First phase completed

VP post search continuing

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The first phase in choosing a new vice president for academic affairs has been completed, according to search committee chairman Willis Malone, and about 65 names have been submitted for the position.

Malone said the committee, which was appointed Jan. 17, has been meeting twice a week. It is seeking a replacement for Keith Leasure, who resigned from the post Dec. 9.

The committee recently established a description of the position which will be used in all application procedures. Qualifications which the committee set include:

- doctoral degree or equivalent and/or recognized academic experience.
- achievement in or potential for upper-level higher education administration.

—a well developed philosophy of education including knowledge of goals of a comprehensive university, ability to articulate the goals, ability to demonstrate innovation, skill and persistence in reaching the goals.

—a commitment to academic freedom and to the principle of due process.

—skill in inter-personal relations and ability and desire to communicate with the entire University community.

—demonstrated commitment to the principle of affirmative action, and —positive personal characteristics to contribute to the building of confidence and support from the University community.

The committee consists of 12 representatives from various campus constituencies including the Graduate Council, the Faculty Senate, Deans Council, graduate students, undergraduate students, Civil Service personnel, and administrative and professional staff.

Malone, who was also chairman of the presidential search committee last Fall, compared the two. He said the searches have "many similarities," including the fact that both involve a nationwide search.

He predicted the vice-presidential search would not draw as many nominations as that for the president of the University, which he said numbered more than 200.

Malone said criticism of the presidential selection stemming from the fact that interviews were held by the Board of Trustees in Chicago instead of Carbondale will be avoided in the vice-presidential search because it is a "different kind of search."

He explained the Board of Trustees will not be conducting interviews for the post as they did for the president. Instead, they will act on a recommendation from President Warren W. Brandt on who should fill the post.

Malone said the interviews made by the committee of the applicants will be held in Carbondale and that the committee will "work closely with President Brandt." He said no applicants will be invited for an interview without the approval of the committee and Brandt.

Joanne Thorpe, one of three representing the group on the search committee, said that once the list of more than 65 applicants and nominees is narrowed to "about 25," the committee will vote on whether to announce the names of the candidates. Malone said the preliminary screening should be completed by Feb. 21.

Deadline for applications is March 1, Malone said, adding he's "very pleased with the priority the committee members are giving the search."

Peyote 'high' fades away with supply

By Diana Cannon
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Button, button, who's got the button? It's probably the guy with the grin a mile-wide and the extraordinary gleam in his eyes. He ate five or six of them. Peyote buttons, that is.

Southern Illinois is far from the semi-arid climate of the Rio Grande Valley and southward, where the peyote cactus grows, yet peyote abounds in Carbondale occasionally. A shipment of 14,000 peyton from Arizona rolled into town last October, campus sources say.

The buttons sold for $30 for 100 or 35 cents to 50 cents each, according to people who say they bought or sold them and who wish to remain anonymous. Buyers evidently considered the hallucinogenic a real bargain. The supply almost vanished within two weeks.

The time-proven grapevine method of distribution operated with the peyote. "People just hear about it if they're interested," one user said. "The word spreads pretty fast."

However, SIU Security Police and Carbondale police said they knew nothing about a large quantity of peyote having been in Carbondale.

Four months later, the man with the buttons isn't likely to be carrying them around. Possession of peyote, classified as a controlled substance, is a felony in Illinois.

But peyote fanciers may have a few stored in the freezer, stashed away behind the ice cream and the pot pies. Freezing retains the potent properties of this curious cactus and is a useful storage method when the availability of peyote is sporadic.

In regions where peyote is native, hunters can go foraging and pick the buttons for free, or pay someone to gather them. The price then drops to as low as two cents a button, sources said.

Meet the candidates

The Daily Egyptian today begins a "Meet the Candidates" series to acquaint voters with views and positions of six candidates running for the Carbondale City Council. Voters can vote for two candidates in the primary Feb. 25. The four highest vote getters will advance to the general city election April 15. See page 3.

According to the reports of the peyote practice here, Carbondale users tried to tone down the foul taste of the tough, chewy buttons by putting them in pancakes, baking them in biscuits, suspending them in jello, or swirling them in ice cream. Some people prefer to swallow the buttons whole.

"It still tastes like dirt," one girl said with a grimace. Five buttons was the average dosage among the users interviewed. The pleasure produced by the peyote cactus is said to justify for any discomfort most users may undergo in digesting it, including vomiting.

Peyote is a small, spineless, carrot-shaped cactus. Its scientific name is Lophophora williamsii lemaire. The lobed-top surface, one to three inches in diameter, is the only part appearing above the soil.

When cut off and dried, the top becomes the peyote button. It bears little tufts of fine white hair resembling cocoon silk, which are thoroughly cleaned from the plant before the buttons are eaten.

Anhalonium is the pharmaceutical name of the drug, containing several alkaloids (including mescaline), derived from this plant.

Eating peyote results in sensory and psychic alterations, lasting about 10 to 12 hours. A Yale University study of "The Peyote Cult," by Weston La Barre, documents the production of visual hallucinations or color visions as the outstanding physiological characteristic of peyote.

All desire to sleep disappears. Heightened perception of the touch, smelling and hearing is frequently reported and the eye pupils become dilated. La Barre's lengthy study, first published in 1938 and updated in 1964, cites claims for peyote as an aphrodisiac and counterclaims that it is an anaphrodisiac.

Exhilaration and euphoria are ways some local peyotists described their experience. The intricacies and meanings of music deepen, they say. Some users likened the effects of peyote to those produced by the psychedelic drug LSD.

Mind and body seem to separate under the influence of peyote. Users say they can merge as one with mankind in a feeling of brotherhood.

Others say they have experienced semi-psychotic states of deep depression and intense fear. The psychic state attained, according to both La Barre and drug researcher Aldous Huxley, depends on cultural conditioning and the individual's feelings of well-being.

In Huxley's words, "Negative emotions, the fear which is the absence of confidence, the hatred, anger, or malice which exclude love, guarantee

Walter Robinson

By Mary Whitler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Walter G. Robinson, 46, of 701 N. Billy Bryan Ave., says he is running for the Carbondale City Council because he has been active in working on the problems of Carbondale for seven years, and feels that "if we do not do something to save our town, the town is going to die for lack of revitalization."

Robinson is an assistant professor at the SIU Rehabilitation Institute. He has served as designer and director of the Black Studies program and University Services. Robinson said he served as a planner in the Model Cities program in East St. Louis from 1966 to 1968. Currently, Robinson is a certified social worker in Illinois.

"The University is the primary industry in seven counties, and yet we don't have the type of inter-relationships between the University and the City Council that there should be," Robinson said. He said he would favor a closer working relationship between the city and the University.

Regular meetings between the University and the council might serve to eliminate problems, Robinson said. The street disorders that happened on Halloween could have been avoided through such coordination, Robinson said.

Robinson believes something must be done to help vitalize the downtown area. "I support having a mall in downtown Carbondale," he said.

Solving the economic problems in Carbondale depends upon moving "towards alleviating the situation where the University is the prime economic supporter."

Robinson favors having several smaller industries, rather than one large industry, to stimulate economic growth. He recommends looking into the possibility of creating "home grown companies of our own." He cited the large supply of hardwoods in Southern Illinois which could be used to support a furniture industry.

Robinson said he feels his area of expertise is in community development programming, but is interested in serving the city at large.

The referendum on the message parlors will deliver a people's mandate to the council, Robinson said. He feels the council should do what the people want.

Robinson favors reform of current drug laws which victimize the users. He said if everyone who used marijuana in Carbondale was arrested, there wouldn't be "jails big enough."

Robinson also said he favors using the expertise of the University community to a larger extent than it has been in the past.

A public transportation system, particularly to aid the elderly, should be developed, Robinson said.

Robinson favors prohibiting trains from passing through town during peak traffic hours. "I'm really afraid for somebody's life" when emergency vehicles are stopped at train crossings, he said.

SIU meets HEW deadline for hiring plans

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Portions of SIU-C's revised Affirmative Action plan were submitted to the Chicago office of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) by Tuesday's deadline and the remainder of the revised proposal should be in by Friday, Hollis Merritt, assistant to the SIU president, said Tuesday.

"There are still a few things left to do and we are trying to wrap it up by the end of this week," said Merritt who has been coordinating the revisions through the various vice-presidents.

The University's original plan for maintaining racial and sexual balance in hiring of faculty and staff was turned down by HEW in December because of deficiencies in the areas of utilization studies, dissemination of policy and identification of problem areas.

"Anything we get done this week will be accepted for review," Merritt continued. "There are still minor details in each area to be revised. These areas were pinpointed and discussed at a meeting we had last week in Chicago with HEW officials."

"That meeting was for discussion of the troublesome points which were in the three areas highlighted before. HEW will review our proposal when it is completely submitted and get back to us before another meeting set for Feb. 18," he said.

"We are very hopeful that it will be acceptable. It is like turning in a term paper—you may feel one way but the professor may feel another. But we do feel that we can accomplish all they have demanded."

Merritt said there may be some difficulties with the area of civil service examinations and back pay.

"HEW doesn't like the civil service exam but that is regulated at the state level and we don't have much say about it," he explained. "In relation to back pay it is a question of whether national law will supersede state law in cases of inequity or discrimination."

