Shuttle to blast off with cola rivals aboard

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The veteran space shuttle Challenger, packed with a $72 million array of with a $72 million array of astronomical gear, was cleared for blastoff Friday afternoon on a busy science flight featuring the space debut of America's cola giants. If all goes well, the shuttle will thunder away from Earth at 3:30 p.m. to begin the 19th shuttle mission and Challenger's eighth flight. The spaceship is scheduled to land July 19 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Warden defends use of rectal searches

The warden of the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion called rectal searches of inmates a "necessary evil" Thursday when he testified as the last when he testified as the last federal witness in a civil lawsuit against the prison. Jerry Williford, who has been warden at Marion since April 17, 1984, reluctantly defended the practice as vital to finding weapons and con-traband among inmates.

"I find them distasteful and would much rather not do them, but they are a necessary evil," Williford said. Rectal searches have been a

Pay increases OK'd for top SIU administrators

The board met Thursday in the Student Center. SIU-C Student Trustee Andy

Leighton was the only dissenting voter.

Leighton, who made his debut as student trustee, said an increase of 8 or 10 percent for the three men is "a heck of a lot of money" compared to the same increase for lower administrative or faculty persons receiving less than $40,000.

King's birthday an SIU holiday

By University News Service

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday will be a paid legal holiday in the SIU System, beginning with the Jan. 20, beginning with the Jan. 20, 1986 observance.

The SIU Board of Trustees voted Thursday to approve the observance, which by law becomes a legal holiday in 1986. It will be observed on the third Monday in January, instead of King's birthday,

The action allows campus The action allows campus presidents to designate up to two days of the University's annual six-day, post-Christmas shutdown as paid leave for faculty and staff. In the past, SIU employees had to take one vacation day or take a one-day unpaid leave of absence during the Dec. 26-31 closing. The new action will make that a day of "administrative closure."

The University adopted the December closing to cut utility and operating costs, because most of the students are gone for the holidays.

But by late December, all but three of the University's 11 yearly legal holidays have been used. So one of the four working days after the Christmas closing has been chalked up against employees' vacation or work records.

Administrative closure, the board said, will free the day needed for the King holiday.

Social Security cut backers attack Reagan turnaround

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican senators who voted to curb Social Security bitterly criticized President Reagan's about-face on the issue Thursday and one suggested Reagan should "keep his mouth shut" if he isn't going to support his own party. Reagan and congressional budget leaders reached a tentative framework for a deficit-cutting budget Wednesday that would preserve Social Security cost-of-living payments.

Bomb blast in Kuwait cafe kills at least 5

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A bomb blast tore through a crowded cafe in Kuwait Thursday, killing at least five people. A second explosion caused nine casualties elsewhere in the city, the official Kuwaiti News Agency said. KUNA quoted witnesses as saying the first bomb detonated Thursday evening in a popular cafe in Arab Kaleej Street while groups of families were sitting with their children. The second bombing was in the Salmish area of the city.

Shamir calls for pardon of Jewish terrorists

JERUSALEM (UP1) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Thursday that a group of convicted Jewish terrorists were "excellent boys who erred" and discussed steps to pardon them. Israeli radio said. Shamir, who had ordered the arrests of the Jewish underground group last year when he was prime minister, made Israel's first appeal for pardoning the group of 25 since their trial ended Wednesday.

Judge releases remains of GIs killed in Laos

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge agreed Thursday to release the remains of 12 of 13 American servicemen killed in a 1972 plane crash in Laos, but he allowed continuation of a challenge by a Florida woman who wants independent identification of her husband's remains. In hand-written anguished pleas, a number of relatives asked U.S. District Judge William Orrick to release the remains so that scheduled funerals and memorial services around the country can proceed.

Contras vow to disrupt Sandinista festivities

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaraguan Democratic Force rebels vowed Thursday to launch a major offensive to disrupt celebrations marking the sixth anniversary of Sandinista rule. The Contra rebel group's clandestine Radio 15 de Septiembre said that on July 19, "we will have several war fronts fighting the Sandinista army in eight provinces," or half the country. The rebels also said they destroyed several army trucks, electrical energy towers, telephone wires and storage centers in recent actions.

