Nation's priorities upset, Democratic leader says

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright, in a pre-emptive Democratic strike at President Reagan's State of the Union address Tuesday, said the nation's priorities are "cruelly deranged" at the White House, with rising military spending draining human resources.

And former President Gerald Ford urged Reagan to stretch out the defense budget and impose new taxes to stem the deficits approaching $200 billion for years to come.

The budget Reagan will send to Congress next week is expected to call for a boost in Pentagon spending of about 14 percent, with projected federal deficit of $180 billion, in fiscal 1985, beginning Oct. 1.

Businessman criticizes city for conference center woes

By Bruce Kirkham

The troubled-plagued and now dormant downtown conference center project has created problems not only for city officials, but for businessmen in the downtown area displaced by the plans as well.

James Cleland, owner of the Southern Illinois Gem Co. at 800 W. Walnut St., said the conference Center City would no longer be as accessible to the city's.

The city bailed out an option to purchase Cleland's property in December after allowing purchase options on conference center site properties to expire. The city did express to Cleland an interest in purchasing the property at a later date when new downtown development plans are drafted.

However, Cleland had already proceeded with plans to purchase the former home of the Del Fass tavern on South Illinois Avenue in 1983, with hopes to open for business in 2001.
State loses $2.1 billion in funds from Reagan's budget cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Illinois has lost $2.1 billion in federal aid through President Reagan's domestic budget cuts over the last three years, a major government employee union said Tuesday.

The loss amounted to $18 billion for each Illinois resident, the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said in a "State of the States" report.

A spokesman for House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said Republicans "would probably quarrel with AFSCME's figures because they don't reflect changes in other programs that benefit the states."

The spokesman, Mike Johnson, also said the list fails to "reflect that individual tax cuts put more money into the states and that means even more jobs and more economic growth in the states."

According to the report, Illinois ranked second in the nation in losses from the special milk program, which provides milk to children through schools and Head Start, the union said. It put that loss at $143.5 million.

Illinois ranked seventh in the nation in losses in community development block grant funds, with $50.1 million, and eighth in losses in mass transit aid, with $333.2 million.

"The president's domestic spending cuts are detrimental to our nation's economic competitiveness and a barrier to America's ability to meet basic human needs and provide a decent quality of life to all," the union's international president, Gerald W. McEntire, said in a statement attached to the report.

The report, prepared for the union by Fiscal Planning Services Inc., also found losses for each state resident of $124 for Connecticut, $311 for California, $225 for Massachusetts, $233 for Michigan, $192 for New Jersey, $199 for Ohio, $186 for Pennsylvania and $110 for Texas. Giant California lost $151 per person and New York residents lost $250.

"AFSCME has not factored into its list what huge budget deficits at the federal level do to the economy at the state level," said Michel's spokesman.

Actually, McEntire specifically criticized Reagan's defense-spawned deficits. "Our answer to that is that no area of the budget is sacred - at least, not to Bob Michel," Johnson said.

Sheryl King, coordinator of the horse program, said the 15 horses at the Illinois Horsemanship Education Center at Herrin, which were removed from a Chester farmer's fields last week after the IHAHS learned the herd was being neglected, are a "wonderful start."

"A majority of the bids were from people in Illinois, but we also received bids from people wanting to adopt the horses," she said. "Students will be taught just about everything involved in the proper management of a horse," she said.

The 15 horses at the horse center are from a herd of 32 which were removed from a Chester farmer's fields last week after the IHAHS learned the herd was being neglected. The remaining 17 horses were taken to the Egyptian Stables in Herrin, and the previous owner of the horses was later fined $350 for violations of the Illinois Care for Animals Act.

Ewing said the IHAHS received over 200 sealed bids from people wanting to adopt the horses.

"A majority of the bids were from people in Illinois, but we also received bids from people in Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, and we even received some calls from Ohio," she said.

After a week of rehabilitation, the 32 sick Arabian horses over the last three years, a by the Illinois Department of Agriculture said Tuesday a herd will soon have permanent homes - of which will be the SIU-C horse center.

Donna Ewing, president of the Illinois Horsemanship Education Center at Herrin, said five of the 15 horses at the SIU-C horse center will remain with the University "in view of the fact that they donated the use of their stables."

down the drain if and when the city decides on a new project.

Since the inception of plans to build the conference center and accompanying parking garage, the city purchased several downtown properties and financially assisted businesses have since relocated.

"This has given the area a blighted and vacant appearance," Cleland said. Many of the buildings in the area sit empty with "out of business" signs attached to doors and windows.

