by the emotion of the piece must be unforgettable to some because Hanes' telephone keeps ringing with invitations to perform at professional games.

The Marching Salukis will "go pro" for the 20th year when they perform at Busch Stadium for a football match-up Oct. 27 between the St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Oilers. A return invitation sends the Marching Salukis to play at a Chicago Bears game for the second time Nov. 10.

The most flattering invitation indicative of the Marching Salukis' fame came in 1982. They performed the national anthem live on national television at the 1982 World Series when the St. Louis Cardinals played the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Very few if any college bands have performed the Banner at the Series because network TV people prefer well-known bands or singers," Hanes said. "We've more or less developed a love affair with the St. Louis Cardinals."

KMOX radio in St. Louis signs on with the Marching Saluki recording, and Hanes credits that station for keeping the version popular in St. Louis.

The Knights of the Cauliflower Ear, a St. Louis sports support group, requested that the Marching Salukis play pep songs and the National Anthem at a football Cardinals kick-off banquet in Queeny Park.

Other away performances include traveling to the football Salukis' battle against the University of Illinois, Sept. 14, for the first time.

Marching band 'big happy family' devoted to one thing: having fun

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Why would anyone want to endure the many hours of strenuous rehearsal and constant pressure to perform well as a member of Marching Salukis?

"It gives me a chance to act as crazy as I want and not stand out in a crowd," says Karla Horn, Student Life Advisor for the band.

Horn, saxophone player and senior in paralegal studies, says that becoming a Marching Saluki gives you the opportunity to meet people that you have a lot in common with, who "all have the same goal — we all want to have fun."

Band director Mike Hanes agrees, even though he's the guy who can make life miserable for the group as show dates approach.

"We try to make the hard work as much fun as possible, instead of making it like just another class," Hanes says.

When Karen Bois, clarinet player and junior in piano pedagogy, signed up for Music 011 just like any other class, she probably didn't expect it to change her life drastically. But in a way...

"Being in the Marching Salukis is a good way to meet guys," she says with a smile, since she met her fiancée, Doug Greer, in last year's band.

Is there a typical Marching Saluki?

"I think the fun part of it is that there isn't a typical marching Saluki," Hanes says. "There's been such a variety of people with a variety of backgrounds and majors, I think just about every college in the University has been represented at one time or another."

Craig Maske, trombone player and freshman engineering major, joined the Marching Salukis because he considered his eight previous years in band as an investment he should continue in college.

Maske also says the Marching Salukis have "overall, a good time. Everyone wants to have a good time, show good spirit for the school and support the teams."

Diane Dennis, a freshman premajor and clarinet player, said she likes, "the attitude everyone has. We seem to be out here to do what needs to be done, but we have fun doing it. I enjoy this a lot more than I did high school band."

Rick Brady, drum major and music education major, said he enjoys the friendships formed in the group.

"It seems like everyone is a friend of everyone else, almost like it's one big happy family."

By Rich Heaton
Staff Writer

The Little Grassy triathlon is growing into its third year.

The Triathlon will be held Saturday, Sept. 28, at SIU-C's Touch of Nature Environmental Center. It is scheduled to start at 8 a.m.

The annual fall event has grown, since its inception in 1983, from 42 competitors in the first year to an expected 150 participants in 1985.

The triathlon consists of three events: a 1.5 kilometer swim in Little Grassy Lake, a 10 kilometer run on gravel roads in the area surrounding the lake, and a 20 kilometer bike race on the paved roads in the surrounding area.

Entries are limited to the first 300 people. Entries are also limited to competitors age 18 and above. All entrants must provide their own equipment.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in the men's and women's categories for the five different age divisions.

Last years overall winner and winner of the men's division was Dave Peterson, of Oak Park, with a winning time of one hour 42 minutes 46 seconds. The women's overall winner was Linda Stein, of St. Charles, Mo., with a time of two hours, six minutes, 42 seconds.

Anyone interested in competing should contact the Information Office at the Recreation Center for an entry form, or contact Rick Green at 536-5531.

Salukis in cellar of Gateway poll

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

The Panthers of Eastern Illinois University are predicted to win the inaugural Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference football title this year, while the Salukis are picked to finish in the cellar.

The Panthers were named by a poll conducted among Gateway football coaches and sports information directors. EIU received four of the 12 first-place votes and a total tally of 55 points, enough to edge out second place pick, University of Northern Iowa.

Gateway publicist Jim Sheehan, who instituted the poll, downplayed the importance of the pre-season prediction.

"I try not to place much importance on the polls," Sheehan said. "There's a general consensus from the coaches and SIDs around the league that the season is a tossup. Anyone could win the conference."

Southwest Missouri was ranked third, followed by Western Illinois. Illinois State was picked to take fifth.

The Salukis and Illinois State will be competing for in Missouri Valley Conference as well the Gateway Conference, seeking the title in both conferences.

This year marks the final season for MVC football. The MVC decided earlier this year to drop football because of financial difficulties.

All four of the other schools now in the Gateway Conference were previously members of the now-defunct Mid-Continent Conference.

The Salukis received more last place votes than any of the other schools. But SIU-C also received a first, second and third place vote, which should be an indication that the Salukis are really pretty much a question mark.

The top-picked EIU Panthers are coming off a 6-5 '85 season and expect depth to be a top asset of the team. The Panthers lost 12 lettermen to graduation but will be returning 31 lettermen.

Last year, the Salukis beat EIU in one of the most exciting games of the year by a 48-40 final score. The Salukis are at home against Eastern Sept. 28.

returns a host of lettermen. The Panthers of Northern Iowa return 15 offensive and 17 defensive lettermen while losing 17 from last year's squad. UNI did not face the Salukis last year and is not expected to face the Salukis again until next season.

