Lake contamination studies differ

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

A University study of contamination in Crab Orchard Lake was not as comprehensive as the one independent consultants O'Brien and Shear made for the government, a University scientist said.

"Comparing the two studies is like comparing apples and oranges," Roy Heidinger, director of the cooperative fisheries research laboratory, said.

The University study, conducted by Heidinger and Christopher Kohler, coordinator of international fisheries, used samples of fish in their assessment of polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) contamination in the lake.

"The government study looked at site contamination, as well as samples of fish," Heidinger said. "The (government) study was much more comprehensive."

Heidinger said he could not comment on the discrepancies between the two studies until the formal report from the independent study comes out

July 26.

Don Hodel, Secretary of the Interior, was in town Tuesday to campaign for Congressional candidate Pat Kelley, a University law professor, and to discuss the results of the Crab Orchard study. Kelley, R-Carbondale, is running against Glenn Poshard, D-Cartermville, in the 22nd District.

Hodel said that the contamination is not a catastrophic problem and is isolated to remote areas of the lake.

"We think we have time to look at the situation," Hodel said.

Once the formal study is released, a clean-up will start immediately if Crab Orchard is shown to be contaminated, he said.

The formal study has taken over four years and reportedly will identify three sites out of 33 studied where a cleanup is needed.

A report filed by the Illinois Department of Public Health, in accordance with the University's findings, stated that fish in the Crab Orchard lake area were definitely contaminated. It recommended that catfish and carp over 15 inches not be eaten.

University findings showed that an area east of Route 146, where an old chemical dump site is located, was contaminated with PCBs, and 38 percent of the fish caught there were contaminated. Only 4 percent of the fish were contaminated west of Route 146, the study said.

Norrell Wallace, refuge manager at Crab Orchard, said both studies contain valid

Preparations for Reagan are taking off

By Robert Baxter

Unidentified White House staff members boarded two jet-propelled helicopters at Williamson County Airport Tuesday to make sure President Ronald Reagan's plane would have clear, safe places to land and takeoff on his visit today.

According to Air Force advance press, the helicopters ran test flight patterns to trace the route the president will fly on his way to and from Du Quoin.

Men on board the helicopters, staff and crew alike, made sure everything was ready for Reagan's flight today, including the time element involved, an Air Force spokesperson said.

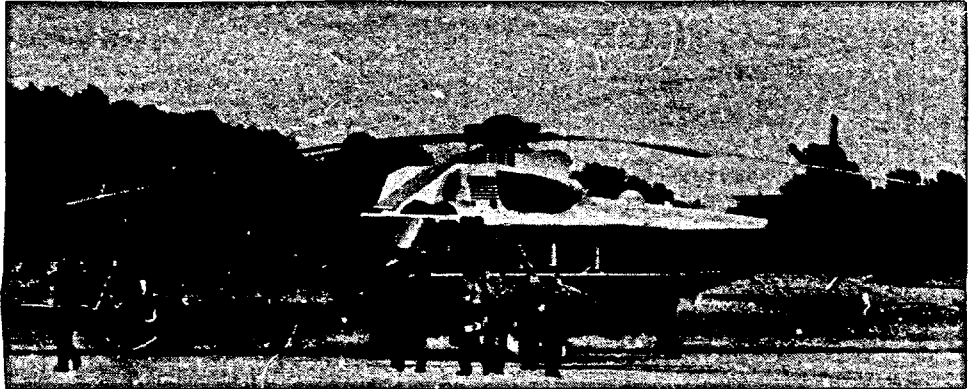

The crew that performed the test flight, will be the same crew on board for today's flight.

Herman LeMaster, Staff Sergeant from Scott Air Force base in Belleville, said his crew will take care of all presidential needs before Reagan arrives at about 9:40 today.

"We are filling the tanker here so we'll be able to refuel Air Force One and the helicopters (today)," he said. "We will bring in everything, from the fuel to the ladder the president will get off the plane with."

Air Force advance press personnel said Reagan will leave Williamson County Airport just before noon today.

Leaving the Southern Illinois area, Reagan will travel to the Quad Cities, (Davenport, Iowa) to survey the drought conditions there.

Reagan extends line of presidential tours

By Christine Codusky
Staff Writer

The last time President Ronald Reagan visited Southern Illinois was during his 1989 presidential campaign tour.

Reagan spoke in Herrin on the city courthouse steps, John Jackson, University liberal arts dean, said.

Other presidents also have visited Carbondale in the last 40 years.

