Speaking out

Another step was taken in the drive against the tuition increase Wednesday as some students in GSD 103 conducted an opinion survey on the hike. Questionnaires were filled out at a table in the University Center, manned by members of the oral communications class. Miss Maureen Ryan, sophomore in General Studies, said the survey is being conducted by her class in cooperation with the Student Government Office as a winter quarter class project. The class will continue taking the survey through Thursday. (Photo by Dave Fitch)

State committee votes to set up investigation of Powell mystery

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - The Illinois Senate Executive Committee voted unanimously Wednesday to set up a bipartisan House-Senate committee to investigate allegations about the affairs of the late secretary of state Paul Powell.

Powell, who died Oct. 10 left a surprising $3 million estate including an unexplained hotel room cash hoard of nearly $800,000.

The 22-0 committee vote sent the resolution for the investigation to the Senate floor. The Powell matter also came up before the House Executive Committee with a different outcome.

A resolution offered by Rep. Clayde Choate of Anna, Democratic minority leader, to investigate the Powell case failed to clear the committee when it received a 14-14 vote.

Choate, former class associate of Powell, said on the House floor two weeks ago he wanted an investigation to clear up "innuendos that have been reported by certain members of the news media" about Powell.

Over Democratic protests, the GOP controlled House Executive Committee approved and advanced to the floor a resolution which would hold off any legislative probe until present investigations of Powell are completed.

The resolution submitted by GOP Majority Leader Henry Hyde of Chicago, calls for setting up a seven-member House ethics committee to await results of investigations being made by a federal grand jury in Chicago, the Sangamon County grand jury in Springfield and other probes.

Representative selection

Faculty to vote on proposals

By Larry Haley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Faculty Council will meet in special session Thursday to vote on one of two proposals for selecting representatives of the SIU Voting Faculty to the provisional Joint-Task Force on University Governance. James N. BeMiller, chairman of the council, said Tuesday.

The Ad Hoc Committee on Faculty Participation in University Governance, chaired by Abraham Mark, proposed that 14 representatives of the Voting Faculty to the Governance plan should consist of: two full professors, two associate professors, two assistant professors, two representatives chosen from instructors and representatives to be chosen at large.

The proposal also calls for the following representation from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences: two persons from the Humanities division, two from the Science division and two persons from the Social Science division.

There would also be one representative from the School of Technology and one from VTI, Olson's proposal said.

In a cover letter Olson told the council, that "in each of these units care must be taken to insure that all members of the Voting Faculty, including those newly added by the recent redefinition, be afforded the opportunity to vote. Olson said that persons who are currently members of the Faculty Council or the Graduate Council should not be eligible for election as representatives to the governance plan, unless they relinquish their seats on those councils.

BeMiller said Chancellor Robert G. Lyster had earlier requested that the chairmen of the Faculty Council, Student Senate, Graduate Student Council, Administrative and Professional Staff Council and the Graduate Council furnish him with names of each constituency's representatives to the governance plan.

Hospitals halt plans

Abortion law reinstated

WASHINGTON (AP) - An order issued Wednesday by a U.S. Supreme Court justice has temporarily, at least, reinstated Illinois' restrictive abortion law.

The order by Justice Thurgood Marshall stayed a Federal District Court ruling that held the state law unconstitutional.

State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan of Cook County said the effect of Marshall's order is that the Illinois statute remains "in full force and effect as if the three judge District Court opinion had not been rendered."

Hanrahan said he will vigorously enforce the law, which prohibits abortions unless performed by a doctor in a hospital to save a woman's life.

Marshall's stay was an interim order pending consideration by the full Supreme Court. If the court continues the stay, it will remain in effect until the case gets to the high court of appeal.

Hanrahan filed the petition for a stay after the District Court's ruling Jan. 29. That opinion specifically prohibited the state's attorney and Illinois attorney general from prosecuting physicians performing abortions within the first three months of pregnancy.

Since that ruling, three publicly announced abortions have been performed in Chicago hospitals, and Cook County Hospital had announced plans to perform 25 to 26 abortions a day.

The stay order brought a sudden halt to the County Hospital's plans.

More than 100 women had been scheduled for pre-abortion interviews at the hospital this week.

The women will be notified of the court order, hospital officials said, and no more appointments will be made until further notice.

Dr. Bart Heffernan, president of the Illinois Right to Life Committee, said he believes the order is a "turning point in the abortion controversy."

Gus Bode

Gus says now that the abortion law is back, his girlfriend has made all her appointments private.

The end is near

Icicles remaining from the recent snowfall and freezing spell hang from the roof of Barracks 0634 casting their shadow on the building's wall. Most of the icy fingers will be gone Thursday if the weatherman's forecast of temperatures in the 50's comes true.

Unrest curb proposed

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. (AP) - The chief of a legislative committee which investigated the causes of campus unrest in Illinois introduced legislation today which he hopes will curb the problems.

Sen. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, said his bills are designed to:

- Eliminate a "useless and probably unconstitutional differentiation between criminal property damage amounting to under $150, and damage to property in excess of that figure."

- Prohibit the publication and distribution of "violent publications" when they are intended to incite others to violence.

- Prohibit the distribution of pornographic literature on the campuses, unless the distribution is permitted by university authorities.

- Prohibit the distribution of pornographic literature on the campuses, unless the distribution is permitted by university authorities.

Liquor permit provokes heat

By Dave Mahan

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An ordinance granting a liquor license narrowly passed the Carbondale City Council by a 3-2 vote Tuesday night, but not until the council heard several "sermons" from area ministers and discussed the issue at length.

The Class D license, which allows beer and wine to be sold with meals only, was granted to Deborah Salas, Jane Salas and Suzanne Immon, who will soon open a delicatessen at 267 W. Walnut, formerly the site of Happy Daze.

Although granting of the license was recommended by the Mayor's Liquor Advisory Board and Liquor Commissioner David Keene, it met with considerable opposition, both at the council table and from the audience.

The issue of the rising number of liquor licenses in Carbondale rose above any debate over this particular license.

"Where's this thing going to stop anyway?" asked the Rev. Bob Worley, of the Walnut Street Baptist Church. "We are committed to help people, but the city also has a responsibility to help us. There's enough of this stuff downtown anyway," he said.

Irving Dunbar, of the American Baptist Campus Ministry, said that, as a Baptist, he has a religious conviction against "strong drink." He said that he opposed what he termed "avalanche" of liquor licenses for the welfare of the community.

Other Carbondale ministers present at the meeting reflected much the same feeling in 1 1/2 hours of debate.

Norvell Haynes, director of citizen participation for the Northeast Congress, supported the proposed license. He said that a vacant building is bad for the downtown area, and that if a license would help occupy the building, it should be granted.

Jane Salas told the council that she and her associate had received many requests from local businessmen for a place to walk to for lunch and a beer. She said that the issue was one of need, not one of morals or legality.

Before the vote was taken, Councilman Hans Fischer said that enough questions had been raised concerning liquor licenses that he would vote against issuing the license.

Councilman Joe Ragsdale said that he was at first inclined to abstain, but decided that "nothing is gained through abstinence. No pun intended."

