Gorbachev to 'resign' if union fails

President vows to hold nation together as republics secede

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev vowed Tuesday to do everything possible to hold at least part of his nation together, but his impassioned speech to lawmakers failed to stem new steps toward the huge country's disintegration.

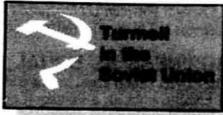

Threatening at one point to resign if the union fails, Gorbachev called for approval of a new Union Treaty and railed against quick decisions by Soviet republics to secede, saying dissolution of the country would be a catastrophe.

"As we sit here everything is collapsing slowly," Gorbachev said.

"Personally, I will do everything possible to prevent our country from falling apart," he said. "We need a union of sovereign states. I am for a renewed union ... and I will not accept anything else."

"If something else is done I will resign and let someone else take responsibility."

Many deputies at an emergency session of the Supreme Soviet also expressed alarm, comparing the tumult after last week's failed coup to the period after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution when Russia slid into three years of civil war.

"Perhaps the most tragic result of the coup is that those three days released powerful centrifugal tendencies," Gorbachev told lawmakers. "A real threat of the collapse of the union government has arisen. I say this with great anxiety and concern."

In another development, the Soviet procurator's office filed charges of high treason against the leaders of last week's failed coup, who included Vice President Gennady Yanayev, Premier Valentin Pavlov, KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov, Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov and Interior Minister Boris Pugo, the

Disorders clinic to remain open

By John C. Patterson
Special Assignment Writer

University officials said the Communication Disorders and Sciences clinics will remain open, despite worries by students that the clinics have closed.

The clinics currently are not operating at full capacity, partially because of faculty setbacks enhanced by the hiring freeze created by the budget crisis this summer.

The possible scare of the the clinic closing, however, is unwarranted, said Michael Hoshiko, communication disorders and sciences professor and clinic coordinator.

"Nothings really closed down," Hoshiko said. "We're just getting geared up for this. We don't really get going until the second weekend of the semester."

There are three positions at the clinic that are filled by speech communications disorders and sciences department faculty members, but the unexpected leaving of one member and the upcoming retirement of Hoshiko have left the clinic without the staff required by the American Speech and Hearing Association.

SIUC mansion to change roles after Pettit goes

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

University officials are trying to decide the role Stone House will play in housing University business when Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit leaves the mansion next month.

James M. Brown, who takes over as acting chancellor Sept. 1, says he will not live in the Stone House.

"The Board of Trustees and I agreed we don't want to use it as a residence," he said. "If I need to entertain, I'll do it at some University facility."

Brown said University President John C. Guyon and

State SAT scores above U.S. average

By John Sommerhof
General Assignment Writer

Average Illinois Scholastic Aptitude Test scores ranked higher this year in the verbal and math portions of the national standardized test than national SAT averages, which sank for the sixth year in a row.

Illinois high school students averaged a score of 471 in the verbal part of the SAT with national SAT scores at 422.

The national verbal scores this year were the weakest showing since 1969, according to a report by the national College Board.

Illinois SAT math averages were 535 compared to the national average of 474.

Connie Wise, assistant coordinator of planning research and evaluations for the Illinois State Board of Education, said fewer students are taking the SAT.

Volleyball team No. 5 in coach poll

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

SIUC will be right in the middle of things in the 1991 Gateway season. At least, that's how all the coaches see it.

Of 10 conference teams, the Salukis tallied in at fifth in Tuesday's preseason coaches poll.

Mike Kern, information director for the Gateway Conference, said voting for the first five teams was tight and each received at least one first-place vote.

Kern said the voting is done completely by the coaches, who predict how each team will do.

Gateway defending champion Northern Iowa was picked to finish first with three first-place votes.

Olden named preseason All-Conference

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

One of the Saluki volleyball team's leading players has been awarded a preseason honor.

Junior middle blocker Dana Olden was selected as a member of the 1991 preseason All-Conference team.

The team is composed of six of the top players in the conference, said Mike Kern, Gateway Conference information director.

"The team is voted on by each of the 10 conference coaches," Kern said. "A coach nominates players from his or her team and the players are voted on by the remainder of the coaches."

Kern said about 20 players were nominated and the top six were named to the team.

For 1991, one player from each of the projected top six Gateway title contenders has been named to the 1991 squad.

"We don't plan on that happening," Kern said. "But this year

Southwest Missouri State was the runner-up. The Lady Bears also gathered three first-place votes. Illinois State edged Wichita State for third-place honors.

Rounding out the poll were SIUC, Western Illinois University, Indiana State, Eastern Illinois, Bradley and Drake.

SIUC head coach Sonya Locke said she was not surprised her team came in fifth.

"We didn't finish in the top four last year and that plays an important role for this preseason poll," Locke said.

"We placed outside the top four, but our goal is to finish in it. We must work very hard to make sure fifth doesn't happen."

Locke said the poll is usually a good indicator of how the teams will finish at the end of the season.

"We are all very close together in this poll," Locke said. "We are fifth. Why can't we move up to fourth, or third, or second? I think it will come down to whoever is on top for that particular game will win. That is how close it will be."

Men's tennis team starts off fall practices with questions

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

Practice for the men's tennis team and fall season tournaments will help Coach Dick LeFevre decide on the players' positions for the spring season.

LeFevre opened practice for the fall Tuesday, and he said he needs to evaluate all the players to see who will replace those not returning.

"It takes a long time to get things figured out on what player's going to play what position, but I feel we have a nucleus of a good team," LeFevre said.

Because none of the doubles tandems from last season are returning, LeFevre will work to find players who work well together. Last season junior Tim Derouina and graduated senior Joe Demeterco, junior Jay Merchant and sophomore Rikard Stenstrom and sophomore Kai Kramer and sophomore Danny Gonzalez were paired as doubles. Demeterco, Stenstrom and Gonzalez will not return.

LeFevre said all 1991-92 players entered the Southern Illinois Open, a tournament sponsored by an outgrowth of the Southern Illinois Tennis Association this past week. Derouin, last season's No. 4 player, beat Merchant, the 1990 No. 3 player in the championship match.

In the semifinals Derouin beat freshman Altaf Merchant, the No. 1 junior from India, and Merchant beat sophomore Uwe Classen from Herzogenrath, Germany.

"I put the kids in for experience," LeFevre said.

The tennis season begins Sept. 20 and 21 with the Redbird Classic at Illinois State.

On paper so far Drake University seems to be the biggest match in the fall schedule, but all of the teams live on hope, LeFevre said.

He said Wichita and Tulsa also will be tough to play.

Lendl survives scare in first round

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ivan Lendl came perilously close to an unwelcome two-week golf vacation before overcoming Richard Krajicek Tuesday in the first round of the U.S. Open.

After falling behind two sets, Lendl survived two match points in the fourth set and then took advantage of his weakened opponent for a 3-6, 2-6, 6-4, 7-6 (7-5), 6-0 victory.

"I feel good about winning this match," said the three-time Open champion. "If you can hang in there and win one of these, it's all for the good. It's not a relief, it's enjoyment. When I win, I enjoy it. I don't feel relieved."

Krajicek, a 19-year-old Dutchman, delivered 19 aces to seven for Lendl in the 3-hour, 37-minute contest. However, he also was guilty of 65 unforced errors to 40 for Lendl.