"It centers on whether you can make retro-active payments to people who have been discriminated against. We have requested a federal opinion on the matter through HEW," Merritt said.

"These are minor points through which they could find the plan unacceptable but we are doing everything we can to do the job as well as possible. We want to get this out from over our heads," he concluded.

Charles Duffy, specialist in charge of higher education in the civil rights division of HEW in Chicago, said Tuesday that SIU's plan had been "coming in pieces all week."

"They are parts that needed more work, you might call them adjustments on adjustments," Duffy said. "Since we haven't received the whole thing we haven't evaluated it all yet."

Duffy said it would be difficult to determine how SIU-C compares with other state schools in adopting an acceptable Affirmative Action plan.

"It is difficult to compare when you have urban, rural, public and private schools along with junior colleges and universities of all sizes."

"SIU couldn't be called terribly deficient nor could it be called a shining example in the Midwest as far as Affirmative Action is concerned. It lies somewhere in the middle," he related.

"They've been under the gun because they were selected for review. They have been placed in the spotlight and tended to look bad because they're getting the attention," Duffy said. "Actually it is unfair to compare them with anyone else. The people I've dealt with from SIU have been very cooperative and personable."

"I really can't say how their revised proposal looks because we haven't reviewed it yet, right now all I can say is that they've submitted a lot of paper," he added.

Ford frees $2 million in highway funds

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—President Ford freed $2 billion in impounded federal highway funds Tuesday in a move to cope with worsening unemployment.

Ford's announcement came during his cross-country campaign in search of support for his energy and economic proposals.

'Morning after' pill gets FDA approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's first "morning after" birth control pill has been given formal approval by the Food and Drug Administration.

The agency said the drug DES or diethylstilbestrol is usually effective in preventing pregnancy if two 25-milligram tablets are taken twice a day for five days, within 24 hours and no later than 72 hours after unprotected intercourse.

One company already has applied for White House officials said the release of funds should provide 125,000 jobs in construction and related industries.

Addressing a joint session of the Kansas legislature, Ford said he was ordering the release of the funds in response to requests from governors he has met within his journeys around the country.

permission to market DES as a post-coital contraceptive, when the new approval takes effect March 7. The drug also is used to treat certain kinds of cancer and to speed growth in beef cattle.

Because of concerns that DES may cause cancer when taken over prolonged periods, the FDA said it will require patient brochures and labeling which stress that the drug should be taken in emergencies, such as rape.

Firemen, police strike; city idle

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—County sheriff's deputies patrolled city streets Tuesday as police and firemen began a work stoppage.

The city's 119 police and 112 firemen were promised 16 per cent pay raises in contracts approved Jan. 8. But the City Council says its fiscal situation is so poor that raises are impossible.

Robert Mays, street commissioner, has sued, challenging the legality of the pact.

Mayor James Williams met Monday

with the firemen and police but failed to reach agreement with them. At least 37 police and 22 firemen on Tuesday's first shift called in sick. The men belong to Firefighters Local 23 and Policemen Union Local 2012.

Already on strike are East St. Louis' sanitation, sewer and street crews. They are honoring picketlines at the city garage set up Jan. 21 by Machinists District 9 whose members demand the same pay hikes promised the police and firemen.

U.S. to reduce full time bomber fleet

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Tuesday that because of the unlikelihood of a surprise nuclear attack by the Soviet Union, he is reducing the number of U.S. strategic bombers held on full-time alert.

Schlesinger said 30 per cent instead of 40 per cent of the American fleet of 415 B52 bombers would remain on alert to insure they were in the air by the time any enemy missiles hit Strategic Air Command bases.

F-Senate approves tenure resolution

By Gary Marx
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate approved a resolution to allow instructors and assistant professors to defer department consideration of their tenure status.

The resolution, proposed by the Salary, Rank and Tenure Committee, serves as an informative statement to faculty members who may not know that deferment is open to them, Ruth Bauner, chairperson of the committee said Tuesday.

The resolution will be in effect until the end of spring semester when a composite statement on the tenure issue will probably be made, Bauner said.

The statement will serve as a recommendation to the Board of Trustees to clarify the University Statutes which the Faculty Senate believes are vague in regard to tenure, she said.

The resolution enables instructors to extend the probationary period for one year and assistant professors to extend it for two years.

Bauner explained that the resolution does not prohibit department chairmen from terminating untenured faculty members with one year's notice if there is sufficient cause.

Other committee considerations regarding the composite tenure statement include:

- the relationship of tenure and rank
- tenure for part time employees
- tenure for administrators
- obligations of the University to tenure faculty.

The senate also asked the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee to consider conducting a poll of the faculty on collective bargaining.

The committee will study the ramifications of collective bargaining and possible bargaining agents. It will report its findings to the March Faculty Senate meeting.

The senate also delayed until its next meeting drafting the proposed University housing rate increase.

President Warren W. Brandt, present at the meeting, said he would appreciate constituency statements on rate increases before the March Board of Trustees meeting.

Bakalis urges school responsibility

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The inadequacies of public schools are the responsibility of the school officials, and it's up to them to change the schools. Michael Bakalis, former superintendent of public instruction said Tuesday night.

Bakalis spoke to about 100 students, educators, and local school officials in the Student Center Auditorium. The talk was sponsored jointly by the Carbondale Parent-Teacher Organization, the Student Government Activities Council, and the College of Education at SIU.

"If the schools are inadequate or irresponsible or repressive to the children, then those who have the power ought to take the responsibility for it and for changing it," Bakalis said.

Bakalis said reforming the schools is the responsibility of the school officials because little input has been received from the rest of the people involved in education. He cautioned, however, that community involvement can be "contradictory."

He said many well-meaning people are putting forth suggestions for the schools that call for decentralization and integration at the same time.

Bakalis said a "long, hard look needs to be taken at the consultation of various groups." "We have no assurances that the quality of life (in the schools) is any better because of this consultation."

Bakalis cited the Illinois Education Association (IEA) as a group that, since 1970, has become increasingly important in education decision making on the state level.

Bakalis specifically commented on the IEA's political involvement in education. He said that in previous years education groups were hesitant about approaching politicians because they did not trust them. He said the IEA made "substantial" contributions to those people running for office that the organization supported.

He said the newly formed Illinois Board of Education is an example of taking partisan politics out of public education.

"We have some strange kinds of views," he said. "At the same time we removed it (from politics), we created a government-appointed board of education in which the people are removed from the actual input in the decision-making process."

Bakalis said that during his four-year term, which he described as "an exhilarating experience," he hopes he "encouraged a reassertion that the people own the schools, that the schools are theirs in a real sense."

Bakalis theorized that an "anti-intellectual tradition" has been prevalent in the United States. "The record of the school indicates the school hasn't been doing things. It is functioning as a socializing agent rather than an educative one." We need to deal with the facts of life," he added.

Bakalis urged a recognition of the contradictions in reform that people are now seeking and "fundamentally altering the political structure which governs education in our country."

Supply of peyote means long-term 'high'

that visionary experience shall be appalling."

Peyotism goes back to about 1560 and has spread widely among American Indians since about 1870. A loose organization of peyotist groups, covering several states, existed among the Indians as early as 1906.

Known today as the Native American Church, the organized peyote sect sprang into being to combat opposition to the eating of peyote. First efforts at federal laws against peyote began in 1907, though no general law has ever been passed.

Members of the Native American Church, estimated by David F. Aberle in a 1966 study at anywhere from 40,000 to 250,000, believe that peyote as a sacrament brings power to the partaker and puts him in contact with god.

Aberle's research of "The Peyote Religion Among the Navajo" describes the standard ritual of peyote worship as an all-night meeting around a ceremonial fire where each participant sings his "peyote songs." Prayers and public confession of sins are made to the peyote god, known to different tribes as Mescalito, Peyote Woman, or by various other names.

Birds, especially the water turkey and the eagle, are an important symbol for Indian peyotists. As the messengers of peyote, the birds carry prayers swiftly upwards to god.

While the main Indian use of peyote has been ritualistic, it has also been used for all manner of illnesses, from snakebite to fractures. La Barre attributes psychotherapeutic effects to the "divine plant" and urges its legalization.

A number of studies have been made on the physical effects of peyote on its user over a prolonged period of time. No record exists of the cause and effect relationship in regard to any single illness. Both La Barre and Aberle describe peyote as non-narcotic, non-habitforming and producing no ill after-effects.

The SIU Health Service and Snyerg reported no knowledge of peyote-related sicknesses or accidents.

The first state law prohibiting peyote from state to state in 1964, the California Supreme Court found that the peyote laws abridged the First Amendment rights of members of the Native American Church in regard to religious freedom.

Citing peyote as "harmless," the court authorized Indians to pick, transport and use it. Nobody else may do so. The decision raises legal perplexities about how far a court should go in exploring the good faith of religious belief.

Cult members face persecution and prison in order to use peyote, but still the religion spreads from tribe to tribe. To those for whom peyote is a way of life, the interest of young whites in pursuit of visions seems sacrilegious.

Asked why they ate peyote, Carbondale users voiced a range of reasons. "To get high," "just to try it," "to learn something," "to see beauty," were reasons given.

