Proposed SWRF fee hike reduced

By Mark Edgar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The proposed fee hike in the Student Welfare and Recreation Trust Fund (SWRF) was reduced from $11.25 to $6.75 per semester in reaction to a Student Senate resolution denouncing the increase.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said he recommended the fee reduction after listening to arguments opposing the increase presented by Student Government leaders.

The SIU Board of Trustees is scheduled to act on the SWRF fee as well as proposed increases for the Student Center fee and Medical Benefit fee at Thursday's meeting in Edwardsville.

If the Board approves the University’s proposal, the SWRF fee would increase from $5 to $11.75, the Student Center fee would increase from $20 to $29 and the Medical Benefit fee would be increased from $22.25 to $40.

The University had requested in the original proposal that SWRF be raised to $17.75 but deleted $5 for new capital projects and for maintenance and operation of the new Recreation Building and $1 for replacement of equipment for the building.

Swinburne said he was considering the $6 reduction would not jeopardize any existing programs but "it does place limitations on what we can do to improve facilities and recreation areas in the future.

CFUT, UFAC heads differ on senate's decision

Opinions vary on F-Senate bargaining poll

By Steve Lambert
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Reactions to the Faculty Senate’s decision to poll faculty members on collective bargaining were mixed among leaders of the collective bargaining movement Wednesday.

Amato Pappel, an organizer for the United Faculty Association of Carbondale (UFAC), said he is interested in helping President Warren Brandt obtain information on the feelings of the faculty on the subject.

Pappel, a professor in botany, urged faculty members to respond to the senate’s poll in lieu of a UFAC poll which has already been sent through the mail.

Results of a campus-wide faculty referendum on collective bargaining to be sponsored by the Faculty Senate will probably prove to be "unreliable," Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), said Wednesday.

Donow, who once presided over the senate, said he is disappointed in the way the poll, scheduled for Feb 18, will be conducted.

Although Senate Vice President David Bateman said the entire senate recommended the referendum last fall, some senate members were totally unaware that it would be coming up so soon, according to Donow.

The poll, an attempt to get faculty reaction to collective bargaining, was announced at Tuesday’s Faculty Senate meeting.

"There won’t be enough time to publicize it," Donow said, adding that the only way to get collective results from such a poll is to have more input.

"The current senate does not seem too concerned about getting the best results," Donow said.

Donow said that under his presidency in 1975, the senate conducted a "much more prepared" survey of faculty sentiment toward collective bargaining.

At that time we felt that the only way to get the most faculty input into the survey was to devote a great deal of time toward promotion," he said.

As a result," he added, "we even conducted a symposium a few weeks before the actual poll to let the faculty know what we were trying to achieve."

If some 1,480 faculty members questioned in that survey, 75 per cent agreed.

Results showed that 65 per cent of those respondents supported collective bargaining.

40 percent were opposed to it and 15 percent were uncertain.

"What’s surprising about those results is that before the actual poll, most people thought that bargaining wouldn’t win faculty support. Donow said.

Despite what Donow called "weaknesses in the upcoming referendum," he said he expects 60 percent of the respondents to vote in favor of collective bargaining.

"Realistically speaking," he said, "I think there’s a chance of at least a 60 percent favorable response.

Donow said he expects the Board of Trustees will conduct a similar poll by April. a move he feels could be the final step in deciding whether SIU faculty get collective bargaining rights.

Faculty members currently are not allowed to unionize in bargaining matters such as salary, fringe benefits, and leave of absences.

The CFUT, as well as the Carbondale Chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the United Faculty Association of Carbondale (UFAC) are trying to win collective bargaining rights at SIU-C.
Northern Californians rationing water

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Shoers at each night, clean shirts every day and drinkless memories for more than a million Northern Californians who woke up Wednesday morning under a趋势 of severe water restrictions orders.

Directors of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, which serves 1.1 million persons across the bay from San Francisco, imposed the new restrictions because a two-year drought has severely reduced reservoirs.

Just 10 days earlier, 149,600 Marin County residents north of San Francisco were ordered to cut their water use by 20 per cent.

San Francisco has declared a “water emergency” but has not yet enforced any restrictions.

Lack of rain and snow has also threatened water supplies in many other areas of the West, and water rationing has been mentioned as a distant possibility in sections of Oregon and Nevada.

The East Bay rationing, covering Oakland and surrounding communities in Alameda and Contra Costa counties, came with warnings that chronic water shortages could affect the district’s ability to supply water for the next 10 years.

Each person will be limited to 60 gallons a day with a maximum of 280 gallons per family, regardless of size.

District figures show families in the counties of Contra Costa and Alameda are using as much as 465 gallons a day, of which 406 gallons went to landscaping and other exterior uses.

This compares with East Bay urban areas of San Francisco and Oakland, using an average of 225 gallons a day, with 135 gallons for exterior use.

The impact on the lifestyles of Oakland residents will be immediate, and at least one resident, Catherine Moss, said she and her family were skeptical.

“I’m not a wasteful person,” she said.

The water shortage will especially affect some businesses.

Andy Shateln, owner of a Berkeley commercial laundry, said he has been cutting back his water use by 25 per cent for the past two weeks in anticipation of the district’s action.

Leenias Jackson, proprietor of an Oakland laundromat, said simply, “I need water to survive.”

The utility directors declared a “water shortage emergency condition” late Tuesday and ordered the mandatory restrictions implemented immediately.

The goal is to reduce last spring’s daily average consumption of 280 million gallons a day to 266 million gallons daily.

“Immediate action will March 5 to consider a strict schedule and possible rate increases. They said they also may review the household allotments,” the utility said.

Director John Reynolds said less severe curtailments would be enforced against industry because of fees of increased water consumption.

Under the plan, water supplies for industrial users would be cut to 10 per cent of normal consumption for 25 per cent, multiple dwellings with five or more units, 30 per cent, public agencies’ interior use, 25 per cent, public agencies’ exterior use, 50 per cent.

County to enforce strict rabies control program

By John Rechicka

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Health and Safety Committee is going to be more aggressive in administering a rabies control program in Jackson County.

William G. Schwartz, assistant state’s attorney said Monday that animal control wardens will be picking up any dog more than four months that does not have a rabies and a vaccination tag.

Although the Jackson County Board approved the rabies program last year, Schwartz said that in the past a wandering dog has been captured doing wrong.

Schwartz said there are approximately 5,000 dogs in Jackson County which have been inoculated. He said there are 320,000 dogs in the county.

