President Search Committee begins visits

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Teams of three members from SIU's President Search Committee, and its chairman, Willis Malone, have begun "visiting" some of the narrowed field of 18 potential SIU presidential candidates.

Malone said Tuesday that visits with two of the 18 were conducted Monday. Malone told the SIU Board of Trustees on June 13 his committee had identified 18 applicants they wanted to interview, 12 of whom they were "very seriously interested in."

Visits with candidates are also scheduled for Friday and for June 25, Malone said.

"We have some very excellent people interested in the position of president of the Carbondale campus," Malone remarked. "The committee remains optimistic about being able to locate a person of high quality," he continued.

Malone would not reveal the names of any of the 18 potential candidates. The visits will take place "either at an applicant's home institution or in a more central place," he said.

Monday Malone and the search team met one candidate in Chicago and another "at a midwestern campus," he said.

"I don't want to give the impression of unnecessary secrecy," he explained, "but some candidates want to know more about SIU before they decide how serious their interest is."

The 18 potential candidates will be screened to "hopefully not more than 10" by the search committee for visits to SIU campus. Malone has stated he "hopes for fairly wide exposure of individuals to the campus constituencies."

The degree of openness, according to Malone, will depend upon the individual candidate's wishes and partly on the opinion of the Board of Trustees.

The board has instructed Malone's committee to submit "no more than six and no less than four" presidential candidate names along with its one recommendation for the position. The Board has expressed no opinion on openness of campus visitations.

Malone said Tuesday that candidates should start coming to SIU-C in mid-July. He told the board June 13 that he hopes to present the search committee's recommendations to the board at its August meeting.

Private visits with the 18 possible candidates provide the candidates with information about SIU and allow members of the search committee to meet and talk with candidates, according to Malone.

Sessions with potential candidates were described as "a general exploration-orientation about the university itself, the individual's background and interests, and some of the problems seen in higher education."

"SIU's reputation is very good among candidates," Malone commented. "Some have questions about the state of tenure, budget problems, and declining enrollments," he added, "but all I've talked to have great respect for this institution and its potential."

STC team wins title for second year

Students from the SIU School of Technical Careers have captured the top awards in the National Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest for the second straight year.

The SIU team of Larry Ernst, 20, Alhambra, and Wayne Wagner, 20 Mt. Sterling, topped a field of 100 two-man teams from each state to win the national contest championship in Dallas Tuesday.

Ernst and Wagner will be awarded $5,000 in scholarships for their first place finish.

Ernst came in first place on the written examination with a score of 93. He received a $3,000 scholarship to Motech Education Center in Detroit.

Wagner's awards were not immediately publicized.

Each team took a written examination, which contributes to the final score. Then, the teams were assigned a new automobile in which several identical malfunctions were concealed by expert technicians. The teams worked against the clock and each other, seeking out the malfunctions and correcting them.

The written examination scores were combined with the competition times to determine the overall winners.

The SIU team was sponsored by Orlen Wallace, an auto dealer in Carbondale. The contest was sponsored by the Chrysler-Plymouth dealers of America in cooperation with more than 2,000 schools.

Police continue to probe stabbing death of girl

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale police continued an investigation Tuesday into the stabbing death of a 14-year-old Carbondale girl whose decomposed body was found on a nature trail near Snider Hill cemetery.

The half-nude body of Paulette McDonough, of 1103 E. College, Apt. B, was discovered about 5:30 p.m. Monday by Carbondale patrolman Jon Kluge after three children told police they found some of the girl's clothing and personal belongings.

Acting Police Chief Edward Hogan said that an autopsy determined that the victim had been stabbed four times in the chest in the area of the heart. "We are canvassing the girl's neighborhood and searching the site of the murder, but we haven't come up with anything yet."

Hogan said that the coroner estimated that Miss McDonough was dead three or four days before police discovered the body.

"From the position of her arms it didn't look like there was a struggle," said Hogan.

It has not been established whether the girl was raped. The decomposed body made this difficult to determine, said Hogan. She was wearing only a pair of cutoffs when police found the body. An orange top was hanging on bushes nearby, he said.

According to Hogan, the girl had visited the Snider Hill nature trail several times in the past, sometimes with friends.

Three of the girl's friends found the personal belongings—a jacket, a pair of sandals, glasses, a diary and a paper-back book—which touched off the search. Otis Brown, 14, and his sister Ida, 10, of 1105 E. College and Shawn Cole, 8, of 1107 E. College, Apt. A, told police they were walking through the area when they made the discovery.

Police reported that the girl's mother, Patsy McKee, reported her daughter missing on Thursday. The girl was last seen about 5 p.m. Thursday.

Hogan said that the body was found on the nature trail and could have been spotted by anyone walking on the trail. The body was discovered a block and a half east of the Snider Hill Cemetery.

Miss McDonough was born March 26, 1960 in St. Louis. Her father is Paul McDonough.

The funeral will be at 3:30 p.m. Thursday at the Van Natta-Meredith Funeral Home in Carbondale. The Rev. Jack Knoop, pastor of Western Heights Christian Church, will officiate. Burial will be at Oakland Cemetery in Carbondale. Friends can call at the funeral home after 5 p.m. Wednesday.

APSC tabs Muller for top position

Julia Muller, coordinator of the student life office, will serve as chairman of the Administrative and Professional Staff Council (APSC) for the 1974-75 school year.

Muller was elected chairman at the June 11 APSC meeting. Henry Andrews, assistant registrar, was elected vice-chairman and Doris Turner, academic advisor in the College of Education, was voted secretary.

Muller said the APSC discussed the council's relation with the University Senate and the SIU administrative structure and other issues.

The APSC will select one member for the System Council committee. Muller said she had contacted "a couple members of constituencies" about the matter.

At the June 13 Board of Trustees meeting, Chairman Ivan Elliot directed campus groups to select representatives for a 20-member committee of both SIU campuses to revise the System Council document.

Muller said she will select a representative "as soon as possible." An "equity committee" is also being organized by the APSC to examine the status of APSC members and determine whether their salaries are equally based.

APSC members Don Ward, Rex Karnes, Jane Harris and Muller make up the equity committee, which will examine salaries and "feed information into the upper levels of the administration," Muller said.

Since the affairs of the APSC are "spread across all four vice-presidents," the salaries of the 450 members are not handled equally at times, Muller said.

The next APSC meeting will be at 2 p.m. July 9 at Park Place South.

Alumni choose new president

Albert Shafter, superintendent of A.L. Bowen Children's Center in Harrisburg, took office as president of the SIU Alumni Association for 1974-75 during Alumni Day activities June 8 in the Student Center.

Paul Schoen, a Carbondale attorney, was elected president and will take office next June.

Vice presidents elected for 1974-75 are Pat Schroeder of Mascoutah and Jack Murphy, assistant superintendent of the Herrin City Schools.

Jo Ann Jungers, a teacher in the Alton unit school district, was elected as secretary and Roger Gray, a Cobden banker, was re-elected treasurer of the Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association has about 16,000 members including SIU faculty.

Four alumni were selected for achievement awards: Fred Basolo, chemistry professor at Northwestern University; Clarence Stephens, former head of University Administrative Council; Walter Young, a former member of the Association Board of Directors; and Walt Frazier of the New York Knicks. Frazier was unable to attend the ceremonies.

Tape casts doubt on Nixon

WASHINGTON -AP- The House Judiciary Committee heard a tape Tuesday which sources said indicates President Nixon discussed the Watergate cover-up four days earlier than he has publicly said he learned of it.

No member would comment publicly on details of evidence heard in the closed sessions. But sources said a tape recording of Nixon listening to other tapes and commenting on them confirmed earlier claims that the President talked of White House involvement in the cover-up as early as March 17, 1973.

Nixon has said he first learned of the Watergate cover-up on March 21, 1973, when John W. Dean III, then White House counsel, told him.

The comments came after members returned to their hearing room from a lunch break. Members commenting after the morning session, when only part of the tape had been played, said it was ambiguous and unclear.

One committee source said the tape, of Nixon talking to several aides on June 4, 1973, confirmed a statement made May 21 by committee Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N. J., that Nixon's remarks on the tape about the March 17 discussion "includes a discussion of the Watergate matter and possible involvement of White House personnel and others."

newsmen "have been accurately described as very misleading."