None of the users adhered to any organized peyote religion or expected to see god. But like the peyotists among American Indians, they believe peyote is beneficial. And like some Indians, they risk arrest and imprisonment from those who fear peyote is dangerous.

GI's benefits

Recently enacted legislation increasing the educational benefits to veterans raised their monthly benefits across the board, but it contained in addition two provisions which seemed, at the time, to hold great promise. One of these provided for a $600 loan at a low interest rate which could be repaid over a period of several years after the veteran had left school. The other was an extension in eligibility for educational benefits from 36 to 45 months.

On their face these seem to be elements of the law which could serve the veteran well in this period of rising costs in the economy as a whole and in particular education. However, the actual utility of these new benefits may not be significant to many veterans.

Although the legislation is now several months old, there still is no way to apply for the loan. The Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance's veterans section has yet to receive any guidelines outlining this program. It is not even certain who will be administering the loans.

The other provision of the new law extends the veteran's eligibility for educational benefits for another nine months. This provision is not for the use of the veteran, however, who wishes to pursue graduate study. It is designed for the veteran who takes more than 36 months of study to complete an undergraduate degree.

It might be argued that application of this extension to include graduate study would encourage veterans to become a sort of professional class of students. Of course, for the veteran wishing to remain in school and yet exhaust his benefits, it will be no difficult matter to delay graduation and thus preserve eligibility.

It is not to be denied that some veterans need more than the old law provided in terms of the time necessary to complete their undergraduate education. But why deny the veteran who completes his education on time the privilege of continuing his education through graduate study?

Delay and confusion are not atypical in the tortuous maze of a system which is the Veteran's Administration. But if the lawmakers really intended the new legislation to serve the veteran better they should act further to implement the new loan provision quickly and to remove the inequities extant in the restrictions on use of the extension of eligibility for educational benefits.

Nixon's political comeback should outrage Americans

By Gary Delsohn

This nation has a difficult time living down its most horrendous nightmares. Some devastating recent catastrophes—the Kennedy assassinations, our support of Pakistan in the Indian-Pakistan War, the Vietnam fiasco and Watergate, have all lingered, perpetuated by a ravenous press, a befuddled government and a suspicious citizenry.

One truly cataclysmic scar this country has suffered recently is again popping up in the newspapers and the public's eye—Richard Nixon.

One must feel compassion for Nixon, as one must for any clumsy slob who tripped over his own feet to a premature downfall. It can be said that Nixon's resignation and implicit guilt—as revealed in the tapes—are penalty enough. But, a line must be drawn between compassion and gullibility.

Recent statements coming from Nixon friends and constituents, that the former President would like to get back into politics, should cause eruptions of indignance and disbelief in anyone even casually familiar with the turbulent career of America's 37th President. Anyone less naive than a four-year-old child should know that if Watergate never happened, Richard Nixon would still fill the bill as a power hungry demagogue, void of respect for people and civil liberties. Ever since the days of Alger Hiss, the infamous "Checker's Speech" and the "you won't have Richard Nixon to kick around anymore" threat (unkept promise) we should have known where the man stands.

Always an opportunist looking for a way to get to the top, attempting to etch his name next to the great names in U.S. history, Nixon persevered a series of setbacks, later to discover that the only way to go from the top is down, as he most certainly did. Yet, after a career marked by insensitivity and dogmatic egomania, he has the audacity to talk about wanting to get back into government affairs.

Nixon has expressed an interest in the ambassadorship to China, as relayed to the public by Sen. Barry Goldwater. He has also expressed a desire to become an elder statesman, active in policy making, sought out by Presidents for advice. While not seeking blood or bitter revenge, the press and public should realize that enough is enough.

Gerald Ford stated he would not oppose or advocate a Nixon comeback. It stands to reason that Ford doesn't have the guts to condemn Nixon's mutterings; he has never given Nixon accurate appraisal. Pardoning Nixon was understandable—alluding to a possible comeback is irresponsible.

Not even Nixon—the perpetual optimist—believes the American public would stand to see his face again. That is why his desires have leaked out from Goldwater and other notables. It's the old Nixon trial balloon, gauging the public sentiment to see if he can pull off another coup de grace.

Pat Oliphant's (Denver Post cartoonist) latest contribution to the nation's good sense shows Nixon and Goldwater sitting in the study of the Nixon compound at "San Immunity." Goldwater is calmly listening to Nixon as the former President is telling the Senator from Arizona he will come back but "this time we do it my way—No more Mr. Nice Guy." While the comedy is obvious, the demented Nixon psyche is frightening. He still believes he was hounded out of office, destroyed by an angry press and his own "misjudgments" about Watergate.

Let Nixon talk all he wants. Even let him write his memoirs and make millions doing it. He has those rights—anyone foolish enough to be interested in hearing the ixon side of Watergate will buy the book, see the movie and join the fan club. But keep him away from Washington, unless he wishes to return for nostalgic pleasures. We finally got rid of him, (his federally financed transition period ended last week) let's not have him back.

One would have to be crazy to want to have this nightmare twice.

Police secrecy adds to public's fears

Information released by Carbondale Police about the murder of SIU coed Theresa Clark has been sketchy, generally uninformative and in some cases misleading.

While asking newsmen to cooperate, Police Chief George Kennedy has been anything but cooperative, leaving area citizens with only enough knowledge of the crime to breed fear and mistrust.

When the first reports of the murder were released, Kennedy refused to give the name of Ms. Clark's roommate who had discovered the mutilated body floating in the bathtub of their Ambassador Apartments living quarters. The police chief claimed that the roommate was "scared to death" and he wanted to protect her.

After identifying Ms. Clark's roommate—apparently not a difficult task since the identification was made within hours after the murder was reported—newsmen found that the roommate, Mary Kelly, was not "scared to death." She said the evaluation of her emotional state was "only his (Kennedy's) opinion."

With Kennedy's only reason for cloaking the roommate's identity in a cloud of mystery quickly dispelled, why does the chief still give only the scantiest facts—facts which could bring a measure of reality to an otherwise bizarre crime?

Of course, the chief has every right to withhold any information he has. Nothing he has done so far violates state law concerning information which must be made public. But even an Illinois Appellate Court in interpreting the law has said good public policy requires liberality in allowing persons the right to examine public records.

Further evidence of Kennedy's determination to mislead the public surfaced four days after initial reports when newsmen discovered Ms. Kelley was accompanied by a boyfriend when Ms. Clark's body was found. Kennedy had suppressed this information, apparently feeling the less said the better.

That revelation can only lead to the question of Kennedy's honesty. Perhaps the chief was just trying to keep someone in line with the... of the...

investigation, Kennedy claimed to have "some leads," but he refused to say what they were and he has subsequently refused to reveal where those leads have led. If he does have a suspect, he may be trying to protect his case, something for which no police officer can be faulted. But even the FBI issues descriptions of suspects in the hope the public can help in capturing them.

If Kennedy has a suspect in custody, his silence is even more enigmatic. What harm would there be in relieving public tension by letting citizens know that police believe the killer is off the streets? Even the American Bar Association's rather strict recommendations concerning what information police should release about suspects do not suggest that the suspect should not be identified.

It is possible that the investigation is going as Kennedy curtly replies when asked about it: "no suspects, no possible motives." In that case, police secrecy may be designed to cover up an inability to solve the case. That would not be hard to understand because in the past three years, Carbondale Police have only had three murders to investigate—one of them occurred on the same weekend as the Clark slaying.

Police, like other people, do not like to advertise their failures. But in light of Kennedy's claim that no other investigating agency has been called in to aid local police, Kennedy seems set on depending on a relatively inexperienced force to solve the case. Why then shouldn't he encourage public aid by alerting citizens to all the facts?

No matter which of the possibilities is reality, Kennedy's insistence on secrecy cannot be justified. In a potentially explosive situation in which public tension runs high, the police cannot afford to add to the mystery and confusion by holding back information which could make the community rest easier. An informed public is better prepared than an uninformed public to cope with the exigencies of any VCC prisoners don't spend all their time in classrooms or rigidly structured programs. Here, William J. Sanders (right), 24, and Tommy Monk, 24, find time to relax in front of the television. Sanders hails from Braidwood while Monk's home is East St. Louis. Even in prison, one can't escape television's commercials, it seems.

Probably 75 per cent of the residents receiving their associate degrees have continued with their undergraduate courses, according to Sistler. The biggest problem hindering the remaining 25 per cent is financial need, he continued.

Following VCC's philosophy of allowing the resident to make as many choices as possible, an alternate to the academic program is discussed.

If a resident does not wish to continue his academic education he can enter the vocational school. It is designed to provide the students with marketable skills, according to Hartzel Black, Shawnee College vocational program director. Students can enroll in programs ranging from cosmetology to welding.

Graduates of vocational programs receive either a certificate of completion or Associate of Applied Science degree from Shawnee College.

Finding a satisfying vocation is important in relation to work habits, Black said. If a student enters a program and isn't happy or cannot meet the requirements he can discuss transferring to another program with his program supervisory team.

All vocational programs are designed with the "open entrance-open exit" approach in mind, Black said. This allows residents to enter their chosen program every two weeks instead of waiting for the semester's end.

