Allies heat up Iraq air attack

United Press International

With President Bush hinting the air war will continue for some time before ground troops are used, allied planes intensified their attacks Monday on Saddam Hussein's best troops and the important oil port of Basra.

After meeting at the White House with his top military advisers, Bush said the air war "has been very, very effective" and as a result "will continue for a while."

Two more Iraqi Scud missiles were launched at Israel and Saudi Arabia but apparently did little damage. At the same time, American officials said jet fighters destroyed four Iraqi mobile Scud missile launchers in the last 24 hours.

The increased war activity came as diplomatic efforts were also on the rise. A top Soviet official was traveling to Baghdad, British and German leaders were meeting in Bonn and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, arrived in Amman to confer with Jordan's King Hussein.

Bush met with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to map out the future of the war following the military men's quick trip to the war zone for a first hand look over the weekend.

"The war is going well," Bush said in the Rose Garden after the meeting. "I am very pleased with the people that are running the war. They have my full confidence. We are going to take whatever time is necessary to sort out when a next stage might begin."

Bush said he will await additional word from his generals on whether or when the allied effort should enter "another phase." In the meantime, he said,

Local couple mails money to gulf troops

By Kylie Robertson
Staff Writer

A retired Harrisburg couple supports the U.S. troops so much, they spent more than $400 on them during the Christmas season.

Harley and Mary Shepherd sent 41 soldiers in the gulf letters of encouragement and checks for $10.

"We saw the names of local people who are serving in the gulf in our local paper and thought we would help," Mary Shepherd said.

"We appreciate what they are doing for the country, and being older people we don't need much, so we thought it would be nice to share," she added.

In the greeting sent to troops, the Shepherds said, "We wanted to send you holiday greetings and our best wishes for your speedy return to this country."

Local Marine in Saudi Arabia makes cover of Newsweek

By Anne Ryman
Associate Editor

Benjamin Middleton

The picture of a Cobden Marine hangs next to the fireplace in his parent's living room. On Feb. 11, he also was on 3.5 million magazine covers.

Angie Middleton, the mother of Lance Cpl. Benjamin Middleton, said she is 95-percent positive the photograph on the Feb. 11 Newsweek magazine is that of her son.

The Newsweek cover photograph shows a Marine crouched behind a sand bank, his helmet pulled low over his eyes, an M-16 rifle in his arms and pointed at the enemy.

Middleton, a member of the Surveillance Reconnaissance Intelligence Group that handles forward communication, has been stationed with a Saudi Arabian unit since November.

Steve Sitton, a vocational teacher at Cobden High School who instructed Middleton for four years, was the first to recognize the Marine.

"I picked up Newsweek out of the mailbox and said, 'there's Ben.'"

Mrs. Middleton said at first she was skeptical that her son was on the cover of a national magazine, knowing it was a one-in-a-million chance.

"My husband (Ernie) said at first, he was 95-percent sure and over five days, I am sure," Mrs. Middleton said.

"I was pleasantly surprised, and I imagine Ben will be too when he finds out," she said.

The family was unable to get confirmation from Newsweek that their son was the one because they were told the photographer took hundreds of photographs and

Group approves parlor; ministers oppose gambling

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

The off-track wagering facility task force voted unanimously Monday to support a betting parlor in the city.

A recommendation to allow a parlor in Carbondale will be sent to the City Council for discussion Feb. 19.

But local ministers — including John C. Taylor, a retired minister and member of the Jackson County Board — said they hope the council considers all aspects of the facility.

Taylor said he wants the City Council to wait at least one month before voting.

The public is not fully aware of what is going on and is "not getting a fair shake," he said.

In a letter to City Manager Steve Hoffner, Donald Carlton, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Carbondale, wrote that he could not find one good reason to have off-track betting in Carbondale.

"Legalized gambling makes the state (and local government) a con artist, promoting fraud on the gullible, using fast talk and an appeal to human greed to bilk its citizens out of millions of dollars," Carlton wrote.

Stephen Brown, administrative pastor at the Western Heights Christian Church, also wrote Hoffner.

"I oppose it (off-track betting) on the theological grounds as a Christian, but equally I oppose it on

Meningitis illness kills second student at UI

CHAMPAIGN (UPI) — A second student died Monday from a meningitis-related illness and University of Illinois officials stepped up their search for thousands of people who may have been exposed to the highly contagious disease.

Worried students jammed the student health center as the university tried to calm fears on campus and among student parents. University officials said about 1,300 people received an oral antibiotic Sunday and Monday to avoid serious complications from the bacterial infection. The school told 500 more to seek medical treatment.

However, that apparently did not ease the fears of students who were apparently skipping classes and overloading the school's McKinley Health Center.

School spokesman Terry Shepard said sophomore Brian

McDonnell, 19, from the Chicago suburb of Darien, died early Monday at Carle Hospital in Urbana. McDonnell was a liberal arts major, officials said.

"It's another meningitis-related death," Shepard said. "It sounds like it's pretty much the same thing."

Gregory Mank, 19, an engineering student from Belleville, died from meningococemia on Saturday night at the same hospital. The communicable nature of the blood infection, caused by the meningococcus bacteria, prompted the university Office of Student Affairs to contact about 850 students who may have been in close contact with Mank on Thursday and Friday.

Many of those students went to the health center to receive oral

UNLV reaffirms No. 1 in NCAA poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nevada-Las Vegas, coming off its toughest win of the season, remained the unanimous No. 1 choice Monday in the United Press International college basketball ratings, while Ohio State took over second place.

The Runnin' Rebels, who beat previous No. 2 Arkansas 112-105 on Sunday, swept the balloting for the ninth straight week. UNLV earned all 40 first-place votes cast Monday by the 42-member Board of Coaches and finished with 600 points.

The Rebels came back from a four-point halftime deficit against Arkansas to put together a 10-2 spurt to begin the second half and led by as many as 23 points before the Razorbacks closed the gap in the final three minutes.

"I don't know how you can play any better than we did the first 17 minutes of the second half," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said after the Rebels, 20-0, ran their winning streak to 31 games.

UNLV's performance also impressed several opposing coaches, including one who was in attendance in Fayetteville, Ark.

"I think Nevada-Las Vegas really established themselves," Missouri Coach Norm Stewart said. "They truly are a tremendous team. They seem to be well-focused. When you look at that, (it seems) the only thing that could derail them possibly is themselves and they seem to be so well-focused that you don't even see that happening. It's a tremendous basketball team."

UNLV is attempting to become the first team to win back-to-back national championships since UCLA in 1972 and 1973 and the first to take the title with an undefeated record since Indiana in 1976. The last time a team finished the regular season unbeaten was 1979, when Indiana State and Alcorn State turned the trick.

