Funds for Legal Fees Questioned

By Charles Springer

A Senate bill setting up a reserve fund to cover costs for students involved in court action because of union affiliations is thought to be illegal by the University Legal Counsel.

The bill, passed Wednesday night, would establish a contingency encumbrance of student activity fees to cover retainers and court-related expenses.

"I doubt very seriously whether they can do this," said Richard Grunty, the University's legal adviser. "There is no budget account that I know of that has been approved by the board of trustees for this purpose."

"Student activity fees were budgeted last summer to cover the entire academic year," he said. "And in order for the treasurer to make a disbursement for this purpose, he's going to have to budget it from some account."

Grunty indicated that the Student Government officials might claim that part of the budget was set up for such occasions. He didn't think, however, that the board of trustees in any intent had envisioned the idea of a student workers union.

Richard Karr, chairman of the senate, indicated that the reserve would be drawn out of various nebulous funds which had been approved by the trustees. He cited the Executive Special Projects and the Student Special Projects funds as examples. One thousand dollars is available from the combined funds.

The proper action for Student Government officials, according to Grunty, would be to present their request for a reserve fund at the next meeting of the trustees. The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 9, he said, and Illinois state law requires that a 10-day notice be given to place an item on the agenda.

"In my opinion, it should be up to the members of the Senate," Karr said. "With upcoming elections, I would suggest that the students get acquainted with the candidates and their ideas on these subjects."

"If the students don't want their money used for this purpose," he added, "they should express these feelings to their senators, who are trying to represent them."

University officials were in agreement that the Senate had taken proper action in establishing the Special Committee on Student Work Reform Wednesday night. The committee was formed to issue questionnaires, conduct surveys and make comparisons with other University work programs.

"The formation of a committee appears to be a responsible way to approach the subject," said John S. Rendleman, vice-president for business affairs. "It doesn't necessarily mean that their proposals will all be accepted but they will be given serious consideration."

Frank Adams, head of the student work office, was in accord with Rendleman.

"This is the proper way to make plans," Adams said. "As long as they're investigating something that's in the best interests of the students, we're all for them."

"I think that's the only proper action that the Student Government could take," Grunty said. "This is the organization that the trustees has set up to represent the students and represents an understanding of that idea."

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY--Students rummage through some of the thousands of books on sale Thursday in the University Center ballroom. Many new books, as well as discontinued textbooks, were selling at greatly reduced prices. The sale will be held today also from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Board Calls for Action On Athletics Question

An SIU Board of Trustees member assailed inaction on Southern's athletic future Thursday and called for specific decisions soon.

"We've had enough study," said Dr. Martin Van Brown of Carbondale, "let's have some scholarships."

Robert W. MacVicar, acting president, promised that the University vice president would present concrete proposals on athletics to President Delyte W. Morris on his return from a world trip in late January.

Board member Melvin

Lockard stressed that action should be taken on the whole issue of intercollegiate athletics at Southern, not just scholarships.

Brown, who said he was receiving increasing pressure from the public on the matter, cited a Board of Trustees study on athletics four years ago, a student referendum three years ago, Board action recommending 100 NCAA scholarships two years ago, and the comprehensive study done by a special all-University commission during the past year as enough investigation.

SIU Seeks Five-Year Control of New College

By John Epperheimer

SIU will ask the Illinois Board of Higher Education for permission to develop one of two new state senior colleges for the first five years of its existence only, Acting President Robert MacVicar said Thursday.

MacVicar told the SIU Board of Trustees at its meeting at Edwardsville that the new colleges wouldn't be a type compatible to indefinite development by SIU.

MacVicar said SIU administrators would work with the new college's governing board from the start if the proposal is accepted. He made it clear he favored developing the college to be constructed at Springfield and indicated having cooperation from the governing board from the start would be a stipulation for accepting the task.

The new proposal, formulated without consultation with President Delyte W. Morris, who is on a three month around-the-world trip, is a departure from Southern's earlier position on the colleges.

Last month Morris told a special subcommittee of the Board of Higher Education that SIU would like to make one of the colleges part of its system, much like the Edwardsville campus.

MacVicar said he will recommend that the University of Illinois develop one of the colleges.

leges for a five year period also. He indicated that the campus to be located on Chicago's south side would be a logical choice for U of I, which already has the Chicago Circle branch campus.