He said the dogs that have not been vaccinated will hopefully “either be eliminated or destroyed.”

The goal of the program is to identify and vaccinate the dogs that pose a threat.

There was an outbreak of rabies in Aya many years ago, Schwartz said, but no cases have been reported recently.

Anyone who does not live in Carbondale has an animal control problem, they should be able to control the animals.

The program is being offered to the Humane Society on 11, 13 said more than 100 dogs are brought to the shelter every month. He said the police department will bring in more than 30 dogs.

Spain, Soviet Union establish diplomatic ties

MADRID (AP) — Spain re-established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union Wednesday, ending a nearly 40-year rift that began when Francisco Franco’s army invaded Spain in the Civil War.

A few hours after the announcement in Madrid and Moscow, King Juan Carlos, began another round of the Franco years by flying to Rome for a meeting with Pope Paul VI — the first visit by a Spanish ruler to a Roman Catholic pontiff since 1923.

Spain also renewed relations Wednesday with Hungary, the last two countries in the Soviet Bloc without diplomatic ties to Spain.

Exam opposition propects South African riots

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Blacks in the sprawling Soweto ghetto built bonfires of school books and sang, “We Shall Overcome” Tuesday, the day before the Wednesday’s protest against killing examinations put off until late this year.

The examinations were postponed last year by anti-government rioting in Soweto, a black suburb of Johannesburg, which left about 400 blacks dead.

In and which in some 500 blacks were reported killed.

State officials said the exams would not be held, but no black students would be allowed to sit for their exams because of the Soweto riots.

Warnke appointment faces Senate block

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of Paul C. Warnke, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Wednesday to block his appointment as America’s chief arms control negotiator with the Soviet Union.

President Carter nominated Warnke to be director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chairman of the U.S. delegation to Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union.

He has served as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, but Senate Republicans have raised questions about the Warnke appointment.

The committee said it was not concerned about Warnke, after rejecting a new arms agreement with the Soviet Union, would be able to sell it to the Senate.

Hustler magazine chief release deliberated

CINCINNATI (AP) — A three-judge state appeals court decided Wednesday that Hustler magazine, which is known for its coarse content, is obscene and organized crime charges for distributing its magazine, should be able to continue to circulate.

Flynt and his magazine were summoned to appear before the court and were convicted Tuesday of engaging in organized crime.

The court said that he is bound to get black for even accepting a copmromise.

But he said, “sometimes we have to make a deal that is that bad.”

Lawrence Jabloh, an assistant to Senator Jaboridjian, said he believes the court’s decision was a big blow to the University’s flexibility for future expansion.

The court said it wants to increase its fees because it may price some people out of college, but we must try to meet the services that students expect,” he said.

A spokesman for the Environmental Action Party, also opposed the proposed increase, saying that “the program is a clear example of excessive administrative expenditures.”

According to the proposed recreation program budget of $40,000 for fiscal year 1973, $80,000 is allocated for administrative salaries.
Th e Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) plans to eliminate small awards, add others.

The Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) plans to increase the number of monetary awards available during the 1977-78 school year by eliminating its small awards. During the 1977-78 school year monetary awards will be $300 and $600 per year for the spring term. The $600 nonrefundable fees per year. Awards of less than $300 per year will be discontinued. Under the present system, SIU students receive their awards in amounts from $50 to $600 per year.

"The elimination of the smaller awards will most likely affect only two percent of the SIU student body," says Gerry White, financial aid advisor. "The people affected by the change are now eligible for other grants and scholarships or have less of a need and can get through school without financial aid until 1979-80." This year, 6,000 SIU students were awarded ISSC monetary awards. The new program in which the number of awards and the amount for each award will be increased, could hike the number of SIU students receiving awards in 1977-78 to 6,500, White said.

SIU is surrounded by the University of Illinois in the numbers of ISSC awards attending state schools. White said that nearly 40 percent of the SIU undergraduate student body has some form of an ISSC monetary award.

Vet funding cut may cause SIU to lose tuition money

By Debbie Searson-Short
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A cut in funding of the Illinois Monetary Scholarship Program may cause the University of Illinois to lose approximately $77,000 in tuition money, says Gerry White, financial aid advisor. Last year Gov. Dan Walker appropriated $63,000 just to keep the Monetary Scholarship fund needed. The result was no monies being made available for the state monetary scholarship or study grants to state funded institutions.

SIU is not receiving any tuition money from the veterans for the spring or summer semesters unless the Illinois legislature appropriates supplemental funding. White said, "It is similar to a tuition waiver for all veterans."

Gov. Jim Thompson indicated in his state of the state address in February that he would like to increase the veterans scholarship and add a national scholarship, that be available to veterans attending the University.

Presently, the cut in funds is not directly affecting the veterans, but White explained that it takes money from the services the University can offer.

In order to be eligible for the Illinois Monetary Scholarship Program, students must have served in the armed services for one year and have been honorably discharged, been a resident of Illinois before entering the service, and returned to Illinois within six months after being discharged.

Advisor: Entrance plan will cut black enrollment

By Frank Harris III
Student Writer

SIU's new and broader financial aid requirements will mean a reduction in the number of black enrolling the University, says John Holmes, director of admissions at the School of Technical Careers (STC).

The new admissions policy states that students would have to be either in the upper 30 percent of their graduating class and have a score in the upper two thirds on their ACT test, or rank in the top 10 percent on their ACT test.

The prior admissions policy admitted beginning freshmen who ranked in the upper half of their high school graduating class or scored in the upper 50 percent on the ACT test.

Many black students will not be eligible for regular admission under the new admissions policy, Holmes said. "It's mission is to supply education to people in the Southern Illinois area who otherwise would not have had it."

The admissions policy, low attrition rate and low cost reasons were why SIU grew so fast, said Holmes. However, many people told Holmes that the University has grown into a major university on the backs of poor blacks and whites.

Many black students want to be on a prestige University. "They don't like the whites," said Holmes. "My contention is, that is the University cannot gain prestige based on who it excludes, but should be concerned with how well it can teach."

The educational differentiation between black and white students prior to college are important factors as to why many blacks will not be eligible for regular admission, said Holmes.

"Going into root causes, inequality school policy does not do financial support like suburban schools," he said. In the inequality, the teachers are unable to teach as well as they were in other successful at other schools, said Holmes.

When an instructor is effective in the inequality, he added, he is promoted to a higher salary.

