Salukis title-game bound

12,000 watch Dogs win again in rain

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

In the end, it was Saluki cornerback Terry Taylor's actions that told the Nevada-Reno players to "Go back West young men, go back West."

The All-American in Taylor surfaced late in the Salukis' 23-7 I-AA semifinal win over the Wolf Pack Saturday at McAndrew Stadium. Taylor intercepted two passes within 15 seconds, scored one touchdown to stretch a 9-7 Saluki lead to 16-7 and set up a 2-yard plunge by tailback Derrick Taylor to clinch the trip to Charleston, S.C., for the I-AA championship game.

In the championship game, the Salukis will face Western Carolina, which downed Furman 14-7 in the other semifinal game.

In almost the same near-freezing, rainy and windy weather conditions as in the I-AA quarterfinal win over Indiana State Dec. 3, 12,000 fans saw the Saluki defense rise to the occasion as it has done all season during the squad's chase for the I-AA title.

"Champions or great players can play under any conditions," Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey said.

But a balanced offense was the key in Saturday's game, Dempsey said.

"If you're strictly a running team, you can't become a passing team overnight," Dempsey said. "We can pass, we can run. We couldn't have beat them if we just ran."

The Salukis rushed for 76 yards and passed for 189 yards, including three completions for 118 yards.

Nevada-Reno's potent offense was held to just 128 total offensive yards on 59 offensive plays. The Wolf Pack's rushing tandem of Otto Kelly and Anthony Corley, which has combined to run for 2,547 yards this season, could manage just 88 yards rushing against the Saluki defense that yielded only eight first downs, two in the first half.

Nevada-Reno Coach Chris Ault called the Saluki defense "the best we've faced all year." Wolf Pack quarterback Eric Beavers, six of 19 for 39 yards, would probably agree.

Beavers was left with an impression of the Saluki secondary that he probably won't soon forget. On five consecutive passes, Beavers threw four interceptions and one incompletion during a five-minute stretch in the middle of the fourth quarter that sealed the Wolf Pack fate.

Under the Eye

...of CBS-TV (left) and before the eyes of 12,000 wet but happy spectators at McAndrew Stadium, quarterback Rick Johnson (16) and fullback Corky Field (44) and their Saluki teammates turned back the Nevada-Reno Wolfpack and set off the post-game victory signs (below) and shouts of "Carolina, here we come!"

It was another instant replay; Dogs were TV stars this time

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

It was 34 degrees and wet, and the scoreboard at McAndrew Stadium showed the Salukis on top 23-7. Was it déjà vu?

The weather and the final score were the same as last week's second-round playoff game. SIU-C was a winner once again, this time over Nevada-Reno. The goalposts came down once again. But now the Salukis had advanced to the I-AA championship game in Charleston, S.C.

Saluki fans arrived carrying more than 50 banners, anticipating that the "How 'bout them dogs" message was being transmitted across the nation by CBS.

Rain drenched the Saluki fans from the opening kickoff, but they seemed oblivious to the weather, knowing that the only thing standing in their way to the championship game was this team from Nevada.

As usual, fans watched the last home game of the season from every angle possible, some outside the stadium. Tarps held up by wooden posts kept a few fans dry near the north parking garage. "The hill" was a muddy seat for a few stubborn fans and the fence was the closest others came without paying $2 for a ticket.

With the exception of being televised, it was the same as practically every Saluki home game.

The Saluki Shakers and the Marching Salukis, with a few slipping on the saturated artificial turf, entertained at halftime as the rain fell steadily. Meanwhile, banners drafted by die-hard fans looking to be spotted by TV cameras were carried around the field stating that the Salukis and CBS were No. 1. "Dawg Power" and "Send Money, Mom, We're headed for Carolina" were signs of the times.

But when the Saluki lead dwindled to 9-7, fans discarded their umbrellas to raise their hands, chanting "Defense." Wet and a bit restless, fans were given new life late in the fourth quarter when Coach Rey Dempsey, wearing a bright orange cap, and a few Saluki players turned to the stands and urged the fans on.

What followed was what SIU-C fans had been waiting for: an interception, the first Saluki touchdown and a victory.

They had the best reason all season to tear down the goal posts. This time, as many left the stadium with the posts on their shoulders, they not only had the Strip, they had "Carolina on their minds."

CIPS energy saving proposal won't help city, Tuxhorn claims

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

Few friends of Central Illinois Public Service Co. were among the about 50 people who turned out for a public hearing on the utility's comprehensive energy conservation plan.

The Illinois Commerce Commission hearing at the City Council Chambers was one in a series of meetings on nine state-regulated utilities attempts to comply with a Jan. 6 ICC mandate ordering the companies to devise conservation programs.

The CIPS conservation proposal has undergone two revisions, and if the tenor of Thursday's meeting is any indication, more work is needed on the plan.

"The CIPS plan looks no better than if a high school science class had taken two days for a project," City Councilman Keith Tuxhorn told a three-member hearing panel composed of ICC hearing examiner John Cassidy and staff members Paul Galen and David Farrell.

The CIPS plan is "without progressive or creative thought," Tuxhorn, one of 13 people who gave testimony, said. He said a large part of CIPS's plan is targeted to the cities of Quincy and Olney, where people are relatively unaware of the conservation programs, and away from Carbondale, where people are knowledgeable about energy conservation.

Tuxhorn suggested that CIPS hopes that its offerings will go unused so it will be able to claim that utility-sponsored conservation measures are a waste of money.

The CIPS plan is made up of nine programs costing a total of over $407,000. CIPS's plan includes energy education workshops, distribution of weatherization kits, a rebate program for purchasers of energy efficient heat pumps and low-cost small business energy audits.

George Everingham, director of the Egyptian Area Agency on Aging, said that the CIPS plan is "a small band-aid applied to a gaping wound."

Everingham said that many elderly are faced with a choice between eating and keeping warm, and the plan is "woefully inadequate" to meet their needs.

He said a study has been done showing that one-third of the money granted for the agency's food and nutrition programs will be consumed by rising energy costs by the end of the decade.

John Stewardson, of the Western Egyptian Economic Opportunity Council, which has distributed some conservation kits to the elderly in the area, said often the kits go unused because those receiving them are unable to use them because of physical disabilities or lack of information about their use.

Chris Robertson, who has been working as an independent consultant for some of the interveners in the hearings, said that there are three principal groups not receiving conservation: the elderly, the poor and renters.

Robertson said the premise behind the ICC's original order was that conservation was a cheaper means to produce energy than to buy gas from interstate pipelines or build new generating plants.

CIPS could invest between $400 million and $800 million in residential conservation and still save over what they would have to spend on purchasing new, more expensive, energy, Robertson said.

Israel won't assure Arafat passage

By The Associated Press

Israel will not guarantee PLO leader Yasser Arafat safe passage out of Lebanon, but it will not "declare a war" on those who evacuate the besieged Palestinian leader, an Israeli official said Sunday.

Arafat claims Israeli gunboats are blocking the departure of his 4,000 loyalists from the northern Lebanese port city of Tripoli, which is endangered by the bloody rebellion within the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Greece has offered ships to evacuate Arafat's troops. But on Friday, government spokesman Dimitri Maroudas said Greece had requested that the 5,800-man multinational force in Lebanon — which includes troops from Britain, France, Italy and the United States — guarantee the safety of the evacuation.