"I think you just saw why a lot of people believe this (UNLV) team could compete with some of those in the NBA," Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson said.

Ohio State, which improved to 19-1 by routing Northwestern in its only game last week, moved into second place with 526 points. Arkansas slipped to third with 510 points and Indiana held fourth with 494.

Duke took advantage of an Arizona loss to move up one place into fifth. The Blue Devils posted three wins last week, including an impressive 88-70 triumph Sunday against Louisiana State.

"We lost to the best team we have played this year," LSU Coach Dale Brown said. "We have never seen that kind of defense. They hustled from beginning to end. We got whipped."

Arizona dropped one spot to sixth, while two losses by St. John's allowed No. 7 Syracuse, No. 8 North Carolina and No. 9 East Tennessee State each to move up one position.

Southern Mississippi broke into the Top 10 for the first time this year after improving two positions. Kansas leaped six spots to 11th and St. John's wound up 12th, a fall of five places.

No. 13 Utah moved up two places, No. 14 UCLA dropped three and No. 15 New Mexico State gained one. No. 16 Nebraska slipped two notches and No. 17 Georgetown improved two places.

No. 18 Virginia plummeted five spots after suffering three losses in four games last week. No. 19 Oklahoma State and No. 20 Alabama each improved one position and No. 21 Texas moved up three.

No. 22 Michigan State returned to the ratings after a two-week absence and fellow newcomer Wake Forest was 23rd. Completing the list were Louisiana State and New Orleans, tied for 24th.

Dropping out of the ratings were Oklahoma, tied for 22nd before back-to-back losses last week, and Mississippi State.

Tyrone Bell rings up points in rare trip off Saluki bench

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Coming off the bench was something new for sophomore guard Tyrone Bell this season, but he turned out the performance of his career.

For the first time all season, Bell wasn't in the Salukis' starting lineup against Tulsa Saturday. But that meant nothing to Bell as he came off the bench on fire, running and gunning to a career-high 19 points in the contest.

"It wasn't so much because I didn't start," Bell said. "I think I was just really into the game. Usually I come out and I'm a little tight. Once (freshman guard, Chris Lowery) got in foul trouble, I was going to have to play a lot more minutes. So it might have fired me up a little bit."

"It was kind of a surprise (starting). I came into the locker room and saw Emeka's (Okenwa, name on the board. But it really didn't bother me. I knew it was to help us win. I knew I'd still get to play a lot so it wasn't a problem."

Coach Rich Herrin made the lineup change to get a bigger team on the floor. Okenwa was inserted to center, moving sophomore Ashraf Amaya to power forward and senior Rick Shipley to small forward. Junior Kelvin Lawrence knife his way through the defense and has great straight ahead explosiveness. Tyrone is at his best when he can put all this together."

Bell, one of the quickest players on the SIUC roster, thrives off of running the court in a wide-open style game.

"I like to get in the open court and drive to the basket," Bell said. "Even though I'm only 6-foot-3 I've got good jumping ability so I can get my shot off over bigger people. In the open court my speed allows me to get past people."

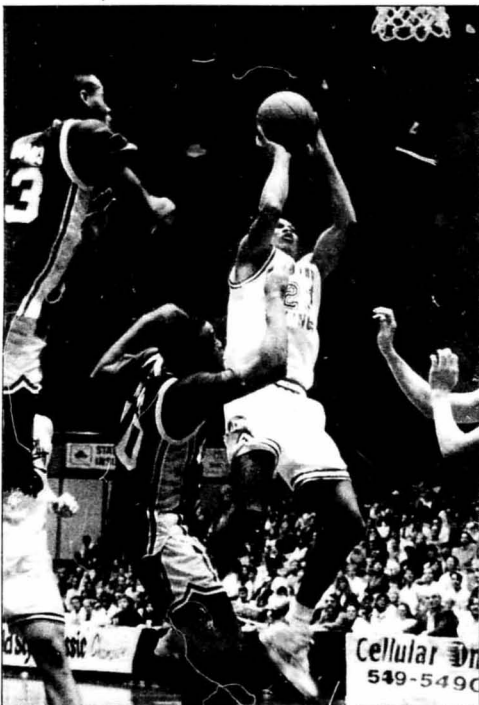

Lowery, who also has come off the bench for the Salukis to spark the transition game, said Bell is one of the best at running the fast break.

"Tyrone is a very aggressive player," Lowery said. "He probably goes to the hole as well as anyone. He's one of the best finishers on the team."

When SIUC started losing ballgames in the middle of the season, many people began comparing the 1990-91 squad to last year's Missouri Valley Conference championship team. They looked to the shooting guard position and noticed the scoring difference in Bell and last year's shooting guard Freddie McSwain.

"You can't compare the two,"

Football players react to recruits

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Size and experience are the buzzwords most applicable to the Saluki football team's 1990-91 recruiting class and the returning players are pleased to see a little of both.

The offseason recruiting paid off with more than 20 new players coming to the program. The Salukis have added 14 junior college players and also inked 12 high schoolers.

"I feel really good about this recruiting class," Saluki freshman offensive lineman Jason English said. "We need some age and experience and the JUCO players give us that. They look pretty good and they should be able to contribute to the program."

The players were in agreement that head coach Bob Smith and his staff did the right thing in taking the usually un-Smithlike JUCO road to improve the team. Smith tends to look to the high school ranks to get talent, but he changed his ways this year to fill some immediate needs.

One former Saluki player Kevin Kilgallon, who has seen three coaches in his four years at SIUC, also gave the thumbs-up to this recruiting class.

"The program needs players who can play now," Kilgallon said. "We need a lot of big people on both sides of the ball and that's what we're getting."

After fans see the size of some of the new Salukis, the coaching staff can never be accused of not thinking big. Of the 26 players signed, 13 weigh 225 pounds or more. The linemen got a large charge as they added four players that top the scales at more than 270 pounds.

"I came here from a JUCO and that experience helps," Saluki Rob Harmer said. "Our team needs some help so we can compete well next year. It's good that we got a lot of linemen, a lot of size."

Women's tennis team opens with split on road

The women's tennis team started their spring season 1-1, but Coach Judy Auld said the team is ahead of its performance schedule.

"Looking at where we are in our amount of practice time and the physical shape we're in, I feel like we're ahead of schedule," Auld said. "We're playing very good tennis for this time of year.

"We're in very good physical shape. Of the teams we competed with this weekend, I felt we were in the best physical condition. If the matches went long, we could have stayed out there and outplayed them."

The Salukis beat Iowa State Saturday 5 to 4, but could not

South African group kills 14, wounds 29 in bus ambush

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Gunmen ambushed two buses on a road in strife-torn Natal province, killing 14 people and wounding 29 in the worst case of black factional violence since rival groups agreed on a peace accord last month, police said Monday. The ambushers, firing rifles and handguns, "literally raked the buses with gunfire," a police spokesman said. The Inkatha movement blamed followers of its arch-rival anti-apartheid group the African National Congress for the attack.

