Closing of IAC meeting sparks student walkout

By Randy Rogaski
Staff Writer

Two student representatives to the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee walked out of Tuesday's IAC meeting to protest the meeting because IAC Chairman Willard Brown overruled a 5-2 vote to open the meeting to students.

The board had expected out by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Graduate Student Council.

Rogers is the USO representative to the IAC, and Ostenburg is the GSC representative.

GSC President Debbie Brown labelled Klimstra's actions "unfortunate," since she distrusts the IAC because she cannot resolve in his own procedures.

"It's not our fault if we're not involved with what might be a sensitive matter. It's clearly an exception."

Items considered Tuesday included consolidating men's and women's athletics under one department, and creating the post of business manager and fund raising specialist for intercollegiate athletics.

The committee also discussed a new sportsmanship policy, a student referendum to indicate their increased responsibility for periodic review of athletics programs. Contacted after the meeting, Klimstra said he "deeply regretted" the action and that he is an ardent proponent of student input to administrative decisions.

"If there had been a unanimous vote of the committee, I would have one that vote," Klimstra said. "But I feel that as the chair, I had to defend the feelings of those who want the meeting closed. Brown and Matalonis said they wanted to attend the meeting because, they like the IAC, are evaluating the recommendations for President Albert Somit.

However, Klimstra said that Somit expects student governance to respond to the recommendations based on its recommending rather than from meetings of other committees.

He said he decided to close an original meeting with President Albert Somit, University Legal Counsel Jerry Lacey, and Jerry Lacey, associate vice president for University Relations. Brown argued that Somit's assistant, Richard Michalic said. Brown said the closed meeting is a sign of problems with the committee, and that it was pointed out by the blue ribbon commission in its December report.

Grad business students given stipend increase

Some of the graduate students working on master's degrees in the College of Business Administration, who were denied cost-of-living increases at the beginning of fall semester will be granted an percent increase, according to John Guyon, acting vice president for Academic Affairs.

Only those students who are renewing their assistantships will receive a salary adjustment. Guyon said Tuesday.

Guyon said payment to the graduate students "does not mean the previous decision was inappropriate." The increase, Guyon said, was granted in "a spirit of fairness" and will be retroactive to the beginning of a student's contract.

Guyon said he has not discussed the possibility of reimbursing students who left the University at the end of fall semester, and does not intend to reimburse them. The number of students involved and the time the increase will be implemented is unknown, according to both Guyon and Clayton Anderson, associate dean of the College of Business and Administration.

"We are not under any time pressure, we just have to go through the list of students on assistantships to see which ones qualify," Anderson said. "We are trying to get it done as soon as we can.

Graduate assistants in the College of Business and Administration did not receive salary increases this year, while all other University graduate assistants were awarded increases of at least 7 percent, according to University budget figures. Although last spring the state Legislature and the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommended an across-the-board average increase of 8 percent for graduate assistants, many in the business college decided according to the additional funds to assistants in the master's program.

In December, members of the Graduate Student Council approved a resolution to President Albert Somit to allocate $8,000 from midyear funds to graduate students in the business college for fall and spring semesters. Somit delegated Guyon to deal with the request. Money for the reimbursement is coming from the Office of Academic Affairs and Research, not the midyear funds requested by the GSC.
FBI unable to prove labor head ties to mob

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI said Tuesday that it cannot substantiate fresh allegations by government informants that Raymond Donovan, the labor secretary-designate, has business and social ties to organized crime figures and that his construction company is "mobb'd up."

Francis Mullen, an FBI official, told a Senate committee that agents have been unable to verify any of the allegations contained in an FBI report released Tuesday.

"We have reviewed every allegation..." Mullen said. "...that was provided to us and have conducted additional investigation whenever the allegations were..." he said, "...specific to warrant additional investigation."

The FBI report added none of the sources was able to provide any information to show specific criminal misconduct on the part of Mr. Donovan.