Drug raises questions about FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee says the Food and Drug Administration's regulation of Zomax, a painkiller withdrawn from the market because of severe allergic reactions, shows the agency isn't protecting the public from the dangers of new drugs.

A report released Sunday by the House Government Operations Committee said the FDA has received about 2,200 reports of allergic reactions associated with Zomax, 503 of which it classified as life-threatening.

The FDA believes it has sufficient information to attribute 14 or 15 deaths to such reactions, the committee said.

Pope attends Lutheran service

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II, in a historic visit to a Lutheran church, said Sunday that despite bitter past differences between Roman Catholics and Lutherans "we desire unity, we work for unity."

"The gift of this encounter moves me deeply," the pope said during the first visit by a Roman Catholic pontiff to a Protestant church in his own diocese.

It also was the first time a pope attended Lutheran service. The church was founded on the precepts of Martin Luther, the excommunicated German priest who led the Protestant Reformation that split the church 462 years ago.

Trips offered to championship game

Saluki football fans wanting to go to the Division I-AA championship game Saturday between the Salukis and Western Carolina at Charleston, S.C., may reserve transportation and game tickets through one of two available packages.

The Student Programming Council will sponsor a bus trip to Charleston that will leave Friday evening, according to Mindy Duggan of SPC.

The package will cost $70 and will include game tickets. Duggan said that SPC has reserved two busses and will accept 94 reservations. If more people show interest in making the trip, SPC will attempt to add more busses, she said.

Reservations may be made at the SPC office on the third floor of the Student Center.

B&A Travel is sponsoring a package costing $195 which will include air transportation to depart Carbondale at 8 a.m. Saturday, and will return immediately following the game.

The travel package will include game ticket and bus service while in Charleston.

Bill Coracy of B&A Travel said there are 300 spots available for the trip. "If we go over that, we'll go looking for more airplanes," he said.

Coracy said that 110 people had paid reservations by Sunday afternoon.

Survey: Faculty takes critical view

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

Several SIU-C faculty, responding to a questionnaire from the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee, were "highly critical" of the way the administration handles many issues facing faculty, according to Lawrence Dennis, committee chairman and a professor in education leadership.

From the faculty and administrative salary distribution this year to faculty involvement in major policy decisions, Dennis said it was "quite apparent" that faculty are dissatisfied.

Dennis said that about 800 faculty, or more than 50 percent, responded to the questionnaire sent out early last month. The Faculty Senate will discuss the response at its meeting at 1 p.m. Tuesday in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

The senate will also address a report from the same committee dealing with a procedure that was followed in the recent promotion of senate President Herbert Donow to professor.

In November, a study was ordered by the senate to discuss allegations that Donow, an English professor, received special treatment from University administrators after both the English Department and the College of Liberal Arts had recommended against his promotion.

President Albert Somit and John Guyon, vice president of academic affairs, were present in a 45-minute executive session to discuss the issue with the senate. The allegations were made by senate member John Gregory, a mathematics professor.

The questionnaire, sent to every college on campus, showed that the majority of faculty feel that upper level administrators received high salary increases, and given the availability of funds, many felt the salary distribution had a "harmful effect" on the University.

It also showed that most faculty felt their views on major policy decisions "were solicited but largely ignored," by the administration. Most faculty also said that the senate, as a governance structure, has had little effect on the operation of Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's office, which has been in its present form for the last four years.

In view of budget restraints, most faculty said institutional support for teaching and research is too low, which has made both activities more difficult. The questionnaire showed that faculty morale has "decreased noticeably" over the past three or four years, too.

However, the opinion varied on whether the curricular emphasis at SIU-C was moving in a right, wrong or unchanged direction.

A resolution opposing the new check-out system at Morris Library will also be addressed. The resolution asks that Guyon immediately release funds for additional student workers to check out books.

The senate will also address a study of this year's salary increases and how they were distributed by each college.

More lawyer fees on council agenda

Another $944 will go toward settling attorneys fees concerning land acquisition for the downtown conference center if the City Council approves a spending authorization that will come before it Monday night.

The settlement concerns a suit that was filed in opposition to the city's offering price for a parcel of land needed for the conference center.

Another $944 will go toward William Schwartz, of Hunter and Schwartz, who represented Violet Mae Yehling in suits filed on behalf of Robert Covone and Phoenix Cycles, which said the city's offering price for land needed for the project in the 300 block of South Illinois Avenue was too low.

The council will also hold a public hearing on its offer to sell $100,000 of industrial revenue bonds on behalf of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce. They will vote on the bond sale in a special formal session following the regularly scheduled informal session.

The vote was originally scheduled for Dec. 19, but the date was moved up in order to avoid uncertainty surrounding a U.S. House resolution that would limit the amount of federal tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds municipalities could issue.

If the bill becomes law, city's would be limited to $75 per capita population in how much they could issue in the bonds. The law would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1984.

Another in a series of closed-door, executive sessions is also scheduled for the meeting.

The council will discuss pending litigation against the city and land acquisition for the conference center in its second special executive session in as many weeks.

NAACP parking tickets dismissed

Six parking tickets, issued while the Carbondale chapter of the NAACP was meeting Wednesday about Carbondale police harassment of blacks, were dismissed Friday by City Manager William Dixon.

According to City Clerk Janet Vaught, Dixon dismissed the tickets because the no parking signs outside the NAACP's building at 207 N. Marion St. were not posted well.

Al Ross, president of the Carbondale chapter, said

Thursday the ticketing was another example of police pettiness and harassment.

While pleased with city hall's decision to drop the tickets, he said Friday that the issue of police harassment remains and will be pursued.

Concerning the dismissal of the tickets, Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said, "I don't argue with decisions that are made at the city manager's office."

The NAACP and several Carbondale black residents have filed charges with the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners alleging abuse and harassment by certain police officers.

Four off-duty police officers attended the meeting. Ross said their presence was also meant as an act of intimidation.

The police and fire board will meet at 4 p.m. Wednesday to discuss the charges.

Walesa vows Solidarity will live

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Lech Walesa vowed Sunday that Solidarity will not be crushed, and appealed to Poland's Communist authorities to let the labor movement work with the government to help solve Poland's problems.

"He who once became aware of the power of Solidarity and who breathed the air of freedom will not be crushed," Walesa said in his Nobel Peace Prize lecture — read on his behalf by close associate Bogdan Cywinski.

Dialogue between the government and Solidarity "is possible, and we have the right to it," said Walesa, who remained in Poland for fear authorities would not allow him to return if he left to accept his prize. He also said he must not leave the country so long as other activists remain in jail.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee awarded the Peace Prize, which carries a $190,000 stipend, to Walesa for his work in leading Solidarity — once the only independent labor union in the Soviet bloc, and now outlawed.

Meese eats words

WHILE THOUSANDS of Americans are lining up at soup kitchens across the nation, top Reagan aide Edwin Meese is eating his words.

His statement that there is no "authoritative evidence" that people are hungry in America and some people who line up at soup kitchens do it "because the food is free and that's easier than paying for it" casts serious doubts about the sensitivity of the Reagan administration to the poor.