MacVicar summarily rejected the idea that one of the two new colleges serve as a branch campus of SIU because of the "typology" recommended by a special subcommittee on the two colleges.

That subcommittee has recommended to the Board of Higher Education that the colleges offer courses only for juniors, seniors and students working on master's degrees.

MacVicar emphasized that Southern's two campuses are "comprehensive" universities, offering all levels of study. The two new colleges would not fit into this pattern to which the University has dedicated itself, he said.

He expressed the conviction, however, that SIU's experience in building the Carbondale campus from 2,200 students to 19,300 and constructing the Edwardsville campus from scratch would be of great help in developing one of the new colleges.

"This would be a fine gesture of educational statesmanship," MacVicar told the Board, which unanimously endorsed the proposal.

Gus Bode

Gus says if President Morris returns before the Illinois Central sells its passenger cars he knows what the new classroom buildings will look like.

SIU Officials Propose Futuristic Med School

SIU is preparing a proposal for a radically different state medical school for presentation by Dec. 1 to a subcommittee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Acting president Robert MacVicar said Southern will recommend a "school without walls" involving all higher education institutions. The proposal comes at the request of the Board of Higher Education.

The program MacVicar will propose will "cover the whole state" and will include studies for not only M.D. training but for post-graduate work also, he said.

If accepted, the plan would modify the curriculum pattern and involve universities with "capability" in the biological and physical science, MacVicar told the Board of Trustees Thursday.

"This is aimed at the year 2,000," he added. The "dispersed system" would fulfill health needs for all the state's citizens instead of just those located near a medical complex, he said.

The University of Illinois has proposed a conventional medical school with buildings to be located at its Champaign-Urbana campus, MacVicar said.

Carbondale Campus Building Contracts Okayed

Contract awards for four new building projects at Southern Illinois University's campuses were approved Thursday by the SIU board of trustees.

For three of them,—science facilities at the Carbondale and Edwardsville Campuses,—action took the form of recommendations to the Illinois Building Authority. The IBA will construct the buildings and then rent them to SIU until costs have been recovered.

Largest single one is a $10,227,850 research, office and graduate studies wing for the Life Science Building at the Carbondale Campus. A fixed-sum contract covering the entire project was recommended for the J.L. Simmons Co., Inc., Decatur, which will sub-contract mechanical work. The four-story structure, to be second in size only to Morris Library at Carbondale, will include facilities for the departments of microbiology, botany, zoology, physiology and psychology.

Board OKs FM Station

First step in construction of an FM radio station at the Edwardsville campus was taken Thursday by the board of trustees. The board authorized application to the Federal Communications Commission for a license.

Faculty appointments were approved for both campuses of the University, at which fall quarter enrollment exceeded expectations.

Included on the temporary appointments list were two visiting artists, Miss Margo Hoff and David Slivka. Miss Hoff has served as visiting artist at the American University of Beirut and at Ball State University, and her art work has been widely exhibited.

Slivka has served as visiting professor at the University of Massachusetts and the Philadelphia College of Art. His sculpture and drawings have been exhibited.

Changes of assignment approved by the board include Harry Gallatin, assistant dean of students at the Edwardsville campus, to serve also as head of the athletics program there.

Despite what it termed high costs above the architect's estimates, the board sent the IBA a recommendation to accept bids totaling $1,019,270 for an office addition to the Physical Sciences Building at the Edwardsville Campus.

It was the second time bids on that project had come before the board, earlier ones having been dismissed as too high. But University architects and the St. Louis firm of Hellmuth, Obata and Kassabaum—designers of the Edwardsville Campus—advocated acceptance of the latest proposals to avoid even further construction cost increases in the future.

SIU also asked the IBA to make awards totaling $2,077,883 for construction of a second stage of the Physical Sciences Building now nearly completed at the Carbondale Campus. The new wing will include faculty offices and a lecture auditorium. Most of the building space has been assigned to the chemistry department.

A general construction award of $1,572,000 was recommended for the Minner Construction Co., St. Louis. Other low bids: Plumbing—Tibco, Inc., Anderson, Ind., $68,241; Heating, air conditioning and ventilation, Inskip Plumbing, Champaign, $249,942; Electrical—Cunningham Electric Co., Anna, $187,000.

The board rejected a $974,745 bid on laboratory furnishings, more than $150,000 above estimates.