Calif., said he heard Nixon, on the June 4 tape, talking about March 17 and March 21 conversations with Dean.

Danielson said there was mention of Watergate in the President's comments about the March 17 tape. The White House has denied there was any such discussion of Watergate matters on that tape, a partial transcript of which has been released.

But Danielson also said nothing in the portion of the tape heard so far had demonstrated presidential knowledge of the cover-up on the 17th.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., also said there was mention of the conversation of the 17th and said, "There's some ambiguities in it" regarding whether Nixon knew of the cover-up on that date.

The committee hopes to complete its hearings of evidence by Friday. Next week it is scheduled to consider procedural questions such as the calling of witnesses, Nixon's defense arguments and public release of evidence.

Meanwhile, James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, said that committee staff memos on impeachment evidence that have been leaked to newsmen "have been accurately described as very misleading."

Fourteen memos were drafted for committee members by William P. Dixon, a lawyer on the committee staff, and half have been leaked.

St. Clair told newsmen one portion of the leaked memos said Nixon once told former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell to take the Fifth Amendment when asked to testify about Watergate. St. Clair said the story was based on an incomplete record.

"The part left out substantially changed it," St. Clair said.

Asked if he had any indication that any of the tapes or transcripts had been deliberately altered, St. Clair said that he had no such information.

SIU Foundation drive will be led by Morris

Delyte W. Morris, former SIU-C president will head a nation-wide SIU Foundation "Living Endowment" drive for the Carbondale campus.

Morris's acceptance of the national chairmanship of the drive was announced by Curtis R. Simic, executive director of the foundation.

The foundation hopes to reach some 60,000 SIU-C alumni with the drive—which starts July 1 and will continue through June 30, 1975—and persuade as many persons as possible to support the University through annual gifts.

"No one in the recent history of SIU is held in greater esteem by alumni and friends of the University," Simic said of Morris.

As eighth president of SIU, Morris presided from 1948 to 1970 over the astonishing growth of the University from an obscure Southern Illinois teachers' college to a comprehensive university with national and international reputation by 1970.

Morris said his acceptance of the chairmanship of the drive is an expression of his continuing belief in SIU.

"My continuing faith and belief in the University is the basis for my reason to want to continue to assist it," Morris said. "I feel that accepting this responsibility is one way I can do so."

The aim of the drive is to establish as broad a base of support as possible. "We want as many people as possible to make gifts, regardless of size," Simic said.

He said one major feature of the Living Endowment program is that donors will be able to earmark their gifts for whatever programs they desire.

The necessity for such private gifts to the University is underlined by the decreasing amount of state-appropriated funds available to higher education, Simic said. He said the SIU Foundation is the agent designated for University fund-raising efforts from all private sources.

In addition to heading the SIU-C Living Endowment drive this year, Morris also has offered to act as chairman of a similar endowment drive planned next year for SIU's Edwardsville campus.

Government to aid cattle, hog industry

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government will buy up to $100 million worth of beef and pork for school lunch programs this summer in an attempt to aid the depressed cattle and hog industry, the White House economic coordinator said Tuesday.

Agriculture Department officials said they could not predict how the new meat prices might affect consumer prices. But one department official said middleman markups have been wide enough so that it might be possible for meat packers and retailers to absorb the purchases without passing further costs on to family shoppers.

Kenneth Rush, economic counselor to President Nixon, said the meat would be purchased early in July and will be stored beginning in August for school lunch programs in 1974-75. The exact amount and the breakdown between beef and pork was not announced.

"It's good business to buy these meat supplies now," Rush said in a statement. "We would be buying this meat for school lunches anyway. By buying now we help the cattlemen and hog producers, who are suffering from low prices and we help prevent future dislocations in the market that would adversely affect consumer prices."

There have been signs this week that cattle and hogs were being held back in certain areas of the Midwest as the livestock industry seeks government loan guarantees and reimposition of import quotas.

The Agriculture Department has already bought about 105 million pounds of beef and pork during the current fiscal year. If the entire new amount were spent on beef, for example, it could mean about 100 million pounds of hamburger, which is several days' cattle slaughter.

Claire Robinson, president of the Kansas Livestock Association, and Paul Nauer, president of the National Farmer Organization in Kansas, called the purchase "a drop in the bucket." They favor meat import restrictions.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., remarked: "This ought to give the cattlemen a shot in the arm. Maybe the market will go up two or three cents."

Arch Booth, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the government should encourage increased consumption of beef rather than having the government bail out the meat industry.

Earlier, at a House Agriculture Committee hearing, House Speaker Carl Albert said the depressed wholesale prices may be giving Congress "one of the most serious economic problems since the Depression."

The Nixon administration, he said, was yet to approach the problem "with any recommendations that we can count on."

Albert was the lead-off witness for three days of hearings on the general livestock situation. It is rare for a House speaker to testify at a committee, and it was only Albert's second appearance at a hearing since his election to the post in 1971.

Visits begin in search for president

The three-member teams who accompany Malone are actually subcommittees of the larger search committee, he explained, consisting of one faculty member, one student member, and one member from the other constituencies represented on the search committee.

Search committee members travel to meet candidates in SIU airplanes, Malone said. "We have not, as yet, paid for candidates transportation to these preliminary meetings," he added.

"But that would not be inappropriate, in my judgement, if the committee asks to meet the candidates at a central location," he said.

SIU will pay the expenses of candidates who visit the campus, Malone said.

"The 18 number is very fluid," Malone said. "We are still receiving an occasional application and I received a letter from one person today asking that his name be withdrawn because he was not willing to have the committee visit his campus."

Malone said Tuesday that his committee "will visit with in-house currently employed at SIU-C) candidates." When asked whether any such candidates were among the 12 being "seriously considered" or among the 18 being visited he replied "I don't want to comment either way on that question at this time."

When the 12-18 individuals were identified by the search committee, they contacted each and asked the candidate's approval to contact their references, Malone reported.

"The committee is contacting references by phone or letter and sometimes both," Malone explained. "We haven't asked the candidates to solicit references," he added.

Strip mining measure survives new attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—The controversial House strip mining bill survived a new attack by opponents Tuesday, but a key sponsor conceded that the bill may be in serious trouble.

"There's no doubt, there are going to be problems," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., floor manager for the bill. "It will be close. There will be some troubles."

Udall's remarks came after the House Interior Committee approved a resolution sponsors claimed was necessary to avoid a jurisdictional dispute on the bill between committees.

The strip mining bill would impose federal environmental controls for the first time on the surface mining of coal.

It was expected to come to a House vote this week, but Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., objected to a provision in the bill imposing a fee on all coal, including imported coal. The fee is to be used for a fund to reclaim strip-mined land.

Mills contended that such a fee on imported coal would amount to a tariff—and thus would appear to fall under the jurisdiction of his committee, which has not handled the measure.

The resolution adopted by the Interior Committee Tuesday authorizes Udall to offer an amendment on the House floor exempting imported coal from the fee.

However, opponents of the strip mining bill, led by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., tried unsuccessfully to block the resolution.

Hosmer said he will carry his battle to the House floor in an effort to defeat the bill.

The legislation is strongly supported by environmentalists, but opposed by the nation's coal and electric industries and the Nixon administration, which contends it would curtail coal production at a time of increasing energy demands.

Udall said the adoption of the resolution on imported coal should remove any objections to the bill the Ways and Means Committee might have.

House passes drug peddling bill

SPRINGFIELD, (AP)—Legislation requiring mandatory life prison sentences for persons convicted a second time of peddling large quantities of hard drugs was approved Tuesday in the Illinois House.

The vote was 110-34 on legislation sponsored by Rep. Richard Kelly Jr., D-Hazelcrest. The bill was sent to the Senate.

"This is the only bill we have taken up that has made a direct attack on the drug traffic in our state," Kelly said.

The legislation also would deny parole for 20 years to person over 17 convicted of second drug selling offenses. Persons under 17 could be eligible for parole after 15 years in prison.

Current state laws call for a sentence of four years to life in prison for drug sellers convicted a second time. A person sentenced to life in prison would be eligible for parole in as few as nine years under provisions of laws already on the books, a spokesman for the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board said.

