Trustees to review fees, housing rates proposals

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

Student fees will increase by 9 percent by summer and University Housing rates will increase 7.3 percent by fall if three separate proposals are approved by the Board of Trustees at a meeting Thursday at SIU-Edwardsville.

Two student fee proposals requesting an $8 recreation fee increase and a $14 Student Center fee increase would raise student fees to $260.20 for fall and spring semesters and $169.73 for summer semester.

Under the proposed housing increases, University Housing for a single undergraduate would cost $168 more per year, or $84 more per semester. An apartment at Southern Hills would cost $18 more per month, and an apartment at Evergreen Terrace would cost $20 more per month.

"The question is 'When is it going to stop?'" said Glenn Stolar, president of the Graduate and Professional Council. The council recommends a $6, instead of an $8, recreation fee increase and a $10.75, instead of $14, Student Center increase.

In the past, the University has received the increase as it requested, Stolar said, but instead of depending on student fees it's time to look at other options. "Can we afford it (more fees) as a student population?" The answer is "No," Stolar said.

Stolar said Tuesday the council feels a $6 recreation fee increase would be sufficient to continue recreation programs without the drastic cuts listed in a report by the Office of Student Affairs.

Calling the report "limited in its scope," Stolar said the report lists possible cuts without listing alternative measures to gain revenue. Stolar suggested alternatives, such as a user fee, for particular services and an expansion of the center's "self-imposed" limited non-student passes.

"It's too easy to go for student fees," Stolar said. "Students can't afford it anymore."

The Undergraduate Student Organization, however, has

Bar ordered to close after topless dance

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Liquor Control Commission ordered that T.J.'s Watering Hole be closed for two weeks after finding the manager guilty of allowing nude entertainment in the bar.

The bar, located at 315 S. Illinois Ave., will be closed from Jan. 7 to Jan. 20.

The commission, which is also the City Council, ruled that Harry Kirk, one of the owners and manager of T.J.'s, allowed Selena Brozowski to dance topless on the bar's stage during a wet T-shirt contest on Sept. 19. Brozowski and Kirk were arrested for violating a city ordinance prohibiting nude entertainment.

During a lengthy hearing on Monday, the commission listened to testimony from Carbondale police officers who discovered the incident during a routine bar check.

Officer Mel Krekel testified that he observed Brozowski on the stage of T.J.'s large bar dressed only in a G-string, and high-heeled shoes. He said Kirk was standing on stage as the crowd yelled "take it off."

Kirk, however, pleaded innocent to the charges. J. Phil Gilbert, Kirk's attorney, argued that Brozowski acted on her own and Kirk cannot be held responsible for her taking her shirt off.

Kirk said he warned Brozowski before she went on stage not to take her clothes off. He said he did not see her remove her shirt because he was attending to the music for the next contestant at the disc jockey's booth.

Assistant City Attorney Barbara Colvin said, however, that Kirk was liable for Brozowski's actions because the wet T-shirt contest was sponsored by the bar.

"Selena Brozowski was more than a patron, she was an invited participant," Colvin said.

Brozowski, who is a dancer at DuMaroc nightclub in DeSoto, said she had participated in T.J.'s wet T-shirt contest "two or three times" and had taken her shirt off on each of those occasions. Kirk contended that she removed her shirt on only one other occasion.

Brozowski testified that Kirk saw her performance on Sept. 19. She said she motioned to him while on stage that she was going to remove her shirt. She said Kirk did not object and shrugged his shoulders. Brozowski said that other contestants also removed their

CCHS will use substitutes unless agreement is reached

By Ed Foley
Staff Writer

Carbondale Community High School will be open Wednesday with substitute teachers if no agreement is reached before then between striking teachers and the District 165 School Board.

No accord had been reached at 6 p.m. Tuesday, although at that time the CCHS Education Association was considering counterproposals advanced at about 5:15 by negotiators of the school board.

"We're extremely close, and we're extremely far away," is how the spokesman for the CCHS Education Association characterized the status of negotiations.

Robert Taylor said the two sides were "entering a real critical time," with three questions being the only areas left to negotiate — the amount of salary increase, whether and for how much teachers will be docked for days of school missed, and whether the teachers will be allowed to teach a 180-day year.

"I say we're close to agreement because these issues alone are not that great taken by themselves. To come to this point after all the months of negotiations, that's obviously a great deal of progress," Taylor said.

He said that what makes talks so critical at this time is the interrelationship of the points to be discussed. He said that, for instance, whether the teachers would be docked was related to a potential salary agreement.

A two-year contract is being negotiated, said Taylor. Negotiations for next year's

Woody Hall cafeteria may stay open

By Ed Foley
Staff Writer

Things look fairly bright for those who have made a tradition of lunch or breakfast at the Woody Hall cafeteria, though it's still possible that the area will be closed to make room for office space.

John Corker, Student Center director, said even if the cafeteria is renovated, "it is unlikely" that Woody Hall would be left without food service. The cafeteria is run by Student Center Food Service.

Corker said that a study by the Student Center staff last summer of Food Service operations recommended that the Woody Hall cafeteria remain open. The University, however, is looking for a place to expand the Office of Admissions and Records, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Tuesday.

"We'd like (Admissions and Records) to be an attractive, pleasant front door to the University," Swinburne said.

Corker said President Somit's office is looking for the best place to expand those offices, and several other locations have been mentioned, including Quigley and Pulliam halls.

"Other places are ahead of Woody Hall, though, and all our reports to date indicate that the cafeteria will continue on as is," Corker said.

Committees pour $2 million into Percy and Simon race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special interest political action committees, or PACs, poured more than $2 million into the 1984 campaigns of the two major-party U.S. Senate candidates in Illinois, records showed Tuesday. Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission said Democratic Rep. Paul Simon, the victor raised more than $903,000 in PAC contributions over the two-year election cycle beginning last year. Incumbent Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy, who narrowly lost in the Nov. 6 balloting, held a slight edge in PAC donations, accumulating $1.2 million since early July.

Good Soviet winter grain crop predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early prospects are good for the Soviet Union's 1985 winter grain crop, but record numbers of livestock are eating into the country's skimpy feed reserves, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday. The agency said its estimate of the 1984 Soviet grain production remains at 170 million metric tons, including 75 million wheat, 84 million coarse grains and pulses such as beans and peas.

Acid rain decision not scientific, GAO says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Current technical knowledge cannot answer whether a program to control the precursors of acid rain would be worth the cost, and the question must be left to politics, congressional analysts said Tuesday. Any decision on whether to move forward with a control program "involves an allocation of risk among industry, consumer, labor, environmental and other interests and between different regions of North America," the General Accounting Office said in a report.

State Senate votes down plan to increase salaries

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Senate voted unanimously Tuesday to reject the new Compensation Review Board's recommendations for salary increases for legislators, top state officials, judges and others. Senators voted 57-0 to send their proposal rejecting the salary recommendations to the House for consideration. The pay-increase proposal was on lawmakers' desks soon after they returned to the Capitol on Tuesday for the last week of the fall veto session.

Chicago City Hall to get nativity scene back

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Harold Washington's administration, stung by cries of Scrooge after the removal of a Nativity scene from City Hall, announced Tuesday the manger scene will be reassembled there. The plastic figures depicting the birth of Jesus will be accompanied by a sign noting that no public money was used for their purchase or assembly, William Ware, Washington's chief of staff, said Tuesday.

Shopper leaps to death from fifth floor of mall

CHICAGO (AP) — A middle-aged woman put down her purse, climbed up on a railing and leaped to her death Tuesday from a fifth-floor balcony of Chicago's fashionable Water Tower Place shopping mall, witnesses told authorities. The unidentified woman, described as about 50 years old, landed on potted plants in an open flower-shop area on the ground floor, near the base of a glass elevator shaft that runs up one side of the mall's atrium said 1st Battalion Fire Chief Joseph Taylor.

Amnesty total up, school finance move stalls

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The state's tax amnesty jackpot grew to $147 million Tuesday, but a move to earmark $75 million of the money for public schools hit a temporary roadblock in the Illinois House when Republicans blocked its passage. Though the school financing proposal had the backing of Governor Thompson, House Republican Leader Lee Daniels led GOP representatives in stalling further consideration of the plan. A vote to speed consideration of the bill fell four votes short of the 71 needed for approval.