In a hearing marked by occasional sharp comments by several senators, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., asked FBI officials at one point, "Is it fair to say you can neither corroborate nor disprove these allegations?"

"That's correct," Mullen said.

A few moments later, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, commented, "I suppose some people would have trouble proving God exists."

The FBI report also reveals the existence of two federal racketeering investigations involving Donovan's firm, Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J.

In one company records were subpoenaed, but Donovan was not.

The second involved an allegation that an unnamed union president misused pension and welfare fund money and received kickbacks in exchange for loans and awarding sweetheart contracts.

"To date, there is no information to indicate any involvement of Mr. Donovan in this matter," the report says.

The FBI findings, which fail to verify any of the numerous allegations made against Donovan, were made public by Kennedy as the committee met to hear testimony on Donovan's delayed nomination.

Armed men rob grocery store

By Andrew Strang St. Louis writer

Two men escaped with an unknown amount of cash in an armed robbery of a food store Monday in Moundsville, W.Va., and Carbondale police said the descriptions of the men match those of two men who robbed a gas station Saturday night.

A night clerk at Huck's Convenience Food Store, 166 Emerald Lane, told police that two black men, armed with a sawed-off shotgun, entered the store at about 11 a.m. and announced a holdup. The men took the cash, locked Drew in a storage room, demanded police said.

The suspects were described as being between 20 and 30 years old, and each about 5 feet 6 inches tall, wearing dark stocking caps, and one of the suspects weighed about 180 pounds and the other weighed about 200 pounds, police said.

Lt. Terry Murphy said the suspects could be the same men who held up Parrish's Veach station was Saturday night. The two crimes were similar in nature, Murphy said. The Veach station was robbed of $121 by two black men wearing a dark hooded sweater and the other wearing a ski mask. The men were carrying a sawed-off shotgun and a pistol.

City Council reacts favorably to regulating funding requests

By Tony Gordon
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council reacted favorably to a staff proposal regulating outside agency funding requests Monday night, and is expected to adopt the proposal as formal policy at its Feb. 2 meeting.

Mayor Hans Fischer said he “saw several reasons to agree” with a policy proposal made by Donald Moxey, assistant city manager, that would require agencies not regularly funded in the city budget to make their requests for money early in the budget-making process.

Moxey told the council that the outside agencies should bring their funding requests to a once-a-year public hearing so that the requests “could be weighed against each other, as to the budget process for the city’s operating departments.” That system would lead to a more valid budgeting process than has been practiced previously, he said. In the past, outside agencies would approach the council throughout the year with requests. Moxey’s proposal, as outlined to the council, would set a date for a public hearing for agencies to present their requests and allow the council to make its decision based on needs and priorities of the community. A tentative date for the public hearing was suggested to coincide with the first revenue sharing public hearing on Feb. 9 but will require the council’s formal action to be established.

Moxey said notices of the hearing would be sent to agencies likely to request funds, or that have requested funds in the past, and would be sent out this week. Those notices would “not be inviting the whole world to ask for money and would be letting them know we are not rich anymore.” Moxey said.

The study is being conducted to allot more accurate titles to administrative and professional job responsibilities and no salaries are to be reduced, Buffum said.

SIU-C may aid downtown overhaul

By Melody Cook
Staff Writer

The University’s assistance in planning the redevelopment of Carbondale’s downtown area may be welcomed by the city in the future, but not this semester, the City Council indicated at Monday night’s meeting.

The council reacted favorably to an offer that SIU-C, through the Division of Comprehensive Planning and Design, could help the city prepare an overall plan for overhauling an area which includes the Illinois Avenue “strip.” However, unanimous opinion was that implementing such a program this semester was too “premature.”

The study of physical, legal, economic, social and energy-related aspects of the redevelopment was proposed to be done by seniors and graduate students in design and allied fields, according to Stanley Moxey, visiting associate professor in Comprehensive Planning and Design, who presented the proposal to the council. The finalized project would include drawings, models, photographs and illustrated reports on the proposed downtown redevelopment.