Ragsdale's "Yes" vote was the deciding factor. Keene and Councilman William Eaton, who made the motion for approval, also voted in favor of granting the license.

The council indicated during the discussion that an impartial analysis of the liquor license situation in Carbondale and possible policy suggestions would be welcome. The Mayor's Liquor Advisory Board has expressed similar views.

Better police image sought

A Carbondale police officer not only feels there is a great lack of communication between the community and the police force, he's doing something about it.

Officer Larry Davis, who has been with the Carbondale Police for 17 months, laid the groundwork for a Police Community Relations (PCR) program last October.

"I brought up the idea for a PCR program and the department not only backed me fully on the idea, they even sent me to the University of Illinois for a course in PCR at the Police Technical school there," Davis said.

The program has not been completely organized yet, but Davis hopes it will be by the middle of February.

"We have several programs in mind," Davis said, "including a school lecture plan, a neighborhood meeting plan and meetings with street people."

In each program, police will go to the people to ask and answer questions and hold discussions on law enforcement policy and the reasons behind such policy.

Davis has already done some work on his own in some neighborhoods and with the street people.

"The response has been tremendous," Davis said. "Everybody seems to be greatly interested in the idea and so far I've gotten nothing but good vibrations from everyone."

Davis feels that a very important aspect of making PCR a success is a training program for the entire force.

"We do have somewhat of a unique situation here," Davis said, "due to the University."

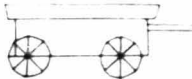

"We will definitely want to expand the program to include all members of the force and eventually even the SIU police force."

The goal of the PCR program, according to Davis, is to bring about a unification of all factions in Carbondale. "It's going to be a big job to accomplish this unification, but it will certainly be worth any and all effort we put into it," Davis said.

Opinion

New Senate has a big job

The anniversary of SIU's closing last May is three short months away and will undoubtedly be on the minds of representatives to the Provisional University Senate when they meet March 1.

Now that the Senate has been okayed by the campus community, the representatives know that it will be entirely up to them to develop a Senate that can keep the SIU campus "cool" when the spring creates possible heat and tension.

The Senate must, first of all, be flexible with the appropriate channels to give students—by far the largest campus constituency and the leaders of last spring's violent protests—a way to work constructively within the system. Student confidence, in short, must be restored to working within the system and not breaking windows and taking over buildings, which leads to confrontation with police, destruction and injury.

The Senate must prove itself an effective legislative force. Utilizing the proposal that has been established and combined with by-laws which will be drawn up, the Senate can override any veto by the chancellor and can present its decisions directly to the Board of Trustees. The Senate can also take the lead as a coordinator between its member segments.

But the members who make up the Provisional Senate cannot fall into the pitfalls that bog SIU now. The Senate cannot be too cumbersome, tied down by its own red tape. It cannot be so complex that its member groups cannot present proposals for consideration.

Accessibility is also very important to the Senate. If SIU is ever faced again with a crisis situation such as the one last spring, it will be up to the Senate to act.

The people have given the go-ahead even though the voter turnout was low. Now the fate of the Senate ultimately belongs to the members who will be elected from the various constituencies to make the Senate work.

The Senate members do not have the time to doodle. Time is of the essence if SIU hopes to enjoy a "cool" spring.

The right to be born is most basic of all

To the Daily Egyptian

In the history of civilization, mankind has gone through many ages—the Stone Age, the Iron Age and the Space Age. But now we have entered a new age that is so confusing it even defies being named. This is a day when almost anything we do out of love, joy or happiness is all right, a day when things are so very easy to get into and so very hard to get out of. But sometimes man gets progressive and discovers an easy way. He may have to bend his conscience a little or rationalize a bit to make it work but these are both easy to do. Does this sound familiar? It sounds like abortion to me.

Abortion could be defined as a relatively easy way to get out of something that is relatively easy to get into. The arguments for it are many and varied.

One says something to the effect that it is better to have an abortion than to let the child be born into wretched surroundings. I like to think of the many people who were born in the days of the Great Depression—into conditions more wretched than most of us can imagine. By today's standards and the attitudes of those advocating abortion, many if not all of these people should not have been born. But look at them today. Most are enjoying a high standard of living and are in every sense successful and happy. Some are not but at least they had a better chance to make it than those who are abortion victims nowadays.

Another argument for this practice stems from sympathy for the girl who discovers she is knocked up. To quote the Egyptian, "To whom does she turn?" I'd like to ask, "To whom does the unborn child turn?" Who defends his rights—or doesn't he have any? First of all, it's not his fault that he's even been created. He's only a product of his parents' night life. But even though it's not his fault, he's the one who gets removed and dumped into some fancy, hospital type garbage can. And since progressive politicians have considered the abortion law, little junior won't have anybody in his corner.

There are some arguments for the abortion that are more difficult than others. Like what to do in the case of rape or in the case of seriously deformed or retarded children. This last one may always be open to question but it should be remembered that medical technology changes and many deformed children can be helped. As for the case of rape, the poor girl deserves at least as much sympathy as the unborn child. But there's still a human life at stake and in the opinion of this writer there isn't enough justification to end it.

In the past few years many things have been said about rights. Very little or nothing has been said about the right to be born, however. This seems to be the most basic right of all. If we can't guarantee this one, then is there any hope for the others? Think about it!

Eades takes exception to Keene's remarks

To the Daily Egyptian:

(The following is an open letter to Mayor David Keene.)

I was considerably taken aback and incensed by a remark about me attributed to you in the Feb. 3 issue of the Southern Illinoisian and the Feb. 4 issue of the Daily Egyptian. You were quoted as saying that you had talked with me about serving on the Carbondale Board of Fire and Police Commissioners and had found that I "don't understand the job." As you have made no attempt to indicate otherwise, I assume that this was an accurate account of your statement.

I take offense at this remark because you have never discussed this "job" with me or inquired about my understanding of it. It is true that you came to my house last Sunday evening Jan. 31 for about ten minutes as a courtesy to two persons who have served on this board and who suggested my name. However, you made it clear that you already intended to recommend someone else, which certainly is your prerogative. At no point, however, did we discuss my qualifications, interests or "understanding of the job." Rather you did almost all of the talking about yourself and your interest in the current city election. I regarded these comments as most inappropriate and offensive as I originally had been led to believe that you had come to discuss my qualifications to serve on a "non-political" citizen.

Let me minister to your position, please understand that this letter is in no way meant to be a criticism of E. F. Zimmerman whom you have recommended to serve on the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Mr. Zimmerman may be an excellent person to serve in this capacity.

In conclusion, I suggest that if you are genuinely interested in enlisting nonpartisan citizen service on city boards and in the improvement of Carbondale, you should use greater propriety and honesty in matters of this nature during your remaining days in office.

Keene letter reassures couple

Journal story worries prospective residents

A month ago the Daily Egyptian reprinted a Wall Street Journal article which discussed the conflict between the SIU community and Carbondale residents. The article, apparently, was widely read. Recently, Carbondale Mayor David Keene received a letter from a Dallas, Tex., couple who were planning to move to Carbondale and join the University community. The couple read the Wall Street Journal article, however, and began to have second thoughts about the move.

