7-14-1994

The Daily Egyptian, July 14, 1994

Daily Egyptian Staff

Follow this and additional works at: https://opensiuc.lib.siu.edu/de_July1994
Volume 79, Issue 171
Power change
North Korea gets new leader

By T.R. Reid
The Washington Post

SEOUL—North Korea's state-controlled radio reported Wednesday that supreme power in the reclusive Communist state has passed to Kim Jong II, saying the 52-year-old Kim has succeeded his late father, Kim II Sung, in all three of the top ruling positions.

If accurate, the report means the mysterious figure who has never been known to give a speech in public will take over as secretary general of the Workers Party, the nation's only legal party; as commander of the million-member armed forces; and as president, and commander of the million-member ruling party.

But South Korean officials said they would await verification from the North before concluding that the younger Kim has managed to carry out the transfer of power.

(In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Christine Shelly said of the announcement of Kim Jong II's succession, "We certainly have no information that suggests otherwise.")

South Korean officials said the radio report is not surprising, because the transfer of the father's power to the son had seemed to be going under the radar after the first word of Kim II Sung's death. U.S. and South Korean observers say they have seen no sign of unusual population movements or military activity in the North.

Any report about Kim Jong II on Radio Pyongyang is received here with skepticism. Kim reportedly controls the broadcast network and if there were

see KOREA, page 5

Recruitment program created for fall semester

By Marc Chase
Administration Reporter

Less than a month since state legislators criticized SIUC for a lack of effective minority student programs, the University will unleash a new program this fall for the active recruitment of minority graduate students.

The program, to run an effective and significant recruitment of 15 minority graduate students, was unjustified. The University will expand in time.

Pugh said he did not think the $60,000 that will fund PROMPT for the coming fiscal year is enough to run an effective and significant minority recruitment program.

"$60,000 sounds like the amount of money used to run a community-based organization," Pugh said.

Patricia McNeil, assistant dean of the graduate school, said the money to initially fund PROMPT is small because it is a relatively new program, but with continued effort put into the program by the University it will expand in time.

Daniels said Pugh's claim that the small amount of funding for PROMPT reflected the quality of the program was unjustified.

"I was put off by Pugh's claim that PROMPT was a cheap program," Daniels said. "Within four years, (the graduate school) project that the $60,000 used to fund PROMPT will increase to a quarter of a million dollars."难怪他一直保持着沉默。
CHILD PROSTITUTION SPREADING IN ASIA

BANGKOK, Thailand—Child prostitution is one of the saddest scourges in developing Asia. Every year, thousands of men from Western Europe, the United States and Australia fly into Southeast Asia in search of children, both boys and girls, as sex partners or to use in pornography. In the past year, Germany, France and Austria have proposed new legal measures to discourage their citizens from traveling abroad for child prostitution. In the United States, Senate and House versions of a law that would have been sent to a joint congressional committee along with the rest of the current crime bill. Although precise statistics are not available, End Child Prostitution in Asian Tourism campaign estimates that nearly one-half of all children involved are involved in Asia's sex trade, including 300,000 to 400,000 in India, 250,000 to 300,000 in Indonesia, 100,000 each in the Philippines and Taiwan, 40,000 in Vietnam and 30,000 in Sri Lanka. A recent report suggested that war-devastated Cambodia, which has few enforceable laws, is fast becoming a haven for child prostitution.

NEPALESE ELECTIONS SLATED FOR NOV. 13

KATHMANDU, Nepal—Sacked Prime Minister Girija Prasad Koirala resigned Thursday after his encouragement. The Nepalese elections have been called for Nov. 13. The jury is still out on Koirala's performance. But the leader from the Nepali Congress Party would have done well to heed the old French nobleman's prayer—"God protect me from my friends, I'll take care of my enemies"—for it was Koirala's supposed party buddies who did him in. During a crucial parliamentary vote Sunday on his government's program, 36 discontent Congress legislators abstained. Koirala was unable to muster only 74 "yes" votes in the 205-seat House of Representatives. Delighted by his fall, hundreds of people staged a victory march through Kathmandu's streets.

AP REPORTER FREED FROM KIDNAPPERS—THE WASHINGTON POST—What might he called a conspiracy to suppress the news has kept one American reporter in prison, with kidnappers demanding $1 million. On Wednesday, The Washington Post, not with holding news of the situation, published a report that a lack of publicity would help a lot in the effort to get her out," said Tom Kent, the wife service's international officer. "I have no reason to think we did the wrong thing." The abductors initially demanded $500,000, but the AP was able to curb a ransom.

CURfew LAWS DAMPER TEENS' SOCIAL LIVES—CLIFTON, Texas—Siri Kvalvik, now 17, has firsthand knowledge of some of the restrictions that are being applied. The juveniles courts, finding Siri guilty, automatically declared her a juvenile. Although it was just past 10 p.m., the curfew hour for 15-year-olds, which took effect in March, Siri was not permitted to stay out until midnight. But the police arrested Siri after they telephoned her mother, asked for the girl's whereabouts and found April Kvalvik was not at home. The Daily Egyptian in the June 17, 1994, article "Petroleum Leak Gets Cleaned Up," the amount of underground storage tanks that are leaking was reported incorrectly. The correct number according to the Sued Tank Institute is approximately 30 percent of the 1.6 million tanks are leaking. The Daily Egyptian regrets the errors.

Corrections/Clarifications

Elaine Carnevale's name, misspelled in an article in June, also was misspelled in a correction in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian. Due to incorrect information given to the Daily Egyptian in the June 17, 1994, article "Petroleum Leak Gets Cleaned Up," the amount of underground storage tanks that are leaking was reported incorrectly. The correct number according to the Sued Tank Institute is approximately 30 percent of the 1.6 million tanks are leaking. The Daily Egyptian regrets the errors.