Mayor Hans Fischer said that he thought the idea of cooperation between the University and the city in this project was good but agreed that city staff would first need to present their requests “in a direction for redevelopment plans to take.”

A shortened transition period may be essential in the future

TINKERING WITH THE CONSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS is a temptation, even impertinent, but the time has come to change one word, replacing "January" with "December" in Section 1 of the 17 Amendment. The tenure of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the 29th day of January.

A recurring question today is: Are the constitutional arrangements, devised by the rural gentility in the 18th century for a sparsely populated continent, suitable for a complex, advanced, industrialized nation? The answer is an emphatic "yes." But large improvements can be made from small changes, such as trimming four weeks from the transition period.

Until 1886, inauguration Day was March 4. That date made sense when the speed (or possibility) of travel and communication depended on unpaved roads. But the March 4 date was set by the Founders when the pace of events was such that "To get out of bed Thomas Jefferson could say, speaking of the U.S. minister in Spain, "I haven't heard from him in two years. If I don't hear from him this month he's dead." Today, waiting even until Jan. 30 is unnecessary and dangerous, and is especially dangerous when an incumbent has been rejected at the polls.

THE DECISION of the nation's rejection of Jimmy Carter this week is a landmark in American political history. It is the first time that a president has been denied a second term. This decision is especially important in a crisis, such as the Soviet invasion of Poland. If there is an invasion, the effectiveness of the response, even the survival of the Western alliance as more than a paper agreement, will depend on allied solidarity behind a stern policy. Had there been an invasion in the weeks after the election, Carter's ability to organize such solidarity would have been even less than it was in the "I'm dead." The "I'm not." It's a victory.

Even a narrow election victory imparts something that is difficult to acquire, even more difficult to keep, and indispensable to energetic government: mo--I've--me. For example, if Bush--mentum. Yet such is the inscrapable toll taken by our unduly prolonged transition periods that when President Reagan stepped forward to give his inaugural address, he had to use part of his address to stir the cooling fire of the Nov. 4--consensus. That is, I suspect, w was the first part of the speech, with its didactic tone about the economy's ailments, sounded a bit--which means a bit too much--like a campaign speech.

Just before the splended oration, there was one passage--the passage about "contemplating new com--promise," about, among other things, the "positive tax burden"--that seemed designed to repair the damage caused by Carter's understanding of his economic intentions by too much talk during the too-long transition.

During a transition, and especially early in one, there is an unusually high ratio of news reports to public lectures, and the ratio increases during the transition period. During the transition period, the public is reading the press reports to see what the president is doing, and the president is reading the press reports to see what the public is doing. The process of looking for the public's approval is especially severe when an administration is under fire.

A shortened transition period would minimize occasions for such confusions.

Those who think a shortened transition period would be impractical will note that the Reagan administration is not the first to find itself in a transition. Many people who have been "mentioned" as possible appointees. All these persons have opinions, few of which are perfectly harmonious with anyone else's. So the question of the hour becomes: Whose views represent the President-elect's immediate policy intentions?

During Reagan's transition there was a Niagara of analysis of all the fine shadings of Reaganite opinion about economic policy, from that of neo-populist tax-slaeing Kemp-Roth supply-siders to that of neo-orthodox semi-Greenspanians. Minds reeled and, so, occasionally, and perhaps not coincidentally, did some financial markets. A shortened transition period would minimize occasions for such confusions.

My heart goes out to the hostages, but my heart goes out also to the 1980's American student team. The students of SIU are not fair. They want to take a win away from me. And if I have been a cheerleader, I would do the same thing, and even less than it. But the March 4 date was set by the Founders when the pace of events was such that "To get out of bed Thomas Jefferson could say, speaking of the U.S. minister in Spain, "I haven't heard from him in two years. If I don't hear from him this month he's dead." Today, waiting even until Jan. 30 is unnecessary and dangerous, and is especially dangerous when an incumbent has been rejected at the polls.