By the end of the match, played in temperatures well over 100 degrees, Krajicek had cramps of the toes, neck, shoulder, back and knees and didn't want anyone to touch him for fear he would get sick. "I felt the sun burning right through my head," he said.

Lendl, 31, was better prepared, with his white desert cap.

"So close, heh?" mused Krajicek. "And so far, also. I was one serve away, but I was rushing. I just wanted to get it over. I just wanted to take a shower and rest."

No. 2 seed Stefan Edberg also was tested in the opening round before beating American Bryan Shelton, 6-4, 2-6, 7-6 (7-4), 6-1, and No. 3 Michael Stich of Germany, the Wimbledon champion, beat Jacco Eltingh of the Netherlands 7-6 (7-5), 6-1, 6-0.

Although he reached the Open final a record eight times in a row before losing in the quarterfinals last year, Lendl is seeded only fifth. He underwent hand surgery in May, and went six months without winning a tournament before capturing Hamlet last week.

Krajicek, boasting one of the swift serves in the game, defeated Edberg two weeks ago and was on the brink of another major upset when he tired in the heat of the Stadium Court and had trouble moving. He offered little resistance in the final set, and after serving in

Minority athletic adviser candidate gets approval

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

Affirmative action has approved hiring Darren Billberry as SIUC's new minority adviser, said associate athletic director Charlotte West Tuesday.

"I'm looking forward to working with him," West said.

"He was very impressive in his interviews, and the fact that he's been a football player will help him relate with the athletes — especially the football players."

West said Billberry will start working at the department today.

Billberry to start work today as third coordinator

Billberry graduated from the University of Kentucky with a bachelor of arts in communication.

He also played football for UK, and was the graduate assistant for academic progress of a group of student athletes at the university.

Billberry will join Nikki Chambers and Mary Beth Skelly as athletic coordinators for SIUC.

Athletic coordinators help student athletes choose their classes and make decisions about adding and dropping courses.

The adviser position was created in response to a 1990 study conducted by SIU law professor Wenona Whitfield. Whitfield reported that SIUC black student athletes collectively performed better during their earlier years than when they earned a substantial number of failing grades, incomplete grades and withdrawals in later years at the University.

An analysis of 39 black football players' transcripts revealed that one-third of those students analyzed failed to maintain a 2.0 GPA during the 1990 spring semester.

Studies indicated that minority students had better grades when they had another minority with whom to talk and relate, said Nancy Bandy, assistant athletics director in June.

Athletic Director Jim Hart said last week Billberry has been unanimously approved by the entire department before the recommendation was sent to Affirmative Action.

Hart said the department will have to pay for Billberry's new position after state budget problems in the spring and summer postponed and canceled funding for the position. A list of candidates had been narrowed to five before the department was told no funds were available for the adviser.

U.S., PHILIPPINES AGREE TO CLOSE BASE — The United States signed an agreement with the Philippines Tuesday to close Clark Air Base but retain Subic Bay Naval Station for 10 more years, wrapping up more than a year of negotiations with the former U.S. colony. President Corazon Aquino, in nationally televised remarks during the signing ceremony at the presidential palace, appealed to Filipinos for help in prodding Philippine Senators to ratify the agreement.

NO PROGRESS FOR RELEASE OF HOSTAGES — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar met with Iran's U.N. ambassador Tuesday in Geneva about the hostage crisis and relayed the Israeli position amid Iranian accusations that Israel is blocking efforts to resolve the issue. Iranian Ambassador Kamal Kharazmi, who served as messenger between U.N. officials and pro-Iranian Shiite Muslims holding hostages in Lebanon, implied there had been no progress.

BUSINESS AS USUAL FOR SOVIET ARSENAL — The Soviet Union's system for command and control of its nuclear arsenal is back to normal, a Pentagon official said Tuesday, and there was no increased nuclear risk during the abortive coup. Spokesman Pete Williams also said there has been no military-to-military communication on the issue since the coup ended. Gen. Mikhail Moiseyev took over as defense minister for one day after the coup failed.

CAMBODIA AGREES TO DISBAND FORCES — Cambodia's four battling factions agreed Tuesday to disband 70 percent of their forces and put the rest under U. N. control in a crucial step toward ending 12 years of civil war. Progress at the peace talks, however, slowed down amid disagreements over political arrangements for proposed elections. "Finally we have unexpectedly achieved a good solution to the main problem, the military problem," said Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

PROTESTS CONTINUE AT LOGGING SITE — A smaller and better-behaved crowd gathered inside the Shawnee National Forest Tuesday to protest logging there, far different from a day before when 16 people were arrested and one person was injured. The objectors are opposed to East Perry Lumber Co.'s cut of 141 acres of the forest at a location seven miles south of Murphysboro. After years of legal wrangling, the timber firm began cutting Monday afternoon.

Local calls to cost students; on-campus calls remain free

By Annette Holder
City Writer

Telephone callers will be charged per call for off-campus calls starting Jan. 1 under a new GTE Usage Sensitive Service system.

UNIVERSITY CALLERS, including dormitory residents, will have to pay for calls made off-campus, but on-campus calls will not be billed under the new telephone system.

Customers now can compare their current flat-rate-fee phone bill with the USS bill with comparison billing. Comparison billing is done in Carbondale, Benton and Harrisburg.

Jim Manis, GTE regional public affairs manager, said comparison billing is done, in part, because of Illinois Commerce Commission requirements for the company to inform its customers of how they will be affected by the new rates.

THE SERVICE CHARGES the highest rates to call from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Business customers will have to pay more than residential customers.

The cost for a Carbondale resident to call another Carbondale resident is 2.1 cents during prime time, or four-tenths of a cent to call between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Customers are not charged for time on the telephone.

The cost of an on-campus call to a Carbondale prefix during prime time is 2.1 cents to make the call and one-half cents for each minute.

Dorm residents also will pay business rates because SIUC is considered a business.

WHEN CARBONDALE RESIDENTS call to prefixes other than 457, 529 or 549, customers pay four-and-a-half cents to make a call during prime time, plus one-and-a-half cents for each minute.

The cost for a Carbondale resident to call another Carbondale resident is 2.1 cents during prime time, or four-tenths of a cent to call between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m.

Manis said previous studies have shown about 65 percent of GTE customers save money. Half of GTE's Illinois customers are served by USS.

Harry Wirth, director of service enterprises, said he will not be able to tell if SIUC will save money by the pay-per-call rate, until he has had time to check the comparison bill.

Wirth said he did not expect a great change in billing prices.

UNIVERSITY OFFICIALS have not decided how dorm residents will be billed for the calls.