Royal family criticized for conduct during war

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles and his wife, Diana, visited navy families in Plymouth Monday amid media criticism of the royal family for allegedly conducting itself in an unseemly manner during wartime. "... on the home front, too many of the young royals and their entourages carry on with their peacetime lifestyles, parading a mixture of upper-class decadence and insensitivity which disgusts the public and demeans the monarchy," The Sunday Times said. The newspaper lamented that no member of the royal family is on active service in this war.

NBC denies reports of Carson leaving show

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC executives Monday pooh-poohed reports that Johnny Carson, an institution among late night TV insomniacs, may be pushed off NBC's lucrative "Tonight" show when his contract expires in September. Quoting "a high-ranking industry source," the New York Post said NBC wants to replace the 65-year-old talk show veteran with younger comedian Jay Leno, Carson's "permanent guest host," who regularly beats his ratings. Neither Carson nor Leno would comment on the story and network officials were quick to shoot it down.

Students volunteer to help leukemia patient

HUNTINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Huntington College students have overwhelmingly responded to a plea for potential bone marrow donor; to help a 13-year-old Huntington boy fighting leukemia. Sixty members of the college community had volunteered to be tested as potential donors and the College Student Senate has given $1,000 to help pay for screening tests, which cost $65 per person. Last week, Gordon and Jan Cocklin asked for help for their son, Steve Hamman, who has been fighting cancer with chemotherapy treatments for more than two years.

Couples should know PMS symptoms—study

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Marital stress caused by premenstrual syndrome can be reduced when both partners chart the symptoms, according to a Ball State University study. "We found that marital satisfaction does suffer because of premenstrual symptoms," said Beth Frank, a registered nurse and a doctoral student at Ball State. "Too often women do not communicate the psychological and physical problems. In many cases the husband is getting conflicting signals from the wife about several matters, including sexual needs and desires."

Society to find good homes for ponies abused by owner

WOODSTOCK (UPI) — Officials with the Hooved Animal Humane Society said Monday the best home, not the best bid, will determine who gets custody of 21 ponies and horses rescued earlier from starvation. "We have to check out the home," said Donna Ewing, a spokeswoman for the group. "It goes to the best home first and the highest bid second." The 18 ponies and three horses were seized in January from a farm owned by Harvey Faulkner in New Lenox. The group will file charges of cruelty to animals against Faulkner, she said. The animals left alive on the farm were without running water and suffered from malnutrition and dehydration, Ewing said.

Police chief looks forward to quiet time after retirement

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

"The first thing I'm going to do is get rid of all the clocks in the house!" Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said.

After 40 years of law enforcement — 20 in Carbondale — Hogan will retire at the end of July.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said certainly Hogan will be missed.

"He has been a true professional in law enforcement," said Hoffner, "He provided a sense of stability in the department."

Hogan, 69, whose wife Marilyn is the parking director of SIU security, said he has been regimented by clocks almost all his life. Now he would like to do things on his own time.

From 1948 to 1968 he worked for the St. Louis Police Department, and from 1968 to 1971 he worked in private security.

In 1971, he was hired as a lieutenant at the Carbondale Police force and was promoted to captain in charge of operations. He took over as acting police chief in June 1974 and was appointed to the permanent position in August 1977.

He said when he worked in St. Louis, work was much more demanding, immediate and stressful because the department was bigger. When he came to Carbondale, the pace slowed down considerably.

"The first thing I had to learn when I came here was patience," Hogan said. "People worked at a pace that caused them to be more thorough and complete."

"When I arrived (at the department), everybody knew everybody, and that is pretty much the same," Hogan said, referring to the comfortable atmosphere of the office.

The yearly Halloween parties are the most significant event to stick in his mind, he said. He added that the street party was fun until the crowd became unruly when it was made illegal.

The Halloween parties began in the mid-1970's and were legal until 1989, when the Halloween Core Committee voted to recommend Halloween Fair Days be eliminated and the city no longer stop traffic on the Strip for the crowd.

After leaving police work, he said he will miss helping people, but he will get to do things he wants — like golf and travel.

"I will not become dormant ... but I am going to try to wash 40 years of law enforcement out of my mind," Hogan said.

Search for new chief narrows to three candidates

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

About 100 applicants have been narrowed down to three candidates in the search for a replacement for retiring police chief Ed Hogan.

City Manager Steve Hoffner declined to name the three remaining applicants as of Monday, but said the new chief will be announced after the final interviews Friday.

"By this Friday we should have a good idea on who will be the new police chief," Hoffner said.

He said two of the candidates are in the Carbondale Police force.

"There were advantages and disadvantages to applicants from either inside or outside the department," Hoffner said.

Hoffner said in early fall 1990 profile requests were sent out to advertise the position.

"We advertised the position nationwide and many recruitment profile requests were sent out to college communities," he said.

Applicants sent videotapes or written letters. The first overview brought the total down to 12, the second down to three.

The process of narrowing down applicants began after the recruitment profile requests began arriving.

Each request consisted of a five to six page packet that asked for desired management skills and other experience that would be beneficial to the position, he said.

A committee formed by Hoffner will have final official interviews with the candidates Friday.

RSO involvement could find funding

Most Registered Student Organizations have chosen to pursue a fantasy common to many people—to get and spend money without putting in some effort.

Only 14 RSOs were represented at the last Presidents Council meeting, which amounts to 5 percent of the nearly 300 RSOs on campus.

This figure is close to the average because 20 people typically attend the council's meetings anyway.

This last meeting held particular importance for these organizations because the council told how to request money through proper channels for RSO programs, trips, presentations and other ideas.

BUT UNLESS REPRESENTATIVES learn how to request this money, ideas for programs remain just that—ideas.

And RSOs have the job of translating these ideas into reality by getting its members and other students involved in creating useful programs.

The term "get involved" gets bantered around a lot in student government, but the most basic involvement occurs by learning simple requirements on how to get funding.

Organizations have about $23,000 in Undergraduate Student Government funding to use for their own programs.

This money comes through the student activity fee, for which each full-time student is charged $12.75 per semester.

BY NOT GOING THROUGH THE proper channels to use some of this money, RSOs not only hurt their own members but prospective students who may join later.

For those RSOs asking for money, fee allocation request forms must be completed and returned to USG by Feb. 18. For all RSOs, the next Presidents Council meeting will be Feb. 22.

The first step to getting involved lies in learning to work with the basic rules in order to gain the money needed for advancing the organization.

Quotable Quotes

"The first thing I'm going to do is get rid of all the clocks in the house!"—said retiring Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan on being regimented by clocks throughout his life.