Sponsors said the drugs covered under the proposed new law included 30 grams or more of any substance containing heroin, morphine, cocaine or LSD; 1,000 or more grams of any substance containing peyote and 300 or more grams of any substance containing mescaline or psilocibin.

The Senate, meanwhile, rejected for the second time this session a resolution to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The proposal received only 30 of the 36 votes required, but supporters of the ERA said they would continue their battle in court.

Suits have been filed challenging rulings in both the House and Senate that a three-fifths majority is required to ratify federal constitutional amendments. The ERA has been approved by simple majorities in both chambers.

Opponents of the proposed new law for drug pushers argued that a mandatory sentence would deprive judges of the flexibility needed to consider circumstances which would warrant a lesser sentence.

"I personally support increased penalties for drug sales. However, we are including in the bill many concepts that may be counter-productive," said Rep. Michael Getty, D-Dolton.

He said enactment of the bill would mean more attempts at plea-bargaining, the procedure by which a defendant negotiates with the prosecutor to plead guilty to a lesser charge and spare the state the time and expense of a protracted trial.

Rep. Thomas Miller, R-South Holland, argued in favor of the bill, saying there were 900 reported drug deaths in Chicago last year and an estimated 1,200 statewide.

But Rep. Harry Yourell, D-Oak Lawn, said that since New York enacted a similar tough drug law which applies not only to hard drugs but to marijuana sales, the number of policemen shot has increased.

"Instead of getting caught, they're going to shoot their way out and kill more policemen," Yourell said.

In other action, the Senate approved legislation providing subsidies for downtown mass transit districts which are operating at a loss.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, was sent to the House on a 49-0 vote.

The Senate refused to provide the 30 votes needed to pass legislation which would have allowed counties in the Regional Transportation Authority to get out of the new transit district.

Editorial

A question of ethics

There is a great outcry in the world of sports concerning the signing of undergraduate basketball players to professional contracts. Most of it seems to be coming from people who stand to lose from the practice.

To take a very narrow viewpoint, the talent (gift, if you prefer) belongs to the athlete alone. He has the right to do with his talent, and himself, what he wishes.

School athletic directors and basketball coaches don't see it this way. From the moment the athlete enters "the college of his choice," his talents automatically become community property.

University of Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham said, "We had a shot at the national championship next season. So a kid with one year left wrecked a championship team..."

The "kid" Canham was referring to is Campy Russell, the most valuable player in the Big Ten last season, who was eligible for the NBA draft because he applied as a hardship case.

Roger Valdeseri, sports information director at Notre Dame, expressed displeasure in the drafting of junior guard Gary Brokaw, also a hardship case. Notre Dame had a proud tradition of graduating all its athletes and now Brokaw was ruining the school's "streak."

Year after year, college coaches go to the big city ghettos or the small towns to find the basketball pearl who will "make" the basketball program, not to mention a lot of money for the alma mater. They promise stardom, publicity and an eventual fat pro contract.

When the kid smells the money and signs the pro contract, naturally the coach is shocked. "He owes us so much," the coach laments. Sure he does. After all, the coach allowed the athlete to attend his school—over 100 others the kid had offers from.

School officials claim it just isn't right for the athlete to "use" the school to gain publicity to get a contract. How ethical is it for a school to say an athlete must spend so many years in school before he can pursue his chosen career?

The man with perhaps the most to gripe about is Al McGuire, head coach at Marquette University. In the last three years, he has lost his three starting centers, all with eligibility remaining. Yet he seems to take a realistic view of undergraduate signing.

"Our strength is in the pack, not in the individual," McGuire said. "There's always someone else to take the student-athlete's place."

The Justice Said

The year is 1972. A student group wanted to become an officially recognized campus organization. The college president rejected the request because it was never determined whether the group was willing to abide by reasonable campus regulations. Should the case be sent back to determine this? Yes, holds the U.S. Supreme Court. Agreeing separately, Mr. Justice Douglas said:

"The (Constitution) does not authorize violence. But it does authorize advocacy, group activities, and espousal of change.

"Students as well as faculty are entitled to credentials in their search for truth. If we are to become an integrated, adult society, rather than a stubborn status quo opposed to change, students and faculties should have communal interests in which each age learns from the other. Without ferment of one kind or another, a college or university...becomes a useless appendage to a society which traditionally has reflected the spirit of rebellion." (Healy v James, 33 L. Ed. 2d 266).

ERA not ambiguous

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to respond to Ms. Jones' article (DE: June 7) on the Equal Rights Amendment.

This 24-word amendment-to-be is not ambiguous; on the contrary it is quite clearly worded. When the law specifically states that discrimination based on sex will no longer be tolerated, it means just that. The amendment does not need to be reworded, but some persons need to do some rethinking. The ERA does not propose to take anything away from women as its opponents have claimed.

Item: Women, as partners in a marriage, are already responsible for 50 per cent support. That is what the law says. This has been interpreted to mean that the woman's contribution need not necessarily be in terms of money, but can be in terms of "services rendered" such as homemaking and/or child-rearing. The ERA will not actually affect this because the agreements that a husband and wife come to are private.

Item: The so-called privileges the opponents fear they will lose are directly and indirectly discriminatory towards men. For instance, widowers do not receive the same amount of social security as widows. Another example: in some states, life insurance up to a certain amount payable to a widow and her children is free from the claims of creditors but this protection is not afforded widowers. The ERA would extend this law to include men.

Item: The opponents fear that women will have to establish their own credit. The ERA cannot force a person, male or female, to establish credit because this is a private decision concerning a person's finances. On the other hand, it will allow a person who wishes to establish credit the opportunity to do so regardless of sex. (Recently a 42-year-old woman who was buying a home had to get the signature of her 70-year-old father before the bank would grant her a mortgage.)

If our Constitution already provides protection for women and men, then why was a widower in Florida not allowed a $500.00 tax exemption that a widow automatically receives? Why did a Virginia court rule that alimony is only for women, thereby forcing a man to go on welfare? Why did a Kentucky law require female college students to observe a curfew that males did not have to observe? These and other adjudications were handed down to people who went to court believing they had equality under the law, but discovered it is the law itself that often discriminates.

The ERA will accommodate women and men. As a law it will not affect private or social matters (such as restroom facilities or etiquette). Everyone, from homemakers to Congresspersons will enjoy the benefits that will accrue, because equality does not mean sameness, only opportunity.

Recognize rights of Palestinians

To the Daily Egyptian:

The recent Israeli-Syrian military disengagement agreement is as meaningless as any previous agreement, as it completely ignores the question of the rights of the Palestinians. The Palestinians cannot be written off by a scrap of paper regardless of how much the racists in Tel-Aviv and the reactionaries in Damascus would like to do so.

The death of 20 Israeli teenagers at Maalot brought forth a cry of outrage and self-righteous indignation from the American media. But where was the moral indignation when Israel responded by unleashing their phantom jets on Palestinian refugee camps and Lebanese villages and apartment buildings, killing over 60 people and wounding 200, including many children.

The objection of the New York Times, for example, was only that the Israeli bombings might foul up U.S. Middle-East diplomacy. It is apparent that one of the main tools in gathering support for Israel is traditional Western racism. "Terrorists" and "Arabs" have become interchangeable words in the minds of many.

Of course, what is so conveniently overlooked is the basis for the Arab-Israeli conflict: the wholesale expulsion of 1.4 million Palestinians in 1948 and another 500,000 Arabs in 1967. The very existence of the Israeli state on the land of another people can only be maintained through a policy of expulsion and racism.

Once again it is necessary to say that only when the rights of the Palestinians are recognized will the conflict end. This task belongs not to the Israeli and Arab governments, nor to the United States or Soviet governments, but can only be accomplished through the united efforts of the Arab people and those Israelis who recognize their common interest in fighting the rulers of their lands and their bosses in Washington who have profited for too long on the blood of too many people.

The Innocent Bystander

By Arthur Hoppe

Ah, June on campuses across the land. The young are eagerly sallying forth from cloistered halls to smash through the barriers of life. And the old grads are tottering back to get smashed.

"If you like talking to strangers in bars," advised a friend, "You'll love your 25th reunion."

Well, as it must to all men, my 25th has come unto me. I don't think I ever mentioned that I went to Harvard. I never mention it on the democratic Harvardian theory that it certainly doesn't impress another Harvard man. And, after all, who else is worth impressing?