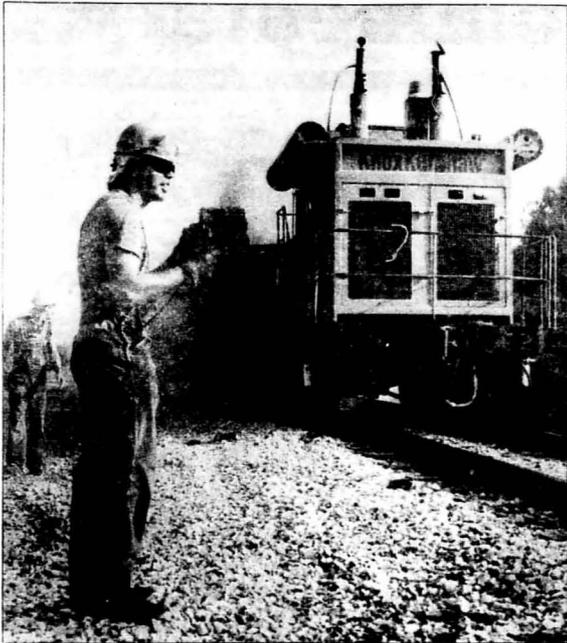

Kim Russell, coordinator of the Senior Citizens Services of Jackson County, said she believes the elderly will be affected by the change in billing.

"The only contact many elderly have with their friends is the phone," Russell said. "It would definitely cut down on their socializing. A lot of them stay on the phone 24 hours a day."

Russell said she would like GTE to give elderly customers the choice of the current billing system or USS.

Sharon Lorinskas, a Murphysboro resident, said she has been on USS for several years and does not like it.

"I definitely feel we're paying more," she said. "And a lot of other people do, too."

Acting chancellor rates SIU system as excellent

By Julie Autor
Administration Writer

James M. Brown will take over the job of SIU chancellor next week in a system he rates as excellent, despite a call by faculty members to reevaluate the need for a chancellor.

"I think it is an appropriate organization given the organization of other universities in the state that SIU must work with," Brown said. "The system we have should, if it hasn't always, recognize that the two universities are extremely different."

Brown will become the acting chancellor Sept. 1, after the resignation of SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit.

Brown said the chancellor's system needs a face-lift.

"Obviously I must think it needs to be done because I agreed to try to do it," Brown said. "I just hope that wasn't the last major mistake of my life."

This will be the third time Brown has had the acting chancellor's job. Brown said he will be able to do more for the system than just be a caretaker.

"My understanding of what the Board of Trustees has said I should do will call for some specific actions made out of my judgement of what the Board and University want and need," he said. "This will call for some positive kinds of actions that aren't caretaking, but will be designed to clarify the role of the office and help deal with some of the criticisms of the layers of administration and costs."

Brown said he wants to "heal the wounds at SIU," even though the idea of doing this sounds "corny."

"I would like to serve some sort of healing function," Brown said. "I think a lot of stress and difficulties have left people uncomfortable. I would like to hope that by the time a permanent chancellor is located and hired, people are a little more comfortable."

Brown said he is interested in regaining the trust faculty has in the chancellor's office.

City should consider parking alternatives

THE IDEA TO raise meter prices and to extend paying hours should be given careful consideration before a decision is made.

The Carbondale City Council has proposed raising the price of the parking meters from 10 cents to 25 cents an hour.

Another proposal suggests the city also will lengthen the time during which meters have to be paid.

Instead of paying meters from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., customers will have to pay from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

This does not seem fair to students because it is the students who commonly park at the meters after 4 p.m.

All the entertainment spots that the students enjoy during the evening are located near parking meters that the students now do not have to pay.

CAN YOU IMAGINE going to a bar and having to run out every couple of hours to put more money in the meter?

Of course nobody likes to overpay a meter, and drivers never know just how long they will be spending at a particular place.

Or how about going to Tres Hombres to eat dinner and having to pay to park as well as paying for dinner?

It seems the students give Carbondale more than enough money and business. It's time they got a break.

After all if it weren't for the students, Carbondale would have less revenue.

It is understandable that the city needs to raise more money, and this is one way of gaining extra revenue, but it also seems the city could benefit more by raising the meter rates without increasing the hours of meter enforcement.

OTHER WAYS OF paying for parking need to be explored. Maybe the businesses could subsidize the parking.

Pay-and-display, which is a system in which the driver buys a ticket from a machine and attaches it to the car window, is one system being explored.

Could the machine dispense a ticket to be displayed and a copy of the ticket to be taken to the business for a refund?

Obviously other options should be considered.

The Council could look at other cities to determine how they handle parking and consider creative proposals other than meters.

The impact on businesses and students should definitely be taken into account before a decision is reached.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 300 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Tyson tempest: Boxer's actions should elicit reasonable reaction, penalty

On a scale of 1 to 10, women appear to be the angriest people in America.

Not all women, of course. The angry women are the many who seem to believe that all men are cruel, sexist beasts, constantly looking for ways to do them physical or mental harm.

I've been hearing from them lately. They are fuming over a column I wrote about boxer Mike Tyson being sued for $100 million because he placed a hand on the buttock of a beauty queen while posing for a picture.

They not only accuse me of condoning Tyson's conduct but of encouraging the American male population to run amok, pawing at every defenseless buttock in sight.

One of the most furious of them is Jean Birmingham of Glens Falls, N. Y., who wrote:

"I am disgusted and outraged by your sarcastic, mocking attitude...."

"You seem to imply that, at worst, it was just a lark for Mr. Tyson to fondle Miss Jones' buttocks and Miss Jones should quietly accept this invasion of her privacy and violation of her person."

(In fact, I did not suggest that Miss Jones should have quietly accepted her buttock being patted. She might have screamed, slapped his face, kicked his shins or called

I might blush, but I would not sue her for $100 million.)

But let us return to Ms. Birmingham's fury: "By his actions, Mike Tyson ... gives every evidence of believing that what he wants, he can and will take. The final extension of this kind of attitude can result in rape, robbery or murder."

While patting someone's bottom might be boorish behavior, I can't accept that it means the pater is a potential murderer.

Let us consider the fluttering of eyelashes. There are women who do that, you know. Some not only flutter their eye lashes but they gaze. Yes gaze, and sometimes at men to whom they are not even wed nor properly introduced.

But does that justify anyone saying that a female who is an eyelash flutterer, a gazer or a hip-wiggler should be labeled as a tart, a doxie, a harlot or a scarlet woman?

Well, if I accept the reasoning of Ms. Birmingham, that a buttock pater is only a few steps removed from being a murderer, then it follows that an eyelash flutterer or a gazer is a potential harlot. And I am too much of a gentleman to ever suggest such a thing.

It's a good thing the Soviets have had their crisis. It helps get our mind off these heavy issues.

(But ever with inflation and an eager New York lawyer, $100 million seems a bit steep, which was my main point.)

Ms. Birmingham thundered on: "The amount of the suit, $100 million, may seem excessive in relation to the offense but would a lesser amount deter Mike Tyson? How much would you charge Mr. Tyson to fondle YOUR buttocks?"

(I doubt if Tyson would want to do that, and his fans would be shocked and disappointed if he did.)

(In fact, Tyson has been accused in still another lawsuit of being a "serial buttocks fondler." So to answer Ms. Birmingham's question, I don't know how much I would charge Tyson. But if Ms. Birmingham fondled my buttocks,

Letter to the Editor

DE should excel to overcome image

Miss Spinner brought to light a very good point that students should take notice of. In these days of strenuous competition amongst college graduates, within a decreasing job market, the marks you make here must be far higher than that of a big name university. Changing the party policy of the school will hardly turn the heads of would-be employers though.

The school will not loose its image for decades. Alumni will remember just as future leaders and employers who remember the "good old days." But Miss Spinner, I would like to challenge you and the entire staff with this paradox.