Jon Booker's letter and Keene's reply indicate a somewhat different point of view than that espoused in the Journal.

They are reprinted here in full:

Dear Mayor Keene:

My wife and I are planning to move to Carbondale next September when I will join the School of Business faculty at SIU. We have visited the Carbondale area to look into the housing and shopping facilities available. We are now having some second thoughts about the community.

We were both dismayed to read the recent article in the Wall Street Journal (January 21, 1971) concerning the relations between local residents and the college students at SIU, along with other publicity about the area. Having lived in small college towns for several years, we are well aware of the friction that can build up between these groups. My concern is with the degree of this friction, and the effect it has upon the relationship between residents and SIU faculty.

As a leader of the community you are familiar with the attitudes present in the area. I would like to impose on you for a candid opinion of the local situation and any comments you may have concerning the recent adverse publicity.

Sincerely,
Jon A. Booker

Dear Mr. Booker:

As the Mayor of this bustling community, my working days are long and taken up with two things which I cannot seem to avoid: dull, routine meetings, and one crisis after another. So what a pleasure it was to open your sensible letter and read of your interest and concern in Carbondale. I have discussed the points of concern in your letter with Bill Schmidt, our City Manager, and we are in complete agreement that the first thing I should do is to urge you to make the decision to come to Carbondale and to assure you that you will not lead a life of boredom from a lack of things to do.

Now, as to the article: I want to get one thing out of the way quickly, and that is that I do not agree with the President of the Chamber of Commerce who feels that the town would be better off without the University. In my opinion, nothing could be farther from the truth. The University, and the people it attracts (example: one thousand international people from eighty countries), is the outstanding asset of our community. Mr. Schellhardt, The Wall Street Journal reporter, interviewed me for two hours. Although this was my first meeting with Mr. Schellhardt, I have had telephone conversations with him and am led to believe that he is most competent and ethical, and is actually reporting what he heard on the streets; and after all, that is the one and only purpose of his job.

I am a native Southern Illinoisan, and I do have an understanding of our small town attitudes; so I do see the problem to a number of our citizens when thousands of young people become visible because of hair, dress, or color. In many ways we can hide from change, but when you walk downtown and the majority of the people you meet look different from you, then the shock of change is no longer someplace else. Do not forget that we are not the only area that, just a few years ago, honestly believed that all the problems were in the "South," wherever that is. I also remind myself, when I begin to sound too self righteous, that it was in 1964, only six years ago, that the Supreme Court ruled that poor people have rights. So, I guess what I am attempting to say to you is that Carbondale has either willingly, or has been forced to face its problems and in the process of attempting solutions, has been caught in controversy which I recognize as part of reality.

I do feel that I should list some of our assets and positive accomplishments (accomplished not without opposition and controversy).

1. A professional City Government organization staffed with competent and well motivated persons who are very desirous of responding to "people needs."

2. The City's Model City Program, designed to respond to the core needs of the Black ghetto area in the community, is demonstrating that through a great amount of involvement by residents and staff, very meaningful inroads can be made into the pressing social, economic, and physical problems of the neighborhood.

3. The construction of a new and highly advanced wastewater treatment plant costing four million dollars.

4. The modernization of the equipment necessary for an expanded public works operation.

5. The redesign and reconstructing of City agencies having redevelopment responsibilities into a single City operation under the direction of the City Manager.

6. The designation of the City of Carbondale as a "growth center" for Southern Illinois by the Economic Development Administration, which designation by the federal government is a helpful influence in the City's quest for federal funds.

7. The establishment of the "Town Meeting" concept, whereby the residents of Carbondale, including University faculty, staff and students, have an opportunity about every 3 months to express concerns or make comments to the Mayor and City Council, the City Manager, and City staff in an open forum with answers given by the appropriate City official either at the meeting or, if further research is needed, by letter to the individual following the meeting.

8. A proposed study is presently in the formulation stages to provide community goals for Carbondale, similar to the Dallas goals statement. In addition, the City is in discussion stages relative to the creation of a downtown master plan for redevelopment.

9. Certain very positive community aspects of Southern Illinois University's location in Carbondale, including the educational and cultural atmosphere which is created in the community; and the fact that SIU has made some University personnel available to the City for staff.

10. The continual effort by the City, the Carbondale Park District, the State of Illinois, and the Federal Government to expand the recreational potential of the area. Immediately east of the community is beautiful Crab Orchard Lake which is surrounded by the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge. South of the refuge is the Shawnee National Forest.

Giant City State Park, just south of town, was formed by the last glacier to pass across the United States. The farther south in Illinois you travel, the more awe inspiring the rock formations become, and at the southern tip of the state, two of the greatest rivers in the world join. If I sound overly enthusiastic, I quote Marco Polo's dying words: "I haven't told you the half of it."

I am asking Goffrey Hughes of Southern Illinois Incorporated to prove me right by mailing you descriptive literature on Southern Illinois.

If I can provide you with further information concerning Carbondale, please call on me. I hope to see you in Carbondale in the fall.

Very truly yours,
David Keene
Mayor

Last weekend, Keene received a telephone call from Mrs. Booker. She told Keene that after reading his letter, she and her husband feel that Carbondale is just the kind of town they want to live in.

Criticism of Lambert is just part of a cycle

To the Daily Egyptian:

A wise man once said, "Don't argue with a fool. Someone may notice the difference."

Several years ago when Henry Gallatin again turned professional, Jack Hartman, a complete unknown was hired as a replacement. Everyone thought that first class basketball was over. Nobody felt that anyone could measure up to the "Horse." Jack Hartman was subjected to much criticism because his style of play was different. He was no instant success but the players adapted, the fans adapted and the sports writers finally adapted. When he left for Kansas, he probably enjoyed the greatest respect from the sports world as any SIU coach before him.

My thesis is directed at Mike Klein and I do not intend to enter into a long diatribe. The accounting of the Texas game was less than desirable, unbecoming to you as a sports writer and grossly unfair to the Sahukis. You let your personal criticism and opinions dominate your story, a violation of professional writing ethics. This is not your first story or the fifth. It was the 12th. You have been writing since October but you would never know it.

Paul Lambert is being subjected to the same criticism as Jack Hartman and Paul Lambert and his staff will succeed because they are knowledgeable men and dedicated to their craft. Time will tell.

If you must report, stick to the facts. If you want to preach, hire a hall. And here is a prediction for you. One of these days the momentum will take a Sahukis bounce and you will be one of the first on the band wagon. "It's always the dog that barks the loudest that runs under the house the fastest."

Third World Players deserve more attention

To the Daily Egyptian:

This past weekend, The Third World Players presented several performances of "Happy Ending" at the Newman Center. Under the direction of Ron Lockett, this newly formed group gave a very good performance. Unfortunately, very few people attended these presentations. Future performances may include LeRoi Jones' "The Baptism." The Third World Players do a good job; they deserve more attention.