Chicago teachers agreement near, officials say

CHICAGO (AP) — Negotiators said they were close to an agreement that would end a strike by 28,000 teachers that closed classrooms for 430,000 students in the nation's third-largest school system. "We are close," said Chicago Teachers Union President Jacqueline Vaughn late Monday night during a break in negotiations. "They've (board negotiators) made a better offer than they have before," she said. It was the first time since the strike began Dec. 3 that her assessment of progress in the talks jibed with that of the board.

Council supports solar project take-over plan

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council indicated Monday that it supports a plan for the city to take over the assets of the Shawnee Solar Project.

The plan also includes combining the city's Energy Division with the Division of Renewal and Housing and narrowing the scope of the energy division's programs.

Under the plan, which was outlined for the council in a memo from Donald Monty, director of community development, to the city manager, the office of the Energy Division would be moved from City Hall to the facility at 808 S. Forest St. that now houses the solar project. Monty said Tuesday that with final council approval the move could take place Jan. 1.

The project's board of directors offered its assets to the city on Sept. 10 after it was unable to secure funding to maintain the facility. The assets include the demonstration center on Forest Street, which is leased from the University and has been remodeled to include home energy-conserving features, and a library of materials about energy conservation.

The plan to combine the Energy Division with the Division of Renewal and Housing would not be put into effect until May when the city's new budget year begins, Monty said.

Monty also suggested to the council that, because of budget constraints, the scope of energy division programs be trimmed. Instead of conducting energy audits, providing financial assistance and promoting "alternative" energy sources, the plan suggests confining the division to the education and demonstration functions which now are included in its programs.

Three of the council members indicated they supported both parts of the plan. The other two,

Councilmen Patrick Kelley and Keith Tuxhorn, did not give their full support to it.

Kelley said that it would be more appropriate for the functions of the solar project to be taken over by the University than by the city. He also suggested that any cost to the city that the takeover would create would be better used if added to existing city programs.

A memo to Monty from Robert Pauls, energy coordinator, states that combining the solar project's assets into the energy division would not require "any additional allocation from the council in this fiscal year or next."

The memo states that part of the energy division's budget had been earmarked for contractual services from the solar project and that this money could be used to operate the demonstration center.

Tuxhorn said he could not fully support the plan because the city appeared to be revamping its community development department, which encompasses both the energy and renewal and housing divisions, in a "piecemeal fashion" rather than as an overall project. He also said he feels that, if it were given a higher profile, the energy division could help to increase economic growth in Carbondale.

Faner Hall to be remodeled to make room for computers

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

Part of Faner Hall's first floor will be remodeled during the semester break to get it ready to house 64 IBM personal computers, said William Wright, acting associate director of academic computing and user services.

Plans are to change five Faner rooms — 1024, 1026, 1028, 1030, and 1032 — and the hallway into two large rooms, which will be used for a laboratory and classroom, each containing 32 personal computers.

The laboratory is intended for "individual drop-in use such as the case with the present terminal facilities in Faner," Wright said. The classroom, he said, "can be scheduled for an entire class...and will be available for lab-type use when not scheduled for classroom use."

Although the computers won't be available for classes until summer session, and perhaps as late as fall 1985, Wright said, "there's still a chance they (students) could use it spring semester."

Faculty members and students can begin learning on the computers as soon as they're available, he said. "The best estimate we have right now is mid-spring."

The computer facility, estimated at a cost of about $300,000, will be available for all University departments and colleges, Wright said. And because the terminals are not intended specific departmental needs, Wright said, the facility is not "something that would continue to grow."

Wright said, however, a "modest upgrade" of about $50,000 is scheduled for next year to buy items, such as additional printers and furnitures, that couldn't be worked into the 1985 fiscal year budget.

He said a committee preparing for the arrival of the computers is designing programs that would enable people to reserve time, and keep track of who uses the system and how much.

Wright said he is soliciting recommendations from students and faculty about the type of software to be purchased. At this point, however, the budget allocates about $10,000 for software, he said.

U.S. plant safe, says Union Carbide

INSTITUTE, W. Va. (AP) — Union Carbide officials on Tuesday took reporters on a tour of their only U.S. facility that produces methyl isocyanate, and expressed confidence they can avoid a disaster like the gas leak that killed more than 2,000 in India.

A small army of reporters heard repeated assurances from company spokesmen that although the Institute facility is 10 times larger than Union Carbide's plant at Bhopal, India, the chemical is safely contained here in three underground tanks.

Carbide stopped producing methyl isocyanate in Institute, some 10 miles west of Charleston, the day after the Indian leak. Tuesday's tour marked the first time reporters have allowed to enter the Institute plant since the Dec. 2 disaster in India.

Asked if he could guarantee the safety of the 150,000 residents of nearby Charleston and the surrounding Kanawha Valley, Carbide health and environmental director Jackson

K. Browning said that "the company's track record of safety and a healthy respect we maintain for this chemical" speak for themselves.

Institute plant manager Henry Karawan noted that Carbide has been making methyl isocyanate here for 17 years. He said he thinks the company's safety procedures, such as an extra holding tank, scrubbers and flares, would protect nearby residents from an accident similar to the one at Bhopal.

Viewpoint USO president testifies to IBHE on financing of higher education

OUT OF 20 witnesses I was the only student to testify at a recent hearing in Chicago that was sponsored by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. The purpose of the hearing was to provide a forum so that opinions on the financing of higher education in Illinois could be aired.

IBHE decisions based on this testimony, and other evidence gathered by its staff, can have a great impact on colleges and universities throughout Illinois.

Although Illinois' population of blacks and hispanics has increased over the past 10 years, their participation in institutions of higher learning has actually declined in proportion to their numbers. According to Salvatore G. Rotella, chancellor, City Colleges of Chicago, these minorities have a high school drop-out rate of over 60 percent.

Witnesses advised the IBHE to recommend to the governor funding for programs that offer incentives for minority students to continue their education through graduate school.

ILLINOIS' leading educators also addressed the issue of "accessibility" to higher education on a larger scale. When deciding funding levels for state student financial aid programs, we must consider the "total educational package," said Dr. Ikenberry, president of the University of Illinois.

The cost of living — rent, utilities, food and transportation — can all create additional barriers to access beyond the costs of tuition and fees alone.

Recent increases in the total amount of financial aid available is due in large part to tremendous increases in the funding of student loan programs. This is a positive, but not necessarily so from the perspective of less affluent students, who might encounter trouble paying off extensive loans in addition to the interest they accumulate after graduation.

While praising the Illinois State Scholarship Commission for raising its maximum award, witnesses called for greater funding of student grants with higher dollar awards.

EMPLOYEE salaries and benefits were yet another major concern voiced by IBHE witnesses. Their testimony told the story of the difficulties encountered when recruiting high quality faculty into Illinois' higher education system.

SIU-C faculty, for example, have salaries as much as 20 percent behind the faculty at peer institutions in their comparison group.

When addressing this issue I stated, "Perhaps if we paid for the quality (teaching) we demand, as a people, we could afford to teach quality in our schools." Stressing the importance of upgrading and maintaining employee salaries and benefits, I qualified my remarks by stating that the burden created by these, and other costs associated with auxiliary services (Student Center, Recreation Center), "should not be paid for on the backs of students."

The most important theme of the day came from witnesses who gave their advice as to what IBHE might recommend to the governor as a means to raise the revenue necessary to foot the bill.

"RAISE TAXES" was the answer forwarded by a half dozen speakers, including myself. No one suggested which taxes, or how even how much, but income taxes are invariably the most equitable across the board.

Illinois is the fifth most affluent state in the union. As such, it should be ranked in the top 25 states in its support of higher education. Today, according to the Chronical of Higher Education, Illinois ranks 37th in its per capita dollar support for higher education. This is something the leadership of this state, both in the political realm as well as in the media, must work to change.