Who is he trying to kid? From the streets of New York City where shopping-bag women call home a cardboard box or a city sewer, to the desert southwest where Native Americans struggle to scratch out a meager existence, hunger is real. To say that hunger does not exist is just the uninformed speculation of an elitist administrator who is blind to the suffering of those he is supposed to be serving.

THERE IS NO "authoritative evidence" — by that he means reports from his own administration, we suppose — because the people starving in our society are on the outside. They don't fill out tax forms stating their income; they don't answer the census every 10 years; and they don't draw Social Security. They are victims of a throwaway society who don't have a place in the statistics because we choose not to believe they are there.

Meese does not believe they are there. He has lumped the poor in America together and labeled them lazy, unwilling to pull themselves above the poverty level simply because handouts are easier to obtain than self-sufficiency.

IF MEESE needs authoritative evidence, he should spend Christmas Day on the Levee in Carbondale or on Madison Street in Chicago. The evidence walks without hope from one mission to another, never sure of their next meal or their shelter for the night.

If, after such an experience, Meese still stands behind his statement, then all we can say is "Marie Antoinette, move over."

His art's nothing but litter

I am responding to the beautiful picture of Dan Marter and his final project in the Dec. 6 DE. Congratulations Dan, you finally hit the big time.

I watched you set up some of your display last Monday and wondered what you were doing. I got my answer Tuesday and Wednesday when I passed the display "leftovers." You were showing us a prime example of ignorant people leaving their garbage around campus for others to admire.

Dan, are you trying to keep the tree warm with copper foil?

Did a friendly squirrel die where you left the tombstone? Are you decorating all the trees with hanging ornaments for Christmas? Is the broken chair for someone with sore feet?

If the answer to all these questions is yes, I apologize. But since I am a logical person, I think we finally caught someone red-handed committing the illegal act of littering. My verdict is to give you an "F" for fine. The fine for littering is $500 — Troy A Cecchi, Sophomore, Business and Administration.

Next time we see Rudolph, it will be Bambi burgers

We were pleased to see your coverage of Rudolph's rooftop rendezvous in the Dec. 8 D.E., but we think there was some misleading information presented.

The story was presented as an act of deviancy. It was not, Abbott Hall, Third Floor (and we do claim the credit), did all mankind good by putting Rudolph where he belongs, on a rooftop.

Maintenance did not rescue Rudolph, they deer-napped him. And now, Shelly Shaker is hoarding glory while keeping Rudolph out of the public eye.

Also, there was no mention in the story of a bribe that was delivered to Abbott Hall the night of Rudolph's flight. It was a note, apparently from Santa Claus, with three tasty donuts on it. It read, in essence, that Santa was mad.

Now, we know Santa does not get mad. Someone impersonated Santa in an attempt to steal Rudolph from his protectors. And the note was rather threatening, too.

This is not the spirit of Christmas and we are appalled at the DE's inadequate coverage. If we ever come across that deer again, it's Bambi burgers! — Doug Mayfield, Junior, Agricultural Education and 12 others.

Give Christmas cards, not tickets

I would like to comment on the efficiency of SIU and the City of Carbondale parking ticket givers. I have to admit, you guys are very efficient. You're always there in rain, sleet, or snow, just like the mailman.

Maybe you receive admiration from your co-workers and your employees. However, I do not share that admiration. I don't see how you can possibly keep friends, if you have any at all.

I saw something on the news the other day about a small town in our area that doesn't give parking tickets during the month of December as a Christmas gift. Instead of giving you a ticket, they give you a courtesy card that says, "Merry Christmas." Do you think Carbondale would ever do this? No way. They make too much money. Where is your Christmas spirit? Don't you guys have a heart?

Maybe, someday, you ticket givers will realize all the hostility, anger, inconvenience and frustration you have caused in all of us ticket receivers. Not

Curious reaction to 'A Clockwork Orange'

THE OTHER NIGHT at the Student Center's showing of "A Clockwork Orange" a curious and disturbing thing happened — the audience laughed.

Usually, laughter during a movie is not disturbing, but this is not a typical movie. For those who haven't seen it, "A Clockwork Orange" is a grim look at the not-so-distant future in an England turned decadent, where the crime rate has risen dramatically and teenage gangs terrorize the streets at night.

Although some of the picture is intentionally humorous (and some has turned funny over the 10 years since Stanley Kubrick made it), there's still not much to laugh at.

THE BEGINNING of the movie follows one gang led by a boy named Alex as the four gang members perform random acts of "ultraviolence" on whoever catches Alex's fancy. They come across a drunken old man singing in an alley and they bludgeon him with canes.

They discover a rival gang raping a young girl and a bloody

Rod Stone
Student
Editor-in-Chief

fight ensues in which the rival gang members are all beaten senseless.

They break into a middle-aged couple's home, beat the husband and force him to watch while his wife is raped. Throughout these scenes of violence — most of it against women — a good part of the audience laughed. I'm ashamed to admit it, but it was mostly the men in the audience laughing.

TRUE, THESE SCENES have a surreal atmosphere, the settings and the people are a little off-kilter, but still they are not high comedy.

When "A Clockwork Orange," which is based on a novel of the same name by Anthony Burgess, came out in 1973, it was given an X rating. The things people saw on the screen shocked and disturbed them. The movie was trying to make a serious point about the future of society.

With 1984 fast approaching, another novel (by George Orwell) about society's future is getting a lot of media attention. The media have been judging how close Orwell came in his "predictions." Perhaps we should be looking at "A Clockwork Orange" in the same way.

IN THE '70s reported crime rose dramatically. Between 1975 and 1983, the population in Illinois prisons doubled. People are forming anti-crime groups to fight crime because they're afraid to walk the streets at night. It seems to me that Burgess was a lot more accurate in his predictions than Orwell.

But the audience Friday night preferred to laugh — especially at the scenes in which the gang committed acts of "the old ultraviolence" — and I suppose they can't be blamed. I'd much prefer to laugh the whole thing off, too. But burying our heads in the sand is not the answer.

Their laughter made me think about an issue that's been getting a lot of attention lately: the effect movie violence against women has on women in real life.

IF PEOPLE CAN laugh at rape on the screen, then they are probably unsympathetic in real life, too. We have become desensitized to rape and other violent crimes and I think movies are at least partially to blame for this.

Hollywood portrays women as objects for men to use as their needs dictate and then discard. Because of the movies, too many men don't take rape seriously. Too many think, "oh, she loved it" or "she wanted it." These are attitudes which the movies and television have helped to proliferate. Too often, a woman is raped and then she admits that she wanted it all along or some b.s. like that (a la Luke and Laura on "General Hospital" a couple of years ago).

AN AUDIENCE like Friday night's that laughs as a woman is raped on the screen is not that different from a similar audience in a New Bedford, Massachusetts bar that watched and cheered as a woman was repeatedly raped on a pool table.

In "A Clockwork Orange," after Alex is caught and put in prison, he enters a rehabilitation program, during which he's forced to watch acts of violence on the screen. At first he laughs and thinks the scenes are funny, but soon he's conditioned through the use of drugs so that the scenes make him physically sick.

A NURSE EXPLAINS to him that they are trying to make him see violence as normal people do.

She says to him, "Healthy people react to hateful things with fear and nausea."

Ha Ha Ha.

Kottke, Goodman put on show with skill, variety of talents

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

The acoustic quality in Shryock Auditorium was utilized to its fullest Friday night by the guitar-picking brilliance of Leo Kottke and the humor put into lyrical verse by Steve Goodman.