"If there is a battle, women who have the ability, the desire and the will should be allowed to do what they can do better than somebody else."—said the first black woman general, Brig. Gen. Marcelite Harris, about women serving in front-line combat duties.

"Nobody knows what to do with women my age...Hell, my juices didn't even get going until I was 40."—said 56-year-old actress Shirley Maclaine about the niche she's found of only playing women in their 50s.

Letters

Animal dissection out-of-date

This letter is in response to people's reactions to the oil pumped into the Persian Gulf.

All of the television stations were showing dead and dying birds and the massive destruction of the sea life by the thick, suffocating oil, while people watching were appalled by the animal suffering and the environmental disaster.

They all felt sorry for the poor birds and fish, but very few felt sorry for the animals suffering right underneath their noses.

Unfortunately, the animals on this campus that are suffering won't get any airtime to make people aware or feel sorry for them. And the number of deaths is approximately the same.

Hundreds of animals a year are maimed and tortured in Life

Science II and Lindegren Hall. Rats, mice, rabbits, cats, dogs, monkeys, and even penguins in these buildings have had senseless, irrelevant tests inflicted on them to gain useless knowledge.

Students dissect hundreds of animals when the alternatives of computers and models would be much more humane, equally effective and more cost efficient in the long run.

People think that they have the right to do cruel tests on animals for some cause they feel is worth maiming and if the animal is lucky, quickly ending its life.

There are alternatives to everything, and with our knowledge and technology today there are an increasing number of alternatives originating every day that are cruelty free.

They are much more reliable than animal testing too, because animals are so obviously different than humans, and we have proven that by testing on them because they aren't in our league.

It would be illegal to do the things being done to them now if they were equal substitutions for humans.

Let's stop these barbaric, out-of-date, incredibly cruel tests now. This campus needs to be aware of the fact that animal testing is out and more humane reliable technological methods are in.—Stephanie Alley, senior, undecided, member of Students Against Animal Vivisection and Exploitation (SAAVE).

Abortion indication of societal problems

Perhaps some were impressed by the statement in a recent ad, "It's a pro-choice or no-choice" because it was followed by the name of about 350 people.

However, the truth of a statement depends on the statement itself. A false statement is false whether it is signed by one person or 1 million.

The signers of this statement are avoiding the real issue, which is life or death for the unborn child.

There is a choice but it is only the mother who has a choice. The baby has no choice.

The statement gives four reasons for being "pro-choice."

Do those who "believe that no politician has a right to dictate what women do with their bodies" oppose laws against prostitution?

Others believe that "...Roe v. Wade made abortion safe and legal."

Legal yes, but safe?

For the mother, abortion may cause infection, hemorrhage, cervical tear, perforation of the uterus and sterility. And for the baby the result is certain death.

Still other signers "believe that nobody has a right to impose moral and religious beliefs on everyone else."

But every law imposes somebody's beliefs on everyone.

Finally, some of the signers "...are unsure of their feelings about abortion."

Their "feelings?" Has their educational background provided them with no moral or intellectual basis for deciding important issues?

Actually, abortion is not itself the problem but only the symptom of deeper problems in society.

In his essay "Operation Rescue," Dr. Charles E. Rice, professor of law at the University of Notre Dame, states, "Through secularism, we have denied the subjection of the human law to the law of God; through relativism, we have denied objective morality and our capacity to know what is right and wrong; and through contraception, we have made ourselves the arbiters of the beginning of life. We ought not to be surprised at the results."—Ray Nowacki, associate Professor, dept. of civil engineering.

More humane foreign policy needed

In the wake of the tragic war in the gulf, the International Students Council presented a dazzling show of the world's cultural diversity. The rich cultural traditions of many countries were described and displayed in a most graceful manner.

The underlying conclusion was inescapable: we are all people. In spite of our political differences, ideological conflicts, religious beliefs, and economic inequities, we are all one people.

As a civilized society we should respect one another's cultures, traditions and religions.

We have no right to destroy those who disagree with us.

We have no right to impose puppet governments on other countries against their populations' desires.

We have no right to bombard cities, killing innocent civilians indiscriminately.

Unfortunately, our leadership has chosen to pursue its "national interest," with a blatant disregard for other peoples of the world.

The victims of our government's ruthless foreign policy include Iraqis, Vietnamese, Panamanians, Palestinians, Nicaraguans and many others.

As peace-loving citizens of this democratic nation, it is our responsibility to initiate a more humanitarian U.S. foreign policy.

People of the world: stand up and unite!—Haithem El-Zabri, sophomore, marketing, president of the Committee for Peace in the Middle East.

"We will continue down this road."

Marine Brig. Gen. Richard I. Neal of the U.S. Central Command in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, told a news briefing that allied warplanes stepped up attacks on Basra, the southern Iraqi port city where major oil refineries and petrochemical plants are situated.

Neal said allied forces mounted about 2,900 sorties Monday — more than in recent days — with intensified attacks against the Republican Guard, Saddam's elite troops. But Neal said the whole air campaign was "very successful across the board."

"The Republican Guards, the front lines all the way back, there is no rest for the weary for any of them," Neal said.

Neal cautioned that the increased bombing of Basra, located just below the where the Tigris and Euphrates rivers meet, might cause some unavoidable civilian injuries and damage to civilian facilities because military and civilian facilities were closely intermingled.

Despite making great efforts to avoid civilian casualties, Neal said, "There is as we all know going to be instances of collateral damage." However, he pointed out it was Saddam who moved military targets in with the civilian population.

"Let's be quite frank, we didn't put the storage points where they are," he said. "To try to jump that we are callous, don't care about civilian casualties, I think that's the wrong approach."

He described Basra as "a military town in the true sense," having "a major naval base and port facility," besides its oil emplacements.

Neal specified that Iraqi chemical production and storage facilities in Basra had been targeted. He would not say explicitly that there were any chemical weapons facilities in Basra, but in answering reporters' questions seemed to imply that there were.

U.S. military officials also said American pilots destroyed up to four mobile Scud launchers and damaged a fifth one in eastern and western Iraq during the past 24 hours.

Iraq launched its 12th Scud attack on Israel Monday evening, but the missile, armed with a conventional warhead, hit in an uninhabited area and there was no known damage or injuries, officials said.

picked that particular shot for the cover.

"It was taken with a telephoto lens and Ben probably didn't know he was being photographed," Mrs. Middleton said.

"People who really know Ben, know that's who it is," she said.

His close friends agree Middleton is in the photograph.

"I think it's definitely him," said Edward Berkheimer, a junior in history at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Robert Gaddis, a junior in administration of justice at SIUC, agreed.

"I couldn't believe it. When I saw it, I was sure (it was him)," Gaddis said.