"We cannot practically sell gold and diamond jewelry in this derelict area. Our renters have been forced out leaving us with reduced incomes. The new property is now merely a financial drain. The situation grows worse with time as our buildings ages without needed repairs and trade in the area decreases," he said.

"This situation was artificially created by a government enterprise. We are the recipient of government enterprise. We are the recipient of

Dixon and Community Development Director Dan Hoye last "unsuccessful."

"The government did this. It only follows that the government is morally and ethically obligated to bail out those that it hurt," said Cleland met with City Manager William Dixon and Community Development Director Dan Hoye last week, and he called the meeting "unsuccessful."

Dixon said Tuesday that he was sympathetic with Cleland's position, but that "whether the city is fully responsible for his problem is open to discussion."

"I don't think the city is fully responsible for his problem, but the city is partly responsible," Dixon said.

The city has three available options for downtown development, Dixon said. The city can pursue the conference center plan with previous developer Stan Hoye, can pursue the conference center plan with a new developer or can pursue a new development project, he said.

Dixon said that there are no new developments to report on the downtown area, but did say that Hoye was still interested in the project.

Cleland told the council that the downtown area has already seen one phase of development in recent past.

"Nine years ago I purchased a piece of property in this area and with my own labor and by own money developed a building into a unique enterprise that has supported myself, my family and other satellite businesses within it."

"Many other properties at this time underwent upgrading and the area prospered. Subsequently, the federal government granted the City of Carbondale the funds to purchase and demolish this two-block area on the prospect of 're-developing','" he said.

Cleland said that besides his own business, his plans for the Das Fass location include three additional craft-oriented businesses in what he called a "mini-mall" arrangement.

The city council authorized the payment of $50,000 to Cleland at its Jan. 16 meeting as reimbursement for legal fees incurred in suits against the city to prevent a quick take over of the "mini-mall" arrangement by the city in December 1981.

The ordinance, which would allow the city to take control of property and determine financial compensation at later time, was eventually declared unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The council authorized the solicitation of bids to demolish four city-owned buildings in the downtown area at its Jan. 16 meeting.

Child care council official says preschool important

By Paula Finlay

Staff Writer

One of every 10 persons in the United States lives in poverty. One of eight drops out of high school.

But the outlook for children who attend preschool is better than for those who don't. That was the message given to the City Council Monday by Evelyn Hayes-Koine, president of the Emma C. Hayes Comprehensive Child Care Parent Council.

According to information in a filmstrip she presented, children who attend preschool do better on tests than children who don't. They have greater motivation, require less special education and have lower delinquency rates.

Day care programs benefit not only the children, but their parents and society as a whole.

For every dollar spent on preschool programs, $4 is returned to society in reduced costs of legal services and special education and in increased earnings, because kids who attend preschool are less likely to become delinquent and more likely to do well in school and find jobs, the filmstrip said.

A survey conducted by the parent council showed that 91 percent of the parents whose children attend the Ema C. Hayes Center said they could not maintain their standards of living if the center closed.

Thompson to visit Carbondale

Gov. James Thompson will announce whether he will ask for an extension of the temporary state tax increase at a news conference at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at the Southern Illinois Airport.

Thompson's Carbondale stop is one of a series of scheduled news conferences around the state Wednesday.

Last June, a temporary 20 percent increase in personal and corporate income taxes was instituted by Thompson and the General Assembly to prevent a fiscal crisis. The one-year tax increase will expire June 30.

Council should follow CAC lead on housing

The Deplorable State of rental housing in Carbondale, as revealed in recent columns, reflects the fact that decent dwellings and irresponsible tenants are unavailable in a university-oriented community.

Jackson's Advisory Committee thought differently.

After two years of work and hundreds of hours of research, interviews and public hearings, the CAC this week released a report on rental housing in Carbondale. The committee's findings, which will be presented to the City Council Monday, are extremely enlightening.

Nearly 36 percent of Carbondale's residents are renters who are forced to search for housing in a market where the vacancy rate is not high enough to feel that they can consider housing as something other than a simple red herring argument.

The CAC report contains several good recommendations. It suggests that the city increase code enforcement efforts and attempt to inspect each rental unit at least once every two years.

The report calls for stricter enforcement of city noise and pet ordinances. That should keep the tenants bearable and make the neighbors happier.

The report also recomends that the city and University make efforts to familiarize students about their rights and responsibilities as renters.

