9 Salukis Picked For All-Star Team By Daily Egyptian

Five underclassmen and four veterans make up the second annual Daily Egyptian All-Star Sports Team.

Pictures and a short biographical sketch of each of the nine members named plus the Most Valuable Player appear on pages 10 and 11.

The team was selected by Daily Egyptian sports writers. Selections were based on individual performances during the season and on each individual's worth to his team.

Selections were made in football, basketball, gymnastics, wrestling, swimming, track, baseball, tennis and golf. The balloting was the closest in basketball, swimming and track. As a result, honorable mentions were given to George McNeil and Joe Ramsey in basketball, Kimo Miles in swimming and Gary Carr in track.

The balloting was also close for the most valuable player with a three-way battle between gymnast Frank Schmitz, swimmer Thom McAnaney and baseball pitcher Gene Vincent.

The sports writers also gave a special vote of recognition to members of the women's gymnastics team for their repeated achievements throughout the school year.

COACH OF THE YEAR—Jack Hartman coached the basketball team to the runner up in the NCAA Small College Tournament and 14 wins in 15 games at home. He now has a 56-26 career record at SIU.

He is one of only two American consultants in philosophy to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Election Turnout Poorest Since '62

1,043 Tally Half of '64 Vote

The student government election Tuesday produced the poorest turnout of voters since 1962.

Only 1,043 students voted Tuesday, 1,116 less than the 2,124 who voted in 1962.

In 1963, when Dick Moore was elected president and Gerry Howe vice president, the turnout was 2,934 votes, a difference of 1,926 over this year's election. The difference in the number of votes is more than was cast this year.

The results of last year's elections, in which Pat Micken and Donald Grant were named to the top two posts, showed 2,600 votes cast for the offices. That total is 1,592 more than the number cast this year.

Bad Neighborhood Is Seen as Cause Of Delinquency

The delinquency of youth may be more a reflection of the neighborhoods in which they live than of the home life provided by their parents, according to Daniel Glaser, chairman of the Department of Sociology at the University of Illinois.

Glaser made the statement during a session of the 14th annual Conference on Correctional Education held yesterday.

The speaker during a critique on correctional education, Glaser said the average income of a neighborhood within a large city is closely related to the average school performance, prevailing attitude toward schooling, and delinquency rates within the neighborhood.

"Youth reflect the school conditions of their neighborhoods, in addition to their individual school problems," the SIU speaker said, "although correctional education has tended to focus on the individual attributes."

Glaser cited differences between schools from neighborhoods of diverse income. In districts where the average family income reported was below $3,000 a year, according to studies cited, an average achievement test score for fourth grade students was 3.5; in school districts where family income averaged $9,000 or more a year, the average score was 4.8.

The SIU conference, following the theme "The Great Society Challenges Correctional Education," was sponsored by Southern's Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections in cooperation with the University extension division and the Correctional Education Association.

Myrl E. Alexander, former SIU faculty member who heads the Federal Bureau of Prisons, gave the closing address.

George J. Paluch, this year's winner of the top position, ran on a ballot that listed only one candidate each for president and vice president.

Paluch commanded 802 votes of the 1,008 cast for president. Last year Micken received 1,194. In 1963 Moore received 1,507, and in 1962 Fenwick received 1,072.

John Paul Davis, Paluch's running mate for vice president, received 830 votes of those cast for the position.

Donald Grant received 1,141 votes for the post in last year's election. The year before, 1963, Gerry Howe won with 1,439, and in 1962 Ted A. Hutton received 1,102 votes.

Professors and U.S. Policy

In much the same sense that a little learning is a dangerous thing, a little academic debate on Viet Nam of the kind we were treated to recently goes a very long way.

Not that we have heard the last of it by any means. The good professors had hardly caught their breath before they were calling for more and better "teach-ins" at which to belabor government officials. The technique, if they have their way, will become a permanent fixture of the American system. Already, presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy is being lectured about his "public duty" to make up for his enforced absence from the last debate.