The enthusiasm of Saluki football was also brought to Shryock as an NCAA referee flipped a coin to decide which of the two would play first. And with the flip, Kottke kicked off the show. Both musicians were equally entertaining but in very different respects.

Kottke kept the audience in awe with his unique slide guitar technique on a 28-inch cutaway guitar, and his manipulation of a 12-string acoustic guitar.

Kottke demonstrated that the musician makes the instrument and not the other way around as he played slide on the 25-year-old cutaway (complete with taped up back) with the cut-off top of a pop bottle.

Many of the songs he played are not yet recorded and remain untitled, he said in an interview after the show. He also plays spontaneously. "I never know what I'm going to play," he said, which is one reflection of the musician's laid-back approach to progressive solo guitar.

Although Kottke had a story to tell before almost everything he played, he said he does not sit down with "inspiration from an experience to write a piece of music."

"I find when I've finished a tune, its relation to where it seems to have come from in the material world pops up," he said.

In addition to being asked to be the "guy who does the Chuck Wagon commercials," Kottke has just finished composing the musical score for a movie entitled "Shyster," which surprisingly enough, he hopes won't be released.

"It's not affecting people the way it affected me and the director," he said. "The director showed it to a bunch of people in L.A. and they were very angry when it was over."

The movie is about a 400-pound idiot, Kottke said, who attaches himself to a probationer with whom he develops a relationship. It stars a sanitation worker who decided he wanted to be in show business. "We did abuse him a little," Kottke admitted.

Leo Kottke and Steve Goodman performed folk music favorites and some new tunes for an appreciative Shryock crowd.

Kottke is now recording at a friend's house in preparation of an instrumental, hopefully entirely improvised album. His contract is now fulfilled at Chrysalis Records and he said he'll probably go back to Capitol Records. But as of now, he is not signed with anybody.

"I'm very excited about what I've been recording, but when it will be a record, I don't know."

After a thoroughly enjoyable hour of virtuous guitar playing by Kottke, Goodman took the stage, after a filmed introduction by Martin Mull.

Goodman kept the audience chuckling with his humor in songs like "How Much Tequila Did I Drink Last Night," "Old Smoothies," which he described as sequenced septuagenarians, and his statement on nuclear radiation, "Watching Joey Glow."

He struck close to the hearts of all Cub fans in the audience with a Chicago favorite, "Dyin' Cub Fan's Last Request," in which he sings of the ivy-covered burial ground (Wrigley Field) and the Cubs being the doormat of the National League.

He continued to entertain the crowd of about 800 with more favorites and a few new tunes: "Darlin, Darlin," "City of New Orleans," "Talk Backwards" and his "Ode to Elvis Imitators."

Both performers were enthused about the receptive crowd, enough for both to appear in an "overtime" encore of skillful improvisation.

Goodman, who has been suffering from a chronic illness for 15 years, said he was glad to be able to make up his canceled performance as fast as possible.

"It was good of the school to let me play on Leo's show," the genuine and sincere performer said after the show.

"It's embarrassing when that happens, and that can't be helped. It's certainly not foreseeable or avoidable, I guess. But for the most part I've been very very lucky," he said. He's only missed four performances in 15 years, two this fall and two in the summer of '82.

Goodman said he hopes to be working on an album with John Prine soon.

"He's got a bunch of songs we're going to start recording soon," Goodman said, then added, "He's elusive, but he's a genius."

Goodman will be play the Earl of Old Town in Chicago on New Years Eve — the place where he got started in the music business. Among the diverse places he's played, from school gymnasiums to 20,000 capacity arenas, he doesn't have any favorites.

"My favorite place to play is the next place I play. Don't undersell anyone who's kind enough to hire you," Goodman said.

Music students perform "The Boar's Head Song" during the annual Madrigal Dinner.

Singers set 'real' Yule spirit

Madrigal dinner a delight

By Lisa Nichols
Staff Writer

The Christmas Spirit of "Merrie Olde England" was brought back to life in the ballrooms of the Student Center during the 7th Annual Madrigal Dinner Concert held Wednesday through Saturday evenings.

More than 1,600 people enjoyed the festive entertainment over the four nights of the sold-out event.

Madrigals are songs written for several voice parts whose combination proves to be melodically and rhythmically interesting. They are sung without musical accompaniment, and were originally sung spontaneously.

Madrigals were finally captured in writing during the late 16th and early 17th centuries. Madrigal singing continues to flourish in England. The Madrigal Society, founded in 1741, still meets regularly in London's Carpenter Hall.

Decorated with colorful banners bearing various coats of arms, the ballrooms, dimly lit with candelabras and the lights which twinkled from simply decorated fir trees, set the scene for diners to celebrate the Christmas season the way it had been celebrated in the great dining halls of Olde England.

The meal began with the traditional hot wassail cup of cider. Wassail was the old Anglo-Saxon drinking pledge which means "be in good health." Other traditional dishes were served, including old-herb bread, roast sirloin of beef and fruit pudding with eggnog sauce.

The king and queen and their court were seated on a platform overlooking the dining hall. Another platform was positioned near the dining tables. On this platform various entertainers performed during

USO BOOK CO-OP

The Undergraduate Student Organizations' Book Co-op is a beneficial program provided by your student government. This service enables students to turn in textbooks and set the price for the books that they desire. YES! NO more receiving 50% of what you paid for a textbook.

The Co-op process is easy to do, and takes only a few minutes. Books are collected in the Student Center and a simple contract including book information and set price, is signed between USO and the student.

Textbooks are then sold to students by the Undergraduate Student Organization, and money from the books is then distributed to students.

You too could benefit from the Undergraduate Student Organization Book Co-op Service.

Performance refines opera

By Liz Myers
Staff Writer

Five charming excerpts from some very famous operas and musicals were presented in Quigley Hall Auditorium Friday.

Just in time for the holidays, participants of an opera-musical workshop and the Majorie Lawrence Opera Theater, the opera section of the SIU-C School of Music, collaborated to bring several full-staged, fully costumed and fully delightful melodies to an appreciative full-house audience of opera fans.

"The Contemporary Scene," coordinated by School of Music faculty member Michael Blum, was a mixture of musical treats that included defined voices, dancing and flashy costumes.

Highlights of the show included a comically updated rendition of Mozart's "The Magic Flute." This imaginative piece, featuring the skillful voice of James Scott Sikin, who portrayed Popagano, a pet store owner, searching for his lost love in the Carbondale mall.

Some fancy footwork was demonstrated in the selection, "Celebration," starring Douglas R. Hawkins and Lisa G. Lang, as the two singers added a touch of Broadway to the presentation.

Emotions ran high in the melancholy version of "She Loves Me," by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, which was a tale of two pen pal lovers that finally meet and decide that they hate each other.

In this free presentation, dedicated to the late Mel Seiner of the School of Music undergraduates, graduates and even professors took part in a very different and enjoyable type of entertainment for the music lovers of Carbondale.

the traditional meal.

Jugglers, fencers, a jester and a magician, all dressed in Olde English costumes, amused the audience with their cheery antics. Guitar, trumpet and harpsichord music resounded through the background, adding a dignified formality to the event.