But we have returned, the class of '49, to the scene of our youth, so bright and filled with promise. We have been issued funny hats to shade our thinning hair and badges with our names in hugh letters for the benefit of our fading eyes.

For five days we have talked about the major problems of our times — such as how they've really mucked up the campus with all these new buildings and how much younger students are now and whatever happened to good old . . . You know, that short fellow with freckles.

We try to imply, as modestly as possible, that we have accomplished great deeds in these past 25 years. And we drink. Good lord, how we drink. And when we meet, we never look each other in the eye.

Letters

Death Penalty

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to comment on Jim Dodd's letter of June 6th which criticized the May 29th editorial of Jim Starnes in which Mr. Starnes condoned the utilization of the death penalty. Like Mr. Dodd, I too am against any utilization of the death penalty, but I have been tempted to comment on Dodd's subsequent statements and indeed on the spirit of his letter as a whole.

Support of the death penalty seems to be an example of a present mentality on our country—to simply annihilate or barricade those problems which we do not understand and/or do not want to face. If we do indeed differ from this stand, it is not enough merely to show indifference: We must demonstrate alternatives. It is my opinion that Mr. Dodd did not even begin to fulfill this task.

I am white. My wife and I have two kids. I work fifty hours a week at just over two dollars an hour. On the face of this I might imaginably be classified, in Dodd's terms, as "dirty white trash. . . . You know, all those historically powerless types who don't count anyway." No, actually I might be classified just above the "white trash" ranks, but I have had limited relations with those less fortunate, from the peach and apple orchards of Southern Illinois to the inner-city streets of St. Louis. I have enough faith in the intelligence and integrity of this nations poor and underprivileged to recognize with optimism our potential for political organization within our presently restrictive form of democracy. Yes, organizing WITHIN a democratic framework, as in the tradition of Eugene Debs and Caesar Chavez, NOT through the malady-ridden regressive style of SLA terrorism which Dodd glorifies.

I wish that Mr. Dodd would refrain from using his blunt and simplistic rhetoric unless he also takes the effort to explain exactly what he is talking about.

Where we look is at our classmate's left breast, striving to read his name surreptitiously before he can read ours. (This presents something of a problem on meeting a classmate's bosomy wife. I suggest wearing very dark glasses at all times.) We cry out his first name with glee — always his first name on the grounds he may not have been our best friend a quarter of a century ago, but why take a chance?

Then we stand or sit, glasses in hand, and tell each other how we haven't changed a bit. "We haven't changed a bit," said a balding gin-and-tonic, glancing gloomily around the room. "But I'm surprised to see how many of the others brought their fathers."

But mostly we talk of the Good Old Days back there in 1949.

"Remember how you could get a beer at Cronin's for only a dime?"

"Remember how all most of us wanted was a good job, a house with a picket fence, a couple of kids and $10,000 a year?"

How simple life was then. How easily most of us got what we wanted. And yet. . . back to the bar for another drink.

The young college students who pour our drinks and drive us about are polite and deferential. Yet surely they must feel the contempt we felt in our day for drunken old grads.

What a gulf there is between us — they so eager to go forth to see what they can accomplish and we. . . well, after 25 years most of us know not only what we have accomplished but how very little more we still can.

So we laugh too loudly and dance too frenziedly and drink too much, we strangers in the bar. For we are shocked to suddenly find ourselves so old.

And yet, through it all, I found I kept thinking of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes' famed remark when asked how it felt to be 80.

"Fine," he said, "considering the alternative." (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1974)

Scandal—a signal to work harder for honesty

To the Daily Egyptian:

At a time when anything smacking of politics is regarded with suspicion and elected officials in the highest places are being charged with and convicted of illegal campaign practices, it is imperative that people at the grass roots level are not alienated from the political process.

The tireless efforts of a free press coupled with congressional investigative action of a surprisingly non-partisan nature have revealed the stark truth about campaign management and financing. As a result of this, elected officials are being forced into a more open and responsive position regarding both campaign ethics and special interest group influence.

The people of Illinois have an opportunity to move forward to cleaner elections and less special interest control of elected officials. The Illinois Democratic Fund was created in July of 1973 and is the first sustained effort to establish a statewide Democratic fund raising organization. All IDF will render elected officials of higher quality. It will remove them from the special interest and deliver them to the public interest.

One of John Kennedy's favorite quotes was by Rousseau: "As soon as any man says of the affairs of state, 'What does it matter to me?' the state may be given up for lost." The present scandal in government is not reason to give it up for lost; it is a signal that we must work harder to restore honesty and integrity to government. IDF is an excellent starting point for this endeavor.

"The long overdue critically needed revolution—of a socialist nature. . ." and ". . . I deplore the rapes, robberies and murders. . ." I think I know why these things are happening. . . Why in the world doesn't Mr. Dodd go on and tell us? And why is there a critically needed revolution? From what context does he mean "socialist" revolution? If social revolution is paralleled in Dodd's mind with the soviet revolution, then it might impair his criminal justice stand since Russia's system can hardly be hailed as an example of civil liberties.

Finally, I would like to return to the death penalty question, which heretofore I have failed to confront. The argument for the death penalty is the strongest when the crime rate is the highest. It is my personal contention that the recurrence of the death penalty is working, if not even designed, to appease and distract the people at a time when penal reform and gun control are actually our only practical investment in crime deterrence. The investment may be somewhat costly, however, and the Nixon administration is not charitable in the least towards domestic issues.

Our corrections system is based on punishment rather than rehabilitation to the extent that former attorney general Ramsey Clark has labeled them "factories of crime." Between 70 and 75 percent of all crimes are committed by men and women who have been imprisoned before. As for gun control: Japan, like many western countries, have strict gun legislation. In 1970, with 11 million people, Tokyo had THREE homicides by handgun. In that same year New York, with 8 million people, had 538 homicides by handgun. Need I say more? Progressive-crime deterrents, not regressive reactions.

Antisex discrimination rules revealed by HEW department

WASHINGTON (AP)—Grade school boys and girls soon may be attending sex education classes together, but colleges won't have to recruit coeds for their football teams.

Those are just two examples of how proposed antisex discrimination rules announced Tuesday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would affect more than 16,000 public school systems and 2,500 colleges and universities.

Covering admissions, treatment of students and employment at all educational levels, the federal regulations required by a two-year-old law are open for public comment until Oct. 15 and probably will not receive final presidential approval before the year's end.

While noting that the long-delayed rules have raised "some understandable concerns," HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told a news conference that the government will seek voluntary compliance first before moving to cut off federal funds from institutions in violation.

Here are some examples of activities that would be prohibited under the rules:

—Colleges could not offer athletic scholarships exclusively to males, but would not necessarily have to provide an identical number or dollar amount of scholarships or grants in aid to female athletes.

—Elementary and secondary schools could not segregate the sexes in physical education and sex education classes, but could provide separate showers in physical education.

—Medical and law schools could not set sex-based admissions quotas or set higher entrance standards for females than for males.

—Colleges could not provide "substantial support or assistance" to any campus organization, such as a hiking club, fraternity or sorority, that discriminates against one sex.

—Different dormitory curfews could not be established for one sex, and facilities, including fees.

Report urges campaign spending limits

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON -AP- The staff of the Senate Watergate committee is urging strict new limits on the role of money in presidential elections, but has taken no position on proposals to fund those elections from the federal treasury.

The staff's report calls for creation of an independent and non-partisan election commission to

Skill courses are planned for summer

The schedule of summer quarter noncredit developmental skills courses for training program participants has been announced by the Personnel Office.

The program is also available on a limited basis to SIU employees interested in promotional upgrade and individuals interested in clerical-secretarial employment at the university.

The courses, scheduled June 24 to Aug. 8, include the following:

Personal shorthand, meeting Monday through Thursday, 4 to 5 p.m.

Speedbuilding shorthand, Monday through Thursday, 1 to 2 p.m.

Test preparation (English and math) and office judgment, Monday and Tuesday, 3 to 4 p.m., Wednesday, 3 to 5 p.m.

Typing, Monday and Tuesday, 4 to 5 p.m., Thursday, 3 to 5 p.m.

Individuals interested in enrolling in the noncredit courses should contact the training and development office at 453-5334 by June 21. Further information is available from Debby Lindrud or Phillis Steinbach at the same number.