"Mediocrity is perpetuated, this is not to say that all teachers in the ghettos are bad, Holmes explained. "But the whole system is set up so bad that it is guaranteed that the inequality will not have as many talented teachers as suburban areas."

Holmes said, "One thing black students have to be aware of is that the high school preparation, it is going to be extremely difficult to get through this with a C average."

"Holmes also mentioned that ACT scores work against blacks as well as other minorities because the tests are culturally biased.

The American College Testing Program, the mean ACT score for blacks in 1974-75 was 12.4. However, Holmes said, "does not mean this is the same validity," said Holmes, "because the University is also culturally biased."

Black students need a strong teacher to try to develop close relationships with up

I don't know what prompted the D.R. to select for publication the A.P. article about the questionable practice made by Deere & Co. when there is enough news in this area to devote a daily column to the edactivities of The Wall Street Journal. You might be interested in last Friday's edition in which was revealed that the Securities and Exchange Commission had been in negotiations with the American Tobacco Company for months about the Securities and Exchange Commission's damage suit against the company.

To give one example, the sidewalks of parking garage to Fannin Hall were covered with snow and ice during the entire first week of the semester. Granted that temperatures were very low, making the sidewalks and other places slippery and dangerous.

As a handicapped faculty member, I have to voice some concern about what SIU will live up to its reputation as the institution that cares, and I am not interested in covering snow and ice. SIU really doesn't care.

SIU's reputation tarnished by lack of snow removal

Editorial showed lack of belief in "Jimmy"

In response to Mary Beth Montesano, a editorial entitled "In "Jimmy" Jimmy," which appeared in Feb 1, 1976, I would like to bring to her attention, "How's it like to be a typical Democrat?"

Truth is the subject of this letter. Too bad it is not the subject of what is tossed around daily. No, it is lies and deceit that make up our history. As the "First put it, "It's what makes world go round. So it is too easy to question anything. Just cause someone says it, is believing something. Most of the people believe it."

I contend that given a hypothetical case where our country was blessed with a President that told the plain truth, it would be truly simple, and one that would make the job of the Executive Branch a lot easier. That President's job done, and less about the luxury of status, or whether it's right to "wear comfortable work shoes," that this President would be more prone to being called deceitful, or playing "the game and going with the American public," then one not so honest. I contend now that simple and downward a President's job can be, it's one that is not to be taken amateur at what I've said.

But, since the D.R. did choose to give space to Deere's report of admission, allow me this observation. Deere issued its news release on Friday, 15th. The Wall Street Journal, on Thursday, published a page story about Deere's "emitted from a news release on Thursday which claims that a payment of $3.9 million in overpayments to the government was not an admission of guilt." Then on Friday, get the D.E. story about Deere's $9,000 payment: "Is there anyone on the staff of the D.R. who reads other papers?"

If there is not, I recommend that someone subscribe to the Wall Street Journal for it has, contrary to popular belief, some humorous articles. Take this quote from the Deere article for instance: "The Wall Street Journal," which is quoted in the D.E. story, "has a reputation for doing more than just one thing."

American's shouldn't give up property rights

By Peter D. Clarke

Editor's note: The following is the final part of a three-part series in which Peter D. Clarke, a British economist, discusses various aspects of the increasingly socialized British economy. Today, he comments on the ways for individual liberty and property rights and against social democracy.

Reprinted courtesy of the United States Industrial Council Educational Foundation.

I have found in America that most men of commerce do appreciate that nationalized industries need to be able to afford the same profit motive as any other American enterprise. The American liberal doesn't really care, however, about the nationalization of industry. What he does command to us is that you be taxed and raised to support a gross and fat welfare system. And it's really the British welfare system that is mostly sold to you.

But we want to promote you that the British socialized medical system is a nightmare. It is so obvious that people will have to be able to opt out of it into our own private medical system.

But that is now being made illegal—the tax system is no longer going to permit that. So, if you are sick, you go into the queueing system, which is fine if you are a top civil servant or a socialist politician, because you are discreetly allowed to get emergency services. But if you are just an ordinary citizen, you can't afford to book a hospital bed, and you have to queue. You just queue—and you just die. And if you are served, you get a service which one day will be canceled. Again, I am criticizing the human beings operating the system. They are as good as doctors as any American. But the institutional structure that they have got them gives them poor capital equipment. The resources that lie behind the socialized medical system are expensive and they are poorly utilized.

I have afforded to housing. Despite 50 years of socialized housing, many Britons still don't have lavatories in their own housing, which only adds to the fervor of the liberal cette to prevent money into socialized housing to improve it. There doesn't even seem to be any impediment—that they have completely got it upside down.

Britain is the first country in the world to have universal free trade in foodstuffs. Britain had, by definition, the cheapest food in the world because our doors were open to anyone who would sell us food. And our policy was such that our tables always had the lowest prices. Carter can't touch 75 per cent of budget

By James J. Kilpatrick

Jimmy's Carter's people are working furiously these days to meet a Feb. 15 deadline for putting their own stamp on Gerald Ford's budget for 1977-78. How much of a stamp will it be? Not much.

Mr. Carter's people, warned that his real challenge was persuading Congress to think about the budget in the right way, have tried to head off the attacks on criticism of Congress. His people are not yet making much headway.

President Carter has promised to make his budget even more impressive than Mr. Ford's. He is a little more than a billion out of the projected $47 billion deficit. Mr. Carter has promised to reduce the deficit.

But if the new President had more time to work on the figures, the country might be facing a budget to boggle the mind. He doesn't have time. Under the Budget Reform Act, the various legislative authorizing committees must begin pulling their reports together on Feb. 15. The reports go to the two Budget Committees on Mar. 15. The Budget Committees must recommend income and outgo totals to Congress by April 15. The House and Senate then have until May 15 to fix the final target figures.

These deadlines, and other timetables on Capitol Hill, are taken seriously. The Budget Committees still are fired by the zeal of reform; they performed efficiently last year, and their chairmen mean to match the record this year. And wholly apart from their pride in the reform process, the committees see the new procedures as the one mechanism by which Congress can meet the White House on equal terms.

The fixed timetable, Mr. Carter's people, and the people who comment as they are, cannot do much tinkering with a $136 billion budget accounts. Some large lump sums can be added — another $4 billion for public works spending. Some large lump sums can be subtracted — $2 billion in tax cuts for business.

The deadlines will not permit the thousands of individual revisions that would have to be made to accommodate a national health insurance plan or the federalization of public welfare.