Change in weather favors firefighters' efforts By United Press International Drizzle and light winds Thursday dampened some of the worst wildfires burning across the West while thunderstorms battered the East with heavy rain, tornadoes and lightning. Temperatures fell a bit west of the Rockies giving 14,000 fatigued firefighters a respite from record-setting temperatures in the 100s. The mercury dropped into the 30s and 40s early Thursday over the northern Great Lakes, setting record lows in three cities.

CIA employee charged with espionage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A woman employee of the Central Intelligence Agency was arrested Thursday and charged with espionage for passing government secrets to the government of Ghana through her friend, a Ghana national. The FBI said the woman, identified as Sharon Scranage, 29, a resident of King George, Va., and her Ghanaian friend, Michael Agbotui Soussoudis, 39, of St. Albans, N.Y., are charged with conspiracy to commit espionage in violation of federal laws. They could face life in prison.

EPA waste disposal tool termed a success

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The success of a mobile incinerator in destroying chemical contaminants in soil marks a major breakthrough in hazardous waste cleanup systems, the Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday. The incinerator successfully completed a six-week test at the dioxin-contaminated Denney Farm site near the southwest Missouri community of Verona in April, and the agency first announced tentative results of the experiment in May.

GPSC urges more funding for Morris Library

By Paula Buckner Staff Writer

A resolution "strongly en-couraging" the SIU-C ad-ministration to seek sufficient funding from the State to maintain Morris Library in an "adequate condition" for research and graduate education was passed by the Graduate and Professional dent Council Wednesday

The resolution was a response to a recently conducted qualitative study on the impact of budget reductions on the library's quality.

The resolution, said

President Mary Brown, basically says that the quality of library's facilities "is slipping and something needs to be done." It also agrees with the results of the study, she

THE STUDY was conducted by the Library Affairs Com-mittee and completed last May. Responses from students and faculty described journals and books for research programs as "barely and books as "barely programs as "barely adequate," the undergraduate collection as "adequate," and delivery — including as service delivery — including circulation and hours — as "satisfactory."

The library's Learning Resources Center and Special Collections were cited as "on the decline" and "excellent,"

Morris Library is one of 105 research libraries ranked each year on the facilities' selection quality by the Association of Research Libraries. 1983-84 statistics place SIU-C 66th, falling 20 notches from 1979-80 JOHN GUYON, vice president for academic affairs and research, told the council that nothing is "as dearly loved as the library," but resources for improving the facility would be subject to budget choices.
Guyon cited an average inflation rate for 1979-85 as 11 to 12 percent while funding for the library during that time was about 4 to 5 percent of the University's budget.

University's budget.

"It's hard to make improvements during years when appropriations are zero per-cent," he said.

ALLOCATIONS TO to improve the library's status are included in the fiscal year 1987 budget, but GPSC Parliamentarian Steve Zullo called it a "benevolent act" on the part of SIU administrators.

Zullo said he believes im provements in the library's instructional facilities could be made with the $290,000 allotted made with the $250,000 allotted for the renovation of the Woody Hall cafeteria. He wrote a resolution to that effect and GPSC spent more than 20 minutes adamantly discussing it.

"I think we can 'sell' the University to parents on its instructional and research facilities," he said, "rather than on a 'glittering generality" like the reception area for prospective students. His resolution failed.

BROWN SAID any action on the passed funding resolution will not be taken by the Board of Trustees until its meeting in

In other business, the council approved a special funding request of $200 from Nicole Glasser, sophomore in political science. Glasser will travel to Moscow in late July for an international festival for youth and students.

The request was approved with two provisions, although School of Law representatives Paul Antonacci and John Barton were among seven representatives opposing the measure. Antonacci questioned the legality of the questioned the legality of the funding according to GPSC fee allocation guidelines and the benefits of Glasser's trip to graduate students.

New conference reduces disparity among competitors

THE FORMATION OF THE NEW NCAA Division I-AA football conference which SIU-C will compete in this season is welcome news for the Salukis and the five other schools who are memoers.

