Students face suspensions

By Norris Jones
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Summary suspensions, lasting from seven months to more than a year, face SIU students arrested during recent demonstrations.

Unless they can provide clear evidence proving their innocence, curfew violators are being dismissed through fall quarter of 1970.

Students arrested for curfew and other more serious crimes (i.e., assault, resisting arrest, unlawful assembly) are being suspended through spring quarter of 1971.

Following the establishment of the Carbondale curfew Friday, Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar announced the University police saying "Students who are arrested for curfew violations or other infractions of the criminal code during this period are subject to summary suspension from the University."

Wilbur Moulton, dean of students, defined summary suspension as "prompt and informal" dismissal.

Students facing suspension were notified through letters Monday of the pending action. The letter suggested that those who could provide evidence contact their area assistant dean of students to stop the suspension machinery.

Students who can present evidence of extenuating circumstances may also ask for an immediate review, the letter read. In either case, the area assistant dean may withhold suspension action or recommend that the case be referred to the Student Conduct Review Board.

The review board has been organized specifically to hear such cases, the Dean of Students office reported. It consists of seven members: three undergraduates, one graduate, and three faculty.

All students have the option of appealing suspensions through the judicial review of the board, the letter read.

Students petitioning for a hearing were asked to submit a report containing sufficient information that would allow the board to act on the written material. A personal appearance is at their discretion, the Dean of Students office explained.

Elwyn Zimmerman, assistant dean of students, said, "We are doing everything we can to give the individual involved due process thus enabling him to clear himself. We are also trying to keep all the students informed on current information available such as announcements from the mayor, or the Chancellor."

Among those arrested this weekend was student body vice president-elect John W. McCaffrey. He was charged with unlawful assembly and disobeying a police officer. If he is suspended, McCaffrey would be unable to fill his post during his entire term of office next year.

Merchants air opinions

By Jim Sumner and James Hoci
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Carbondale merchants Monday voiced varied opinions concerning last week's violence ranging from "police brutality" to praising the police for their efforts.

The manager of J and B's Southern Cafeteria, Joel D. Thacker, said that in some instances, the behavior of the Illinois State Police was worse than the rioters' themselves. He said the police antagonized individuals and completely alienated bystanders against the police. He termed the police actions as an "indiscriminate beating of individuals."

Thacker said his store was entered by about 35 individuals Thursday night, 20 of them being regular customers, to escape the tear gas on the streets.

According to Thacker, everyone was seated except for himself and two other employees. He claimed that the State Police passed by on the sidewalk, saw the students, and pitched in tear gas from the front and back door. The police then held the door shut and beat people as they tried to leave, said Thacker.

"I will file complaints on this action if I can find the proper channels," said Thacker. "Being just a small businessman, though, I couldn't afford to sue the state myself."

Next door at MacDonald's Restaurant, the manager, Merrill Holloway, said he also witnessed the incident as explained by Thacker. He also said most of the trouble in that vicinity was caused by the police.

"I haven't seen the kids around here doing anything wrong," said Holloway, "except

SIU officials plan meeting on state of campus

By Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar announced late Monday night that a meeting involving city and University officials will be held in his office at 8 a.m. today to look into the current campus crisis.

An apparent truce between students and police was reached early Tuesday morning as National Guard units withdrew from the University Park and Brush Tower area, the scene of earlier fires and rock throwing. At press time, students were still milling around the dormitory areas.

Carbondale police reported about 50 arrests had been made as of 11:30 p.m. Monday. The total included arrests made by city and state police.

At 11 p.m. police were peppering the area around Grinnell Hall with tear gas. When firemen arrived to extinguish a trash fire, they were pelted with debris by students.

The fire alarms in University Park dormitories were pulled, but the buildings were not evacuated.

At 11 p.m. Moulton said the situation at Grinnell Hall is "out of control. We'll have to do everything necessary to clear the area."

Forty to 50 national guard troops and state police were ready to move in with gas.

An automobile was overturned on East Park Street, and demonstrators set fire to it.

Moulton said police would be instructed to clear the crowd away from the dorm area.

Carbondale Mayor David Keene said Monday night that he thinks there is a good chance the University will be closed. "Tonight will tell the story," he said. Keene made no statement about reinstating the curfew.

SIU Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar, meeting late Monday night with police authorities, said, "School will continue as long as security can be maintained for those individuals involved."

Carbondale Police Chief Jack Hazel said he had been informed by MacVicar that closing the school is one alternative.

Chancellor MacVicar and Moulton speaking on the "hot-line" between police headquarters in Carbondale and the SIU security office discussed alternatives to handling the situation.

MacVicar reportedly said, during his conversation with Moulton, "This is not the same situation we've had in the past. This seems more like a petty raid."

It was also reported that more National Guard troops were called to reinforce the force at the Grinnell Hall area, but this report was not yet verified.

President Morris was contacted at midnight and he said he did not know enough about the situation to comment. He said he had a meeting scheduled soon with MacVicar and other officials to bring him up to date on the issue.

Several student-police clashes flared anew Monday night after a tense but calm weekend which saw over 350 arrests for curfew violation and other charges.

At 10 p.m., students at Grinnell Hall formed a trash-can barricade and set a fire in one of the containers.

At 10:20, Dean of Students Wilbur Moulton went into the Grinnell area announcing with a bull horn that all the University Park buildings were being locked and crowds would be dispersed with tear-gas.

SIU police said 12 persons were arrested as of 10:30 p.m. No figure on arrests was released by Carbondale or state police.

A list of those arrested during recent disturbances will be printed in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian.

Students re-set some of the trash fires and police moved in to disperse them with tear-gas.

Earlier a rally planned for 6 p.m. Monday at Home Economics lawn and moved to the Newman Center failed as clumps of students lounged on the grass next to the Cen-

Civil emergency ends; gatherings prohibited

By Ellen Matheson
 Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Mayor David Keene lifted his declared state of civil emergency, Monday, but said the city would enforce a city ordinance and state law which prohibits unlawful assembly.

"Quite simply this prohibits gathering together in crowds or organizing such a gathering. Refusal to obey a police officer's order to disperse will result in the on-the-spot arrest of the individuals in the crowd. This ordinance will be enforced in all parts of the city of Carbondale including those portions of the SIU campus which are within the city," the letter reads.

Violation of this ordinance is a misdemeanor. Keene also commented on the disorders in Carbondale.

"We are in a desperate situation. This town has neither the resources or the will to stand up under the continual attack of the young people. I am firmly convinced they have no concept of the psychological damage they have done."

By psychological damage Keene, referred to the attitude now held by the citizens of Carbondale toward the students.

Responding to a rumor that Carbondale merchants were displeased with police coverage of the downtown area, Keene said he felt "everyone did as well as they could."

$100,000 damages to city, SIU - 356 arrests

By P.J. Heller and Steve Brown
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Sporadic incidents during the weekend replaced the mass demonstrations and violence which plagued SIU and Carbondale earlier last week, resulting in more than $100,000 damage. A 7:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew, which had been in effect since Friday, was lifted late Sunday night by Carbondale Mayor David Keene.

The Carbondale Police Department reported 356 arrests since Thursday night. University News Services reported that 146 arrests were for curfew violations and that half of those arrested were not students.

Carbondale stores, trying to pick up the pieces after a massive peaceful protest turned into a violent window smashing spree, said damages may exceed $75,000. Damage to University buildings was placed at $25,525.

About 1,000 National Guardsmen were ordered into Carbondale Thursday. By Monday, a force of 220 guardsmen remained to handle emergencies.

Throughout the weekend, National Guard troops barricaded entrances to the campus. Barricades were removed Sunday night although police continued to check identification of all persons entering the area.

