GOFFREY RITTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Finally. It may be the call of the weary undergraduate at the end of the "final" final exams, or the relief of a master's student after the completion of a grueling thesis. Regardless, the feeling is the same. This college thing is finally over, and it's time to move on to better things.

Finally. And on Saturday, more than 2,300 SIUC students will pass out the door for the final time during fall 2001 commencement ceremonies. At 9:30 a.m., students will receive degrees in agriculture, applied sciences and arts, business, education and engineering. At a separate afternoon ceremony, beginning at 1:30 p.m., students will receive degrees in liberal arts, mass communications and science. In addition, students in the afternoon will get degrees from the law school and graduate school.

There are 2,134 candidates for bachelor's degrees, 160 for master's degrees and 27 doctoral candidates.

According to Stephen Foster, associate director of the admissions and records office, Chancellor Walter Wendler will be on hand at both ceremonies for commencement speeches. Foster said there will be no special speakers at either ceremony because the low number of graduates at fall commencement makes it "not as desirable to have special speakers."

A note from the editor

I have spent the last semester solely focused on two challenges: being editor-in-chief of the DAILY EGYPTIAN and trying to graduate. Both tasks have been difficult, exasperating and the most rewarding things I've ever done. After all the time, energy and strength I have put into these two endeavors, I am ready to be finished with both. The thing is, I don't think it has really sunk in that either are over. My cap is sitting on top of my computer in my office, which I have yet to come close to cleaning out (much to my successor's chagrin). My gown is wrinkled and flung over a chair in my living room. Maybe it's because I still have two finals to get through today. Or maybe it's because I'm not ready to move on to the next stage of my life.

Graduation is not just about putting on a funny black robe and walking across a platform. It is not just packing up and moving away from roommates. The hard part of graduation is not that you leave school, it is moving ahead. On Saturday the Arena will be filled with both tears of joy and sadness. Although graduation is a tremendous accomplishment, it also means leaving others behind. During the past four and a half years I've gotten used to saying good bye, and while I will be saddened, I have learned how to keep in touch. But, like many of the other graduates, this is the biggest step forward I have ever taken.

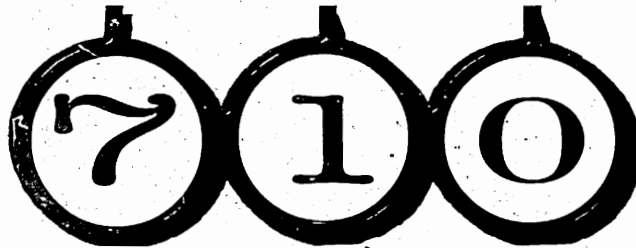

The future is a difficult place to step into. It is hard to stay on your path and even harder to see ahead. Our experiences at SIU have provided some help in our preparation for what lies before us. I want to thank my professors, instructors and everyone who has helped get me into the Arena on Saturday. I also want to thank my staff at the DAILY EGYPTIAN for making this the best semester of my college career. Through all of the criticisms and critics, all of you still came to work and did your best.

To my fellow graduates, I wish each of you the best in your endeavors. It will take courage to move ahead, as the future is murky at best. But we have come to a point where there is no place to go but forward.

Happy Holidays from the College of Liberal Arts

The College of Liberal Arts is the foundation of the University Core Curriculum; provides majors in over twenty subject areas; offers programs for students pursuing Master's and Ph.D. degrees; and is home to several research centers and academic support centers. The College of Liberal Arts also furnishes the university and southern Illinois communities a rich resource for musical performances, theatrical productions, fine arts exhibitions, and a wide variety of intellectually stimulating presentations through the many lecture series offered. The character in our ad is well-known in the area in association with McLeod Theater. Known to many as "McLeod Man", his real name is Metzger and he has a rich history dating back to circa 1622.

CoLA faculty are recognized locally, nationally, and internationally as leaders in their fields. Undergraduate and graduate students are also making an impact in their fields and gaining recognition, awards, and grants at SIUC, in the nation, and in international settings. CoLA alumni include Dennis Frazee (NYPD Blue), Roland Burris (former Illinois Attorney General), Robert Murphy (prominent AIDS researcher), Reginald Petty (Peace Corps Director: Kenya, Burkina Faso, Swaziland, and Seychelles), Christopher Cripps (Assistant Dean for International Development and Director of International Executive Education in Grenoble), and Richard Jurek (VP-Northern Trust Company).

Liberal arts courses provide important career skills to students including communication skills, problem-solving skills, and cross-cultural understanding. More and more, employers are seeking applicants with these traits. Even the most high-tech of software companies need employees who understand people. Liberal arts students have thousands of career opportunities open to them. Students in CoLA have many opportunities for externships, internships, study abroad, research, and creative activity. Interested in the College of Liberal Arts? If so, contact Anita Hutton, Coordinator of Recruitment & Retention by e-mail: mzart@slu.edu, phone: 453-4149, office: Fanez 2406. Or visit us on-line: <http://www.slu.edu/~cela>. Check us out...you'll be glad you did.