Public response overwhelming to Joliet Prison photo exhibit

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

No one is sure why the "Photographs of Joliet Prison" exhibit currently on display in the University Museum is so popular, but all agree it is certainly getting more attention from press and public than most museum exhibits receive.

The 48 photographs on display at the museum, located at the far north end of Faner Hall, were made from negatives discovered at Stateville Penitentiary in Lockport by Richard Lawson, visiting assistant professor in the Department of Cinema and Photography at SIU-C. Lawson also printed the photos, taken in the late 1920s and early 1930s, said the public response to the exhibit was greater than expected.

"I guess prison is something that people are always interested in," he said, "and we know that what we see in the movies is not accurate."

During a public reception held for Lawson at the museum last week, 236 people toured the exhibit. Gerry Kelley, museum Program/Community Service coordinator, said this figure is "definitely higher" than for most exhibits.

"We were very busy with it," Kelley said. "We know that the negatives, which were all taken at nearby Joliet Prison, were probably moved to Stateville after the darkrooms at Joliet were closed. Several other people besides himself knew of the plates, which were all taken at nearby Joliet Prison, were probably moved to Stateville after the darkrooms at Joliet were closed. Lawson found the glass plate negatives in a basement storage area while he was an inmate photographer at Stateville Penitentiary, where he was serving a two-year sentence for possession of marijuana in 1968. "It's unique," said the 34-year-old Lawson. "I've never seen anything like it in all the years I've looked at photographs."

Lawson said he thinks the release of the 52 American hostages may have stimulated peoples curiosity about prisons and prisoners.

The photos featured in the exhibit show a somber depiction of one of the world's most infamous prisons during the height of Chicago organized crime and prohibition. Reprinted in a gold tone, the prints give vivid insight into prison life at the turn of the century.

State may allow cameras in court

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Supreme Court’s chief justice said Tuesday he thinks cameras probably would be allowed in Illinois courtrooms, adding that the court’s ban on such filming likely will be reconsidered.

Chief Justice Joseph H. Goldenhersh said he’s been given demonstrations of cameras that do not need special lighting and that make little noise. Such equipment eliminates a main objection that the filming was distracting, he said.

Kool Ray's manager clears up album review 'misconceptions'

By Alan Scalley
Staff Writer

As Kool Ray and the Polariads' manager Dennis deBourbon sat down before the band arrived for an interview, talk turned to a review of the group's first album that was recently published in the Daily Egyptian. The critic was less than complimentary.

"I'd like to clear up a few misconceptions left by the review," deBourbon said. He made the point that the review, which noted that the band was popular "even in Carbondale," left an impression that Kool Ray didn't play too large an area. In fact, the band plays all over Illinois, Iowa and Indiana, deBourbon said.

Surprisingly, that was the major compliant of the review. From his lounging position on an unbeatable hotel bed, guitarist-songwriter Doug Johnson chimed in.

The forum, the first of two community meetings scheduled to discuss the goals and needs of the community for energy use and conservation, is primarily for residents of the city's east side. Energy proposals and energy information exchanged are expected to be the highlights of the forum. The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in the Quigley Hall Auditorium.

GSC decision expected on sports report

By Carol Knowles
Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council is expected to take a final stance on the SIUC Ad Hoc Committee's report on Intercollegiate Athletics at its meeting Wednesday. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Boardroom of the Student Center.

GSC President Debbie Brown said that rather than voting on a resolution, a decision would be made based on discussion at the meeting.

Election of a new GSC Executive Board and a state of the GSC address to be delivered by Brown are events planned for Wednesday's meeting. Each semester, three members of the executive board are elected to serve on a committee with the president and vice president of GSC.

to skip the regional release and its follow-up album and gone right to a national record contract, de Bourbon said.

"We were approached by a national label prior to signing with Stuff, but we felt it would be too fast and furious a step. A band can't just take in the shuffle taking on a national contract before it's ready," de Bourbon explained.