He said he received a letter last week, in which Middleton wrote he was nervous but optimistic and anxious to get the job done.

David Morales, a junior in education at SIUC, said his hands were shaking as he purchased the magazine. Morales said it scared him and made everything around here seem small by comparison.

"You get a letter, but it's just a letter. He looks so young (in the picture)," Morales said.

Morales said Ben's last letter to him on Jan. 14 was optimistic.

"He said he would get back (to the United States) and there wasn't anything that was going to stop him," Morales said.

Mrs. Middleton said her son was home for four days at Thanksgiving and he knew then he would go to Saudi Arabia.

Like most mothers who have one or more children in the Middle East, Mrs. Middleton said she is apprehensive.

"I'm just nothing but a nervous wreck from the time it kicked off 'til the time it will be over," she said.

She said when her son joined the Marine Corps he never envisioned he would be in Saudi Arabia.

"He always wanted to be in the Marine Corps since he was little. He had an uncle in the Marine Corps," she said.

Middleton has been in the Marine Corps for two years, a year of which was spent in Okinawa.

"It was bad when he went to Okinawa and I didn't see him, but that's nothing compared to this," Mrs. Middleton said.

She never thought her son would be involved in a war either. This shows how situations can change in a matter of months, she said. She last received a letter on Feb. 1.

"I go to the post office every day looking for a letter. Someone stays at home all the time in case he calls again," she said.

Ben last called her Jan. 23.

"When he did call on the 23rd it helped (allay my fears) for a while," she said.

a practical basis as well," Brown wrote.

John Ryan, representing the Carbondale Business Development Corporation, said he endorses off-track betting because it will bring money to the city and promote tourism.

"If Carbondale doesn't take advantage of this opportunity," Ryan said, "another community will."

Marion is another community being considered by Fairmount for the parlor.

Harry Wirth, task force member and director of SIUC Service Enterprises, said he sees Fairmount as another business considering locating in the city.

"The issue here is more than gambling," Wirth said. "Horse racing is more than gambling. Horse racing is an industry."

Richard Fasano, task force member and graduate assistant for the SIUC Wellness Center, said he spoke to campus government leaders, classes and staff members and got mixed responses.

Most of the comments were positive, Fasano said.

He said he received negative responses from people who believe gambling is immoral.

Some students were concerned about the 21-year-old entrance requirement. They felt it was another thing they were not allowed to do, he said.

State law allows anyone 17 years old or older to place bets.

At first, Undergraduate Student Government members were opposed to the issue because of the age requirement, Fasano said.

He said USG decided to support the parlor if three things were considered by the City Council:

- set aside one day a week for people 18 years old and older;
- make Sundays a family day at the parlor to send a better message to children;
- designate a percentage of the city profits for specific things like low-income housing.

Brian Zander, vice president and general manager of Fairmount Park, met with the task force Feb. 6.

He said Fairmount is considering other Illinois cities, but a site in Southern Illinois would bring in business from neighboring states.

Fairmount Park already has two off-track betting parlors in Springfield and Grayville.

Of the 11-member task force, Bill Whitson, representing Carbondale Business Development Corporation, and resident Robert Stalls were not present.

antibiotics and officials said the facility was inundated by Monday morning.

School doctors also visited Mank's classes to urge students to undergo the tests.

McDonnell lived in the Hopkins Hall dormitory and another resident there said he first fell sick Saturday night. Shepard said most of McDonnell's floormates already had received the oral antibiotics.

School officials also were handing out leaflets and working with local radio stations to ease fears of students and parents. Pupils and teachers with flu-like symptoms were warned to seek medical attention.

Meningitis strikes the protective membranes around the brain and spinal cord. Meningococemia, which afflicted Mank and also apparently McDonnell, is an invasion of the bloodstream that is caused by the same bacteria that cause meningitis.

SUPPORT, from Page 1

The Shepherds are not veterans and have no relatives serving in the gulf, but in their letters they said they were sure that they knew some of the servicepersonnel's parents or grandparents.

"P.S. Your acknowledgment is neither expected nor necessary," the letter said.

"Although we didn't want it, we have gotten several nice letters back thanking us for our support," Mary Shepherd said.

"This was something we really wanted to do. I think we got more out of it than the troops did," she said.

"One boy sent back the check saying he couldn't accept it for doing something for his country."

Faculty Senate to heat up with talk on proposal for affirmative action

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate will debate whether or not to accept an affirmative action policy for its organization in today's meeting.

Faculty Senate President Donald W. Garner said the debate is the first time the Affirmative Action and Diversity Committee will propose a policy to the senate.

The proposed policy states the senate encourages the University to seek out qualified individuals with "diverse life experiences and perspectives."

"Affirmative Action should complement academic excellence by hiring the most qualified faculty regardless of gender, race, disability or other biological or cultural factors," the proposed policy states.

Garner said the proposal is just the beginning of the process to get a policy accepted.

"I don't want to rush the process—I want everyone to have plenty of time for input," Garner said.

James W. Fox, vice president of the senate, said the senate created the eight-member committee in July after Seymour Bryson, executive assistant to the president, asked the senate to adopt a policy.

Fox also is the committee chairman.

The committee consulted Bryson, Shan R. Rhoads, University legal counsel, and Carmen A. Suarez, University Affirmative Action officer, before drafting the policy, Fox said.

Affirmative Action at SIU does not set quotas.

Fox, associate professor for library services, said the senate could amend the policy before it is accepted.

Garner, a law professor, said once a policy is accepted, the Faculty Senate will not direct it at any office, but rather as a statement of faculty principle.

Committee members include Fox; Harold Bardo, associate professor of medical education; Donna R. Falvo, associate professor at the Rehabilitation Institute; Worthen N. Hunsaker, associate professor of mathematics; Dennis J. Laake, coordinator of the College of Technical Careers dental lab; Albert P. Melone, professor of political science; and Ann J. Morrey, associate professor of English.

Iraq Scud missile launching injures several more Israelis

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Iraq launched Scud missiles armed with conventional warheads into central Israel Monday and early Tuesday, and the second attack injured several people, officials said.

Brig. Gen. Nachrman Shai, chief spokesman for the Israeli Defense Forces, said the first Scud-B missile landed about 7 p.m. local time (noon EST), in "an uninhabited area in the center of the country. So far no injuries or damage have been reported."

Authorities sounded an alert across the country, urging residents to put on gas masks and stay in sealed rooms in case the missile carried a chemical or biological warhead, which Shai said it did not.

The all-clear was sounded about 25 minutes later.

The second Scud attack occurred at 1:33 a.m. causing several "light" injuries and one or two "moderate" injuries, said Shai.