Mr. Carter faces a second difficulty in shaping the budget for fiscal 78. His predecessors have faced it also. This is the sheer momentum of federal programs already in motion. Roughly 7 percent of the budget — about $32 billion out of the $440 billion total — is relatively uncontrollable.

This needs to be understood by those who naively imagine it is a simple matter to whack $50 billion here and add $40 billion there. The budget projects $85.7 billion in payments under Social Security and railroad retirement. The figures are untouchable. The budget includes $2.3 billion in federal retirement. Uncontrollable.

There is an item of $31.5 billion in net interest on debt. Uncontrollable. There is nothing Mr. Carter can do, even if he were so minded, to cut costs of Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps, veterans' benefits, and public assistance payments.

The President has a third problem also. During the course of his campaign he made extravagant promises — and he made them in two directions at the same time. On the spending side, he promised a proliferation of new programs. Some of these were massive — vast new sums for education, welfare and comprehensive health insurance. Others were fiscally modest — a new Consumer Advocacy Agency. They all add up. Simultaneously, he is committed absolutely to submitting a balanced budget for fiscal '81.

Congress may help him out of this dilemma by balking at some of these grandiose ventures. When young men and women in the working force fully awaken to what Social Security is costing them, we are likely to see political rebellion. Five years hence a worker earning $23,700 will be wallowed $3,347 in combined employer-employee taxes for Social Security alone. National health insurance would require much more. A sensitive House will be cautious.

In sum, Mr. Carter hasn't the time, he hasn't the people, and he hasn't the political support to write major innovations into the budget for the coming fiscal year. Like the skippers of one of those prodigious supertankers, Mr. Carter is discovering that he can change course a few degrees here or a few degrees there. But it takes 30 miles of ocean to turn around and half a day to stop. Next year, maybe, he will have a budget 30 per cent of which he may legitimately call his own.
Special Education gets grant of $35,000 for health plan

By Chris Dodgson

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Department of Special Education has received a $35,000 grant from the Governor's Office for Developmental Disabilities (GADD) to fund a special health plan to best serve the health education and recreational needs of the developmentally disabled in nine Southern Illinois counties.

The disabilities included are cerebral palsy, mental retardation, epilepsy and autism, all forms of childhood schizophrenia.

The U.S. Department of Mental Health Standards has divided Illinois into 27 regions with 27 Southern Illinois counties being included in Region Five.

Nine of the 27 counties, Jackson, Pope, Hardin, Massac, Alexander, Pope, Clay, Johnson and Perry, will be included in the Southern Illinois Community Planning Project. The nine counties comprise the southern portion of Region Five.

It has never been determined how many developmentally disabled people are in these nine counties.

This is one of the questions we are attempting to answer," said Chris Rumsomanno, executive director of the Planning Project.

"We want to find out who is developmentally disabled and where they are," Rumsomanno said. An area survey is being planned to determine need assessment. The Planning Project hopes to find out the strengths and weaknesses of the services currently offered to developmentally disabled people in the nine counties.

SIU was chosen to head the Planning Project because of the enthusiasm and interest generated, Rumsomanno said. Nine other SIU departments and the SIU Clinical Center will also be aiding in the need assessment.

The $35,000 grant started Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 31, 1977. On Sept. 31, the advisory board will present to the governor's council, "a comprehensive service delivery system for those disabled individuals," Rumsomanno said.

The grant pays for the salaries of Rumsomanno, a secretary, and two graduate assistants. Research expenses are also covered by the grant.

The project is a combined effort of many people from the nine counties. The advisory board consists of 12 members representing all nine counties. The board will study information from all nine counties regarding services for public agencies available for the developmentally disabled. "We could never hope to do this alone because of the great distance between the counties," Rumsomanno said.

Mental health agencies, public aid, public welfare and hospitals are some of the services to be studied. We are not in a hurry, checking up on anybody, but trying to see where some services are weak or strong," Rumsomanno said.

Croutons from Pope and Hardin are hard to analyze because of their ruralness. Both counties compare less than 8,000 residents, Rumsomanno said. Because these counties are widespread, it is difficult to provide needed services.

Residents of these counties have to go to Evansville, Cape Girardeau and St. Louis when a service is needed and is not supplied in that county.

"Our planning proposal will include suggestions to provide service agencies in these counties lacking them, transportation systems to and from these agencies and possibly, provide industry to improve rural communities," Rumsomanno said.

Developmentally disabled persons are disadvantaged, because they are disabled, Rumsomanno said. But they have the same needs as those not disabled. Time of these similarities is their "growth potential" which cannot be hindered if certain needs are not fulfilled.

"We are trying to help them realize their human potential," Rumsomanno said. "Everyone needs help to do a better job, they just need a little more," he said.

The SIU catalog now available

By Dave Honey

Distribution of the undergraduate catalog, a key guide to SIU admission and graduation requirements, is now available after a three month delay.

The catalog was published under the academic year 1977-78, which normally starts in November. The delay was due to changes in the admission standards and required board action and delay of its final printing, said A.R. McKenzie, director of University Graphics.

The catalog is available at SIU student centers and to 3 p.m. daily Monday through Friday at the Libraries of Carbondale and Springfield, Mo.

The catalog is being sent to students who are planning to attend SIU and is available to faculty members as well as faculty and departmental offices in the College of Arts and Sciences. It is based on the catalog of all time faculty members can pick up their copies at University Graphics, 1954 S. Elisabeth.

McKenzie expressed hope that students will be able to serve the catalog of their own expense and short supply.

Two Professors make 'Saucy' children's play

Two members of the SU Theatre Department have written a children's play adaptation of Mark Twain's "Adventures of Tom Sawyer" which will be presented on Feb. 18 through 21 in the Student Center Auditorium.

Christian Moer professor of theatre and director of the Theatre Department, and Judy Wales, a graduate student in the Department of English, have adapted the text of the book for the stage. The production will be directed by Moer.

The play begins on the day of the whitewater rafting trip where Tom Sawyer meets Huck Finn. Tom tells Huck about the treasure hidden in the caves of the Mississippi River. The two boys plan to embark on a treasure hunt and become instant friends.

As the play progresses, Tom and Huck find themselves in a series of adventures, including a battle with the Becky Thatcher family, a mystery surrounding the disappearance of Tom's Aunt Polly, and a search for the secret entrance to the treasure cave.

The play emphasizes Twain's themes of adventure, friendship, and the importance of education. The cast consists of a group of enthusiastic young actors, all of whom are experienced in the theatre.

