Reagan wants programs given to states

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan asked Congress Tuesday night to join him in a "single, bold stroke" by transferring $1 billion worth of federal social programs — and the taxes to pay for them — from Washington, D.C., and turn them over to the states or local governments.

He said his plan, including the gradual phaseout of a federal welfare and food stamps programs, is designed "to make government accountable to the people, to make our system of federalism work again."

It is the centerpiece proposal in a State of the Union message that promised better times, "much better," if the nation continues on its course of budget and tax reductions as the administration has promised. Reagan declared he would "seek no tax increases this year and I have no intention of making proposals to that effect." He said he would try to "balance the budget on the backs of the American taxpayers," and that the administration would not propose "the policies we have in place will reduce the deficit steadily, surely and, in time, completely." He vowed to "stop the federal deficit by cutting the bridge over which he hasted must cross into Heaven, for everyone needs to be forgiven."

Atlanta teen's testimony places Williams with murdered youth

ATLANTA (AP) — A black teenager testified as a surprise witness Tuesday that Wayne B. Williams lured him into a car and sexually fondled him. He also said he once saw Williams get into bed with a young woman who was later slain.

It was the most damaging testimony to date in the Williams murder trial, now in its fifth week.

The witness, who was not identified, said he saw Williams and Lubie Geter, 14, get into a car on Jan. 2, 1981, the day Geter was last seen alive. The youth also said Williams was the man who shot a youth in Atlanta in August 1980, invited him into a car and fondled his sex organ.

"I can't forget his face," the witness said. "I remember his face, I wake up and dream at night. He makes me sick."

Williams, a 21-year-old black free-lance cameraman and self-styled talent scout, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Carter, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the 28 young blacks whose deaths were investigated by a special police task force.

Geter is one of 10 other victims whose names are being kept secret, said the task force and the governor's mansion last June 19, two days before Williams' arrest.

Williams has denied knowing any of the 28 victims. Also Tuesday, Gov. George Busbee, Georgia Bureau of Investigation Director Phil Peters and former acting U.S. Attorney Dorothy Kirkley said they have been subpeoened to testify for the defense.

The three said they did not know why they were subpoenaed. NBC News reported Williams' lawyers want to ask about a meeting at the governor's mansion last June 19, two days before Williams' arrest.

Reagan plans huge change in federal system programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans a program of close to $60 billion a year that would give the federal government more control over the nation's welfare programs.

The new program is designed to shift authority for welfare programs from the state and local governments to a new board of governors.

The first step would be to establish a federal agency to regulate and administer the new program. This agency would be set up in 1984 and would be responsible for providing Medicaid health care for the poor, at a cost of $12 billion a year. In return, the states would take over welfare and food stamp programs, costing $16.5 billion a year.

The second phase, beginning in fiscal year 1984 and running through fiscal year 1987, would transfer about 40 federally assisted programs to state and local governments.

These programs currently cost Washington about $23 billion a year.
Tax wording change proposed

Saying that "we should put the monkey on the back" of a future council, Sen. Glenn Fischer spoke for the City Council Monday night in recommending a wording change in the proposed parking garage tax ordinance.

A section of the ordinance originally said that "tax shall remain in effect for a period of five years," after which the council would make a determination as to whether the tax shall remain in effect.

Undergraduate Student USO to seat senators

Seating 23 newly-elected senators and two replacement senators will be the main order of business at the first Student Senate meeting of the fall semester at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Renaissance Room.

A bill to impeach Sen. Bill Riley, who missed three meetings during the fall semester, will be considered. The USO Constitution states that the senate must consider impeaching any senator who has three absences.

Glen Stolar, representative to the Student Advisory Committee, said that the USO Board of Directors has recommended that the senate consider the impeachment.

Alstat files for Senate race

State Sen. Wayne Alstat, R-Vergennes, entered the 9th Senate District primary race Tuesday.