Big Muddy Festival features two 'Films of Black America'

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

SPIKE LEE'S MASTER'S thesis production and an animated Haitian folk tale were the two independent films featured in Films of Black America, part of the 1991 Big Muddy Film Festival.

The festival was sponsored by the Illinois Arts Council, the Student Programming Council, the Cinema and Photography Student Organization and the Department of Cinema and Photography.

Anthony W. Shaw, executive director of the festival, chose the two films for presentation Saturday evening.

"I tried to present an alternate image of Black American life to what is offered by other media sources," Shaw said.

"OUT OF THE FOUR or five films I had to choose from, these were the ones that accomplished what I wanted," he said.

Even though the films were shown during Black History Month, attendance lagged, and Shaw was disappointed.

"Blacks always want better representation," Shaw said, "but

13th annual

then they don't even show up."

Al Reitz, CPC Film Chairperson, said he believed competing events this month contributed to the lack of attendance at the films.

"FEBRUARY IS A HUGE programming month, and it's hard to get big attendance at any one event," Reitz said.

He added that more promotion of the films would have helped.

"Joe's Bed-Stuy Barbershop: We Cut Heads," was Lee's first film and his master's thesis in cinematography at New York University.

The film told the story of Zachariah Homer, an inner city barber whose customers came to him to play the numbers; his wife, a social worker; and "Teapot," a high school dropout who Homer struggles to rehabilitate.

Through the murder of his partner, the mugging of his wife and the financial and physical ills made by rambling kingpin Nicholas Lovejoy, Lee portrayed the hardships and heartaches of a young man trying to break out of the ghetto and start a better life.

SHAW SAID THE MOVIE worked well because the barbershop was an "integral part of black America."

The second film, "Black Dawn," tells the story of the revolution of Haiti, the first independent black republic.

The film uses traditional Haitian paintings as the framework for its animation.

The film follows two characters of Haitian folklore, Sili and Simba, from their capture by slave traders in their African homeland to the celebration of Haitian independence from France.

ALTHOUGH THIS 20-minute film depicts the struggles of blacks in Haiti, Shaw said he felt its message was still important for African-Americans to understand.

"The experiences of blacks in the new worlds are all parallel," he said. "We have gone through many of the same things."

Civil rights struggle topic of discussion

President Lincoln honored as founder of black civil liberties

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

Personal stories from the ongoing civil rights struggle founded in the 1960s will unfold tonight in a panel discussion at the School of Law Auditorium.

The panel is made up of three Carbondale citizens who were involved in the '60s fight to achieve racial justice.

Panel members will not only talk about the past, but also today's situation, said William Stevens, president of the Southern Illinois chapter of American Civil Liberties Union.

"I think the people (on the panel) are in the position to shed some light on racism, not only in the '60s, but perhaps assess for us whether we're making progress in achieving social justice and civil rights for all," Stevens said.

Two panel members are Rosetta and John O'Neal. They were African-American public teachers in Carbondale who fought for desegregated education in the '60s.

The other panelist is Michael Starr, a lawyer and SIUC professor of radio-television. He helped New York City lawyer William Kunstler investigate the 1964 murders that were portrayed in Mississippi Burning.

"I think many SIUC students are at an age where they would have been unaware of the civil rights environment of the 1960's, and will probably end up being shocked at some of the stories that will be told," Stevens said.

"Probably everyone would agree that equal rights for all is still a goal. I think that most would agree our progress is not as much as we had hoped for."

The United States has not accomplished civil rights for all, said David Christensen, director of SIUC Emeritus College.

"The civil rights issue is not behind us. Prejudice is not behind us. This (discussion) will pull us up by the bootstraps to see we still have some incredible problems to solve," Christensen said.

"Many SIUC students are at the age where they would be unaware of the civil rights environment of the 1960's"

—William Stevens

Wenona Whitfield, SIUC professor of law, will moderate the discussion, which will begin at 7:30 tonight. The event is co-sponsored by the ACLU and SIUC Emeritus College.

The discussion is being held on President Lincoln's birthday in order to honor him as the person who established civil rights for African-Americans.

"Lincoln is widely recognized as the one who got black citizens on their way to full citizenship with emancipation," Stevens said.

He said the nearly 200 members of the Southern Illinois chapter of ACLU are concerned with liberties for all Americans, not only the liberties of certain groups.

"This program is especially relevant to the concerns of black citizens in Carbondale," Stevens said, noting that he hopes African-Americans will attend the discussion.

"Traditionally, we have not had very much of an involvement in our organization from the black community, and I'm hoping we can change that."

Safe sex, dating advice offered at workshops

By Tiffany Youther
Staff Writer

International students can learn about issues ranging from safe sex to sexual harassment at workshops Tuesday and Wednesday.

The workshops are sponsored by International Programs and Services.

Betsy Schramer, graduate assistant for International Programs and Services, said the workshop today is for women only because of the sensitive nature of the topics.

She said topics to be discussed include safe sex, birth control, sexually transmitted diseases and safe dating. Both workshops are free of charge.

The guest speakers for the workshop, scheduled from 2 to 3 p.m. today in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room, are Janet Coffman, SIUC Counseling Center director and Paula Hendrix, graduate assistant at the Wellness Center.

"We've tried to design this workshop so that our speakers are aware of the different cultures and will be sensitive to them," Schramer said.

Schramer said the workshop Wednesday, also from 2 to 3 in the Kaskaskia Room, focuses on sexual harassment. Both men and women are invited to attend, she said.

Sue Davis, a personnel officer who trains sexual harassment advisors on campus, said "I want to attempt to clarify to the international students what sexual harassment is and to make them understand that those situations are unacceptable."

Blood overflows goals

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

On the first two days of the SIUC blood drive the daily goal has been exceeded, said Sharric Voigt, president of SIUC Mobilization of Volunteer Effort.

On Monday, 304 pints of blood were collected from donors flocking to the Student Center.

The daily goal was 250. Sunday, 156 pints were donated, 6 pints more than the daily goal.

The total number of pints donated so far at the drive is 460. The goal for the week is 1,950 pints.

As the week goes on, the number of daily donations at the on-campus blood drive will increase because more people find out about the drive, said Voigt said.

Voigt said the flow of donors on Monday kept to a slow but constant pace.

Donors can give from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today through Thursday at the Student Center Ballrooms.

Donations also be made from 10:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on Friday at the Recreation Center.

Vivian Ugent, coordinator of area blood drives, said more beds will be set up today and for the rest of the week to accommodate the expected increase in donors.

Illinois DCFS settles lawsuit on sexual abuse

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services has settled another lawsuit pending against it, this one dealing with two children who were sexually assaulted by others housed in an emergency shelter, officials said Monday. The settlement of the suit brought by Cook County Public Guardian Patrick Murphy includes no admission of wrongdoing on the part of the agency.