Moer said, "The adaptation is faithful to the original text, but we have made some changes to make the story more accessible to children. We have also added some musical numbers to keep the audience entertained."

The play is suitable for all ages and promises to be a fun and engaging experience for both children and adults.

Tickets are available at the door or online at the SU Theatre Department's website. For more information, please contact the theatre department at 555-1234.
Chariot brings progressive, ‘heavy metal’ sounds to bars

By D. Lee Fels
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In an area where blues, rock and boogie bands dominate the bar scene, Chariot brings a welcome diversity with their three-man “heavy metal” progressive rock sound.

Chariot puts out a well-balanced wall of sound from the mountain of equipment they play with great technique and virtuosity.

Dan Volanu bashes with a Fender Stratocaster lead guitar, while Jim Haidinya produces Chariot’s trademark “heavy sound with an impressive array of keyboard instruments, including a Moog Synthesizer, Arp Odyssey, Arp string ensemble and Hammond M-3 organ. John Link cements the hard rock feel with a “Currently we’re working on two new songs by Dan. Noton: ‘We should be playing them out soon,” Haidinya said.

Chariot views their playing as a full-time occupation. “We rehearse everyday that we don’t work,” Sunday is our only day off. Haidinya said.

“We’re only in it for the music,” Link laughed. “None of us are girls and we the young, attractive, wealthy types.” Chariot’s “serious” approach to their music carries over into their live performances. “We don’t get drunk or stoned or anything when we play. Link said. “We really don’t have any forwards.”

“We’re actually into Rock’n’roll that’s all. Noton said. “We wouldn’t be here doing it if we didn’t love it.”

Going out on your own is perhaps the American Dream come true. To a student in journalism, publishing your own magazine is all the fulfillment of that dream.

NonSequitur, a former student-funded publication at SIU, made its commercial debut Monday as a Southern Illinois first news-feature magazine. The first edition was the dream fulfilled for the magazine's editor, Harold Koplowitz, SIU student in journalism and former Daily Egyptian editor, said establishing a legitimate publication is something he has always wanted to do.

Koplowitz founded the magazine at SIUC in 1975 to serve the campus community. As a monthly, the magazine's primary focus will be on public affairs for all segments of Southern Illinois.

He emphasized, however, that nonSequitur is not trying to be an alternative to area news services, but rather a supplement. The magazine also plans to cover consumer and cultural affairs and to provide an outlet for talented writers and artists living in the area.

The immediate target market for nonSequitur is Jackson County and eventually the whole region. Besides financing, distribution and image problems have been presented in the magazine with obstacles.

Koplowitz said overcoming the "student publication" and "hippie" magazine attitudes are the first image problems the magazine wishes to erase.

Howard Hood, Jackson County State's Attorney, said his office has been allocated a budget nearly twice the size of the public defender's budget, because, "in terms of volume, we have much more work to do than the public defenders.

The February issue of the monthly news magazine, Newsleaut, had an article that said there are funding inequities between the state's attorney's office and the public defender's office.

The Newsleaut article said the public defender's budget is much smaller than the state's attorney's budget, although the public defender is involved in roughly 75 percent of the cases that the state's attorney prosecute.

Comparing the two offices, Hood said, "it is like comparing apples and oranges," because the duties of the two offices are not the same.

Hood said the public defender's office is a single function office. The only purpose of the public defenders is to act as a court-appointed defense for people who cannot afford an attorney.

"The state's attorney's office is a multi-service office. It handles the two worlds," said Hood.

EDUCATION

AUGUSTA, Ark. (AP) When James William Duffe received his diploma May 14 in the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, recently, it brought closure to the long struggle of Mr. and Mrs. O.C Duffe to educate all their 13 children.

Duffe, 24, a retired farmer who now works as a caretaker of a cemetery in Pine Bluff, and his wife, who works in the home of a family, have sent all 13 of their children through the University at Pine Bluff, and have seen several of them earn master's degrees from Louisiana State University Harvard University, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of California.

Hood said his office is legal advisor to the Jackson County Board and handles all county offices, handles liquor applications and problems, handles civil litigations, prosecutes public offense, and conservation violations.

"People like to think of the two offices as coequal but opposite," said Hood.

"Hood, an elected official, is paid a salary of $42,000 a year. His budget is $18,342. His staff consists of three full-time attorneys, one half-time civil attorney, three secretaries, and two law clerks who are law students at SIU.

"Charles Grace, Jackson County public defender has two assistants, one secretary, and an investigator. The total budget approved by the Jackson County Board for 1977 is $75,664 and Grace's yearly salary is $22,000.

Hood said two-thirds of the salary is paid by the state, while the state pays 33 percent for the public defender's office is met by the county.

"Since the state's attorney is an elected position, Hood said, his office has the added ability to receive personal grants from the local government. He said his office has to deal with the public, while the public defender can be called a public officer.

"He said that because his office has no referrals or walk-in business, Hood said that he is in effect 'an office that is a unit of local government'.

"The state's attorney can have the added responsibility of the case. He said his office can have a trial and he gets an arrest warrant for a man involved in a shooting in another county. He is not as likely to be involved in a case that is not as unusual.

"Hood said that because his office has the added responsibility of the case, there is a tremendous difference in the amount of work between the two offices.

"If you want to prove that water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit then you have to prove the heater light the burner burner and generally conduct the experiment. The person who disagrees with you just has to listen. Hood said.

Schilpp honored at reception

By Clark Miller

Paul Schilpp, who became 80 years old Sunday, celebrated his birthday with friends, colleagues and students at a reception in his honor Tuesday at the Student Center.

Schilpp, who came to SIU in 1948 as distinguished visiting professor of philosophy, is teaching again this semester after an 18-month period of recovery following a heart attack he suffered in 1976.

Paul Schilpp, one of Schilpp's students in GSC 104, "Moral Decisions," came to the reception. He said Schilpp asks his students to open their eyes and question the things they read.

Sontak, a junior in industrial engineering, said the attitude of openness and genuine interest that Schilpp brings to his classes is "many professors put themselves on a pedestal." Sontak said, "He humbles himself.

Schilpp said the advice he usually gives students is, "Find out your strength and then pursue that. Find your weaknesses and avoid them.

"One of the great tragedies of human existence is that too many people are either round pegs in square holes or square pegs in round holes."

"The reason I'm so happy is I am," Schilpp concluded. "Is that I'm doing what I think that is, to teach, and I've been doing it for 38 years.