'We prefer compromise to doing what's right'

To the Daily Egyptian:

SIU should establish a blue ribbon committee to investigate murder laws in the state and make recommendations for possible revisions. Whenever sentiment concerning issues polarizes and people take one view or the other (i.e. murder is bad vs. murder is good), compromise is necessary. Polarization is obvious over this issue, convicted murderers vs. public opinion. I am sure that SIU could develop a compromise (i.e. women murdering men is OK, elected officials may murder, who may murder be determined by the Board of Trustees, etc.).

We at SIU have precedent for doing so. We presently have such "compromise" committees to investigate the Center for Vietnamese Studies (CVS) and ROTC. The reports of these committees and the one I'm proposing will ultimately compromise in their reports and the compromise will have profound effects on the community disgust with such idiotic systems which refuse to decide on humanitarian grounds whether murder, ROTC or CVS should even exist. An alternative would be to put such issues to vote and allow the academic community to determine their existence. Last year, for instance, a majority of the voting community voted the CVS out of existence. That may be the right thing to do but, at SIU, we prefer compromise to doing what's right.

Scientists seek to predict earthquakes

Strains deep within earth cause crust to snap

Brian Sullivan
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—There are forces within the earth, in certain well-defined regions, bending and straining the earth's crust.

When the strain becomes too great, the earth's crust snaps, or moves. That's what happened Tuesday in California.

This is the way the Rev. Joseph Lynch, director of the Seismic Observatory at Fordham University in New York, describes an earthquake—a sudden movement of a portion of the crust of the earth.

The precise nature of the forces causing earthquakes are not fully understood, Father Lynch says, but he suggests they could be "thermal currents," flowing heat energy perhaps 500 miles deep within the earth.

Contraction of the crust by cooling or the effects of the earth's rotation also could play a part.

The U.S. Geological Survey has estimated that 90 per cent of all the earthquakes occur in the so-called "ring of fire," a belt surrounding the Pacific Ocean. The survey says a catastrophic earthquake strikes about once a year. But more than a million quakes are recorded each year, most beneath the sea.

In the United States, most of the earthquakes are centered in California and, says Father Lynch, that state will be subjected to the same forces of nature "for the next million years."

While the California earthquake Tuesday was centered in the San Gabriel Mountains, the best-known source of concern for residents there is the San Andreas fault, a 600-mile fracture of the earth extending from north of San Francisco into Mexico.

An earthquake is a readjustment of the earth's crust to the pressures around it. So is a landslide or a snowslide on a sloping roof.

And the pressures continue to build up on the San Andreas fault, geologists say.

The famous 1906 San Francisco earthquake was the last of "extremely strong" intensity in California. It occurred at 5:13 a.m. on April 18, claiming more than 700 lives and causing $400 million in damage from the quake and fire.

The inability to predict earthquakes has frustrated scientists, and a great deal of research is under way in an effort to detect and measure the strains within the earth that precede earthquakes.

New dean of Home Ec cites 'outmoded' image

The family—its internal and external relationships, its economic problems, its health and its environment—is the concern to which the home economics profession must dedicate its efforts with increasing awareness, according to the new dean of the School of Home Economics.

Thomas M. Brooks, who came from the University of Connecticut where he headed the department of family economics and management, arrived at his new post Feb. 1. He was introduced to University deans, administrators and department chairmen, as well as to home economics students at a reception Feb. 4.

The 41-year-old native of Huntington, W. Va., said he started out as an agricultural economist (three degrees in this field, from Ohio State and Pennsylvania State Universities) but moved into home economics because of his interest and competence in family economics and consumer problems.

Like other home economists, Brooks is dismayed that many people still have the cooking-and-sewing image of home economics, "which is as outmoded as the horse and buggy," he said. He has some ideas of other frontiers that home economics needs to breach.

Brooks said he came to SIU because he considers it a "growing, progressive, innovative institution, open to challenging opportunities."

Mail service moving Friday

The Campus Mail Service will move Friday from its barracks north of the University Center to Buildings 0844 and 0855.

Jim Hayes, Auxiliary and Service Enterprises, said the Mail Service will be in the barracks which formerly housed biology and botany laboratories, directly south of Life Science II.

Hayes said that no interruption of service is anticipated. Normal mail deliveries will be made. He said the stamp and package window in the old building remain in operation throughout the move. Hayes said the mail service will begin moving at 7 a.m. and should be in its new location by Friday evening.

Hours for the Campus Mail Service are 8 a.m.-noon and 1-4:30 p.m.

Convo presents 'The Best'

Thursday's convocation will be part of the Black History Week observance at SIU. It will feature

"The Best of Both Worlds," described as an exquisite, captivating performance, at 1 p.m. in the Arena Thursday.

"The Best of Both Worlds" features Maureen Hurley and Darryl Croxton, who will present what has been thought, said and written by the foremost poets, authors and playwrights, both black and white, from Shakespeare and Oscar Wilde to Langston Hughes and Charles Gordone.

Miss Hurley and Croxton have been described as dynamic and accomplished performers who move with facility through their material, investing it with pathos, charm, intelligence, beauty and lusty, good humor.

"The Best of Both Worlds" has been called by the Washington Post "a very moving and memorable experience...one can see it countless times and countless marvel."

Convocations are free and open to the public.

New ecology course attracts environmental minded students

By University News Service

Nutritional Ecology of Man is the title of a new course in the School of Home Economics which has attracted 104 environment and ecology minded students during winter quarter.

Conducted by Frank Konishi, chairman of the food and nutrition department, the course will be repeated during the spring quarter, and Konishi expects an even larger enrollment.

Academically listed as "a study of the interaction between man and his environment with emphasis on the nutritional consequences of a modification in his environment," Konishi has changed the titles of his class sessions to include such topics as

"Grasshoppers, Grubs and Grandmothers," "To Eat or Not to Eat," "Girth Control," "Of Oysters and Sex," "Breakfast in Atlantis," "The Love Bug(s)," "Are Poisons Food?," "An Itch, A Sneeze, A Cough, A Wheeze," "Motherhood and Apple Pie," "The Breast-Fed Babies in the World," "Choosing Your Parents Wisely" and "Poverty, Paupers and Politicians."

Penney's doors open today

The new 113,000-square foot J.C. Penney's department store will open for business at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Edward D. Keyes, store manager, said store hours will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Keyes said the store has been designed as a self-service "one stop" shopping center. Its departments include a grocery supermarket, hardware, clothing, household goods, shoes, beauty salon, coffee shop and snack bar and a catalogue order desk.

The supermarket facilities include a conveyor belt to carry customer's grocery purchases—in numbered tubs—to their automobiles at a loading area.

The store, located on Highway 13 east of Carbondale, has an auto service center in a separate building.

Three senators elected

In a low voter turnout Wednesday, three persons were elected to fill the three Campus Senate vacancies. One of these three was a write-in candidate.

Louis Martin was the write-in candidate at University City receiving 19 votes, followed by Patrick Sharrett with 13 and 14 other write-in votes.

The Eastside nondorm results were: Mareli Favaro, 19 votes, and three write-ins.

Pat Nussman, from Eastside dorm, received 14 votes followed by three write-ins.

