Firefighters move along the walls of a simulated mine shaft during a fire safety exercise April 13 at Southeastern Illinois College. The exercise requires them to navigate without sight, using their hands to feel for objects — the same technique they would use to find people in an actual mining disaster. SEIC is one of only two facilities in the nation to provide this type of simulated mine safety exercise.

Zach LeBeau poses for a portrait at his home in Carbondale on April 13 in front of the poster for his film, "The Scientist," which was released April 15 at the Liberty Theater in Murphysboro. LeBeau sald he premiered the film at the Liberty because he wanted to help independent venues like it survive.

Cristina Enea, a junior from Elk Grove studying speech communication, spins during the Southern Illinois Dance Company's last show of the semester May 1 at Furr Auditorium. The show consisted of 15 dances including one by the company's artistic director Donna Wilson. Furr

Auditorium is home to SIDC and is in need of several expensive renovations. "We spend four to five nights in there a week," said Sarah Fader, the company's public relations chair. "The seats fall out on you, the paint is peeling off — it needs help."

EDITOR'S STATEMENT:

I is cliché, but this semester, has been a truly rewarding experience. The photo staff has improved incredibly, leaving us with one nice Semester in Photos edition.

And we've been through a lot as a group — the photo love is strong. Isaac, I can decrease my phone minutes now that I'm not your editor. Genna, let's have more road trips that involve naps in the car. Evan, thanks for coming back. You rocked video, Dan, you can call me Sugar F. Baby. Steve, thanks for pinch-hitting. Pat, stay out of the ceiling. Edyta, it's because of you that I survived, and Jess, good luck!

— Julia Rendleman

I don't know when I have ever endured so much stress in my life like I have in this past semester. I actually developed bags under my eyes, but it was all for the love of this newspaper.

Julia and I have watched the relatively new staff go through the highs and lows of developing their photojournalistic skills this whole semester. I would like to believe that we helped these kiddos get at least a bit of a sense of what real life is like in the world of media.

We were hardasses and I hope they appreciated all the time we dedicated to making them better. I loved all the laughs and tears were shared.

Buckminster Fuller Dome board, with tightening bolts on a 20-foot diameter, 165-piece Fuller Dome April 19 at the corner of South Illinois Avenue and West Main Street. April 19 marked the 50th anniversary of the construction of the RBF Dome in Carbondale. "I just read somewhere about this (event) and wanted to come. It looked fun, and I ended up helping out," Segelhorst said. ( Left) Aaron Rider, also known as Melvino the Clown, entertains an audience April 14 at the Culpepper and Merriweather Circus at Riverside Park in Murphysboro. Rider, 27, has wanted to be a clown since he was a child, and in 1997 he learned to Juggle and ride the unicycle. Since then he has performed in several circuses including Carson and Barnes, and Culpepper and Merriweather. Rider said his character is based around the traditional circus clown and prefers working for a smaller circus.

(Top) Matt Swift, a senior from Jallet studying administration of justice, rap jumps off Devil's Diving Board Feb. 22 at Giant City State Park. Rap jumping involves jumping off a cliff while using a repelling rope to catch yourself before you hit the bottom. "It's a huge rush," Swift sald, "When you're jumping off, everything just slows down and you get a real look at things." According to rapjumping.com, rap jumping started in Australia in the late 1960s as a form of ropa work for the Australian army. It was commercialized and made public around 1989.

(Left) A student in Wendy Weinhold's MCMA 204 class holds up a human rights filer after hanging copies of it throughout campus April 13. The group posted filers and posters as part of a class project on social issues. The students were to choose a social issue that they felt strongly about, discover what mainstream media has done to inform the public about It and find a way to use alternative media to further inform the public about what the mainstream media has left out, Weinhold said. SIUC maintenance staff removed more than 90 percent of the posters the same day. "Someone denied everyone an opportunity to learn about human rights when they tore those posters down," Weinhold said.

Corteze Townsend, of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, inc., from the University of Illinois at Chicago, accompanies his fraternity brothers during a choreographed dance known as "strolling" during the Kappa Karnival held March 20 at Sam Rinella Field. Kappa Alpha Psi President Jeff Hall, a graduate student in marketing from Chicago, estimated 5,000 to 6,000 people came to Carbondale for the weekend events, which culminated with a sold-out performance by Gudda Gudda on March 21 at the Player's Ball.