Accuracy Desk

If readers spot an error in a news article, they can contact the Daily Egyptian Accuracy Desk at 536-3311, extension 233 or 228.
City pluckers to twang at Sunset Concert

By Paul Eisenberg
Entertainment Reporter

Very few small bands get airtime on Chicago radio mainstay WXRT, an album rock outlet. The same can be said about US99, the city's only major country station. Even fewer are played on both.

Urban Twang, tonight's Sunset Concert band, is one of those few. Vocalist Toshi Clausen, who fronts the band, said they do not write country songs, but the country flavor comes from their instrumentation.

"We were in a guitar-oriented band, and over the years, band member Max (Getzel) picked up the dobro, then he got a mandolin," she said. "Our instruments basically dictated what we do, but we're still rock 'n' rollers at heart.

Despite their leanings, the band's most recent gig was at the Taste of Chicago's Country Fest, where they shared the spotlight with country singer Ricky Skaggs and bluegrass legend Bill Monroe.

Clausen explained that there are not that many country bands playing original material in Chicago, so they are getting plenty of gigs around town. "We're getting plenty of work," she said. "We play just about every weekend now, People are even calling us back months later."

Although it seems as if Urban Twang is one of the rising stars of the Chicago music scene, Clausen was quick to deny any rumors of being "big." "If anything, we're still middle of the road," she said. "We started this way about four years ago, which I think was before country became so popular.

Guitarist and vocalist John Carpenter said the because of the instruments the band members play, each song contains elements of acoustic and electric sound.

"The rhythm section is usually the electric upright bass, but sometimes the acoustic stuff stays. We have that resonaphonic style, which gives the instrument a metallic sound," he said.

Carpenter said the band sometimes plays completely acoustic shows, but tonight's show will be fully electric. Carpenter also produced the bands latest record, a five-song EP titled "Nothing You Can Do."

Clausen said the EP has helped the band become more successful. "We have our foot in the door," she said. "We're not even regional yet. We'd like to put out a full length album first, then go on tour. We want to have something on the record store shelves before we do a full-scale tour.

Urban Twang

Hamoud Al-Khamesi, a speech communications doctoral candidate discusses Saudi Arabian culture such as clothing styles and marriage values, Wednesday afternoon at the Student Recreation Center to a group of 5-12 graders who are participating in Cultural Bridges Day. The kids learn about a new culture every day for a week, while also being exposed to various cultural traits, such as ethnic foods and games.

Route 51 bypass study renewed

By Angela Hyland
Politics Reporter

The state budget has allocated $1.2 million to continue studying a proposed bypass on Route 51, which should prevent accidents once it is built, a state engineer said Wednesday.

Joe Lenzini, design engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said a bypass which would comprise 3.9 miles of Route 51 would eliminate the need for high traffic on the winding road. "It has consistently been a high accident area," he said.

"It's one of the worst areas we have in our district," State Representative Gerald Hawkins, D-DuQuoin, said although the money only fund design and property purchasing aspects of the project, he does not believe it will be difficult to obtain additional money for construction.

"I believe we have built the case we need for the safety of the school," Hawkins said. It will be about two years before construction can begin.

The section of Route 51 being considered extends from just north of Grand Avenue in Carbondale in a section just west of Roxeystell Road, he said.

The plan requires the acquisition of 62.3 acres of land, including 32 acres of land owned by the state, 22 acres which are undeveloped or are being used for agriculture and about 2 acres of residential property, he said.

The plan will require five families to move from their homes, he said.

Lenzini said the numerous curves on this road make it difficult for drivers to see objects on the road that they might avoid. As a result, he said the road has been the site of numerous accidents which have occurred when drivers swerve off the road or collide into stop signs.

The Illinois Department of Transportation compiled a three-year accident analysis to determine whether a bypass was needed, he said.

The study reported 74 automobile accidents in 1988, 8 in 1989 and 12 in 1990. Lenzini said part of the reason so many accidents occur is because of the large amount of traffic.

Each day, 22,000 vehicles travel on the section of see BYPASS, page 6}

Probation, fines result from Shaneyfelt's DUI

By Stephanie Moletti
Police Reporter

The SIUC men's golf coach will pay $700 in fines and serve 12 months probation as a result of a recent arrest for driving under the influence of alcohol.

Eugene Shaneyfelt, who was arrested for DUI May 27, appeared at the Williamson County Court House in Marion after filing a petition to reinstate his driver's license suspension July 12.

A hardship summary suspension is a temporary suspension of driving privileges.

Shaneyfelt signed a plea of guilty and waiver of jury form. As part of his sentencing, Shaneyfelt must complete 48 hours of public service work within the next six months and enter into the Level III program by the Illinois Department of Alcohol and Substance Abuse to be completed within 180 days of conditons.

He is not allowed to either consume alcohol or enter any establishment where primary

see COACH, page 6
Strawberry returns to baseball, again

BASEBALL PLAYER DARYL STRAWBERRY has returned to the game, again, after another bout with substance abuse. He failed to appear at the beginning of the season and checked into a rehab center where he stayed for a month.

This particular adventure is just the latest in a series performed by Strawberry, who also has previously experienced tax, drug and legal problems.

Late last year, Dodgers executive vice-president Fred Claire announced the ball club would not tolerate one more incident from Strawberry. Claire, true to his word, released Strawberry from his $20 million five-year contract.

OBVIOUSLY, NOT ALL OF MAJOR LEAGUE baseball feels the same way as Claire. Strawberry was signed by the Giants after recovering from his latest relapse. Last week, the D.E. had an article concerning the hiring of homosexual persons by a quota status. This is a quota system where the color of his/her skin, or gender should lower that person's chance of being hired by a company on this mere fact. What ever happened to being hired because a person was qualified, honest, reliable, and possessed good working relations with other employees? If companies (including universities) start hiring by quotas, then there should be a quota for every "class" that continues to trouble every economic sector in the country.