After the meal, the madrigal singing began with students from the School of Music, also dressed in costumes of olde, blending their voices beautifully to such traditional carols as "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" and "Silent Night." Less well-known carols were performed as well.

With so much of the Christmas season turned into commercialism, it was a pleasant change to enjoy one event which has remained unspoiled. Relying only upon the tradition of feasting and merrymaking, the 7th Annual Madrigal Concert gave a festive performance which permeated the Christmas spirit.

Convention to test United Miners' will on contracts

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Mine Workers' resolve to fight the tide of concessionary contracts will be tested under its new president at the union's 49th constitutional convention beginning Monday.

The five-day meeting is expected to draw more than 1,400 delegates, representing about 160,000 miners — one third of them now laid off — and an additional 80,000 pensioners.

The convention may endorse former Vice President Walter Mondale for president.

UMW leaders are stressing solidarity as miners look toward negotiating a new contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association next year. The current contract expires Sept. 30, 1984.

Young Amy is battling leukemia, as friends work for transplant

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

When Mary Dunlop phoned her mother Alma Taylor in Carbondale four months ago to tell her that her 16-month-old granddaughter Amy had developed a nagging earache, Mrs. Taylor told her to take Amy to the doctor for a checkup. A few days later Mary Dunlop phoned her mother again. Amy did not have an earache — she had acute leukemia.

"The sad part of it is, she has the adult type. The children's form of leukemia is easier to treat," said Cindy Jenkins, a friend of the Taylors and an employee at the Bank of Carbondale. Jenkins and her sister Kathy Strom have begun a fund to raise the $100,000 needed to give Amy a bone marrow transplant.

Amy is undergoing chemotherapy at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. She is in remission due to the treatment, but doctors are not sure how long this will last, said Jenkins.

"Chemotherapy will stunt the growth for a while but it won't stop it," explained Jenkins.

Jenkins has had personal experience with leukemia. Her mother, a former SIU-C employee, died while on chemotherapy.

Neighbors help build special room

LEMONT (AP) — The sides and roof are built, the windows are on and the drywall is partially up in the addition to Mike Heinz's home.

Heinz, who was paralyzed after a swimming accident, is unable to use his arms or legs. Friends and neighbors donated their time and money to build a specially equipped room for Heinz, who often helped his neighbors in this western suburb.

On Sunday, one person was working on the drywall, but Linda Heinz said that between 40 and 60 people came by Saturday to help build the room.

"It has a bathroom, and there's going to be a roll-in shower, a handicapped sink and an area big enough where Mike can use the sip and puff wheelchair, which is pretty big," Mrs. Heinz said.

All the appliances haven't arrived yet, she said, which is slowing the process.

The money for the room was raised by the Lions Club and an account set up at the Lemont Bank, where townspeople deposited donations.

"We had six months of misery, to be honest, so we know what Amy's family is going through," Jenkins said.

Jenkins and Strom hope to elicit funds from service organizations and SIU-C faculty in particular. Amy's grandfather, Loren Taylor, is a retired employee of the Recreation Department. However, Mrs. Taylor is worried that because Amy and her parents live in Tennessee, some Carbondale residents might take less interest in Amy's plight.

"We visited the family in Thanksgiving, and Amy was really looking thin, not good at all," Mrs. Taylor said. "I feel if they don't get the bone marrow transplant, she might not make it."

Mrs. Taylor said her daughter and her husband are very anxious to have the transplant performed because of the high rate of recovery in leukemia patients, who often never have another attack.

"They're really fighting to get it done. Mary's talked to the state representative, and even tried calling President Reagan," Mrs. Taylor said.

Although no hospital has accepted Amy as a patient yet, doctors have found a bone marrow donor in her 6-year-old brother, whose marrow is a "perfect match," Jenkins said.

Jenkins said the response has been "pretty good so far," but there has been no significant contributions made since she and her sister began the fund last week. Contributions may be sent to the Bank of Carbondale, 1500 W. Main, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.

Jury may call Byrne in probe of purchases

CHICAGO (AP) — An investigation of the municipal purchase of $1.8 million in street sweepers without competitive bidding may result in a grand jury calling for testimony from former Mayor Jane Byrne, a published report says.

Mrs. Byrne probably will be among witnesses later this month before a Cook County grand jury looking into circumstances under which the city bought 25 diesel-powered street sweepers in May 1982, the Chicago Sun-Times reported in its Sunday editions.

The companies that sold the equipment — Standard Equipment Co. and Schuster Equipment Co. — were major contributors to Byrne campaigns, respectively giving $9,500 and $7,000 to her unsuccessful 1983 re-election bid and $6,700 and $5,900 in the previous three years, the newspaper reported.

Investigators are looking into Mrs. Byrne's possible personal involvement into the purchase of the machines, the Sun-Times said. It added that sources in the state's attorney's office said the grand jury may consider charges of official misconduct, a felony that carries a sentence of two to five years in prison upon conviction.

Purchasing records were subpoenaed three weeks ago by the grand jury, city officials confirmed. The probe is being carried out by the office of State's Attorney Richard M. Daley, another unsuccessful contender in the Democratic mayoral primary.

Design students take global view

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

Will mankind destroy itself? That's the question that Cathy Aubertin, a graduate student in design, asked Thursday evening during a debate on complex world problems.

Aubertin was one of 14 students involved in the 90-minute debate that was held in Quigley Auditorium. About 50 students in Carolyn Foxx's environmental design and design classes helped develop the debate for a final class project.

The debaters used a systematic approach to develop solutions to global problems. This approach includes any set of components, which work together in an approved fashion to achieve a goal.

Both positive and negative sides of the issues were debated. An affirmative debater would begin by making a statement about an issue, then a speaker representing the negative side would question the initial argument.

Aubertin, from the negative side, said energy is the main source of danger. The population and a high level of living standards are eating up the energy supply. Our energy dependency is at a critical stage, she said.

She said that short-term fuel resources will soon be depleted. Long-term solutions have been mentioned but not used, Aubertin said.

Julia Crain, a graduate student, said nuclear arms materials can be converted to peaceful energy forms.

Energy isn't all that's at the critical stage. Luanne Babcock, a graduate student, reminded listeners that 800 million people are living in poverty and the earth's carrying capacity is eroding. She added that more than 40 countries are currently at war.

For the positive side, Crain, said work is being done to improve those conditions.

On the topic of labor, Scott Powell, a junior, said from 50 to 75 percent of the unskilled laborers will be replaced by robots by the end of the century. But, Bill Rogers, a junior, for the positive team, said it was possible to educate people into new fields.

Sarah Reep, co-captain for the positive team, said, "When people learn to think, they will become their own masters. Education is the key that opens the door to our own survival."

something to build on. For the first time I can see a little bit of growth. We've taken ourselves one step further for the Valley."

Bufford said the tournament was a big victory.

"We wanted to win this tournament," Bufford said. "This win gives us confidence going into the tournaments, but we still have a long way to go. We're just taking one step at a time."

Birch's 17 points and four assists helped him earn a spot on the all-tournament team. Mercer's Bolds and Mitchell, Columbia's Carl Scholz and Alcorn State's Aaron Brandon rounded out the squad.

Van Winkle said Birch and Bibbens deserved the honors, but he couldn't say that they stood heads above the rest of his players.