On October 28, 1978, former president Jimmy Carter led the first presidential campaign to visit Carbondale in 16 years. Carter rallied in the Free Forum Area on campus and gave a 10-minute speech.

Before he was elected president, John F. Kennedy campaigned on campus in McAndrew Stadium October 3, 1960, to a crowd estimated between 12,000 and 15,000. Students were given permission to miss 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. classes to see Kennedy.

Kennedy spent the day touring Southern Illinois and was escorted by Carbondale resident Sam M. Hunter Jr.

General Motors loaned Hunter 14 new Pontiac convertibles for the tour, and Kennedy had to walk on top of them to get through the crowd at McAndrew Stadium, Hunter said.

Kennedy visited the Veteran's Hospital in Marion and went to each patient's bed to shake hands, Hunter said.

"I never saw such a gracious man in my life," he said.

Several weeks after Kennedy appeared, former President Richard M. Nixon also spoke in McAndrew Stadium. Nixon, then vice-president, spoke before a crowd of 12,000 at the University on October 30, 1969.

In 1929, Harry S. Truman traveled through Southern Illinois by train, stopping in Carbondale to campaign for the presidency.

Jackson County Chairman C. Ray Chancy, a Truman supporter, recalled Truman spoke on a platform in McAndrew Stadium.

Black alumni hope to help students at reunion

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

Black alumni hope to draw on their experience to help present University students solve problems, the organizer of a reunion said.

The Black Alumni Reunion will have hundreds of graduates and former students of the University participating in group sessions and other activities today through Sunday. John S. Holmes, president of the Black Alumni Group, said.

"We are looking for input from the alumni on how they solved their problems as students," Holmes said.

Seeing how successful the alumni are will help the students relate their problems and seek help, he added.

The reunion starts at 6 tonight at the Holiday Inn with registration and a mixer.

The forum, titled "To Establish Bonds and Lines of Communication," will start at 10 a.m. on Friday in the Student Center ballrooms. Groups will discuss "Building the Black Alumni," "Improving the University's Environment for Minority Students," and "Networking Strategies for Undergraduate

Speakers will include Seymour Bryson, assistant to the president for affirmative action and equal opportunity programs, and Benjamin A. Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research.

A reception hosted by the Black Affairs Council and a discussion concerning "An Overview of the Black Experience at SIU-C" will start at 5 p.m. Friday.

Nebraska Mays, vice president of academic affairs for the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, will be the guest speaker at a banquet held at 6 p.m.

A picnic starts at 10 a.m. Saturday at Evergreen Park. There will be a "splash party" at the Ramada Inn at 8 p.m. A dance sponsored by Lambda Omega Graduate Chapter of Iota Phi Theta starts at 11 p.m. at King's Walk.

A brunch and forum wrap-up in the Student Center begins at 10 a.m. and will end the reunion.

Those interested should contact the SIU-C Alumni Association at 453-2408.

Groups take responsibility for attack on Greek liner

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Two groups claimed responsibility Wednesday for the terror attack on a Greek cruise ship, and one threatened a "very big, spectacular" strike soon — this time against Americans. Greek officials said they believe attack that killed nine people and wounded dozens in the Aegean Sea off Greece Monday may have been an attempt to force the release of Palestinian Mohammed Rashid, wanted by the United States in connection with a bombing attack against a U.S. airliner in 1982.

Mexico's parties plan vote tampering protest

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Opposition parties planned to press their charges of massive government vote tampering Wednesday with a giant protest march on the Federal Electoral Commission before officials release election results favoring the ruling party.

Vietnam turns over remains of 25 Americans

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Twenty five sets of remains tentatively identified as those of American servicemen missing in Vietnam were turned over to U.S. officials Wednesday in a simple ceremony at Hanoi's airport. "Everything went very smoothly and according to plan with the usual ceremony," said an official of the team that received the remains, the second largest such return made by the Vietnamese.

Angola talks end with frame for settlement

NEW YORK (UPI) — South Africa, Angola, Cuba and the United States reached an agreement Wednesday that provides the framework for a "peaceful settlement" to a 13-year guerrilla war in Southwest Africa. At the conclusion of their fourth round of talks, the delegations issued a statement describing the three-day U.S.-sponsored discussions that began Monday as "constructive in spirit, and were positive and productive."

Bush chosen to defend U.S. at United Nations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has chosen Vice President George Bush to defend the country at the United Nations against Iran's resolution condemning the United States for the downing of an Iranian airliner, a spokesman said Wednesday. Bush planned to deliver a major address at the opening U.N. session, but Ambassador Vernon Walters was expected to take charge of the U.N. Security Council debate on Iran's resolution beginning Thursday.