Schilpp showed guests a copy of U.N. representative to speak

John E. Lange, director of field service for the United Nations Association of the United States, will lecture on "Developing Countries and the New Economic Order," Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

The Southern Illinois chapter of the U.N. Association and the student government are sponsoring Lange's appearance.

Lange, who graduated from the University of Wisconsin Law School in 1975, was a member of the National Board of Directors of the UN - U.S.A. for three and a half years. He also worked as an investigator for the Equal Rights Division of the Wisconsin Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

The inauguration program of former SIU president Dwight Morrow that he had received as a birthday gift from the Morrow family.

He said he is urging students to contribute to a fund for the erection of a statue on the SIU campus of Morrow, a man he feels was important in the development of SIU and the Southern Illinois area.

Schilpp is also urging students to donate money for the development of an area in Carbondale designated to be a public park. The park is dedicated to Lewis Turley, a black leader who worked for the improvement of the Carbondale community.

Schilpp's wife, Madelon, and their daughter Margaret 14, joined him at the reception. The Schilpps also have a son, Erich, 19.

Schilpp continues to work on his Library of Living Philosophers, a project designed to give philosophers the chance to clarify their views and respond to critics while they are still alive. Volumes 14 philosophy have been published.

Group helps inmates meditate

By Polly Robinson

"Ananda Marga meditation is getting in touch with the love and the spirit of yourself," said Raymond Lemel, a practitioner who teaches Ananda Marga meditation class.

"The goal of meditation is to help you grow," said Lemel. "It is an important growth for the whole school." Lemel said that the goal of this group is to help prisoners at Marion Federal Penitentiary.

Ananda Marga was approached several years ago by the prisoners who heard about the free classes conducted by Ananda Marga. Today they conduct classes for up to 800 prisoners every week at Marion Federal Penitentiary.

"Each week 800 prisoners can meditate at Marion Federal Penitentiary," said Lemel. "The prisoners are much less skeptical of meditation than college students and a lot more interested in their response," said Ross Scaliile, a member of Ananda Marga who works with prisoners. Scaliile said that other prisoners from Marion had started meditation classes of their own.

Ananda Marga has a familiar goal—world improvement. Its path of meditation is new and unusual to prison officials and prisoners alike. The traditional greeting of Ananda Marga, Namaste, in which both palms of the hand are pressed together and touched to forehead and heart looks like something out of Rudyard Kipling. It means, "I pay salutations to the divinity within you."

Ananda Marga operates wholly on private donations and volunteer teachers. All its classes are free. Efforts are being made to expand prison program to Menard State Prison as well as find funding for the project.

1980 med school class to be picked this month

By Mickey Haslett

A panel of doctors will be meeting to select the 22-year-old med student class, according to a School of Medicine administrator.

If a student is able to meet these requirements, he is then granted an interview by the admissions committee.

By conducting interviews, the admissions committee is given an opportunity to evaluate the ability and character of the applicant. Also, the interview is used to gain an idea of their interest and motivation sufficient to attend medical school.

The average accepted applicant in the class of 79 was a 2.75-year grade point average of 3.4.

Peper is not only a brain but a man who once nominated Miss Muskegon for a contest to choose the prettiest meter maid in North America. Miss Bittner was chosen one of the prettiest meter maids, and her picture was put on a calendar. Peper has the calendar on a wall in his office.

"Wesley Community House plans soul dinner for students"

By Pat Heiden
Student Writer

In an effort to promote a better dialogue among black students, the Wesley Community House will sponsor a soul dinner at 4 p.m. Saturday as part of the observance of Black History Month.

Richard Watson, coordinator of minority affairs at the Wesley House, said he hopes the dinner will give black students an opportunity to get together and discuss social, educational and other problems confronting them.

Watson, an undergraduate in religious studies, feels that some black students the SHUCampus is conductive to isolation and alienation.

Watson said that many black students are involved in very helpful and rewarding activities at SHU, but that the Wesley House is looking for the student who does not feel included.

"We want the student to know that the doors are open at the Wesley Community House, however, the problem is getting the students to check it out," said Watson.

Watson, along with Jerry Gulley, director of the Wesley Community House, a social center for the Methodist church, feels that the attempt at initiating new programs is a response to what Watson terms "the Christian obligation.

In addition to this obligation Watson believes the church should play a more active role in human relationships and cities, the theological theories of B.D. Dobbs, theologian and former president of Wilber Felstrom College of Ohio, which stresses positive action against injustices and inequalities of the American society.

The dinner will feature many standard Southern dishes including cornbread, collard greens, blackened peas and fried chicken.

Europe, U.S. much alike--professor

By Greg Johnson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Much of Western Europe is becoming much like the United States, according to William Simon, an IU English professor who recently returned from a sabbatical there.

In Italy, for example, Simone said the problems of employment and inflation are felt as in America, except that the inflation rate is higher, running from 20 percent per year. Another problem of employment is not as much unemployment as it is underemployment.

There are many people, Simone added, who have jobs that do not pay them more than enough to live on. So there is great deal of unrest and distress on this account.

Another way Italy is becoming more like the United States is in its inflation. Simone said that when he first visited Italy 20 years ago, a trampsman was able to clean up an entire street by using a bicycle and a small can. Now a few feet or trucks are used to handle the daily tons of refuse.

If trash is a benchmark of modern industrial society, Simone said, then the Italians have arrived.

In England Simone observed many farmers buying produce from farm stands with every type of merchandise imaginable. Because the price level in that country was far lower than in such places as France Holland or Belgium.

The thing that struck me most about all of Western Europe was its acceptance of newspapers. You had the impression that all of it was well off. Simone said.

While Italy, Simone said, he did research for an article on intellectuals and scholars and how Mussolini's fascist dictatorship affected their work.

Simone said that since the Italian people never really had a love of nationalism for their country on a whole, Mussolini's regime thought that it could be promoted through the bollkhor, who simply became a propagandist tool in the process.

One cultural difference Simone pointed out was the lack of concern for the parochial point of view that dominates so much of American life.

As illustration, Simone said he had been in town to one man who read about Wayne Hayes' exhibition of the senate for sexual misconduct and sent his secretary to make the action was unnecessary, because he felt it was unfair to make moral judgment on a person for what he regarded as a understandable weakness.

Though he had visited Italy many times before, Simone said he would like to return sometime soon.

To me living in a society whose public are morality and politics is different from that of my own gives you a perspective of two different social realities. Simone said.

18-year-old runs for public office

SKORIK--A: Gordon Hirsch couldn't wait until he reached the required age of 21 to throw his hat into the political ring, so he helped as an intern in Sen. D'Amato's office to run for public office as a teenager.