But, when big league players repeatedly break the rules and are allowed back in the game, what is the message being sent here? That drugs are okay, but gambling is not? Are drugs permissible if the users promise to try really hard not to do it again?

 Granted, drug addiction is not a joke, but is a real problem that continues to trouble every economic sector in the country. However, major league players, who earn an average of $1 million per year, serve as role models to the average American family. They are the stars of the game.

The models our children currently look up to are not the best examples, but that is because the rule-breakers sometimes are also the most visible players.

BASEBALL HAS ITS SHARE OF BAD BOYS, but it also has some players who are aware of their influence and work hard to set good examples. For every Darryl Strawberry or Steve Howe, there are dozen players in the background who work hard to use their celebrity status in positive ways.

Seattle Mariner Ken Griffey Jr., for example, is active in the Make A Wish Foundation, a group which matches background who work hard to use their celebrity status in positive ways.

But, when big league players repeatedly break the rules and are allowed back in the game, what is the message being sent here? That drugs are okay, but gambling is not? Are drugs permissible if the users promise to try really hard not to do it again?

Granted, drug addiction is not a joke, but is a real problem that continues to trouble every economic sector in the country. However, major league players, who earn an average of $1 million per year, serve as role models to the average American family. They are the stars of the game.

The models our children currently look up to are not the best examples, but that is because the rule-breakers sometimes are also the most visible players.

BASEBALL HAS ITS SHARE OF BAD BOYS, but it also has some players who are aware of their influence and work hard to set good examples. For every Darryl Strawberry or Steve Howe, there are dozen players in the background who work hard to use their celebrity status in positive ways.

Seattle Mariner Ken Griffey Jr., for example, is active in the Make A Wish Foundation, a group which matches background who work hard to use their celebrity status in positive ways.

But, when big league players repeatedly break the rules and are allowed back in the game, what is the message being sent here? That drugs are okay, but gambling is not? Are drugs permissible if the users promise to try really hard not to do it again?

Granted, drug addiction is not a joke, but is a real problem that continues to trouble every economic sector in the country. However, major league players, who earn an average of $1 million per year, serve as role models to the average American family. They are the stars of the game.
KOREA, from page 1

opposition to his ascension, it would probably not be mentioned on his radio station.

In any case, analysts here say they do not think Kim Jong Il or anyone else can formally assume the three titles until after the death of Kim II Sung, which is set for

North Korea's state-run television released more videotape on Wednesday, showing dead bodies among mourners waiting and weeping before statues of the dead leader.

Citizens by the tens of thousands were seen literally heating their breasts and crying uncontrollably.

Radio Pyongyang said about 17 million North Koreans-the country has a population of 23 million—had participated in public mourning in a tightly regimented state where the law requires that everyone wear a black armband in memory of the leader.

Government officials said they expect some time will be required before the younger Kim comes to alternating again for the long-awaited summit meeting with South Korea.

A North Korean summit, the first since the Korean peninsula was divided after World War II, had been scheduled for July 25-27, but was postponed after Kim II Sung's death. A Japanese reporter who was in Pyongyang over the weekend reported that North Korea is still eager to hold the summit meeting quickly. But South Korean officials said the session will almost surely be delayed, probably not until at least fall.

There seemed to be more optimism about an early resumption of talks between

Washington and Pyongyang about North Korea's suspected nuclear weapons program that had just started in Geneva when Kim II Sung's death was announced Saturday. North Korean actions at its nuclear complex, mostly

Pyongyang had raised international tensions sharply in recent months, but slowly before his death, Kim II Sung had put the country's nuclear program on hold pending resolution of the probable. Radio Pyongyang said a U.S.-

North Korean meeting would be held in New York next Monday, U.S. officials said in Washington that the United States 'stands to resume talks' as soon as North Korea is ready to do so, the government source said, but it obviously appeared in public and rarely, if ever, met the nuclear scientists who came to visit his father.

While Kim II Sung was a man of extreme power and charm and his death always was a source of broad smile in public, his life has been hard, often deeply rooted in the most different things he is capable of life. Lacking the public stature of his father, the ruthless strongman who ran North Korea for nearly half a century, the son may have difficulty holding onto power in a country blessed with economic problems.

There was no report about what policy course he might take.

SPRINGS, from page 1

Under the agreement, Donham will be given a date notice of any activities and a chance to challenge any work for the Chicago Belt Line, 15 miles of roadwork, according to a press release from the Regional Transportation of Concerned Environmentalists.

Donham filled the motion for preliminary injunction

after receiving a letter

acquainting him that logging in Bell Smith Springs.

The motion was part of an on going lawsuit in which Donham challenged the U.S. Forest

Service's plan to restore a flood plain at Bell Smith Springs.

Donham, in his motion for a preliminary injunction, acquainted that logging in the

Bell Smith Springs area cease until the resolution of the case. However, the U.S.

Forest Service has contacted the contractors involved to cancel the contract of logging companies.

In many cases, contractors involved have agreed not to timber log until the district or other action is fulfilled, according to the environmental group.

Road work is authorized, according to the

Chicago Belt Line Central Road, East

Burrage Road and the Central Road. The contractors can only fill potholes, widen the road, give the roads on-tree cutting, and improve the roads

Sam Stroh, Friends of

Bell Smith Springs spokes-note, while both Donham's endevors are worth while.

"Thank goodness those are indies," another activist said, "but Donham is that defend their time and energy to protect the place. He's the only one who is regrettable that private citizen has to fill the role of policeman, with which the U.S. Forest Service has indicated."