The Daily Egyptian is not a paper that would turn the heads of newspaper editors. At one time an award may have been given by an organization to the DE for some outstanding accomplishment in the journalistic arena, however it died the moment it was given.

The DE cannot carry a torch that has blown out. For any type of recognition you will have to do better than what I have seen in the last year and a half. There are many examples of mistakes seen weekly that do not reflect the work of a well-groomed paper.

These mistakes include: poor news coverage, poor news choices, both local and national, and poor story writing. An editor can give many reasons for not hiring, and it is unfortunate that the reasoning was because of the University.

But, it still is going to take some effort of the DE staff to come up with a better paper to satisfy the demands of a real newspaper. — Michael Hoffmann, sophomore in cinema and photography.

CLINIC, from Page 1

Because of the hiring freeze during the summer, when the director of the clinic left the position could not be searched for a replacement, said Communications and Fine Arts Dean Gerald Stone.

"Two people of the three were no longer their while under the hiring freeze and it drew things to a halt," Stone said. "We're trying to crank it up again."

Stone said he expects the clinic to be operating normally within weeks if not days.

Despite the reassurance, students involved in the clinic and department are concerned not only for their academic careers, but also the patients the clinic treats.

Bobbie Monroe, communication disorders and sciences doctoral candidate, said the clinic treats more than 100 patients and provides required experience and training to more than 40 graduate students.

Monroe said ASHA guidelines require students to complete 300 clock hours working with speech and hearing patients to become nationally certified.

Undergraduates are also allowed to work at the clinic with proper supervision, but Monroe said currently there is no supervision.

"The University is failing in its commitment and mission to the public," she said. "The clinical aspect of the communication disorders and sciences department has been wiped out."

Other students agreed the situation does not look good no matter how soon the clinic becomes operational.

Sharon Hardy, communication disorders and sciences graduate student, said the situation could lengthen the time and money it takes her to finish her degree.

"Every day they put this off that's a day I don't get the hours," Hardy said.

Frank Boutsen, speech communication disorders and sciences doctoral candidate, said the slow start of the clinic will leave new students unsure of the department.

"Many students who are beginning don't know what their future will be," Boutsen said.

Despite their own problems, the students said Southern Illinois also will suffer if the clinic doesn't return to its functions.

Monroe said the clinic is the only one of its kind in the region.

"I'm not here anymore then the entire Southern Illinois area will have a difficult time getting speech and hearing therapists," she said.

Hoshiko said the patients will be treated, but it has to be understood the clinic does not operate like a private medical clinic.

He said once they receive the names of patients and information on the treatment they need they are then matched up with a student studying in the same area.

Clients are signed up and will be treated as clinic workers become available, he said.

Although the services of the clinic are important, Stone said the main area of concern as a college of communication and fine arts is to provide education to the students that they deserve and have paid for and have every right to expect.

"The students that are taking the SAT test are students who are college-bound and have been exposed to classes in high school which prepare them for the test," Wise said.

"Students who take the SAT do so because the college they are hoping to go to requires the SAT for admission," she said.

SIUC requires only the ACT scores for admission. Admission officials said students applying who are undecided in a major need a score of 19 or better on the ACT. Student applying to SIUC in the engineering or business need a score of 21.

Shirley Miles, coordinator of guidance for Carbondale Community High School, said there was a slight decline in the scores at CCHS, but the scores still were higher than the national SAT averages. Average CCHS were 490 for verbal and 517 for math.

"Our teachers don't teach towards the SATs," Miles said. "But we do offer help and study sessions for the SATs."

Miles said the importance of the SAT scores to students is low.

Wise said 30 percent of the students who took the SAT in Illinois ranked in the top 10 percent of their classes, and 52 percent of the test takers placed in the top 20 percent of their classes.

Caucasian students made up 78 percent of the high school students who took the SAT and scored the highest average on the verbal with a score of 478.

Asian student made up the second largest number of people taking the test and scored highest on math with a high average score of 581. The College Board, a private, non-profit organization representing more than 2,800 colleges and educational institutions, sponsors the test.

The College Board's final breakdown of the SAT national scores are as follows:

- Men did better than women particularly in math. Men lost five points and women lost three.
- Asian Americans averaged better on math than any other ethnic group by scoring 530 but were 11 points below the national average in verbal skills at 411.
- Board officials reported 8 percent of the people who took the SAT regarded English as a second language.
- African Americans scored 385 on verbal and 351 on math—160 points below the combined national average of 896.

he are talking about the possibility of using Stone House for purposes other than a residence.

Modifications to make it into an office building, to use it as a facility for major University functions or to make it available for some sort of public use have been discussed, he said.

Donald Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs, said security will remain tight on the premises even though the halls of the mansion will be silent.

Security and physical plant officials will be contacted to see if it's necessary to have someone in Stone House at all times for security purposes, he said.

"I'm sure the piece will be very secure," Wilson said. "Security is one thing we worry about."

Stone House was constructed after a proposal to build a hotel tower on campus for visiting dignitaries was turned down because of complaints from local motel owners, said Ben Gelman, public information specialist with University Print Communications.

"The reason Stone House is such a peculiar edifice is that it's not just a residence but was designed to have guest facilities," he said.

The house was surrounded by problems when construction began in 1969.

Research overhead funds were used to finance the building, which was viewed as unethical by many people, Gelman said.

"At first, people thought it would be a quarter of a million dollars, but it ended up closer to $1 million," he said.

A position to handle financial affairs of the University, known as University Director, was created by the Board of Trustees to take away the fiscal powers of the president at that time, Delyte Morris.

Gelman said the position actually never was put into motion, but when Morris resigned soon afterward, most people assumed it was because of the problems with Stone House.

Three SIUC presidents have lived in the house. Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit was the first chancellor to live there.

Stone House originally was designated for use by the University president but was changed to accommodate the chancellor when this position was created, Guyon said.

The first chancellor of both SIUC and SIUE, Kenneth Shaw, however, didn't live in Stone House.

Shaw formerly was the president of SIUE and he continued to reside in Edwardsville.

The 10,000-square-foot Stone House costs the University $55,000 a year for utilities.

The other members of the self-proclaimed State of Emergency Committee were arrested and now face possible capital punishment under the treason charges, Tass said.

The legislature took a brief break from its stormy debate on the country's fate Tuesday evening to appoint a commission to investigate the three-day coup that collapsed last Wednesday, putting influential Leningrad Mayor Anatoly Sobchak in charge of the panel.

In spreading reaction to the aborted overthrow of Gorbachev's central government, the tiny republic of Moldavia declared its independence from Moscow, and more Western nations officially recognized the longstanding independence claims of the three Baltic states.

Lawmakers from other smaller

The U.S.S.R. Bank froze all financial assets of the Soviet Communist Party in accordance with a decree by Gorbachev, who ordered party property nationalized Saturday because of its support for the overthrow bid.

City officials alter proposal to extend parking meter rates

By Annette Holder
City Writer

City officials have changed a proposal to extend parking meter rates from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. after student leaders objected to a proposal that would extend the rates to midnight.

The council will vote on the proposal Sept. 3 despite a consideration to wait 30 days for a vote.

Student leaders requested a 30-day wait on any decision to give them time to meet with business operators in Carbondale. Students proposed a special assessment fee district be established with free parking for downtown business patrons.