The athletics program gets some good news

The SIU-C community can take heart in two refreshing, sensible decisions—except for the fact that they were made behind closed doors by the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee. The decisions, both reported to have been unanimous, were to recommend Lew Hartog as permanent men's athletics director and to maintain separate men's and women's athletics departments.

Hartog's appointment as men's director would be particularly apt. He has been associated with SIU-C's athletic program for 22 years, as track and field coach and cross country coach. He has established traditions in both sports, one which the University can rightfully be proud of.

Laboring in the shadow of the more visible football and basketball programs, Hartog has coached the Saluki track men to seven consecutive Missouri Valley Conference championships. He has helped the cross country team to finish in the top in the nation for each of the last two years. That's a brilliant record, and it speaks well of Hartog's abilities.

Hartog's familiarity with SIU-C's athletic program should be an asset in administering the men's athletics department. He knows the problems of each of its separate teams, and what their needs are. He knows from his own experience that an imported administrator might take several years to acquire.

As a successful coach, he has the respect of coaches and fans here and elsewhere. As athletics director he would not be merely a figurehead.

Just as important as these considerations, some would say more important, is the substantial financial savings to the University should the WTAO issue be put to the people. Hartog's system has operated well for years, especially in regard to the women's program, which President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne, "if it isn't broken, why are we considering fixing it?"

The Board of Trustees and groups such as the Graduate Student Council indicate no significant savings would result from a merger. There is also the danger, expressed by some segments of the student body, that a new direction might bring more attention to the women's basketball program, which has received national attention in recent years. And, it would be necessary to provide, superior leadership and guidance for the women's program.

The decision to keep the departments separate recognizes her abilities and will allow her to continue to exercise them.

Both decisions—again, except for the fact that they were made behind closed doors—were long overdue and, in my opinion, the right direction for the University and the athletic program.

Vice president of WTAO defends format change

Laurie Landgrat should be commended for accurate reporting of the WTAO update (Daily Egyptian, Jan. 29). She spoke with me and transferred the conversation into a credible story.

News Editor Bill Turley's Viewpoint is another matter. Even though he had more "dancing room" under the umbrella of Viewpoint, he missed the point of the WTAO revision.

After accurately quoting from Landgrat's news piece, Turley stated WTAO's music mission is "not to tell people what they ought to be listening to, but to give them what they want to hear," his logic, facts and meaning knowledge got twisted.

Turley then deduced that "WTAO's mission is to give listeners what they want to hear," this being a criticism of WTAO's information-gathering process. This is not accurate or true.

We do not make music choices from broad, community lists, but from research. We contact radio listeners to determine what they like now and what they are getting tired of hearing. This research guides us in our total music selections and the frequency that each is played.

Because this key point, the remainder of his Viewpoint is on shaky ground. WTAO is interested in only one thing—providing this area with the best possible FM music station.

I welcome the extensive Daily Egyptian coverage of changes in the FM station. Perhaps the SIU-C students faculty and staff will give us a chance to spend a little more time with us.

If Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and universities in the Boston area plus Vanderbilt in Nashville. WTAO's format is representative samples that the 1962 refinements on WTAO will be very well received by the SIU-C community as the broader young adult Jackson County population.

Bill Glassman, Vice President, WTAO.

Third World poverty in America

By Charles Victor Staff Writer

Old men sleeping in cardboard boxes in subways or on street corners or curled round beating vents and pigeon-poop buildings; these are sights associated with Third World countries.

Few people would dare think of these sights as common realities like Los Angeles, the glamour capital of the world, or New York, America's most famous city.

But I had a different revelation on my first day in the United States. Coming from Malaysia, I had my share of expectations, especially after seeing Russia and spending more than a week in England.

The first person I met was a hooligan, and a little later, the guy she hooked. As we sat drinking, I was stopped from throwing my half-finished drink away by a boy who downed it himself, and I watched boys scrounging the floor and ashtrays for cigarette butt as they huddled for the night.

And more happened in just the five short hours I spent waiting for a bus in Atlanta.

But there are millions of Americans who ignore those sights. Unfortunately for them, they believe the Third World poverty is just a myth.