In short, the Inter-University Committee for a Public Hearing on Viet Nam threatens to become something of a permanent pain in the neck. And it will be supported in this ambition by a good many people who confuse honest inquiry and freedom of public discussion with the "right" of a completely unofficial and unrepresentative group to call public officials to public account on the most sensitive on-going issues.

In some countries, to be sure, government officials take part in parliamentary debates. But in such parliaments the opposition represents someone and, along with the government, is responsible to the voters of the nation.

Professors, of course, have responsibilities, too. But no one so far as we know elected the orators who rose with such self-righteous fervor to denounce the government for its "mistakes" recently.

There was, indeed, nothing whatever in common between a parliamentary debate and this performance. The successive statements were really nothing more than a series of partisan harangues, unresponsive to each other and almost wholly unenlightening when it came to practical alternatives for our policies in Southeast Asia.

Nor can the Inter-University Committee do better in the future. Because what this group seeks is neither honest inquiry nor a "sound" policy in Vietnam or anywhere else.

What it seeks for itself is a privileged and institutionalized position as the intellectual gadfly of government.

And this, coming from a small group of dissident pedagogues, is an absurd bit of presumption.

Socrates, His Disciple Engage in a Dialogue

Soc.: Do you want to get what you've been after all your life?

Dis.: What's that?

Soc.: Your goals. Do you want to get to your goals?

Dis.: I guess so.

Soc.: Then here's what you have to do. You've got to extend democracy beyond the political field. You've got to stop crying, "How can I make a living?" and start asking "How can I make a contribution to the Family of Man and to the continuity of the generations? What can I do for all our grandchildren that haven't been born? How can I most efficiently and most rapidly reorganize business life so that every last employe shares in profits and has some consulting voice in management?" Make a life, not a mere living!!

Dis.: Maybe you've got something there!

Soc.: Of course. We have to start asking answerable questions and struggling with genuine problems. The more specific you can get, the greater will be the value achieved eventually. For example, don't merely ask, How can I avoid the twin evils of Individualism and Collectivism? Or worse yet—the bogeyman called "Imperialism" (by the Reds) or "Communism" (by the Deadheads). Ask a paternalism—in case you don't know any businessmen or industrialists at all, whom you could talk to about the changeover—are these: hunger, disease, illiteracy, mediocrity, parental irresponsibility, indifference to the state of crisis in the world—and, in general, ignorance. These are real problems as distinct from the pseudo-problems. One such artificial headache is that of "national security"—for there is no security in this world. We have to learn to live with creative insecurity. Another phony issue: Would you rather be Red or Dead? The genuine choice is Life or Death; where there's some life left, there's still hope. But where there is the spirit of reprisal, face-saving, "we'll show those commies they aren't going to get away with anything!" etc., there is death. If the Communists (for anyone else) should go mad and bomb part of the world, shall we go equally berserk and bomb whatever remains on this Earth? Yet that seems to be the U.S. foreign "policy": Massive Retaliation it is called; we also rely on Nuclear Deterrence. I wonder what it can deter?

Dis.: Deterrence is a nice word for intimidation. Yet the "protection racket" never did deter anxiety or trouble. Maybe we are deluding ourselves.

Soc.: You're so right. If we want our countrymen to be admired and respected by the overwhelming majority of the world's people—and thus know that the U.S.A. shall have a good name everywhere, and for a long time to come—I think we need to listen to Prof. Robert Maynard Hutchins, a director of the Ford Foundation, who wrote the editorial (sic) printed in The Daily Egyptian May 25, 1965. If I were you, Disciple, I'd look it up, and read it again, reflectively, pondering every word.

Dis.: That's a good idea. I will read that over, Socrates.

Dis.: I believe I'll try it. It may take me the rest of my life; it's a big project!

Soc.: I agree. Yet it's worth it. Other authentic issues, besides business

Foe of Status Quo

There appeared, in the June 1 Daily Egyptian, an enlightened letter by Prof. William Henry Harris indicting the Egyptian's editorial selection of cartoons and wire service bulletins. Immediately below it, one John Matheson, Graduate Assistant, wrote an apology for the Egyptian's editorial stance. The apology failed utterly to answer any charges made by Prof. Harris, and in fact displayed the editorial thoughtlessness which Prof. Harris criticized in the first place.