Signed by the board were contracts amounting to $1,101,038 for completion of the new University Center at Edwardsville. Work will finish the interior of the second floor and add a ballroom. Edgemont Construction Co., Edgemont, was awarded $405,000 pact for general construction.

Other awards: Friedman Electric Co., Belleville, electrical work, $365,870; Inskip Plumbing, Champaign, heating and air conditioning, $58,585; the Cool Rite Co., Urbana, ventilation, $148,000; Barber Coleman Co., St. Louis, controls, $44,600; Sprinkman Co., Peoria, non-conducting covering, $15,712; Construction Co., Alton, at $74,000. Other recommendations for contracts: Thomas Plumbing and Heating Co., Galesburg, for plumbing, $24,800; the Fowler Co., Centralia, heating, air conditioning, ventilation and controls, $158,600; and the Friedman Electric Co., Belleville, electrical work, $95,870.

The low bidder on general construction was the R. and R. Servco Co., St. Louis, kitchen equipment, $62,741.

No bids were received for plumbing and a re-call for that part of the job has been scheduled Nov. 20.

Daily Egyptian Editorials Communications Established

The question as to whether Southern Illinois was going to see the Public Broadcast Laboratory's first show last Sunday went right down to the wire.

For several weeks officials at the station did not know whether Carbondale could be linked to the rest of the country through electronics. The connections were finally made and the two and a half hour program was presented at 7:30 p.m. as scheduled.

Those people responsible on both ends of the line are to be congratulated for bringing to this community a worthwhile evening of television.

The topic of the first program was race and it pulled few punches.

The people in charge of this experiment in non-commercial television say that they expect to fail occasionally in their attempts to make television the exciting medium it should be.

However, it looks as if their failures may have the competition beat a country mile.

First Things First

The Campus Senate is getting ahead of itself. It has put the proverbial "cart before the horse" in its action on the proposed Student Workers Union.

At Wednesday night's meeting the Senate voted to set aside a reserve of student activity fees to cover retainers and court related expenses to protect students who might lose their jobs as the result of the proposed Student Workers Union.

How can the Senate vote student fees for action against members of a union that has not yet been established?

The initial task of the Senate is to poll all student workers as to whether or not they desire the establishment of a Student Workers Union. Again, it is the responsibility of the Campus Senate to represent the majority of students, not just the minority connected with the Senate and other Student Government-related activities.

Until the majority of the student workers has voted for the establishment of a Union, the Campus Senate should not be allocating funds and directing student fees.

The merits and demerits of a Student Workers Union weigh heavy on both sides. The big question is—Do the students want it? After that question is effectively answered, Senate action in either direction is warranted.

Letters to the Editor:

Religious Revolution

Are you open to a revolution in religion? There is an exciting new mood emerging across the University world among persons who desire increased dialogue, understanding and corporate responsibility for social change.

These persons are students and faculty from varying backgrounds of religious commitment who believe the imperatives of religion should not be archaic and competitive and sterile. They have a growing conviction that the rapid movement toward increasingly complex patterns of life demands new styles of deeply motivated servanthood and communication.

The development of relevant structures and models is dependent on men and women who are intellectually alive and theologically inquisitive. There is also a need for keen social conscience and a willingness to serve meaningfully and creatively.

Dramatic examples of this revolution are taking shape in many universities across America: disciplined communities of study and action—corporate strategy for implementing social justice and reconciliation—depth education groups on significant issues—interfaith seminars of urban realities—rethinking the purpose of the Church as a living community of compassion and self-giving ministry for the life of the world—experimental forms of celebration and worship.

We hear and read about these prophetic innovations but little has happened at Southern and we need to get involved.

An awareness of this new mood could begin on our campus through a broadly representative delegation to the international and ecumenical Assembly of the University Christian Movement at Cleveland from December 26 to January 1.

This Assembly will include over 3000 students and faculty. I have been involved in several events of this nature and can assure every member of the academic community that this will be a mature and comprehensive experience that will be of immeasurable value. The week will include a provocative film festival, art workshops and experimental use of closed circuit TV with the Depth Education Groups.