Corn planting delayed by rain in Illinois area

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Rain, flooding and cold have combined this spring to cause the longest delay of planting corn in Illinois since 1957, an agriculturist said Tuesday.

A spokesman for the state agriculture department said he expects acreage planted to be as much as 1.1 million below the record 11.1 million acres farmers were aiming for this year.

However, he said there still would be lots of corn and that 90 per cent of the crop already has been planted. "Ten per cent of that planted must be replanted because of the wet, cold spring and flooding," he said. "Most of the 1.1 million acres to be replanted are in about 20 counties in the southeastern part of the state."

He said the planting of soybeans is 45 per cent completed compared with 73 per cent at the same time a year ago. Only 25 to 30 per cent of the bean planting has been completed in the southeastern part of the state, he said.

St. Andrew's sponsors youth music workshop

Area children who have completed the third, fourth and fifth grades are eligible to participate in the Vocal Music Camp at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church on Mill Street in Carbondale. The camp will be held on weekdays from 9-11:30 a.m. June 24-July 3, in the educational room of St. Andrew's.

The music camp is directed by Alice Eddins, a resident of Carbondale and music instructor at Shawnee College. Registration for the camp is at 8:30 a.m., Monday at the church. A registration fee of 50 cents will be charged for the eight days.

The camp program will consist of group singing, instruction in music reading and singing and rhythm games.

oversee the conduct and funding of presidential elections.

The report recommends 1-barring campaign contributions from foreign citizens, 2-setting $3,000 as the legal limit from one donor, and 3-placing a legal limit on over-all campaign expenses at 12 cents times the total voting age population.

The latter proposal, similar to that in a bill already passed by the Senate, would put the total spending limit for each presidential candidate in the 1976 election at no more than about $17.5 million.

The draft report, which was made available to The Associated Press by a source close to the committee, notes that in 1972 President Nixon spent $60 million on his re-election campaign.

The report, prepared by committee members, gives this description of the abuses the committee's investigations allege to have uncovered:

"Some solicitations were tinged with extortion and bribery.

"Huge cash contributions, legal and illegal, were transported to campaign offices in everything from plain white envelopes to airline flight bags and utilizing corporate funded tickets and even corporate jets.

"The resources of corporations and government contractors were tapped.

"Foreign nationals, out of the reach of scrutiny by American officials, gave contributions, or made loans for contributions, to the presidential campaign.

"There were contributions, apparently entirely legal, which by virtue of their enormity—individual ones of $1 million or more—gave at least the appearance of disproportionate potential influence for the donor as well as potential obligation on the part of the recipient.

"And large and wealthy organizations pooled their resources and gave control of large kitties to a handful of representatives to make contributions—and to engage in discussions or negotiations related to their self interest, in connection with the contributions."

The campaign finance report said there is no consensus on the question of public financing of campaigns.

In another draft report, the committee said that political dirty tricks by Nixon's followers left the Democrats far behind at the starting gate of the 1972 campaign.

It concluded that the entire dirty tricks effort was authorized by Nixon's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell, then the U.S. attorney general.

A report on the research activities of David M. Sharpe, associate professor of geography currently on research leave with the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee, is included in the May 16 issue of "Nuclear Division News," an employee publication of the nuclear division of Union Carbide Corporation.

Sharpe will return to Carbondale this summer after completing two years of research with the Environmental Sciences Division at Oak Ridge. His specialization is climatology and physical geography.

The report says Sharpe's major research has been on developing a mathematical model of the biomass dynamics in the commercial forests of the Tennessee River valley. This provides TVA forest managers with a useful tool in determining the region's forest resources and how these may be altered with changing harvest rates and varying kinds of wood utilization.

Sgt. Robert S. Harris, of the security police, was one of 90 law enforcement officers from throughout the U.S. and foreign countries who participated in commencement exercises at Northwestern University Saturday.

Harris, of Makanda, had been on a nine-month leave of absence to attend the college-accredited Traffic Police Administration Training Program at the Traffic Institute on the Evanston campus.

The 37-year-old Harris, who has been with the SIU police for eight years, was presented with a gold Traffic Institute Key commemorating the successful completion of the management-level program.

Richard M. Sanders, professor in the Rehabilitation Institute, has been elected to the board of directors and the executive board of the ten-state Midwest Area Alcohol Education and Training Corporation. He also will serve as chairman of the group's Consultation and Technical Assistance Committee.

The area programs of the MAAETC, in conjunction with the National Institute of Alcohol and Alcohol Abuse's National Center for Alcohol Education, are intended to enrich and expand the public educational and manpower services to alcoholic prevention and treatment programs.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has awarded the coordinator of the SIU Division of Continuing Education a $14,425 grant to conduct an environmental health training institute. Dr. E. Frank Ellis, regional health administrator, has announced.

Under the grant, recipient Andrew Marcec will train approximately 50 in and out-of-state sanitarians in different aspects of environmental health.

The institute will be conducted in two class sessions between June 21 and Oct. 15.

Appliance prices deceive buyers

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The $400 refrigerator you take home from the showroom will cost nearly twice that much to operate over its lifetime, and researchers say these hidden appliance costs could rise sharply in the future.

A 325-page report on the long-term consumer costs of major home appliances says, for example, that the hidden cost of electricity to run these items could increase 75 per cent by 1980.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology report released Tuesday noted: "The American public generally is unaware of the 'life-cycle' costs of major appliances which, in addition to purchase price, include costs of maintenance and repairing, servicing, electrical operating energy and even disposal."

The two-year laboratory and statistical study, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, concentrated on color televisions and refrigerators, which are on top of consumer expenditure lists.

But the researchers say their findings can be applied to the entire range of home appliances.

The study found that service costs account for 35 per cent of all the money spent on a color television set, while the purchase price amounts to 53 per cent and electricity 12 per cent.

This means that the owner of a $500 set can expect to spend nearly another $500 on it before it is junked.

Service costs account for only 6 per cent of a refrigerator's life-long costs, and its purchase price another 36 per cent. But electrical power to run it accounts for a whopping 58 per cent, meaning the owner of a $400 refrigerator would spend a total of $1,100 over the life of the product. The MIT team estimated that the average color TV has a life of 10 years and the average refrigerator 14 years.

The study said service costs are more effectively reduced by designing and building more reliable products than by attempts to improve the productivity of servicemen.

Davis to serve again as Grad Council chief

Phil Davis, chairman of the department of Engineering Mechanics and Materials, will serve another year as chairman of the Graduate Council.

Davis was re-elected chairman of the Council at the June 7 meeting. C. Addison Hickman, Vandever Professor of Economy, was elected vice-chairman.

The council will meet July 12 and August 9 during summer quarter, Davis said. The monthly meetings may be changed from Friday mornings to Thursday mornings beginning fall semester, he said.

The Graduate Council executive committee soon will be selecting nominees for a committee to study the System Council document, Davis said. Since the Board of Trustees wants to convene the committee in early July, the executive committee will not be able to present their choices to the council, he said. Both campuses have been directed to

Ford shuts down three more auto assembly plants

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP)—Ford Motor Co. Tuesday shut down three more assembly plants, idling 8,800 workers because of a week-old strike at its Chicago stamping plant, including 2,000 in Wayne, Mich.

The automaker now has closed nine facilities and laid off nearly 23,000 employees since Monday, citing a shortage of parts. A Ford spokesman said the assembly lines would be idle for the rest of the week.

The latest closings, announced by Vice President Donald Bastian, affect 2,800 in Atlanta, 4,900 in Lorain, Ohio, and 2,900 at the Michigan truck plant in Wayne.

Bastian said its 11 other North American assembly plants still operating may be closed down this week if the strike by 3,800 United Auto Workers at the Chicago Heights, Ill., facility continues.

The company spokesman said bargaining talks at the struck plant tentatively were scheduled to resume Tuesday afternoon. The dispute over a new local contract involves working conditions, union officials said. The old contract expired last fall.

The stamping plant makes 80 per cent of the firm's truck body parts as well as auto hoods, doors, roofs and other components.

Ford said the strike has cost the firm a production loss of 9,000 cars and trucks last week and an estimated 31,500 this week.

"They the stamping plant make something for every plant," he said.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock told striking workers over the weekend their walkout could imperil Ford operations in the U.S. and Canada.