"I couldn't have picked the award," Van Winkle said. "If they'd announced that someone else from our team had made it, I wouldn't have been surprised at all. I think the award our guys were most interested in, though, was that team trophy."

The Salukis came very close to playing for a third-place award instead of the championship. Columbia, a team with no player bigger than 6-foot-4, gave the Salukis all they could handle Friday night in the opening round.

The Ivy Leaguers fired in 63 percent of their shots in the second half to whittle away SIU-C's 32-26 halftime lead. With 2:31 left they went ahead 63-60 picked off a school-record 34 passes this year.

"The crowd was a big factor," Daniel said. "We'd gain one yard and they'd go nuts. That was a big plus for us. We can't thank them enough."

Johnson was happy with the crowd, too.

"That was probably the spunkiest crowd I've played in front of at SIU," he said. "It was a great way to go out. We've played in front of 53,000 at Florida State and they didn't roar anything like the people did out here today. It was pretty unbelievable. It gives you shivers all over your body."

"I'd sure like to see some people come out to Charleston. I'm sure some of those rowdies out there will come and see us play."

Shipp though the home finale was fitting.

"This was a pleasant ending for me," Shipp said. "I'm glad I had a chance to play one more game at McAndrew Stadium."

Ken Foster, who made his presence felt in the SIU-C defensive line all afternoon, reflected on his entire career after the game.

"This season has been especially gratifying for the seniors because we've been through the bad times together and now we're enjoying the good times."

on Mark Lay's free throws.

With 1:33 remaining and the Salukis still down 63-60, Pie Walker went to the free throw line and missed his second toss after converting the first. But Chris George got inside for a tip-in to tie the score.

"Chris' tip-in was the play that won it for us," Van Winkle said.

Walker and Birch then hit four of four free throws in the final 25 seconds to ice the game.

Despite inferior height at all positions, Columbia matched SIU-C's 34 rebounds.

"Give Columbia credit," Van Winkle said. "They played a great game."

Walker led the Salukis with 13 points in a substitute role.

Bears end Viking playoff hopes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Fullback Matt Suhey rushed for 101 yards and heaved a 74-yard touchdown pass to backfield mate Walter Payton as the Chicago downed Minnesota 19-13 Sunday.

It was the first National Football League victory for the Bears in Minnesota since 1971 and it erased any playoff hopes for the Vikings. Both teams now are tied for third place in the National Conference's Central Division at 7-8.

Minnesota's Rick Bell and Randy Holloway blocked a pair of second-half Chicago punts.

But Minnesota failed to score with 1:30 left and the ball on the Bears' 5-yard line.

Bob Thomas had a 22-yard field goal in the fourth quarter and a 42-yarder in the first quarter for Chicago.

Chicago's other score came with 37 seconds left in the first half.

Swimmers dump Auburn in dual meet

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

Despite trailing throughout the meet, the men's swimming team managed to pull out a narrow victory Saturday over Auburn 59-54 at the Recreation Center.

Trailing by as much as 13 points at one time, the Salukis began their comeback. Going into the final event, they still trailed by two points. But their 400 freestyle relay team of Carlos Hneno, Barry Hahn, Tom Hakanson and Joakim Sjoholm came through in the clutch with a meet record time of 3:02.20, lifting the Salukis to victory.

However, they were not the only heroes in what Coach Bob Steele said was an all-out "team effort." Four other meet records were also shattered.

In the 500 free, Gary Brinkman finished first and broke a meet record with a time of 4:30.2. He was followed by teammate Anderz Grillhammar's 4:31.6.

BARRY HAHN finished first in the 200 free with a 1:40.8. Grillhammar swam a 5:39.3 in the 1,650 free and diver Nigel Stanton scored 329.78 in the 3-meter event. All were meet records.

Steele said that the pressure of the meet and last week's shave helped the Salukis.

"I've been telling the guys all season that pressure makes people great," Steele said. "Without a challenge, people don't improve. This was an example of that."

The Salukis were following an impressive victory over quality teams South Carolina, Florida State and Nebraska at last week's shave meet. Steele said before the meet with Auburn that the Salukis' recent shave could be the "equalizer" in the confrontation with Auburn and that this weekend would be the best chance for his swimmers to upset the Tigers.

"OUR GUYS weren't sure if that (the shave) would make any difference," Steele said. "But it was worth it."

In the 50 free, Tom Hakanson took second with a time of 21.0. He also placed third in the 100 free with a 46.2.

Carlos Hneno took second in the 200 individual medley with a 1:52.8. Jimmy Griffith and Phil Wittry placed second and third in the 200 butterfly with times of 1:55.0 and 1:56.6. Wittry, who Steele said "really had a good meet," recorded his lifetime best in that event.

Giovanni Frigo finished second in the 200 backstroke with a 1:51.7, his lifetime best. Auburn's Richie Hughey broke former Saluki swimmer Roger VonJouanne's pool record with a 1:48.9 in finishing first.

Nigel Stanton

STEELE SAID he was impressed with the swims of Grillhammar and Gary Brinkman in the 1,650 free. Brinkman finished second (15:40.0) to Grillhammar's meet record time.

"That's a good sign because those guys went 8,000 and 9,000 yards in workouts last week," Steele said.

Saluki Larry Wooley turned in a good performance in winning the 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:07.4. Auburn's Shawn Blatt and Andy Bauer finished second and third.

"There were so many nice efforts all the way down the line," Steele said. "The only time we led was when they totaled the points up at the end of the meet."

In 1-meter diving, Auburn's Skipper Wood took first with 305.45 points. Wood was followed by Salukis Tom Wentland (303.45), Jim Watson (275.7) and Nigel Stanton (248.4). Wentland's score was a personal best.

BUT THE Salukis came back in 3-meter diving, led by Nigel Stanton. Stanton took first and set a meet record point total of 329.78. It was his personal best point score. The Tigers' Skipper Wood placed second with 325 points.

"We're diving well," said Saluki diving Coach Dennis Golden. "We were really consistent. We knew we had to win the 3-meter to have a chance to win the meet."

Steele said that the 3-meter victory was the "biggest single thing that helped us."

Golden said that the divers once again had a 90 percent efficiency rate.

"That makes you competitive against everybody," he said.

Swimmers continue to dominate dual meets

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

Call it what you like, but SIU-C's 86-54 victory over Auburn in Saturday's women's swimming meet could be listed as The NCAA Standards and Meet Record Extravaganza.

Featuring some outstanding performances by both teams, the meet ended with four pool and 10 meet records and 12 NCAA qualifying standards. SIU-C qualified for the NCAA's in seven events while Auburn qualified in five. The win kept SIU-C's dual meet record intact with a 4-0 mark.

Women's swimming Coach Tim Hill was "pleasantly surprised" with the performance of his team.

"The girls rose to the occasion," Hill said. "I think they proved to themselves that they can swim with anybody. Auburn beat us twice last season, so the girls really wanted to beat them this year."

The Lady Tigers defeated the Saluki women 82-67 in a dual meet last season and finished eighth in the NCAA Championships, one notch above the ninth-place Salukis.

But this year was a different story. The Saluki swimmers put together a group of lifetime best times to win nine of 16 events.

Amanda Martin and Rene Royalty were the individual standouts for the team.