Dukakis tries to sell his ticket to black leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis and running mate Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas tried hard to sell their ticket to black leaders Wednesday but ran into disappointment that Jesse Jackson was not offered the second spot. The Massachusetts governor and the senator, in their first campaign trip together, spent the day in the nation's capital, making a critical stop at the 79th NAACP convention and privately meeting with black congressional leaders.

Kuwait may look to Moscow for Mavericks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kuwait's prime minister appealed to the Senate Wednesday to lift a ban on the sale of Maverick missiles to his Persian Gulf nation, warning Kuwait might seek other suppliers — possibly Moscow — if spurned in Washington. Sheikh Saad al-Abdullah al-Salem al-Sabah, who also is crown prince, told the National Press Club, "We seek arms to defend our country against aggression, but not to launch aggression. The ability of our friends and allies to deliver is a barometer of friendship and cooperation."

Program to aid farmers announced by Cosentino

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The state will deposit $50 million with rural community banks throughout Illinois for emergency low-interest loans to drought-stricken farmers. Treasurer Jerry Cosentino said Wednesday. "The farmers' first need is rain, but that's out of our hands right now," Cosentino said. "The next best thing they can get next to rain is some additional funding to carry them over until next year."

'Children of a Lesser God' depicts love, life in a world without sound

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

"Children of a Lesser God" is a dramatic, yet sometimes humorous, play about a rebellious deaf woman trying to make it in a world of sound.

Patricia McDonough plays Sarah Norman, a deaf woman who works as a maid at a school for the hearing impaired.

Times & Tickets

Dates:
"Children of a Lesser God" will be presented at 8 tonight through Sunday at McLeod Theater in the Communications Building.
Tickets:
Available 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the McLeod Theater box office. For reservations call 453-3001 weekdays.

Prices:
$6 tonight and Sunday and $7 for Friday and Saturday performances. Tickets $4 for SJU-C students with valid I.D.

Theater Review

The play opens with instructor James Leeds, played by Bob May, attempting to teach Orin Dennis to speak.

Orin, (John Schroeder), is partially deaf and can speak well, despite his disability. At first, his speech is somewhat difficult to understand because he slurs the ends of his words, but as the play and storyline progress his speech improves.

When Orin exits, James is introduced to Sarah by Mr. Franklin, the head of the school, played by Kenneth Cook. Sarah is uncooperative with James, her new instructor, and the scene reflects their special relationship that exists throughout the play.

For example, Sarah gets upset because James can't make signs fast enough. She doesn't like his attempts to teach her to read lips and speak, and she doesn't appreciate his occasional sarcastic remarks and jokes.

The audience is then introduced to Lydia, another hearing impaired person who can read lips and speak. Lydia, played by MaryBeth Scheri, provides a comic relief to the serious nature of the play.

Sarah and James' relationship grows throughout the first half of the play. Despite their obvious differences, a mutual respect and friendship develops, culminating in their falling in love.

James learns more about Sarah through his conversations with her and her mother, played by Lori Merrill.

Despite her rebellious attitude, Sarah shows signs of humor. In one scene, she tells James she can hear music because she feels the vibrations through her nose.

The second half of the play is more political, focusing on the rights of the deaf.

Orin's role becomes more prominent as he tries to convince Sarah to help him fight the school's administration for not hiring enough deaf instructors.

Orin hires a lawyer, played by Jane Brockman, who typifies the average individual's understanding of the deaf. Sarah's attitude toward the hearing population is reflected in her encounter with the lawyer.

In the meantime, James and Sarah have been married and the second half of the play builds on their growing understanding of one another.

After a climactic scene, James realizes he can no more enter her world of silence than she can enter his world of sound.

David Stevens, director, said the play is both "optical and timely."

"Children of a Lesser God," is a "serious counterbalance" to the two Summer Playhouse musicals, Stevens said. It was selected because of an incident at Gallaudet University earlier this year.

Deaf students and faculty at Gallaudet University, a liberal arts college for the deaf, protested the appointment of a president who could hear. The students eventually forced the administration to hire the school's first hearing impaired president.

Stevens said the play is quite different from the movie since it makes more of a political statement, whereas the movie is more of a love story.

In the play, "the first act is more of a love story and the second act is really what it is all about, ne said."

Acoustic duo Mandala

Acoustic duo will perform at Sunset Concert tonight

The "magic" of Mandala can be heard 7 tonight at the steps of Shryock Auditorium as part of the 10th annual Sunset Concert Series.