Instructors must prepare learning packets for students because of the open entry-open exit policy, Black said. This also enables students to advance at their own speed, he added.

One of the outstanding vocational programs, receiving national attention, is the Emergency Medical Technician program (EMT), Black said.

Students receive 84 hours of classroom and field training. Field training involves learning how to handle an emergency situation from car accidents to airplane crashes in rocky crevices.

After training the emergency medical technicians join the multi-county ambulance program in Southern Illinois. The EMT's were ecstatic after they assisted in the delivery of "their" first baby belonging to a Cairo woman who called the EMT's complaining of a "slight case of pregnancy." The baby was two months premature and weighed three pounds, five ounces.

To supplement textbooks and for recreation, VCC has its own library which is affiliated with the Shawnee library system. Five thousand books, displays of recently published literature and a resident's moth collection fill the small library. If a resident wants a book not in the Vienna library, it may be ordered through Shawnee. Topics range from astronomy to philosophy, and run the gamut in between, according to librarian Jean McKenzie. Current films are also shown on weekends for both men and women in the women's building.

Private citizens can also enroll in courses with residents in both the academic and vocational schools. When members of the free community enter the prison either as students or visitors they are not searched.

Breaking for lunch, after a morning of orientation, the residents move down the walkways, past a "bad behavior lies here" gravestone and into the proverbial cafeteria line. Dormitory food is placed on the plate, sometimes with a look that can only be described as sympathetic, by the food server. Finding a table is no problem in the large cafeteria. Residents, sitting with their friends, can add their voices to the buzz of conversation or look out the wall-sized windows to the town square.

Visitors to VCC meet their resident tour guides in the administration building. After passing a trophy filled table visitors move past the reception area. Comfortable chairs, vending machines, oil paintings of charging horses, sailing ships, still lifes and a picture window make the reception area an interesting place for residents to chat with their guests.

After lunch the counseling program is discussed. The counseling service, headed by Steve McEvers, clinical services supervisor, integrates all aspects of the prison system.

Counselors unite with housing officers, academic, vocational or work supervisors and the resident to form a program team. The team is responsible for initiating a contract with the resident. The contract is an agreement of the resident's goals while at Vienna.

Individual counselors conduct a variety of therapy programs for residents in the housing units, McEvers wearing an open-collared shirt and slacks, said.

Counselors are also responsible for arranging work release and furloughs, he said.

Counselors conduct disciplinary reviews. When a resident violates a rule, he gets a "ticket."

After receiving a "ticket" the resident is called before the administrative assignment committee consisting of an assistant warden, security captain and a counseling supervisor. They review the violation, interview the resident and determine the action, if necessary.

Residents are told that if they leave the prison perimeter they will automatically be shipped out and tried for the felony of escape. "There are no walls at Vienna," they are told, "but if you leave, sooner or later we'll catch you."

Some residents find their time at the prison without walls is the hardest time they serve because they are so close to freedom.

According to resident Bill Stacey, "there may not be physical walls here—but there are definitely walls."

Vienna tries to reintegrate prisoners back into free society

Editor's note: In this, the second of a two-part series outlining Vienna Correctional Center's programs, Ross Becker discusses the prison's vocational training and counseling services. Tomorrow, staffer Diane Solberg paints a picture of what it is like to be a prisoner at VCC, from two very personal inmates' viewpoints.

Millions owed to consumers in refunds

An AP News Special

Department stores, banks and other businesses owe millions of dollars to American consumers who have failed to collect money that is due them in charge account and credit card refunds.

Until now, it was the customer's responsibility to make sure he got his money and many people forgot or didn't bother or didn't know how to collect.

Recent government actions may put the shoe on the other foot, requiring businesses to take affirmative steps to insure refunds are received.

No one is sure just how much money is involved.

Allen Reskin of the Federal Trade Commission says the sum is "staggering... untold millions." Stephen Mindell of the New York State attorney general's office says the total could be "hundreds of thousands, even millions, of dollars. It's like a pot of gold... People are letting it go by default."

Where does all the money come from?

From customers who overpay their charge bills or who buy something, pay for it, return it and take a credit on their account.

In both cases, the bank or department store involved lists the credit on the monthly statement at the end of the billing period in which the credit was registered.

If the customer does not spend the credit in a specified period of time — usually about six months — the account is declared inactive and the balance is listed as zero. The money is transferred into an account belonging to the business.

If the customer asks for the credit, he will be given the money. But if he forgets about it, he won't get a penny. If he reactivates his account by making a purchase at a later date, he probably will be billed in the usual way for the full amount. No credit.

Isn't it illegal for someone else to keep my money?

Maybe. The trouble is, there apparently is no law specifically forbidding such a practice. The FTC filed a complaint last September against five department stores doing business under nine different banners, alleging that they pocketed $2.8 million of customers' money.

Reskin says the complaint was filed under Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act designed to prevent unfair business practices. Most states have similar laws, but officials say there have been no court rulings testing the issue.

Chase Manhattan Bank was accused by New York State Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz of transferring into its own miscellaneous-income account some $190,000 that belonged to BankAmericard customers whose accounts had become inactive. A Chase spokesman said the bank was "following a common retail industry practice of eliminating small credit balances after six months."

Lefkowitz said he was preparing legislation to make the practice illegal.

What else is being done? FTC staff members are putting the final touches on a proposed settlement agreement that would require the department stores to pay back money they are holding on inactive accounts and would prevent such a practice in the future.

According to Reskin, here's how the FTC plans would work:

Stores now holding refunds on inactive accounts accumulated after a certain date must mail checks returning the money. If they cannot locate the customer, they must hold on to the money and be prepared to refund it on demand from the consumer.

In the future, when a store issues a credit to a customer's account, it must send the customer three notices within six months, reporting the credit and stating that the refund is available.

If the customer takes no action within the six-month period, the store must automatically send a check for the amount of the refund. The only exception involves refunds under $1. In that case, the customer must request the money.

SIU Press to publish John Dewey's works

A $60,000 grant from the John Dewey Foundation has been given to the SIU Press to finance publishing of the multi-volume, "The Middle Works of John Dewey, 1899-1924."

The grant supplements an earlier gift of $10,000 from Corliss LaMont, New York philanthropist and Dewey scholar. Publication is expected to be completed in 1982.

"The Middle Works" will be printed in 15 volumes of 400-600 pages each totaling an estimated 7,152 pages. An earlier edition, "The Early Works of John Dewey, 1882-1898," was published by the Press from 1967 through 1972 in five volumes that totalled 2,568 pages.

Dewey, often called the philosopher of American democracy, was a prolific scholar and wrote more than 700 books, essays, and reviews. According to the SIU Press, "Early Works" is the only collected edition of his works ever published.

"The Middle Works" will pick up where "The Early Works" left off and will include all published and unpublished Dewey works.

The 15 volumes of the collection will be published in chronological order.

Famous linguist to lecture on how language is learned

William Labov, professor of linguistics and psychology at the University of Pennsylvania, will present the first lecture in the Language and Mind lecture series at 8 p.m. Thursday, in Davis Auditorium.

Labov, an internationally known linguist, is considered to be one of the leading exponents of the American approach to sociolinguistics.

Student wins opera audition

JoAnn Hawkins, an SIU senior in music, won first place Friday in the Southern Illinois area auditions of the Metropolitan Opera Company for young singers.

Semifinals in the Met competition were scheduled for Monday at Chicago's Lyric Opera House. Regional winners will compete in New York for a scholarship and the opportunity to join the Met's young artists' company.

His work covers practically the entire range of socio-linguistic activity and he has been particularly active in the language in the inner city, language change and variation, pidgins and creoles, and language acquisition.

Among his important contributions to the field are three books, "The Social Stratification of English in New York City," "Sociolinguistic - Patterns," and "Language in the Inner City."

The topic for Labov's lecture will be, "How Linguistic Categories are Learned." The lecture series, sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics, Speech, Speech Pathology, Psychology and Audiology, is open to the public.

Country music will be Pride of Arena

By Paula Magelli
Student Writer

The sounds of country music will fill the Arena when Charley Pride appears in concert with Ronnie Milsap at 8 p.m. Friday.

This Valentine's Day concert will feature the return of Charley Pride to Southern Illinois. Pride, whose singing career began in 1965, has been a consistent number-one star in the country music field. Today he is one of the biggest-selling recording artists of any category in the history of RCA Records.

Born in Sledge, Miss. Pride worked in the cottonfields, listening to country music whenever time permitted. At age 14, he bought his first guitar and taught himself to play.

GSC sponsors lecture on summer drama jobs

Outdoor drama will be the subject of a special lecture by Mark Sumner, sponsored by the Graduate Student Council Speaker's Bureau at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lab Theater of the Communications Building.

Sumner is the director of the Institute of Outdoor Drama at Chapel Hill, N.C. His lecture will deal with the organization and production of historical drama and will explore summer employment opportunities in that area.

Sumner is a past president of the South Eastern Theater Conference (SETC), which is beneficial in finding jobs for aspiring actors. Anyone planning on attending the SETC in March is urged to speak with Sumner.

The Institute of Outdoor Drama is similar to a consulting firm in that it researches a locality wishing to produce an outdoor drama and then advises the community on how best to organize and produce the show.