Picked third and a full 11 points on the poll behind UNI is Southwest Missouri, who went 6-3-1 in the last season of the MCC. With an overall record of 52-40-4, Coach Rich Johanningmeier hopes to beat the Salukis again this year.

The Bears beat SIU-C for the first time in the history of the two schools last year by a score of 31 to 6. The Salukis are at home against SWMS Sept. 7.

The Fighting Leathernecks from Western Illinois University finished '84 with a record of 6-4-1 and did not get a win in the MCC. The Leathernecks defeated the Salukis last year by a 34-24 score despite losing the ball six times throughout the course of the game. The Salukis wrap up their season on the road against Western Nov. 16.

Picked just ahead of SIU-C and some distance behind WIU come the Redbirds of Illinois State. ISU suffered wholesale losses to graduation, and is the only team in the new conference to have lost more lettermen than will be returning.

ISU beat the Salukis last year 35-

7, the most decisive Redbird win over the Salukis since 1949. The Salukis are at home against ISU Oct. 5.

Outside of the Gateway, the Salukis go to Champaign to face Illinois Sept. 14. Illinois has been picked as one of the top ten teams in the nation, and with returning quarterback Jack Trudeau, a possible Heisman Trophy candidate, the Salukis have their work cut out for them.

On Sept. 21, the Salukis travel to Des Moines, Iowa, to face the Drake Bulldogs.

In Game 7, Oct. 19, the Indians of Southeast Missouri State come to McAndrew Stadium to avenge their 27-16 loss to the Salukis last year. Last year, SEMO went 1-10, gaining its only victory against upcoming Saluki foe Lincoln.

Cubs' pitching collapses as Braves take 9-6 win

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves are a perfect 4-0 under interim skipper Bobby Wine after they outlasted the Chicago Cubs 9-6 Thursday.

But they are also 4-0 since Bruce Benedict has gotten the everyday catching assignment.

Benedict, who had driven in just 10 runs all year, drove in four, including an unusual three-run single in the sixth inning, to lead the Braves to their fourth straight win. The catcher also drove in a run in a five-run eighth.

Benedict, who alternated the catching chores with Rick Cerone, said playing everyday has sharpened his eye.

The Braves' catcher delivered a bases-clearing single off reliever Warren Brusstar in the sixth to give Atlanta a 4-2 lead. He added a RBI on a grounder that third baseman Ron Cey threw late to second trying to force the runner with the bases loaded in the eighth.

"I haven't had four RBI in a game but once or twice in my career," Benedict said. "I don't recall ever having a three-run single."

The Braves started the rally when Dale Murphy, who had three hits, singled off loser Lary Sorensen, 3-6. Terry Harper drew a one out walk — one of 10 passes issued by six Cubs' pitchers — and Claudell Washington was intentionally walked with two outs.

Brusstar relieved with a count of 2-0 and after the count went to 3-2, Benedict singled to left clearing the bases.

"What did we give up, 10 walks?" asked Cubs' manager Jim Frey, whose team has lost three straight. "We thought we would have a chance if we could get into their bullpen. It didn't quite work out that way."

Steve Trout allowed only three hits over five innings and left with the score tied at 1-1. But the Cubs' bullpen was touched for eight runs.

Rick Mahler, 17-12, went the first 5 2-3 innings, but the Cubs roughed up the Atlanta bullpen for four runs, including four off Bruce Sutter.

Leon Durham drove in five runs with a solo homer in the fifth that tied the score, a three-run shot off Sutter in the eighth and a bases-loaded walk in the sixth.

The Cubs had the bases loaded after Durham drew the intentional walk off reliever Terry Forster. But Jeff Dedmon came in to relieve and got Jody Davis to fly out.

Ryne Sandberg had three hits, scored two runs and was robbed twice of hits by fine fielding plays by the Braves' infield.

Bob Horner drove in the Braves' first run with a RBI single in the first.

In the five-run eighth, pinch-hitter Chris Chambliss drew a bases loaded walk after Benedict's grounder and Rafael Ramirez followed with a two-run double. Glenn Hubbard capped the scoring with a sacrifice fly.

knotted at one game apiece.

Those who will be attending, and their years of membership on the team are Chris Boyd, 1981-84; Jill Broker, 1981-84; Fay Chea, 1976-79; Barb Clark, 1978-81; Robin Deterding, 1976-79; Dinah Devers, 1976-79; Kathy Lies, 1975-76; Sonya Locke, 1978-81 and now in her third year as assistant coach to Hunter; Mary Maxwell, 1980-83; Bonnie Norrenberns, 1978-81; Linda Sanders, 1981-84; and Sandy Witherspoon, 1976-79.

Hunter said that all of the returning alumni are still active in volleyball, competing on teams or just for fun whenever they can. Some are professionally involved with volleyball; Barb Clark is a telemarketing manager for Volleyball International, Fay Chea is the head volleyball coach at Carbondale Community High School and Dinah Devers is active in coaching volleyball and track at various Chicago-area high schools.

Hunter said that the match "It'll be a good chance to see how my individual players will respond to game situations," Hunter said. "Plus it will give me a chance to see how they work as a group."

Hunter said that the match "It'll probably be one of the 10 toughest of the season."

"It's the biggest and best turnout we've ever had for the alumni matches," Hunter said of the third annual alumni match. She said that although she hates to defeat her former players, she'll certainly hope that the current Saluki team will be able to take the advantage in a series now