It has been said that folk singers Martin Swinger and Mitch Barrett, who comprise Mandala, "prove that old instruments can sing new songs in able hands."

Swinger and Barrett have been performing together since 1979. Their acoustically oriented style of music usually includes songs from Mandala albums — "Hardwood" and "Kick the Cat" — and favorites by contemporary performers such as Neil Young and John Prine.

Mandala's sound is reminiscent of New Grass Revival, Steeleye Span and Crosby, Still and Nash. It has opened for acts such as Ronnie Milsap and Pure Prairie League.

Mandala performed in the 1987 Sunset Concert Series.

Phil Roche: Your chair waits

HIDDEN AWAY IN the inner parts of the Daily Egyptian, the worn swivel chair, slightly tilted back, sits ajar to the giant metal desk in anticipation.

Phil Roche must be just around the corner. Any minute now, the stout, burly print shop superintendent, wearing khaki-colored work pants and T-shirt, will ease himself into the waiting chair and begin the day's work.

"Phil Roche, there's work to be done."
The newspaper, fresh off the press, needs checking. Do the photographs tell of high quality half-tones? Do the stories and headlines match? Are story lines and headlines straight? There is so much that needs going over with an eagle eye.

THE TYPESETTING SYSTEM needs to be up and running. Student reporters are at the "tubes" pounding out news and feature stories and "dumping" them into type. Stories sometimes are lost between the "pounding out" and the "dumping." Not to worry. Phil is just around the corner.

The stories and headlines are making the daily trek through typesetting, paste-up and plate-making. It's press time. But not to worry. Phil is just around the corner.

That's the feeling that rolls over a person just looking at the well-used chair sitting there anticipating in a little cubby hole far from the public eye.

BUT PHIL DIED July 3. He was so much a part of this place. He had worked here about 16 years. He started in the DE's print shop in 1971 as assistant superintendent of the print shop. In 1973, he was promoted to superintendent.

Phil was an excellent printer. Bill Harmon, a former managing editor of the DE, described him as a "good manager and a good press man."

"He kept that press going...He never missed an issue," Harmon recalls. Roche "grew up" during the "hot metal print era," but he was adaptable.

Roche was a "good mechanic" and kept the "electronic and typesetting gear" working, Harmon said.

THE "CORNERSTONE OF the production system" is the way Walter Jaehnig, director of the School of Journalism, describes him.

Roche was more than a printer and mechanic. Manion Rice, former director of the School of Journalism, describes him as "one printer who cared about what the ink symbols on the newsprint said."

He cared about the advertisers and the readers, said Cathy Hagler, who was a student worker at the DE before becoming display advertising manager in 1982.

Roche was a teacher. Many student workers learned the printing trade with Roche's guidance. Students learned discipline and professionalism from a man who believed in being a good example.

KAY MILLS, A long-time co-worker, described Roche as "very loyal to the DE." "He caused people to be more loyal than they might have been otherwise."

Roche may have left the impression of being stern, but his "gruff exterior was to keep people from realizing how soft he was inside," Mills says.

He was "Uncle Phil" to some even though he appeared as a burly bear.

Roche was open. He took suggestions and he gave them. "It wasn't the backlash against the news side. Not us against them. Never with Phil," recalls Harmon, a co-worker for 15 years.

Phil Roche is dead. But not gone. "Just around the corner," the chair keeps saying.

Letters

Sunset Concert ad leaves bad taste

Thank you so much Glen Phillips (SPC Consorts chairperson) and the Sunset Concert Committee for the July 5 Daily Egyptian advertisement stating that alcohol is permitted at Turley Park. Gosh, I find it so very hard to go out and have a good time without booze. It must be so hard to program shows that draw crowds on their own merit without advertising that alcohol is permitted. So, should Mr. Phillip's taste in music not be so good, why a couple of quarts of Shaefer's beer down my gullet ought to make my ear that much more appreciative.

I took "Survival of Man" and I know of the grim population problem our planet is faced with. Certainly several hundred drunk collegiate types, car keys poised with the last note of the show, ready to race for the best seat at the local pub, ought to help us with overpopulation.

I am also acquainted with alcohol's disinhibitive properties, so my buddies' luck with the chicks ought to improve a lot. When they are out there bumping and grinding into each other and the sober chicks do not really want to go home with any of my buddies, why that of etyl! ought to come to the rescue again. Fellas, just get one that is lubed up and you are half-way there. Living in the age of AIDS this could further help with overpopulation, and it would be just awful, but anything for a cause; Right Mr. Phillips?