The combined vote total from the three areas, having a combined population of 5669 undergraduates, was 98.

are students. The store has a direct-line telephone system for ordering items shown in catalogue "order-call" displays in various departments.

SIU economist coauthors book

By University News Services

C. Addison Hickman, professor of economics at SIU, is a contributing author to the newly published Handbook of College and University Administration.

The book, published in two volumes by McGraw-Hill Book Co., was reviewed Wednesday by Charles F. Fisher, program director of the American Council on Education's Institute for College and University Administration. Fisher said the book contains a wealth of information, "offering perhaps the most thorough overview of college and university administration ever compiled."

Fisher said it is an indispensable reference for college and university administrators at all levels of decision making, for students in higher education, "and, indeed, for anyone."

Marty & Conrad on Eckert's "New Breed" of Pork

Question: Truthfully now, is Eckert's pork really better?

Conrad: It really is. It's the best.

Question: Why?

Marty: Because it's raised in our own facilities. Fed and cared for to very strict requirements. And even more importantly, we make sure we select and breed only the leanest pork so you get more meat for your money. And, like all our meat, it's processed in our own packing house.

Conrad: And that gives us the most complete quality control anywhere. But you don't have to take our word for it. We know we have the best pork in town. And we want to prove it to you. So this weekend we're offering special prices on our full line of pork. And we'll provide recipes and menu suggestions for every cut we sell. We'll also be giving free samples of Eckert's exclusive Porkburger. It's sort of a cross between ground beef and pork sausage with a special seasoning. Come on in and try Eckert's New Breed of pork. You can't get it anywhere else.

Library security

Checkers only deterrent

By Dave Mahsman

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The lack of adequate security at Morris Library has already been pointed out, but many people have the false notion that the problem lies with the book checkers rather than with the system.

To the contrary, the checkers are doing as much as they can to cut down the number of books stolen from Morris Library, but their hands are tied by a system that never has been efficient.

"We are a deterrent, that's all," Garrie Allen one of the two full-time checkers said. "If someone goes past us, all we can do is holler, nothing more. We cannot even leave our counters," he said.

"We have to depend on the honesty of people," said Circulation Librarian Robert Keel, "but we have found that people aren't honest."

People who attempt to take books from Morris Library try many methods to get past the checkers. The checkers know many of the tricks, but, of course, can do little about them.

Often, people try to go around the checkers while they are checking books or giving directions, according to Mrs. Mary Lawrence, the other checker. She said that it is difficult even to see someone doing this, much less catch them.

"One fellow took a stack of books to the back door and just ran out past the checker," Keel said. "He could have been through the woods by the time the checker could even get out of his booth, he was going so fast."

Mrs. Lawrence said that some people will have a stack of books with all except one or two checked out.

She added that this can happen normally and the checkers check every book.

"Checking every book can save the student some problems," Mrs. Lawrence said. Often, a mixup will occur at the front desk and the book cards can get exchanged. When this happens, the student may have some explaining to do when the books are returned, she said.

Perhaps the most common way of attempting to take books, especially in the winter, is under coats. One of Keel's codefendants managed to slip a book past this writer as I sat in the checker's booth. He did not even have a coat on, but had the book under his sweater.

"It would be easier for us if people didn't have their coats on as they come past, but, of course, they usually put them on before getting here," Mrs. Lawrence said.

"Once a girl came to me and said she saw someone put a book under his coat, but she got here too late. The fellow had already gone through," Mrs. Lawrence said. "It would help us a lot if anyone seeing someone put a book under his coat would let us know in time," she added.

Book thieves are not the only problems that checkers have to face. Keel said that many people get very hostile when they think their honesty is questioned and are asked to have their books checked.

Mrs. Lawrence said that she once asked a person to show her the book he was carrying, and he threatened to slap her with it.

Some others may not be as violent, but many people become irate just the same.

"The students and other users should read the signs," Mrs. Lawrence said. "We don't want to cause inconvenience, but it's necessary. If library users would just turn their books so we can see if they have text book numbers on them, it would be a help. We understand the animosity when people are delayed, but we are only doing what we are supposed to," she said.

"I do want to make one thing clear," Mrs. Lawrence said. "Most of the students here are excellent in cooperating." Allen agreed that the great majority of students are very courteous.

Mrs. Lawrence said of her job. "Our first obligation is to make people comfortable and to be courteous. We are trying to help them."

Diplomat will keynote Model UN session tonight

His Excellency Glen A. Ode, ambassador representative from the United States to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, will keynote the first plenary session of the Model United Nations at 7 p.m. Thursday in the University Center Ballrooms.

At 9:30 p.m. Juri Roslyakov, a member of the United Nations Secretariat Center of Economic and Social Information, will speak to over 350 student delegates from SIU and surrounding colleges and high schools, according to Richard W. Moore, this year's secretary general.

Moore said that His Excellency Abdulrahman Abby Farah, (ambassador extraordinary plenipotentiary), permanent representative of Somalia to the United Nations, will also speak.

The theme for the 13th annual Model UN will be "The Third World," chosen because "over two-thirds of the world's population have been ignored at past Model UNs," Moore said.

Committee meetings will dominate all of Friday with His Excellency Joseph Otero-Josi, the ambassador to the United Nations, speaking during the third plenary session at 7 p.m.

Moore said the three-day sessions the end Saturday will give students experience in several different facets of the United Nations work as

MBA meeting to plan post exam party tonight

The Masters of Business Administration Association (MBA) will hold a short business meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Pine Room at LBJ's.

Business of the meeting will include planning an association party to take place after comprehensive exams. Plans for the graduate-faculty basketball game will also be discussed.

Other business at the meeting will include various reports to be given by internal committees of the MBA. A cocktail hour will take place after the meeting.

well as gaining insights into some of the current world problems.

All the student delegates will serve on one of three committees during the sessions. The three committees will consider the topics "Economic Exploitation," "Human Exploitation" and "The Third World Tomorrow."

The Model UN will be located in the University Center Ballrooms, where all committee meetings, speakers and general assemblies will take place.

The plenary sessions will be held as follows: 6-11 p.m. Thursday; 8 a.m.-noon, 1-5 p.m. and 7-11 p.m. Friday; 8 a.m.-noon, 1-4 p.m. Saturday. The public is invited to attend any part of the program.

Decentralization cited

By Rich Davis

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A progress report on decentralization of SIU, which notes that for all practical purposes the two campuses are educationally autonomous, will be presented to the University Administrative Council Thursday in Edwardsville.

The report, according to I.P. Brackett, system vice president at the Carbondale campus who helped draw it up, cites progress between September and January in decentralizing University units which formerly were centrally coordinated for both campuses and now have been made autonomous campus units.

Also included in the report is a list of personnel changes in the office of President Emeritus Delyte W. Morris which had to be made after the SIU Board of Trustees at least temporarily eliminated the office of SIU president last summer.

A decision is expected this summer on the future administrative makeup of the University, including whether the office of a central figure of president should be reestablished.

The council has been authorized by the Board to decentralize the University and make reports and evaluations of the decentralization. These reports will be used in determining the University's future administrative structure.