Martin's time of 1:05.28 in the 100-yard breaststroke qualified her for the NCAA's and was also a team and meet record. Pam Ratcliffe was second in the event at 1:07.37. Martin met another NCAA standard in the 200 breast with a time of 2:21.2. Linda Bell finished second, swimming a season best of 2:28.6, and Laura Brown was third at 2:30.3, five-tenths of a second off her lifetime best.

Royalty shined in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle. She won the 50 free in 24.10. Sue Wittry was second with a time of 24.25. Royalty's time of 52.54 in the 100 free was good enough for another first-place finish. Wittry again finished second at 52.59 and Armi Airaksinen finished third as the Salukis swept the event.

SIU-C qualified for the NCAA's in the 400-yard medley and 200 free relays.

The 400 medley team of Ratcliffe, Wendy Irick, Martin and Airaksinen qualified with a time of 3:57.8, which was a pool and meet record. Auburn finished second at 2:54.6.

The NCAA-qualifying 200 free relay team of Royalty, Wittry, Barb Larsen and Ratcliffe finished with a time of 1:35.4, one and three-tenths seconds ahead of the qualifying pace. Their time was also a pool and meet record. The Auburn team of Sandy McIntyre, Annie Lett, Kathy Lang and Carolyn Goodley finished second, but their time of 1:36.6 was still good enough to meet the NCAA standard.

Wendy Irick turned in a lifetime best and an NCAA qualifying time in the 400 IM, clocking in at 4:28.27. Roxanne Carlton was second at 4:32.09. Mary Beth Eckerlein of Auburn was third at 4:34.6.

Airaksinen won the 200 free with a time of 1:51.93. Auburn's Goodley was second at 1:53.2 and Claudia Zierold was third at 1:53.43.

Larsen turned in a lifetime best, winning the 100 fly in 57.4. Airaksinen also turned in her best time ever, finishing second at 57.44. Goodley was third with a time of 57.8.

As predicted by Auburn swimming Coach John Asmuth, the Lady Tigers were in top form in the backstroke events. Dawn Hewitt turned in an NCAA qualifying time of 58.3 in the 100 back, a pool and meet record. Nancy Bodner was second with a time of 59.0. Both women were backstroke finalists in last year's NCAA's. SIU-C's Irick was third at 59.2.

The Lady Tigers' McIntyre won the 200 back, clocking in at 2:03.78, a pool and meet record and also an NCAA qualifying time. Irick also qualified for the NCAA's, finishing second at 2:05.56. That time was her lifetime best.

Auburn freshman Libby Pruden won the 500 and 1,000 free, setting meet records in both events. She won the 500 with a time of 4:56.6 and the 1,000 in 9:59.8. SIU-C's Janie Coontz finished second in both events, turning in a season best in the 1,000 with a time of 10:08.6. Roxanne Carlton was third in the 1,000 with a season best time of 10:13.9 and Stacy Westfall was third in the 500, clocking in at 4:58.4.

Auburn wouldn't have fared so well without the top two places in the one- and three-meter diving events.

Freshmen Joan Pitt and Jeanie Chapman gave Auburn a one-two punch by taking first and second in both diving events. Pitt turned in meet record performances of 268.9 on the three-meter and 277.48 on the one-meter board.

SIU-C's Angie Faidherbe took third on both boards, scoring 225.68 on the one-meter and 227.7 on the three-meter.

Vanderbilt downs defenseless cagers

By Sherry Chisenhall
Sports Editor

A defense that Coach Cindy Scott called "two steps slow" couldn't contain a strong inside and outside attack and cost the women's basketball team an 80-75 loss Saturday to Vanderbilt.

Taking advantage of a sluggish Saluki player defense, the Commodores took turns going inside to 6-foot-2 juniors Barbara Brackman and Harriet Brumfield or opting for the outside shot from guard Donna Atkinson or forward Jackie Cowan.

Brumfield collected her fifth personal foul with 5:49 left, bowing out with 20 points, while Atkinson air mailed 19 and Brackman scored 16 for Vanderbilt.

Connie Price carried SIU-C with 24 points, while Petra Jackson contributed 14. Neither were playing at full strength, with Price slowed by severe chest congestion and Jackson recovering from an elbow to the neck in the Salukis' game Thursday against Western Kentucky.

SIU-C got some help from the bench Saturday, with freshman Ann Kattreh coming in to score 14 points and collect four rebounds. The Salukis were without forward Char Warring for most of the second half. Warring picked up her fifth foul with 6:57 left, leaving with 11 points and nine rebounds.

Scott's club was 29 of 58 from the field for 50 percent, while the Commodores completed 32 of 72 attempts for 44.4 percent. SIU-C was 17 of 27 from the free throw line, a 63 percent clip, while Vandy converted 16 of 29 attempts for 55.2 percent.

The Salukis again dominated the boards, with Price hauling down a game-high 20 miscues. Warring had nine rebounds and Terry Schmittgens collected seven. Vanderbilt was led by Brackman with eight, while Atkinson and Karen Booker pulled in seven each.

SIU-C also had problems settling into its offense, committing 28 turnovers to Vandy's 18. Point guard D.D. Plab gave up the ball nine times, and all but two Salukis who saw court time turned the ball over at least twice.

"The turnovers were a united effort," Scott said. "We had turnovers from everybody, and that hurt us. There was no reason for the problem we had getting our offense running. We just weren't mentally in the game. We weren't ready to play."

"We continued to do a good job on the boards, but we did a poor job on our transition game. We just didn't get back on defense."

Scott said that most of her team's problems came back to a lethargic defense.

"We came out really flat the first half," she said. "We were a very poor mental ball club. We were two steps slow on defense, we weren't sinking in on them."

We were flat-footed and non-aggressive. We basically had a complete breakdown on defense."

While the Saluki offense struggled, Vanderbilt had little trouble putting the ball in the bucket. The Commodores were a threat inside with Brumfield and Brackman, while Atkinson was deadly around the perimeter.

Despite the sluggish play, SIU-C was in the game until the final 10 seconds when the Commodores went back up by four. The Salukis flirted with the lead for a minute and a half, until Marialice Jenkins fouled Atkinson on a layup. Atkinson hit the free toss for a three-point play, and Vandy held the lead for keeps.

Vanderbilt snapped a two-game losing streak and improved to 5-2, while SIU-C dropped to 4-2 and ended a four-game winning streak.

The Salukis will return to the court Tuesday night when they play host to Illinois-Chicago.

Fans share win with Salukis

All-American Saluki cornerback Terry Taylor Nevada-Reno. Taylor followed with two interceptions in the last quarter.

SALUKIS: Taylor clinches game

The only score the Wolf Pack would get came after Saluki punter Drew Morrison bobbled a low snap deep in Saluki territory, which Nevada-Reno recovered at the 10-yard line. Corley's 2-yard touchdown run narrowed the Saluki lead to 9-7 with 2:20 left in the third quarter. Nevada-Reno was still would gain just nine offensive yards from the time it scored until Taylor's interception spurt.

"We were going to take away that sweep," said Carl Angelo, Saluki defensive coordinator. "Once we shut down their run, we were going to make Beavers throw the ball. We were very confident."

If Beavers wanted to throw, Angelo said, then "he had to throw against our best."

In addition to Taylor's two interceptions, safety Greg Shipp and cornerback Donnell Daniel each nabbed one. Taylor also had two of the five pass deflections that the Saluki defense recorded.