Prof. Harris deplored the Egyptian's willingness to accept jingoistic cartoons and clichéd explanations of American policy in Viet Nam. But, to seriously maintain—as Mr. Matheson did—that the cartoons serve a legitimate function by provoking stimulating letters is the epitome of self-righteousness; it compares to a dictator vindicating himself by demonstrating that he—the dictator—provided the social conditions precipitating a revolution.

As a spiritual ally of Dr. Harris, I too would like to lament the Egyptian's insipid editorial policy. Defense of the status quo is not courageous; the evil which provokes good is no less evil for having done so.

N. A. A. C. P. Asks Legal Aid

Now and then a cause arises that deserves support on a national basis, along with local charitable institutions and enterprises. Such a cause is the legal defense and educational fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Already the N. A. A. C. P. legal defense fund has behind it an amazing record of accomplishment. But what is behind it is hardly a start on the work that is to be done. In the 11 years since the Supreme court decided the historic public school desegregation case, suits filed by the fund have succeeded in achieving, against hard opposition, the constitutional rights of Negro citizens in education, in employment, health, housing, public accommodations, recreation, and voting.

Years of Litigation

These gains have meant not only initial suits, but appeals thru the courts that have taken months and years. With much of the legal talent donated, still the costs have been great and the risks to the Negro plaintiffs many and trying.

If the courts are to be relied on, rather than resort to violence and force, then the requirements of the courts and our system of justice must be met. That means a national defense fund which Negro plaintiffs can turn to with assurance as they push ahead to remove the stigma and disabilities of second-class citizenship.

Thousands of peaceful demonstrators are now defendants in prosecutions. No telling how many more arrests and prosecutions will follow as Negroes and their counsel turn to the law in matters of fair housing and employment. In Akron, for example, the fund has filed suit under the Sherman anti-trust law against the Akron Real Estate board on the grounds of illegal restraint of trade. This could be a proceeding of great importance.

Meantime under the sponsorship of the distinguished lawyer, Grenville Clark, who seems to become increasingly active the older he gets, a plan of financing the legal defense fund has been launched on a national basis. Two anonymous donors, thanks to the Clark foresight, have subscribed $500,000 over the next 10 years. Additional gifts and pledges have brought subscriptions to more than a million dollars.

About Half Enough

This sounds like a safe treasury for the future, but the fact is that legal expenditures in the Negro defense effort are conservatively estimated to run to at least 2 million dollars. Gifts sent to Judge Francis E. Rivers, President, N. A. A. C. P., Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc., 10 Columbus Circle, New York City, N. Y. 10019, are tax deductible.

Speaking at a convocation in his honor, Grenville Clark, sponsor of "world peace thru world law" plan, said that "until we wipe out the stain of racism, we will not only not have a good society in the United States, we will not have a tolerable society."

He is so right, and the defense fund he is doing so much to provide is an indispensable means to that goal.

$4,500 for Desk Calculators Granted Forestry Department

A grant of $4,500 has been given to the Department of Forestry by the National Science Foundation.

John Andresen, department chairman, said the grant is to be used to buy desk calculators for undergraduate students. SIU will match the grant and the total will be $9,000 for the equipment.

This is one phase of the Forestry Department's recent expansion program, according to Andresen.

The forestry facilities are being enlarged in the south wing of the Agriculture Building which will include remodeling present classrooms and laboratories to form several staff offices, three staff research laboratories, a graduate student room and four classroom laboratories.

Science Fraternity Sought for Southern

SIU is attempting to secure a chapter of Sigma Xi, national scientific research fraternity.

Maurice Ogur, chairman of the Department of Microbiology and president of the petitioning group, hopes to get authorization for the new chapter at the annual meeting of the national organization.

Some 70 members of the faculty engaged in scientific research are members of the national fraternity, having been elected at other educational institutions. Ogur said. It is this group which is to form the local chapter and is petitioning for national recognition.

Ogur has recently succeeded William Clark Ashby, associate professor of botany, as president of the local chapter.