Texas nights end earlier for teens

The Washington Post
CLIFTON, Texas—There’s nothing much to do here at night. Leonard Gayle, 17, likes to maneuver his 1965 Chevy pickup truck through the countryside, winding up and down Rte. 6, but it is liable to get him in trouble. He has been seen urging his friends on to speed on the highway, and this is something called “exhibitionist acceleration.”

His friends race their trucks into the Glen Dandy parking lot at the darkest part of the night and air the family coolers—silhouettes in baseball caps, their T-shirts a gloxity blue in the dim light. Cliifton might seem to have the tense, the restlessness of a town that has been totally touched by time, with its “ding” and its Daisy Queen and the nightly rhythms of its youth. But, in fact, Cliifton’s authorities are worried about crime, and the evil influences of a modern world, thus they have passed a new law that they have joined in a national trend that sharply divides the children from the grown-ups and anoints police as surrogate parents: the nightly youth curfew.

The span of less than five years, officials in nearly 1,000 jurisdictions—from Phoenix and Newark to tiny Frost, Texas—have chosen the controversial method as a way of fighting the growth of organized crime, the drug trade, and the evil innuence of a modem world, that they have passed a new law that they have joined in a national trend that sharply divides the children from the grown-ups and anoints police as surrogate parents: the nightly youth curfew.

Curfews are not new. They were employed in this country at the turn of the century to curb rising crime among immigrant youth, and then during World War II as an aid to patriotic otherwise busy with the war.

The Supreme Court on May 31 gave a boost to this resurgence of teen curfews by refraining to hear a constitutional challenge to a Florida law, in effect forcing local officials to enact curfews with police power.

So popular is the concept that Gov. Ann Richards (D), in a recent speech to teenage legislators, urged communities across Texas to adopt curfews.
New environmental center to be completed in April 1995

By Sam House

Environmental Reporter

The center that keeps SIUC inside about hazardous material and occupational regulations is getting a new building for offices and laboratories for Douglas Drive near the Poultry Center.

Construction of the Center for Environmental Health and Safety's new building began last week.

The new structure will provide offices, space, laboratories and storage facilities for hazardous materials, James Tyrell, director of the center said.

Currently, the center is divided between four different office spaces across campus.

The new building will consolidates office space and laboratories which is better for the center economically and management purposes, said Tyrell.

"We hope to move in by spring," he said.

The building will be one story and cover approximately 12,500 square feet. Harry D. Wirsh, director of Plant and Service Operations, said total cost is $2 million which includes all equipment needed. Funding was appropriated in 1991 and released in June. 1995 by the Illinois Capital Development Board.

Women hit "Green Ceiling" on golf course, sports box

By Dottie Enrico

Newsday

Barbara sat down in the executive conference room and began to go over her notes for the presentation—a pitch to a major computer company that could bring in $5 million in billings for her management consulting firm and earn her a bonus equal to half her annual base salary.

Just as she was about to take another sip of strong coffee, she overheard her colleague Bob bringing congratulations for bringing in the very same computer account over the weekend.

"I thought it would be too costly for some students, but I just want to be sure the student body is happy with whatever is chosen," said. "Some of it I can concur with, but some of it I would fight till the end," she said. "A $5 visit can turn a $39 visit, so emergency care shouldn't cost $55.

Meister said more programs could be offered if more money was available, but that a user fee may not be the way to raise it. "Here's how I look at it: every time I use the health service I feel it," she said, "I'd rather pay at the beginning."

Meister said it would be reasonable to charge additional fees for services such as pap smears and prescription refills. "A $5 pap smear is reasonable," she said. "You could pay $65 to $100 for one in the outside world." Jennifer Meister, chairman of the Student Health Advisory Board, said she had mixed feelings about the proposal. "I thought it would be too costly for some students, but I just want to be sure the student body is happy with whatever is chosen." —Jennifer Meister

"We need an increase somewhere," she said. "We haven't had a unit fee increase in three years so we are really due over." Meister said cuts in services would force more students to get service elsewhere, which would increase insurance claims and drive up student insurance fees.

"In-house treatment keeps insurance fees low," she said. Meister said she would like to see improvements made in facilities, and more in-house treatments made available to keep students' medical expenses down. Gradate and Professional Student Council President Patrick Smith said the council has not objected to or endorsed the user fee proposal. "I don't think there was really any carte blanche opposition, but there were a lot of questions," he said. "We made it clear (to Buck) that we weren't about to rubber stamp anything."

Buck said if student leaders approved the user fee proposal, he would have made it available for consideration by the administration. "I would have forwarded it to Vice President Harvey Welch, recommending that we implement it now," he said.

Buck said he would not make a recommendation for the health program until both student government make a decision. Options available for the health program in fiscal year 1996 include increasing revenue through an extension in user fees, increasing prepaid student fees and cutting programs, according to Buck.

Buck said an increase in fees would only help the health program break even, and would not make additional services available. Meister said she was confident Buck would consider students concerns in making a final decision.

"I have a lot of faith in Bob," she said. "He will listen to us and take our concerns seriously."
Coming soon to a campus near you... Distance Learning

Imagine attending international business classes at Cairo High School taught by a professor in Cairo...Egypt. Or taking a French history course from an instructor at the Sorbonne in Paris from the convenience of a classroom in Paris, Illinois.

Someday, these scenarios may be reality, thanks to a statewide effort to use sophisticated telecommunications technology to improve access to and the quality of higher education.

Fueled with a $15 million state grant, SIUC and dozens of other Illinois schools have started building high-tech distance learning classrooms which will allow SIUC to reach students far from campus. With another $15 million in state funding this year, distance learning will be able to connect to countries around the world.