America has about 2 million homeless living in anything from boxes to just shoes. New York City alone has 36,000 people who have no roof over their heads.

One person interviewed on the CBS television show "60 Minutes," had spent four weeks in New York City but didn't get wet when it rained. "No, I've got two boxes," he said. "One keeps the other dry for getting wet."

The big reason for such a large homeless population in this affluent country, curiously enough stems from advances in psychology. Psychologists found that rather than an illusion that people were in asylum for were really not serious enough to warrant hospitalization.

Such findings have led the American government to urge the discharge of as many patients as possible. The result? The number of patients being discharged from 550,000 to less than 150,000 in the last 20 years.

Hundreds of thousands of patients were discharged into a society that didn't know how to receive them.

Another reason for the large street population in New York City is the disappearance of traditional havens for the poor like the Single Room Occupancy homes.

Many owners of these hostels have obtained licenses and funding to convert their dilapidated properties into more profitable condominiums.

One Wall Street lawyer took up residence on behalf of the homeless. The lawyer said his job was to all who need it the bare minimum for human living—food, shelter and clothing.

But the city claims it already provides what is necessary. It should be noted that this is not enough. "City shelters are usually overcrowded and dangerously inaccessible government shelters for the homeless. However, this is not enough. "City shelters are usually overcrowded and dangerous to people."

Many social workers want a small community residences built where the homeless are. A small number of transporting these people to some unknown, impersonal institutions.

The homeless want the things that are not there. They want security, stability, "We want to be a family, not a homeless community."

"We don't want to step over people when we leave our apartment."

People in residential communities however, don't want the homeless. They want their area where a proposal was made exploded with irritation. What this comments is saying is that we do not want our children raped, we do not want our children murdered and then we do not want the problem to be corrected after the mistake has been made."

Whose fault is this tragedy, society's, or the hobo's? Society tends to categorize most of the homeless as irresponsible.

But can people be held responsible for losing jobs because of their color, for being thrown from mental institutions in a society that isn't ready for them, for being evicted from homes soon to be converted for use by a richer clientele?

This is like asking, said one social worker, these people without shoes to shine them selves on our boots.

This problem is not limited to the United World. Nor is New York City just an isolated exception in the United States. Nearly every city in the country, large or small, has a homeless population.

This country just had one of the worst homeless phases of the century. How did the homeless survive? How many died and how many more will die?"

Soviet ideologist Suslov dies

MOSCOW (AP) -- Kremlin ideologist Mikhail Andreyevich
Suslov, powerful member of the Soviet Union's ruling Politburo, had died and left a void in the aging leadership already beset by growing problems at home and abroad.

Soviet television reported Tuesday that Suslov died the previous afternoon, four days after suffering a stroke. He will be buried in Moscow's Red Square beside other famous Communists, the broadcast said.

Suslov was known in the West as a powerful but mysterious man who worked closely with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev. It is his countrymen, Suslov was the guiding ideologist of the Soviet Communist Party, which dominates every aspect of Soviet life.

"He was the second pillar of the regime," said one Western diplomat. "This must be a major shock for Brezhnev himself."

A knowledgeable Soviet source described Suslov as "an irreplaceable" member of the Kremlin leadership.

"We will see changes, but they will not come in immediately," said the Soviet spokesman. "A new executive committee, a new cabinet will be formed."

Suslov's death was not expected to bring sudden shifts in the Soviet domestic policy or its position on East-West relations.

Exhibit to preserve legacy of J. Joyce

By Doug Hettlager

The ferretyed porkbutcher folded the sausages he had snapped up with his icy fingers, and shrugging, tossed them into a minuscule sausage pink.

"Joyce," he said softly, "once basted as obscene in the United States."

In the same book, pure poetry: "Touch me. Soft eyes. Soft soft hand. I am lonely here. Or, touch me soon, now. What is that word known to all men?" I am quiet here alone. So, too, Touch me.