Other new officers elected for the coming year are Mrs. Florence Foote, associate professor of physiology, vice president; Ernest A. Kurmes, assistant professor of forestry, re-elected secretary; and Joseph P. Vavra, professor of plant industry, treasurer.

Reviewer Praises SIU Press Book

A "Crosscurrents" book published by the University Press is given top critical acclaim in a recent edition of "Saturday Review" magazine.

The book, written by Siegfried Mandel of the University of Colorado, was published in March.

Reviewer Joseph P. Bauke, a member of the Columbia University German Department, says the book, "Ranier Maria Rilke: The Poetic Instinct," is "the best introduction to Rilke in English."

Bauke's review is featured in a special "Saturday Review" section on university publications.

Other improvements include the creation of four offices from one room. Each room was paneled with a different hardwood from a local forest product to show what can be done with local resources.

The remodeling of the present classrooms into staff offices will include the use of these hardwoods.

Two specialists, Ali A. Moslemi and George B. Richmond have joined the faculty in the forestry department.

Moslemi, a wood technologist from Iran, will be in charge of a new non-destructive wood testing laboratory. He will also conduct research in wood science and technology as well as teach classes of a similar nature.

Richmond, who was a research forester in silviculture with the U.S. Forest Service in Hawaii, will supervise the 1600-acre Experimental Forest near the SIU Little Grassy facilities and the 70-acre forest on the University's Southwestern Farm near Belleville.

SIU Foundation Gets Two Gifts of Art Work

Two works of art were presented this week to SIU's permanent art collection through the SIU Foundation, Kenneth R. Miller, executive director of the foundation, said.

One is a painting by Harvey

S. Harris, associate professor of art, contributed by Harris himself.

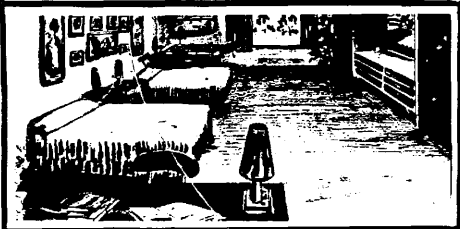

The other is a framed print, entitled "Fusees," by the artist Jean Miro, which is the gift of the Pan-Hellenic Council.

The foundation recently received a gift of $200 from Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs, and Mrs. MacVicar. The money will be used as awards for outstanding work done by students in the Department of Art.

U.S. Troop Commitment Called Move to Deny Viet Cong Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Wednesday that discretionary authority for U.S. ground forces to fight alongside Vietnamese troops was given to avoid a situation that easily could enable the Communist Viet Cong to gain great advantage.

In a statement read by the presidential press secretary, George E. Reedy, the White House once again defined the combat mission of U.S. ground units in Viet Nam. Reedy said there has been no change in the role in recent days or weeks. There was some difference in emphasis but virtually no difference in substance from previous explanations of the U.S. role in Viet Nam.

Last Friday a military spokesman in Saigon said U.S. forces have a dual role: "To be stationed at important places and add to the defense, and to participate in battle in what we call combat support of the government forces when it becomes necessary."

This statement passed almost unnoticed. On Saturday the State Department, responding to a request, defined the U.S. policy of conducting an aggressive defense of installations. This concept did not tie down U.S. forces to the immediate base area.

There was no mention of combat support for Viet Nam forces until Tuesday. State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said this authority had been given to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, chief of the U.S. Military Assistance Command in Saigon. McCloskey said the authority had been granted in recent weeks.

The White House said there have been no new orders given recently to Westmoreland.

"The primary mission of these troops is to secure and safeguard important military installations like the air base at Da Nang. They have the associated mission of active patrolling and securing action in and near the areas thus safeguarded," the statement said.

"If help is requested by appropriate Vietnamese commanders, Gen. Westmoreland also has authority within the assigned mission to employ these troops in support of Vietnamese forces faced with aggressive attack when other effective reserves are not available and when in his judgment the general military situation urgently requires it."

If the U.S. military commander did not have this discretionary authority, the White House said, "a situation might easily arise in which heavy loss of life might occur and great advantage might be won by the Viet Cong because of delays in communications."