The CAC's report doesn't provide all the answers, but it doesn't claim that it does. Many problems, such as how to enforce single-family zoning ordinances, remain without response.

But the CAC has provided a good starting point for addressing a problem that has existed in this city for many years.

The City Council, which will take formal action on the report next week, indicated its support for the recommendations.

The agenda for Carbondale's government and mandatory code inspections constitute excessive interference by the government, some students with CAC conclude that enforcement of the noise and party ordinances infringe upon their pursuit of happiness.

The CAC may be too soft on itself and do what's right for the community. In this case, that means inspecting housing life in Carbondale by adopting the CAC's recommendations.

The CAC members, who volunteered their time, have done the same and done it well. The council seems prepared to do the same.

Will's column a collection of garbage...

I am often amazed at what I read in editorial columns, but this time the nonsense of George F. Will has reached a new low. He describes the press reaction to presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. Will helped create this type of campaign with racist garbage.

The summaries of six or seven of Jackson's "mistakes" interwoven with red herrings and earlier comments by previous Democratic administration officials. The summaries are followed by a paragraph of right-wing rhetoric which, in a somewhat predictable manner, we find Will's thesis that Jackson doesn't belong in a presidential campaign because of a fear of exacerbating racial issues.

Fortunately, Will chose to be a presidential candidate. I do not refer to his race, but rather his attitudes and strategies. His basic attitude is a feeling of comfort with the segregation of the people of the world which we might call the American Way. This is an applicable stance for any contender in international leadership roles, but it is not in the welfare of everyone if we are to read through most of world war or the ubiquitous practice of stealing the poor to support the rich.

I would also like to comment on Jackson's "column," Will rhetoric and the press's attitude toward Jackson's "mistakes." Will says Jackson's first "mistake" is that he feels "ashamed" with the Syrians. I believe that Will has written articles about Jackson that did two things. He expressed compassion for an underdog. Second, he declassified a political powder keg, the central issue of which was the release of an agent of an exploitative super power.

George F. Will's syndicated column in the Jan. 17 Daily Egyptian was a regretted reminder of the lingering strength of racial stereotypes in our society. In criticizing Jesse Jackson, Will stooped to an unpleasantly familiar racist argument. He attributes four qualities to Jackson which could serve as a basis for some real hope of exercising presidential responsibility.

First, according to Will, is comic; in Will's words, when listening to Jackson speak, "the comedy is irresistible." Second, Jackson does not (or cannot) think: "Jackson is not thinking, he is just repeating the lines of his script." Third, Jackson's foreign affairs policy is "unsafe" because he is handling important issues the way a child handles silverware. Fourth, Jackson's campaign is not "tough" because his attitude is "irrelevant" to the real hope of exercising presidential responsibility.

That is the American media depiction black males as thoughtless, carreir, childlike, and immature. It is not surprising if these men had political aspirations! Will is using a syndicated column to substitute the names Reagan for Jackson without any real understanding of the people."

They can defeat a superior enemy. Vietnam is an example of that.

In Managua, films about Vietnam were shown recently on television. Viewers were horrified "because it showed what barbarity was visited upon the Vietnamese by the United States." For Guarisco, the fear of an American invasion is a real psychological problem. They tell us of suffering people because they couldn't feed or house the poor must be diverted for war preparation. Vietnam, a poor region, organized as Veterans Against Intervention in Central America, deserves to be one of the major voices in the debate of the American role in Central America. They are political with programs not based on geopolitical agendas. They don't serve on presidential commissions.

The Sandinista government has flaws and has no God's eye, but it has shown more respect for human rights than the military governments of Salvadorans, Guatemalans and Honduran governments so few veterans traveled to Nicaragua. A man who has experienced practically all of the aspects of performing arts - directing, producing, acting, singing, and dancing - is visiting SIUC to share his wisdom with theater students and faculty.

Cash Baxter was invited to campus by theater professor Alfred Straussman to develop a musical-comedy concept.

Baxter has many experiences to share with students and faculty, with such accomplishments as winning the prestigious Tony Award for his direction of "The Sound of Music" in 1959 and being involved in various regional theaters in the Northeast for the past 20 years.

The few lines on Baxter's forehead do not reveal his 46 years, but his accomplishments do. He has packed the last 34 years with visiting theatrical and filmmaking experience to complete a five-page resume - but he keeps it down to one.

Alternating between smoking Kent cigarettes and adjusting his black stick, Baxter talked about some of his ventures.