Members of the council are chancellors Robert G. Laver, Carbondale, and John S. Rendleman, Edwardsville; System Vice Presidents Brackett and Ralph W. Raffner, Edwardsville, and Clarence Stephens, chairman James M. Brown, chief of Board staff, is a nonvoting member of the council.

Brackett said the report is for the consideration of the council and said he did not want to make information in the report available until after the council meets Thursday.

Library's
'gift section'

Processing about 1,300 books per month means a lot of paper work for the gift section of the Morris Library, as witnessed by the number of books and records shown here around library assistant Mrs. Daisy Smith. The gift section receives and processes all unordered and donated books or publications before they are placed on library shelves. Donations range from single publications to entire collections, all of which must be recorded and processed a book at a time.

Donated books handled by library's gift section

By John Moss
Student Writer

The anti-like activity of students scurrying to and from classes can be seen from the seventh floor of Morris Library. However, daily activity on that floor, high above the SIU campus, is generally unknown to most of SIU's students who depend on the building for academic assistance.

All of the books in Morris Library must be processed through the seventh floor, where probably the most interesting department is the gift section.

The title of gift section if somewhat of a misnomer, according to Mrs. Daisy Smith, library technical assistant. Although gifts and donations make up a large part of the section's input, all published material received by the library which has not been specifically ordered is processed here.

"We process an average of 1,300 books per month in this section," Mrs. Smith said. The processing involves setting up records on all material prior to cataloging and is accomplished by a staff of seven persons, including part-time student workers.

In addition to bona fide gifts, other materials handled by the section are included in categories called blanket orders and block purchases, according to Alton P. Juhlin, assistant catalogue librarian.

A blanket order denotes an arrangement with various book dealers who furnish Morris Library with broad categories of subject material. Blanket orders are not limited to any particular subject or language. Presently, Juhlin said, Morris Library has agreements to obtain books published in Latin America, Russia and Germany and is initiating an agreement for French and Spanish materials.

The third category processed by the gift section is block purchases. By this method, the library will buy a whole collection of books in one lump sum. Many Rare Book Room articles are obtained this way, according to Juhlin.

Mrs. Smith said that a copy of all theses and dissertations generated at SIU are presented to the library and are recorded by the gift section. Library cataloguers estimate an average of 200 dissertations and 400 theses are processed each year each year.

A large number of gifts come from personal collections of faculty members. "Most professors have a sizable collection," Juhlin said, noting that many will customarily donate them to the library when they are close to retiring. Families of deceased faculty members will also often present collections to SIU. Because of space limitations, Morris Library cannot keep the donated book collections together as a unit, according to Juhlin. Library patrons can easily recognize a gift book since, in many cases, the library will have the book plated with the donor's name upon request.

Welsh jails are full

EVESHAM, England (AP)—A record number of more than 40,200 prisoners are serving time in English and Welsh jails, compared with more than 35,300 a year ago. W. R. Cox, director of the prison service, said in opening a new 500-capacity jail.

Employment talk tonight

Harold C. Largent, director of University Placement Services, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Thursday on what the service offers to graduating education majors and to anyone interested in placement service in general.

The meeting will be in the Wham SIU professor named to Red Meats Council

By University News Services

Prof. G.B. Marion, chairman of the SIU Animal Industries Department, has been named to the advisory committee for the Illinois Red Meats Council. The appointment was announced by the Illinois Livestock Feeders Association.

Marion, a native of Canada, came to SIU in 1969 after 16 years on the dairy science faculty of Kansas State University.

Education Building, faculty lounge, second floor.

Largent has been with the University Placement Services for 18 years, and said he will be happy to talk with all who attend.

Double role
keeps her busy

Sue Maizner, resident fellow at Neely Hall, explains a painting to Wendy Bajif. Miss Maizner frequently mixes painting with resident fellow activities by using girls from the hall as models. A senior majoring in art, Miss Maizner says that mixing the two can sometimes get hectic, because her duties as resident fellow must come first.

She's an artist, too

Neely Hall RF has dual role

By David Fordonski
Student Writer

Sue Maizner, a senior majoring in art from Morton Grove, Ill., enjoys a dual role at SIU.

Miss Maizner is both resident fellow of the fifth floor of Neely Hall and an artist. In reference to her art talent, Miss Maizner said "I don't feel I was born with it. I registered in January of 1967 and enrolled in some art courses. I did very well in the courses so I thought I would pursue a degree in art."

"I do a lot of abstract paintings where the unusual usage of color is important to create an illusion of effect," said Miss Maizner. "Right now I am doing a portrait for one of the girls I live with. I also do various other types of art work."

Her normal daily routine starts at about 7:30 a.m. with breakfast. Then it's on to classes until 2 p.m.

"I am in and out of my room all day long, my schedule is fairly flexible. I try to fit my work as resident fellow and artist around my schedule. It does get sort of hectic at times, but that's the way I like it," added Miss Maizner.

Between classes, or when she doesn't have an early morning class, Miss Maizner said she usually takes care of any paper work she may have to do, such as registering complaints of dorm members or listing items that need repairing on Neely's fifth floor.

At night, Miss Maizner studies and goes to class. She said that whenever she is in her room, the girls are always welcome to discuss problems they might have or her art.

At the present time, none of Miss Maizner's works are on public display. "Some of my works are on display in my room, and interested people are always welcome up to take a look," she added.

"I would like to do my graduate work at Penn State with my final goal to teach art someday," she said.

Miss Maizner said that out of all of her art works, her favorite is one she has been working on for a friend. "It will be a ladybug-shaped pill box made from assorted bolts and screws and pieces of brass and bronze," Miss Maizner explained.

As for her job as resident fellow, Sue said she doesn't have any big problems. "I just try my best to help the kids out in every way possible," she said.

"It has always been a personal goal of mine to be a resident fellow and I really enjoy the work. When and if there is time, I like to play the guitar, and I also like photography quite a bit," she continued.

Whether she is helping other people with their problems or doing art work, Sue Maizner said she feels her work is rewarding.

Student time cards distributed Friday

Student time cards will be distributed Friday, instead of Monday, in the Sangamon Room of the University Center according to Warren T. Turner, of the SIU Payroll Office.

The change in the distribution date is due to the observance of Washington's Birthday on Monday. All time cards must be turned into the Payroll Office at Park Place by 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Turner said.

SIU opera company renamed to honor Marjorie Lawrence

The School of Music has announced that the SIU opera company has been renamed the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre in honor of Miss Lawrence, research professor in the School of Music.

Formerly a dramatic soprano with the Metropolitan and Paris opera companies, Miss Lawrence has been on the faculty since 1960 working with voice students as well as being opera director.

Miss Lawrence will continue to direct the Opera Workshop and guide the University's operatic productions.

Miss Lawrence has trained more than a half dozen young artists who have made their way into professional opera companies in the U.S. and Europe, including one now singing minor roles with the New York Met.

Scheduled for Feb. 26-28 is the 1971 production of Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" ("The Bat"). "Die Fledermaus" will be staged in Shryock Auditorium with a cast of more than 40, supported by eight dancers and an orchestra.