Sawhill okayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate confirmed John C. Sawhill today as the government's new energy chief.

The vote was 87 to 4. Sawhill, 38, had been deputy director of the Federal Energy Office before William F. Simon moved up to secretary of the Treasury.

In Chicago Heights, Dick Marco, president of striking UAW Local 588, warned Ford production would grind to a halt if the strikers are not granted concessions.

Marco said the union could outwait Ford to resolve grievances over noise, production line problems, ventilation and discipline at the plant.

The Chicago plant is the only Ford plant without a local contract to supplement last October's national Ford-UAW agreement.

Orville Alexander

Alumni give teacher prize to Alexander

Orville Alexander, a professor in the government department, won the 1974 SIU Alumni Association's Great Teacher award during Alumni Day activities June 8.

Alexander, who was chosen for the award by Alumni Association members, was presented with a plaque and $1,000.

The professor earned his bachelor's degree from SIU in 1931. As an undergraduate, he served as editor of the campus newspaper, the Egyptian.

He earned his master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa. Alexander came to SIU in 1938 and served as chairman of the Government Department from 1950 to 1969.

The Alumni Association has given the Great Teacher award annually since 1960.

Two women honored by Illinois Bar

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (AP)—Two women, one a Franciscan nun, and a Sterling lawyer were named today for awards of merit by the Illinois State Bar Association.

Sister Catherine M. Ryan and Mariann Twist, both employees of the Cook County state's attorney's office in Chicago, were honored for authoring a book, "Sentencing Problems and Remedies of the Sentenced Prisoners: A Handbook for Illinois State Prisoners."

The book explains major legal remedies for inmates and administrative procedures for their release and other relief while they are serving time.

Kennard J. Besse was honored for work as chairman of the ISBA long-range planning committee.

Senate again fails to pass ERA proposal

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Illinois Senate refused again Tuesday to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The ratification resolution, proposed by Sen. Esther Saperstein, D-Chicago, won only 30 favorable votes, while 24 senators voted it down. Under a ruling by Senate President William C. Harris, R-Fond du Lac, 36 votes, a three-fifths majority, was needed for ratification.

Sen. Saperstein had asked for a vote on the resolution May 21, but asked that consideration be postponed when it became apparent that she had only 32 votes. The postponement enabled her to call the measure up for another vote.

"I'm not discouraged, but I didn't expect to lose those two votes," Sen. Saperstein said following the vote Tuesday.

She said the results of the recorded vote would be turned over to a three-judge federal panel in Chicago which is considering the legality.

Book reveals Pentagon aid

CIA spending billions a year

By Don Sanders
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The authors of a contested book about the CIA contend the federal government is spending about $6 billion a year on intelligence and covert activities, and that much of it is wasted.

The Central Intelligence Agency itself, they say, has an authorized strength of 16,500 but employs tens of thousands more as mercenaries, agents, consultants and so on. And they say its authorized budget of $750 million yearly does not include hundreds of millions more provided by the Pentagon.

Their book, "CIA and the Cult of Intelligence," argues that this cult—a secret fraternity of the American political aristocracy—seeks to further foreign policies by covert and usually illegal means.

The book was written, after litigation going back more than two years, by Victor Marchetti, a former executive assistant to the CIA's deputy director, and John D. Marks, a former State Department official. Marchetti has been ordered by the federal courts to publish nothing of a classified nature that he learned as a CIA employee.

When he submitted his manuscript to the agency for approval last October, it ordered that 339 passages, ranging from single words to entire pages, be deleted.

After extended discussions with the authors and their attorneys, the CIA agreed to the reinstatement of all but 168 of the deletions. An additional 140 passages were cleared for publication by a federal judge, but appeals to higher courts have held up their publication.

Alfred A. Knopf is publishing the book with blank spaces indicating the deletions, and with the reinstated passages set in bold face type. Among the latter are the references to the CIA's manpower and budget.

The CIA last week issued a statement saying that its decision not to contest major portions of the manuscript "does not constitute an endorsement of the book or agreement with its conclusions."

A major conclusion is that the intelligence community is dominated by a clandestine mentality that thrives on secrecy and deception, preventing Congress and the public from knowing what is being done in their names.

The authors say that the desire for secrecy has led high officials to lie about CIA involvement in such things as the Bay of Pigs invasion and the U2 spy flights over the Soviet Union. They say lies were told also about the CIA role in an abortive attempt to overthrow President Sukarno of Indonesia in 1958 and about its role in the Congo in the early 1960s.

While the agency was created in 1950 to gather intelligence and to coordinate the intelligence activities of other federal departments, the book says, it now devotes about two-thirds of its funds and manpower for covert operations and their support—a ratio relatively constant for the past 10 years.

Registration for NTE test due June 27

Prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teachers Examination on July 20 must have their registrations reach the Princeton, N.J. by June 27. Harlan Bradshaw of the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) has announced.

Bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms can be obtained from the CPPC Testing division.

At the one-day test session a candidate may take the Common Examination, which include tests in professional education and general education. A candidate may also take one of the 24 area examinations which are designed to evaluate understanding of subject matter and methods applicable to a particular teaching area.

Each candidate will receive an admissions ticket with the exact testing location. The Common Examination will be conducted 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on July 20. Area examinations will be held 1:30 to 4:15 p.m. the same day.

Murder, arson determined in Park Ridge deaths, fire

By Joseph R. Tybor
Associated Press Writer

PARK RIDGE AP- Four members of a close-knit family were slain sometime last weekend and the key to the killings may lie in a fifth death, that of the eldest son, authorities said Tuesday.

Autopsies showed Raymond A. Fuchs, 49, and his daughter, Linda, 14, were shot several times in the head. Mrs. Ruth Fuchs, 48, and a son, Scott, 16, were strangled, said Cook County Coroner Andrew Toman.

The bodies were found Monday in the basement of the family's ranch-style home in this well-to-do Chicago suburb. Mrs. Fuchs was also stabbed, said Toman. A bloodied kitchen knife was found near the body.

The cause of the death of another son, Jeffrey, 17, was still under investigation and won't be known for several days, Toman said. His body was found in the kitchen by firemen who were summoned to put out a fire that authorities said was set in an attempt to cover up the slayings.

The fire was caused by a large candle which burned to the bottom and ignited fuel-soaked rags wrapped around its base, said Police Sgt. John Baudek.

Toman said all five persons had been dead for at least 24 hours before firemen found the bodies about 11 a.m. Monday.

Baudek said members of the family were last seen alive Friday night.

Early reports that Jeffrey was badly burned were inaccurate, Toman said Tuesday. A blackening about the body's face and head was the normal effect of decomposition, he said.

Investigators fanned across the Fuchs' neighborhood Tuesday talking with friends and school officials and teachers in an attempt to learn Jeffrey's state of mind, Baudek said.

Friends have described the youth as a loner who stuck more and more to himself as classes at Maine East High School neared an end. He failed to appear for his high school graduation ceremony Thursday night.

There was no evidence of a struggle or a robbery in the home which "leads us to believe the slayings might have been done by an insider—Jeffrey," said Baudek. He said the key to the case may be tests which fix the cause and the time of Jeffrey's death in relation to the other family members.

In addition, investigators searched the Fuchs' home for a .22 caliber weapon used to kill Fuchs and Linda.

The search was hampered by several inches of water in the basement from putting out the fire.

Friends described the family as quiet and unassuming.

"They all just seemed to be an incredibly organized family," said Gerald Hug, chairman of the high school's music department in which the children and parents were active.

Changes in Festival schedule announced

Several schedule changes in the Mississippi River Festival at Edwardsville were announced last week, because of the death of Duke Ellington and the ill health of Meredith Willson.

In place of Ellington's scheduled Aug. 16 appearance, will be Sarah Vaughan performing with the original Duke Ellington Orchestra under the direction of Mercer Ellington.

Doc Severinsen and the New Generation Brass have been re-scheduled from July 26 to July 7, making them the opening concert of the season.

Meredith Willson, who was forced to cancel his August 4 appearance, will be replaced by composer-arranger Leroy Anderson, who will conduct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Additions to the Mississippi River Festival roster include singer composer Paul Williams, who will appear on July 19 with Helen Reddy; and Tom Scott and the L. A. Express, who will perform on Aug. 6 with Joni Mitchell.