Students who returned to Carbondale Sunday night were met at the Illinois Central train station by Dean of Students Wilbur Moulton and four University buses. Students were informed that a curfew was in effect, to board the buses, and that they would be taken to their respective living areas.

Some students expressed disbelief at the boarded up windows and the fact that a curfew had been imposed. No incidents were reported at the depot.

Among those arrested this weekend was Richard Wallace, student body vice president. He was charged with unlawful assembly.

John W. McCaffrey, student body vice president-elect, was also arrested for unlawful assembly and disobeying a police officer.

Incidents of sniper fire and firebombings were reported throughout the weekend. SIU Security Police reported being shot at while on patrol and said shots had been fired at the South Wall Street water treatment plant.

Shots were also fired in the 300 block of W. Cherry and in the southeast section of Carbondale, according to Carbondale Police Chief Jack Hazel. Hazel said no determination of where the shots came from could be made.

One shot, possibly from a .22 rifle or pellet gun, was fired in the Carbondale Police station about 7 p.m. Saturday. Police also reported several street lights being shot out.

No injuries were reported from the shootings connected with the weekend's disturbances.

Illinois State Police continued to patrol the area in force. Several times they used spotlights to search trouble spots.

The firebombings included a house at 321 E. Stoker. The house, which received extensive damage, was being used by the Department of Art. Earlier Saturday evening, a firebomb was thrown about 50 yards away from the house, striking a garage. Little damage resulted as the fire was extinguished quickly.

A vacant house at 700 S. Rawlings was gutted by fire late Saturday night. Firemen reported finding a five-gallon gasoline can on the porch of the house. Another fire at the corner of Poplar and Mill did minor damage to another vacant house. A National Guardsman at the scene reported a bottle of flammable liquid had been found in the building.

Illinois State Police on numerous occasions used tear gas throughout the weekend to disperse crowds. Prior to the curfew going into effect Saturday night, tear gas was lobbed near Holden Hospital.

On Sunday afternoon, police closed the Dairy Queen and dispersed people who had gathered on the lawn in front of Holden Hospital.

Tear gas was also used Saturday night on N. Bridge Street where approximately 15 persons were arrested. Police reported finding several homemade weapons and one rifle.

Early Sunday morning, a M80 firecracker was set off after being taped to the door at Doctor's Memorial Hospital. Minor damage resulted.

Gassing prompts ACLU probe

Depositions describing civil liberties violations, triggered by the recent campus disorders, are being collected by the SIU chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

The complaints, submitted by businessmen and arrested students, will be reviewed by ACLU lawyers Wednesday.

"We're (ACLU members) trying to collect complaints of a variety of cases to see that justice is done," an ACLU spokesman said. SIU and Carbondale residents are receiving legal advice, he said. "Some have legitimate complaints."

Over 100 depositions have been turned in so far, he said, with most of the complaints stemming from curfew violations and assault and resisting arrest.

There is evidence of discrimination against the students, especially those with long hair, he said. On Wednesday a decision will be made whether to file formal charges.

Capt. William Thompson of the Illinois State Police said Monday he did not care to comment on charges that state police officers had used unwarranted force in some instances during the campus disorders.

He said he would not make a statement on the matter since he didn't know what brought on the charges.

Charges that police fired tear gas indiscriminately into several dormitories and used unwarranted force at times have been voiced by some students and townspeople.

Thompson estimated 33 of his men were injured in the confrontations with students.

At least one incident involving the tear gassing of a dormitory was reported Monday.

Lincoln Avenue North Dormitory, 400 S. Lincoln, was the target of several cans of tear gas Saturday despite pleas from the dorm's resident manager.

The manager, Fred Donini, reported that State Police shot six cans of gas through the dorm's windows at 7:05 p.m. because they believed that several protestors had run into the dorm.

Donini said that no one ran into the dorm at that time and that the demonstrators being chased by the police ran past the dorm and into several of the nearby houses.

He tried to explain to the police that no one ran into the dorm but "they would not listen," Donini said.

Donini said that different types of chemicals besides tear gas were thrown into the dorm including a gas which created a nauseous effect. He said many residents became sick and three were taken to the SRU Health Service.

Only 12 of the 56 residents were in the dorm when the incident occurred and Donini said none of the residents was involved with the protest.

"We are trying to get some damages out of the state for the broken windows," Donini said. He added that clothing and personal belongings were also damaged by the gas.

"I hate to say it because there are so many good police, but I can understand the animosity between students and police," Donini said. This incident was altogether uncalled for, he said.

Spring brings out students

To the Daily Egyptian:

Well, it's that time of year again. Some students, a minority, but still enough to merit recognition, have, like the rest of us, survived a long, cold, dull winter of university life and decided they need some excitement. Some real excitement! They think very hard and they decide that destruction is the only way they can rid themselves of their pent-up emotions and they know that the only institution in this country that will afford them this outlet is the university. But they must disguise this destruction well, so they call it student protest. (If President Nixon had announced the start of Cambodia in the dead of last winter, I wonder how much protest there would have been.)

It begins with peaceful demonstrations and then evolves into a rock-throwing, property-destroying mob, who as a whole think they can do no wrong as long as they have their "cause" to fall back upon. Their philosophy seems to be "well, everyone here knows that such-and-such is wrong, so let's burn down this university building to show that it's wrong."

I ask you, where is there justification in destroying property, especially university property, to try to prove anything? It is a release for pent-up emotions, I suggest you all go back to your rooms and masturbate. This release is just as constructive as most protesting and destroying property, and a lot less destructive.

I realize that this country has problems, every nation does, and everyone wants solutions to them. But how in the hell can anyone rationalize that throwing rocks through windows helps to solve these problems?

The solutions will come from universities, all right, but only through capable men racking brains, and not from men wrecking property. So I say militant protesters are creating problems instead of solving them, and the quicker this university takes a hard stand, and expels any student destroying public or private property, the quicker the problems we have in this country will be solved. Then and only then can true students get back to their classes and begin to acquire the knowledge it takes to make sensible decisions to correct mistakes made in the past and prevent similar mistakes in the future. If destruction does not stop, there will be no universities where intelligent people can come together and discuss, learn and find solutions to urgent problems.

And just one final suggestion to all of you so-called revolutionaries who think this country is so bad. Go throw a rock through a window in any other country and see where it gets you!

Advantages of U.S.

seen in comparison

To the Daily Egyptian:

Mr. P. J. Heller asked a question in the May 7 issue of the Daily Egyptian. He asked if there was anything to celebrate on May 2 in the United States.

I hope he was being facetious. The very fact he could ask in print such a question is cause enough to rejoice, even if there were no other reasons. Do you doubt the stories of repression and censorship in Russia? In China? Is there really a place called Hungary? Is Czechoslovakia a mere fairy tale meant to frighten bad boys and girls?

What are the figures on U.S. immigration? Where are the people coming from? Why? Why is there opposition to restrictions or quotas on immigration? If this country is so rotten, why would anyone want to come here to live?

Are trade unions a world wide common place thing?

Is public education, up to and including college, available on a world wide scale?

How many countries have common working class people holding political offices?

None of these questions are difficult and the answers are surely available to a university student. I suggest answers, honest answers, will give anyone plenty of reasons to be proud of the United States.

No one or no thing can be classified or categorized until it is compared with another of its kind. While comparing what America is, with what it could be, don't forget to compare with what is everywhere.

WCIL alerts its listeners

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am disappointed by the ignorance that Mr. Martin Walker, a senior in design from Evergreen Terrace, showed in his "Letter to Editor" which appeared in your paper May 1st.

For the benefit of Mr. Walker let me point out that WCIL-AM and FM is an integral part of the Jackson County Civil Defense System and that we are on the alert at all times to broadcast weather bulletins and warnings.