Following the lecture, which will include a film and slide show, a "Cider and Munchies" reception will be sponsored by the Southern Lab Theater, to provide an opportunity to speak with Sumner.

Free recital set for Friday

David W. Riddles, bassoon instructor in the SIU School of Music, will present a faculty recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium. Admission to the recital is free.

Riddles will be assisted by faculty members John Scammon on guitar, George Hussey on oboe, Robert Mueller on piano and Alan Oldfield on electric piano.

Pieces to be performed in the recital are Handel's "Sonata in G Minor," Tansman's "Sontate for Bassoon and Piano," Osborne's "Rhapsody for Solo Bassoon" and Schechtman's "Serenade for Bassoon and Piano."

Exhibit features SIU grad

An art exhibit featuring the work of SIU graduate Craig Voris will be on display through Monday in the Allyn Gallery.

Art works in the exhibit, many of which are for sale, include metal castings, pencil sketches, watercolors, wood and plastic sculptures and photography.

The Allyn Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. There will be a special showing on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Army judge dismisses case against WAC

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP)—An army judge has dismissed a court martial charge against a black WAC which said she had disobeyed a lawful order to "conform to military hairstyle," a military spokesman said.

Spec. 4 Babette Payton, 22, of Chicago, Ill., wears her hair in a "corn row" style—a series of tight braids arranged in rows—which the army says is against hairstyle regulations for Women's Army Corps WAC members.

Capt. Sanford W. Harvey Jr., the presiding judge, called the charge against Miss Peyton "vague, broad and intangible." The charge said Miss Peyton failed to obey an order, but did not detail the kind of hairstyle she had or how she was to alter it.

Miss Peyton still faces a special court martial charge for being absent without leave (AWOL).

He tried to break into major league baseball in 1961. This interest eventually provided him with his first opportunity in the world of music and entertainment.

Pride played semi-pro baseball for a Montana team and just for kicks sang over the park's public address system one night. This led to his first audition by a local establishment featuring country music.

When established singer Red Foley saw Pride at work, he advised him to seek his fortune in Nashville. Charley made the trip to Tennessee, where he encountered Jack D. Johnson, the man responsible for Pride's first demonstration tape. Together these two men met with Jack Clement, one of Nashville's top songwriters and record producers.

The trio staged the first recording session that convinced Chet Atkins of Pride's talent and capabilities. Pride hit the "major-leagues" with

"Just Between You and Me."

He has been awarded seven gold albums. In 1971 the Country Music Association named him "Entertainer of the Year." He has received two "Grammys," the top award of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

Ronnie Milsap will precede Pride on stage. Blind since birth, Milsap was a violin virtuoso by the age of seven. Now he plays all keyboard, stringed, percussion and woodwind instruments.

His first performing job was with J. J. Cale. Since then he has decided to "go country," establishing himself with RCA Records. Under this contract, he released "All Together Now" Let's Fall Apart." Tickets for the concert are $4, $5 and $5.50. SIU students will receive a fifty cent discount off the top two ticket prices. For tickets, contact the Student Center central ticket office or the Arena ticket office.

Information seminars slated to discuss SIU departments

By Peggy Sagona
Student Writer

Information seminars about SIU departments are being sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council.

Physiology adding new tutor service

By Jim Ridings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's physiology department announced a new development in their computer-diagnosis research program.

The physiology department in conjunction with the SIU School of Medicine, has added the services of Computer Aided Instruction (CAI) to its program.

CAI is connected with Massachusetts General Hospital and Ohio State University medical school. SIU's medical school and department of physiology is hooked into this system.

Student lessons are written into CAI's computer tape system. Student call in numbers on the machine for a particular lesson. The CAI system is somewhat similar to the "plato system" installed in the SIU School of Medicine.

Ralph Stacy, dean of the physiology department, stressed that CAI is intended for secondary classroom purposes and is not designed to take the place of the teacher.

"If a student couldn't pick up on a teacher's lecture," Stacy said, "he could go to the machine for added instruction. This is primarily an aid to help the student get along, just as a student would go to the library for additional books or notes."

The physiology department hopes to eventually put their own instructor's lessons in a tutorial-session format on the computer in the near future.

Fall registration to begin Feb. 24

Advance registration for summer and fall semesters will begin Feb. 24 in the registration center at Woody Hall.

The center will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

General Studies students may pick up their appointments beginning Feb. 18 in the General Studies office. Students advising through another department should check with that department for an appointment.

Class probes 'Okies'

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—"Okies" have received minority stature in a new course offered at Sonoma State College near here.

Students will study the sociology and "contemporary impact" of the drought that devastated Oklahoma in the 1930s and started migration of thousands from the state westward.

Part of the course will include researching the history of the "Okies," literature, music and folklore.

Representatives from various departments will talk to students and give presentations on what their departments are about.

The purpose of the discussions is to inform students who are new or undecided about their majors of the various departments that SIU has to offer.

Last semester the program was well received by the students and this may be the reason for the increase in participants this semester, said Toby Peters, chairperson of the SGAC lecture committee.

The discussions will be held through Thursday, Feb. 24. All programs begin at 2 p.m.

In the Saline River Room, second floor of the Student Center, discussions will be held on elementary education, Feb. 12; linguistics, Feb. 13; international studies, Feb. 14; home economics, Feb. 18; family economics, Feb. 19; Black American studies, Feb. 20; anthropology, Feb. 21; zoology, Feb. 24.

The following will be held in the Iroquois River Room, on the second floor of the Student Center: chemistry, Feb. 12; higher education, Feb. 13; geology, Feb. 14; accounting, Feb. 18; physical education for men, Feb. 19; philosophy, Feb. 20; engineering, Feb. 21; STC-EDP, Feb. 24.

City council examines rail relocation options

By Bruce Hackel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Visual aids depicting seven Carbondale railroad relocation project alternatives have been prepared by Clark, Dietz & Associates, Bill Schwegman, consulting engineer for the firm, said Tuesday.

Presentation of the material was made at the informal meeting of the Carbondale City Council Monday night.

"We're still in the planning stage, and once one of the seven alternatives is approved, another five to seven years will pass before the project can be completed," Schwegman said.

The project is designed to improve east-west traffic flow over the railroad tracks. Ninety-five per cent of the study is being funded through the federal government, with the city picking up the remaining five per cent.

"I assume construction of the project itself will be funded in the same manner as the study," Schwegman explained.

In other council action, discussion was heard regarding inequity in sign regulations throughout the city. Jim Morris, vice president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, questioned why the council sought to regulate flashing or moving signs.

"It's not the job of a legislative body to impose their opinion regarding placement and size of signs on the city as a whole," Morris said.

Stating he represented the Chamber of Commerces' official opinion,

Morris said he was not satisfied with the look of the community now, but added, "I suggest there isn't any equitable way to correct the sign situation."

Councilman Clark Vineyard said he thought Carbondale is an ugly town, and that some effort should be made to get the ugliness of the signs in town under control. He suggested that the Chamber draw up its own proposal regarding how the sign problem should be handled.

"I would prefer to have voluntary cooperation, rather than an ordinance passed by the council," Vineyard said.

City Manager Carroll Fry suggested both the new and the old ordinances be reterred back to the planning commission for further study.

Road work tops board agenda

Action on a $250,000 road repair budget and revision of the county's dog ordinance will highlight the monthly meeting of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors at 10 a.m., Thursday in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro.

County Highway Superintendent Bill Munson said the 1975 budget request is lower than last year's request. The continued good conditions of county roads enabled the lower budget request, he said.

The county is expected to change its present rabies vaccination and dog licensing requirements to meet new requirements set by state law.

Under the new regulations, a dog will be considered a stray if it is over four months of age and does not have a current rabies inoculation tag.

The law will allow the county to charge for rabies shots and enforce the dog licensing requirements more effectively. Part of the enforcement system calls for two dog control wardens to patrol the county and disposal by police of strays which cannot be caught.

In other matters, the board will consider a request by the state's attorney's office to hire two SIU law students as part-time clerks.

Armed hitchhiker robs SIU student

An unidentified male SIU student was robbed at approximately 5 p.m. Monday in the vicinity of the Crab Orchard Lake spillway. Steve Frick, Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge manager disclosed Tuesday.

Frick declined to identify the victim pending investigation into the matter.

"The robbery victim was driving his car south along Spillway Road when he stopped about one mile north of the spillway to pick up a hitchhiker," Frick said.

Frick said the hitchhiker asked to be let out of the car a little further down the road, when he pulled out a gun.

Frick said the robber asked for the student's billfold and told him to get out of the car and walk towards the spillway. He said the victim heard his car door slam and saw the robber run into the woods.

When the victim returned to his car he discovered that the robber had taken his car keys with him when he fled, Frick said.

Frick said both the Refuge authorities and the Williamson County Sheriff's Office are investigating the incident. No suspects have been charged.

Keggers, dorm costs topics of East Side talk

By Bob Niblack
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Executive Council met last week with Sam Rinella director of SIU housing.

Explaining why "keggers" weren't allowed in the dormitories.

Rinella said too many people under the legal drinking age of 19 live in the dorms.

Rinella urged the council representatives to work on lowering the drinking age in the state to 18 if they want beer allowed in public dorm areas.