Tickets for re-scheduled performances must be exchanged by mail or in person at the University Center box office at SIU-Edwardsville. Tickets may be purchased at various bi-state area box offices or at SIU-Edwardsville.

Education slates fall advisement

Students in the College of Education will pick up advisement appointments for fall semester in Wham 110.

Appointments for seniors and juniors will be given out Thursday, while sophomores and freshmen can pick up an appointment on Friday.

Students eligible for self-advisement may do so by coming to Wham 108, during the week of June 24-28.

Woman Alive!

National ad firm teaches executives media courses

By Deirdre Donnelly
Associated Press Business Writer

NEW YORK AP)—For $9,600, Madison Avenue offers a two-day course for eight persons in how to deal with the news media, and plans to begin offering a similar program on how to act before a congressional committee.

J. Walter Thompson, one of the nation's largest advertising and public relations firms, offers executives a two-day, telecommunications development course from former television newsman Sander Vancour and other broadcast journalists.

The corporate chiefs learn how to dress and act on camera, how to defuse potentially damaging questions and how to cope with aggressive interviewers in simulated television studios set up in Chicago.

"The purpose of the course is not to teach them how to manipulate an audience, but how to better understand the media and government," said Jack Hilton, the Thompson vice president who founded the telecommunications course.

"Many of these corporate titans are lawyers, engineers and metallurgists. Their educations and experience has not prepared them for the new role that's been thrust upon them," Hilton says.

A two-day session costs a company $9,600 and it can send up to eight representatives.

Hilton says the popularity of the course is growing fast, and beginning next month J. Walter Thompson is setting up a second course in Washington to simulate congressional hearings.

Since the middle of last year 400 executives from a dozen companies have taken the media course, which Hilton said is booked through Thanksgiving.

Most of the executives have come from the food, drug and oil industries. Executives of Mobil Oil and Shell Oil have said publicly they took the course; Hilton would not reveal the names of any others.

The curriculum begins with an analysis of the nature of the broadcast journalist. Then each executive is interviewed by a tough, antibusiness reporter on a simulated talk-show. The interview is taped.

For the next day and a half, the faculty works with each executive on improving his on-camera performance. Then a final interview is taped.

The Washington course will be a similar learn-by-doing format designed to teach executives how to handle subcommittee hearings, Hilton says. He said the Washington program has not yet been finalized.

Luns warns NATO of Russian intentions

By Kenneth J. Freed
Associated Press Writer

OTTAWA AP)—NATO Secretary-General Joseph M. A. H. Luns said Tuesday that the Soviet Union considers detente a "one-way process serving the exclusive interests of the Soviet Union."

Opening the 25th anniversary session of foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Luns urged alliance leaders to avoid the over-optimism evident in assertions that detente has already been achieved.

"The reality is different. Detente is not yet an established fact. It is simply the goal of our policies and hopes," he said.

Delegations from the 15 member nations assembled in Canada's Parliament for a short public session before beginning two days of deliberations on East-West relations and a declaration on Atlantic relations expected to be made public today.

The main sticking point in the sensitive declaration reportedly was a paragraph concerning consultations between the United States and its European partners. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues met during the morning to iron out remaining differences, and informants later reported they were in agreement.

The informants said Sauvagnargues told the closed morning meeting that the declaration, rather than representing a strictly legal obligation, should be a declaration of intent to strengthen the consultative process.

They said Kissinger, who had sought less restricted consultations.

SMOKE SIGNAL

GET SUMMER QUARTER GOING RIGHT AT B.R.'S

Stock prices drift lower

NEW YORK -AP- If stockbrokers didn't take a long lunch break Tuesday, they should have. They wouldn't have missed much.

In another day of light trading, stock prices didn't move much. Brokers said investors still were waiting some signals. Prime rates were coming down, or at least not going up.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which began the day about 2 points lower and then advanced slightly, sagged back to close at 830.26, down 2.97 from Monday's close.

Declining stocks beat back advances 959 to 407 on the New York Stock Exchange, where a total of 1,740 issues were traded. Volume at the Big Board was a light total of 10.11 million shares.

On Thursday, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York will release loan and interest figures for the major banks in the New York area. These figures are used by many banks to set their prime rates.

With interest rates high, brokers

City airport to receive extra federal funds

Southern Illinois Airport at Carbondale will get an extra $124,029 in grant funds from the Federal Aviation Administration for improvements.

The grant increase was announced Tuesday by Rep. Kenneth Gray (D-Ill.). It is part of an on-going program of federal aid for work at the airport, which got $286,071 from the FAA in January.

Gray said the extra money will be used to expand and reconstruct aprons at the airport and to construct, light and mark two connecting taxiways for aircraft between an apron and parallel taxiways.

The grant will be effective immediately.

say investors are inclined to put their money in fixed-income securities like bonds and certificates rather than equities. In addition, they say high rates may pinch some corporate profits, thereby possibly diminishing stock yields.

Texaco, steady at 25½, and UAL Inc., down ¾, at 27¾, topped the Big Board's most-active list.

Two aquatic courses open

There are ten openings remaining in the physical education department's summer skin diving and scuba diving courses, according to Peter Carroll, instructor for the two courses.

The two classes are taken together, with the skin diving class meeting the first half of the summer and the scuba diving class meeting the last half, Carroll said. Both are offered for two hours credit.

The classes meet 3 to 4:50 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Thursday in Pulliam Pool, and Tuesday from 3 to 4:50 p.m. in Tech A, Room 420.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index lost .42 to 83.23. Syntex, down ¾, at 44¾, and Giant Yellowknife, steady at 15¾, were the most-active issues.

The Big Board's composite index for all its listed common stock was down .33 to 47.00.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market finished .29 lower at 81.25.

Successful completion of the class, which will include excursions to local lakes, results in the certification of students as YMCA Scuba Divers, Carroll said.

He also said there is a possibility students will be able to participate in a scuba diving trip to British Honduras in Central America at the end of the summer.

Students interested in enrolling in the course should contact Carroll at the Physical Education Office in the Arena, 453-2575.

Home run king given top award

NEW YORK -AP- Hank Aaron was claimed as "an honorary New Yorker" Tuesday as the city bestowed its highest award—the Gold Medal—on the 40-year-old home run king.

He was termed "one of the world's few authentic heroes" by Mayor Abraham D. Beame at an official welcoming ceremony in front of City Hall. It was attended by more than 800 city officials, sports figures and baseball fans.

Aaron told the throng that it was "a great thrill" for him to be officially welcomed in this city where Jackie Robinson opened the path for blacks to play in the former all-white major leagues.

Quality of consumer beef falling

By Eric Kramer Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Consumers may find some steak tougher to chew because beef industry price gyrations are changing the diet of cattle on their way to market.

Under normal conditions, a rancher breeds cattle and sells the calves to a feedlot owner who fattens them for market. In the feedlot, cattle simply stand around and eat corn and other high-quality foods, which makes the meat more tender than grass from the pasture.

But now, feedlot owners are not buying as many cattle because grain prices are relatively high and prices for fat cattle are at their lowest in two years. Charles McManamy,

FRANKLY SPEAKING... by phil frank executive director of the Omaha Livestock Foundation, said feedlot owners are losing a minimum of $150 per head.

In May, feedlot owners in the seven major cattle states bought 33 per cent fewer cattle than they did in May of 1973, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics. The seven states—Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas—raise about 70 per cent of the nation's cattle.

The rancher is stuck with the cattle that the feedlot owner does not buy. The rancher usually keeps them on pasture eating grass. If the feedlot owner doesn't eventually buy the cattle, many will have to go straight to market from the pasture, and grass-fed beef is tougher than corn-fed beef.

Trustees name communications dean

Appointments of a dean of the Communications and Fine Arts College and a provost for SIUC's Springfield Medical Facility were among changes in faculty-administrative staff approved by the SIUC Board of Trustees June 13.

Charles B. Hunt Jr., was named by the board to serve as dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts. Hunt, 58, received a Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of California at Los Angeles. Hunt will take his position as dean on July 15 and will also serve as a professor in the School of Music. Hunt will earn $2,700 monthly on a fiscal year basis.