Music faculty to sing, play American operas

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

The SIUC School of Music will have a faculty recital tonight at 8 p.m. in the Old Baptist Foundation.

Soprano Jeanine Wagner will sing and pianist Margaret Simmons will play a selection of 20th Century American operas and spirituals. The songs are by composers Igor Stravinsky, Samuel Barber, John Duke and John Carter.

Wagner, assistant professor of music, said although all songs will be sung in English, they will be interesting and varied works.

"The Stravinsky piece from 'The Rakes Progress' is very monumental," she said.

Wagner said Stravinsky spoke very little English when he wrote the opera. He had a friend who read over his manuscripts to correct his mistakes.

"(At the time) Stravinsky was writing in his Neoclassical period," she said. "He combined the Mozart sound with a 20th century theme."

"Knoxville: Summer of 1915" is a story about a summer afternoon viewed through the eyes of a child.

"It mentions horse drawn carriages and horseless carriages, and lovers walking by, hand in hand," Wagner said. "It is very picturesque. It is based on the prose of James Agee and set to music by Barber."

She said the piece was originally written for an orchestra.

"The piano really has a task at hand," she said about Simmons. Simmons said "Knoxville: Summer of 1915" is a long piece.

"You have to keep the orchestrated part in your ear and try to (translate) the same color to the piano," Simmons said.

Wagner said she also enjoys the five songs from "Cantata."

"The last set, 'Cantata,' is spirituals," she said. "They will be familiar (to many people). They are beautiful and exciting. They are five little songs (in themselves)."

Festival continues despite murders

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Police reported the second murder of a Carnival visitor Tuesday as the city regrouped from a weekend of non-stop parades and street partying that will continue through Mardi Gras, Fat Tuesday.

John Pierre, 30, of Amite, La., was shot in the neck during a holdup attempt about 3 a.m. Sunday, police said. A companion said Pierre tried to protect him from the gunman during a holdup attempt as they left the French Quarter, a focal point of the Carnival celebrations. Pierre was the second Carnival visitor murdered within five days.

Michael Alletto, 65, of Rochester, N.Y., was shot to death on the edge of the French Quarter Wednesday night. Travis Garrison, 16, was booked with murder and attempted robbery.

Despite the tragedies, the frenzied buildup to Mardi Gras continued with parades and over-indulgence in food, alcohol and, along Bourbon Street, fleeting displays of semi-nudity.

"It's like nothing I've ever seen before in my life," said Danny Haffel, West Islip, N.Y., recalling his first parade and the frenzy of the crowd trying to catch "throws" — souvenirs tossed by float riders.

The throws include strings of plastic bead necklaces, undergarments, stuffed animals, plastic cups and aluminum doubloons.

Gulf war bombers say more targets seen in war zone

AT AN AIR BASE IN NORTHEASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (UPI) — Pilots flying F-16 fighter-bombers against Iraqi positions Monday said they were still seeing hundreds of military targets, indicating they had much work to do before the start of a ground war.

"I know everybody wants to get it over with and get home. But the longer they give us, the better it's going to be for our guys when they roll into Kuwait," said Lt. Col. Billy Diehl, 41, of Tampa, Fla., commander of an F-16 squadron out of Shaw Air Force Base.

"There is a lot to target up there. It's definitely a target-rich environment," Diehl said. "We've been going after tanks and artillery pieces. Things that are really going to do damage to our boys when they start rolling into Kuwait it was there after."

The lieutenant colonel made his remarks after a morning attack on Iraqi positions. The F-16s he led took off from one air base, dropped their bombs on Iraqi positions and returned to an air base in northeastern Saudi Arabia to reload and refuel before continuing their attack.

U.S. military officials said allied warplanes concentrated Monday on Iraqi troops, supply lines and naval, chemical and oil installations in the port city of Basra to deny Saddam Hussein's army weapons, fuel and other supplies.

Capt. Dewey Gay, 26, of Warren County, Tenn. said his mission Monday was "one of the best ones in a while because there were so many targets. We pretty much got all the tanks. We hated to come back but we ran out of bombs."

Desert Storm benefits package almost ready

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two decorated combat veterans are leading Senate task forces that have nearly completed a sweeping benefits package for military personnel fighting in Operation Desert Storm.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a Marine combat pilot in World War II and Korea, and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a Navy combat pilot and a prisoner of war in the Vietnam War, are sifting through some 50 bills that have been proposed for inclusion in an omnibus measure.

The proposals, most of which have strong support, delve into almost every war and post-war situation, ranging from an increase in combat pay for those now in the Persian Gulf area to more unemployment compensation for those mustered out at the end of the war.

They break down into three separate categories: protections and aid for reservists and their families; combat-related benefits; and a variety of programs for Desert Storm veterans.

One controversial measure, expected to be offered by Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., is a proposal to review the policy that allows married couples with children and single parents in combat. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, strongly oppose any change in the policy.

Glenn and McCain are chairmen of separate Democratic and Republican Persian Gulf personal benefits task forces and expect to have the legislation ready for Senate action shortly after Congress returns from its recess Feb. 19.

Arbitration awaits Pirates' Bonilla

TSBURGH (UPI) —

Pittsburgh Pirates President Carl Barger said Monday it appears outfielder Bobby Bonilla is headed for arbitration after turning down a four-year, $15.5 million contract offer.

Bonilla's arbitration hearing is scheduled for Thursday. He is asking for $3.45 million while the Pirates are offering $2.4 million.

"I'm going to call Bobby's agent later today, to see if there are any prospects of avoiding arbitration. We still have three days," Barger said. "I still haven't abandoned hope but I'm not any more optimistic than I was over the weekend."

Barger also said he had "very little optimism" that the team could avoid arbitration with Barry Bonds, the NL Most Valuable Player. He also called talks with the agent for second baseman Jose Lind "not very promising."

Bonds, who went to arbitration last year, already has threatened to leave Pittsburgh when he becomes a free agent after the 1992 season.

"We're still talking to Doug Drabek," Barger added of the 1990 Cy Young Award winner. "I'd love to settle there. We're going to talk again this afternoon."

Fay Vincent returns to work

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent, claiming he was eager to resume his duties, returned to work Monday after missing nearly three months recuperating from medical problems.

Vincent was stricken with pneumonia in late November and then underwent surgery to remove his spleen after it became infected.

He met with the media on his first day back and cited concern about huge multi-year contracts being handed out in recent weeks, including Roger Clemens' $20 million, four-year deal signed with the Boston Red Sox last Friday.

Vincent said he would deal with the issue of banned star Pete Rose if a request for reinstatement was presented. Rose will not be allowed to have his name on the ballot for Hall of Fame unless he is reinstated by the league. Rose was banned last year for gambling.

