Internationals doubt leader

A letter written by several International Student Council staff members and passed around for signatures stated that the ISC president has abused his rights and lacks the skills necessary for effective leadership.

The letter has received 26 signatures but M. Ali Firouzi, president of the ISC, said it contains no substance. He said it is the product of a few staff members who have tried "poisoning" others to believe these accusations.

He said 26 out of almost 3,000 international students does not

English carols, jester highlight Madrigal Dinner

Royal fanfare fails to capture audience, Christmas spirit

IF THE mimes, actors and sword-brandishing fencers ever wondered Friday night why there was such a roar of why there was such a roar or silverware and murmuring in the rear section of the dining hall while the rest of us were only paying them attention out of politeness, it was because their brief flashes of performance weren't pronounced enough to command audience attention away from the meal and the friendship of dinner companions.

USG compromising students, constitution

THE UNDERGRADUATE Student Government has done it again.

Just when you thought the USG was beginning to clean up its act, it pulls a dunderhead move by failing to impeach academically ineligible Sen. Juliana Taylor.

Two votes short of a two-thirds majority to impeach Taylor, USG senators voted in favor of compromising the

THE WHOLE situation is very simple. If a senator does not meet the requirements set forth in the USG constitution, then the senator should be removed from the committee. It's the right thing to do. It's the obvious thing to do. And it's the professional thing to do.

But the USG doesn't seem to be concerned about being professional or doing the right thing.SIU-C students should be fed up by now, if not angry.

USG SENATORS were elected by students to serve the best interests of the students, but the USG is unable to do its job effectively because of petty, in-house squabbling and childish behavior.

In her defense, Taylor said, "If I thought I was in the wrong, I would have resigned quietly." Well, Taylor is in the wrong, but won't admit it. The USG constitution requires that all senators have a GPA of at least 2.0. Taylor does not meet this requirement.

IF THE USG is going to raise a hullabaloo over former Sen. Vince Kelly — who was impeached because he was a graduate student, thus making him ineligible to be a senator as set forth in the USG constitution — then the USG should at least be consistent and force Taylor to meet the same requirements as all senators.

TAYLOR'S IMPEACHMENT is not a matter of personal bias, nor is it unfair treatment, as Taylor has said. It's a matter of necessity. She is not qualified to be a senator and, if the USG wants to be taken seriously, she should be

Also, it is not the impeachment proceedings that are destroying the senate, as Taylor has said, but her stubborn refusal to relinquish a chair that no longer belongs to her.

'He's' not impressed with sexist labeling

Since my gender puts me at an understanding disadvantage, I meticulously read what you had to say about this oppression and how it facilitates itself in the classroom. I searched throughout your letter to find evidence of this stereotypical oppression that obviously runs. oppression that obviously runs rampant within this University, yet the only "oppressive" character of the current environment that you stated was the word "he" when used as a label for a person of unknown gender.

When this vile act of linguistic indecency was pointed out to me, I was in shock. How could this happen? shock. How could this happen? I started looking through books and found that this ghastly method of labeling genderiess persons ran rampant throughout all my books. Seeing that this plague is so widespread, I wondered how any woman could keep her sanity when reading.

Ms. Morris, it's not that I don't support efforts to curb oppression of any group, it's that the theme of you letter did that the theme of you letter did not match its contents. It seems to me as though you were using the problem of sexism as a way to vent frustrations caused by an attempt to change the status quo in a field that is reluctant to evolve. Soviet gesture might be trick, but deserves our investigation

REMEMBER WHEN it was REMEMBER WHEN it was American presidents who made idealistic speeches about beating missiles into computer chips and the Russians who stood around and muttered, "Careful Comrades, it could be a trick"? Those were the days.

Mikhail Gorbachev has gone a long way toward reversing the public images of the Soviet Union and the United States in the eyes of the world. Where once it was the Soviet Union that was suspicious, paraneid and secretive, with the United States confident, optimistic and open to compromise, now it tends to be the other way round.

Gorbachev had little choice but to cut military costs. The Soviet economy is a basket case and the U.S.S.R. can't afford the huge military outlavs it's been putting out.

That was a remarkable speech Mr. Gorbachev gave to the United Nations Wednesday Hamming Medthe United Nations Wed-nesday. He promised to reduce his armies by 500,000 troops, 50,000 of them from the borders of Europe. He said he would make the defensive nature of his Eastern European forces manifest. He talked about the conversion of defense plants and radar stations into something useful. Arms control, the protection of Arms control, the protection of the environment, democracy at home, freedom abroad, human rights, reduction of Third World debt, he hit all the keys; he did everything but drop dc rn on one knee and sing "Mammy." It was a bravura performance.