There is a philosophy, shared by some, that higher education is solely beneficial to the individual. Higher education is believed to be self-enrichment, and of little benefit to society as a whole. This philosophy is a barrier to access that I cannot disagree with more.

If we are to make the progress we need to make as a nation, we must break down the walls of ignorance that prevent the growth of relationships between and among people. It is our duty as consumers of education to make it accessible to all who want it. — Andrew J. Leighton, President, Undergraduate Student Organization.

Peace in Latin America is committee's purpose

A recent story in the Daily Egyptian mentioned that an area group, the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, is taking part in a plan to respond to an invasion of Nicaragua.

I would like to elaborate on that nation-wide plan and emphasize that what is contemplated is the formation of a non-violent army of U.S. citizens mobilized to wage peace. The contingency planning has broadened to prepare citizens to respond in an organized manner if there is a serious military escalation by the United States against any of the people of Central America.

We are forming an Emergency Response Network by asking people to sign a pledge of resistance agreeing to respond if a call for resistance goes out. Our response will include gathering at a local church for prayer and sharing of information, the initiation of a non-violent demonstration and vigil at the Federal Building, the possible peaceful occupation of a Congressional office until our Congressman votes to end the invasion, and sending a delegation to Washington, D.C., where protest and non-violent civil disobedience will take place. We can take much inspiration from the recent non-violent activities engaged in by responsible citizens, among them Congresspeople, who have chosen to be arrested protesting apartheid policies in South Africa. Our commitment should be, as theirs is, to send a strong message to our government that its policies must change.

By engaging in the organization of a network we will draw attention to the continuing aggression by the U.S. government in the form of military maneuvers and the transport of arms into the region.

The arms provided by the United States and its allies support the continuing Contra war against Nicaragua, the bombing of its citizens by the government of El Salvador and the extermination of Guatemalan Indians in a government sponsored "pacification" program.

The Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee plans a public signing and celebration of the Pledges of Resistance Dec. 19 at the Interfaith Center, 913 S. Illinois Ave. at 7 p.m. — Georgeann Hartog, Carbondale.

Letters policy

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a Journalism School faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words, will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Family coaches soccer team says patience plays big part

Nine-year-old Matt Parsons has already decided what he's going to do when he grows up.

Parsons played for the Goalbusters this fall in the Carbondale Soccer Inc. league.

Like most kids, his favorite thing about soccer is scoring goals. "But I like assisting goals, too," he said.

The Goalbusters head coaches were Bob and Diane Hebel, with their sons Kyle and Chris helping. Their daughter Keri is on the team.

For the Hebels, soccer is a family sport. Hebel is president of Carbondale Soccer Inc. and also coaches his son Kyle's team.

"WE'RE ALWAYS doing something that is connected with soccer," he said.

The Goalbusters finished first in the under 10 age group this year with a 9-0-2 record.

Hebel is quick to credit the team for the record. "We were good not because of individual players, but because we clicked together as a team. Everyone did their part in helping us win.

Hebel said he showed two things to the people in the league this year.

"We proved that girls can be incredibly competitive in soccer and that really effective passing can change the league," Hebel said.

"No one in the league knew how to defend against the pass. The other teams didn't know what was happening. The pass also gives more kids an opportunity to score," he said.

THE TEAM had two practices each week. When they weren't working on their passing or kicking, they were usually doing cartwheels or playing with water bottles.

"Sometimes the kids attention spans weren't too long," Hebel said. "But we always tried to keep them busy."

Hebel has coached for five years and finds that patience is a key requirement for the job.

"You really have to like kids to spend time coaching them," he said.

"Always look for the positive," Diane Hebel said. "You have to let them know how good they are doing. Even if it just seems like a small thing that they did."

PHYSICAL FITNESS, coordination, self-confidence and the value of teamwork are important qualities children learn from soccer, Hebel said.

Nan Parsons, Matt's mother, said she likes soccer for its "non-stop action, agility and competition."

"I think it's the most exciting game there is for children and their parents. Soccer has helped Matt develop a more assertive personality, she said."

Who knows, maybe it will get him a job with the New York Cosmos in 1996.

Goalbuster's coach Diane Hebel and her daughter Keri watch the game from the sidelines.

BOARD: Trustees to review fees supported both student fee increases, adding another dollar to the recreation fee in recognizing "the need to enhance the budget."

But USO President Andy Leighton said he will present other issues to the board that he says must be considered before raising student fees in the future. Leighton said his speech will include items he discussed last week at the Illinois Board of Higher Education meeting.

Last week, Leighton said, administrators across the state contended that college tuition is getting too expensive. A fight for more financial aid has to be won before more fees can be solicited, he said.

Though the USO did approve the proposed fee increases, Leighton said, "We don't particularly approve unless financial aid programs are keeping pace."

The USO did not take an official stand on housing rate increases, but the GPSC voted to support any increases due to maintenance concerns expressed by residents of Evergreen Terrace.

Samuel Rinella, director of University Housing, citing an average 6 percent annual housing increase since 1952, said part of the additional 1.3 percent increase for fiscal year 1986 is for computer terminals to be installed in the residence halls.

Installing computer terminals in the residence halls "is something the students have been wanting for a long time."

Colvin requested that the commission impose a three-week penalty beginning Jan. 14, the first day of the spring semester at SIU-C. She cited previous violations of the liquor

She said beginning the penalty when SIU-C is in session was appropriate because the violation took place while classes were in session.

Food stores in price war, say store managers

By Pete Rhodes
Student Writer

Increased competition created by the opening of the Country Fair grocery store has led to a food price war in Carbondale, according to two local grocery store managers.

Ken Kueper, manager of the National Super Markets grocery store at 915 W. Main St., said he "definitely" thinks there is a price war in Carbondale. He has reduced the cost of most food items by about 3 to 5 percent because of increased competition.

The lower prices and a new advertising campaign have brought back some business, according to Kueper, who added that some employees' hours have been reduced, but "We still provide a full service by bagging groceries at the checkout counter and assisting customers in taking food out to the cars."

Kueper said that the food market business was oversaturated and that before the price war is over he expects that at least one of his competitors will be out of business. He thinks the price war will last "about a year."

David Pulcher, manager and co-owner of the IGA Foodliner store on East Grand Avenue in Carbondale, said he knew almost a year in advance about the opening of the Country Fair store. His warehouse suppliers told him to "get ready, because the price war is really on. It's going to come."

Pulcher said the price war started last summer, when a Kroger grocery store store advertised and sold ten to 20 basic food group items below cost. He added that within a few days after Country Fair opened and handed out their ad specials, the Kroger store "matched every item on it."

Pulcher believes that the price war will not affect his business because of his store's location. His primary customers are SIU-C students.

"We are not here to produce a price war. We are here to give the best possible price to the consumer," said Denise Robinson, manager of the Country Fair store at 1702 W. Main St. in Carbondale.

The store can provide lower prices because of a marketing system, developed about a year ago by the company owners, which analyzes consumers needs for "everyday low-priced food," Robinson said. The company will conduct periodic telephone surveys to determine customer needs in Carbondale, she said. The store hopes to draw customers from within a 50-mile radius of Carbondale.

Robinson said that one of the ways customers save at Country Fair is by bagging their own groceries.

Country Fair does provide some special services for the customer, Robinson said. Hams and turkeys that are purchased at the store can be smoke-treated on the premises. She also said that customers could make their own salad at a salad bar in the store. "Salad bars have been in food stores in the Western states for 10 or 15 years, but they are new to this area," said Robinson.

Activities still exist in snowless Southern Illinois

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

Even though Southern Illinois doesn't receive much snow, there are still many activities that can be enjoyed during the winter months, including camping, hiking, ice fishing and sightseeing.

Winter camping has been growing in popularity. Campgrounds at Giant City State Park, Garden of the Gods and throughout the Shawnee National Forest are open during the winter. Since there usually isn't constant snow cover, camping isn't as difficult as it would be farther north.

Jim Prowell, executive director of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, said camping has become a very popular form of winter recreation. Camping in the state parks and national forest makes it easy to go on hiking excursions for the weekend. All of the state parks are open during the winter and each offers many hiking trails.