On the night Mr. Walker refers to, Monday, April 28, WCIL-FM was the first radio station in this area to announce tornado warnings. Our announcer, working with the Sheriff's office and the Civil Defense gave explicit and accurate details of the tornadoic activities throughout the evening and until the all clear was reported at about midnight.

The professional competence of our announcers who have been thoroughly briefed on how they must cooperate with the weather bureau, Civil Defense officials and others concerned with the public safety is hardly recognized, but for someone to show their complete lack of information regarding a service which we consider vital to the thousands of people in our listening area can not go unaccounted for by me.

Let me assure everyone of your readers that WCIL-AM and FM 1020 on your AM dial and 101.3 on your FM dial is prepared to give instant, accurate information regarding weather conditions and other bulletins affecting the lives and safety of the citizens of Southern Illinois.

Tom Scherschel needs your help

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to take this opportunity to voice my support and confidence in our newly elected student body president, Tom Scherschel. I feel that Tom is a very qualified individual for the office he now holds, he has the qualities to bring all the factions of this university back together again, unlike his predecessors who did more to disunite these factions than to unite them.

I am putting my confidence in Tom and hope that other organizations on this campus will do likewise because he will need the support of every organization and individual to make his administration work and work effectively.

Tom has a gigantic job ahead of him within the next year. He will have to try to reorganize student government so that it can get something done, and he will have to put respect and confidence back into the Student Senate which this present administration made a virtual zoo of. He will have to restore confidence in student government by both the administration and students if he is to get anything done.

For these reasons I am hoping that everyone will get behind Tom and give him that added push and support that he is going to need to make the student government respectable. I think he will and I think as his campaign slogan said, put students back into student government.

Congratulations to Tom, good luck and now its time for all of us to get behind him to make student government work and make it something to be proud of.

Movie battles become real for 6.7 million Cambodians

By Edward Nelson
Copley News Service

The painted marguerite of the movie theater on Boulevard Monorom in downtown Phnom Penh advertised the current attraction as a battle between grotesque, giant serpents and the children of the enchanted forest.

The time was a few years ago, but the timeless theme of the enchanted forest (the Khmer kingdom of Cambodia) being threatened by the foreign serpents (Thailand and Vietnam) is still played on movie screens throughout Missouri-sized Cambodia.

Lately some of the cinema's fantasy has been stilled by the real sounds of war, long absent from the peaceful Cambodian countryside.

For 6.7 million Cambodians, the present-day, real-life plot has a slightly different serpent.

The possibility that Cambodia might disappear completely as a nation, long a source of fear among local statesmen, poets and prophets, and become a minority part of a communized Indochina is disconcerting and unacceptable to the free world.

The point was raised in contingency studies presented to President Nixon before his decision to dispatch aid to Cambodia.

The grim possibility that the Khmer nation might disappear had to be in the mind of Gen. Lon Nol when he overthrew the regime of Prince Norodom Sihanouk and openly challenged North Vietnamese Communist intruders.

Likewise, the future of the Khmers of Cambodians must be uppermost in the mind of Sihanouk himself as he plots for that most dangerous type of a political comeback—as the champion of an external Communist movement.

The Khmers, now called Cambodians, once ruled much of Thailand, Laos and South Vietnam as well as Cambodia.

Khmer art and architecture were superb, as evidenced in the ruins of Angkor, the old imperial capital, near the modern town of Siem Reap in northwestern Cambodia.

So far, thankfully, the fighting has not spread to the many temples in the Angkor complex.

Cambodia was first referred to in Chinese writings as part of the empire of Founan which was founded in the first four centuries A.D. by Indian migrants from the subcontinent.

The earliest of these settlers appear to have been colonists in Java and Sumatra.

The Indian colonists intermarried with the local population, which was of Mongoloid stock from Tibet and Yunnan.

Indian influence was strong from the start and brought paddy farming, language, religion and the mainstream of art and architectural styles.

Ties with China were intermittently close and most of the historical records of the early period are writings of Chinese scholars and travelers.

Internal struggles in the 9th Century led to consolidation of the Khmer kingdom into a single dynasty with the capital at Angkor.

The famed Angkor Wat complex of temples was built in the 12th Century, climaxing a period of Khmer power that was demonstrated in victorious wars against Annam (now part of Vietnam) and against imperial China.

Cambodia's wealth in this period was due to an abundant rice production and tribute extracted from the caravans that passed between India and China.

The varying personalities in the religious and semimilitary hierarchy produced numerous internal squabbles of the kind that still go on today among the Cambodian elite and had a weakening effect on the nation.

During one weak period, a fleet from the neighboring country of Cham sailed into Tonle Sap (Great Lake) and threatened Angkor.

More internal difficulties arose in the conflict between implanted Hindu Brahmins and the more aggressive Buddhists, who came from China.

Jayavarman VII, the ruler who had repulsed the Cham fleet's intrusion on Tonle Sap, set out to conquer Southeast Asia. He extended Khmer power through Siam (Thailand) as far as the Shan country in Burma and along the isthmus of Kra to what is now Malaysia.

But the Khmer king overextended himself in the march and rear guard incursions by the Thais were preludes to later thrusts.

The Mongol Khans later attacked Cambodia directly and Kublai Khan extracted tribute from the Khmer nation now ruled by Jayavarman VIII (1288-1295). By the end of his reign, although the Khmers still held the lowlands and what is now Bangkok, the Thais made repeated raids into the kingdom from the plateau of Korat.

The Thai attacks became stronger and stronger after the middle of the 14th Century and the capital at Angkor was abandoned by King Suryavarman III (1403-1450), who withdrew to the Mekong River at Phnom Penh.

During the next four centuries the northern and western frontiers were nibbled away by the Thais. During the same time, the Annamites (Vietnamese), with backing from imperial China, were advancing up the Mekong and eroding Khmer territory from that direction.

By the middle of the 18th Century, Cambodia was a small shadow of the once proud and extensive Khmer kingdom and was still being pressured by the Thais and Annamites.

Occupied with adjusting to the intrusions of the French, the Annamites ended direct interest in Khmer after 1858, leaving the Thais a free hand to further squeeze the Khmers. The Thais lost no time in invading Battambang and Siem Reap provinces.

The French persuaded King Norodom I (1859-1904) to allow Cambodia to become a French protectorate to prevent further erosion by her neighbors. The treaty was signed in 1863.

The Thai-occupied western provinces continued to be an issue and in 1907 Thailand ceded Battambang and Siem Reap back to the French protectorate of Cambodia.

But in 1941, when French involvement heightened in Europe, the Thais sent forced back into these provinces. In the ensuing border war, Japanese troops who had not yet entered World War II but who were in de facto control of much of Indochina, acted as mediators. In March, 1941, Japan awarded Battambang and Siem Reap provinces to Thailand.

The disputed provinces changed hands again in 1945 when Japan was defeated and Thailand, which had cooperated with the Japanese, gave the provinces back to Cambodia.

Cambodia achieved independence within the French union by 1949 and young Norodom Sihanouk was very much in the forefront of political life and acted to thwart Communist uprisings.

These Communist uprisings became part of the traditional pressures of the Annamites or Vietnamese in Cambodia. The Vietminh Communists of North Vietnam fostered the formation of several Communist groups in Cambodia in the 1950s and these are the links to Communist activity in the country today.

New shape of an old war

The cataclysmic events surrounding the battle of Dienbienphu and the end of the French Indochina war have tended to obscure in many minds the fact that the war actually spilled over into Cambodia.

French and Vietminh guerrilla forces contended in Cambodia right up until the Geneva conference of 1954 which ended the hostilities. Part of that Geneva agreement called for the removal of both Vietminh and French forces from Cambodia.