The Salukis' future in the Missouri Valley Conference became doubtful two years ago when the school dropped from I-A to I-AA status. Every other Valley school except Tulsa and Wichita State were also relegated to I-AA status, creating a huge disparity since I-A schools are allowed to offer 25 more scholarships than

I-AA schools.

When the MVC announced it would drop football as a league when the MVC announced it solved one problem, but When the MVC announced it would drop football as a league sport following the 1985 season, it solved one problem, but created another. Coach Ray Dorr and other University athletics officials believe it is vital that SIU-C remain in a football conference, but without the MVC, it appeared as if the Salukis would be forced to compete as an independent.

The new conference, as yet unnamed, presents a great opportunity for SIU-C, Illinois State, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Northern Iowa and Southwest Missouri State for two primary reasons.

FIRST OF ALL, IT ALLOWS these schools to compete strictly against other I-AA opponents in conference play. Because the conference has only I-AA schools, it will gain an automatic bid into the I-AA playoffs beginning in 1987. Since the MVC has two I-A schools in the conference, it was not given an automatic bid into the I-AA playoffs. into the playoffs.

Secondly, the league will undoubtedly spawn some healthy rivalries among the six schools. With four of the teams hailing from Illinois, the traditional intra-state rivalries between SIU-C. ISU, EIU and WIU will take on added meaning beginning this year.

The Saluki football program has taken on a new look within the last year with the emergence of Dorr, an aggressive municator who is committed to bringing good football to SIU-C on a consistent basis. It is nice that Dorr and his team will have a new league to compete in, one which doesn't feauture the disparities between schools that the Valley does.

Student IDs aren't for use off campus

THERE SEEMS TO BE A BIT of confusion among students THERE SEEMS TO BE. A BIT of confusion among students about why SIU-C provides student IDs. The confusion, which surfaced when the city announced that the IDs could no longer be used as proof of age to buy liquor, indicates that some students believe SIU-C IDs are meant to serve purposes in no way related believe SIU-C IDs are meant to serve purposes in no way related to the University.

Just because, for reasons unknown, SIU-C puts students' dates of birth on their IDs doesn't mean the cards should be accepted as identification or as a reliable indicator of age for students when they're off campus. The purpose of the IDs is to give students a means to identify themselves so that they can check out library materials, use the Recreation Center, cash checks at the Student Center and obtain other services from the University.

Students who need identification when they're off campus can use their driver's license, gun registration card or state ID card, among other things. State ID cards are available to all Illinois residents at state driver learnining stations. They cost $4 and don't expire for five years, contain basically the same information as a drivers license, and are just as widely accepted as a driver's license for identification.

Since other forms of identification can easily be obtained, there's no need to squabble about SIU-C IDs not being accepted as proof of age off campus. In fact, since there is apparently no reason for it related to their basic purpose, the University would probably be wise to stop putting birth dates on the IDs. The information seems to do little more than cause confusion.

Liquor law carries stiff penalties

I think it's only fair to warn students about the impact that the revised liquor code could have on our social life and our pocketbooks.

According to Section 2-5-11 of the code "only driver's licenses, firearms owner's identification, state photo IDs. visas or passports are acceptable forms of idenceptable forms of iden-tification to purchase liquor." No more SIU-C IDs. Why? Because Virginia Benning, coordinator with the office of student life, and the City Council feel that the IDs can be too easily falsified.

The effect that the revised ode will have on our pocketbooks is still the same. A fine for contributing to underage consumption of alcohol is, according to Section alcohol is, according to Section 25-13. "up to $500" — a steep price to pay for a drink. The tricky part of the code is Section 25-14: "When a total of nine violations are ac-cumulated within a six-month period, the following restriction goes into effect for the next six months: The sale of beer in any container more of beer in any container more than 12 ounces is prohibited." This should be thought about long and hard before anyone enters a bar and decides to buy an underage friend a drink.

Nine violations could accrue in less than one week. This would mean no more pitchers, more hastles for the waitresses, more people crowding the bar, more spilt drinks and a longer wait for your next beer. As the hot summer nights lie ahead, think about the impact of the liquor code and the impact our own actions could have six months from now. The responsibility of curtailing the underage drinking the underage drinking problem does not only lie on the bar owners and managers, it lies on you and me. Remember, the pitchers you have tonight may be your last for a long time. — David Madlener, junior, Psychology.