Hirsch, an aspiring lawyer, is a candidate for the Nassau Town School District 21 Board of Education at the age of 18.

Two years ago, when he was a student at Nassau East High School he wrote a bill for the state legislature that would lower the age requirement from 21 to 18. From the time it was passed, a state law enabling a person under 21 to run for public office.

The bill was submitted by state Rep. Peter Peters, a Republican, and after getting through the House Education Committee by a 94-0 vote on the 10th call it went to the full House.

"I was the only one who thought it would become law," said Hirsch, a law student at the University of Illinois Chicago campus. "Everybody dismissed me and said I was wasting my time. But I'm a very determined person," said the former Nassau East student body chairman, who campaigned for political candidates since he was 9 or 10 as a legislative assistant to his father and wants to become a lawyer.

"Most 18-year-olds really don't know what they want. They have ideas, but as far as working toward them, they just aren't doing it."

Men gymnasts not giving up against top-ranked Oklahoma

By Duffy Schwartz, Student Writer

SIU's men's gymnastics Coach Bill Meade is not ready to concede victory to the nation's top-ranked Oklahoma team, despite having to compete without two of his top all-around performers.

The Salukis take their 5-3 record against the Sooners Thursday night before meeting second-ranked Iowa Saturday on their last road trip of the dual meet season.

Coach Meade has Rich Adams and freshman Dan Mesier will both be sidelined from the action because of knee injuries.

"It's difficult going into these meets at less than full strength," said the coach of the country's eighth-ranked Salukis. "But we're going to try to win and i same if those who are competing can be successful."

"In a way," said Meade, "working with a injury-weakened team can be an advantage because the kids have their necks and arms more than they thought capable."

The Salukis have already met Oklahoma once this season. Finishing second to the Sooners at the Hunky Classic Oklahoma, led by Olympian Bar Conter, has a team high score of 62.1, the best in the country. SIU's top score is 52.2, but according to Meade, you can't decide a meet on paper.

"Last week, Conner had a poor meet and Oklahoma only scored 129. Sometimes, when a team depends on a superstar, and he goes, the whole team goes," Meade said.

Some individual match-ups will also highlight the Oklahoma meet. The Sooners have the nation's first and third-ranked floor exercise performers. "Sandal" in between on the latest rankings is SIU senior Steve Sheppard who recorded a season best of 9.46 last week.

On the pommel horse, Saluki senior Tom Hanson has a high score of 9.5 while Oklahoma's top competitor has received a 9.5 high score with SIU's Scott McIlvain at fourth with a 9.2.

"We want to see if Sheppard can score well on the road, if the pommel horse team can continue to produce under pressure. "I'm happy for every student," Meade said.

Although SIU will finish its regular season with three straight home meets, Meade said both Adams and Mesier have improved so quickly he hopes to use them in the first hour of action against Northern Illinois.

Women nab IM swim ranks

In Saturday's intramural swim meet, which included both men's and women's competition, several women received national rankings in their respective events, including one national title.

The 100-yard freestyle relay team of Valerie Ackerson, Kathy Weibler, Pam Stueb and Sue Briggs combined for a time of 1:46.49 to win the event and set a national intramural record.

Ackerson won the 100-yard freestyle in a time of 1:00.86 and that time was third in national rankings. Weibler set a mark in the 800-yard medley relay, winning in a time of 9:29.56.

New assistant football coaches getting involved in recruiting war

by Rich Earth
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The revolving door in the SIU football coaches office has stopped and the two new assistant coaches recently hired by Ray are getting settled at SIU.

Both coaches, John Henry and Bill McConnell, have been at SIU for only two weeks, but are already into the swing of recruiting.

"I've been to workouts three times, and I've studied a little film from last year," said McConnell. "But 96 percent of the work has been recruiting."

I've been trying to do some recruiting. Henry laughed. "Mostly I've been helping out with the campus recruiting and showing the kids around and having them meet with the advisors.

Dempsey and assistant Jim Veschelari have been out doing most of the recruiting, but Henry has been to Memphis since while McConnell has made three trips to St. Louis and to Chicago. "Since the coaches are new, they admitted that it is tougher trying to sell a high school to SIU."

Henry said he would have to work a little harder to get more familiar with the coaching situation here. He said, "I'll get more familiar soon."

But there are two things that I know I can sell to high schoolers. Ray Dempsey and myself."

Both coaches said they came to SIU for one reason--Ray Dempsey. "I didn't know him really well before I came here," McConnell said. "But he was in the same conference (Mid-American) as me when we were coaching Bowling Green."

Centralia basketball coach sheds locks for Kojak look

CENTRALIA, Ill.-Al Papi--Theo Kojak, the tough-as-nails New York City cop of the television series has a counterpart in this Southern Illinois city.

Basketball coach Jeff Carling has never been a cop, but he has everything else it takes. The three-piece suit, the mustache and shaved head.

Carling lost his locks before 2,000 students recently at a Centralia High School pep rally in payment of a wager.

"We were going to have a pep rally, recalls Carling. But I said, 'I don't want a pep rally unless it's a good one. We've got to do something different.' I shaved my head and if you get $200 I said the students 'jumped on it and really got enthusiastic."

Carling said the students decided to raise money for cancer research and Carling increased the goal to $750.

"My wife said I couldn't do it, and the students raised $250."

The superintendent has a three-piece suit too. "I don't want to wear a suit," said the principal.

Another teacher performed the annual task.

At a recent game against arch-rival Mater Dei High School in nearby Bloomington he came in with a three-piece suit and a mustache.

"I would have come in on the road-the-cal七大 At Mater Dei--they don't have me down there any way and when I came in with the three- and the three-piece suit and all that stuff."

The performance of the coach apparently is as interesting as that of his team, now 11-4 on the season.

"There were two freshmen in the game when I was a little hot about an official's call and I went down and took the squeeze bottle of water and squirted it all over my head to cool off.

"That turned them on."

Although Carling's team is winning more games than it is losing, the coach said, "We feel that something had to turn the program around."

Orienteering meet slated

The SIU Orienteering " Jubilee " kicks off its spring season Sunday after an outing with the Touch of Nature Environmental Center. The SIU Orienteering Club has also scheduled meets for the Trail of Tears State Forest on Feb. 7 and a trip to Hutchison's Creek on Feb. 27.

Orienteering is actually a sport which combines land navigation and running endurance. Such skills are especially helpful in basic training, hunting and fishing.