But de Bourbon did say the band may now be ready to take the step up to a national contract. "The band is right on the fringe of breaking it. If it (the second album) sells the way I think it will, that should do it," he said.

As for other things in the future, the band is optimistic, especially now that Parkhurst is in the line-up. "This is the group we have wanted since we started (two years ago)," bassist Dee Pearson said.

Parkhurst explained they be waited so long to join. Johnson "was in a lounge band in Peoria and I also had a job. The band (Kool Ray) didn't play in Peoria that often, so I wasn't sure I wanted to join them. But then they started to play at Second Chance and I went and saw them. I liked what they were doing, so I decided I joining Kool Ray was what I wanted to do."

Kool Ray has also been able to put behind them the death of John Lennon, which, because he "wasn't worthy of my time."

De Bourbon said, "I get a weird, real spooky feeling whenever I think about it (Lennon's death). Even when I look at a picture of him."

Johnson says fortunately only a few minutes passed before the band realized Lennon's death, like Elvis Presley imitators.

De Bourbon said, "If someone approached me with that kind of comment, that type of person isn't worthy of my time. I just walk away."

As for the future, Pearson says he just wants to make "more and better albums." Johnson wants to become a better songwriter. That and "drive a Rolls Royce into a swimming pool," he cracks.

As for now, Pearson said, "The only thing we want is people to come and shake it (during their show). We're not a bunch of drugs. We're not trying to make a point. We just want people to have a good time."

General sees some criticism of Army as unfair, incorrect

By Pete Keechl Jr., Birmingham

The sharp pull of "attention" broke the somewhat nervous talk of the Army cadets. They stiffened.

"Carry on," he said informally.

Prillaman immediately set the mood for his 45-minute talk with seven ROTC cadets. He was personal from the outset, seemingly defusing the classic air of military hardness.

Prillaman, 50, made his first visit to SIU this week. He is considered the preeminent officer of the Army since SIU's ROTC program began in fall 1980.

Smoking an occasional Merit menthol, Prillaman allowed the cadets to question him about both a military and personal nature. He answered one cadet's question by dipping a cigar to that he would be a general-grade, a cadet was confronted by a military academy such as West Point.

Despite Army ROTC programs, he said, 76 percent of Army officers are supplied by ROTC. He had been decorated with numerous citations including the Silver Star, Legion of Merit and Purple Heart.

Prillaman's visit was also the first appearance by a general officer of the Army since SIU-C's ROTC program began in fall 1980.

Turning stern, Prillaman said "Sir, I wish we had a chance to train more militarily." Earlier, Eberlin had stressed that he wanted to be a general.

Prillaman answered by saying that a cadet's first objective should be to get an academic degree, and that there would be opportunity to gain military skill throughout the program.

But, he joked. "If you want to be a general, you have to go to a military academy. Then you'll get 60 hours a day." Prillaman spoke softly and smiled briefly as many called "Sir," except for those memorizing the session. He turned serious, though.

"The region of eight states, including the Midwest, is to be general-grade," he stated. "I frankly don't see that much difference in the performance of the soldiers today and the performance of the soldiers 27 years ago."

"Personally, would I go to war with any of them? I have and I will."

The Army must modernize and better man the force, Prillaman said. There's a need to be a better recruiter."

negatives, he said, but no one, including himself, at that time realized their importance. "Most people would never be aware that there's any value in them," he said. "I don't know why it never stirred my curiosity back then enough to get to sit down and go through all the negatives."

Lawson did make a few prints from the negatives, and as an undergraduate at SIU-C, he discussed them with Larry Hawse, assistant director of Research and Development.

Lawson, who still holds that post, referred Lawson to some of the agencies which eventually helped provide assistance and funding for the exhibit. It is not known who made the original photographs, but Lawson said he thinks most were taken by inmate photographers, because the prison would not want to pay the expense of outside photographers.

Lawson plans to continue researching the negatives by going through prison records and hopes to establish more precise dating and identification of the photos.