Taylor said the secondary was in man-to-man coverage on his 24-yard touchdown return. "Out of the corner of my eye," Taylor said, "I saw the ball was thrown low for the tight end. I broke for the ball."

Once he made the interception, Taylor had daylight ahead of him and scored untouched. His second interception occurred just 15 seconds later, this time in a zone defense and with the help of Fred Manuel, Saluki defensive secondary coach.

"Coach Manuel told me their quarterback was throwing the ball too high," Taylor said. "He was lobbing the ball a lot."

With the pass intended for split end Alphonso Williams, Taylor made a leaping interception at the Wolf Pack 21-yard line, cut across the field to his left and was driven out-of-bounds at the 2-yard line. When Derrick Taylor scored on the next play for a 23-7 lead with 3:54 left to play, the victory was assured for the Salukis.

In the matchup of highly-touted Wolf Pack offensive left tackle Derek Kennard, 6-foot-3, 270 pounds, and Saluki defensive right tackle Kenny Foster, 6-foot-2, 235 pounds, Foster came out as the winner.

"Kenny Foster is peaking in the playoffs," Angelo said.

Perhaps the biggest play Foster made came with 5:49 left in the first half and the Salukis holding a slim 3-0 lead. Wolf Pack free safety Tony Shaw, named the Big Sky Defensive Player of the Year, intercepted a deflected Rick Johnson pass that tight end Carey Shepard could not hang onto at the SIU-C 42-yard line with 6:35 left.

On second down from the 39-yard line, Beavers went back to hand the football off to Corley, but never got to make the exchange. Foster blew by Kennard, grabbed Beavers by the leg and forced him to drop the football. Middle guard Sterling Haywood recovered it at the SIU-C 42-yard line.

From there on first down, flanker Cecil Ratliff dove and caught a tipped Johnson pass near the sidelines for a 27-yard gain to the Nevada-Reno 31-yard line. A run and three incompletions netted two yards, but a facemask penalty on Nevada-Reno moved the ball to the 25-yard line.

Placekicker Ron Miller came in and booted his second field goal of the game, a 42-yarder, to give the Salukis a 6-0 lead with 4:13 left.

Miller made three field goals in the game, tying the school record for the second week in a row, and hit on two more extra point attempts to give him 51 that he has connected on without a miss. Miller also set two team records Saturday, for scoring in a season with 99 points and for field goals in a season with 16.

His first field goal broke a scoreless tie with 2:35 left in the first quarter. It capped a 65-yard, eight-play drive that saw Johnson complete two long passes, to James Stevenson for 16 yards and to Shepard for 29 yards. Miller's 35-yard field goal looked like it would fall short, but it barely cleared the crossbar.

With the defense protecting a 3-0 lead, Haywood was once again the man on the spot with another fumble recovery at the SIU-C 28-yard line with 7:48 left in the first half.

Seniors get last cheers from fans at McAndrew

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The celebration was taking place on the McAndrew Stadium carpet, so they spilled out of the stands to join the party.

At both ends of the field, euphoric Saluki fans tackled the goal posts with the same vigor displayed by the Salukis' hard-nosed defense moments earlier in SIU-C's 23-7 I-AA semifinal win over Nevada-Reno.

But between the overmatched goal posts, a swarm of Saluki fans had opted instead to surround Saturday's heroes in the middle of the field and wish them well for the Big One, the NCAA Division I-AA championship game Saturday in Charleston, S.C.

There was Terry Taylor, who's interception return for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter sealed the victory, making his way to the dressing room, receiving pats on his back and slaps on his helmet from adoring Saluki fans, his hands extended over his head toward the sky.

Saturday marked the last time they would ever congratulate players like Taylor, Donnell Daniel, Greg Shipp, Granville Butler, Fabray Collins, Ed Norman and Ken Foster, the guts of the stingy Saluki defense that has carried the team all year — and quarterback Rick Johnson and All-MVC offensive lineman Brad Pilgrum.

Perhaps buried beneath the excitement created by the presence of CBS and the anticipation of the upcoming national championship game was the fact that this game marked the last time the seniors would play in front of the home crowd.

"It hurts," Collins said, "knowing that this was our last game (at McAndrew). This is it, you know."

The Saluki seniors and their teammates have given their fans plenty. The players will tell you the giving goes both ways.

"The crowd really helped us," Butler said. "I'm glad they came out to see us. This game was especially sentimental because I've been here five years now. I'd like to thank the fans for an enjoyable five years, especially this year."

"Now we have a chance to bring them a championship."

The boisterous student side of the stadium was filled close to capacity, despite cold weather and a steady rain. Only the timeouts, prolonged by television commercial breaks, quieted it. On one such occasion at the outset of the fourth quarter, Taylor became the most effective cheerleader in recent SIU-C history, waving his arms in the air and prodding the crowd into a roaring crescendo.

"The crowd wasn't dead, but something wasn't right," Taylor said. "When you get the crowd fired up, it usually makes something happen."

Taylor, of course, fulfilled his own prophecy. His crucial interception and touchdown return came 15 minutes later, giving the Salukis a 16-7 lead.

Taylor's pair of interceptions and interceptions by Daniel and Shipp were fitting souvenirs for Saluki fans to remember them by. The Saluki secondary

Cagers capture title in Busch Shootout

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

Performing a Jekyll and Hyde act, the Saluki men's basketball team captured the inaugural Busch Saluki Shootout at the Arena over the weekend.

The Salukis fought off an upset-minded Columbia squad 68-65 Friday night with a less-than-spectacular effort before bouncing back Saturday to beat Mercer 84-71 in the title game.

Mercer had defeated tournament favorite Alcorn State 103-101 in the other semifinal game Friday night.

"I was really pleased with the way our team bounced back tonight (Saturday) after last night's game," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "They showed a lot of poise."

"I feel so much better. I was hoping we would play well, but we played even better than I anticipated."

The Salukis were led offensively by tournament Most Valuable Player Cleveland Bibbens. Bibbens scored 21 points on 10 of 14 shooting and one free throw. The Michigan State transfer led SIU-C with six rebounds. Against Columbia, Bibbens had scored just six points and had four rebounds.

"Against Columbia we went out there with big heads," Bibbens said. "We underestimated them."

The Salukis were in a better frame of mind for the title game.

"We knew we'd have to be psyched up to play for those big guys," Bibbens said.

Mercer's forward combination of Tony Bolds and Sam Mitchell formed a two-man scoring machine the night before, combining for 70 of Mercer's first 91 points in Friday's track meet with Alcorn State. Bolds finished the evening with 41 points.

Against SIU-C, however, Bolds was held to 14 points.

As has been the recent trend, the Saluki scoring attack was well-balanced. Van Winkle's starting five each scored in double figures. Nate Bufford scored 19, Roy Birch scored 17, Ken Perry had 13 and Bernard Campbell had 12.

Van Winkle did not substitute until early in the second half. The starters had staked the Salukis to a 39-32 lead on 59 percent shooting.

Mercer could get no closer than eight points in the second half.

The Bears played well, shooting 56 percent and outrebounding the Salukis 27-22.

The Salukis suddenly find themselves the owners of a 6-1 record. Mercer is now 3-2.

"This is a great start for us," Van Winkle said. "It's