The businesses would pay the cost of the parking, which would be subsidized by higher prices on food and drinks.

Carbondale City Manager Steve Hoffner said he gave consideration to the request of a postponement, but did not believe it would create any changes for students.

"The support of the businesses (for the special assessment fee district) is not there," Hoffner said. "Another 30 days is not going to turn businesses around."

Student leaders opposed the parking meter rates and hours increase at the Aug. 20 City Council meeting. The council had postponed any vote until its members met with student leaders Monday to discuss details of the proposal.

The council was to decide on extending the hours for paid parking from 6 p.m. to 12 a.m., raising the current 10-cents and hour rate to 25 cents and increasing permits from $12 to $10.

Student Trustee Bill Hall said if business leaders had been involved in the rate increase earlier, the business community would have agreed to the special fee.

AIDS sufferers not treated alike at universities

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — College students' attitudes toward people with AIDS depend on the students' attitudes about homosexuality.

That's one of the findings in a recent Ball State University study analyzing the "social distance" college students prefer to keep from people with AIDS.

The study, conducted by psychology professor Michael Stevenson, was published recently in the Journal of Psychology and Human Sexuality.

Results showed that college students generally are tolerant and accepting of people with AIDS. However, that tolerance varies.

Students are more tolerant of a heterosexual person with AIDS than of a homosexual person with AIDS.

And they are more tolerant of someone who got AIDS through a blood transfusion than through a sexual encounter.

They are more likely to avoid social contact with those who contracted AIDS through sexual activity.

Animal welfare degree at Purdue first in nation

WEST LAFAYETTE, IND. (UPI) — Purdue University's School of Veterinary Medicine this fall implemented what is believed to be the first undergraduate program in animal welfare in the country.

Any Purdue student may take courses leading to a sub-specialty or minor in animal welfare, focusing on the humane care and management of farm, laboratory, pet and zoo animals. In addition to faculty members from the School of Veterinary Medicine, faculty from the schools of agriculture, consumer and family sciences, liberal arts, and science are involved.

The pilot program has received almost $200,000 in grants from the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Cooperative State Research Service, the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, and the Fund for Improvement of Postsecondary Education of the U.S. Department of Education.

Dr. Lawrence T. Glickman, co-initiator of the curriculum, says graduates will be equipped to better educate animal owners, consumers, scientists and legislators about animal-welfare issues by holding positions in education, government, industry and research.

"Society's attitudes about animals and their care and welfare are changing dramatically," says Glickman, head of the Department of Veterinary Pathobiology. "More information is needed that relates animal health and welfare to stress, the environment, behavior, husbandry practices and productivity. We need people who understand the science, politics and emotions of animal welfare."

Dr. Billy Hooper, executive director of the Association of American Veterinary Medical Colleges, Washington, D.C., says he knows of no other U.S. veterinary medical or agricultural school that is undertaking a multidisciplinary program in how society uses animals.

"Purdue is the first and only university with a program that addresses animal welfare in the breadth it needs," Hooper says.

Says Glickman: "We'd like this program to be a model." Eventually, an undergraduate major in animal welfare might be offered, as well as a graduate-degree program, Glickman adds.

Development of the animal-welfare curriculum was one of the primary goals of Purdue's Center for Applied Ethology and Human-Animal Interaction, says Professor Alan M. Beck, center director and the other initiator of the curriculum.

Children of alcoholics can find help at Wellness Center

Rosie is a 19-year-old freshman at SIUC looking forward to meeting new people and starting a social life at school. She is also one of approximately one-third of the student population from homes where one parent is alcoholic.

"I'm glad to get away from home and yet I'm worried about my mom. I've met a lot of neat people here and already been to the bars. It's awesome," she said.

Rosie doesn't realize yet that she is at higher risk for having drinking problems because of her family background. Adult children of alcoholics also may experience psychological problems such as low self-esteem, lack of trust, constant approval seeking, and poor personal relationships.

problems by using drugs, food, or other compulsive behaviors which lead to further problems.

Legal implications of underage drinking are often not considered by students, but can result in up to a $1,000 fine and/or up to one year in the county jail.

Students can face difficulties in many areas of their lives in relation to drinking habits. Students are offered resources and support to improve their health and reduce the risks of alcohol and other drugs on their lives at the Wellness Center. Confidential consultation for assessment of drinking habits is available at Kesnar Hall, 536-4441.

U.S. Christian organization celebrates 50th anniversary

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

Christian students at SIUC are part of a fellowship organization that is celebrating its 50th anniversary nationwide this fall.

InterVarsity Christian Fellowship was started 150 years ago in Great Britain by Christian students at Cambridge University.

A student who migrated to Canada and started IVCF-Canada later pioneered student work in InterVarsity Christian Fellowship of the United States.

The organization finally found a strong student following in the United States, where it was officially incorporated in 1941. Today, it can be found on 700 college campuses nationwide.

IVCF-USA celebrated 50 years of ministry at Wheaton College in Illinois this summer.

Student groups from more than 100 nations gathered at the World Assembly of the International Fellowship of Evangelical Students to hear leaders of InterVarsity-USA give reports of their various areas of service to the university world.

Priests and other Christian religious authorities also delivered sermons on the Bible in relation to present-day culture and the relevance of faith to mankind.

IVCF's aim is to help Christians grow toward maturity as disciples of Christ by study of the Bible, by prayer, by Christian fellowship and by obedience to Christ in serving other people.

Teacher John Stott said the cultural context in which the Bible was written is different than other culture today.

Gregory Norfleet, large group coordinator of IVCF-SIUC, said Christian students try to realize aspirations through campus branches of IVCF.

Students take the lead in forming and directing their own InterVarsity chapters. Staff workers, trained and commissioned by the IVCF, serve to motivate, encourage, train and equip students to fulfill their purpose of spreading the understanding of the gospel of Christ.

IVCF-SIUC started in 1954. It is one of the older IVCF chapters in this country. Currently it has about 30 members.

"Its students have come to know Jesus as their personal savior and are committed to serving Him as Lord," said Norfleet, a senior in journalism. "They come from different church backgrounds to unite to share their faith in Jesus but are not a congregation."

Small group meetings are the

Ministers lend an ear to troubled students

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

Rev. Andrew Payne says he knows everyone just needs someone to listen.

Payne and local ministers take turns listening to students, faculty and staff blow off steam.

The ministers operate the Listening Post from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Wednesday at the south end of the Student Center.

"The post is formed by a number of campus ministries, and its purpose is to be a place where people can come and talk in total confidentiality," said Payne, pastor at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. "They can talk about their problems — personal, academic or in general.

"Folks have trouble adjusting to roommates. People talk about whether they had had a good day, or got a bad grade and were upset about it," he said.

"The majority are undergraduates, though a number of graduate students do turn up," Payne said.

"We have a large number of students come up to us just to inquire about the post. We tell them that if they have anything to say or would like someone to hear, but have no one to listen to them, that is what we are there for," he said.

"Our first year we discovered that an increasing number of people on this campus are lonely. They have friends and all that, but it just comes across in the course of the conversation that they have a sense of isolation," he said.

"We cannot offer them advise, because the Listening Post does not offer counseling services, but we do listen to whatever they have to say," he said.

Payne said in cases when people have a serious problem, the ministers tell them to go to a counseling clinic or see a campus pastor.