"Hiking through areas such as Garden of the Gods and Giant City is more revealing during the winter because there is less foliage and you are able to see things such as waterfalls and bluffs that couldn't be seen when there are leaves," said Kathy Rankin, recreational sports coordinator at the Recreation Center.

Ice fishing in Southern Illinois' many lakes is another popular form of winter recreation. Prowell stresses, however, that anglers should be cautious and know the dangers that may exist. Lakes do freeze in Southern Illinois, but the average daytime temperature during the winter months is above freezing.

There are many historical, conservation and nature areas that make sightseeing one of the more enjoyable ways to spend the day. Salem, Shawneetown, Vandalia, Lincoln Land State Park and Kinmundy are some of the more-visited places.

Vandalia offers buildings that date back to the 1800s and Illinois' oldest state capitol building. Another popular tourist spot is the Okawville Mineral Springs Motel at which guests can enjoy mineral baths and Swedish massages.

Ice skating and cross country skiing can be done on Campus Lake and at places such as Giant City and Touch of Nature, Rankin said. There is also an ice skating facility in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

For those who enjoy downhill skiing, there are two ski resorts in Missouri. They are at Eureka, Mo., near Six Flags amusement park, and Rainbow Basin at Kirksville, Mo.

The Carbondale Park District will flood a section of Turley Park after the ground has frozen and the temperatures remain low for a while, said Glorianna Dougherty, office manager. At the end of February, the Park District will also offer a "snowball tournament," softball played in the snow.

For those who don't like to venture out into the snow and cold, there are also indoor activities available.

There are museums and art galleries that are popular tourist spots in Mount Vernon, McLeansboro and West Frankfort.

Number of students on welfare hard to pinpoint

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

Steve Kohn graduated from SIU-C in 1971 and went to work as a teacher in Chicago. Nine years later, Kohn decided teaching was no longer what he wanted to do, so he went into business for himself.

For about a year, Kohn tried his hand at the construction business. Then he went into wholesale retailing, selling various items, mostly giftware and tools.

Like many small-business men in the early 1980s, Kohn lost money and eventually went bankrupt.

In 1984 Kohn came back to SIU-C, only this time he brought a family with him — a family dependent on welfare.

The Kohns' story is not an unusual one. According to Evergreen Terrace Area Council Chairman Dan DeFosse, there are hundreds of families on welfare living in the Evergreen Terrace area alone.

Exactly how many students receive welfare aid — either at SIU-C or at other universities across the country — is an impossible figure to track down.

Dan Pittman, public information officer for the Department of Public Aid in Springfield, said that welfare figures are not broken down in terms of how many students receive aid.

Pittman said students with families may be eligible for three types of welfare aid: food stamps, aid to families with dependent children (AFDC), and medical assistance.

Program to help gifted children from poor families

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Researchers from the University of Illinois say there are as many gifted children from poor families as from other households, but that there's less than a 1 percent chance their talents will be discovered.

"We feel that if these children aren't identified early and their special needs met, they might just fall through the cracks and their potential might never be fully realized," said Merle Karnes, a U of I professor of special education. She said recently that researchers were developing programs to aid the development of gifted youngsters from low-income families.

A U of I team is working with children at two Head Start centers — federally funded child-development programs for preschool children from poor families.

About 500 students in Champaign and Danville will be screened. The researchers expect that 20 percent will be identified as gifted and will be provided special programs.

"We need to train our teachers to help the children who have needs that go beyond the average preschooler," said Mary Alice Buchanan, director of Head Start for Champaign, Iroquois and Vermilion counties.

The first challenge is identifying gifted children who are from poor families, Karnes said.

"We know that many of the low-income children have not had comparable experiences to those of the middle and upper classes, so until their gifts are nourished, they may not demonstrate their true ability," she said.

Because they are based on income, DeFosse said Pell grants are also a form of welfare.

Many of the students on welfare are displaced workers — people who suddenly found themselves without jobs and without the necessary skills to compete in a job market grown overwhelmingly technical, and unable to provide for their families.

Others became single parents after years of marriage and dependence on a spouse. Now they must learn to provide for themselves and their children or face a life of welfare dependency.

The student with a family faces obstacles unknown to the traditionally younger, single student. Class and study time must be balanced against the needs of the family, an especially exacerbating problem for the single parent with young children.

"It's hard to be able to take time to be with your kids and balance being a good parent with being a good student," said 32-year-old Cathy Tweedy, single mother of two.

"There's nobody else to take the kids out for you and do things for them," Tweedy said. "When I'm frustrated, I can't cry on my husband's shoulder."

Ironically, many of the students on welfare face the obstacle of the welfare system itself. They say the system hinders their efforts to gain an education with programs such as WIN which requires AFDC recipients to "actively seek employment" to receive aid.

DeFosse said programs such as WIN only serve to block the welfare students' efforts to gain an education by placing impossible demands on them.

For example, WIN participants must contact or file job applications with at least 20 employers in a four-week period. If they are offered a job they must take it. If not, the whole process is repeated.

Those who have embarked on job searches on campus and in Carbondale said they were met with age discrimination.

Older people just aren't hired in Carbondale businesses said Kohn, because of the community's focus on the young, single student.

Tweedy said she tried to get a job on campus and was turned down in favor of a younger woman.

In the long run, DeFosse said, programs like WIN perpetuate the welfare status of many who are unable to both comply with the program and complete their education.

The types of people on welfare who choose to undertake college are exactly the ones who wish to avoid a life of welfare, said DeFosse, who is a welfare recipient himself, along with his wife and four children.

Many people view all people on welfare as being "lazy, useless and shiftless," DeFosse said. But those who are students do not fit this stereotype.

"You're talking about people who were destined and on their way to a life of welfare and being losers who now have a good chance of getting off welfare, staying off welfare and becoming good taxpayers," DeFosse said.

For the present, these students endure the special demands of their dual lives.

Kohn, now studying computer science, said he and others like him are especially driven to make it as students.

Once back in the job market, the younger and older students will be competing against each other for more than grades. Younger students who have no family to support may be willing to take less pay, Kohn said.

"We have to be better," Kohn said.

DeFosse, Kohn, Tweedy and others said they were happy with their decision to go to college, even though they and their families face obstacles, hardships and prejudice on a daily basis.

"It's this or sit home and draw welfare for the rest of my life. I'd prefer to go back to work," DeFosse said.

New student editor appointed

Paula J. Finlay has been named student editor-in-chief of the Daily Egyptian for spring semester.

Finlay, who is majoring in journalism and political science, has been on the D.E. staff four semesters. She has worked as a general assignment reporter, city reporter, and is currently associate editor.

The 21-year-old Mendon, Ill., native also served an internship last summer for the Evansville, Ind., Sunday Courier & Press, writing stories, editing copy, and taking photographs.

Finlay's plans to expand the D.E.'s coverage of campus and Carbondale area news to include more in-depth and investigative reporting. The return of an experienced staff in January should enable the paper to publish more complex stories, Finlay said.

She plans to continue the weekly Focus page, and will encourage more feature writing about the different things, including research, that people on campus and in the Carbondale area are doing.

"There will be some exciting changes in the D.E. next semester," Finlay said enthusiastically.

Finlay's personal career goals include working for a medium-sized daily newspaper. She hopes eventually teach college journalism, particularly

Mister Rogers song prompts firing

NORTH PERRY, Ohio (AP) — A nuclear power plant electrician was fired for playing Mister Rogers' neighborhood theme song over the plant's public address system every morning for three months.

Promptly at 7:30 a.m. each day beginning in September, workers would hear Mister Rogers' reassuring voice crooning over the loudspeakers: "It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood.... Won't you be my neighbor?"

Electrician Larry Nudelman said the broadcasts started as an "innocent whim" that became a morale booster for workers at the plant, which is under construction about 30 miles northeast of Cleveland.

But when security guards caught him in the act of trying to cheer up people last week, officials of Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., the plant's builder, weren't laughing.

Nudelman, 38, was fired from his job with L.K. Comstock Inc., the plant's electrical contractor, about two hours after he was caught Dec. 5.