He began his career in acting, but says that since since he was 12 years old and living in Weslaco, Texas, he intended to produce and direct some day. Just how he was inspired for such pursuits is not clear.

"How I became inspired is a mystery to me today. Nobody in my family was involved in theater. It was something I discovered through high school theater," he said.

Upon graduation from Southern Methodist University in 1959, he fulfilled his ROTC commission by entering the military, where he learned about filmmaking. He produced and directed more than 100 films while in the service, the most memorable being the "Bitter Wall Affair."

"It was tough times," Baxter said, with his only somber expression of the interview, "I had never seen anyone die before for their beliefs and freedoms - people literally trying to escape from their respective countries. It's not anything I should soon forget."

Once back in the United States, he pursued an education in acting in order to understand the whole theater experience, he said. The singing, dancing and acting became a singer and dancer and soon became a member of Thesee Baxter's group, the Terry Times, with whom he toured night clubs and tourist areas around the country. The group later appeared on the Ed Sullivan show.

After 10 years of performing experience, he was able to direct to directing around 1970. He never had the idea that his pursuits would lead him to Tokyo to direct a $2 million production of "The Sound of Music" 10 years later.

His Tokyo connection was secured from the most reputable source for the production, Richard Rodgers, who co-wrote the musical with Oscar Hammerstein. "I had been acquainted with Rodgers for some years. One day his secretary called me and asked if I would be interested in such a thing. I sort of felt as if I was seasoned to have an interview with Togo International."

Soon he was aboard Japan Air Lines heading for Tokyo, which had an experience in itself. He said he had never been there before and could not speak a word of Japanese. "The excitement was that - we were, displaced Texan in tokyo - a non-Christian country - teaching Japanese people the history of the European war in which they were playing Austrian nuns," he chuckled. "It was a fascinating experience.

"The singing quality was absolutely tops, and maybe some of the best singing I've had in any musical. I was expecting a very nasal sound, but much to my surprise, the Japanese people really adore western singing."

Baxter said American musicals are very popular there and are regarded as a new art form.

The production toured three cities and was awarded the Chunichi Theater Award for his direction. But the Tokyo production isn't the only thing Baxter can boast about, even though he tries to keep a sense of modesty.

He was a pioneer in convincing dinner theater owners to invest enough money to bring stars into that format of performing art. He was the first producer-director to bring an Academy Award winner to the dinner theater stage - Celeste Holm in a one-woman show, "Celeste Holm, With Love and Laughter."

In addition to theater, he has applied his directing technique to a feature film, "The List."
A federal Pentox Public Relations agency has begun a two-week-long staff recruitment search to gain 30 members interested in writing and rewriting, according to Judi Mills, director of the agency.

Pyramid Public Relations, begun three years ago to "help students majoring in marketing, commercial graphics, photography and journalism, Mills said attributes needed to join the agency's staff are an interest in public relations promotion and the abilities and skills needed to execute projects and events. Pyramid's accounts include SIU-C's Student Employee Assistance Programs, Touch of Nature Environmental Center and the Carbondale Farmers' Market. It recently began a joint project with the Student Advertising Agency to work for the Carbondale Senior Citizens Association. Mills said Pyramid has restructured its staffing patterns for greater efficiency and increased its criteria for account executives. Accounts are handled through a team approach, she said, and account executives serve in the coordination, planning and leadership roles. Other account team members specialize in some production or promotion aspect of the overall public relations campaign. The agency does not charge its clients, but it receives the city's 113,000 high school students on the morallity of war and military service.

Leighton acknowledged that school boards have "broad discretion" in deciding ideas can be presented in schools, but said this discretion must be exercised in a manner that comports with the imperative of the First Amendment.

"Once a school opens its doors to outside groups, it must do so under principles that are constitutionally valid," Leighton said in a five-page opinion signed Tuesday.

Unification Church to protest against Chicago prostitution

CHICAGO (AP) — Among the strippers on the Near North night club scene Wednesday night will be the forces of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church.

They hope to do what the police have never quite succeeded in accomplishing — stopping prostitution. "Indecency and prostitution today represent a moral and spiritual cancer in America which can and must be stopped by all men and women of conscience," said Michael Jenkins, Midwest commander of the Unification movement's International One World Crusade.

And some "about 50 to 70" of Moon's followers will march from one strip bar, which has been raided repeatedly by police, to another, familiar to vice detectives, said church spokesman David Caprara. "They've raised those places 80 times in the last two years," Caprara said, "but they always come in with high-powered lawyers and get off."