SIUC will complete its first two distance learning classrooms by the end of this summer. One is in Lawson Hall and the other in the basement of Morris Library. In addition to the usual furnishings, these classrooms will contain two video cameras, several 27-inch color TV monitors and a sound system with strategically placed microphones.

These specially designed rooms will be linked to similar facilities at universities, community colleges, high schools and even businesses and prisons in Southern Illinois. For a list of sites, see Distance Learning centers in Southern Illinois. They'll be connected by telephone lines that transmit near broadcast quality video signals.

Read on to find out how this one classroom of the future will be used.

Learning in the electronic age

Here's how distance learning will work in a hypothetical example of a class conducted in a specially equipped room in Lawson Hall on campus and a similar one at Rend Lake College near Ina.

Two video cameras are positioned in Lawson Hall. One focuses on the professor conducting the class. The second focuses on the class. Images and sounds of the instructor and students travel via phone line to a Rend Lake College "distance learning" classroom and appear on TV monitors.

Students at Rend Lake can ask questions or make comments. As they talk into microphones, a camera will focus on them, sending images and sounds back to the television monitors in Lawson.

A site coordinator at Rend Lake College would pass out written material, handle equipment problems and monitor testing.

Contrary to what you might think, studies indicate that the grades for students in a distance learning environment are as good as or better than those of students in conventional classes. Experts theorize that students at extension sites pay closer attention to what's going on than if they were in the same room as the professor.

And distance learning classes can be taped for later viewing.

Distance learning will transform higher education. Students will no longer have to leave home to attend the four-year university of their choice. And returning to school for older students with full-time jobs may be as easy as driving to the local high school.

In short, what is now largely an experience for young people living and learning within a communal setting will become an option for folks of any age virtually anywhere in the world.
Long Distance (continued)

three more numbers when calling Marion, Murphysboro or any other local town, faculty, staff and students will need to reprogram automatic dialers, speed-calling equipment, computer modems or any other equipment used for dialing long-distance numbers.

You'll have until Dec. 31, 1994, to become familiar with the new rule and update any equipment you have. As of the first of next year, you must dial all 10 digits to complete your long-distance calls within the 618 area code. If you forget, you'll get a recorded message asking you to re-dial.

As of June 30, 1995, we will stop taking service calls for IBM PC local area networks, because IBM has dropped support for these outdated operating systems. For details on upgrading to an OS/2 LAN server, Novell or Windows for Workgroups, call Bill Baron at 453-6293.

To find out the recommendations for higher education in the 21st century made by a group of experts in education, business, public life and philanthropy, check out "An American Imperative, The Report of the Wingspread Group." It's an option on the LINKS submenu of the Campus Wide Information System (CWIS). The Wingspread Group is a project sponsored by the Johnson Foundation and three other private foundations.

All about E-Mail storage

What happens to the electronic mail that I send and receive at SIUC?

It depends on the type of mail you're talking about. Here's a quick rundown of what happens to the various kinds you might be writing or reading:

OfficeVision/VM—Once you open the mail, it is stored on your personal disk (A-disk), and discarding it is up to you. (Unopened mail remains stored on C/V/VM disks and never expires.) As for the mail you send, it can be stored on your personal disk and discarded at will.

Lotus Notes—Mail you send or receive is stored on the Lotus Notes server until you delete it.

ListServer—If you subscribe to ListServer from VM, mail you receive is stored on the VM spool (system disk). If it is unopened, it will be purged after 14 calendar days. Once you open the mail, it is stored on your personal disk and discarding it is up to you.

Mailing Lists/BITNET—Same as ListServer.

POP (Post Office Protocol)—Mail destined for you is temporarily held on the mail server until you open your mailbox (a retention period hasn't yet been determined for unopened mail). Mail you send can be stored on your personal disk and discarded at your discretion.

SMTP (Simple Mail Transfer Protocol)—Mail is stored on the SMTP server disk for five days. If it isn't delivered by the end of that time, a copy goes back to the sender, and the original is erased by the server. Mail you send can be stored on your personal disk and deleted.

Other Internet services for information (e.g., Gopher, Mosaic, Veronica)—Data and e-mail may be sent to your personal disk or VM account, and it is up to you to retain or remove it. Mail you send can be stored on your personal disk and discarded when you want.
Clean up that mess!

Silas Hines, a backhoe operator with J.K. Robinson construction of 13 years, levels out a load of hot asphalt across from Thompson Point during some road maintenance on Lincoln Dr. The crew began repairs early Wednesday.

Pink Floyd will see green after tour

The Washington Post

The figures aren't in yet, but it looks as though Pink Floyd walked away from its weekend shows at RFR Stadium with about $3.8 million. That's based on recent figures for a pair of shows at Cleveland Municipal Stadium, which has a similar seating capacity of 55,000.

Little wonder that Pink Floyd is likely to end up with the highest-grossing tour in history. The old North American record, $98 million, was set by the Rolling Stones' "Steel Wheels" tour in 1989. But the Floydies look to break that. With 40 European stadium shows through September, the band is expected to gross more than $200 million by summer's end. They are not expected to gross more than $200 million by summer's end.

It's high ticket prices that have allowed Barbra Streisand to set some records of her own. For instance, Streisand's seven shows at Madison Square Garden have set a world record ticket sales gross for a single run: $166 million, compared with $116 million the Stones took in for six shows at Shea Stadium!

Streisand, whose tickets were for as high as $350 (or, as she likes to point out, only $12.50 if you amortize the price by the 28 years she's been on the road) now holds the top three spots of all time, though she's behind on people numbers.
God may have created the world as a whole, but it’s not safe to get a gospel concert at the SIUC Student Center. Now, for the first time, a concert of heavenly magnificence will take place.