Company officials were especially irked two weeks ago when Mister Rogers filled the air during a mock disaster drill, which was overseen by officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Underage drinking fines at Halloween give city $11,800

Underage Halloween parties generated nearly $12,000 in fines for the City of Carbondale this year, according to the Jackson County judge who presided at most of the revelers' first appearances.

More than 200 court appearances were processed in less than three-and-a-half hours Nov. 26 in Carbondale city court, according to Associate Circuit Judge David W. Watt Jr. The bulk of the appearances were for charges of underage consumption or possession of alcohol stemming from the Halloween street party weekend, Watt said.

The number of Halloween-related court appearances is higher than last year's figure, Watt said, and accounted for $11,800 in fine money.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said that the Carbondale Police Department's stricter enforcement of alcohol statutes at this year's celebration accounts for the high number of court appearances.

Radio-television professor to be in forefront of satellite teaching

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

First it was the telephone, then television, then teleconferencing. In 1986 the breakthrough in communications technology will be "distant teaching," with selected teachers and students across the country all taking part in one seminar.

And SIU-C radio-television Professor K.S. Sitaram will be playing a major part in this latest breakthrough.

He will be using the newest, most advanced satellite made to help conduct several experimental seminars. The satellite, which costs $200 million and will be launched by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1986, is unique in that it is able to focus on certain parts of the country rather than scattering signals indiscriminately.

It can transmit a "fixed beam" to certain parts of the country, or it can "scan" areas, meaning the signals can be moved from one area to another just like one would move a light, spreading the rays from one area to another.

That is an advantage, Sitaram explained, because "the signal quality will improve and you don't have to spend so much power."

In the experiment he will be conducting, he said, both experts and students, some from the east and west coasts and some from the north and south parts of the country, will be interacting with each other in several seminars to take place over a year's time.

The seminars will deal with relatively new topics in such fields as communication policy, agricultural, science and technology.

"There will be four- to five-way communication between experts and students," Sitaram said. "It's like the same classroom meeting in the entire United States."

With this satellite he said he will be able to send four to five different programs at the same time, and seminars can be conducted and translated in several different languages with participants interacting simultaneously in their various languages.

The seminars will be offered in English, Spanish, Arabic, Japanese, and one Asian language, he said.

Sitaram, as the project's director, will be collecting data and writing a report to submit to NASA, which will in turn submit a report to Congress, on the success of the satellite.

NASA is not only allowing Sitaram to use this new satellite, it will also be paying for up to 10 hours of transmission time a week, which Sitaram said will cost about $35,000.

It is also lending SIU-C one of its "uplink" satellites, so that Sitaram can transmit as well as receive signals.

He said experts in two other universities and 27 industries will also be involved in experiments with the new satellite. Many of them will be testing technical aspects of the satellite, while he tests the educational aspects.

If the experiment is successful, he said, it can be applied to business, industry, government and education. Although this experiment is taking place only in the United States, "later on it can be applied internationally especially to business and education."

The new technology, he said, "is almost like a blessing to intercultural communication." "I'd like to see how it can bring people of different countries closer."

WSIU-TV seeking writers, artists, actors for show

WSIU-TV is looking for creative people who would like experience in script writing, character acting and artistic drawing, to participate in the production of their locally produced children's program called "The JoJo and Joyce Club," begun in October 1983.

The show, which airs daily at 2:50 p.m., features a 6-foot koala bear who lives in a treetop clubhouse with Joyce. Area children appear on the show and learn lessons with JoJo about colors, numbers, letters, safety rules and holidays.

The show is produced by WSIU television students, with theater and journalism students involved in script writing and acting.

Writers are needed for the 10-minute show. No experience is necessary.

Interested writers can inquire at the broadcasting service office in the Communications Building, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. until Friday. Information on actor and artist auditions, to be held in January, is also available there.

Freeze conference organizing movement against weapons

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

A grassroots movement pushing for a freeze on nuclear weapons is being organized by the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign.

At the national Freeze conference held Dec. 5-7 in St. Louis, the foundation was laid for a national organization with a strong grassroots backing to urge governments to negotiate a mutually verifiable freeze on nuclear weapons, said Mary O'Hara, one of three Southern Illinois Freeze representatives at the conference.

The campaign's major challenge is to "activate and mobilize people we discovered are interested in and concerned with the nuclear freeze issue," O'Hara said. To further the goals of the Freeze campaign, the organization plans a rally April 20-22, in Washington, D.C., and a rally commemorating the 40th anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima Aug. 6-9.

"The 'evil force' mentality of the Reagan administration, which shows us as the good guys and the Soviets as the bad guys is definitely a threat to world peace," O'Hara said. "We are at the point where we have to learn to cooperate if we are to survive."

O'Hara says that the United States and the Soviet Union need to explore what they have in common, rather than focus upon their economic differences. "Why not focus on our interdependence and common humanity rather than the 'good guy, bad guy' belief systems we have developed?"

People need to evolve past the point where nuclear weapons are used as a problem solver, she said. "The whole problem is that technology has advanced faster than an ethical or moral evolution of thought. Every time man has been threatened with extinction, man has evolved. We have to come up with a new way of thinking as a way to survive."

The Freeze organization sees a freeze on nuclear weapons as a distinct possibility within this decade, O'Hara said.

While a freeze on nuclear weapons is the most immediate goal of the organization, long range goals include actual reduction of nuclear arms and an elimination of the interventionist policies of the United States, she said.

The Freeze organization became active in Southern Illinois in 1980, as part of the Mid-America Peace Project.

SCAM wants better cut-off plan

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

The Illinois Commerce Commission is asking utility companies to reconnect service to people whose utilities have been cut off if they pay 12 percent of their outstanding bills, but Nick Rion of the Southern Counties Action Movement said that resolution is not enough.

SCAM is still asking the ICC to pass an "affordable budget plan" which would require low-income families to pay only 12 percent of their utility bills during the winter months, whether they are disconnected or not.

"We're going to keep pushing the 12 percent plan across the board," said Rion. The resolution which the ICC passed Wednesday "is a long way from the affordable budget plan."

The resolution is only advisory and is not legally binding to utility companies, but Jim Goff, a representative of Central Illinois Public Service Company, said, "We have no problem with this resolution. We are encouraging people who have been disconnected to come forward."

However, SCAM is continuing to put pressure on the ICC to pass their affordable budget plan.

An attempt to get the Carbondale City Council to endorse the plan failed, but SCAM has received endorsements from state Reps. Jim Rea of the 117th District and Bruce Richmond of the 116th District, and 59th District state Sen. Glenn Poshard.

"We are trying to get people who support the plan to contact the governor and let him know they support it," said Rion.

He said they are trying to put pressure on Governor Thompson to meet with the ICC.

Many prefer real tree look, say tree merchants

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

This Christmas, as with every other, many people will be buying live or cut trees to decorate. The reasons vary, but Ruby Jung, store manager of Hillside Nursery, says she thinks most people buy live trees because they don't like the way artificial ones look.

"They think artificial doesn't look as nice, and there is no pine smell like there is with real trees," she said.

HILLSIDE IS selling three to four trees a day, which Jung said is the usual amount of trees for this time of the holiday season.

Jung also said cut trees are selling better than live ones and prices depend on size.

"Most people don't have tall ceilings, so they buy a five-to six-foot tree. Banks, churches and people with older homes with higher ceilings buy the big trees, like the nine foot ones," she said.

MARJORIE CRALLEY, from Cralley's Nursery, said she that people seem to be more knowledgeable than in the past about cut and live trees and their care.

Cralley said people should buy trees that are locally grown, because they are generally fresher than trees that have been shipped in. Cralley said she thought most nurseries in the Carbondale area sell locally grown trees.

PAUL YAMBERT, professor in the Forestry Department, offered suggestions to make live and cut trees last.

Live trees can be replanted and Yambert recommends buying a live tree with a large burlap ball around the roots or in large pot to preserve the root system.

Yambert also suggested that when selecting a live tree, people should consider what they want the tree to do when replanted, such as providing shelter for animals.

ANOTHER FACTOR to consider is size, he said. Smaller trees are easier to transport and take care of, Yambert said.