The march is to draw public attention to this problem and to "raise a moral outcry," said Jenkins.

Jaye Schroeder, a spokesman for the police department, said the police need no help from outside groups in their efforts.

Local bishop chosen for new duties

BOSTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II, starting a series of appointments to reshape the U.S. Catholic Church, reached into rural Missouri Tuesday to find a new bishop for Benton, Bernard Law, orthodoxy in doctrine but active in relations between races and faiths.

Law, 52, bishop of 32,000 Catholics in the Springfield-Cape Girardeau Diocese in the largely Protestant cattle and farm country of the Missouri Ozarks, was named spiritual leader of the nation's third-largest Catholic archdiocese. He succeeds Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, who died last fall.

A Harvard graduate, Law made his mark as a civil rights leader in Mississippi in the 1960s and has been in the forefront of the Catholic church's efforts to embrace Episcopal priests.

With his ability to speak Spanish, Law is expected to help unify the blacks, Hispanics, Irish and Italians who make up the bulk of 2 million Catholics in the Boston archdiocese.

"While the archdiocese is my primary responsibility, I look forward to working with the leaders of other Christian communities, Jewish religious leaders, and public officials of the Boston area as together we serve the common good," Law said.

Asked how he wants to be received in Boston, Law replied, "I come as a man of faith, a deep faith. I also come as a man of hope. I know it's 1984, but I think George Orwell was wrong." Plans call for his installation in Boston's Cathedral of the Holy Cross on March 22.

Medeiros had spoken quietly but firmly for social and racial justice, and led opposition to the violence against school busing in Boston. During his 13-year tenure, Medeiros also paid off part of the reported $42 million debt of the diocese by selling surplus property.

John Paul also must fill a vacancy in the New York archdiocese, and the archbishops of Los Angeles and Philadelphia will retire soon.

"If people were expecting a conservative, they didn't get one. If they were expecting a highly liberal one they didn't get one," said Monsignor Francis Lally, archbishop of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops in Washington who knows Law personally.

"He is orthodox in his faith but progressive. In this application of the gospel to social problems and the needs of today," said Msgr. Edward O'Donnell, vicar general of the St. Louis archdiocese.

A German textbook suggests that President Kennedy was assassinated in the course of nationwide racist disorders—presumably at the hands of a black fanatic according to Donald S. Detwiler, SIU-C history professor.

German students reading this misinformation will get a false impression of the United States, said Detwiler, and many Germans may think blacks are an inaccu rate job when it comes to explaining American history.

Detwiler, an authority on German history, has put his concerns into work. For the last four years Detwiler has worked with other Americans on the SIU-C-U.S. International Communication Agency Germany and American History Textbook Project.

The project team includes his wife, Lisa, a researcher in the SIU-C History Department and John Anthony Scott, professor at Rutgers University School of Law in Newark, N.J.

The project was designed to do a comprehensive study of German and American history textbooks and to try to identify misrepresentations and inaccuracies in them.

The SIU-C-based project was financed by the German government. In mid-1979, a similar project was begun in Germany by the Braunschweig Institute for International Textbooks and the Bundesministerium fuer Bildung und Forschung, Bonn. Four joint conferences were held in three years to analyze textbooks and to formulate recommendations on the treatment of history in both countries.

Life imitates art
Charcoal drawings of nude figures are part of an exhibit being seen by senior art student David Ryan on display through Friday in the Vergette Gallery, Allyn Building, Ryan, whose show opened Monday night, said his charcoal works are inspired by artist Egon Schiele. Landscape paintings of Southern Illinois scenes are also on display.

Rice Lake area strip mine plan rejected twice

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - A second mine agency on Thursday rejected a proposal to strip mine the Rice Lake Conservation Area in west central Illinois, virtually closing the door to any mining there in the near future.

The state Department of Mines and Minerals said the area is unsuitable for mining until additional historical and wildlife studies are completed. One of those research projects - a study of bald eagle nesting - would take five years to finish.

The Freeman United Coal Mining Co. had proposed drilling the lake and mining the area. However, the company dropped those plans about 2 years ago.

The mining proposal had been rejected last fall by the Illinois Department of Conservation. The plan was opposed by environmentalists who argued the conservation area is a prime nesting area for eagles.

Candidate to outline stand on education

P.L. Parr, Democratic candidate for the 8th District state senate seat, will outline his positions on public education at 2 p.m. Friday in the Illinois Room of the Student Center.

Parr, a Union County farmer, is seeking the seat held by Kenneth Burbee of Makanda, who is running for U.S. Congress.