Stock Market Dips Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavy selling battered the stock market Wednesday and threw it for another sharp loss. The mood of the recent declines, based more on a cautious drying-up of bids rather than active selling, changed radically as stocks were unloaded on a more emotional basis.

Volume made a big leap to 7.1 million shares from Tuesday's subaverage 4.67 million.

The Dow Jones industrial average sank 9.21 to 879.84.

A rumor that President Johnson had suffered a heart attack triggered a short-lived wave of selling around the noon hour when volume was 1.8 million shares for the 60 minutes. The rumor was promptly denied by the President's personal physician and stocks rallied vigorously above their lows. The recovery almost erased the loss.

Selling snowballed in the final hour.

The decline followed Tuesday's drop which was the sharpest since the assassination of President Kennedy, but Wednesday's heavy trading gave it more widespread importance.

House Bill Raises U.S. Debt Ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed 228-164 Wednesday a bill raising the ceiling on the national debt to $328 billion for the year beginning July 1.

The figure is a billion dollars lower than the Treasury asked, but still well above estimates of the high point of the debt during the period.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee told the House the debt stood at $317.3 billion May 30 and is estimated to reach $319 billion by June 30.

Eisenhower Rallies GOP Behind Bliss

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower urged a Republican audience Wednesday night to rally behind national chairman Ray C. Bliss to vigorously challenge "lopsided control."

Bliss returned to the state where he led Republicans for 16 years. He called for hard work as the only way to rebuild the party from a crushing defeat in the 1964 presidential campaign.

In a talk for an hour-long television program linking $100-a-plate dinners in eight major Ohio cities, Eisenhower called on all Republicans to back Bliss "as he seeks to fulfill his pledge of reorganizing, of reunifying, of reenergizing the party from the bottom to the top."

Eisenhower and Bliss shared a platform in Cleveland before an estimated 3,000 Republicans. More than 7,000 others at eight other dinners watched on closed-circuit television, while the program was beamed to Ohio and surrounding states by a dozen commercial television stations.

Each dinner had a speaker: former Vice President Richard M. Nixon at Columbus, Michigan, Gov. George Romney at Cleveland, Pennsylvania, Gov. William W. Scranton at Toledo, Sen. George Murphy of California at Dayton, Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky at Youngstown, Chicago businessman Charles Percy at Lima, Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan at Canton and actor Ronald Reagan of California at Cincinnati.

Yugoslav Consul Shot in Germany

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Two mystery gunmen shot and wounded a Yugoslav diplomat Wednesday as he sat in a car by a Bavarian lake with a Yugoslav waitress who works in West Germany.

West German police questioned the waitress and a group of Yugoslav exiles living in southern Germany.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav consulate general in Munich said the shooting apparently had political implications. It came at a time when President Tito of Yugoslavia was visiting in Communist East Germany.

The victim was Andrija Klarica, 35, consul for Yugoslavia in Munich. He is married and the father of a 4-year-old child. He was shot through the lung but a hospital at the lakeside city of Meersburg said his condition, at first critical, had improved after an operation.

He was talking in his parked car to Dara Rogic, 38, when the attack came. She rolled out of the car to escape the volley of shots, but Klaric slumped over the wheel, bleeding.

Along with our other fine lines, we wish to announce the addition of the beautiful "Orange Blossom" diamonds. See them at...

Right-to-Work Repeal Measure Passes First Legislative Hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Labor subcommittee approved Wednesday the administration's bill to repeal a section of the Taft-Hartley law that permits states to ban union shop agreements.

The 6-3 vote after a bare one-hour's discussion marked an easy first step for a bill that is expected to give President Johnson one of his toughest congressional battles of the session when it reaches the House floor.

Another easy preliminary is in prospect Thursday when the full Education and Labor Committee takes up the bill. Democrats hold a 2-1 edge over Republicans and only two come from any of the 19 states that have enacted laws barring union shop contracts.

The bill deals with a highly controversial issue that has been debated in many states. Under the union shop, workers must join the union and pay dues-if management and labor agree on such a contract.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.Y., chairman of the subcommittee that approved the bill, said he thought the administration would win a narrow victory after a tough fight when the House gets around to acting, probably in July. The subcommittee gave only slight consideration to a substitute bill proposed by Rep. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., co-author of the Landrum-Griffin Act. The substitute was rejected by voice vote.