Willie Neal Johnson and the New Keynotes from Tyler, Texas, along with some local bands and soloists, will perform a gospel concert from 6 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. July 15 in the Student Center Auditorium.

The concert will also feature the quartet-style bands the Squeezebox Singers from Memphis and the Spiritual Travelers from Carbondale.

The concert is called “A New Beginning” because it is the first concert of this magnitude being brought to this area.

Local guest soloists such as Charlie Dixon and Sister Corrine Hughlett, as well as the Grizzly family, singing group will also perform, James said.

Johnson said it is the Keynote’s first concert in Carbondale. We play east, west, north and south,” Johnson said.

California to Texas to the Chicago Gospel Club.

He said the four singers and five-piece band play gospel music and hope to draw all kinds of people to the show. We’re trying to get a message to the people — there is a God and there’s so much dope and stuff in the world that the world doesn’t know about,” Johnson said.

Their latest compact disc, “Country Boy Goes Home,” along with videos of the band will be available at the show, he said.

The band will perform its first tour in Springfield and St. Louis.

Johnson said the band tried to have a good rapport with the audience, who also attend the concert will have a chance to speak with Johnson and other band members after the concert at a reception.

“Denver is the home of the concert, sponsored by the Spiritual Travelers.”

On track: Partnership could mean safer railroads

WASHINGTON — The Federal Railroad Administration and the railroads intend to develop a system that would stop trains headed toward collision, given in June. The Labor Department reported Wednesday, providing yet another piece of good news at the end of a week.

The Consumer Price Index, which measures the change in prices consumers pay for a representative basket of goods and services, rose 0.1 percent in June.

The index increased 0.2 percent in May and 0.1 percent in April.

Inflation for the first six months of the year is running at an annual rate of 2.5 percent, compared with 2.6 percent for the same period last year. "I don’t think we see any signs of inflation or deflation," said Lawrence H. Meyer, executive vice president of Economy.com, a New York-based consulting firm.

The increase in the consumer price index was in line with most economists’ expectations, but perhaps because the rise in consumer prices did not cause the council to believe that inflation will be a problem for the economy.

The increase in consumer prices, which are sampled in stores and homes, has been driven by a number of factors, including rising oil prices and tax increases.

Consumer prices rose in June largely because of an increase in transportation prices, the result of a 0.4 percent increase in new car prices, a 1.2 percent increase in used car prices, and a 3.9 percent increase in airfares.

Other products were noteworthy because their prices rose little or not at all. Medical care prices increased in March, but rose at a 0.1 percent annual rate for the first half of the year, the year-over-year rate.

For services, prices of hotel rooms were down at a 0.7 percent annual rate for the first half of the year, the year-over-year rate.

Prices for gasoline, which fell at a 0.2 percent annual rate for the first half of the year, the year-over-year rate, will rise more slowly in the near future, according to the Labor Department report.

Other products also rose but at a slower pace.
In this dark and stormy baseball season, the action is not so much for a team or a player but for a date in time.

Despite the power of the wrapper-outlet conflict meaning the loss of the exalted of Exit.

If strikers could locate the roots of this new playoff system, make up some of the last two games and set the scene for the World Series in the snow in Cleveland and Montreal.

If the strike comes in September, when the workers can hurt the boxseat most, it would almost be impossible to save the World Series.

If there's no World Series, what's the point?

The long-term damage to baseball couldn't be big.

(As an aside, just think, if the Indians—first place in the AL, Crown of Glory, on the way to the playoffs and the Yankees don't, every team in the league besides Chicago and Texas and the Yankees.)

Whatever you may think about players' greed and dissoluteness, most of them held the World Series above money. That's what they play for. The high-paid player just began to seek those rights, it's the players who have now but not so startling to recognize that the give-backs have been from the same mentality that sees life in the rearview mirror.

They are seeking a salary cap in addition to the tax they've had since 1965, that would seem to be an unholy combination.

The NBA has hit, but the NBL was at the brink of bankruptcy and needed the players' willingness to accept a one-sided nonserious proposal. One announced player can make a difference in basketball, as the absence of Michael Jordan demonstrated.

Whatever the grating of teeth comes from baseball owners, it's hard to hear poverty when the attendance figures showed $271 million last year.

Consider that Senzenbrenner paid $175 million for the Yankees and Wilson and Doubleday bought the Dodgers for $285 million.

If the Orioles sold for that much, what profit might the Yankees and Dodgers make?

The owners argue that they need a salary cap to make competition possible. They point out that there are national TV revenue for that.

They do not share local TV revenue, which has a tremendous disparity between, say New York and Oakland. Should the players have to make up that difference?

First let the owners develop a system of storing revenue and still leaving incentive to put a better product on the field.

And if really it is that some teams will go bankrupt and some cities don't have the money to buy their teams, that's a reality of changing demographics.

But this belt has not had expansion on expansion because it created more jobs and more money and for that reason we have the pitching Griffeys, Thomas and Williams see every day.

Oh, clearly you see that 33 years ago when Maris broke Ruth's record about 34 years.

Yes, in 1961 baseball expanded from 16 to 18 teams.

In 1993 baseball expanded to 30 teams. That means for there is an excess of 100 more nominal players now than there were in 1961.

Within a year, the 18 teams in the last World Series came about, and the hope was to strike a blow for Philadelphia with the sign: "Will pitch middle relief for food."
Let’s Make a Deal!

Special

ON 3 BEDROOMS

Apply before July 15th to receive $100.00 off rent

SUGA*TREE APARTMENTS

3 LOCATIONS IN CARBONDALE

1 LOCATION IN MURPHYSDORF

529-4511 529-4611 529-4610

SPECIALS

FOR RENT

PARK Place DOB, quiet, air conditioned $515.00, 1 bdrm. 1 bath. 515-2429. 5:45-1801.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY 2 bed, central air, quiet residential area. $575.00/month. Again 529-3487.