I-SEARCH helps authorities

Illinois State Enforcement Agencies to Recover Children, a comprehensive program targeting the issues of missing, runaway and abducted children, is extending into Southern milinoie

A $20,000 grant is anticipated from the Department of Law Enforcement to help start an I-SEARCH unit at the Williamson County Sheriff's Department, said Harry Spiller, Williamson County sheriff.

Spiller said the $20,000 grant will be used for pamphlet printing costs, for explaining precautionary measures to parents and children, and for installing computers to track missing children.

Spiller also plans to develop radio nnouncements and a 15- to 20-minute film for broadcasting

AS OF June 10, 1,534 juvenile were missing in Illinois — 932 females and 602 males. Some were abducted by parents; others were kidnapped or runaways.

I-SEARCH was established in 1983 to investigate the problem of missing children.

The results of the investigation from the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement and Illinois Criminal Justice Infornation Authority brought about the Intergovernmental Missing Child Recovery Act of 1984, from which I-SEARCH was formed.

I-SEARCH WAS established to partially fund efforts of local law enforcement agencies cooperating under the Illinois State Enforcement Agencies in recovering lost, missing or runaway children, said Stephanie Peske, administrative assistant for I-SEAPCH Last forces.

The 30- to 60-second prevention announcements are currently aired on WSIU, SIU-C's public broadcasting television station, Spiller said, and will be aired on television stations WSIL, WPSD and KFVS.

HE SAID the Illinois Sheriff's Association will distribute the an-nouncements to television stations throughout Illinois.
There are 28 I-SEARCH units and 15 participating agencies in Illinois. I-SEARCH units are a combination of law enforcement, public and private organizations brought together under an intergovernmental agreement.

The units are required to develop

'How the Other Half Loves' has good acting, bad script

By Terri Queen Staff Writer

"How the Other Half Loves," billed as two comedies in one, unfortunately dies a double death.

double death.

At a press preview performance Wednesday at McLeod Theater, the romantic comedy started slowly with a few chuckles, picked up the pace with a few big laughs, but stopped short of gaining full momentum. momentum.

Most of the show's problems are not with the actors, but are not with the actors, but with the script that is just not very funny. The author, Alan Ayckbourn, is known as the British Neil Simon, but some of his lines fall flat as he tries to get a screwball comedy effect that is better left to Simon.

The action in "How the Other Half Loves" occurs simultaneously in the living rooms of two couples, the Fosters and the Phillipses. Neither story line has much humor. The confusion and comedy mounts as love affairs, real and imagined, are introduced among the Fosters, Phillipses and their friends, the Detweilers.

Milan Palec has designed a clever set to mesh the two living rooms while still providing a clear image of the separate activities.

separate activities. The confusion is enhanced when the Detweilers are seen at two dinner parties at the same time in different homes on different days.

Theresa Larkin as Teresa
Phillips and Christian H. Moe Phillips and Christian as Frank Foster are the play's saving graces as their good sense of timing and comedy give their characters real personality.

Her delivery gets the big

Moe is excellent as the absent minded, doddering-old-fool. His treatment of the situation and the lines add dimension to what could have been a weak character.

Ewan and Regina Pugh, give good, although not outstanding, performances. Ewan should give more attention to developing his character, rather than depending on nervous fidgeting to allude to a wimpy personality.

The dinner party at the end of Act One has more laughs than the rest of the show. The Detweilers, guests at both the Fosters and the Phillipses, alternate between two vastly different scenes and do it very humorously. They switch their humorously. They switch their emotions from solemnity at the Fosters to amazed horror at the Phillipses.

The dinner party scene is well done with intertwined characters and conversation and good timing throughout.