French forces departed, while the Vietminh merely went underground, changed its name to Viet Cong and proceeded in its long-range goal of taking over Indochina.

Sihanouk tried in the 1960s to keep foreign forces from using Cambodia as a battlefield. He feared that foreign troops would carve up his country. He cooperated with the Communists in maintaining a superficial "peace." But this cooperation was carried to an extent which the Gen. Lon Nol-Sirik Matak group could not tolerate.

Sihanouk was ousted while on a trip abroad and is now an exile in Communist China.

But the alternative the new Cambodian rulers have chosen has had the effect of heating up the war on Cambodian soil.

As to the question of the survival of the Cambodian nation, much depends on the United States, directly or indirectly.

Our Man Hoppe

America plays 'bush league' war

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

As a patriotic American, I protest and decry my country's growing involvement in Cambodia and Laos.

It's wars like these that are destroying our military efficiency, sapping our confidence and vigor and ruining our reputation as a first-class fighting nation.

For these wars are, let's face it, strictly bush league. For more than 20 years now, we've been taking on a string of third-rate opponents. Stumblebums. Is it any wonder we can't even lick tiny little North Vietnam?

As any fighting man knows—whether he fights on the squash court, the football field or in the prize ring—nothing more thoroughly erodes your skills than taking on a string of third-rate opponents.

You get lazy. You get over-confident. You skip practice. The first thing you know, your timing goes. You may enter a few wins in the old record book, but no one's much impressed. "Who'd he ever lick?" they say. "A bunch of stumblebums."

Think back to 1946. There we were, co-champions of the world. We'd just clobbered top-ranked Germany, Italy and Japan. We could've retired undefeated, admired and adulated by all, with the longest win streak in modern organized warfare.

But we couldn't quit. We had to up against tiny, little North Korea. It looked like a breather, but we were lucky to settle for a tie.

Naturally, after that every other third-rater wanted to take us on. What did they have to lose? If we beat them, people would just shrug and say, "What did you expect—a big, tough country like America."

But if the little guy pulls off an upset, it's the making of him. And you know how spectators always root for the underdog. Who's rooting for us these days?

You can't blame the Pentagon. Coaches always like an easy schedule. The Generals get to fatten up their batting averages with a 10-1 kill ratio in Vietnam. But we can't even beat these scrawny little Asians. Right now, we're praying for a tie.

Do you realize that in the past 24 years the only opponent we've licked is The Dominican Republic? What kind of record is that? It shows what a lack of challenge can do to a first-class fighting nation.

So to take on the Pathet Lao in Laos and the whoever-it-is in Cambodia would be courting disaster. From the recent track record, odds are we'd blow it. After that, it would be all downhill, until we're fighting in tank countries like Andorra, Sarawak and Upper Volta.

Far better, I say, to go up one more time against a first-rate opponent worthy of our mettle. Let's take on Russia. At least we'd all go out in a blaze of glory. What patriot's heart doesn't leap up at the thought?

But it's still not too late to retire undefeated. Let's say we accept a tie in Vietnam and a default in Laos and Cambodia. Eight wins, two ties and a default isn't a record to be sneered at.

Clearly, those are the only two patriotic alternatives: a graceful retirement from the fight game or a thermonuclear dead heat with Russia. But, whatever, these dreary, two-bit, back-room brawls with fourth-raters have got to stop.

There's nothing sadder than an old champ who's become a punchdrunk has-been.

Campuses calm—some schools shut down

By The Associated Press

Many colleges and universities in the nation reopened for classes Monday after a week of antiwar protests. But special programs, official closings and student strikes kept other schools academically curtailed or shutdown.

Most of the country's campuses were reported calm, although skirmishes with police were reported at some schools.

Many of the schools which reopened did not return to campus routines but scheduled special classes and programs about the Indochina war and the killing of four students at Ohio's Kent State University. Some administrators left it up to students and faculty whether to attend classes.

There were some moves by students against demonstrations and student strikes. A group at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y., called Strike Back, was formed to mobilize student and faculty opinion against a strike that had closed down the 7,000-student school since Wednesday. Classes were held as usual Monday, however, after the group threatened a lawsuit.

Similarly, Nassau Community College, in Garden City, N.Y., reopened after a law suit was filed by the conservative Young Americans for Freedom group, as was Suffolk Community College in Selden, N.Y.

Students, faculty and administrators at St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., sent a letter to President Nixon scolding campus disorders and student strikes.

"We cannot subscribe to irrational and violent methods of dissent since they imply abandonment of the fundamental principles for which a college should stand," the letter said.

"We doubt whether confrontations can advance the cause of reason . . . nor will the welfare of the country be advanced by a national strike of students or the closing of our colleges or universities."

In San Diego, a 23-year-old University of California student died Monday a day after he doused his clothing with gasoline and ignited himself in an antiwar protest.

George Winne, who carried a sign declaring, "For God's sake, End the War," suffered burns over most of his body. He was the son of retired Navy Capt. George Winne of La Jolla, Calif.

At some of the reopened schools, attendance was reported below normal.

Wabash College in Crawfordsville, Ind., returned to a normal class schedule Monday after a four-day student strike as a memorial to the dead Kent State students curtailed activities. But college officials said attendance was off by 50 per cent.

Classes resumed at seven Michigan colleges and universities closed last week. Student strike leaders at one of the schools, Wayne State, said they would continue to push for a boycott of classes there.

The City University of New York announced that all its 17 units were open and classes were held. The Board of Higher Education directed that the university reopen despite a student boycott begun last week to protest the war. Students continued to boycott some classes and many attended rallies held at their respective schools.

At Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., the school's 1,400 students began a week of informed classes, held at the option of faculty and students. School spokesmen said about half the student body attended classes.

At an assembly which police estimated drew about 5,000 of the University of Nebraska's 19,000 students on the Lincoln campus, it was announced that in a secret ballot Sunday students voted 1,357 to 1,030 against continuing a voluntary boycott of classes.

Class attendance at the North Carolina State University in Raleigh was reported by officials as normal Monday despite a call for a student boycott.

Classes were reported meeting at the University of California at Berkeley, Stanford University and San Francisco State. At Stanford, President Kenneth Pitzer left departments and faculty free to decide what schedules and requirements to use for the remainder of the year.

Public works strike; employes resume work

Employes of Carbondale's Public Works Department returned to work Saturday after negotiations with the city that afternoon. The union members struck last Thursday at midnight.

No contract has been signed, but further negotiations are being held.

According to C. William Norman, city manager, water line breaks on East Oak and East Fisher Streets Friday could not be repaired by the temporary help brought in to keep the water system working.

The city notified the union Friday and requested either approval from the union to hire a contractor to repair the breakages or have the union members return to work.

Norman said that no response was given by the union to the request.

Because the situation for the city was becoming serious in the ability to provide water to residents, the city considered requesting a temporary injunction Saturday to get members of Local 160 of the Plumbers and Pipefitters union back to work, Norman said.

The union found out about the possible injunction, according to Norman, and began negotiations with the city Saturday afternoon and returned to work shortly after 5 p.m. Saturday. Norman said that the city's position remains the same on a contract proposal. The city's offer is an increase of 6 per cent or 22 to 25 cents per hour depending on the job position. The union is asking an increase of 40 cents per hour across the board.

Representatives of the union have been invited to attend today's City Council meeting and discuss their position with the council members.

Auditions set for TV show co-host

Auditions for the co-host position of WSIU-TV's weekly variety show, Kaleidoscope, will be held tonight from 7-10 p.m. at the Communications Building in the TV studio. Kaleidoscope's regular host, Charles T. Lynch, will personally audition the applicants. The position is open to students from any department of the University. Experience in broadcasting is not necessary, and all interested students are invited to audition.