The burlap ball or the soil in the pot needs to be kept moist, he said, because if it dries out, the tree will die. Live trees can only be kept indoors a short amount of time, usually five to ten days, Jung said.

Yambert suggested strung popcorn as a tree decoration and said other decorations should be kept to a minimum.

AFTER THE holidays, the tree needs to be either replanted or moved to a site that is sheltered from the wind but gets plenty of light, he said.

If the ground is frozen, the tree should be sheltered until spring. If the ground is not frozen, its better to plant it then, he said.

The tree should be planted, mulched with hay or straw, and, if a hard freeze is not expected, watered, Yambert said.

YAMBERT ALSO made suggestions for selecting cut trees, he said.

The tree should have been cut recently, which means it will have been cut locally, Yambert said. Next, the needles should be checked. They should be a bright, emerald green color, not brittle, and they should not fall off when the tree is shaken, he said.

After the purchasers take the tree home, they need to cut the trunk at a 45 degree angle, about two inches from the original cut.

SIU-C police urge students to take vacation precautions

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

SIU-C Police are encouraging students and other members of the SIU-C community to take a few precautions to ensure that their holiday is not marred by home-intruding "grinches" when they leave for vacation.

Doors and windows should be securely locked, and valuables taken home, if possible. Any valuables left behind should be inscribed with the owner's driver's license number, said Nelson Ferry, SIU-C Police community relations officer.

Vacationers should have a friend or the landlord check on the apartment periodically to make sure it hasn't been broken into, Ferry said.

Furnaces should be left in proper working order, because faulty heating systems have been known to cause trailer fires when left unattended, he said.

"One of the biggest things," Ferry said, "is if they live in the dorms, they should leave a note on a bulletin board saying where they can be reached over the holidays in case of an emergency."

Ferry said that a similar note should be left near the phone or on the kitchen table by apartment and trailer-dwellers.

People trying to find rides home for the holidays should take precautions, too, said Susan Smith, campus safety representative.

Smith said people should not leave their full names and addresses on the Student Center ride board cards when they solicit a ride, because she has heard of women being harassed by men who learned of their address on the ride board.

It's a good idea to meet with potential drivers or riders before it's time to leave, Smith said, so a person can decide if their co-riider is legitimate.

People should also consult the student directory make sure the rider or driver is really a student, she said.

Smith said that friends should be notified when a person is leaving town and when they expect to arrive at their destination, and also of the identity and address of the driver.

A legitimate driver will not object to such precautions out of a concern for his or her own safety, Smith said.

City police seek burglary suspect

Carbondale police are asking residents to be on the look out for a man suspected of pilfering from offices in the area, police administrative assistant Tom MacNamara said.

The suspect has apparently entered at least three offices over the past week under the ruse of needing to use a telephone, MacNamara said, and has used the opportunity to steal from purses and cash boxes. MacNamara said that the dates and locations of the incidents are not being released at this time.

MacNamara described the suspect as a black male in his 20s, 6 feet 1 inch to 6 feet 2 inches tall with a thin build. He was last seen wearing a maroon SIU jacket with the name "Rich" written vertically on the front, as well as a maroon and white SIU cap and blue jeans.

MacNamara said that anyone with information about the suspect can contact Detective Don Barrett at 549-2125.

Students get credit, experience for work in volunteer program

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Credit for Structured Volunteer Services is a program in which course credit is given to students who volunteer to work in community, campus or area organizations.

This semester, the three-year-old program has given more than 50 SIU-C students credit applicable to their degrees and experience in working with other organizations.

CSVS is an outgrowth of the now-defunct University Year For Action and is jointly sponsored by SIU-C's Community Development graduate program and the School of Social Work. Paul Denise, one of the coordinators of the program, said the purpose of CSVS is to try to "institutionalize community learning."

Students involved in the UYFA had a one-year commitment with social agencies dealing with poverty-stricken families. The federally funded program gave volunteers college credit and also a stipend, but it also disbanded after five years.

CSVS volunteers sign a one-semester contract, Denise said, with a specified number of hours to work each week. The amount of credit given varies, depending on how many hours the student volunteers; 32 volunteer hours are equivalent to one credit hour, while 256 volunteered hours are equivalent to the six-credit-hour maximum.

Mary Campbell volunteered as a librarian three to four hours per week at Carbondale New School where her children attend classes. Her work at the school included supervising students during their playground period, processing books in and out of the library, and generally keeping it in order. "My experiences were totally different — I never worked in a library before," she said.

Students have volunteered at community organizations including Synergy, the Eurma C. Hayes Center and the Red Cross blood drive. But students do not always stay in the Carbondale community, Denise said.

Debbie Birdsong has a full-time job, a family and is 13 hours from getting a bachelor's degree in University Studies. With a limited amount of time for classes, Birdsong volunteered her CSVS time with the Mt. Vernon chapter of United Way. For the United Way telethon last October, she and five friends "did the majority of the work" in organizing the organization's telethon which raised more than double its $5,000 goal.

"I put in a lot of hours more than I got credit for," she said.

This Santa Claus 'hears' everyone

PEORIA (AP) — When Jim Cooper dons his woolly red suit and white Santa beard and goes to the shopping mall on weekends, it's with a special message to be seen — not heard — by some children.

Cooper "listens" to Christmas wishes from deaf children.

"The whole point is so the (deaf) kids see their brothers and sisters and the whole family going out to see Santa at the same place," said Cooper, who teaches mentally handicapped children in Peoria's public schools.

"It's the same Santa for all the kids, rather than a separate Santa making a special trip for hearing-impaired kids at their schools," he said.

Cooper, 29, said a deaf child feels cheated if he's kept off Santa's lap because Santa's only language is the spoken word.

"How are deaf kids to believe in Santa if the Santa for them isn't the same one as for all the other kids?" asked Cooper, who's been playing Santa for three years.

Amy Hasdell, a 6-year-old in a pretty blue dress whose world has been silent since she was born, didn't feel cheated this year.

Fluently using her hands and fingers, she told Cooper's jovial Santa she wants a doll and a little pony for Christmas. It was the same Santa her 8-year-old brother, Joey, who hears perfectly, spoke to.

MCAT Classes Starting in Carbondale
Mid February, 1985

There will be an open house Tuesday, January 29, 1985 from Noon to 4:00 p.m. in the Saline River Room, Student Center. We will register MCAT students for the Spring course and display material relating to other courses.

Everyone is Welcome!

Our broad range of programs provides an umbrella of testing know-how that enables us to offer the best preparation available, no matter which course is taken. Over 44 years of experience and success. Small classes. Voluminous home study materials. Courses that are constantly updated. Permanent centers open days & weekends all year. Complete tape facilities for review of class lessons and for use of supplementary materials. Make-ups for missed lessons at our centers.

CCHS Holiday Tournament to feature 11 area cage teams

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

High school basketball fans in the Southern Illinois area will have an opportunity to enjoy some top-flight hoop action when Carbondale Community High School hosts the 21st Annual Carbondale Holiday Tournament Dec. 27-29 at the Arena.

The 16-team field will include 11 area teams: CCHS, Cairo, Zeigler-Royalton, West Frankfort, Pinckneyville, DuQuoin, Carterville, Herrin, Murphysboro, Marion and Meridian.

The tournament was formerly limited to Class AA schools, but for the second consecutive year, Class A schools will be allowed to participate.

"This is the second year the two-class format has been used and it offers a lot of Southern Illinois communities a chance to get involved," Doug Woolard, CCHS athletics director and head basketball coach, said. Teachers at CCHS are presently on strike and if the strike continues, the Terriers will be unable to play in the tourney because of an Illinois High School Association rule. Woolard said CCHS would still host the tourney if the strike continues.

"If we are unable to play for any reason, we would go ahead and host the tournament and find a replacement team," he said.

Woolard said the 16-team field is one of the finest ever assembled. The five non-area teams — Marseilles, Springfield, Chicago St. Patrick, Belleville East and Champaign Centennial — should provide stiff competition for the area teams, he said.

"We're really excited," he said. "Each one of the schools will be competitive. It will offer an opportunity for Southern Illinois fans to see some fine basketball."