James Augustine Aloysius Joyce, Irish novelist and poet, was born in 1882 and died in 1941. He left behind a tremendous, if not always understood, legacy to literature, possessed in part by SIU-C.

To mark the author's 100th birthday, the Department of English is presenting "A James Joyce Centennial Celebration," to commence with the opening of an exhibit in the Special Collections Room of Morris Library Wednesday, and to close with a "JoyceFest" on Friday, a three-day event to include the film version of "Finnegans Wake." Other upcoming events include "Women by Joyce," a Calipre Stage Production Feb. 24, 25 and 26, a Joyce Film Festival on Friday at noon and 8 p.m., and "Joyce: A Work in Progress," Joyce the Artist, April 8-10.

Consisting of original material, first editions, manuscripts, letters and other Joyce memorabilia largely obtained in 1989 from the late Du Quinn anthropologist, Dr. Harley K. Crossman, the exhibit was prepared by English professor Richard Peterson, Alan M. Cohn, manager of Morris Library, and Shelley Cox, the library's rare book cataloger.

"Dubliners," "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man," "Ulysses," "Exiles" and "Finnegans Wake" are all reprinted in part in the Crossman collection. Photographs of a young Joyce and an old Dublin combine with yellowed manuscripts and letters to tell a unique story. In essence, it's one of detail.

As he grew older, his eyesight deteriorated to the point where others had to see things for him. Joyce preferred the black tree in Dublin until his apprentice class examined it to determine its species.

Joyce claimed Dublin was ever changed, it could be reconstituted by his book.

Peterson said, "Joyce felt it was important that he be actual tree."

The author probably would have appreciated the fact that on display in the exhibit is a brick supposedly taken from the house in Dublin where Leopold Bloom, one of his most popular characters, lived.

Outweighing that in monetary, if not sentimental, value, is one copy of "Ulysses" on exhibit, valued at $12,000.

A description of the items will be available in catalog form beginning Friday.

Cataloging Joyce's work is one thing; bringing it to life is quite another.

Nevertheless, Peterson hopes to do just that, utilizing his extensive knowledge of Joyce and the talents of two Theater Department faculty members, Calvin Maclean and Judith Lyons.

AT 7:00 P.M. ON FEB. 2 - JOYCE'S BIRTHDAY - IN THE MORRIS LIBRARY AUDITORIUM, PETERSON WILL DELIVER THE FIRST HARRY J. MOORE MEMORIAL LECTURE, "MOCKERS AND CELEBRANTS: JOYCE AT 100." THE LECTURE IS FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

The lecture is named in honor of the D.H. Lawrence scholar and former SIU-C English professor who died last year.

Pittsburgh band kicks out a classic

By John Amberg
WDBB Program Director

Two years ago, the Iron City Houserockers exploded onto the music scene with their debut album, "Love So Tough." It was a quiet explosion - few people had heard of them by the time their second album, "Have A Good Time. But Get Out Alive," came out.

Despite critical acclaim (Rolling Stone called the release "an American classic") the Pittsburgh-based rockers were still left in the dark. Radio stations ignored the album and it didn't sell which makes a person like myself wonder if folks knew what they were doing. It was a rock 'n roll.

The year of 1981 put my mind at rest, because with the exception of a few nightmares-on-vinyl like Meatloaf's "Dead Ringer" and REO's "Hi Infidelity," it was an excellent year for music. And who would put out an LP in that fine year but our celebrated, street-wise pals from Pittsburgh.

The year's "Iron City Houserockers" is called the "Blood On The Bricks" and it's their second album. It's in turn exhilarating, moody, intense, and unlike Meatloaf's, the guitar runs from razor sharp to searing.

Lead singer Grushecky's passionate, tough-as-nail vocals are offset by a spirited harp from visiting guitarist Steve Cropper (who also produced the album). "Be My Friend" is a segue-toned ballad in the finest Southside Johnny tradition. One can almost imagine a film of smog hanging over the blank "Watch Out." Grushecky sounds angry, almost ominous. Were his thoughts the consensus? See ROCKERS Page 8 of all blue-collar workers, the world might be in for trouble. Yet the driving beat causes the listener to wind up feeding off and liking it.