George Brunner, Kaleidoscope's present co-host, will leave after this season's last show on May 27th. Kaleidoscope will resume its Wednesday night telecast schedule in September with the new co-host chosen from tonight's auditions.

Tuesday

Time has a way of blanketing error. With each hour that passes the events of last week, or the week before, or the week before that become less important.

Some events, however, become unforgettable. Such an event has taken place in Carbondale and the Nation as a whole in this last week.

It is nearly impossible to define the specific cause and effect relationships that surrounded the recent confrontations, but perhaps we should try, and use it as a mirror to look into our own futures as well as the future of America.

Perhaps students and government alike should change their fighting front to reason rather than rocks. Let's not forget this last week, let's reason with it, and

If you come to a decision let the world know.

Following window breakage at Woody Hall and a brief takeover of Wheeler Hall, the first march Wednesday on Carbondale was peaceful.

By Thursday the focus of demonstration which had begun at Woody Hall Wednesday returned once again.

Friday dawned with the call-up of over 100 State Police who cordoned off the campus with assistance from 800 National Guardsmen and city and University police.

By Saturday the curfew reduced disturbances to isolated incidents, some with benefit of tear gas.

Sunday a 200-man contingent of National Guardsmen made preparations to withdraw.

Police close raid records

By Marty Francis
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Arrest records on some 15 persons taken in a raid on a northwest Carbondale residence Saturday night, were closed by police Monday pending an investigation of the incident.

The group was forced from the residence at 506 N. Bridge by tear gas and later arrested for unlawful assembly by Illinois State Police.

Dave Kallal, a resident of the house, said he noticed about seven state police squad cars circling the block and three pulled up in back on Almond Street about 9:30 p.m.

The policemen surrounded the house and a tear gas canister was thrown and bounced off the front porch. Kallal said he told those inside to hit the floor and then they moved into a back bedroom to get away from the police.

Kallal said the police then threw a tear gas canister through every window in the house "without any warning of any sort."

Kallal estimated that at least 20 canisters were thrown before the group began moving out the front door with their hands above their heads.

On the way out the door, Kallal said at least six persons were hit by the police.

The police then handcuffed everyone and told them to lie on the ground, Kallal said.

Continuing, Kallal said that the police entered the house and finished breaking all the windows, smashed a stereo, two guitars and ripped apart clothes. Damage to personal belongings was estimated at $5,000, according to Kallal.

The group was then taken to Carbondale City Police Department and charged with unlawful assembly, taken to Marion and kept overnight until they all posted bail.

According to Jackson County States Attorney Richard Richman, a search warrant was issued for the residence Sunday morning but no warrant had been issued previously.

When questioned about the incident, Jack Hazel, Carbondale police chief, said the case was handled by the SIU Security Office.

SIU officials previously acknowledged the raid, but made no official comment on the incident Monday.

Earlier in the afternoon Monday, a radio operator at the Carbondale Police Department indicated that Chief Hazel had requested the records be closed.

ter and on the corners of Grand Avenue and Illinois Street.

Police cars patrolled the area announcing that groups of five or more students constitute unlawful assembly and violators would be prosecuted with students being "summarily suspended."

At 6:30 p.m. pepper gas was shot by Carbondale and State police to disperse the crowds. Students fled the gas until the breeze dissipated it and then regrouped.

Earnest Morris, an SIU Security officer, was injured when a gas bomb exploded in his hand. He was treated in the SIU Health Service for burns and cuts on his hand.

Sporadic gassing incidents continued into the night at various locations as police attempted to disperse roaming bands of students.

Police lobbed gas repeatedly into the Grand and Illinois area to disperse students.

Relative calm prevailed for about one hour while police patrolled the streets and students milled about in small groups.

At 8:15 p.m. police had approximately 30 students lined up against University Drugs on South Illinois Avenue. A university bus arrived moments later and the group was loaded en masse on the bus.

Police then dispersed the crowd which had gathered to view the incident.

Tear gas was used at Grinnell Hall at 9 p.m. as students taunted police from dorm rooms and threw firecrackers and debris at police.

Police reports also said their cars were repeatedly pelted with rocks and debris as the night grew darker.

Police were removed from the Grinnell Hall area shortly after 9 p.m. while reinforcements were enroute.

At 10:15, the doors at University Park were locked to prevent students from running into the dorms for protection from police and gassing.

A fire was reported at 509 N. Bridge Street and was confirmed by state police. There was no report of damage.

Other fires were reported at Stoker and State. A fire was confirmed in a vacant building in the area with no damage estimate.

shouting obscenities at the police as they were beating kids.

Holloway told of a man and wife who were dining at the establishment when the curfew began. Holloway said he told them they could remain there until things quieted. He said they called their babysitter twice and a little later proceeded home. After entering their car, said Holloway, they were forced to get back out by the police and the police later struck them.

Holloway said many people entered the restaurant to escape tear gas and hid behind the counter and in the kitchen. He said the police followed, in one instance, and Holloway stopped them from entering at the back door.

Holloway said he thought MacDonald's escaped damage because "we were helping some of the kids that got gassed and we also had a first aid station in front." He also said they have flown the flags at half mast since the day following the killings at Kent State.

Less than a block north of MacDonald's, an estimated $2,000 damage and looting was reported at Goldsmith's. Steve Goldsmith, owner, said the demonstrations were "just strictly vandalism." He attributed the "vandalism" to the "hard core minority."

Goldsmith said the destruction was not spontaneous and could not be blamed on the use of tear gas.

"These weren't students just out to have fun," said Goldsmith, "they were armed." Goldsmith said he disarmed one individual with a torch and saw several in his store with crow bars. He said there was no logical explanation for the damage.

Clean-up operation initiated

The facilities of Synergy Crisis Center have been made available to gather names of persons interested in aiding clean-up and repair of Carbondale businesses damaged in last week's demonstrations.

An SIU student concerned with the damage feels there is a need to reassure businessmen and citizens of Carbondale that these demonstrations were not aimed at them.

Terry Munk, a sophomore majoring in psychology said, "I feel that it is the obligation of SIU students to reassure the citizens of Carbondale by any means possible that these demonstrations were in protest of University

Frank Bleyer, owner of Veech's Sporting Goods, Bleyer's Department Store, Bleyer's College Shop, said his stores received several thousand dollars of damage.

"This isn't the way to approach the problems students are confronted with," said Bleyer. "I don't blame the students as a whole, though, actually a small percentage of SIU students were involved."

A little further north on University Street, damage was done to B & A Travel. Ana Cordacy, manager of the travel agency said the events of the weekend "made me sad."

She added that she cannot see how the Carbondale Manifesto issued by student government could apply to B & A because by law, travel agencies are regulated in what they can charge.

Bob Coatney of Southern Illinois Book and Supply said he didn't really know what to disagree with. He called the Carbondale manifesto complete lies and libelous.

Coatney said he believed that a small percentage of the students created the damage. He also felt the police were being unjustly crucified.

Coatney said because of the violence, he may lose business and have to lay people off, costing students jobs. He added he was uniting with the business community to promote that the merchants are not giving up.

Julius Kay, owner of Kay's Campus Shop, said "Appearances speak for themselves. Commentary isn't needed. Things are bad enough as they are without talking about them."

Tom Luchanbach, manager of the Varsity Theater, said that the manifesto was not to be believed.

"The students who broke the windows were demanding a confrontation," Luchanbach said. "It was obvious they were prepared. I was out in front of the theater at the time they exploded the first tear gas grenade near Illinois and Main. The young people just got up and began running down the street throwing and national policies and not aimed at Carbondale.