Rinella was asked to comment on the proposed increase for room and board in university housing. Council representatives claimed the increase was more than that being asked by other state universities in Illinois.

Rinella said the rise was partly due to increased coal costs. The price of coal now stands at $27 per ton, up from $19 this past summer, and three times higher than the price a year ago.

Rinella said 55 per cent of the proposed increase is for the cost of utilities. He said increased prices caused a $180,000 deficit in the utility account. The money used for coal was acquired by delaying the start of some improvement projects, such as the painting of dormitory rooms, Rinella said.

One student complained that he found a coach in his chili at Grinnell Hall. Rinella said he was notified by the Health Department about the incident. He said there was a problem with roaches in the cafeterias last November, but a spraying program had been implemented to stop it. "The cafeterias are sprayed five times a week," he said.

Rinella also said more parking is available to East Side residents since the opening of a new lot with 66 spaces. However, representatives were urged not to use the lot for overnight parking, because it is not lighted.

He said the Security Police fear the lack of lighting might encourage more thefts from the parking lot.

Christian life classes offer three levels of Bible study

By Tim Hastings
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Bible is the textbook for the Christian Life Class (CLC) taught by the Campus Crusade for Christ which began Tuesday night in the Missouri Room of the Student Center.

Classes in basic, intermediate and advanced CLC are taught simultaneously every Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 for six weeks.

The classes must be taken in sequence. Enrollment will end after next week.

Each meeting begins with a general assembly which includes singing and the sharing of testimonies. Afterwards, the group divides into three classes. Class time is divided between a short lecture and small group discussions.

Students don't have to be Christians to enroll, according to Gary Ferguson, coordinator of CLC. "All we ask is that they be open-minded and have a teachable attitude," he said.

Basic CLC is taught by Mark Bleyer and Bert Gainer, Campus Crusade for Christ staff members. The topics covered in this course will be "How to Have a Relationship with God"; "How to Experience God's Love and Forgiveness"; "How to Be Filled with the Spirit"; "How to Walk in the Spirit"; "How to Witness in the Spirit" and "How to Have an Impact for Christ."

Ray Wetzel, a sophomore majoring in electrical technology, is the instructor of Intermediate CLC which deals with such subjects as, "How to Love by Faith"; "How to Share Christ with Others"; "How to Pray" and "How to Study the Bible."

Advanced CLC covers "New Testament Documents"; "Biblical Revelation"; "A Case for Inspiration" and "Evolution," taught by Frank Dennison, SIU staff director of the Campus Crusade.

Guard foils escape attempt

MARION (AP) — A Marion federal prison inmate hid himself in a bathroom wall for more than 24 hours with a bag of groceries before a round-about escape attempt was foiled by a sharp-eyed staff member, authorities said Tuesday.

Ralph Aaron, warden at the maximum-security prison, said James Johnson Jr., 46, of Charleston, S.C. removed a concrete block from the bathroom wall Monday morning and hid himself inside, along with a bag of groceries from the commissary and a knife. An as yet unidentified confederate replaced the block, puttied up the seams and repainted it. A staff member, participating in a search of the prison, noticed late Tuesday morning that the block had been tampered with.

Johnson, serving a 20-year sentence for bank robbery with assault, surrendered without a struggle.

Young workers league aims to cut tuition by 50 per cent

Maurice Richards, chairman of the Young Workers Liberation League (YWLL) at SIU, announced a program of action aimed at reducing tuition by 50 per cent, stopping a proposed 10 per cent increase in dorm costs and unionizing student workers.

The YWLL is affiliated with the World Federation of Democratic Youth and is fraternally related to the American Communist Party. The goal of the YWLL, according to Richards, is "...the establishment of a socialist society."

"Richards said the YWLL will be seeking signatures on petitions for reducing tuition and maintaining present dorm costs.

Richards said, "To a lot of people, a 50 per cent reduction sounds like an extreme demand. But we've done research on this problem, and our research indicates it's not that extreme."

Richards indicated that studies

Big Star robbed of $2,300 cash

Mack's Big Star Food Center in the Eastgate Shopping Center was robbed of an estimated $2,300 sometime between 7:30 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday, Carbondale police reported.

After gaining entry through an incinerator, the burglar broke into the business office of the store, the report said. The thief then broke into a file cabinet containing three cash register drawers, according to the report.

The drawers contained both bills and coins. The burglar left behind much of the coinage, the report said.

done by the YWLL show that only seven per cent of the university's operating revenue is supplied by tuition. "We'd like to see that cut down to 3.5 per cent and supplement the other 3.5 with a combination of increased state and federal aid," he said.

Richards said this increased funding problem would have to be approached at a national level. He also said, "In the budget that (President) Ford has submitted to the Congress, he's calling for an $8.8 billion increase in military spending while at the same time talking about a further decrease in health, education and welfare funding."

Richards said the YWLL plans to pressure the SIU-C administration.

"They could conceivably work for the students to fight these reductions," he said. The reason pressure must be put on the administration is that, "they are not going to voluntarily relieve this burden," he added.

Richards said the YWLL has been active on the SIU-C campus in the past by collecting funds for the Nguyen Van Troi Children's Hospital in North Viet Nam and by campaigning to seek the impeachment of former President Richard M. Nixon.

Richards emphasized that participation in the organization's campaign does not require membership in the YWLL.

"A TREE OF LIFE"

Do you know what tree provides material to build an entire house, most of the furnishings including chairs, beds, mattresses, carpets, brooms, cups, saucers, soap and even toothbrushes? In fact, we could live on this tree's products alone.

Well if you haven't guessed, it's the coconut tree. Also, you'll find it all over the Pacific area. Also in the Caribbean and East Africa. Nearly all the coconuts on earth grow on islands. So you won't find any here in our area.

Some 25 billion coconuts are harvested annually. And that comes out to about seven for every man, woman, and child on earth! And the Philippines is the largest exporter, who provides two of the seven.

Now, if you think you didn't get YOUR seven coconuts, stop to think of all the coconut you can use. You can eat them, and all these coconut-filled candy bars... and maybe some delicious coconut milk.

Incidentally, if you've ever bought a whole coconut here at Mack's and imagined that some native boy scrambled up a palm tree like a squirrel to get it, I'm afraid I'm going to have to disillusion you. Real-life harvesters use tremendously long bamboo poles, with knives fastened to the ends. Or they just wait for the coconuts to fall of their own accord.

Our stars may not remind you of a tropical island, but have you didn't have to search for buried treasures... there's an every shell.

Funds for lecturers available from GSC speakers' bureau

The Graduate Student Council's speakers' bureau has $4,300 left to spend this semester, Joe Dotson, chairman of the bureau said. The speaker's bureau was allocated $6,000 at the beginning of fall semester, he said.

Some $2,000 will be used for one major speaker still unchosen, Dotson said. The remaining $2,300 is to be used for minor speakers who can be invited by any graduate department in the University, he said.

Dorm meals to get exotic overhauling

Dining on steaks in the soft glow of candlelight is far from usual for dormitories, but Thompson Point residents will get a taste of it Wednesday evening.

The dinner is the first of several efforts to create a more pleasurable atmosphere for students, according to George O. Bowden, cafeteria manager. Food service employees are planning Swedish, Middle-European, Far Eastern and Mexican delicacies for this semester.

"We'd like to get back to having nice dinners," said Bowden, whose ice carvings sometimes decorate the salad bar. "There was a time we did these things more often, but student thefts brought about a halt."

Dotson said that for a speaker to be funded by the bureau, a petition with the signatures of five graduate students must be presented to the bureau along with the speaker's name, qualifications and place and date of appearance.

Mark Sumner, director of the outdoor drama institute at the University of North Carolina, and Helene Lopata, chairperson of the department of Sociology at Loyola University in Chicago, have already been lined up to speak this semester, Dotson said.

The bureau meets every other Wednesday, alternating with the GSC meetings, Dotson said. Interested graduate students are welcome to attend, he said.

Dotson said that the major speaker will be picked when the bureau finds out who is available. Ramsey Clark, former U.S. attorney general, is among the people being considered for speaking engagements at SIU, Dotson said.

Vets find'g STC programs tailor-made

Returning veterans are finding that associate-degree programs conducted by the SIU School of Technical Careers (STC) are tailor-made for turning service-acquired skills into college credits.

Arden L. Pratt, dean of the STC, said that all veterans' benefits are available, and SIU offers a variety of work and loan programs to assist its students.

"Most veterans know what it is like in the outside world, and many major in a practical subject. They want a skill that they can see put into practice while in school," Pratt said.

STC offers three alternatives to traditional class attendance. Within the guidelines of the school, credit is granted for work experience, including military occupational specialties, and students also may earn credit through competency testing or by demonstrating proficiency, Pratt explained.

The veteran usually finds that the time he has invested in technical training during military experience is directly applicable to preparation for a civilian career in the same general field, he said.

Pratt added that many of the 19 associate-degree programs at the STC relate directly to service occupations—electronics, physical therapy, aviation, construction and data processing.

Vo-Ed to review accomplishments at meeting today

A meeting will be held Wednesday in observance of National Vocational Education Week from 9 a.m. to noon in Wham 126.

Members of the SIU Occupational Education Graduate Student Association will be ready to answer any questions in regard to vocational education, Jim Acord, president of the association, said.