Combat Engineers Land in Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — About 2,500 U.S. combat engineers landed Wednesday at a bay northeast of Saigon to build a base capable of handling any massive American commitment to the Vietnamese war.

The landing at Cam Ranh Bay, 190 miles northeast of Saigon, came a day after the State Department declared U.S. troops would enter combat against the Viet Cong when requested.

There was bloody fighting elsewhere as the engineers came ashore. Two U.S. advisers were killed at Gia Ray, 50 miles northeast of Saigon when Communist guerrillas overran a training center. And 158 Vietnamese troops were killed or missing there and in fighting north of Saigon.

'Sorry, Honey, Our Date's Off Tonight'

By Karen Carr

A petite 18-year-old was all "dolled up," ready for her date at 7:30. The telephone rang at 7. "Listen, Diane, I won't be able to make it tonight. I've been stolen away by Arabs," said the date and hung up.

Many different excuses are given to coeds when SIU males break a date. The girls interviewed said that sometimes they were sure that their would-be dates spoke the truth. But occasionally, "Well...."

"He said he was sick, and I know he was," said Jane M. "He had mono. He got it from me."

One fellow, when asked by Carol U, what time he would pick her up, stated, "I thought I heard you say you were going to go home, so I made another date."

Jodi B., junior, was once told, "I can't make our date tonight; I got drafted."

Susan F. recalled an excuse given to her by a past steady. "He said for once he thought he'd go to a stag party, but it turned out to be a coed affair."

One girl was told, "I have to baby-sit with my little sister and can't make our date Saturday night." Vivian C. said it wouldn't have been so bad except that she knew he didn't have any sisters!

One excuse given to Yvonne W. was, "I'm sick as a dog." "But he was as healthy as a horse an hour before," said Yvonne.

Three lucky girls interviewed stated that they had never had a date broken. There's time, though. All three are freshmen.

By Joe Cook

a junior from Chicago, her parents were coming down, while a girl told Tom Nighswander, a sophomore from Matoon, that her boyfriend was coming down.

Jack Schultz, a freshman from Harvey, got an excuse that the girl had to baby-sit.

He saw the same girl an hour later in the bowling alley with a male baby who was a little older than she.

Ken Wheat, a sophomore from Benton, got an unusual excuse once. It seems the girl told him her father wouldn't let her go with him to see the show.

Wheat didn't question her good judgement since the Chapman Report was playing.

A person who wished to remain anonymous said a girl gave him an excuse he had never heard before.

She told him that she had to break the date because her sister's fiance was down for the weekend and she felt compelled to show him a good time.

SIU coeds are very proficient when it comes to breaking dates, but a random survey taken among the guys showed that most coeds are very unimaginative in their excuses.

Most of the excuses deal with deaths or illnesses in the family.

Don LaRoche, a freshman from Chicago, is one male student to encounter this excuse. This girl, it seems, had to go home to Chicago to see her grandmother who had just taken ill.

Bill Herklotz, a senior from Rockford, was a victim of a similar excuse except it was a little more drastic.

It seems that this girl had to leave suddenly because her father had just died. Herklotz found out later that her father was still quite alive.

Another excuse coeds like to use is that someone is coming down to visit them.

Garbage and Dishes Strain Wedded Bliss

By Roland Gill
(Second in a Series)

The image the average college male holds of himself as being the great American lover may lose its effect in many cases among newly married students.

When the notebooks and texts take the joy out of the early morning kiss and the hug before television in the evening—problems might rear their heads, says George R. Carpenter, associate professor of home economics and head of the Home and Family Division of the School of Home Economics.

Compatibility among newlyweds on the campus seems to be the biggest hurdle, Carpenter said, but other problems such as finances, grades and children also make the student marriage a difficult institution.

"A big conflict in the college marriage," Carpenter said, "is the dispute over which person takes out the garbage." He explained that during the courtship and engagement the chivalrous male opens doors, pulls chairs and lights cigarettes for the fiancée, but after the vows are said, the duties become a partnership agreement.