NON SMOKING FEMALE or couple to share nice 2 bed, 2 bath, in desire location. $695.00. Call 477-5295. 529-3487.

WANTED FEMALES GRAD student or working girl to share my 3 bed, 1 bath home. Home like pictures. $700.00/month plus utilities. 529-3172.

FRESHMAN, SOON-2-Sr. & Seniors & Grad. Housing for fall. Call 529-1320.

FREE OF RENT

MALE, SERIOUS, Good for in or out of College. 1 bedroom. $650.00. Call 609-477-5329. 529-3487.

NEW 2 ROOMMATES WANTED FOR Furnished, central air, low income student housing on SIU West. Call 529-3070.

NEW 2 BEDROOMS. Also 3 bedroom and 4 bedroom housing for College students. Contact off-campus, low income student housing on SIU West. Call 529-3070.

HUSBANDS AVAILABLE Long established. Rent very attuned to school. 509 S. College. 529-3221.

NEW & FANCY & FAST, well maintained, 1 bdrm. - 2 bdrm. apartments in downtown. Call 985-4200. 549-4980.

FROM APARTMENT for unusual persons. 2 bdrm., 2 bath. 529-3211.

GARDEN PARK APARTS

2-1 bedroom apartments. 1 bdrm apt.

1 bath apt. 102 N. Illinois 2nd flr. 529-6707.

FOUR BEDROOMS

1 bedroom for rent. Call 457-7924.

SUGA*TREE APARTMENTS

3 LOCATIONS IN CARBONDALE

1 LOCATION IN MURPHYSDORF

529-4511 529-4611 529-4610

FOR RENT

OUR BEST RENTALS FOR FALL. LOW INCOME STUDENTS. CALL 529-3487.

One bedroom, 1 bath, modern, in city. Rent $125.00. Contact off-campus housing on SIU West. Call 529-3070.

SUGA*TREE APARTMENTS

3 LOCATIONS IN CARBONDALE

1 LOCATION IN MURPHYSDORF

529-4511 529-4611 529-4610

SPECIALS

FOR RENT

PARK Place DOB, quiet, air conditioned $515.00, 1 bdrm. 1 bath. 515-2429. 5:45-1801.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY 2 bed, central air, quiet residential area. $575.00/month. Again 529-3487.

NON SMOKING FEMALE or couple to share nice 2 bed, 2 bath, in desire location. $695.00. Call 477-5295. 529-3487.

WANTED FEMALES GRAD student or working girl to share my 3 bed, 1 bath home. Home like pictures. $700.00/month plus utilities. 529-3172.

FRESHMAN, SOON-2-Sr. & Seniors & Grad. Housing for fall. Call 529-1320.

FREE OF RENT

MALE, SERIOUS, Good for in or out of College. 1 bedroom. $650.00. Call 609-477-5329. 529-3487.

NEW 2 ROOMMATES WANTED FOR Furnished, central air, low income student housing on SIU West. Call 529-3070.

NEW 2 BEDROOMS. Also 3 bedroom and 4 bedroom housing for College students. Contact off-campus, low income student housing on SIU West. Call 529-3070.

HUSBANDS AVAILABLE Long established. Rent very attuned to school. 509 S. College. 529-3221.

NEW & FANCY & FAST, well maintained, 1 bdrm. - 2 bdrm. apartments in downtown. Call 985-4200. 549-4980.

FROM APARTMENT for unusual persons. 2 bdrm., 2 bath. 529-3211.

GARDEN PARK APARTS

2-1 bedroom apartments. 1 bdrm apt.

1 bath apt. 102 N. Illinois 2nd flr. 529-6707.

FOUR BEDROOMS

1 bedroom for rent. Call 457-7924.

SUGA*TREE APARTMENTS

3 LOCATIONS IN CARBONDALE

1 LOCATION IN MURPHYSDORF

529-4511 529-4611 529-4610
Cruises needed. Fares up to $1,000.00 on Cruise Ships around the world. Full and part-time employment available. Nels.
60-730-5450 and 6549.

OFFICE ASSISTANT: Typing, word processing, data entry, newsletter proofreading, and assist prospective students about opportunities at the University. Position will involve evening and weekend work. Bachelor’s degree required. FAX: 255-3200.

MOVE IN TODAY

1 & 2 BD, 630 S 180-Program Coordinator, JCCMHC, 604 E College, Suite 101, Carbondale, IL
250. 2 bdrm, $275-350. 3 E. College, Suite 101, Carbondale, IL

C烜SHADED CORNER LOT in town Carter's Cove $200/mo;
684-5446

Toweling, sheeting, recycling, marketing, counseling, and human services/education.
Position requires four years of college and related

IDEAS FOR AVAILABILITY:...
Bonds says other stars not threat

He's also one of baseball's premier talents.

He was elected a National League All-Star in a season that would satisfy most players—388 average, 32 home runs and 123 runs batted in. "I'm not finished yet," he said. "I'm playing and not making excuses. I'd love to be in the hospital not to play, to be better at 80 percent than my back was going to play, to love to play and I'm still alive."

Injuries, however, have made him less a threat, and the departure of the team's chief star, Barry Bonds, has rolled up numbers that "make me look as if I'm standing still," he said. "I mean, Griffey is the best hitter I've ever seen. Most of us have to work on our strength. But he can do it—oh boy. He's an awesome, raw talent." He's a great hitter, Bonds said, and he's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but I'm not going to give up. I'm going to keep at it to win my fourth. No one has ever done that, and I want to be the first.

Bonds, of course, isn't just letting those other guys have their year. He's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but he's also one of baseball's premier talents.