I also figure that all those knothead college students whose mothers are not there to pick up after them ought to leave one bechucka mess at Turley Park. Not to worry though. This ought to give a whole battalion of folks jobs with the Park District cleaning up after sloppy, stewed, students. Wow, now we are dealing with the rampant unemployment in Southern Illinois. You are a trooper Mr. Phillips. Hey and how about all those paychecks getting cashed? Now we are helping the economy. Do not forget the federal taxes taken out of these paychecks. Some of that money goes towards fighting the evil Russian empire and their naughty expansionism. Mr. Phillips, just a suggestion, maybe next year's Sunset Concert t-shirts could say: "Drink at Turley and Help Stop the Commies" in big red letters. Gee, Mr. Phillips, Oliver North pales in comparison to such a great hero as you. I had never dreamed of what a service you are providing.

In closing, thank you Sunset Concert Committee, especially Mr. Glen Phillips who spearheaded the valiant campaign to return alcohol to its rightful place — Turley Park. With alcohol you have solved so many problems. Problems like sagging attendances, sagging performances, unemployment, the economy, dread Russian expansionism, the unsted libidos of Carbondale, and just plain lack of fun without booze, just to name a few.

I am an outpatient being treated for alcoholism at St. Joseph's in Murphysboro, but screw that! I am joining you in your cause. I thank you and my liver thanks you. You are a great American Hero.

University needs to change sabattical policy

This letter is to make people aware of the controversy surrounding Patrick Kelley, a professor in the School of Law, who is running as a Republican for the Illinois Legislature in the 22nd district.

The controversy stems from a paid leave of absence Kelley was granted to write a book on Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr. After the leave was granted, Kelley decided to run for Congress.

So, Kelley has been running for public office for six months while being paid by the University and not having to teach. Roughly, he was paid $25,000 during this time. Also, the book he was to write has not been completed.

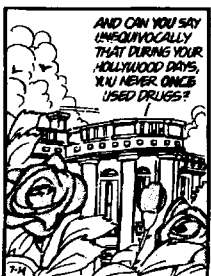

This dilemma has many people questioning the ethics and legalities of this action. At a time when education funding is at a crisis and there is an apparent need for new taxes, Kelley's acceptance of this full-paid leave has left SIU-C in an awkward position.

The ethical thing for Kelley to do is to take an unpaid leave to run for Congress.

The update for SIU-C to do is to change its criteria for sabbaticals and include a clause stating "that if a person on sabbatical runs for political office while on sabbatical it will convert to an unpaid leave."

Union pickets Burger King

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Members of the Carpenters Local 638 have picketed the Carbondale Burger King since Tuesday morning because it is being remodeled by non-union laborers, a spokesman said.

William Ham, business agent for the union, said the contractor, who is from Missouri, is not paying the prevailing wage for carpenters in this area.

Ham said he asked the contractor for verification that the prevailing area wage was being paid, but his request was ignored.

Ham said there is a significant difference in the wages, but could not give an exact figure.

The contractor, Jim Drury Construction of Cape Girardeau, is not paying the prevailing area wage, but is paying wages that are normally paid to workers in Missouri, Jay Estes, supervisor for the company, said.

Estes said all of the workers are from Missouri. The contractor was going to use workers from Local 638, but Ham would not cooperate because of the wage difference, he said.

Estes could not provide the figures for the prevailing wage here or what the workers from Missouri are being paid.

Remodeling began Monday and members of the Local 638 began picketing Tuesday.

Estes said Drury Construction built the Burger King in Marion and used Local 638 workers. There was some picketing before an agreement was reached, he said.

Carpenters Local 638 represents workers in Union, Johnson, Jackson, Williamson, Gallatin and Saline counties.

Phillips hearing rescheduled

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

The hearing to decide if a special prosecutor should be appointed in the attempted murder trial of convicted murderer John Paul Phillips has been rescheduled for 10 a.m. Aug. 4 in the Jackson County Courthouse.

Phillips faces charges of two counts of attempted murder and two counts of unlawful use of a weapon by a felon, according to court documents.

Phillips failed to appear at the hearing Tuesday because he refused to wear the standard clothing used when transporting prisoners from Menard Correctional Center to the Jackson County Courthouse, according to documents.

The charges stem from an outburst during Phillips' sentencing hearing in November 1986, when he was sentenced to death for the 1981 slaying of a Carbondale waitress, Joan Wetherall.

Phillips was sentenced to die by lethal injection, but his case is being appealed.