His opponents for the Democratic nomination are Bill Wheelley of Makanda, Mayor Sidney Appleton of Murphysboro and Randolph County Clerk Gary McClure of Chester.

Increased 1983 TV viewing breaks record for sixth year

NEW YORK (AP) - America's television fixation reached an all-time high in 1983, with average daily viewing per household breaking the seven-hour mark.

A Nielsen's numbers revealed that TV watching per home hit a new high - an average of seven hours, two minutes, an increase of 14 minutes over 1982's record.

It was a year that featured the top-rated "M.A.S.H." finale, two record ABC mini-series, increased cable use and one controversial survey saying viewers were watching more but paid less attention.

This, as the sixth straight year of record-setting viewing, and the 14-minute increase tied 1964 for the biggest rise ever.

Network ratings stabilized after a period of decline, while overall viewing for independent and cable stations increased.

Viewing for 1983 was up every month, except for January, although the seven-hour, 36 minute consumption level for January 1983 turned out to be the year's highest monthly average.

In comparison, January 1982 had an average of seven hours, 47 minutes.

February, another cold month when the nation hibernates around the TV set, ranked second in 1983 with an average of seven hours, 31 minutes.

The low consumption level, six hours, 23 minutes, came in both June and July.

GPSC to study campus alcohol promotion

Resolutions about alcoholic beverage company sponsorship of campus activities, and proposed increases in University Housing rates and the Student Activity Fee will be considered by the Graduate and Professional Student Council at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center.

The GPSC will also consider a resolution proposing a campus monorail transit system, funding requests for a voter registration drive and a scholarship for undergraduate international students.

GPSC will discuss recommendations by the American College Personnel Association on alcohol promotion on campus. A resolution urges the adoption of 11 guidelines as a "realistic policy to govern alcohol marketing practices on college campuses."

The guidelines propose that alcohol not be given away in contests, that alcoholic beverage companies support alcohol education programs and that University officials be consulted about advertising in campus media and promotional materials and events.

GPSC's Dec. 7 meeting ended when a quorum call failed to gain enough votes to continue business.

Steadiness marks diving trio

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

A potent diving trio gives Soviet diving Coach Gustus Golden and the men’s swimming team an edge at meets. Nigel Stanton, Tom Westland and Jim Watson are a mark of consistency on the springboards, which is “the secret to the sport,” Golden said.

“I’ve come to count on those three guys and their performances,” Golden said. “I know in every meet that they’ll perform well and place on the one- and three-meter boards.”

Stanton, a sophomore from Ware, England, is Golden’s star on the three-meter springboard. At the Gaels at B.U.C., Stanton was the Senior National Champion on the one-meter Kingdom on the one- and three-meter boards and the 16-meter platform. He was also fourth at the Common Wealth Games, 147.66 points, in the men’s championships and he qualified for the 1980 NCAA championships on the one-meter board.

Golden said Stanton has a good chance early in January. It’s understandable. Nobody wanted to see him injured and miss the Olympics when they’re so close.

Do you believe in miracles? You’d better if you’re hoping for another gold medal from the U.S. hockey team at the Olympics.

“The Olympic hockey fan, the one who tunes in (only) every four years to watch the U.S. team, is expecting us to win it again,” said Coach Lou Vairo. “But two weeks after the Olympics, they’ll forget about 1980.”

“The knowledgeable fans understand the odds against us. We’re going there ever as the defending champions and they’re leading up for us. But we’re also going over there as heavy underdogs.”

Vairo coaches the youngest U.S. team ever, with an average age of 20.5. The team is built on speed, defensive mobility, conditioning and experience, but is short on experience, returning only captain Phil Verbeek from his Harvard days — sidelined with a broken wrist from Herb Brooks’ 1980 Olympic champions.

“I think they’ve been anxious to get to the Games, ever since the series with the Soviet Siberian team, which Team USA won 3-2-1),” Vairo said. “They were looking past a lot of the games early in January. It’s understandable. Nobody wanted to see themselves injured and miss the Olympics when they’re so close.”

the event for the team as well as myself. If I screw up, I have to wait until the next meet to redeem myself.

Other than his one performance, Van Winkle tries to encourage the rest of his team from the bench.

"I try to cheer a lot," Voss said, "regardless on how they perform.

Voss practices close to three hours a day, seven days a week. During practice, he tries to help his team.

"As the youngest in a family of five girls and three boys growing up, I learned to be tough," Herb said. "My two brothers, Mike and Brian, were both gymnasts.