The University Christian Movement, which was established last year, anticipates progressive opportunities for ecumenical dialogue and action that were unheard of even ten years ago. The UCM was formed through the merger at the national level of the following bodies: Baptist Student Movement, Lutheran Student Association, Methodist Student Movement, Canterbury Committee of the Episcopal Church, Federation of Catholic College Students, YMCA and YWCA, United Campus Christian Fellowship, Westminster Fellowship, Student Interracial Ministry, Young Friends of America, Campus Commission of the Orthodox Church, Newman Student Federation.

It is important that every interested undergraduate, graduate and faculty member know about this opportunity. Several of us in the ecumenical Association of Campus Ministry will be glad to consult with you about possibilities for you to attend.

An interfaith dialogue group is meeting each week during November to view and discuss a special four part CBS television series on "Choice: The Imperative of Tomorrow" that has been produced as part of the Process '67 preparation for the Cleveland Assembly.

A bus is scheduled that we expect to share with participants from the Edwardsville campus. Scholarships are available for international students and there are several ways that financial arrangements can be worked out. Please call 7-8165 or talk with me at Coffee House if you would like to consider the Cleveland Week.

Coed Burned Up Over Fire Drill

To the Editor:

Although most of the buildings of SIU are relatively fireproof, it is certainly necessary to have fire drills. Dorms in particular have fire drills at deliberately inconvenient times so that all residents may have, practice in the safe and rapid evacuation of buildings under any circumstances.

As a result, students are generally well trained in the proper procedure to be followed during a fire or a fire drill. However, perhaps instructors and professors should be given similar training, for some of them find fire drills obnoxious and unnecessary, and so they ignore them. The following example illustrates this point.

A few weeks ago a fire alarm rang in the Wham Building a few minutes after noon. I was sitting in class. When the alarm sounded, we were all rather startled, but we students in class knew immediately what it was. Our professor, however, just sat there, dumbfounded.

We could hear other classes leaving rooms, but we remained seated, waiting for a go ahead from our instructor. As the third cycle of the alarm began, we finally started to leave. At this point the professor asked, "Is that supposed to mean something?" We told him that it was a fire drill. "Oh, well, hurry back," he called to us as we left. He remained seated at his desk and never did leave the building.

Today, during this same class period, the fire alarm went off again. This time the instructor essentially refused to allow us to leave the room. "If anyone smells smoke, he can go," was his only comment. We sat through the ringing of the alarm, never leaving the room.

Clearly, this is an example of gross unreality on the part of this instructor. Whether or not the fire drills were planned is irrelevant. Even if the alarms rang because some students were playing a joke, the practice in evacuation procedure in case of fire was worthwhile. Besides, a fire would certainly not be a planned occurrence.

To even suggest waiting until one can smell smoke before leaving a building is idiotic and ridiculous, even though the suggestion was made in jest. Some day a similar jest may precede tragedy.

Fire drills can be disturbing and obnoxious, but no one can deny their necessity and value. Seeing an instructor who ignores a drill reinforces the stereotype of the unrealistic, absent-minded professor.

Instructors, like students, need to be reminded of the necessity of such seemingly mundane and inconvenient drills. Some day real tragedy may occur at SIU because some professor, too immersed in the subject of his lecture to allow any disturbance, may ignore a fire alarm, waiting to leave the building until he can "smell smoke." By then it will be too late.

People Are Problem

To the Editor:

Deep blue sky silhouetting the bulking mass of the darkened library; orange wisps of dawn suspended over the brightly lit Lawson Hall; all surrounded by black leaves on dying trees.

This is the look the west side of the campus wears at 6:30 in the morning—cool, dark, colored, serene. No administrators administering. No teachers teaching. No students groveling. None of the powers, troubles and weariness the University takes on between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

It's impressive, this mass of buildings and architecture, when the people are gone. It's the people here who make a mess of the campus during the day.

I'm not a misanthrope—just greatly depressed at the mess we make of such beauty.

In Better Shape Than Neighbors

Cambodia's Policy of Nonalignment

By Antero Pietila

The U.S. Air Force DC-6 that brought Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy to a visit to Cambodia was the first American military aircraft to land in the royal capital of Phnompenh since Cambodia broke diplomatic relations with the United States three years ago. With Prince Norodom Sihanouk welcoming Mrs. Kennedy in the airport last week, the whole reception bore an air of pomposity usually reserved for a visiting foreign head of state.