As Thomas Mocabey, Phillips' former cellmate at Menard, stepped off the witness stand, Phillips threw some type of homemade weapon, believed to be a firearm, as he lunged toward Mocabey.

Phillips immediately was restrained by Jackson County and Department of Corrections officers.

From the same incident, Phillips also is accused of attempting to murder prosecutor Matthew M. Schneider.

information and discrepancies only arise because of the difficulty in lab sampling techniques.

"We're dealing with parts per billion when looking into PCB contamination, and the slightest piece of sediment or unsanitary conditions can alter results," Wallace said.

Wallace said that if, when collecting samples of fish, a knife blade touches the gut of the sample fish during filleting, it will contaminate the fish, which must then be discarded.

"We send our fish to audit labs (labs where their procedures have passed government inspection)," Wallace said. "We send the right side of the fish to one location and the left side of the fish to another lab, and if the results differ, the sample test is discarded."

Wallace believes that both studies were conducted properly and it is of utmost importance to settle the differences between the two.

"The Department of Public Health and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service are taking additional samples of fish and re-evaluating the results," he said. "It is important to resolve the differences in the two earlier studies and decide what cleanup action should be taken."

Wallace said studies of lakes that have been contaminated for 30 years should show how little contamination has made its way into the lake water.

Jim Wilson, campaign manager for Poshard, said Poshard, who is in Atlanta preparing for the Democratic National Convention, was critical of some of the things Hodel said.

"The secretary stated there is no way Devil's Kitchen Lake can be used for Marion's water supply," Wilson said. "Poshard said he would like to see a more in-depth study done regarding usage of this lake as a water supply."

Without such a study, Wilson said, Poshard did not think a decision as to whether the lake would be suitable for a city water supply could be determined.

Wilson said that Poshard also wondered why sites that had been contaminated for 30 years had not been cleaned up.

"Hodel said there was no major problem, but we feel there is a problem when contaminated sites have been on the lake for 30 years and no attempt has been made to clean them up," Wilson said.

Jury indicts mercenary recruiters

MIAMI (UPI) — A grand jury indicted the brother of Contra leader Adolfo Calero and six others, including a conservative activist from Alabama, on charges of recruiting mercenaries to fight with the Nicaraguan rebels, it was announced Wednesday.

The seven-count indictment, returned June 28 in U.S. District Court in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., alleged they recruited the soldiers of fortune in southern Florida and other parts of the country "to participate in military expeditions and enterprises against the Nicaraguan government."

The indictment also charged they conspired to provide firearms and other weapons to the mercenaries after their arrival in Honduras, and arranged for the mercenaries to provide training to the Contras, who are fighting to overthrow Nicaraguan's Marxist Sandinista regime.

Group nationally recognized

Pollution Control awarded $7,500

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Pollution Control, after saving nearly $20,000 in the past year, was nationally recognized Monday for its efforts.

The National Association of College and University Business Officers' annual cost reduction incentive award program awarded the University $7,500 for its in-house program for treating hazardous wastes.

Treating procedures consisted of breaking down hazardous particles in three groups of wastes processed at the University: cyanides and cyanogen compounds, acids and bases, and waste left after performing a common wastewater test.

Hazardous wastes are produced at the Physical Plant and in laboratories as by-products of chemistry experiments.

"Some of the wastes come from the Physical Plant," Greg Searle, graduate assistant at pollution control, said. "The majority of it comes from the research and teaching labs on campus."

The program's objective is

The program's objective is to produce a safe liquid or solid that can be poured down the drain or sent to a local landfill.

to produce a safe liquid or solid that can be poured down the drain or sent to a local landfill, Searle said.

"It would be a lot less hassle to send (hazardous waste) in a barrel to a certified landfill or send it to get incinerated," Searle said. "It also would cost a lot more money."

Most schools and companies pay thousands of dollars to have hazardous wastes packaged and transported to Environmental Protection Agency-approved landfills, Searle said.

Pollution Control is staffed almost entirely by students, all of whom work on a volunteer basis their first semester.

"No one comes in as paid staff," Searle said. "Students volunteer for a semester and basically prove they want to be here. Then we put them on payroll."

President John Guyon accepted the first place award in St. Louis on behalf of the University.

John Meister, director of pollution control, will receive some of the award money for his personal use.

"The balance of the money is going back into Campus Service," Guyon said.

Guyon didn't say how much Meister would receive.

"The understanding when we submitted the proposal was that the money would go to the University and not to pollution control," Catherine Stroh, hazardous waste manager said. "I'm surprised that John (Meister) got any of the money. It was a team effort."