The coup de grace is the song about a young man who has no love or misguided infatuation. For his girl he drops in bed and shoots at his enemies in a bar, his mail. Crunchers' punishes the song out with such conviction, one can't help but pull for him.

In justices most of us identify with. Because these guys and girls project such a stand on the world's cultural backgrounds. What is this, however, proving death or his story? The lyrics of one of the group's songs out makes the incident appear real.

Many people will probably identify with, at least a little, most of the lyrics. Why? Because these guys am mad. Everything they see gets them hot. And they project such verve, such honesty that one can't help but pull for them.

While so many other authors are content to recycle material that made money before, the Iron City HouseRockers make an effort to take a stand on life's injustices. Reviewer's Rating - tops.

Alstat backing tough drug bill, crackdown on manufacturers

By Randy Rendfeld
Staff Writer

State Rep. Wayne Alstat, R-Vergennes, is backing a tough new bill on look-alike drugs. He thinks manufacturers know the drugs are sold on the streets as illegal stimulants.

Alstat is one of three sponsors of the legislation, requested by Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, that includes criminal penalties for drug manufacturers. The bill was introduced Jan. 13.

The bill adds tougher language to an anti-look-alike measure Fahner sought without success last year.

The new bill would prohibit the manufacture and advertising of look-alikes, provide for civil forfeiture of product and equipment, and raise the penalties for the sale and distribution of look-alikes to persons under the age of 18 to Class 2 felonies, according to a release from the state House of Representatives.

Alstat said this is to prevent them from being sold that way. The Senate has not included the bill in the original bill.

The earliest possible hearing date for the new bill would be March 22, he said, and it is not a priority, so it may not be heard by the legislature.

Alstat said the companies that manufacture look-alikes send "brochures through the mail that tell people it's okay," he said. "We want to make this law as tough as possible." Alstat said.

"This is not just a Chicago problem. It's a Chicago, Carbondale and even a Shikol Hill problem. No community is safe from these drugs. And about 20 have stopped doing business in Illinois," Fahner said. Two states, Maryland and Delaware, have now laws banning look-alikes. Several other states are considering similar measures, he said.

The danger is two-fold. Fahner said either someone could mistake too many look-alikes, not realizing the danger of too much caffeine, or they could overdose on actual amphetamines thinking they were the phony pills.

However, Fahner has had limited success in most cases because under present law he can only file suit against the manufacturers.

Under the proposed law, violation of the act would be a Class 3 felony, punishable by a sentence of two to five years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Fahner sought the bill last year but was unsuccessful. Sen. John Mattingly, R-Bloomington, and Rep. Frank Watson, R-Greenvale.

"Frank Watson ever has a letter from one manufacturer that promotes giving standards as Christmas gifts," Alstat said. "It ends, remember these products are illegal, but pot pills are in them."

At least seven deaths in Illinois have been attributed to look-alikes, and three other deaths are currently under investigation, according to the Attorney General's office.

Fahner has said 12 manufacturers' know these drugs could be taken like look-alikes, not realizing the danger of too much caffeine, or they could overdose on actual amphetamines thinking they were the phony pills.

Alstat said the bill will "stop distribution of look-alikes, and if it works, it will have a noticeable impact." He said the bill would be "really tough," and would have "enforcement strength."

The goal for the blood drive is 375 pints, according to Harold DeWeese, second vice president of volunteers at SIUC. That would call for 750 donors in two days, he said.

"We also have an excellent turnout of students," said DeWeese. "Students at SIUC can always be depended upon for a good amount of blood.

Healthy persons 17 and older can donate by first registering at the Student Center with the Red Cross. A nurse then takes the person's temperature, blood pressure and pulse, and a brief medical history.

Iron content is measured and less than a pint of blood is taken.

The energy loss might be compared to the exertion required for a half-mile walk, DeWeese said.