Voss and his wife, Mary Ann, were married last summer. Mary Ann is a grad student in recreation. He attributes a lot of his success to the family he grew up in.

"She's my anchor," Voss explained. "She keeps me in school and keeps me stable.

Voss said the most memorable experience he had was on the pommel horse at the NCAA championships last spring where he compiled a 9.65 for his 11th place finish.

"It was the most pressure I have ever felt in a meet," Voss said.

Comeback, the balance beam event will not look as bleak to the Saluki squad. SIC suffered a serious setback last week when beam specialist Mary Runck broke her foot in Thursday's practice. She will be lost to the Salukis for an indefinite time.

Runck would have been able to post a 9.3 or 9.4 score Monday, Vogel said, if "she turned in her routine." That type of score would have been able to win the beam event and give the Salukis an extra 0.8 to 0.9 points after dropping a 6.5 mark.

SIC lost by just 0.56 points.

With the Jacksonville State squad on the road since Friday, "we're a little tired from our traveling," Harskamp said.

SIC will find out what it feels like to perform in back-to-back road meets this weekend. After a meet at the University of Illinois-Chicago Saturday, the Salukis will travel to Northern Illinois Sunday.

"It would be tempting to grab a girl with a great set of breasts, but I try not to think about it," Herb said.

"I honestly feel that if you work at it, you can do it," he said.

"If I concentrate on my floor exercise, I can be on the beam," he added.

"I think I'll have to work on my dismount," Herb said.

Herb said he would have to work on his floor routine.

"I think I've done it before," Herb said.

Sims’ trial begins Wednesday to decide on a valid contract

DETOUR (AP) — The trial to determine where Billy Sims will continue his professional football career begins in federal court Wednesday with franchise in rival leagues claiming his services.

U.S. District Judge Robert E. DeMasco will decide whether Sims continues to play for the Detroit Lions of the National Football League or moves to the Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League. The brilliant running back has signed five-year contracts with each.

Sims signed a $3.5 million contract with the Gamblers on July 1 and an amended agreement Nov. 12. The USFL team said he got $197,948 in July as part of a $1 million signing bonus. The Gamblers said he also signed a $1.5 million pact with the Lions Dec. 16, that team said.

Suit was filed in various courts both in Michigan and in Texas, but they eventually landed in federal court at the request of all parties because of geographical diversity of the principals.

The basic suit has been split into two parts.

Women gymnasts raise score, but fall to Jacksonville State

True to Saluki Coach Herb Vogel's prediction, the women's gymnastics squad scored higher Monday night than what it did in its opening meet Saturday, but a meet-ending injury crippled Vogel's team, as it lost to Jacksonville State at the Arena.

The Gamecocks, after finishing second two years ago in the Division II national championship and taking fifth last year, are a top contender for the title this year. They outscored the Salukis, 64.8, by almost two points in the meet's last event, the floor exercise, and won by an almost identical margin.

Although the Salukis increased their score by nearly 11/2 points from their disappointing performance at the Missouri Quad, they suffered a major blow in the process. Saluki all-arounder Gina Hey was forced to leave the meet with pulled ligaments in her left ankle after her dismount from the uneven parallel bars. Hey had scored 8.85 on both the floor exercise and vault and on the bars.

Hey said she could have continued, but Vogel said he did not want to risk any more injury to the ankle. She has missed the past three meets with two novels scheduled over the upcoming weekend.

Vogel said any injury to the ankle could mean the end of her season.

Jacksonville State outscored the Salukis, 112.45, in the balance beam, led by Marilyn Hanssler, who scored a 9.5. Vogel scored 9.25 and 9.10 to lead their squad.

Pam Turner and Michelle Spillman helped save the Salukis from what could have been a disastrous floor exercise. Turner started the meet with a 9.5, followed by 9.3 on the floor exercise, with a school record and Spillman scored 9.1.

Hanssler, doing a "super job" this year according to Gamecock Coach Margaret Calcott, Dillard, a two-time All-American and has the highest average score this year in Division II. She won four-around honors Monday night with a score of 38.55. Spillman took second with a 38.45 mark, while Turner rebounded from a poor performance at the Missouri Quad to post a 38.25, good for third place.

Turner showed she would be a force to contend with, posting a 9.65 on the vault, the first event of the night, and shared first place honors with Hanssler. In third and fourth were Spillman, 8.9, and Dewe, 8.85.