The University shared the award with Iowa State University.

"(Iowa State) included labor hours with their proposal," Searle said. "It made them look like they (ISU) saved a lot more than they actually did."

The University didn't include labor hours with its proposal, he said.

It's 'back in the USSR' for singer

MOSCOW (UPI) — An American identified only as a singer said Wednesday he has decided to defect to the Soviet Union with his wife and 11-year-old son in search of a life where everything is not "bought and sold."

Giving his name only as Adeem, the 31-year-old was presented to the press at a news conference arranged by Novosti, the Soviet news feature service.

The Adeems were the latest in a line of recent, unusual defections that have included an AWOL U.S. Army private, Wade Roberts, 22, and his his German girlfriend, a disaffected Texas scientist, Arnold Lockshin, and Theodore Branch, a failed Pennsylvania disc jockey.

A fired CIA employee, Edward Lee Howard, also defected nearly two years ago.

Novosti and the Tass news agency said that Adeem and his wife Raashmeen had asked for Soviet citizenship and permission to live in the Soviet Union.

Adeem and his wife identified themselves as Americans whose nationality was Indian, but said little about their past musical accomplishments except that they had been on successful tours.

But Adeem, who said he was sickened by pornography and drugs in America, told reporters he had already signed a music contract with Melodiya, sole label in the socialist Soviet Union.

Adeem said that although he and his wife "loved and treasured" America, "we do not want to live permanently in the United States, where everything without exception is bought and sold."

"It is too difficult to bring up children in a world where violence reigns along with pornography, prostitution, drugs," Adeem said.

"Our son," his wife broke in, "must receive his education in the Soviet Union."

They asked that they be allowed to live either in Leningrad or Moscow, which, along with Kiev, are the three biggest and choicest cities in the Soviet Union.

National honor given to student

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Edward J. Kandl was presented the 1986 "Volunteers for Public Lands" award June 15.

Kandl, a University graduate student, was honored by the Bureau of Land Management under the Department of the Interior for his work in paleontology. The award is a national honor.

Kandl was recognized for his work as a volunteer in the BLM's Vale District located in eastern Oregon. As part of his duties, he relocated 40 of 41 sites where fossils of extinct animals were found. He also collected a variety of specimens of extinct animals. public agencies in connecting with available volunteers in their field.

Kandl, who worked alone for 12 weeks in the eastern Oregon desert, found the pelvis of a giant ground sloth, a slow-moving herbivore that could be more than eight feet tall.

West applies for Minnesota AD job

By Beth Clewin
Staff Writer

Charlotte West, interim athletics director, has applied to be women's athletics director at the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis.

West was passed over for the position of full-time athletics director July 5, when the position was given to Jim Hart. I was encouraged to apply and I have followed through with it," she said.

The University of Minnesota has two athletics director positions: one for women's athletics and one for women's athletics.

West, who was acting athletics director since the resignation of Jim Livengood, has yet to meet with Jim Hart, SIU-C's new athletics director, to discuss serving as his assistant.

Earlier, West said she would have to meet with Hart to see what he expected of her before deciding whether she would stay. Hart said he hopes to keep West as assistant athletics director.

"The two jobs are certainly interrelated," West said. "I would like to wait until I've spoken with (Hart) before I say anything."

"I certainly hope I meet with him soon."

Hart said he isn't concerned about West leaving. "I don't think she's gonna do that," he said.

Hart was aware of West's application for the position in Minneapolis and said that may be an alternative for West.

"I'll meet with her at the right time," Hart said.

The position of women's athletics director at the University of Minnesota has been vacant since the resignation of Mairily Baker, who left to take a position with the NCAA promoting women's sports, said Vickie Courtney, staff to the search committee.

The men's athletics director position also is open at the University.

Courtney said there are 25 other applicants for the position, for which interviewing begins next week. Charlotte West will be interviewed on July 21 and 22.

The decision is expected to be reached by the end of July, Courtney said.

A Minnesota paper reported that West was the favorite for the position.

West said she has been approached by other schools, but has not applied for any other positions.

Search committee members favored West, paper says

By Beth Clewin

Some people are upset that Jim Hart was selected athletics director although more members of the search committee voted for West than for Hart, according to an article in the Chronicle of Higher Education.

The article said that five members of the search committee voted in favor in West, four for Hart, and one abstained.

Judy Auld, SIU-C tennis coach and a member of the search committee, said the statistics were not given to her the day the decision was announced, but "that's what people have quoted to me."