"We try to set a realistic goal," said DeWeese. "If we meet our quota, we'll be happy if we don't we'll be back here soon."

Simmon: weather station is needed

CAIRO — A plan to close the National Weather Service station in this town at the end of the month has drawn about 130 people to a public hearing to urge that the station remain open.

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., of the Town of Cairo, said there were time limits on the meeting Monday by telephone from Washington, D.C.

Simon said David Carle said the station is one of 18 that the Reagan Administration plans to close this April. Carle said SIU-C and has talked with John Byrne, administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which oversees the weather service, to urge that the station be kept open.

Simon said the station, which has just one employee, is important to navigation in the area and has a significant influence on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

In addition, according to Carle, Simon said the cost of keeping the station open is minimal, the area is prone to tornadoes and there is significant flash flood damage in the area. Carle said quick information is available to the public safety and for farmers.

Nuclear plant emergency comes to halt

ONTARIO, N.Y. (AP) — The emergency caused by a steam tube rupture at the R.E. Climen nuclear plant was declared at an end Tuesday as technicians worked to bring the reactor to cold shutdown.

The plant, run by Rochester Gas & Electric Corp., had been in emergency stages for 26 hours since the accident Monday morning.

The emergency is over. The situation is stable. Operators are making preparations for the cleanup of the spilled water. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said Jan Strasma, spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission: "It's the propyl phase, if you will." Official said the reactor was cooling down satisfactorily and a cold shutdown — the process of bringing the reactor's temperature below the boiling point of 212 degrees at normal pressure — was hoped for by late Tuesday or Wednesday morning.

Salukis Julie Shea and Tim Pulliam each were credited with six points without wrestling because they wrestled in the heavyweight division, but Marquette was voted Pulliam was 6-6, representative at the 177-pound weight class. The decision was left to the Saluki coach. The other Salukis didn't fare as well. Professional Ted Bessette was defeated by Marquette's Curt Lackert at a four-point major decision in the 177-pound weight class. In the 138-pound division, Western Illinois dropped the pins in a superior decision.

Newcomer Tim Knowitz received a rude welcome from Marquette Hill R. by losing a three-point decision. "Tim wrestled well for not having competed for a year and a half," Long said. Knowitz, who attended Carbondale High School, transferred to SIU after Southwestern Missouri State dropped its wrestling program. Long said his brother Steve wrestled for one of his SIU-C squads several years ago.

The Salukis will next meet Western Illinois at the Arena at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

for review. She said after the review, the committee will "polish" the proposal and submit it to Brigham and Paratore.

After the criteria are established, West plans to appoint a selection committee.

"I hope to find individuals who would be most informed to make the selection of nominees," she said.

West said the committee will differ from the men's, since current coaches will probably be included. The men's selection committee consists of athletics administrators, professors and members of the Carbondale community.

"We'll allow coaches on the committee, since women's sports was not covered with care or concern in the early years," she said.

The women's selection committee will probably rely on "various sources of information" concerning athletes from SIU-C's past, according to West.

West set May 1 as a target date for the announcement of the first group of women to be inducted into the SIU-C Hall of Fame. She said she was not sure how many women will be included in the first group of inductees.

The Hall was created in 1977 by the Lettermen's Club, Phil Coleman, Terry Erickson, Rod Essian, Larry Freeberg were the latest inductees, joining 58 other former SIU athletes in the Hall on Sept. 12, 1981.

Padres' Smith rejects trade to Cardinals

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ozzie Smith, San Diego's All-Star shortstop, rejected a trade to St. Louis Tuesday, and expressed hopes that a long-term agreement can still be reached with the Padres.

Smith has blocked the deal that would have sent Cardinals All-Star shortstop Gary Templeton to San Diego. San Diego and St. Louis officials had announced a four-player trade at the winter meetings in which it was understood that the shortstops would change clubs.

Smith said he and his attorney, Ed Gottlieb, sought $1.3 million a year from the Cardinals.