"We never know what happened later, because it is totally anonymous and we don't have the students' names to check on whether they went to see somebody about their problem," he said.

Payne said the volunteers for the post gain satisfaction from the feeling they have performed some service to those in need.

building blocks of the SIUC chapter of IVCF. These groups of five to 10 people meet weekly for Bible study, discussion and fellowship. Small groups provide an ideal environment for the personal growth and development of close friends.

Large group meetings are held in the Student Center on campus. They offer a great opportunity to gather together with other Christians and join in worship, prayer and song.

"IVCF at the university has three characteristics: large group meetings on a weekly basis, daily prayer meetings at the basement of Grinnell that last for about 45 minutes and Bible stuo, leaders who meet with other members on specific days to learn more about Christianity," Norfleet said.

"Colossians 4:2 instructs us to 'devote yourselves to prayer' and we have committed ourselves to praying together daily because we believe that prayer should be a fundamental part of everything we do as Christians," he said.

One of the Bible study leaders, Garrett Anderson, also has been working for IVCF for the past year.

He was graduated from DePaul University with a Bachelor of Arts in psychology.

"You don't have to be trained in the Bible to be on the InterVarsity staff," he said.

"The word of God is still the same as God's nature is always constant, and God's word is always relevant at any time. I want to help motivate (people) to live for God and his purposes and plans. The kingdom of God is so unsurpassable that we should do anything to gain it," Anderson said.

"Parables are there for a response, not for morals like Aesop's fables," he said.

"We need to wrestle with the truth of God. We need to choose to live for God. God wants Christians to follow Him when life is but the daily grind," he said. "IVCF wants students to become stronger Christians 10 years down the road."

Taiwan, SIUC to confer on competition

By Sarah Anderson
General Assignment Writer

Representatives from Taiwan's National Cheng Kung University and SIUC faculty are meeting Wednesday and Thursday to discuss global economic competition.

This is the fourth year NCKU and SIUC officials have met, alternating meeting years between Taiwan and Carbondale. The NCKU group consists of about 50 people.

"The conference is just one portion of the events," said Karen Palmer, who is with the technical information office at the Coal Research Center.

"There are actually two delegations, one is here to sign a sister-city agreement with Carbondale officials and the other is a university delegation," Palmer said.

The conference opens today in the Student Center, and the first session is entitled, "Economic Competitiveness: Forging A Governmental, Industrial and Educational Partnership."

The conference is open and free to the public, students, faculty and community members are invited to attend. Speakers at this session will include U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carrollville; Shih-Chih Ming, mayor of Tainan City, Taiwan; Jer Ru Maa, president of NCKU; D.G. Coonan, vice president of Caterpillar Inc.; and Paul Chung, dean of engineering at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

Small group sessions will start at 1:30 p.m. in the River rooms at the Student Center. Topics introduced will include environmental-economic trade-offs, global strategies and information management.

Although SIUC and NCKU officials have been meeting since 1987, this is the first time Tainan and Carbondale city officials have met.

"This started out as a SIUC and NCKU relationship," said Janet Vaught, Carbondale city clerk. "Now Tainan has become Carbondale's third sister city."

Carbondale also has a sister city in Nakajio, Japan, and Samla, India.

Pale Divine debut a pale attempt; album lacking edge of live shows

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Music Review

Pale Divine's name is appropriate. While the group may think their music is godlike, what they actually produce is pale in comparison to their ambitions.

The band, formerly The Eyes, has just released their debut album, "Straight to Goodbye", on Atlantic records.

As The Eyes, the St. Louis rockers toured bars across the Midwest, playing Hangar 9 at least three times a year. As a result, they have gained an avid following across the area.

The band consists of lead howler Michael Schaefer, guitarist Richard Fortus, Dan Angenend, Jr. on bass, and Greg Miller on the drums.

The first single, "Straight to Goodbye," opens with an acoustic guitar and Schaefer referring to himself in the third person: "Thanks for calling Mr. Michael / He's not feeling well."

The track alternates between a moody acoustic section and harmony pop, akin to the Beatles. The variety of moods on this song make it an interesting effort.

"Something About Me," a danceable pop song steeped in melody, has no redeeming value other than to send people screaming out of the house when it is played.

"My Addiction," a song they have been playing live for years, gets a sterile treatment on this disc. The song has been effectively neutered, making it radio-playable and safe. Live, the song has the intensity of a Sherman Tank, zig zagging between acoustic passages and hard-rock pyrotechnics. Schaefer's voice cutting through the sonic fog like car headlights.

The glossy studio production, however, has reduced "My Addiction" to a sniveling, weak-kneed pop tune.

"Cigarette" is a topic familiar to all smokers — the hopeless addiction to nicotine. In Pale Divine's pompous hands, the song becomes idiosyncrasy, with Schaefer crooning lines like "You're my cigarette my love / You're my heaven in a package / You're the love I never had."

The song reminds one of an old kindergarten joke: Michael, if you love your cigarettes so much, why don't you marry them?

"The Fog," a college rocker that sounds like R.E.M. and Bauhaus meeting in a dark alley, actually has a great melody and a catchy hook. It's too bad that the same melody is repeated to the point of absurdity, and the song gets boring within 30 seconds, a new world record.

An unexpected mandolin solo holds one's interest for about 10 seconds. Fortus then cuts into a completely cliché metal solo that sounds like Eddie Van Halen on elephant tranquilizers, shrunk down to the size of an ant and placed inside a coffee can.

"Sorrow," which is thankfully the last song on this disc, is another throwback to the Beatles, with a quirky melody line reminiscent of "Parsley, Sage, Rosemary and Thyme."

The lyrics are intelligent and thoughtful: "Fear decides and sorrow takes the day / Fear always gets his way / I've been a thousand people / Always keep my back against the wall."

Once again, the mixing is too refined, taking the heart of the song and chopping it up, like an insane butcher at a delicatessen.

The problem with this album is not the songs. Yes, they are boring, repetitive and pretentious, but when played live they explode with raw energy.

The production is the root of the problem. The vocals are out in front, while the instruments are pushed way back in the mix. Instead of exploding, the disc fizzles out like stale Rice Krispies.

'Doc Hollywood' has cure for summertime doldrums

Movie Review

Doctored up with characters straight from the depths of Hee-Haw Hell, Warner Brothers' "Doc Hollywood" offers not only a prescription, but also a cure for a speedy recovery from the dog days of August.

Michael J. Fox stars as Ben Stone, a young physician on his way to Beverly Hills to become a big-time cosmetic surgeon. Along the way he is forced off the road and crashes his Porsche into a man's white picket fence in the one-horse town of Grady, S. C.

The grief-stricken man, who happens to be the town judge, sentences Stone to several days of community service for reckless driving. He is to serve as physician in Grady Memorial Hospital, where Coca-Cola and Bisquick are common prescriptions and a doctor's duties include everything from cleaning people's eye glasses to reading mail for illiterate patients.

While stranded in Hickville, USA, Stone abruptly runs into the bold and beautiful Lou, played by Julie Warner. Instantly stung by Cupid's arrow, the two spend the entire movie trying to work their way into each other's heart.