Group to visit Nicaragua for first-hand look

By Art Maton

A group of concerned citizens has decided to go to Nicaragua to see for themselves whether the Reagan administration's account of political and human rights conditions in the troubled Central American

Six persons from Carbondale and four others from Illinois are among a group of 18 people from the Midwest who plan to gather in Miami, Fla. Friday afternoon for a series of orientation sessions. On Monday, the group is scheduled to fly from Miami to Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, for the start of an

THE GROUP plans to spend most of its time in Managua, where it plans to meet with government officials, Sandinista party leaders and members of opposition political groups. Later, the group intends to travel to rural areas, and visit with farmers and Group members also plan to participate in a "work day", where they plan to help farmers with agricultural tasks. The group then plans to return to Managua for the flight to the United States on July 26.

WITNESS FOR Peace, a religious-oriented, inter-WITNESS FOR Peace, a religious-oriented, inter-denominational, non-profit organization, is the organizer of the trip. Based in Santa Cruz, Ca., Wit-ness for Peace is concerned with civil rights and civil liberties, particularly in such Central American nations as Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Costa Rica.

The organization has several volunteers in the region who perform social services, render medical care and help agricultural production.

THROUGH INFORNATION provided by the volunteers, the organization attempts to make U.S. citizens aware of conditions in Central America. To further that effort, the organization arranges trips for groups of Americans wanting to visit the region.

groups of Americans wanting to visit the region.

While group members pay their own way, the organization provides orientation, arranges for lodging, and supplies guides for visits to rural areas.

Dr. David E. Christensen of the Geography Department at SIU-C is among those who plan to leave for Nicaragua Monday. Christensen said that Witness for Peace calls the group "the Midwest group", since the members are all related by region, though not necessarily by occupation or background.

THESE ARE "people who are going seem to agree that the present government of Nicaragua should be given a chance, and should not be destabilized through Contra activities, which our government supports," Christensen said.

"We are not satisfied, from what we hear, that conditions in Nicaragua are as our government represents them," he said.

He said that he hopes the Nicaraguan government officials, opposition leaders, and rural people he plans to speak to can answer some "nagging" questions he has about the status of civil rights and civil liberties there. "This is a country that calls itself a democracy," he said. "How open is it?"

CHRISTENSEN SAID that he and three of the other

CHRISTENSEN SAID that he and three of the other group members from Carbondale became interested in going to Nicaragua after hearing Bill and Ruth Perk speak at the Unitarian Church last February.
Bill Perk, of the Community Development Department at SIU-C, and Ruth Perk of the Religious Studies Department, were members of a group that went to Nicaragua last December.
The Perks were in a largely Jewish group whose primary concern was the validity of Reagan administration charges of anti-Semitic practices by the Sandinista government.

RUTH PERK said the group found that Nicaragua has a very small Jewish community, which felt that the charges were unfounded. "Most Nicaraguans don't even know what a Jew is," Perk said.

Perk said that the group met with members of the Nicaraguan press, who complained of censorship by the government. She said the government officials maintained that censorship was necessary to stop the spread of false rumors by the press. She said the government also "justified" censorship on the grounds that the nation is in a state of war with the Contra rebels.

PERK SAID that Nicaragua is a "classic example of Third World poverty". She said that she "doesn't know how to express her sadness" over the U.S. government's treatment of Nicaragua.

"It is like an adult slapping and abusing a child," she said. She added that the trip was "an experience that is not easily forgotten".

Senate moves to restrict U.S.- South Africa trade

WASHINGTON (UPI) —
The Senate Thursday moved toward passing legislation to restrict American credit and goods to South Africa in protest of that country's apartheid policy of racial separation.

"Every new dollar that flows from the United States to South Africa is a new brick in the Africa is a new brick in the wall of apartheid," Sen. Ed-ward Kennedy, D-Mass., told the Senate.

"The United States has unclean hands. If we do unclean hands. If we do nothing today our nation will remain implicated in the system of apartheid. To do nothing today is tantamount to a vote of approval for the apartheid system," Kennedy said.

The bill would impose an immediate ban on bank loans to South Africa, block the sale of computer equipment police could use to track dissidents, and ban the sale of nuclear technology to Pretoria.

Kennedy and others want tougher sanctions, including those in a bill the House passed last month that bans new American business investment.