And the response of our leaders? Cautiously optimistic.

THE SPEECH sounded good, they said, but we don't know what it means. Even after the troop reduc-tions Soviet forces will still outnumber ours two-and-a-half to one in Europe. And as for dismantling things, we'll believe it when we see it. In any case, Gorbachev had little choice but to cut military costs. The Soviet economy is a basket case and the U.S.S.R. can't afford the huge military outlays it's been putting out. In other words, "Careful comrades, it might be a trick." Wall sure it might but it.

In other words, "Careful comrades, it might be a trick."
Well, sure it might, but it seems to me we owe it to ourselves to find out for sure. We shouldn't waste our time nitpicking Mr. Gorbachev's gesture, we should welcome it unreservedly and make a gesture of our own. "You're going to take 50,000 troops from the European horder? OK Gorby, we'll see those 50,000 and raise you 50,000." Something along those lines. I know, I know, that would still leave the Soviet Union with a hugely overwhelming superiority along the borders of eastern and western Europe. So what? We have about 300,000 troops in Europe at present. If they are there to stop a Soviet invasion of teurope, there aren't enough of them.

IF THEY'RE THERE as a trip-wire to make sure that we respond to an invasion, there are too many. Whatever the 300,000 troops are doing over there, 200,000 could do it just as well and for less money. And if you're looking for places to cut the military budget, getting rid of 100,000 troops who don't do anything is a beaut.

In any case, the notion that the Soviets are sitting enere, panting for an opportunity to invade western Europe is absurd. They have more than they can handle with the countries they're sitting on now. Moreover, no sane person can believe that anyone could conduct a major land war on. conduct a major land war on European soil without seeing it escalate into a nuclear war, with the mutual destruction of societies involved. what's the percentage? If you have to take a chance on something, take a chance on the Soviet Union not invading vestern Europe. It is perhaps time to recall It is perhaps time to recall yet again what President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in his farewell address nearly 28 years ago: "In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought on unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist."

The notion that the Soviets are sitting there, panting for an opportunity to invade western Europe is absurd.

WE'VE SEEN THE rise of that "unwarranted" power until it has become the major force driving our foreign policy. There is now nothing that can happen that does not translate into the purchase of more weapons. Are the Russians truculent? It proves we need more armaments. Are they conciliatory?

It proves they are cowed by our weaponry and demonstrates the need for more. We need a big defense budget in war and a bigger one in peace. And should we dirarm, it simply means we have to spend more to "modernize" our defense forces.

For the most part, "reactive the most part," WE'VE SEEN THE rise of

For the most "modernization" means mouernization" means replacing old weapons that don't work very well with new weapons that don't work at all. If the Soviet Union didn't exist, we'd have to invent it.

GORBACHEV, ALONE GORBACHEV, ALONE among world leaders, seems to realize that the key to hastening prosperity for the world lies in ending the arms race. He has taken the first step to do so. It is a small step but one taken at considerable personal risk. He has, after all, his own military-industrial complex to deal with his own military-industrial complex to deal with.

Postal stamp window offers extended hours

By Mark Barnett Staff Writer

The Little Egypt Philatelic Center at the Carbondale Post Office will have extended hours today, Tuesday, and Dec. 19, for those who have a stamp collector on their Christmas lists.

"A lot of people buy stamps as stocking stuf-fers," Greg Schafer, acting director of marketing and communication at the communication at the Carbondale Post Office, said. The Philatelic Center stocks commemorative stamps, mint sets and stamps issued since the beginning of the year. The Host families help students

Program designed to teach culture. assist in transition

By Diana Mivelli

For most students going home for the holidays requires little thought. The major concern is usually how to get home. But some international attachment does to home for the students do not go home for the holidays. The host family program tries to be the family y from home, an adviser at International Programs and Services said

Carla Coppi, foreign student adviser, said the host family program on campus does not include living arrangements.

"We aren't offering the service where the students live with the host family. In some cases, (the families) would like the students to stay with like the students to stay with them for a certain time," Coppi said.

The two kinds of host families are "special oc-casion" and "regular basis." Special occasion families host students on holidays like Christmas and Thanksgiving. Regular basis families meet

Christmas and Thanksgiving.
Regular basis families meet with the student several times throughout the year. Activities include movies, dinners and picnics. The regular basis host families offer students someone to confide in and talk with about problems.
"The important thing is "The important thing is having someone there, not just having someone there, not just peers, but someone in authority," she said.

The special occasion family is a good way for the international student to learn about American culture. Coppi said this is especially evident in cases where students are not from a Christian background.