The exhibit will remain at the University Museum through Feb. 13. It will eventually go on tour throughout the country, though no definite dates or locations have been set.

The exhibit received funding from the SIU Board of Trustees, the Illinois Humanities Council, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency located in Washington D.C.

deficit in modern equipment and manpower, he said. "I'm not sitting here advocating the draft as the solution to manpower problems," he said. "A draft might solve a few and probably create others."

Do we need the draft?

"I'd be the last person to answer that. It's a national policy decision," he said. Regarding current international situations that might call for a draft, Prillaman said, "I wouldn't even try to speculate. The world is a very dangerous place right now. You can look around the world and see the danger spots."

Prillaman's own rise to the position of general was, he mused, "10 percent ability and 90 percent luck."

"I made my decision of what I wanted to do when I was a sophomore in high school. I really did," he said.

Does he still aspire to be a general?

"Oh, yes!"

Track resurfacing stalled by weather

Resurfacing of the track at McAndrew Stadium has finally come down to waiting three months for the weather to maintain at least 50 degree temperatures, and will also require a two week span when it cannot be used, according to the man in charge of the project. Duane Schroeder, SIUC site planner, said the work will include applying a rubberized material to the existing track, removing and replacing bad areas, cutting away some of the curb so the track will drain better and then painting new lines.

"May is probably the earliest we can start, but it really depends on the weather," Schroeder said. "We could actually resurface today because of the exceptional weather, but cold weather blast could come down from Canada tomorrow and ruin the whole thing.

"So we don't want to rush into anything, it is just to big of a project to rush into."

He set the cost of the project at "about $40,000," which is pothole-marked with holes, drainage, cracks and grass growing out of them. "It has been a big problem for men's track teams," he said.

Hartzog said the resurfacing was started in May and was completed in July, a little more than a month later.

"That doesn't bother us too much, because SIU-C again will have to dump off passes at the last second to Williams Public High School," Hartzog said.

It has bothered him for the past five years because fewer and fewer teams will come to SIU-C due to the poor conditions.

Last year Hartzog was quoted as saying, "we have the worst university track in America."

Perhaps Hartzog was a bit too critical when he said that. The track is improved and could be even more improved if the weather would cooperate.

Freshman leads in assists

Deanne "D.D." Plab isn't quite sure how she picked up her initialized nickname. But one thing's for sure, "double dribble" isn't very applicable to the freshman point guard of the Saluki women's basketball team. At 5-7, D.D. is becoming a ball handler and passer supreme.

She grew up near Scott Air Force Base, which is between Belleville and Mascoutah. At Mascoutah High School, she was a one-player show, scoring 1,392 points in a four-year span. She basically did everything.

"I was pretty much a high point guard, more like a forward," Plab said as she sat in the Neely Hall lobby. "We had a pretty small team, and I had a lot of responsibility.

"The scope of her responsibilities for the Salukis, however, has been scaled down. Although she was considered big at Mascoutah, her size is not a factor in SIUC's defensive coordinator for SIUC. She has enough quickness to penetrate the lane for driving layups, but also has connaît a passing ability that allows her to dump off passes at the last second to a wide-open teammate.

"I've always liked making a pass, as long as it is not a charging pass," Plab said. "But other ways, our winnability is the most important thing.

Being one of seven freshmen to join the Salukis this season, Plab is well aware of the inexperience and lack of familiarity with new teammates has and a hand in SIUC's 83-7 record.

"I think as everyone gets older, we'll get more confidence," Plab said. "The lack of confidence has been one of our biggest problems this season."
Gas, fuel oil controls lifted by Reagan order

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan ordered the immediate lifting Wednesday of all federal price and allocation controls on gasoline and fuel oil - a multi-billion-dollar decision that will hit consumers in the pocketbook.

Reagan signed an executive order eliminating the nine-year-old ceilings on U.S. oil production and marketing that were to expire Sept. 30.

The president's action will allow oil companies to raise prices as high as the market will bear but some analysts say gasoline pump prices may go up as much as 10 cents.