American business investment in South Africa and the sale of its gold coins in the United States.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, sought to secure an agreement from both opponents and supporters of the bill not to offer any radical amendments. Democrats were holding to the agreement, but some conservatives bolted.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R. N.-H., moved that the sanc-tions apply to any nation that signed the East-West agreement to uphold human rights. It lost 67-29. Sen. Steven rights. It lost 67-29. Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, moved that the sanctions be null if it is determined they increase unemployment among South African blacks. It lost 78-17 and the leadership drove to finish

Lugar guided the bill through his committee for a 16-1 vote but said its chances for passage and ability to avoid a presidential veto, rests on its containing no greater sanc-

British Open may cure ailing Watson

SANDWICH, England (UPI)

— If ever Tom Watson is to hea! himself, this would seem to be the time and the place.

A visit to this cozy seashore community on the southeast coast of England could provide the perfect cure for what ails Watson, namely an inability to win a golf tournament in 12 months.

The 114th British Open, which began Thursday at Royal St. George's, is Watson's baby, his tour de force, his special elixir for whatever his special elixir for whatever hurts. Since discovering the marvelous health benefits of visiting a British links course in 1975, Watson has won the championship five times, and is only one shy of the record set by Harry Vardon at the turn of the centure.

"FOR THREE or four years I didn't particularly like the type of golf you have to play over there." Watson said some time ago. "I preferred target golf to the luck of the bounce. Now I love playing there. If the British Open didn't exist, I'd still take a trip over every year to play the great courses."

still take a trip over every year to play the great courses."
Watson currently is at one of those critical stages in his career that all great champions must endure. Two months shy of his 36th birthday, Watson is enduring a slump that has seen him go thday, Watson is enduring a slump that has seen him go winless since the Western Open last July. He finished second in the Bay Hill Classic at Orlando, Fla., in March, but then was 10th in the Masters and missed the cut in the U.S.

NFL great Lambert retires

PITTSBURGH (UPI) PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jack Lambert, who played on four Super Bowl Championship teams and was selected to the Pro Bowl nine times, Thursday said he wants to be remembered "just simply as somebody who played the best he could" when he retired after 11 seasons with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

payed for any years time to asso on his 33rd birthday.

But he said he began to consider retirement last year, when a dislocation of his big left toe forced him to sit through the least productive season and only "low period" of his playing life.

The toe, injured in the season opener, never really healed. Still, Lambert played in nine games, including the AFC championship game, and started three.

"The reason I'm retiring is because of my big toe," Lambert said during his Duzzlo anguvers.

"It's still sore," he added.
"It's not well enough to play.
I've been able to run a little bit, I've been able to run a little bit, and I've playved racquetball a few times, but I can't push off on it. And if you can't push off, you can't push off, you can't push off on blockers and make tackles. I'm simply physically unable to play."

Carrying just 220 pounds on his lanky 6-fool-4 frame, Lambert was the prototype of the modern linebacker—smaller, faster and more mobile than his predecessors.

His play was marked by an unrelenting intensity that contrasted markedly with his quiet low profile off the field. With also retired outside linebacker Jack Ham, Lambert established the linebacking position as just as critical to defending against the pass as the rush. As part of the Steelers' famed Steel Curtain defense of the 1970s, the duo were part of the the most respected and feared linebacking unit in the NFL. Through his first 10 years with the Steelers, Lambert missed only seven of 164 games.

record Like this year's Tigers' team, the Cubs appeared better on paper with last season's acquisitions Rick Sutcliffe, Dennis Eckersley, George Frazier and Davey Lopes. But they are in fourth place, five games behind the front-running St. Louis Cardinals.

What happened? The Tigers and Cubs have the best talent on paper, but it takes an awful lot of luck to win a division title. And 162 games can grate on the best of teams.

'At different times this season, the Cubs have lost the services of Sutcliffe, Eckersley, Steve Trout, Scott Sanderson, Ryne Sandberg, Jody Davis, Gary Matthews and Bob Dernier. Each player played a key part in last season's division winning team, so it's no wonder that the Cubs are not in the driver's seat this season. Last season, the Cubs suffered very few serious injuries.