For additional information about the club or upcoming trips, call club President Pat Dunavage at 549-3483.

Salukis face red-hot Buffs in ‘must’ game

By Dave Hess
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Their backs are against the wall, they can’t afford to drop another notch in the loss column, there is no tomorrow, etc.

Pick any cliché you want, but the fact remains that the Saluki cagers are faced with a “must win” situation. Thursday night, they are entertaining any thought at all of winning the Valley race.

The West Texas State Buffaloes bring their “don’t shoot until you see the whites of the nets,” show to the Arena Thursday night, sporting a 5-2 Valley record.

As the Buffaloes are in a first-place tie with Wichita State, and are fielding a 549 field goal percentage that was tops in the nation going into this week’s action.

The Salukis will take the court with a 33 Valley mark and a 13-5 season record. The Buffs are 12-8 for the year.

West Texas State is a real patient team that takes only the good shot, said Saluki Coach Paul Lambert. "They really crash the offensive boards, too. This allows them to cash in on easy lay ups.

The Buffs handed the Salukis one of their three Valley losses on Jan. 5 in Amarillo, Tex. The Salukis may still be having nightmares over that one. They let a 17-point lead slip away, and eventually lost the game in overtime.

Buffalo forward Brad Schreck was the Salukis’ biggest problem that top game. The 6-4 senior snatched for 21 points.

When the Buffs throw more at their foes than Scheck, Guard Maurice Sneeks from Chicago is one of the slickest ball handlers and speed demons. After Wichita State beat West Texas at Amarillo, earlier in the week, Shockers Coach Harry Miller said, "Sonne is a great ball handler, as well as, or better than, Ricky Green of Michigan." And Miller should know, as he was the mastermind of the Shockers in last year’s NCAA regional with some last second shots.

The Salukis were slowed by Schreck all night, and vice versa. Schreck, will have to be guarded by Cheeks all night, and the Salukis will have to guard Cheeks’ running mate, 6-4 Melvin Jones.

The forward line the Buffs will have Eugene Smith, their top scorer, averaging 16 points and Bruce Taylor a 6-4 senior center, along with Schreck.

The Buffs can’t afford a loss either, because the toughest part of schedule comes at the end of the season, when they play at New Mexico State and at Wichita State in their final two Valley games.

Lambert said that Al William’s suspension has not been lifted yet, saying it was a “day to day thing.” Lambert has not decided if Williams will suit up for West Texas State or not.

The team meeting before Tuesday’s workout and Lambert said he talked about the importance of George Mathews jokes. and I had to fix his wagon, too. Best interests of baseball of course.

Saluki All-American guard Mike Glenn will be the center of attention again Thursday night when the Salukis take on West Texas State. Glenn scored his career high of 40 points in 50 minutes of action Saturday night at Wichita. (Staff photo by James Einsing)

Buffs in ‘must’ game

Carbondale’s Community High School basketball team played Centralia and West Frankfort in two crucial South Seven Conference games this weekend as it tries to gain a share of the league title.

The Terriers, 8-2 in conference and 17-5 overall, are one-half game behind Marion (9-2) in the conference standings. Marion plays West Frankfort Friday in its lone conference game this weekend.

Centralia invaded CCHS’ Bowen Gym for an 8 p.m. Friday tilt and the Terriers travel to West Frankfort Saturday night in a conference game.

“West Frankfort is a program that has won a lot of games for the conference,” said Centralia’s 54 in conference and 11-8 for the season, ready to play fast break basketball, according to Woolard. That should insure a high scoring contest like the first meeting between the teams, which CCHS won 86-75.

“Centralia is capable of beating anyone on a given night.” Woolard said. “They get up the court quicker than any other league play.

Woolard said keys to beating Centralia are outrebounding them and controlling the pace of the game. The Terriers must also try to neutralize the Orphans 5-4 guard Rodney Thomas.

Thomas is one of the best guards around,” Woolard said. “He doesn’t need and can penetrate the defense.”

West Frankfort, 1-9 in conference, Seven conference, plays a more controlled game than Centralia, according to Woolard. The Terriers beat West Frankfort 78-49 in their first meeting.

West Frankfort has two or three guards in the South Seven Conference in Rex Hewlett and Greg Smith, Woolard said. “They both are good shooters.

“We have to pressure their guards,” Woolard said, “because that will take their offense right away from them.”

After this weekend, two conference games remain for Carbondale. CCHS plays Benton on Feb. 18 before playing their final game Feb. 26 versus Harrisburg.

Spring has hardly sprung, and the grass has hardly risen, but baseball’s spring training is just two weeks away. Off the Post was lucky enough to get an interview with that one-of-a-kind commissioner, Bogus, ops, Bowie Kuhn.

Post: Hello Mr. Kuhn. May I call you Bogus? I mean Commissioner. Do I have to be careful which of your actions has pleased the most people?

Kuhn: “You mean they actually liked something?”

Post: “Yes.”

Kuhn: “I think I’m going to cry. What was it?”

“People always ask me more questions. It is true that you’ve asked former President Richard Nixon to throw out the first ball in the Cincinnati opener this year.”

Post: “I did ask Dick, but he can’t make it. Seems he’s about to take over as commissioner of the financier mercado.”

Kuhn: “I have the WHA to kick around anybody anymore. That’s a joke, again.”

Post: “You think, commissioner and good luck this season.”

Kuhn: “My pleasure. Off the Wall. Ops, I mean Post.”

Post: “Of course On to another topic, Bogus, ops, Bowie Kuhn. Some folks say you play the straight role in this movie.”

Kuhn: “Right off the bat...But that’s a joke get it?”

Post: “I said Charlie was wrong last summer when he called me the village idiot. I thought my wife had the memory of that cabbage that night.”

Post: “But what about the game you negotiated the sale of Oakland A’s Joe Roth, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers.”

Kuhn: “Fixed Finley’s wagon, didn’t I? Just who did you think he was, trying to fix my wagon and beat the system by not losing all those players and getting something in return? Why, I’d run the game. I had to protect baseball’s best interests.”

Post: “Do you think the fans like you sir?”

Kuhn: “I guess I hope so.”

Post: “What about the time with Reggie Jackson in the locker room?”

Kuhn: “Well, when Reggie poured the champagne over him...it was the World Series, I was cool. I didn’t suspend Reggie. I didn’t fine Finley. Why shouldn’t they like me?”

Commissioner, do both of your actions has pleased the most people?”