Grady, the Squash Capital of the South, is bubbling over with the most eccentric characters since

"Green Acres." Woody Harrelson stars as the out-of-sorts insurance agent also in love with Lou. Bridget Fonda plays the sexually driven mayor's daughter, and Frances Sternhagen joins in as the owner of the town cafe, who seizes the funny bone when she tries to turn a fiddling hoedown into a rap session.

Unjustly not recognized in any of the movie's trailers, Barnard Hughes appears as Dr. Hogue, the practicing physician at Grady Memorial. Lending his dramatic experience as well as his feistiness and spunk, Hughes' presence is a pleasant surprise.

Although the citizens of Grady at first appear to be a bunch of naive and wholesome country folk, it is these same people who end up being the grandeur of Grady. When the movie leaves Grady and shifts to Los Angeles, the audience has second thoughts about the people they just found to be abnormal. Grady is totally oblivious to the outside world, but by the end of the film one begins to wonder if that is really so bad after all.

Caton-Jones takes the characters in "Doc Hollywood" and delivers them each with a simplistic style of humor that leaves the audience laughing out loud.

Cadet receives leadership training skills in Hawaii

By Katie Fitzgerald
General Assignment Writer

A University ROTC cadet says he knows now what it takes to be a leader in the army.

RotC Battalion Commander Ken Sheppard returned to SIUC this fall after spending three weeks in Hawaii this summer in the Cadet Troop Leader Training Program.

"Learning through leadership," Sheppard said, "that's the army." CTLT is designed to provide cadets with leadership experiences through an internship situation.

"They threw me in and didn't hold my hand. I learned what it was like to become an officer, and that was the one thing I wanted from the experience," Sheppard said.

Sheppard filled Lt. Scott Scales' position as platoon leader for a communication unit in Bravo Company 125th Signal Battalion stationed at Schofield barracks in Hawaii.

He supervised 24 soldiers in five different military occupations. He also lead daily physical training, he said.

Sheppard learned to develop leadership skills for subordinates ranging from 18-year-old privates to 20-year-old sergeants, some of whom had extensive knowledge in their area, Sheppard said.

"I got along well with the soldiers. They accepted me, and that's why I got a good report from my superiors," Sheppard said.

It will be two years until Sheppard's peers have the opportunity to fill a leadership position at lieutenant rank, said Captain Bill Hinrichs, SIUC assistant professor of military science. ROTC cadets receive second lieutenant rank upon graduation.

"There are approximately 500 of the 5,000 applicants that get selected for CTLT. Of that number, only 20 go to Hawaii," said Hinrichs.

Prior to his enrollment in senior advanced ROTC, Sheppard spent three years in active army duty, and another two years in the army reserves. This experience has given him an added perspective which will aid in relating to subordinates in future leadership roles, he said.

"As a leader in the Army, you must be more patient with the lives of your subordinates both on and off the job. I was exposed to this and the military justice system," Sheppard said.

At SIUC, Sheppard has been selected as Battalion Commander of about 60 ROTC students.

"He has done well academically, and he is well liked by his peers. He has the skills of management, and he's able to motivate his peers," said Hinrichs.

Sheppard, a senior in administrative justice, said he would like to become an officer in the Military Police Corps during the eight years of military service obligation which follow graduation.

In addition to ROTC Battalion Commander, Sheppard has worked as a Saluki patrolman since July of 1990.

Black business group receives COBA awards

By Teri Carlock
General Assignment Writer

Blacks Interested in Business is the first group to receive both the COBA Cup and the Dean's Award in the College of Business and Administration.

BIB was awarded the COBA Cup for the 1990-91 school year by the COBA Council, which is composed of administration, faculty and 17 student organizations. The COBA Council chose BIB for the award because of the group's dedication to University and community programs.

BIB also was awarded the Dean's Award for the 1990-91 school year, after submitting an application that was reviewed by the dean and his faculty.

Aside from winning these awards, BIB has been recognized for their achievements 15 other times in the past year.

The group is active throughout the school year and is involved in activities such as the COBA basketball tournament, canned food drive, business seminars and workshops and Springfest.

The group also is busy with community programs. The 133 members entertain inmates at penitentiaries in the Southern Illinois area, participate in the Red Cross Blood Drive and are involved in the Big Brother Big Sister Program.

Michael Haywood, the BIB faculty adviser, said the group is open to any minority student, regardless of major. Haywood said the most important aspect of BIB is networking with the 17 other student organizations.

"We like to work as a whole with the University," Haywood said.

Fund raising is top agenda for BIB.

Last spring the group sold T-shirts, designed by art students. Marketing students sold the shirts, the accounting students kept records of the sales and the advertising students did the advertising.

Stephan Toussaint, BIB president, says the group gives him the opportunity to use skills he didn't know he had, such as organizational skills.

Toussaint said the goals for BIB are to maintain and to improve the group's performance.

"We want to be more active campus wide instead of just in COBA," he said.

Haywood said members are helpful in recruiting other students not just from SIUC but from high school as well. Members look at students' GPA, service performance and overall quality of their personality.

"The organization is geared to help develop students' personal, professional and academic skills," he said.

BIB was reestablished in 1989 by a group of students who were concerned about meeting the needs of black students in business.

Police pedal booklets on bicycle safety rules

By Rob Neff
Police Writer

Police are patrolling the streets and sidewalks of Carbondale with added intensity Tuesday through Sept. 2.

They will try to spread knowledge of local and state bicycle safety rules and regulations to both new and returning students.

"We want to educate the new individuals in town as well as the older members of the community," said Art Wright, spokesman for the Carbondale Police Department.

Police said they will especially concentrate on the downtown business district, East Grand Avenue in front of the Recreation Center and the one-way streets in the city.

During the period of the bicycle safety campaign, officers will issue warning tickets to bicyclists violating bicycle traffic laws.

The offenders also will receive a complimentary bicycle safety brochure, although law-abiding cyclists will have to ask for them.

"The brochures will describe basic rules of the road," Wright said. "Anyone can have one, but I don't know that officers will be handing one out to everyone that rides by."

Wright said the program was started out of concern for the safety of bicyclists and pedestrians as well as the number of complaints from motorists and pedestrians about unsafe practices of some cyclists.

Wright said students pedalling around Carbondale can expect to see a lot of the police department's two new mountain bikes during the campaign, mainly because they are more effective at apprehending unsafe cyclists.

"The bicycle patrol will be a big part of the enforcement basically because it's difficult for regular patrol cars to pull over bicyclists," he said. "Police officers on the bikes just have to pull up right next to them and say 'pull over.'"

Bush expected to recognize liberty of Soviet Baltic states

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (UPI) — With a first-hand report on the situation in Moscow from new U.S. Ambassador Robert Strauss, President Bush grappled with the Soviet Union's murky political future Tuesday and edged toward recognition of the Baltic states.

Bush summoned Strauss and a group of senior advisers to his seaside home to review the events that have left the Soviet Union threatened with disintegration and the immediate implications for U.S. policy.

As described by Strauss, it was a relaxed meeting held in the midst of crisis, with the United States resigned to await, rather than influence, its outcome.

The hour-long session produced no major announcements, but indications were that Bush, following the lead of other countries, is on the verge of recognizing Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia as independent states.

"My own judgment is that the president will probably have something significant to say on that subject at the end of the week," he said, "maybe on Friday."