Some of the top area players who will be featured in the tourney are Ronnie Tate and Steve Bardo of Carbondale; Sean Connor of Zeigler-Royalton, an All-State performer who will play for Notre Dame next year; Don Peavey of West Frankfort; Monte Kuhner of DuQuoin; Anthony Goodrum, who will play for Colorado State University next year, and Shane Gooden of Herrin; Mike Samuel of Carterville; Tony Kerrens and Kevin Lynn of Murphysboro; Shawn Box of Cairo and James Prat of Meridian.

Gary Leonard of Belleville East will be the most visible player among non-area teams. Leonard, a 6-11 center, will play for the University of Missouri next season.

Tournament play will open on Dec. 27 with Cairo meeting Zeigler-Royalton in a 9 a.m. game. Quarterfinal games will be played on Dec. 28 with semifinal and championship action slated for Dec. 29.

Braves making strong bid for Sutcliffe

ATLANTA (AP) — Rick Sutcliffe is expected to make a decision later this week on where he wants to pitch next season, and his agent says the Atlanta Braves are among the right-hander's top three choices.

"The Braves are definitely in the top three," agent Barry Axelrod said.

Axelrod said Monday he had final contract bids for the free agent pitcher from five teams, including the Chicago Cubs.

Sutcliffe pitched for the Cubs last season, finishing 16-1 and winning the National League Cy Young Award. The other clubs are the Kansas City Royals, San Diego Padres, St. Louis Cardinals and Atlanta.

However, Sutcliffe may be tough to pry loose from Chicago.

Cubs' General Manager Dallas Green reportedly told Atlanta General Manager John Mullen at baseball's winter meetings in Houston last week to "Forget Rick Sutcliffe. He's mine."

"I'm not going to get into that," Mullen said Monday.

Braves owner Ted Turner said he isn't as confident of signing Sutcliffe as he was about reliever Bruce Sutter, the free agent who was signed by Atlanta last week.

Axelrod said Sutcliffe is considering the Braves' offer because the Sutter signing "improves their team greatly."

Babcock ends layoff by placing 2nd in all-around at Swiss Cup

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Four gymnasts, two of which are currently on the Saluki men's roster, returned to Carbondale after competing in various gymnastics meets over the last two weeks.

Junior David Lutterman and former SIU-C gymnast Brian Babcock returned from international competition, while freshman Ken Clark and former Saluki John Levy arrived after taking part in the Rocky Mountain Open last weekend in Colorado.

Babcock, competing for the first time since the Olympic Trials in June, had strong performances while representing the United States at the Swiss Cup in Chiasso, Switzerland and the DTB international meet in Stuttgart, West Germany.

"I enjoyed the trip and the German and the Swiss people tremendously," Babcock said.

BABCOCK WASN'T affected by the long layoff, as he scored a solid 57.90 in the all-around at the Swiss Cup, second only to Olympic all-around gold medalist Koji Gushiken of Japan. The following week, he scored a 57.70 to place seventh at the DTB competition.

"I was very pleased with my performances. I had two good all-arounds, and I showed that I haven't lost my consistency since June," he said.

Consistency was Babcock's strongpoint in Chiasso, as he finished in the top five in all six events, and finished second to Gushiken in two events, the pommel horse and the parallel bars. Gushiken won five of the events, and China's Zou Limin, third in the all-around, won the other.

Babcock scored a 9.75 while finishing third on the high bar, and scored 9.70's on the pommel horse and the rings at the Swiss Cup.

In the DTB meet, which was also won by Gushiken, Babcock scored 9.70s on the pommel horse, parallel bars and the rings, finishing no lower than sixth in the three events. He finished second to East Germany's Jens Fischer on the rings, scoring 9.70 and 9.75 in two attempts.

"THE COMPETITION in the DTB meet was stronger than at the Swiss Cup. The top eight or nine gymnasts were very talented, and several Olympians competed," Babcock said.

Lutterman, a native of Nelson, New Zealand, represented his homeland in the Pacific Championships in Reno, Nev. and San Francisco, Calif. against China, Japan, Canada, Australia, Taiwan and the United States.

Lutterman led New Zealand with a 55.10 in the all-around in Reno, placing 15th. China, Japan and the United States were the top team finishers, with Olympic vaulting champ Lou Yun leading the Chinese squad.

In San Francisco, he placed 16th, scoring 55.10 again, and reaching the finals on the pommel horse and the high bar. He finished seventh on the pommel horse and eighth on the high bar. Once again China

Japan and the United States were the top teams, with the Americans taking second.

"I was very pleased with my performance in both meets, and I felt like I improved. I was pretty solid in all six events, and I beat some good gymnasts from Canada, Taiwan and Australia," Lutterman said.

Levy, who was the Salukis' top all-arounder in his final season last year, won the all-around title at the Rocky Mountain Open last weekend, scoring over 54 in the compulsorys, and over 99 in the combined.

"I HAD some problems with the floor exercise and the vault, but I'm real happy with my overall performance," Levy said.

Levy placed third with a 9.65 on the high bar, and also advanced to the finals in the parallel bars, finishing eighth. New Mexico University won the team title, but the meet also included several gymnasts not representing schools.

"There were a lot of good gymnasts, and I'm really happy I won the meet," Levy said.

Clark, who was red-shirted last year as an SIU-C freshman, competed in four events, scoring highest on the high bar with an 8.90. He also turned in strong performances on the rings (8.75) and the floor exercise (8.50).

"It was a good meet and a good experience. I was real happy with my sets on the rings and the floor exercise, and I learned from some of my mistakes on the other events," Clark said.

Solimine's departure means added recruiting task for Illner

By Steve Kollas
Staff Writer

Saluki field hockey coach Julee Illner knew she had a big task ahead of her for next season, hoping to replace four graduated starters from this year's 12-7-3 team.

But during Thanksgiving break, Illner learned she would have to replace one more departed starter when sophomore Sue Solimine decided she wasn't going to return to SIU-C next fall.

Solimine, a theatre major, plans to transfer to a private college in Boston where she can specialize in her field.

"Sue feels it's a move she has to make for her career," Illner said. "If she stays here, she'll continue to play field hockey but, by switching schools, she can devote herself to her acting career. I don't want to see her go but she can't make a career out of field hockey."

Solimine was one of the catalysts in the Salukis late-season surge after Illner switched her from right halfback to forward. She responded with four goals in the final seven games, helping the Salukis post a 6-0-1 record in that span.

Sue Solimine

But while Illner is disappointed in losing Solimine, her No. 1 concern is finding a starting goalie and a backup goalie who can replace graduated seniors Sandy Wasfey and Lisa Cuocci.

"Right now, I'm looking for a junior college goalie who has to be as good as the two goalies that I'm losing," Illner said. "I also hope to bring in a high school goalie who can develop into a good player in two years. If I can't bring in a junior college goalie, I might have to survive the inexperience of two freshmen goalies for one year."

Another crucial player Illner needs to replace is sweeper Nancy McAuley, a four-year starter.

Illner said she plans moving Karen Cordell, a part-time starter at right halfback, to sweeper next season and hopes to recruit a high school player to back up Cordell.

"I'm looking at Karen as a sweeper next year," Illner said. "She has some things she needs to learn but I think she can do the job for us. We hope to break in a high school player behind her who can start the following three years."

Illner, who has six scholarships open, said she also wants to sign a forward, a halfback, and a backup at either the link or halfback position.

SALUKI NOTES: Left wing Sharon Leidy was named to the College Field Hockey Coaches Association All-Regional Team.

Leidy, a senior from Mt. Holly Springs, Pa., registered 10 goals and added one assist to tie teammate Kathy Crowley as the team's No. 1 scorer this season.

Wilder emerges as superb tailback

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — James Wilder toiled in relative obscurity for 2 and a half years as the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' fullback, but this season he has emerged as one of the National Football League's finest tailbacks.

While he doesn't create the excitement of an Eric Dickerson or provide the blend of quickness and power of a Walter Payton, Wilder's statistics suggest he's the most complete back in the game this season.