"This gives them a complete

from a Christian background.
"This gives them a complete flavor of culture," she said.
Ingrid and Dennis Blanton have been involved in the program for about one year.
Mrs. Blanton, who has lived in different countries, said she attributed because she got involved because she always has been very in-terested in other cultures.

'Interacting with ternationals comes naturally to me. It is something I search out," she said.

Mrs. Blanton said she invited an Indonesian student for Thanksgiving dinner last year and her guest taught her about Indonesian foods.

"I was amazed at how rich "I was amazed at how rich their food was. It gives you a perspective on what we eat and why."

She said the program is a reciprocal relationship. Each student learns from the host family and vice versa.

Experience varies from family to family depending on how much tirr . the family and the student spend together, Coppi said.

"Some families have great interaction. The amount varies with each student," Coppi said. "We want families to (interact). Americans get as much or more when they open themselves up and experience new things."

Weichen Tsai, junior in finance from Taiwan, said her involvement with her host family has helped her with her host family .

Anyone interested in the host family program should stop by International Programs and Services, 910 S. Forest, or call the office at 453-5774.

Ingrid Blanton, coordinator for the International Programs office, left, and Marie Utsuml, a junior in political science from Japan, spend time together as part of the host family program.

We at the American Baptist Campus Ministry wish for you the best finals week ever. God will not just "pop" information into your head which you did not study; however, prayer can help provide you with the calmness and presence of mind to adequately take exams.

In addition we send to you the following Christmas greetings:

May Christmas bring you gifts no money can buy;

- a patience that endures hardship,
- a courage that can face the worst, an insight that shall be all things spiritual,
- a love that touches God, and a light that no darkness can dim.

Basketball teams combine for twin win

Herrin's final play of game puts end to Panthers' hopes

By David Gallianetti

Assistant basketball coach Rodney Watson knows his Eastern Illinois Panthers. He just wanted to make sure the players knew them too.

"Coach (Rich Herrin) did not really hollar or scream at not really hollar or scream at half," said Randy House, who paced the Salukis to a 73-72 victory over Eastern Saturday with 26 points, "Coach Watson took care of that." It would appear Watson had reason to be a bit uptight. After claiming a seven point, 25-18, lead with 8:11 left in the first half the Panthers went on a 22-6 scoring run to claim a 40-31 halftime advantage.

halftime advantage.
"On that burst they did the little things," said Watson, a former student assistant at Eastern. "Defensively they shat us down about the last five minutes, so it probably wasn't what we did or didn't do. We missed about 10 bun-nies that we are normally going to get down."

The Salukis struck quickly in the second half, claiming a 50-49 lead with 13:04 remaining. The lead was never more than three points for either team from that point.

With 14 seconds on the clock, two Jay Taylor free throws to put the Panthers up 72-71 to set up the game-winner. Kai Nurnberger drove inside, missed his layup and Freddie McSwain put in the missed shot to give the Salukis the win.

"I was supposed to take the ball in and see the best shot I could get," Nurnberger said. "I got in and missed it, but hickily Freeddie was there." Herrin said Nurnberger did

Defense nets first victory for women

By Robert Baxter

The 1-4 women's basketball team turned in its best performance the season Saturday night at the Arena, as they went up against a tough, physical 2-3 Central Michigan team that had been averaging 78 points per game in their first four contests.

Caippewa coach Donita Davenport said her team just couldn't buy a shot. The Chippewas shot 20 percent from the field.

SIU-C applied a stingy man-to-man defense, competely stifled the CMU attack, and went on to win 47-32.

"It was very difficult for me to get my players to realize we weren't playing an 0-4 team," Chippewa Coach Donita Davenport said. "The Salukis are definitely not a 1-4 team now, and I couldn't emphasize enough to my players just how talented the Salukis really were. We were actually at a disadvantage because they were 0.4" were 0-4.

"We took good open shots throughout the first half," Davenport said. "But we just couldn't get anything to fall. If we had sank even 45 pecent of our shots, it would have been a totally different ballegme." anots, it would have be totally different ballgame.

Both teams sparkled defensively in the first half as the Salukis pounded out a 20-16 halftime lead, mostly on the nanume lead, mostly on the strength of defensive pressure applied under the basket by sophomore Amy Rakers and senior Cathy Kampwerth under the basket.

They held 1988 All-MAC freshman of the year Sue Nissen to just two points, those coming with only 3:52 left in the game. Nissen had led the Chippewas this season with 23.3 points per game, along with Mary Oswald (13 ppg), and Shirley Joiner (11.5 ppg).