Munk, a Vietnam veteran, pointed out that students should aid in cleaning up and rebuilding, or financially reimbursing (if feasible) the businesses that were damaged.

Robert Blomeyer, Synergy staff member, said "Synergy Crisis Center has made its facilities available to an interested citizens group for accumulation for the names of those individuals interested in participating in clean-up operations in Carbondale."

All persons concerned and interested in aiding in any way should call Synergy at 536-2311.

rocks. They didn't have to pick them up. They already had them.

"They were determined to have a confrontation," he added. "On Friday and Sunday, I saw the police pass several times without anything happening. Things did happen after they began to throw rocks at them. Anyone who says the police are looking for violence isn't telling the truth."

Luchanbach said he didn't know if the people causing trouble were students or not. They were all weird-looking, however, he added.

"On Thursday," Luchanbach stated, "tear gas was exploded near my theater and got inside, subjecting innocent people who were my customers to the breathing of this gas. It was terrible. I never thought I'd ever have to experience anything like this, but I did. However, I still feel that tear gas is more humane to use to control a mob than physical violence."

The manager of Leslie Shoes said Carbondale prices are not higher as the manifesto said. He noted that he and students took part in a survey four years ago which the Chamber of Commerce still has in which this fact was proved. However, he added, a new group of students are here and this fact will have to be proved all over again.

R. J. Brunner, manager of Brunner Office Supply was mad over what happened.

"I'd like to have them treated like I would be treated if I broke someone else's window. I'd be put in jail for six months. The student manifesto be damned!"

Brunner added, "I'm part of the establishment and I'm proud of it!"

94 students, faculty apply

Peace volunteers back SIU security

By Ingrid Terzer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 30 members of the newly formed Peace Volunteers, a volunteer patrol of students, faculty and staff designed to aid in the maintenance of security on the SIU campus, began occupying campus buildings about 8 p.m. Monday.

Other volunteers went to off-campus living areas, while still others made attempts to man area jails and law enforcement agencies, seeking names of arrested persons in order to notify their families and friends of arrests.

A spokesman for the Peace Volunteers reported Monday night that the organization was seeking to create a link between themselves and area jails.

Offices for the Peace Volunteers were set up Monday in barrack T-39, which formerly housed the SIU Stenographic Services.

The offices are to remain open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for the remainder of the spring quarter, according to Emil Spees, assistant dean of students, and assistant professor in the Department of Higher Education. Spees was aiding in the establishment of the offices Monday.

The volunteer patrol was organized after an announcement early Friday night by Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar, that such a force would be necessary after the withdrawal of outside police forces from the campus.

As of 6:30 p.m. Monday, 94 persons had applied for volunteer positions, including 69 students and 25 faculty members.

The organization aims to unite those persons who "desire to see an end to violence and its causes at the campus of SIU and in Carbondale, whether that violence is perpetrated or maintained by students, police or others," according to an information bulletin circulated on campus Monday.

The bulletin states that the Volunteers will respond to personal and property damage by: "(1) establishing a center to receive complaints of any act of violence throughout the campus or city area and to refer those reports or complaintants to the appropriate agencies, such as the American Civil Liberties Union, the States Attorney's Office, etc.; (2) by actively supporting the immediate formation of a student committee to assist in the Faculty Sub-Council's investigation of the Vietnam Studies Center and other sources of campus unrest; by (3) actively supporting the establishment of an independent investigation into the sources and causes of violence on this campus; and by (4) mounting a nightly peace-watch, in two five-hour shifts, in every campus building until the end of this quarter."

Guidelines for the peace-watch operations and the complaint-referral service will be decided by a Police Committee, which is headed by Lyman Baker, instructor in the Department of English. Frank Bridges, co-ordinator of Civil Defense for the University is to assist in the peace-watch operations.

The Policy Committee is still in process of organization, but Baker expressed a desire that the committee include persons from both races, both sexes, and as many University academic and staff departments, and student factions as possible.

At a meeting of the volunteers Monday afternoon in the University Center Ballroom A, Baker stressed that the organization supported no particular political ideology, but seeks to bring as many segments of the University together as possible, in support of an end to violence on the campus and in the city of Carbondale.

About 60 persons attended the meeting, most of them interested in the functions the organization would carry out.

Baker told them the organization needed people "who are in sympathy with the objectives of the demonstrations, but not in what they (the demonstrations) resulted in." He also said he was looking for those people "who are not in sympathy with the demonstration."

Chancellor MacVicar "promises support of what we do," he said.

Volunteers will work strictly on a volunteer basis, he said, and will have no police powers. They will not be allowed to carry weapons. They will only have access to a telephone to notify the proper authorities such as the Health Service or fire department, in case their services become necessary, Baker explained.

Arm bands and identification cards will eventually be provided for members of the Peace Volunteers, he said.

Several suggestions were made by those in attendance at the meeting, mainly comprised of students.

One person suggested definite plans to protect students' homes rather than campus buildings.

"Our first responsibility is to protect students," he said. A loud applause followed the statement.

Another person suggested that the peace-watch extend to off-campus dormitories and living areas, because they have been targets of recent tear-gas sprayings.

One male who said he had been arrested as a result of the demonstration, suggested that peace-watchers set up posts in law enforcement agencies to get names of persons who are arrested as their families and friends can be notified.

"Some people have been in jail for four days and haven't been allowed to make a phone call," he said.

Another suggestion was made concerning contacting of local and state political officials representing this area and notifying them of problems resulting from arrest, etc.

Carlton F. Rasche, manager of SIU Auxiliary and Service Enterprises, made a statement to the group, expressing his feelings about the need for volunteers.

"For the first time, students have gotten through to a number of people. Sympathy has been exposed. The mistreatment of students is a severe thing. A number of faculty and staff people are aware of what has taken place. "We can't afford the luxury of letting our feelings take control of our actions and this is what has happened." I don't know what advice to give you—but I sure as hell am with you," Rasche said.

"If the volunteers can't represent all the campus—a lot of people won't cooperate. The concern, naturally, is for people. This is my concern," he said.

Bail center set up in Newman Center

A centralized bail center has been set up in Newman Center, according to Father Bill Longust.

The center was being organized Monday, said Longust and "we will attempt to distribute the bail justly."

For more information concerning the bail fund, call 549-9492.

Students were able to receive information and application forms Monday as members of the Peace Volunteers, an organization set up to aid security measures on the SIU campus and in the city. The information booth was set up in front of T-39, where the Volunteers' offices are located. (Photo by Jeanie C. Arnold)

Job program proposed

DETROIT, Mich. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Monday the Pentagon will soon launch a new program "to locate a job for every veteran."

Laird told the Economic Club of Detroit that the Defense Department needs help from all sectors of the country in finding what he called worthwhile jobs for many of the two million men and women who will be leaving the armed services in the next two years.

Reuther killed

DETROIT (AP)—Expressions of sympathy continued to pour in from around the world today as members of the United Auto Workers made preparations to bury the man who led them for 24 years.

The union proclaimed a week of mourning for its president Walter P. Reuther, who was killed with five other persons in a plane crash over the weekend.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

A spokesman for Michigan Gov. William Milliken said he would proclaim "Walter P. Reuther Day" throughout Michigan on the day of the labor leader's funeral.

"In the weeks and months ahead, we will be calling on American business and labor leaders, state and local governments and citizens in all walks of life to help us solve this problem," the defense chief said in a prepared speech.

Laird gave no details, saying these would be announced soon. In Washington, his aides indicated a major thrust will be aimed at encouraging service men to return to school.

Laird's speech, devoted mostly to economic and related questions, touched only briefly on the Vietnam war.

In underscoring administration arguments for its new initiatives into Cambodia, Laird said:

"This action will shorten the war; it will bring American troops home faster; it will reduce our casualties."