Salukis meet Indiana's super swimmers

By Ernest J. Schweit
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

SIU's swimmers will meet one of the best collegiate teams ever—the University of Indiana—Thursday night in Bloomington.

In support of the above statement, consider the fact that the Hoosiers have won 10 straight Big Ten swimming titles and currently are going for their fourth straight NCAA crown.

Coch Jim "Doc" Counsellman's squad began Hoosier domination of the Big Ten back in 1961 and, considering the group of freshmen and sophomores on this year's edition, it looks like Indiana will keep right on steamrolling all swimming opponents in sight.

Heading the group is "Mr. Swimming" at Indiana, John Kinsella. Winner of the Sullivan trophy, given annually to the outstanding amateur athlete in the nation by the AAU, Kinsella was the first person to swim under 16 minutes in the 1,500 meters.

The native of Hinsdale, Ill., also owns a share of the 800-meter relay record in addition to setting a mark in the 400-meter which was later broken. Kinsella also holds American records in the 500, 1,000 and 1,600-yard events.

In addition to Kinsella, the Hoosiers have a host of returning swimmers, including 11 of the 15 who scored in last season's NCAA championship meet.

Heading the corps of returners are Mark Spitz, Gary Hall, Larry Barbiere, Jack Horsley and George Smith, all of whom competed for the USA in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. The Hoosiers sent 20 swimmers to that Olympics.

Spitz holds world records in the 100-meter and 200-meter freestyle and in the 100-meter butterfly, while Hall owns world records in the 200-meter butterfly, 400-meter individual medley and 800-meter freestyle.

SIU's Bill Tingley, Rob Dickson, Vern Dasch, Bruce Steiner and Dale Korner will be seeking to improve the team's 7-1 mark when they take the water against the Hoosiers.

The Salukis and Coach Ray Essack have won six of their last seven contests, losing only to Michigan by three points. They opened the season with a triumph over Evansville.

Latest Salukis victories were over Missouri 74-39, Northwestern, 84-27, and Wisconsin, 71-41. The last two victories came in a triangular meet held in Madison, Wisc., Saturday night.

In that meet SIU's Korner finished the 200-yard breaststroke with a disappointing time of 2:13.8. The night before, against Missouri, Korner went 2:12.1 in the same event for a new varsity mark.

"Dale just got out too slow," said Essack. "He has been doing this all the time, and we will just have to correct it."

On the other side of the coin, the Saluki mentor had praise for Dickson's 1:56.04 in the 200-yard butterfly in Madison.

"Dickson's fly was real good, but I think that the absence of good competition made him too confident in the first 100 yards."

Following the meet with Indiana, the SIU tankers will return home for a 2:30 p.m. contest with Midwestern Conference for Indiana State on Saturday. The meet with the Sycamores, which will be the Salukis' final home appearance of the season, will be dedicated to graduating seniors Cliff Andrews, Henry Hays, Bob Schoos, Steiner and Dasch.

IM swimming tourney Feb. 27

Every SIU student who ever has dreamed Walter Mitty ideas of being a competitive swimmer will have a chance to find out if he has what it takes in the annual intramural swimming tournament Saturday, Feb. 27, in the University School pool.

The events will be shortened versions of regular collegiate competition with NCAA rules being observed except those in which the intramural office rules otherwise.

A person may enter the meet as an individual or as a member of a team from one of the four leagues set up by the intramural office for football and basketball. Both individual and team standings will be kept with trophies to be awarded to event winners and to the team scoring the most points.

Individuals may enter two events, plus the diving, with participation on one of the relay teams considered as one swimming event.

The meet will be run off in two sections with the preliminary events starting at 1:30 p.m. and the finals 30 minutes after the preliminaries are over.

Students may practice for the tourney during the pool's open hours. Each student must furnish his own suit and towel for the meet.

Persons can obtain an entry blank at the intramural office in the Arena. No student who has earned a letter in swimming from a four-year college or is on the list of varsity swimming candidates is eligible in the intramural office is eligible.

Entry deadline is 5 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25.

Intramural office schedules 15 basketball games tonight

The basketball schedule for Thursday in the SIU Arena as announced by the intramural office: 6:15 p.m. Rathole B vs. Vets, court one; Russell's Raiders vs. Rapid Raiders, court two; Jackson Five vs. FUBARS, court three; Jive Five vs. Felt's Raiders, court four.

7:15 p.m. The Family vs. Mob, court one; Boomer III Bandits vs. Kernal's Raiders, court two; 6th Floor Schneider vs. Gribbleys, court three; Abbott Universal Lifers vs. Wright I Heads, court four.

8:15 p.m. Soulful Strut vs. Silver Bird, court one; Schneider 5th vs. Seventh Floor Ballers, court two; Death Dealers vs. Warren Peace, court three; Boomer III Celtics vs. Southern Comforts, court four.

9:15 p.m. Dohr's Pains vs. Wright Brothers II, court one; Knicks vs. Egyptian Cobras, court two; Free Schneider vs. Salty Dogs, court three; Born Losers vs. Felt's Fungus, court four.

Weigh-in date changed

All students planning to participate in the intramural wrestling tournament, which starts at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 16, are required to weigh in that day between 7:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. in the locker room of the SIU Arena.

The date has been changed from Monday, Feb. 15 because of the holiday on Monday. An SIU identification card is required.

I'll Bet You Didn't Know

By Terry Snedeker

Of all the players in the National Basketball Association, nobody in the last 5 years has been able to win the scoring championship of the league 2 straight seasons. Wilt Chamberlain led the league in scoring in 1960-61. Rick Barry led it in 1966-67. Dave Bing in 1967-68. Elvin Hayes in 1968-69. And Jerry West last season.

Oddly enough, a man was once chosen Coach of the Year in football even though his team had a losing season. In 1908 the Coach of the Year was Dick Harlow of Harvard. Harvard's record that year was 3 wins, 4 losses and a tie.

Here's an oddity about basketball star Lew Alexander. When he first joined the National Basketball Association, he played in more losing games in 5 days than he did in 3 years of college ball. In college at UCLA, Alexander played in just 2 losing games in 2 years, but early in his first pro season with Milwaukee he played in 3 losing games in 5 days.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy—lower death rate and are living five years longer on the average than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men makes possible broader benefits and greater cash value in College Life policies. This, of course, makes good sense, doesn't it?

Badger coach praises Lambert system

By Bob Richards
Special Writer

John Powless, who operates in the shadows of the Milwaukee Bucks and the Marquette Warriors, was quick in his praise for the Saluki effort against his Wisconsin Badgers Tuesday.

The Wisconsin coach also put in a vote of confidence for SIU coach Paul Lambert and urged the SIU fans to follow suit after the 86-75 Saluki win in the SIU Arena.

"SIU played well," Powless said. "Southern shot well in the first half. To me it seemed like every one they put up was going in." SIU led at the half, 42-36.