Dr. Richard H. Moy, currently dean of the School of Medicine at SIUC, has been assigned to also serve as provost of the Springfield Medical Facility effective June 13. Moy is also currently employed as a professor in the SIUC School of Medicine. Moy's salary was not changed.

Former Carbondale police chief Joseph T. Dakin was given a continuing appointment by the board to serve as assistant professor in the School of Technical Careers, starting August 16. Dakin will be paid $1,867 monthly on a fiscal year basis.

The board also approved Kenneth W. Serfass to serve on continuing appointment as dean of University Programs. Serfass began the appointment June 1 and is paid $2,300 monthly on a fiscal year basis.

A leave with pay was granted to former SIUC-President David R. Derge, now a professor of political science at SIUC. The leave with pay extends from July 1 through August 15.

Other faculty-administrative payroll matters approved by the board are:

Parents inspire school spirit

Salukis capture hearts in Omaha

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

About midway through each game of the College World Series, the stadium announcer asked the crowd to show alliance to each tournament team by applauding and cheering. If the series were decided on vocal support alone, the Salukis would have been runaway champs.

Talking to many of the Omaha, Neb. townspeople, it became no secret that many who annually attend the tournament were pulling for someone to dethrone the perennial college baseball king, the University of Southern California.

"We're tired of seeing them (USC) win it every year," one Omahan declared as he settled into his front row seat. "This SIU team has a lot of spirit and we've all sort of agreed to back them this year."

In addition to having the general backing of the city of Omaha, SIU was represented by a throng of about thirty screaming parents of players, about two dozen students who managed to escape the bind of finals week and at least six of the school's more prominent staff members.

When the Salukis won the District IV championships in Minnesota last month, a hardcore group of Saluki loyalists gathered and vowed to support SIU in its quest for the national title. That group tripled in size in Omaha and ignited a flame of SIU support that eventually saw Saluki T-shirts being sold in the stores of the Omaha merchants.

The team and nearly all of the supporters stayed in Raddison Blackstone Hotel, and by mid-week bellhops and waitresses were saying, "How'd Wilbins do today?" or "You guys'll kill Southern Cal tonight."

Led by cheerleading Georgia Shartzler, the parents taught the kids a little something about school spirit. In the hotel lobby, banners, flags and noise makers were distributed and later unveiled at the ballpark. SIU hats were the attire of the day and the SIU school song, although the lyrics were never the same twice, was as common in Omaha as corn-fed beef.

Each night, whether rain-out, win or lose, the SIU contingency gathered in a seventh floor suite to shovel more coals into the loyalist fire. Before the week was out, the "707 Show Lounge" has seen such dignitaries as Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Doug Weaver, Vice President for Development and Services, T. Richard Mager, Alumni Director Bob Odaniell, SIU President Hiram Lesar, Assistant to the President Jerry Lacey and Assistant Football Coach Bill Matan.

Parent representatives included members of the Bokelmanns, Derrys, Dunning, Herbsts, Hoscheids, Hunsakers, Klass', Locascios, Manns, Mitchells, Newmans, Reeves', Ruegers, Shartzers, Waltemates, Wilbins' and Wolfs.

Although physically and emotionally drained by the end of the week, Vilas Waltemate, father of pitcher Scott, still mustered up enough of a voice to say, "I don't think I've ever had more fun than this week at the College World Series. We're all awful proud of what they've done. I don't think any of us will ever forget what happened out here."

And when the SIU players somberly climbed off the team bus in front of the hotel after losing to Southern Cal for the second time, the SIU fans conveyed that pride with a volley of shouts, whistles and applause that clattered across the clear, dark Omaha air.

"Our fans are just super," one Saluki player said later that evening. "When I got off the bus I thought about how we had let them all down, but when I heard all that clapping I couldn't help but smile. They're the greatest."

Swimming workshop to be conducted here

Comprehensive training in swimming will be the aim of a Saluki Summer Swimming Workshop starting June 23 at SIU.

A special A-A session (June 23-August 20) will include intensive training in swimming and a continuous training program in preparation for the National AAU Championships in Concord, California. Participants will attend four local AAU meets. Two other sessions of the workshop will be from June 30-July 6 and July 7-13.

Men or women of junior and senior high school age (through the junior class) are eligible to participate in the workshop.

The workshop staff includes Bob Steele, SIU swimming coach; Don Watson, Hinsdale Central High School coach; John Holben, former Saluki swimmer; and Dave Deutsch, graduate student in exercise physiology at SIU and swimming coach at the Jackson County YMCA.

Cost for the workshop will be $100 per week which includes room and board, or a commuter rate of $60. The A-A session will cost $125 per week plus lodging which averages approximately $42 per week.

Additional information may be obtained from Andrew Marce, coordinator at the Division of Continuing Education, at 453-2395.

Greg Broeking wins annual Glenn "Abe" Martin award

Greg Broeking, a June 1974 graduate of SIU, has been named the recipient of the third annual Glenn "Abe" Martin Intramural Athlete of the Year Award.

Broeking, a lifetime resident of Marion, was an active intramural participant during his four years at SIU, playing on the football, basketball and softball teams of the Rompin' Redeyes. During the recent school year, the Redeyes' teams were eliminated in the semi-finals of the football and softball tournaments.

The award was presented to Broeking on June 7 by its namesake, Mr. Glenn "Abe" Martin, former SIU coach and intramural director. The two previous awards were given to Jim Burke and Joel Rothstein, both SIU graduates. The award is given on the basis of intramural participation, sportsmanship and performance. The Intramural Student Board, a committee of ten SIU students (undergraduate and graduate) selects and votes on the nominees each spring.

Broeking majored in accounting at SIU and is now headed for graduate school at Arizona State University where he plans to receive a masters degree either in accounting or finance. An engraved pen and pencil set was given to him by the Office of Recreation and Intramurals and his name added to the Glenn "Abe" Martin Intramural Athlete of the Year plaque.

Nominees, and named honorable mention in the award tabulations were Jim Arlington, John Goro, Dave Kraemer, Duane Kuiper and Wally Martin.

Ramirez wins in NCAA tennis

SIU's Jorge Ramirez won his first round match against Texas A&M's Charles Emley, 6-2, 6-2 Monday in the NCAA Tennis Tournament being held at the University of Southern California.

Mike Greenberg of Washington defeated SIU's Mel Ampon, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2 in another first round match.

In doubles competition, Mel Ampon and Felix Ampon lost 6-3, 6-3 to the Memphis State team of West and Leopold.

Padres clobber Cubbies again

CHICAGO AP-Rookie pitcher Dave Freisleben singled in one run, doubled and scored another run, and combined on a seven-hitter with Bill Greif, helping the San Diego Padres beat the Chicago Cubs 9-4 Tuesday.

Freisleben yielded a leadoff homer in the second inning to Jose Cardenal, then blanked the Cubs until the eighth when Bill Madlock hit a solo homer and Chris Ward smashed a two-run shot. Greif came in later in the inning and preserved Freisleben's sixth victory in eight decisions.

Cubs starter Bill Bonham was chased in a three-run San Diego sixth marked by two Chicago errors and three stolen bases, giving the Padres a 7-1 lead.

San Diego took a 2-0 lead in the second on Willie McCovey's leadoff triple, John Grubb's single and Freisleben's single, driving in Grubb.

The Padres made it 4-1 with two runs in the fifth on Freisleben's double, a walk, Dave Winfield's single, a passed ball, and a wild pitch.

In the San Diego sixth, Grubb singled and scored on Derrel Thomas' triple. After an error on Rich Morales' grounder scored Thomas, Morales moved to third on an infield out and a force play after Freisleben walked, then scored on a double steal.

San Diego added its final two runs in the eighth on singles by Dave Roberts and Winfield and an error and a single by McCovey.

IM umpire meetings set to discuss rules

SIU students interested in umpiring intramural softball games should attend softball rule interpretation meetings prior to the start of the season.

The meetings are scheduled for 5: 15 p.m. Thursday, June 20 and 5: 15 p.m. Monday, June 24th in Room 121 of the SIU Arena.

Umpires are paid $3 per game and are required to have a current ACT family financial statement on file at the Student Work and Financial Assistance Office. Slow pitch 12 and 16 inch games will be played.

For additional information contact the Office of Recreation and Intramurals in Room 128 of the SIU Arena or call 453-2710.