Films to be shown

The School of Fine Arts in cooperation with the general studies division will present free film showings at 6:30 and 9 p.m. May 21 at Furr Auditorium in University School. There will be two showings of both "Come Back, Africa" and "Automania."

Communications to vote today

Elections for departmental nominees in the School of Communications "Good Teacher" Award Contest will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in departmental offices.

The award, sponsored by the Standard Oil Company, is a $300 stipend given to a "good teacher" chosen from each school or college in the University.

Each of the six departments in the School of Communications will conclude the election for its nominee for the award at 4 p.m. today.

All undergraduate and graduate students majoring in cinema and photography, journalism, radio and TV, speech, speech pathology and theater are eligible to vote for their department's nominee.

Instructors who have taught at least one course in the respective departments since fall 1969 are eligible to win the $300 cash award. Graduate assistants are not eligible.

All six nominees, or their representatives, will appear on Kaleidoscope at 10 p.m. Wednesday on WSIU-TV. The winner will be determined at that time by the roll of a die.

Instructor stresses realism, Workers protest previews real business world

While many students today are questioning the relevancy of some courses, Gola Waters, assistant professor in the School of Business, is attempting to inject a realistic atmosphere into his classes.

"I let the nine years I spent in industry set the pace for what I present," says Waters.

Students in Waters' Finance 473 class receive a preview of how demanding the business world can be. "My job is to train future businessmen, and I expect them to apply themselves on the basis of their own desire for self-improvement."

The result is a high occurrence of D's and E's throughout Waters' classes. "Most of these kids are pretty sharp, but too many are willing to enter the business world grossly unprepared," Waters says. "There seems to be a recurring lack of self-motivation and desire for self-development among many students."

One obstacle that Waters feels seriously hindered his performance in business was his inability to write. "I felt a nagging inability to write and express myself from the start. The average business student just doesn't get enough training in written expression." He adds that while he does not grade down a student on the basis of his writing, he does stress the need for a certain degree of writing proficiency.

Waters describes himself as a "Prussian General on the matter of attendance. I make a point out of knowing every one of my students on a first-name basis. They know that any one of them can be called on at any time, just as they can be called on at any time in business."

Waters does not accept extenuating circumstances as an excuse for below standard performance. "If you have a bad day in business, you might lose your job. Here all you stand to lose is a few points."

"I suppose I might be a little more hard-nosed than some instructors, but let's face it, that's what they're going to run into when they leave here."

As might be expected, this leads many students to become disgruntled with Waters at first. "I hated him all the way through the quarter," one former student said.

Another described Waters as "the roughest instructor I've ever had."

These same students, however, maintained that Waters proved to be the best instructor they had known at SIU. "You can't help but respect him when it's all over," claimed one student. "You may hate him throughout the entire course, but you come out loving him."

May 31 concert

A Wind Ensemble Concert will be given at 3 p.m. May 31, in the Home Economics Auditorium.

The concert is to be conducted by Melvin Siener, assistant professor of music, and Donald Lemasters, guest conductor. Charles Schlueter will be the guest soloist.

Johann Hummel's "Trumpet Concerto" will feature Schlueter as trumpet soloist and Leroy Anderson's "A Trumpeter's Lullaby" will be conducted by Lemasters, featuring Schlueter as trumpet soloist.

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 2,000 blue collar workers returned Monday to the scene of a violent confrontation with antiwar students and marched around City Hall shouting USA all the way!

They also shouted "Lindsay must go!" and handed out leaflets demanding the resignation of, Sid Davidoff, an aide to Mayor John V. Lindsay who was involved in the bloody melee on Friday.

Monday's demonstrators, including a contingent of longshoremen and many "hard hats" from downtown construction projects, carried scores of American flags.

Make-up examination period for students whose petitions have been approved by their academic deans. 12:50-2:50

Saturday, June 13

Classes which meet only on Saturdays. Examinations will start at the same times as the class sessions ordinarily start.

GENERAL EXAMINATION INFORMATION

The following policies govern the preparation of the final examination schedule:

1. Examination periods of two clock hours duration are provided for three, four and five credit hour courses. No final examination time is provided for one and two credit hour courses. Examinations for these courses are to be held during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week. Any co-credit courses having examinations are to follow the same schedule as provided for one and two credit hour courses.
2. Final examinations are to be from 7:50 to 9:50 a.m., 12:50 to 2:50 p.m., and 3:10 to 5:10 p.m. for day time classes and from 6 to 8 p.m. for evening classes meeting on more than one night. Classes which meet only one night a week or only on Saturday morning have two clock hour examinations starting at the time the class sessions ordinarily start.

3. Nine of the day time periods listed here are used for the scheduling of examinations for classes according to the hour of the day in which the classes meet. One of the periods is used for a make-up period to be used by students who petition deans for permission to have a make-up examination based upon having more than three examinations on one day or two examinations scheduled at the same period.

4. Ten of the periods are used for departmental type examinations or for the scheduling of General Studies courses that meet in lecture only two days a week and which would, therefore, cause conflicting examination schedules for large numbers of students if held according to the hours at which the class meets.

5. Both the examination schedule for classes scheduled according to the class hour and the departmental type examinations will be rotated through the final examination week during the course of a year so that as equitable a schedule of examinations as possible will be provided.

In addition to the above policy points, the following information is pertinent concerning the final examination schedule:

- a. A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during the make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.
- b. A student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

c. A special note needs to be made relative to examinations for evening sections for those classes which have been granted a special time for examining all sections. As some students attending at night may not be able to attend the special examination period scheduled for the day time, each department involved will have to arrange special examination periods for such students. This problem involves those night students who are fully employed during the day and who are taking night courses because it is the only time they are able to do so.

"It's a center spread fold-out of Justice Douglas."

SERVAS encourages travel

SERVAS, a nationwide voluntary organization, offers foreign students a chance to see more of American life by encouraging visits in American homes. Hundreds of hosts invite foreign students for visits of two nights with a warm welcome and discussion of opinions and ideas. There is no charge.

Nagel, Shay recital

A senior recital will be held at 4 p.m. May 23 in the Home Economics Auditorium. Nancy Nagel and Ronald Shay will give the piano recital in partial fulfillment of the requirements for their Bachelor of Music degrees. The recital will be broken into four parts with Shay starting with works of Beethoven. Second Miss Nagel will present works of Schubert and Chopin. Shay then will perform works of Chopin and Debussy and Miss Nagel will finish the recital with works from Bartok and Poulenc.

Students plan their own travels, relying on lists of hosts in the areas where they are traveling, whether in nearby towns or across the nation.

SERVAS also offers the same service to American students in 40 foreign countries including England, France, Denmark, Austria, India and Japan.

Any student interested in the SERVAS program may write SERVAS, McBurney YMCA, 215 W. 23rd St., New York, N.Y. 10011.

New officers elected

John Stanger was elected president of the Forestry Club May 5.

Other officers are Garren Roger Titus, vice-president; Mike James, secretary and Larry Theivigt, treasurer. The committee heads for next year were also elected.

Following the election, members voted for the outstanding club member, outstanding senior, outstanding freshman, animal award, The Society of American Foresters award and the SNAFU award (situation normal all fouled up) to be given to the forestry instructor who committed the biggest blunder.

Winners of these awards will be announced at the Forestry banquet to be held at 7 p.m. May 24, at Glass City Lodge.

Snook takes 13th straight win

The Saluki tennis team whipped Indiana University Saturday, 6-3 and carried a 15-1 regular season record into Monday's match at Michigan.

SIU's showing against Indiana was highlighted by Graham Snook's 13th consecutive regular season win. The sophomore from Auckland, New Zealand stopped Hoosier Darrell Snelvly 2-6, 7-5 and 6-3. It was Snelvly's first loss of the season in 15 matches.