"Dickerson's thing is that he is faster and will make more long runs," Bucs Coach John McKay said. "But I don't think he or anyone else will make more consistent yardage."

Wilder, who is within 14 carries of equalling Dickerson's single-season record for carries, has rushed for 1,441 yards on 376 attempts. But what sets him apart from Dickerson and Payton, who both top Wilder in rushing yardage, is his pass catching ability.

The fourth-year pro has 76 receptions — tied for third in the NFL — for 625 yards, giving him 2,066 total yards from scrimmage, second to Dickerson's 2,140 (2,007 of which have come on the ground).

Wilder can equal Rickey Young's NFL record for receptions by a running back in Sunday's season finale against the New York Jets and is within 177 yards of O.J. Simpson's single-season total-yards-from-scrimmage mark of 2,243 set in 1975.

While wins haven't been easy, men cagers meet expectations

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball shows optimism this season and with good reason: the team returns five starters from last year's 15-13 team.

The Salukis have lived up to its early-season expectations, posting a 6-1 record this season.

They have defeated non-conference opponents Missouri-Kansas City (64-53), Indiana State-Evansville (88-70), Southwest Missouri State (71-67), St. Louis (73-64), Navy (75-72), and Chicago State (92-87), and their only loss has come against Texas-El Paso (77-75) in the championship game of the Saluki Shootout II.

"With the exception of our first two games, the wins haven't come easy," Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle said. "Southwest Missouri could have beaten us, and we certainly could have been beaten by Navy, who came in here with an outstanding center (David Robinson)."

The Salukis have displayed several strengths this season. For example:

—SIU-C has displayed a well balanced scoring attack this season. The Salukis five starters are all averaging in double figures — guards Nate Bufford (15.9 points per game) and Roy Birch (12.4), forwards Cleveland Bibbens (13.8) and Bernard Campbell (14.3), and center Kenny Perry (11.7).

—The Salukis have shot well from the field, connecting on 51.2 percent of their shots and have three players who are shooting better than 50 percent. Bufford has connected on 41 of 75 shots for 54.7 percent, Bibbens is 43 of 79 for 54.4, and Perry is 35 of 60 for 58.3.

—SIU-C has only committed 87 turnovers this season, an average of 12.4 per game. They have forced their opponents into making 117 turnovers, an average of 16.7.

"I'm happy with the leadership Birch and Bufford have given us at the guard spots," Van Winkle said. "For the most part Bernard Campbell is much improved in poise and defense, and is more under control offensively and defensively."

Bibbens has played extremely well in his last three games, averaging 17 points and 11 rebounds. He has pulled down 65 rebounds in the seven games for a team-high 9.3 average.

"I think Cleveland is an aggressive player and is a great competitor," Van Winkle said. "Physically, he is quick around the basket and has good, strong hands. He has a good nose for the ball and is usually at the right place at the right time."

While Bibbens is rebounding well, Perry is struggling and is averaging only 4.9 rebounds. Last season, Perry averaged 6.6 boards.

"We certainly hope Kenny's rebounding comes around because we really need his rebounds," Van Winkle said. "I think he is working at it real hard, but I think there are a lot of rebounds he starts out and Bibbens gets them before he gets there. Rebounding is something Kenny will have to continue to work on."

SALUKI NOTES: SIU-C faces the Murray State Racers (3-1 overall) Wednesday night at the Arena. Tip-off is set for 7:35 p.m.

Women cagers to play in Dial Classic

By Anita J. Stoner

Many would enjoy a trip to San Diego over break, but when the Saluki women's basketball team travels there to play in the Dial Classic, it will be all business.

The Salukis will face Oklahoma City University in the first round.

"I think we should be able to beat Oklahoma City," Coach Cindy Scott said. "But the minute you say that, you don't. So I hate to say that."

A win over the OCU Lady Chiefs would advance them to the championship game against ninth-ranked San Diego State. The Aztecs have three players from East St. Louis and Scott is quite familiar with their abilities.

"We have no strategy because we just don't match up well with them," Scott said. "They would be by far the toughest team we'll see all year."

All these tough non-conference opponents serve the Saluki purpose well.

Scott said, "We've played calibre competition, and we've probably had the best pre-conference schedule of anybody in the Gateway. Our won-loss record won't look as good, but that doesn't concern us. We will be ready."

The Salukis open their Gateway conference season against Indiana State at Davies Gymnasium, Thursday Jan. 3, at 7:35 p.m. The Lady Scammers were ranked seventh in the GCAC preseason poll but had a terrible 0-3 start, losing by an average of 15.3 points while giving away 15.3 more rebounds than their opposition. Scott will take all GCAC teams seriously, regardless of the statistics.

"Anything can happen on any given night. We've got to be mentally ready," she said.

No matter what happens as the season progresses, the Salukis have already played some tight games against top-ranked teams. Scott said they are looking forward to the beginning of GCAC contests, which should be even more intense since the winner takes all for the opportunity to continue to the NCAA tournament.

"Every conference game is a tournament game since there is no post season play," Scott said. "That's an incredible amount of pressure."

Tamie Sanders will rejoin the team for the Indiana State opener.

"She'll add a good dimension to our ball club," Scott said.

The Salukis will then play two more home games before taking another road trip. Illinois State will come to Davies Gymnasium on Jan. 5, followed by a St. Louis University, a non-conference opponent, on Jan. 7. The team and the fans will be most excited about the Illinois State game.

"There's been a tremendous rivalry for years because Southern Illinois and Illinois State have been fighting for championships," Scott said.

The final games before the spring semester will take the Salukis back into conference play at Bradley, Thursday Jan. 10 and to Northern Iowa, Saturday Jan. 12.

Women cagers win

The Saluki women's basketball team stunned Murray State 77-61 Tuesday night in a thrilling come-from-behind victory after trailing by 13 points with 14 minutes left in the game at Davies Gymnasium.

Ann Kattreh came off the bench to spark the Saluki offensive attack in the second half by converting a key three-point play at 12:01.

"Kattreh opened it up. She did a super job and we really needed that from her," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said.

The Salukis fell behind early due to the turnovers that have haunted them all season. Also, they could not stop the strong outside shooting of the Lady Racers, although ironically, that was what the Salukis' defense was designed to do. Murray State led 33-22 at the half.

"We were out hustled and out rebounded in the first half. We switched to the zone, hoping to get on their outside shooters," Scott said.

They forced 10 Murray State turnovers in the comeback stretch, while grabbing more rebounds.

Petra Jackson hit a game-high 24 points off the motion offense which finally clicked for the Salukis. The quick, sharp passes of Marialice Jenkins and Jackson caught the Lady Racer defense out of position while the Salukis dominated the lanes.

Scott said, "We came out and did what we've waited for all year. We kept our composure." Bridgett Bonds scored 15 and her 6 rebounds tied Jackson for game high. Kattreh totaled 13 points.

Cashen says Carter was ready to go to Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Carter already had the champagne on ice at his home in West Palm Beach, Fla., when New York Mets General Manager Frank Cashen and associates arrived to talk about a contract.

And, in a matter of hours, Cashen was using a typewriter left over from Carter's college days to make the last-minute contract revisions that would bring Carter to the Mets.

"I got into his car at the airport and we shook hands," Cashen said. "I went down there knowing I would have to negotiate, but in his mind, he already had the uniform on."

The trade that sent four Mets, including shortstop Hubie

Brooks and catcher Mike Fitzgerald, to the Montreal Expos for Carter was made during baseball's winter meetings last week. It was completed Monday when the Mets agreed to assume Carter's contract and include a no-trade clause.

In return for the no-trade clause, Carter agreed not to exercise his right to demand a trade during the remaining five years on his contract, believed to be worth about $1.87 million per year.

Carter was not taking calls Tuesday, but he had a 2 p.m. EST news conference scheduled for Wednesday at Shea Stadium. Tuesday, Cashen described the high-level negotiations to a small gathering of reporters at the ballpark.

Apparently Carter's only real concern, once the Mets agreed to the no-trade clause, was the names of the M-'s who had been traded.

"He was afraid early on that we had traded some of the pitchers he had wanted to work with," Harazin said.