"Ending controls is a positive first step toward a balanced energy policy," Reagan said. "This program free of arbitrary and counterproductive constraints will help us to achieve the policy goals of prudent conservation and vigorous domestic production."

Reagan said some minor portion of the current regulatory program will not expire until March 31, providing for orderly termination of petroleum controls.

A fact sheet distributed with Reagan's announcement said immediate decontrol "is not expected to have a major effect on the prices faced by U.S. consumers, although it might speed up the rise."

Energy Secretary James Edwards said, however, a rise in the price of gas is "in the cards." A result of decontrol would be a "tradeoff" necessary to keep gas available at the pump.

"The main thing," Edwards said in an interview Wednesday on ABC's "Good Morning America, "is that when you go to that gas pump you are going to have some gas available to you. These lines in the past are going to disappear."

Many housing staff members in student life. Smith and John Jones, not their real names, at Abbott Hall in Thompson Point, according to a University Police report. They were both freshmen.

Smith sold the bombs to another Thompson Point resident who distributed most of them to several other dormitory residents, the police report states.

On April 27, Jones was arrested, along with another SIU-C student and a student from the University of Illinois, for allegedly breaking a window of a 1978 Honda wagon bumper jack and stealing a cassette tape from the car, a University Security report said.

All three were charged with burglary, criminal damage to property and possession of an explosive compound, records show.

ACCORDING TO POLICE, several small canisters and two plastic bottles of gunpowder were found in Jones's car.

Eventually, a Jackson County Judge fined each $300, placed them under "supervision without judgement of guilt," as long as he was paid to the car owner.

On May 10, two days after that incident, one of the bombs apparently was detonated on the third floor of Felix Hall, Shaine, which was embossed in a door 20 feet from the explosion, a Felix resident said.

The bomb used that incident was traced back to Smith and Jones's room, and their bomb-making equipment and supplies were confiscated by officials from Student Affairs.

On May 13, the two students were ordered suspended from school by William Kelso, who was then assistant coordinator of student life.

THE NATURE of the disciplinary action taken last spring against two students who manufactured over two dozen small bombs in a University dormitory room has caused some housing staff members to feel that University discipline has been eroded. During finals week last spring semester two residents of a Thompson Point dormitory were suspended for manufacturing in their room at least twenty-six homemade bombs. Two of the bombs were apparently placed on campus, damaging private and University property.

The suspension, ordered by an assistant coordinator of Student Life, was changed to disciplinary probation by Vice President of Student Affairs Bruce R. Swinburne. The students were allowed to move back into their same dormitory room. One chose not to return to the University.

Many housing staff members in Thompson Point have expressed discontent with the less severe disciplinary action taken by Swinburne. They say their jobs are more difficult and frustrating now because of it.

SWINBURN was expected to meet with several housing staff members Friday, but he said that the bomb manufacturing incident and alleged disciplinary problems in the dorms will not necessarily be discussed.

Of 33 resident assistants now at Thompson Point, 12 worked there during spring semester. Nine of the 12 were asked if they were satisfied with the disciplinary action taken against the two students. All nine said they were not.

Most housing staff members asked that their names not be used, for fear of retaliation by their supervisors.

"Disciplinary procedures are shot," one staff member said. "You don't deal with recalcitrant or loud students because you think, 'Why bother?'"

IN A MEETING WITH the Thompson Point housing staff in September, Swinburne reportedly asked how many of the staff members thought his office didn't adequately support the resident assistants.

According to several staff members, the answer was a near-unanimous show of discontent.

Swinburne acknowledged that there is dissatisfaction, but he said he still believes a made the right decision in reversing the suspension in favor of disciplinary prohibition. He added, however, that he probably should have also moved the two students to separate rooms across campus, an option he said did not occur to him last May.

One staff member said resident assistants are "caught in the middle" between an administration which refuses to take firm disciplinary action and residents who take advantage of the lenency.