When asked for the statistics, President John C. Guyon, who made the selection, said, "I don't feel comfortable giving out that information."

Jim Hart sees his selection as a vote of confidence from Guyon.

"It gives me a great deal of confidence that Guyon has so much confidence in me," he said.

Trudy Hale, adviser of the Graduate and Professional

Student Council, is unhappy with the decision.

"The council voted overwhelmingly in favor of West," she said. "She was by far the most qualified candidate."

Hale said it is an inconsistency that administrative qualities weren't considered important for an administrative position.

"Why is name recognition all of a sudden a criteria for hiring?" she said. "We had a chance to hire the most qualified candidate, and we didn't."

"This was also an opportunity to send a signal that (the University) is serious about affirmative action, instead of it just being on paper," she said.

Hale said four members of the council met with Guyon and strongly endorsed West, but now they feel their participation meant nothing.

Guyon requested that outside groups give their opinions to aid in his decision.

"This is an example of a larger problem," Hale said. "It seems that what we say doesn't get listened to."

Hale said a similar thing happened with the ap-

Hart's salary set at $70,008

By Beth Clewin
Staff Writer

The proposed salary of Jim Hart, athletics director, is $5,834 per month, or $70,008 per year, according to the agenda of the Board of Trustees.

Hart's salary and appointment will go before the board for approval today.

When Jim Livengood left to be Athletics director at Washington State, his salary was $60,732.

pointment of Seymour Bryson as the affirmative action officer. She said the ideas of the Women's Task Force were not taken into consideration after their input was requested.

"I think this discourages people to get involved," she said.

West said she felt "it would be inappropriate for me to say anything now that the decision is made."

Hart says fund-raiser getting good response

By Beth Clewin
Staff Writer

Jim Hart, recently named athletics director, said Wednesday he is getting tremendous response from his first fund-raising campaign.

The campaign, "The First Fifty," in which Hart plans to collect $50,000 in 50 days, began Wednesday to collect money for the athletics department. Those who donate $1 or more will become members of the "First Fifty Club."

Hart said he does not have any definite numbers yet.

"I guess (the donations) are on my desk or on Fred Huff's (sports information director) desk," he said. "A lot of people are waiting to send donations when I begin my duties."

Hart said he plans to begin work July 19 and will come to Carbondale on the 18th so he can use the weekend to prepare for the move.

He said he will be living with friends for a while and his family will come down periodically for visits. He has, however, made plans to begin a permanent home.

"We have purchased a lot and will build on that, but it will probably be six months before we can move in," he said.

"I'm really kind of just feeling my way through the beginning of my office," he said. "I'm anxious to work with those who have supported me."

Hart was at the University late last week, but was unable to meet with Charlotte West because she was out of town.

"I'll meet with her at the right time," he said.

Hart's position is subject to approval by the Board of Trustees at their meeting today in Edwardsville.

Stoner to get $100,000

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — The University of Illinois will not be paying Athletics Director Neale R. Stoner $300,000 to resign, a spokeswoman for the school said Wednesday.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported university officials offered Stoner a settlement value of more than $300,000 to step down amid charges Stoner and other athletic association administrators received personal favors from university maintenance workers while on company time. Stoner has also been accused of paying for vacations with athletic department funds.

Don York completes rough cutting on the middle third of the Recreation Center gymnasium floor. York works for Alpha Floors Inc., which is based in Wooddale. Rough cutting removes varnish from the floor.

Rec Center repair of gym going OK

Work on the Recreation Center gymnasium floor is going as scheduled, Don York said. York is in charge of sanding and finishing the floor.

The floor is being repaired because of water damage from flooding last summer.

York said he's finished a third of the floor in the first three days. "I haven't had any setbacks, but I have an extra sander (sanding machine) in case," York said.

He expects to finish sanding the rest of the court within nine days, then he will put the court lines, paint and sealer on. The whole job should take about a month, he said.

"I may be done ahead of schedule if I don't have any interruptions or breakdowns," York said.

York will also put down two new kinds of court lines, Brian Lukes, coordinator of the Recreation Center, said.

The new courts are for intramural team handball and futsal. Futsal is a form of soccer that has slightly different rules and is played indoors. It is being used in the youth program.

Alpha from Woodale is doing the work at an estimated cost of $22,850. Another bid of $150,000 to replace the floor had been turned down.

The money for the repairs will come from the repair-replacement-modernization fund. A $1.75 of each student's Recreation Center fee goes into the fund.

The last time the floor was sanded was after landscaping problems caused damage about 10 years ago.