"The young wife is not too willing, on most occasions, to face up to her newly-acquired obligations, and in most instances her gripe is having to carry out the garbage," he said.

Carpenter serves in the Department of Home and Family as a marriage counselor, and his observations on students' problems are related to cases he has encountered.

The young college wife is alarmed to find that the Prince Charming who waited on her religiously before the rings were placed now refuses to help her do the cooking, dishwashing and ironing.

The problem of compatibility becomes more alarming when related to class work.

"In the situation where the college wife is not a student and the husband is," Carpenter said, "the consequences can become severe."

He explained that the husband, in many cases becomes so involved in his school work that he loses sexual interest in his wife for intervals of time. This causes the wife to feel incompetent.

"The wife is not willing to go into second place to the husband's education, and she will react violently," Carpenter said.

The financial problems of young marrieds are more prevalent in the student world than otherwise.

"A large number of married students are subsidized by either or both sets of parents," Carpenter said, "and this has proved to set a bad foundation for the marriage as a whole."

He explained that even though the husband may be working, his parents are aiding the couple financially. Thus, the husband is insulted and feels incompetent in fulfilling his role as head of the household.

The wife doesn't appear to react as noticeably to the parents' aid, but the husband appears to feel left out, Carpenter explained.

"Children do not fit into the college marriage," he surmised, in relating another important problem in student marriages. Even though the young couple may want the children and may enjoy them after they are born, added problems the stork brings are not conducive to a healthy relationship.

The additional financial burden is only a portion of the added weight for young parents. The extra member of the new family will add to the conflict in the college household. When the husband is studying, a crying baby or a playing child can cause irritation.

"Most young parents on the campus are aware of the uses of birth control methods and use them to curb this problem," he said, "but in the cases of parents who do not take advantage of controlling methods, the new children enter into their realm of conflict."

"By far the biggest undercurrent in the world of student marriages," Carpenter concluded, "is the condition of the students, themselves."

"They enter into the marriage thinking they are educated in matters of sex, love and compatibility and are destined to enjoy the perfect marriage through knowledge."

Most young couples are alarmed when they discover that they are not as educated as they think after the first few weeks with the new spouse, Carpenter said.

Hoffman Aims at Gold Medal In Maccabiah Olympics Judo

SIU's Ron Hoffman has been chosen to represent the United States in judo at the Maccabiah Olympics in Israel Aug. 23 through Aug. 30.

The Maccabiah Olympics are second in size only to the Olympic games in which 55 nations will be competing. Hoffman has high hopes of bringing home a gold medal for the United States.

Hoffman has also been selected by the Judo Black Belt Federation of the U.S.A. to be a member of the 10-man U.S. judo team to fight Canada's choice team in Detroit on June 19 this year.

While in Chicago this summer, Hoffman plans to train about eight hours a day, perfecting some of his throwing techniques, which will require approximately 1,000 "uchikomi," or practice throws, every day to become lightning fast.

Hoffman is also working on developing a surprise left side throw, which he learned while he was in Japan, and plans to use it on his opponents. It is a technique which few International Judo Federation men can block or counter.

Hoffman will spend some time training at a lodge located high in the Sierras with Ben Campbell, one of the foremost Judo men in the world. Two weeks before his departure for Israel, Hoffman will train with the rest of the U.S. judo contingent at Kutscher's Country Club in Monticello, N.Y.

Hoffman received his first-degree black belt in Judo at the age of 16. This won him the distinction of being the youngest black belt holder in the nation. He recently won the 195-pound division of the National Collegiate Judo Championship, and the Eastern Collegiate Grand-Championship.

He now holds a third-degree black belt, and is the winner of approximately 100 trophies for judo. He trained in Japan twice, and also in France in 1961 when the World Judo Tournament took place there. During a recent visit to Japan, Hoffman played an important role in compiling the new judo handbook, "Fundamentals of Judo," in which he is pictured some 125 times, displaying effective judo techniques.

In both 1964 and 1965, Hoffman was appointed by Gov. Otto Kerner as judo adviser to the state of Illinois.