Two films will be presented on Career Education and on Overview of Vocational Education in the State of Illinois at the meeting.

"The purpose of this national observance is to bring attention to the merits and accomplishments of vocational education," Acord said.

Campus Briefs

All officers of the Student Council for Exceptional Children will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center.

THAN $525 A MONTH YOUR SENIOR YEAR.

Even if you're a Junior engineering or physical science major, it's not too early to start thinking about a job opportunity in the Navy. And if you think you've got what it takes to become an expert in nuclear power, the Navy has a special program you should look into right away.

Why right away? Because if you're selected, we'll pay you more than $525 a month during your Senior year. (If you are presently a Senior, you can still join the program. We'll begin paying you $525 a month as soon as you are selected.)

What then? After graduation and Officer Candidate School, you'll get nuclear training from the men who run more than 70% of America's nuclear reactors - Navy men. And an opportunity to apply that training in the Navy's nuclear-powered fleet.

Only about 200 men will be chosen for this program this year. So, if you're interested, call us collect, at (314) 268-2506 or visit the Student Union, Kaskaskia Room or the Engineering Placement Office, Feb. 18 & 19, 1975.

Be someone special in the Nuclear Navy.

Students can travel, work in Europe job program

By Gary Duncan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

At the end of every school year, the mysterious malady of wanderlust strikes students in epidemic proportion and sends them scampering about the world in search of adventure and new experiences.

If the summer travel bug is nibbling at your heels and you have no money to soothe the itch, David Krause of the Division of Continuing Education has information about a European work-study program which may provide an answer.

This program, administered in cooperation with Student Overseas Services, a California based organization, provides students between the ages of 17 and 27 a job and free room and board in Austria, Belgium, France, Germany or Switzerland.

Wages for these jobs range from $220 to $450 per month, according to Krause. Job categories include receptionist, office worker, kitchen helper, groundskeeper, waiter and waitress. European employers participating in the program are resort and hotel operators, and managers of restaurants, offices and hospital staffs.

While the program is not entirely new, it is new at SIU-C. "In the past this office has dealt only with our own programs, but we've expanded to all types of travel-study programs," Krause said.

Krause also said it is possible for a student to earn university credit abroad through an independent study program. He emphasized that credit would not normally be given because of a job performed overseas, but would be given as a result of outside research performed while working.

Course for consumers set for fall

By Don Neason
Student Writer

A consumer resource course will be offered this summer and fall by the Family Economics and Management Department.

Shirley Friend, assistant dean of the College of Human Resources, said the course will be offered as FE&M 240, Consumer Resources, and will not be listed in the 1975-76 course catalogue.

The course was developed last November by Thomas Broas, Mary Ellen Edmondson and Sue Petersen, all FE&M staffers. Because the catalog is printed a year in advance, FE&M 240 won't be included, although Petersen said department advisors will be notified.

"We want to make the student aware of the resources he has available in dealing with consumer problems relating to housing, health services, automobile ownership and food and educational services," Petersen said.

Representatives of these various areas will be invited to speak to students about problems in their respective areas.

"Many of the problems are brought on by the students themselves, due to a lack of consumer awareness and education," Petersen said.

Petersen said students are sometimes considered housing risks because they've made themselves risks, due to a lack of knowledge about fundamental consumer practicalities regarding housing and other consumer areas.

According to Friend, the new 240 course will replace FE&M 200, the fundamentals of everyday living for men, and 201 for women.

"There was no reason that men and women couldn't talk about the fundamental of everyday living together," she said.

program are provided with working papers, where necessary, and are given a brief orientation in Luxembourg prior to actually reporting to their jobs.

Krause said students must pay for their transportation to Luxembourg. He said the fare from New York, round-trip, is about $432.

In addition to these paying jobs, Krause said there are non-paying volunteer jobs available which entail work on community projects.

Although no pay is involved, these jobs offer free room and board, entertainment, local travel privileges and sometimes pocket money.

Krause said interested students should submit their applications well in advance. Applications may be made through Krause at the office of the Division of Continuing Education at 315 W. Grand, north of Morris Library. He suggests that interested persons call him at 453-2395 for an appointment or stop by his office during morning hours.

Egyptian Diver's claim another IM swim title

By Rick Korch
Student Writer

For the third year in a row, the Egyptian Diver's won the intramural swim meet held at Pulliam Pool Saturday.

After being in the lead the whole meet, the Egyptian Diver's found themselves down 43-40 to the Rugby team with only one event to go.

Not wanting to lose their grasp of the championship which has been their's so long, the Diver's easily won the 200-yard freestyle relay and escaped with a 52-49 win.

The Egyptian Diver's won only three events during the day, but they often had the hold on second or third place.

The meet was also open to women, but no teams entered, and all of the women competed as individuals.

The only person to win more than one event was Diane Bednarczyk, who won the women's 50-yard freestyle and the diving competition. She also finished second in her only other event, as all participants could enter only two events, along with the diving competition.

It has not yet been determined how many of the winning times were records. About 100 participants were expected, but there were some last minute scratches.

The winners and their times are as follows:

Men's Competition

- 200-yard Medley Relay—Egyptian Diver's—1:55.8
- 500-yard Freestyle—Mark Heberman (Alpha Kappa Lambda)—6:15.2

IM managers to meet Friday

The Office of Recreation and Intramurals will hold team managers meetings for all eligible intramural basketball teams Friday, at Morris Library Auditorium. These meetings will deal with the drawing and seeding of team positions in the All University Single Elimination Basketball Tournament.

The first meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. for all basketball teams that have sustained at least one loss but have won at least 50 per cent of their regular season games. The second meeting is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. for all undefeated basketball teams.

The Office of Recreation and Intramurals urges all team managers, whose teams qualify, to attend the meetings or send another team representative.

Crockett's mark in

Ivory Crockett

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Former Saluki Ivory Crockett's time of 9.0 seconds for 100 yards has been approved as a world track record by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the Amateur Athletic Union said Monday.

Jim Lafferty, track and field administrator for the AAU, said the international ruling body for the sport had approved 22 world records and three record-tying performances through last Dec. 31.

Three other world records set by Americans in 1974, two of them by Rick Wohluter of Chicago, also have been accepted, Lafferty said.

Also approved was the sensational 3:32.2 for the 1,500-meter run set by Tanzania's Filbert Bayi. Bayi now is competing in the United States.

Wohluter, recently named winner of the 1974 Sullivan Award as the outstanding U.S. amateur athlete, made the official record book for his 1:44.1 for 880 yards and 2:13.9 for 1,000 meters.

Jim Bolding of the Pacific Coast Club, Long Beach, Calif., was given official credit for his world record of 48.7 seconds for the 440-yard hurdles.

Two record-tying runs by Americans also were certified for the record book sprinter Steve Williams of San Diego for his 9.9 seconds for the 100-meter dash and Debra Sapenter of Prairie View, Tex., for her :52.2 for the women's 440.

Crockett broke the mark of 9.1 for 100 yards on May 11 at Knoxville, Tenn. The previous record of 9.1 was shared by six runners. It was first set by Bob Hayes in 1963.

The SIU wrestlers are in no big hurry to face the defending national champion Oklahoma, but they probably figure it's better to do it sooner than later.

The Salukis travel to Norman, Okla., Wednesday in an attempt to bring the down the powerful Sooners. Thursday, SIU will be at Oklahoma State to face last year's NCAA third place team.

SIU will go with pretty much the same lineup it has all season. If Joe Goldsmith can make weight, something he hasn't been able to do the last two outings, he will handle the 118 weight class. Goldsmith boasts an 11-3 record and, if he doesn't compete, a capable Mike Pickhaver will take his spot.

At 126, Dale Eggett will be looking to boost his record over the 300 mark, and 134-pounder Dennis Lewis needs a victory to bring him to within one win of 500.

Talented sophomore 142-pounder Clyde Ruffin is coming off a tremendous win over his Iowa State opponent and is looking for his 16th decision of the season.

Fred Hoef attempts to get back on the winning track at 150.

Jim Horvath puts his personal four match winning streak on the line in the 150 weight class, and either Tim Maday or Jay Friedrich will wrestle at 167.

Junior Mark Wiesen carries the best record on the team and the longest winning streak with 10 in a row. With a victory Wednesday, Wiesen would be only two wins behind his total of 19 in 1974.

Freshmen Tim Swoboda at 190 and heavyweights Ken Karawoski and Marvin Martin have been hot and cold his season, and inexperience may hurt them against some of the toughest competition in the country.

One of the more interesting battles of the night should be at 142, where Ruffin will have to tussle with Brian Beatson, third in the Big Eight last year at his weight, sixth in the NCAA meet and owner of a 13-2-1 record this season.

Sooner junior Rod Kilgore could Bifocal or single vision contact lenses can be fitted now with the aid of a computer. Bifocal lens has no segment or line to distort the vision and looks like a single vision lens.

With the use of a PhotoElectric Keratometer called PEK Mark III a photograph of the eye is made. The photo, along with the prescription is sent to the Visual Data Center in Chicago where they are put into a computer. The computer calculates the structure, size, tear layer and the RX required.

The advantage of the lens is usually more comfort and longer initial wearing time.