Spillman claimed first place on the uneven parallel bars with a 9.5, edging out Hanssler, who scored 9.4. Turner scored 9.3 for third while Jacksonville State's Jennifer McFarland scored 9.6. Hanssler and teammate Lisa Palk started the Gamecock comeback by claiming first and second on the balance beam with scores of 9.3 and 9.0. Jacksonville State outscored the Salukis by 1.2 points on the beam to pull to within 1.35 points heading into the floor exercise.

Maggie Nifidier, bouncing back from a shoulder injury, led the Salukis with a 9.5 on the beam for third place overall, with Spillman right behind at 9.25. "Maggie is doing as well this week as some of the gymnasts who have been working all year long doing," Vogel said.

Nifidier fell off the beam while trying to mount it and would have scored a 9.5 if she would have been able to "hit her mount." Vogel said.

Although Vogel said Nifidier's comeback is "facing well, injuries have been one of his main concerns this season. Injuries left the squad without depth Monday on the floor exercise, an area that is not a Saluki strong point to begin with.

Super Bowl ties year's highest television ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams' Super Bowl triumph gave CBS a victory of its own, tying "The Day After" for the year's best ratings and putting the network back in first place in the Nielsen figures.

CBS garnered a rating of 46.6 and an audience of 52 percent for the hour and 20 minutes of the game that spilled into prime time Sunday when the Rams defeated the Washington Redskins 38-9.

The seventh-highest show of the week that ended Jan. 22 was CBS's Super Bowl Post Game Show, which got a rating of 33.3.

The Super Bowl coverage in prime time tied with ABC's nuclear war movie "The Day After," the ratings champ of the current season.

Van Winkle meets challenge, uplifts cage program

By Daryl Van Schowen

Allen Van Winkle had never backed away from a challenge before, so when he was offered the job to rebuild SIUC’s sputtering basketball program in 1980, he took it.

“When I took the position I fully understood how much work had to be done, but I also believed it was possible to get it done,” Van Winkle said. “I looked at it as an opportunity and a challenge.”

Challenging may be an understatement. After several years of success, the SIU men’s basketball program’s annual loss tally gradually ballooned to 20 in 1980 under Coach Joe Gottfried. In that season, the Salukis were an embarrassing 6-11.

But Van Winkle, who will now be in his fourth season at SIUC, is now in his third year at SIU-C. His Salukis are off to their best start in three years. They’ve won 12 of 17 games and are 9-2 in conference, good for third place.

The Salukis’ 94-79 double overtime win over Bradley Thursday capped Van Winkle’s most successful week as the Saluki coach.

“Those wins were gratifying for me, the players, and I think the players from our first two years, too,” Van Winkle said. “It was significant because we reached the point where we’ve always known we’ve been able to do the work we’ve been able to do. It’s sold and well respected not only in our community but throughout the nation.

“Van Winkle, formerly reserved in defeat or victory, was jubilant after the Saluki win,

Despite season-opening loss, Hartzog still expects good year

By David Wilhelms

The Saluki men’s track team and Coach Lew Hartzog have not had many things going their way with the squad heading into his second meet.

Because of bad weather conditions, the Salukas had just four good workouts before the team’s 65-66 indoor season opening loss to Nebraska. They will try to continue their effort to get into top shape before Saturday’s meet against Indiana and Wisconsin.

“With the financial support for men’s basketball at SIUC-C, we are better than we think we are,” Van Winkle said. “That’s an area I don’t feel comfortable discussing.”

As a recruiter, the Saluki coach’s policy is to acquire not only talented players, but people with good personalities as well.

By George Pappas

Gymnasts say the hardest men’s gymnastics apparatus to master is the pommel horse. Saluki Herb Voss is almost at that level.

Voss, who began working on the horse as a freshman at Hershey High School and is very close to meeting his personal goals, “I want to break or at least tie the Saluki record.” Voss said.

“and I would like to end my college gymnastics career as an All-American.”

Voss has a career-best score of 9.8 which he has accomplished twice. The Saluki record is a 9.9 by Brian Harbuck.

Voss would have to finish in the top three to be named an All-American. Last year, he finished 11th. But Voss is just a concerned, if not more, about how the team might fair in the NCAA championships this April.

“I think that being one of the top five teams in the NCAA is within our grasp,” Voss said. “That would be great.”

One thing is for sure, Voss, an advertising major, is the best pommel worker the Salukis have this season. Since he only performs on the horse, he knows what he is doing.

“Only have one shot in the meet,” Voss said. “If I try to win