While Powless has had his problems building up dairy state basketball, the Wisconsin mentor predicted the switch from Jack Hartman basketball to the Paul Lambert show would turn out favorable. Powless has seen both and has lost to both. Last year the Salukis pulled out a 74-69 thriller in Madison under Hartman.

"Lambert's going to do a great job," predicted Powless. "It's going to help Greg Starrick. It's a different style and it will take a little time."

In a way, Powless should know what he's talking about. He took over the reins at Wisconsin in 1968 when John Erickson was offered the general manager's job for the Milwaukee Bucks National Basketball Association franchise.

So far, the building job has been slow, but a three-point loss to Marquette in the Milwaukee Classic final earlier in the year proved the Badgers could play with the best. Close losses to Iowa and Illinois show the Badgers are 6 points away from being 9-6 instead of 6-9.

Like Lambert, Powless brought a 6-8 team to the Arena Tuesday which has had some great and not-so-great moments. Powless still remains optimistic for the future. With many players returning and an improving state high school program, Powless may not have long to wait.

"Our basketball has increased a great deal in Wisconsin," Powless said, adding Milwaukee was tops. The presence of the Bucks and of course Marquette this has helped people focus more clearly on Wisconsin as an area for basketball, he added. Neighboring Marquette, currently starts three Wisconsin natives.

One of Powless' home grown products, Clarence Sherrod out of Milwaukee Lincoln, was far short of expectations Tuesday. Averaging 24 points a game, Sherrod was held to 14.

"Clarence did not have one of his best games," Powless said. "He was about as far off as I've seen him in his three years."

Saluki coach Lambert attributed some of Sherrod's failure to the alternating coverage of flu-victims John Garrett and John Marker and Starrick on the Badger ace.

Powless' other Wisconsin product,

Glen Richgels of Madison West, poured in 11 points from close range while grabbing 14 rebounds, second only to L. C. Brasfield who had 17.

In a game which Lambert called typically Big Ten, both fans and coaches found themselves getting technicals. "I guess we broke even on the technicals," Powless said.

Powless admitted it was tough to get his team up for a non-conference game this late in the season and indicated he didn't think there would be more scheduling like that at Wisconsin.

Second Thoughts

From red to green and gold

Paul Lambert must like to play a hunch. For the season opener against Winston-Salem, he was dressed in blaring red, sports coat and pants, combined with a shirt reminiscent of the paisley era.

He wore the same "uniform" through the Arkansas game, a 99-78 victory which moved SIU to a 3-1 mark. Then the Salukis started losing so he dumped the red pants for black but kept the coat and shirt.

Now the first-year Saluki coach is coming on green and gold and so far, his newest combination has won two, lost one.

He wore it for the first time against Georgia Tech in SIU's biggest win of the season and then during the loss at Creighton.

Time for a switch? Nope. He had it on again Tuesday night against Wisconsin and the green and gold notched its second victory.

With some luck, the green and gold can still carry SIU to a 15-8 record which would mean a Midwestern Conference championship, going 8-0 in loop play.

But Lambert isn't going to depend on suits for his luck and he's looking much farther ahead than just this season. He wants a major college program that can compete with the best, say UCLA.

"I don't think we're very far away from being able to compete with them except size-wise," he said. "If we can get a junior college forward for next year, a kid with good size and strength to go with what we have coming back and with the normal rate of improvement, we're not that far away."

Two main goals

"Being ranked No. 1, well, that's something else." It certainly is. John Wooden went to UCLA in 1948 from Indiana State (No kidding!) and it wasn't until the mid 1960's that his teams began making national noise.

Coming to SIU with its long basketball tradition has presented Lambert with two main goals.

"The first is maintaining a schedule that is purely major college, year-in-and-year-out," he said. "The other thing I'm going to have to determine in doing this is what schools we need to keep because of tradition, proximity and things like that."

Lambert hopes he can maintain games with Big Ten, Big Eight and Missouri Valley conference teams. Drake of the last mentioned league might be a good bet to show up on the schedule. Lambert coached the freshman team there from 1960-63.

He would also love to play some of his old Hardin Simmons opponents. That would mean teams such as Houston, New Mexico State, Oklahoma City, Seattle and Michigan State.

It's the old you scratch my back, I'll scratch yours theory. "Coaches tend to play the people they know and the more people you know, the better a schedule you'll get," he said.

Lambert is big on exposure, he wants his team to be seen. That's one reason the Salukis are scheduled into the Las Vegas Invitational next Christmas break.

SIU vs. Illini?

In addition, "We've had the opportunity and are looking forward to playing in the Chicago Stadium and the possibility of playing in Madison Square Garden. That's very important to our program."

It's no secret that Southern's recruiting has fallen short of its goals the last few years. This year's freshman team will probably contribute very little to the varsity.

"If you can't get a good schedule, how can you get the recruits?" Lambert said, posing a question for himself.

"One of the reasons we've lost kids is because they say, 'Who do you play?' If you play against the same people the other guy who is recruiting against you does, then that argument is taken away."

If it could ever come about, an SIU-University of Illinois annual series would probably be one of the toughest and hardest fought anywhere across the country.

It would be a great money game, a good one for recruiting and television and might even supersede conference games for either team.

But the Illini "tend to look down at our program," Lambert said.

Don't know why they should. The Midwestern Conference knocked off the Big Ten in three of four encounters this year. It lost the single game by one point. And the Big hasn't beaten SIU since 1967-68. Defending champ Iowa couldn't even do it last year. And the Big Ten won't get another shot until next season.

Meade: everything went wrong against California

By Fred Weinberg

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Losing is something the SIU gymnastics team doesn't experience very often.

Up until last Saturday the Salukis had only done it once to national runner-up Iowa State by 45 of a point.

Then, the roof fell in.

After running up the highest point total in SIU history, 166.15, against the University of Arizona Friday night in the first meet of a three-meet road swing west, the gymnasts were trimmed, 162.0-157.45, by the University of California at Berkeley Saturday and beaten again by New Mexico, 162.25-162.10, Monday.

"I think I might have taken California a little lightly," said SIU coach Bill Meade Wednesday. "Everything went wrong."

"What happened was that everyone gathered up all the mistakes they were going to make and gave them all to me at once. And I'm glad it happened so far away from the NCAA finals."

Meade said he thought that the meet against New Mexico was a well-executed one.

"We had them by two points going into the high bar. We just picked their strongest event to blow and you don't win meets when you do that," said Meade.

The 166.15 score against Arizona was the highest Meade's teams have ever scored and he thinks it could be a national record.

The NCAA doesn't keep records on gymnastics so there is no way of finding out whether it is a record.

"I think we impressed the judges at Arizona right off the bat," said Meade. "A lot of time if you blind the judges with a great routine in the beginning, they become less severe in taking points off for the rest of the meet."

The gymnasts face Indiana State Monday after the SIU-Illinois State basketball game and Meade is more concerned about the Sycamores than any other team in the Midwestern Conference.

Indiana State is coached by a former SIU gymnast, Roger Council, and the team has been scoring in the high 150 to low 160 range.

The Sycamores topped the 162 mark in a loss to defending NCAA champion Michigan last week and they have the NCAA still rings champion in Dave Seal.