Squids chalk up pair of victories

By Tim Stout
Student Writer

Nate Quinn, Greg Palumbo, and players who rolled up the SIU Squids wheelchair basketball team to two victories last weekend, 43-13 over the University of Illinois Gizz Kids Saturday and 56-40 over the St. Louis Rams, Sunday.

Both contests were played at John A. Logan College in Cartersville.

Turnovers seemed to be the name of the game Saturday. The Squids rolled up a 20-3 first half advantage over the Gizz Kids, largely because of a man-to-man fullcourt press. The Gizz Kids tried to stall tactics and a sagging defense against the Squids' speed to keep the score low.

Quinn and Palumbo paced the Squids with 12 points each, followed closely by Clark with 11, with Leon Sturtz and Dennis Howard each adding four points. John O'Neill led the Gizz Kids with six points.

Clark, reflecting on the Squid turnovers, said, "We (the Squids) were tight and lost our concentration on some of our passes."

In the Rams game, the turnovers continued for the Squids during the first two minutes of the first half, but the Squids soon got untracked and posted a 10-1 lead with 13:18 left in the half.

The Rams tried to come back by shifting into a zone with 7:50 remaining, but were out scored 26-17 in the first half.

Clark led the Squid attack with 27, followed by Sturtz with 14, Palumbo with eight, Quinn with five, and Howard with two.

Bob McColloch led the Rams with 19 points. He had been averaging 32 points a game during the past few weeks, but was shut off inside on offense by the Squids pressing defense.

Clark summarized, "Our defense looked a bit sloppy early in the first half, but I was rather pleased with our defense overall. We are progressing well with the hopes of entering regional (tournament) play."

Holmes visits SIU officials

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference has been on campus the past three days visiting with school officials and meeting with the entire staff of the SIU athletic department.

Saluki fans can expect to see Commissioner Mickey Holmes around the campus every year this time and in the fall, too. He explained his visit as one of his annual trips to all the conference schools.

This trip, he had a more specific reason for coming to SIU and meeting with the athletic department for three hours Tuesday.

"Most of the meeting we talked about the transition period from an independent to a conference member that SIU faces," Holmes said. "The biggest problem a school has in joining a conference is scheduling and eligibility."

Women down Murray

By Martha Sanford
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

After visitors' transportation problems and a delay in starting the game, the Saluki women's basketball team edged Murray State, 48-44, Tuesday night in Davies Gym.

The game started out slow with a first quarter score of 10-4 in favor of the Saluks. Then, SIU made the most of several scoring opportunities when Pam Berryhill grabbed a couple of quick steals and turned the fast break into four points.

Murray State then rallied and, by halftime, the score was 23-19, Saluks. As the second half got underway, Murray State's co-captain Lois Holmes was warned by the referees for a disrespectful attitude towards the officials.

Holmes perhaps had reason to be concerned about the game as Murray's tallest player, 6-foot-1 Cindy Leimbach,

He said SIU will have little trouble in making the transition because "they had the foresight to recognize the problems they would face."

"I think it's part of the service aspect of the commissioner's office to visit the campuses each fall and after the NCAA convention," Holmes continued. "When I meet with the staffs, we go over new legislation and go over any question they may have about new or old legislation. This is part of our overall compliance program. We look at this as a broad program, not just to investigate infractions or alleged infractions."

Holmes suggested that the most important part of the program is its education aspect.

"The fact that we have an opportunity to sit down with the coaches and discuss existing rules is important," he said, "and they have an opportunity to ask questions and get the answers they need in order to operate."

Before stopping off in Carbondale and then Drake, the red-haired commissioner made stops at New Mexico State and West Texas State. The life of the head man in the Valley is not all glory, and he admits that his greatest worry is that of crowd control.

"I live in fear of crowd control until I've touched base with every conference team after a basketball game," he said. "I can't sleep until I know how everything is."

"I hope I'm never around when I don't committed four fouls in the first half. Fouls plagued Murray State throughout the game, and, after Leimbach fouled out in the second half, she was followed by three other teammates.

Murray State coach Dewdrop Rowlett said, "You can give the officials credit for 20 of Southern's points."

SIU was in the lead until the last six minutes of the contest when Murray grabbed a 36-35 lead. Two minutes later, SIU's Vicky King tied the game with a free throw. SIU then took a 42-40 lead and held off the Kentucky school.

The tough Saluki defense was responsible for holding Murray several times until the 30-second clock ran out.

Jan Winkler led the team in scoring with 16 points, followed by Berryhill with 12. Field goal percentages were 27 per cent for SIU and 25 for Murray.

"It was a good game," head coach Charlotte West said. "We needed the win psychologically." Last week, Murray defeated the Saluks 57-40.

have a concern for crowd control," Holmes expressed. "What made everyone more cognizant of the lack of crowd control and its negative aspects was the Minnesota-Ohio State incident a few years ago."

Basically, Holmes said crowd control must be handled by the coaches and officials. He said the conference does all it can to teach coaches and officials how to go about controlling a crowd.

Sitting in the office of SIU athletic director and football coach Doug Weaver, Holmes commented on the recruiting situation in the Valley.

"The program we have established and the way the athletic directors have reacted, I think all members of the conference are convinced that the conference means business, and there won't be any toleration in the cutting of corners," he remarked. "Consequently, what exists in the conference is a major degree of trust of one another. Everyone in the conference feels that the other guy is going down the same side of the street as he is."

Holmes could not quote any figures, but did say that, as much as he is aware of, recruiting violations are minimal in the Valley.

Between all incoming SIU students, a common bond exists.

It's a question—the one that comes right after, "where are the best bars?" In simplest terms, it goes, "What's a saluki?"

A saluki, according to "Webster's Third New International Dictionary," is "an old North African and Asiatic breed of tall slender swift-footed keen-eyed hunting dogs having long narrow skulls, long silky ears, straight forelegs, strong widely set hind legs, a long well-feathered tail, and a smooth silky coat ranging from white or cream to black or black and tan."

Doesn't exactly leave it to be confused with a bulldog, does it! A saluki is a classy dog. However, the word "saluki" like the definition, is unwieldy. It doesn't adapt itself to chants, banners or newspaper articles.

So, lately, the SIU Saluks have been going to "the Dogs," so to speak. We at the Daily Egyptian have interchanged the terms "Dogs" and "Saluks," much to the chagrin of a few, causing various reactions from many.

"Personally, I would much prefer 'Saluks,'" Sports Information Director Butch Henry remarked when questioned Tuesday. "I like it because it's unique. A lot of nicknames are common among colleges, but we're the only one with 'Saluks.'"

"I used to work at the desk at a newspaper, though," he added. "I can understand that sometimes when you need a three-and-a-half-count word for a headline, 'Dogs' works better than 'Saluks.'"

Actually, it's four-and-a-half counts in journalism lingo (which may be why Butch isn't at the newspaper anymore), but that's not our main reason for using the term. 'Dogs' not only provides a variation from the norm, but it is catchy.

"I can see where, 'Let's go, Saluks,' wouldn't work too well," basketball coach Paul Lambert offered, trying to sing it in rhythm. "'Dogs' does fit in better."

It's not a new term. Arena banners and occasional chants of "Go, Dogs, go" introduced it long ago. It's like utilizing the beat of "Go, Mets, go" or "Go, Bucs, go," instead of "Go, Metropolitan, go" or "Go, Pirates, go." Those are "no go," to say the least.

"I like 'Saluks,' because it kind of has a ring to it," Lambert mused. "The big reason, though, I think, is just that I've used it more and am used to it."

"That's like me calling Chuck (Hughlett) 'Mel,'" he said. "It's hard to break an old habit. I say, 'Gee, Chuck, I mean Mel, I'll try to call you 'Mel,' but Getting around to the local scene, the commissioner had a few feelings on SIU's membership in the MVC.

"SIU, with its overall program, will provide the necessary ingredient, the catalyst that this conference needs to become what I consider a true conference," Holmes voiced in a complimentary tone.

"SIU's excellence in many sports will force our other institutions from a basic competitive standpoint, to move their programs in order just to remain competitive. Southern's leadership in this area can draw the conference together."

As for adding any more members to the conference, Holmes said no timetable has been set up, although "we will continue to make visitations like we did at Southern a year ago."

He said some institutions have expressed interest in joining the conference and said the conference and some coaches have also given thought to expanding, but that no immediate plans are being made.

"It may be the final determination that where we are now (in terms of membership) is where we ought to be," he concluded.

Salukis, Dogs or all of the above?

understand if I don't."

Oh, boy, here we go again. Charlie wants to be called Mel. Now, "Mel of the Dogs" has that real down-to-earth sound which "Charlie of the Saluks" lacks. It reminds me of Mel's comments concerning the use of "Dogs" the other day.

"It's okay," he said, "but just don't use it when we lose."

Offensive? Lambert doesn't think so. "As far as being offensive, no, definitely not," said the Top Dog.

It's very similar to a situation Henry was once close to. He hails from the football-crazed area of Arkansas University, whose Razorbacks are referred to as the "Hogs." The lovable "Hogs" are almost a cultural tradition in that part of the country. Can "Dogs" possibly become the same?

As Groucho Marx would say, "I rest my case..." We'd like some readers to step up to the soapbox.