Singles victories also were achieved by Macky Dominguez, and Jorge Ramirez with all three of SIU's doubles teams turning in wins.

Dominguez defeated Hodson of Indiana 7-5 and 6-4 while Ramirez was a winner over Indiana's Snyder, 2-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

Losing their singles matches were Bill Lloyd number one, Chris Greenleaf at number three and Ray Briscoe at number five. Greenleaf was beaten in three sets.

The Salukis will be home Friday to face Mississippi State on the SIU tennis court. Indiana's only Big Ten conference loss this year has come from Michigan, the team SIU faced Monday.

The Salukis final home meet is Saturday against Missouri.

Women's softball teams win

Two Women's softball teams traveled to Western Illinois University over the weekend where they picked up two victories each.

The first team defeated Eastern Illinois University 3-0. Carol Stearns was the winning pitcher while Wendy Kmucha led the hitters, collecting two hits. One of the two was a home run.

In their second game, SIU's first team defeated Western 9-6. Mias Stearns again received credit for the victory while Bethel Stout and Marilyn Harris each hit a home run and Catherine Smart had three hits in as many times at-bat.

The second team defeated Monmouth College 14-1 and the University of Illinois 6-5. Maggie Krisher was the winning pitcher in both contests.

Leading hitters for the day were Mary Parrill with five hits in six times at-bat and Jeanne Clayton with three hits in five times at-bat.

Softball resumes

Intramural softball action will resume Wednesday. Because of last week's violence, games will be played at 4:20 and 6 p.m. Schedules will appear in tomorrow's Daily Egyptian.

Pickoff attempt

Saluki shortstop Gene Rinaldi slides safely into first base on a pick-off play during Saturday's twinbill with Arkansas State. The Salukis won both games, 2-0 and 6-4 to add to Friday's 12-2 victory and a three-game sweep. Rinaldi had reached first by singling and later stole second. (Photo by Mike Klein)

Salukis down Arkansas State; Daigle out with broken arm

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki baseball team closed out its home season Saturday by winning two on the diamond and losing one in the Health Service. In a morning-afternoon twinbill, SIU defeated Arkansas State twice, 2-0 and 6-1.

The Salukis suffered a serious blow to the pitching staff when Health Service doctors confirmed that ace left-hander John Daigle sustained a broken arm in batting practice and will be sidelined four to six weeks.

Daigle's right forearm was broken when he was hit by a batting practice pitch. The arm

Saluki golfers win and tie at Murray State

The Saluki golfers had a 10 game winning streak stopped but also halted Austin Peay College's winning streak of 14 as the two schools tied 9-9 in a meet Saturday.

SIU also stopped Murray State before the Austin Peay meet, 11-7 in the competition played at the Oaks Country Club in Murray, Ky.

Coach Lynn Holder put sophomore Geoff Young, Quincy into the Saluki lineup and Young fired a 75, just three strokes behind the meet medalist.

Jerry Glenn shot a 73 to beat both his opponents at Murray as did Jock Olson who shot a 76.

Harvey Ott shot a 78 as did Vic Saputo. Both tied their Murray State opponents but lost to players from Austin Peay.

Richard Tock lost to both of his weekend opponents as he also finished with a 78, six strokes off the winner.

SIU is still undefeated in eleven consecutive meets at 13-4-1 and faces Notre Dame Saturday in South Bend, Ind.

is presently encased in a cast from the hand to the middle of the upper arm.

"The ball was coming toward my head and I raised my arm to block it," the senior lefty said. "I knew it was broken when the ball hit."

Daigle would have been seeking his seventh win of the year in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader. The slim southpaw has compiled a 6-1 record in 44.2 innings pitched. His 0.40 ERA is among the nation's leaders. Daigle has struck out 39 and given up only 23 hits.

Bob Eldridge's fine performance in a substitute role almost overshadowed an equally fine performance by pitcher Steve Webber in the first game.

After experiencing wildness in the top of the first, Eldridge settled down and struck out 10 Arkansas State Indians enroute to a 6-1 win.

Eldridge allowed only five hits in his seven inning stint. Three of them came in the fourth when the Indians scored their only run of the day.

"I had great control and was able to put the ball where I wanted," Eldridge said after the game. "I didn't think I'd do worth a damn when I was warming up but I was able to get ahead of the hitters after the first."

Webber scattered five hits throughout the middle innings as he pitched a 2-0 shutout in the first game.

The senior right hander picked up his fifth win of the season and Eldridge his third. Both have one loss.

Sophomore centerfielder Jim Dwyer continued his offensive streak, collecting three hits in seven at-bats including one home run. His double in the third inning of the first game knocked in Les Stoots with SIU's first run of the game.

In the fifth inning of the second game, he and Stoots led off SIU's half of the frame with back to back left field home runs. The Salukis got two runs in the first and their final four in the fifth.

A strong crosswind from right to left was present during the entire three-game series and almost blew Stoots' homer foul. The ball curved around the foulpoll after passing over the 340-foot marker. Dwyer's blast just eluded left fielder Stan Williams who crashed into the fence.

When Dwyer came to bat the following inning, he hit a longer blast to deep left center but Williams was able to make the play.

Cascio vaults 15 feet

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Pole vaulter Larry Cascio easily cleared 15 feet in the pole vault Saturday but the SIU track team was still caught on the short end of the score in a triangular meet involving Big Eight conference members Kansas and Iowa State.

Kansas won with 95 points while Iowa State managed to edge the Salukis 43-42, although a rules interpretation in the pole vault could give SIU one more point and a tie with the Cyclones.

Different interpretations of the previous miss rule between SIU coach Aubrey Doooley and meet officials put Cascio in third place behind Kansas vaulter Bill Hatcher, the second place finisher. Both cleared 15-feet but Hatcher did not come into the competition until 14-6 while Cascio had missed at lower heights.

Regardless, Cascio's clearance of 15-feet was his best effort of the year and came within 1/2 inch of Rich Ellison's SIU record set in 1968.

"He cleared it by a foot, and had he kept his desire without being satisfied with that effort, I think he would have had some good efforts at 16-feet," Doooley said of Cascio's performance. Doooley added that Cascio had barely missed at 15-6.

Ivory Crockett turned in his fastest time of the year in the 100-yard dash, winning the event in 9.4. Crockett's effort could have been faster according to both Crockett himself and Doooley because the race was stopped after 80-yards and rerun when Mickey Mathews of Kansas fell down.

Crockett had to fight a strong wind in the 220-yard dash and finished second to Julio Meade of Kansas in 21.9. Meade won in 21.7.

Don Miller won the triple-jump for the third straight meet with his top effort of the year, 50-1/2. SIU's outdoor record is 51-8 3/4 by John Vernon in 1966. Obed Gardner was second with a 49-8 jump.

SIU could have swept the high jump but Mike Bernard could not get his steps according to Doooley. SIU's Rick Letschner and Rod Murphy tied for first, both going 6-4. Bernard nailed seven feet May 2, against Illinois.

Gardner was second in the long jump at 22-9 with Miller in third at 22-3.

Bill Buzard also fought a hard wind in Ames to take second in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles in 55.1. Javelin thrower Dan Tindall threw 190-8 for second place. Tindall is still bothered by a stiff arm which has held him under 200-feet much of the outdoor season.

SIU's 440-yard relay was second to the Jayhawks in 42.7.

Buffalo drafts Dick Garrett

Dick Garrett, former Saluki star and an All-Rookie selection this year in the National Basketball Association, was drafted by Buffalo in Monday's NBA draft, according to an Associated Press story.

Although a rookie, Garrett cracked a Laker lineup that included Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West.