This year, however, a dislocated shoulder and elbow spurs that he should have operated on consistently on pitches he should drive—evidence on two successive Tuesday nights—and which will require surgery when the season ends, have inhibited his ability to re-establish his MVP form.

"I'm just letting these other guys have their year, but I'll be back next year, and the year after that and the year after that. I'm going to be a top guy again. I have those other guys won three MVPs? I don't want to hear about other guys have their best team to watch."

In the meantime, Bonds conceded that Griffey and Thomas are cutting up numbers that "make me look as if I'm standing still." He's in there too.

"Hey, talk to him," he said, pointing to Morgan. "He's in the Hall of Fame." Johnny Bench enters. "He's in there too."

For a moment, when no one had entered. "I mean, Griffey is the best hitter I've ever seen. Most of us have to work on our strength. But he can do it—oh boy. He's an awesome, raw talent." He's a great hitter, Bonds said, and he's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but I'm not going to give up. I'm going to keep at it to win my fourth. No one has ever done that, and I want to be the first.

Bonds, of course, isn't just letting those other guys have their year. He's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but he's also one of baseball's premier talents.

This year, however, a dislocated shoulder and elbow spurs that he should have operated on consistently on pitches he should drive—evidence on two successive Tuesday nights—and which will require surgery when the season ends, have inhibited his ability to re-establish his MVP form.

COSTAS, from page 16

He starts, and then stops. Twice. Is he rusty? Nervous? No, Costas' concern is his own writing, his own words. "By the way," he said, waving a sheet of paper with scribbled, slanted sentences and crossed-out phrases, "this is the way I wrote it in my own poetry. Lincoln wrote the Gettysburg Address on an envelope, and not making excuses. I'd love to be in the hospital not to play, to be better at 80 percent than my back was going to play, to love to play and I'm still alive."

Injuries, however, have made him less a threat, and the departure of the team's chief star, Barry Bonds, has rolled up numbers that "make me look as if I'm standing still," he said. "I mean, Griffey is the best hitter I've ever seen. Most of us have to work on our strength. But he can do it—oh boy. He's an awesome, raw talent." He's a great hitter, Bonds said, and he's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but I'm not going to give up. I'm going to keep at it to win my fourth. No one has ever done that, and I want to be the first.

Bonds, of course, isn't just letting those other guys have their year. He's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but he's also one of baseball's premier talents.

This year, however, a dislocated shoulder and elbow spurs that he should have operated on consistently on pitches he should drive—evidence on two successive Tuesday nights—and which will require surgery when the season ends, have inhibited his ability to re-establish his MVP form.

"I'm just letting these other guys have their year, but I'll be back next year, and the year after that and the year after that. I'm not done yet."

—Barry Bonds

He was elected a National League All-Star in a season that would satisfy most players—388 average, 32 home runs and 123 runs batted in. "I'm not finished yet," he said. "I'm playing and not making excuses. I'd love to be in the hospital not to play, to be better at 80 percent than my back was going to play, to love to play and I'm still alive."

Injuries, however, have made him less a threat, and the departure of the team's chief star, Barry Bonds, has rolled up numbers that "make me look as if I'm standing still."

"I mean, Griffey is the best hitter I've ever seen. Most of us have to work on our strength. But he can do it—oh boy. He's an awesome, raw talent." He's a great hitter, Bonds said, and he's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but I'm not going to give up. I'm going to keep at it to win my fourth. No one has ever done that, and I want to be the first.

Bonds, of course, isn't just letting those other guys have their year. He's always part put-on and larger parts ego and arrogance, but he's also one of baseball's premier talents.

This year, however, a dislocated shoulder and elbow spurs that he should have operated on consistently on pitches he should drive—evidence on two successive Tuesday nights—and which will require surgery when the season ends, have inhibited his ability to re-establish his MVP form.
Athlete moves off field into office
Zoeteman finds summer job at SIUC athletics

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Reporter

While many of SIUC's football players will be making contributions to the team when practice opens next month, offensive lineman Jeff Zoeteman has been busy this summer preparing fans for another aspect of Saluki athletics.

Zoeteman, a 6-2, 270-pound offensive lineman, is one of the summer's off-season workers for Saluki athletics in the marketing and promotions office as a sales representative.

A senior recreation major who has an associate's degree in law enforcement, Zoeteman said he is learning about what is involved with all the advertising and how the advertising is marketed.

When his internship is over, Zoeteman said the rest of the football team will attempt to accommodate new head coach in prime viewing position.

Athlete moves off field into office
Zoeteman finds summer job at SIUC athletics

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Reporter

While many of SIUC's football players will be making contributions to the team when practice opens next month, offensive lineman Jeff Zoeteman has been busy this summer preparing fans for another aspect of Saluki athletics.

Zoeteman, a 6-2, 270-pound offensive lineman, is one of the summer's off-season workers for Saluki athletics in the marketing and promotions office as a sales representative.

A senior recreation major who has an associate's degree in law enforcement, Zoeteman said he is learning about what is involved with all the advertising and how the advertising is marketed.

When his internship is over, Zoeteman said the rest of the football team will attempt to accommodate new head coach in prime viewing position.

Athlete moves off field into office
Zoeteman finds summer job at SIUC athletics

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Reporter

While many of SIUC's football players will be making contributions to the team when practice opens next month, offensive lineman Jeff Zoeteman has been busy this summer preparing fans for another aspect of Saluki athletics.

Zoeteman, a 6-2, 270-pound offensive lineman, is one of the summer's off-season workers for Saluki athletics in the marketing and promotions office as a sales representative.

A senior recreation major who has an associate's degree in law enforcement, Zoeteman said he is learning about what is involved with all the advertising and how the advertising is marketed.

When his internship is over, Zoeteman said the rest of the football team will attempt to accommodate new head coach in prime viewing position.