That timetable, consistent with Bush's own statement Monday that he was "very, very close" to a formal recognition of Baltic independence, appeared based on several factors.

First, Bush intimated Monday that his decision could be triggered by talks he is to hold Wednesday night and Thursday with British Prime Minister John Major, which also are to center on whether the revolutionary turn to democracy in the Soviet Union warrants accelerated or increased economic aid.

Second, an administration official said the Soviet Parliament may give enough indication of future political direction by Friday to answer some of the questions Bush has cited in withholding recognition of the Baltics.

"Our feeling is that by Friday, the Supreme Soviet will have made certain decisions on personnel and the fate of the union that will give us a clearer conception of where things are headed," said one administration official.

A Friday announcement could be assured by — but does not depend on — "a clear decision by the Soviet government" to grant the Baltics their freedom, he added. U.S. officials expect movement on the issue this week within the Supreme Soviet.

The United States has never recognized the Baltics, which were forcibly annexed in 1940, as legally incorporated parts of the Soviet Union. Bush, however, has shied away from the symbolic gesture of formal recognition to avoid undermining Gorbachev's effort to hold the Soviet Union together at least long enough to develop procedures for an orderly breakup.

Strauss, who arrived to take up his post in Moscow on the very day last week's Kremlin putsch failed, offered an optimistic view of the fragile Kremlin power-sharing arrangement between Gorbachev and Russian Republic President Boris Yeltsin.

Despite signs the collapse of communism could spiral out of control as one republic after another declares its freedom from Moscow, Strauss said the two former rivals — Gorbachev and Yeltsin — have forged "a working relationship that will be good for them and good for the country."

Police Blotter

Michael Jocil, 18, of 121 Wright I, was arrested at 10:33 a.m. Aug. 26 for unlawful possession of a stolen vehicle and unlawful possession of license plates.

University Police say they found a silver Honda Prelude in lot 58A at 2:10 a.m. Monday. The serial number revealed it had been reported stolen in Chicago.

At 10:33 a.m., police say Jocil and Delondon C. Hawthorne, 18, of 127 Wright I, drove away.

The two were stopped by police. Hawthorne was arrested on warrants in Jackson County for traffic violations.

Wilbur H. Pick, 77, of 650 E. Grand, told Carbondale police someone broke glass in the east door of Pick's Liquors at 2 a.m. Aug. 27.

The loss is estimated at $400.

Umpire recovering from gunshot vows return to big leagues

DALLAS (UPI) — American League umpire Steve Palermo, shot in the back two months ago breaking up a robbery attempt, vowed Monday to one day return to his job.

"I will walk again and I will umpire again," said Palermo, fighting back tears during his first public appearance since entering the Dallas Rehabilitation Institute. "You can make book on that."

Palermo put braces on both legs, grabbed two metal crutches and slowly walked on his own about 150 feet across the institute's physical therapy room.

"When I came in here, I could only wiggle two toes on my right foot," he said. "I'll let you judge how much progress I've made."

His progress has come after weeks of hard work.

"This isn't a piece of cake," he said. "It's a job. But I'm one of the lucky ones. People come in here a lot worse off than I am and a lot of people shock the experts by the progress they make."

Palermo, former Southern Methodist football player Terrace Mann and restaurant owner Corky Campisi came to the rescue of two waitresses who were accosted by three men outside Campisi's establishment in the early morning of July 3. The men fled but fired several shots — one hitting Mann in the shoulder and another striking Palermo in the back.

Although Palermo's spinal cord was not struck by the bullet, he suffered damage to nerves leading from the spinal cord.

"I am very pleased to give a favorable update regarding Mr. Palermo's progress," said Dr. John Milani, director of the institute's spinal cord unit. "He has progressed to the point where he can now utilize a short leg brace on his right leg in order to stabilize his ankle and a long brace on his left leg to provide support at the knee.

"It is my best anticipation that the amount of bracing will gradually decrease over the next several weeks as he continues to gain increased muscle power in his legs. It is a reasonable expectation that he will make slow additional gains for an extended period of time involving several months."

Milani said he could not put a time frame on Palermo's ultimate recovery nor to what he extent he would regain full use of his legs.

Palermo answered questions for about 30 minutes before demonstrating his walking skills. As the visit with reporters continued, it took more and more of an emotional toll. After getting back into his wheelchair and leaving the room, he burst into tears.

excess of 125 mph, his deliveries slowed to the 80 mph range at the end.

Krajicek, ranked 32nd in the world, had his moment in the fourth set, breaking serve in the 11th game when Lendl netted a forehand.

To that point, Lendl had broken serve only twice, both times in the third set. He lost the first two points of the 12th game, and Krajicek gained double match point with an ace.

Lendl, though, saved both with service returns and completed the break with a forehand volley and a netted forehand by Krajicek. Although the match was more than 3 hours old, Lendl trotted to his chair with a strong stride following the break.

An ace gave Krajicek a 4-2 lead in the tie-break, but he followed with a double-fault and double-faulted again at 5-5, handing Lendl set point.

"I kept saying last week I was hitting the ball well in practice, and it was a matter of when I would hit well in matches," Lendl said.

No. 9 Jana Novotna and No. 15 Helena Sukova were extended to three sets in their opening matches. Novotna defeated Ann Grossman 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, and Sukova beat Jessica Emmons 6-0, 4-6, 6-2.

Houston waives reserve guard

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets Tuesday waived guard Kennard Winchester, one of five Division III players to make the NBA.

General Manager Steve Patterson said Winchester accepted a non-guaranteed qualifying offer before being waived.

Winchester averaged 3.7 points and 1.0 rebounds in 64 games last season.

winner, including four starters from a team that was 9-0 in league play and 28-5 overall in 1990. The Panthers also represented the Gateway in the Women's Invitational Volleyball Championship in Knoxville, Tenn., winning one of four matches.

SMSU, who defeated the Panthers in the 1990 Gateway Tournament and earned a spot in the NCAA championship, also returns four starters.

The Lady Bears posted a 24-8 overall mark in 1990 and fell to Hawaii in the NCAA tourney.

Kern said the poll is a pretty accurate indicator of how the teams will finish in the conference.

"There will be some shuffling, of course," Kern said. "It will depend on how teams are doing when the conference games roll around."

it just worked out that way. It was convenient it spread out that way."

Each player named to the team was among 1990 league statistical leaders.

The selection is an indicator our team is getting recognition, said Sonya Locke, SIUC head coach.

"Dana put together some good statistics last season and everyone has seen her play," she said. "She is a good player. She deserves this kind of recognition."

Olden, from Muncie, Ind., ranked third in the Gateway Conference in hitting percentage (.296) and kill average (4.09) and fifth in block average (1.23).

She also set career marks 1990, ranking No. 2 on SIUC's all-time list in kills (454) and No. 3 for kill attempts (1,032). She led the team in total blocks with 137.

"Dana is one of the most physically gifted players SIUC has ever seen," Locke said. "As an attacker, she has elevated her game each season. As a blocker, she is second to none."

"Dana has taken all the right steps to develop into a complete player. I don't know if there will be a more dominant competitor in the Gateway this season."

In 1990, Olden was selected for the second team All-Gateway, the Ball State Tournament All-Tourney Team and MVP at the Northern Illinois Invitational.

"We think following this season she will be a first-team all-conference player," Locke said.