Vincent also said he felt former New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner was attempting to use the media to attack him because Steinbrenner is not permitted to file under his agreement with the Commissioner.

Herrin said. "They have different personalities and are different types of ballplayers. We expect different things from Tyrone than we did Freddie. Tyrone is playing it a No. 2 spot and did have big shoes to fill. But you don't try to fill the shoes, you just try to make adjustments and whatever is necessary to win."

The two players differ the most in the number of shots they take. Bell has only taken 122 shots this season, while McSwain attempted 427 field goals last season.

"Tyrone is a better shooter than he has shown in any ballgame. Part of it is because he hesitates a little bit," Herrin said. "He's always had the privilege of shooting the basketball. I've never told him not to shoot it. He just works on getting the ball inside to Ashraf Amaya and Rick Shipley."

Bell knows he needs to put the ball up more often, but he thinks his main asset to the team is working the ball around and opening up opportunities for his teammates.

"Saturday I came out and started taking my shot like I did in the preseason," Bell said. "I've been a little tentative and too selective of my shots. I concentrate on making my shots so much that it causes me to miss it sometimes. I'm a shooter, but I'm more of the type of player that can create things by passing and getting the ball inside to the big guys."

Bell's toughest assignment usually comes on defense. He often is called upon to guard the opponent's quickest and often most talented player. This takes a toll on Bell and contributes to his lack of scoring.

"It's kind of tough," Bell said. "I think that is part of the reason my offense is down. It takes a lot out of me guarding the other team's best player because they are always trying to get them the ball and they're coming off a lot of screens."

"Coach tells us not to rest on defense, if anything, rest on offense. So with the scorers we have I can afford to rest sometimes and concentrate on my defense."

Bell might not shoot much from the field, but his consistency from the charity strip (72 percent) leads all Saluki starters.

"I just concentrate on doing the same thing every time," Bell said. "I think I have a good shot as long as I follow through. My dad always told me, if a guy can't shoot free throws, he shouldn't play because they are just free points."

Bell hopes to generate similar statistics for the Salukis' remaining five regular season games and be a key for SIUC in the Valley Tournament.

"I need to concentrate on being more aggressive offensively," Bell said. "I don't have to score 19 (points) every game, but I think I have the capability to do that. I think if I can consistently have some kind of game like I had Saturday, it will make us a better team."

"I just set goals to play as hard as I can and try to get us in the NCAA (Tournament). We've had an up and down season, but we have five regular season games left and they're important for us to get a good seed in the (MVC) tournament."

get past the University of Illinois Sunday, falling to the Illini 8-1.

No. 1 player senior Missy Jeffrey fell to Iowa's Susanne Pollmann 7-6, 6-2, but came back with doubles partner junior Lori Edwards to beat Pollmann and Kim Dempsey 6-1, 4-6, 7-6.

In doubles play, the Salukis nailed two of three matches against Iowa State. Senior Michele Toye and freshman Leesa Joseph beat Iowa's Christi Hill and Connie McGough 7-6, 7-6, 1-6.

"The mental concentration seemed pretty good," Auld said. "I think they were all pretty nervous when they went out for their first set."

Auld said she was particularly pleased with doubles play at the two competitions.

"Our singles have always been our strong point and the doubles have been kind of shaky," Auld said. "What I saw over the weekend was very positive as far as the doubles play. We're still on a roller coaster. First we're playing really great, then we're not. It's just going to take time and a few more matches."

Illinois pushed the Salukis Sunday, leaving SIUC at a disappointing 8-1. The Salukis No. 3 doubles team of Toye and Joseph won the only match for the Salukis 6-4, 7-6.

Auld said her top three players in singles could not overcome the tough Illini competition. Jeffrey lost to UI's Lindsey Nimmo 6-1, 6-1.

Sophomore Wendy Varum lost to Kristin Willey 6-1, 6-1 and junior Lori Edwards lost to Kristi Meola 6-0, 6-0.

Auld said if the team had a few matches under their belt, the results may have been closer. Illinois had played four other schools before meeting the Salukis, while Iowa State was in their first weekend of competition.

Auld said the competition gave the Salukis some frustration, but they were more disappointed at their style of play.

"They were more disappointed than frustrated because they knew it was within their reach," Auld said. "They just weren't playing up to par as far as the doubles team. They were out of sync with each other."

6-foot-4, 275 pound offensive lineman Jay Snyder of Ricks Community College, where he teamed with current Saluki quarterback Brian Downey.

Snyder has been under the eye of SIUC offensive coordinator Phil Meyer since the last football season started.

Snyder said he made the decision to sign with the Salukis partly because of Meyer and partly because of the attitude of the players when he visited.

"They welcomed me," Snyder said during a lifting session. "like I'd been here all my life. SIU was one of the first to really recruit me and coach Meyer is one of the biggest reasons I'm here."

"Also, when I met the players I felt they had a great outlook on the game, better than most of the schools I visited."

Holyfield, Foreman title bout expected to be in Atlantic City

NEW YORK (UPI) — Promoters for the Evander Holyfield-George Foreman heavyweight title fight Monday gave Donald Trump an extra day to pay the $2.5 million he owes to keep the April 19 bout at his Atlantic City, N.J., casino.

Trump was to make the payment Monday, but lawyers did not complete revisions of the contract made Saturday. Promoters Dan Duva and Bob Arum had threatened to move the bout to Las Vegas, NeV., if Trump did not come up with the money. Duva and Trump met Saturday and made changes in the original contract. The changes are said to be minor.

A news conference has been called for Tuesday at noon at the Plaza Hotel in New York. The hotel is owned by Trump.

Seth Abraham, whose TVKO owns the pay-per-view rights to the fight, said the bout will stay in Atlantic City.

Judges give Johnson second comeback win

OSAKA, Japan (UPI) — Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson, continuing his comeback following a two-year ban from track, won the 60-meter dash at the Chitose International indoor track meet Monday, beating out Cuban Andres Simonn when the judges reversed their decision 30 minutes after the race.

Johnson and Simonn both crossed the finish line at 6.64 seconds, and judges originally awarded the victory to Simonn, who was all smiles as he took a victory lap around the track at the Osaka Castle Hall.

"I'm very happy for Simonn," Johnson said before the decision was changed.

A half hour later, though, the judges awarded the race to Johnson, saying a review of the videotape showed the Canadian's shoulder had crossed the line first.

Johnson was banned from track for two years after testing positive for steroids following his victory in the 100-meter dash at the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul. Monday's win was Johnson's second in four comeback races this year.

"I thought I lost the race," Johnson said, appearing reluctant as he accepted the gold medal.

"In my heart I know I won," said Simonn. "I can't believe this is happening."

Simonn's coach Santiago Antunez said he would file an official protest. He was seen arguing with track officials during the award ceremony.