It is quite easy to be dazzled by that kind of extraordinarily solemn welcome and see in it something that later develops to be only a mirage. So, as it is a waste of time to speculate about Mrs. Kennedy's rumored "secret mission", it is as futile to think these ceremonies as another demonstration of Prince Norodom's independence from Peking. The Cambodian Head of State certainly has an ability of showmanship but he is no man to stage that kind of semi-political protocol show for political purposes. After all, the wife of the late President came to his country on his personal invitation for a vacation.

The relations between Cambodia and the United States, or rather the lack of them, is a sad story of mutual distrust and misunderstanding that, deliberate or not, is mainly derived from the war in Vietnam.

When Cambodia broke diplomatic relations with the United States in May, 1965, the direct reason given by the Head of State was bombing by the American and South Vietnamese planes of two border villages. That was another incident in a long series of border skirmishes but it coincided with "a slanderous article" in Newsweek that enraged the Prince at least as much as the bombing. Quoting what it described as "sources in Phnom Penh", the magazine said Queen Kossamak was "money mad and reportedly ran a number of concessions in town, plus a string of bordellos at the edge of the city."

This, then, was the culmination of the deterioration in U.S.-Cambodian relations that led to the break. It was preceded by other incidents, military as well as diplomatic. One was the accusation by the State Department, and denied by Cambodian officials, that the Phnompenh radio had blasphemed President Kennedy in a newscast about his death. This is still a matter of a bitter controversy since the State Department is sticking to its charge but fails to produce any evidence. Cambodia, on the other hand, is equally unable to defend herself otherwise than by referring to the three-day official mourning announced by the Prince on the President's death.

Among the minor irritations that caused the deterioration of U.S.-Cambodian relations was the general dissatisfaction of Prince Norodom with the American press. He objected to the practice of American newsmen to stereotype Cambodia (pop. 5,000,000) as "a tiny South-East Asian country." He went so far as to compile a list of all countries smaller by area or population in the world and had it printed in French and English in a magazine called "Kambudja."

The alienation from the United States brought Cambodia closer to France and especially China, which was described by the Prince as "the number one friend" of his nation. He began openly to sympathize with the National Liberation Front (the military arm of the Vietcong) and North Vietnam, both of which maintain important diplomatic missions in Phnompenh. The Prince said he was not able to see in this anything contrary to the neutral policy of his nation.

Relations with Peking, however, entered a phase of near-break this September, when the Prince first dissolved and then reorganized the Cambodia-China Friendship Association, which he claimed had "carried out propaganda against our regime." He partially it was because Cambodia was considered by the Chinese leaders as a special case. How special indeed was manifested by Chou En-Lai when he asked the Cambodian ambassador Truong Cang to tea and later escorted the Prince to his car. And this good behavior was noticed in Phnompenh as was the two messages last week from Chou in which he affirmed that China would respect the "five principles of peaceful coexistence." By this Chou was referring to one of the agreements of the 1955 Afro-Asian conference in Bandung, where signatory countries pledged not to interfere in each other's domestic affairs.

While the friction thus seemed to be removed, the Prince during the weekend made his position toward the U.S. more accurate. He continued to strongly disapprove of American actions in Vietnam but did not see them as a barrier on the road to resumption of relations. The U.S. should, however, issue a declaration recognizing Cambodia's territorial integrity and existing frontiers and pledging not to violate Cambodia's boundaries, he said.

If Wahington did this "we would be happy to have Mrs. Kennedy as ambassador, but on her present trip she is simply an ambassador of charm — nothing more."

His proposal seems to be impossible for Washington to accept. Cambodia has border disputes with Thailand, where a massive U.S. military build-up is continuing and Vietcong have several hideouts along the Cambodian border.

"We only count on ourselves," Prince Norodom Sihanouk says. He is not the first leader to undergo the ordeal of trying to maintain neutrality in an area where the conflict of interests of superpowers makes it extremely difficult. Once he said that "as long as the Americans are there (Vietnam), China cannot swallow Cambodia."

Not too long ago the 45-year-old Prince, educated in Paris and Saigon, has emerged as one of the most diligent letter writers to the editors of major American newspapers. He boasted, "This absolute nonalignment doesn't seem to hurt us and, although our resources are small, we certainly are in much better shape than our neighbors, aligned with the U.S."

Shanks, Buffalo Evening News

also dismissed two pro-Peking cabinet members and suspended all privately-owned newspapers. He even went so far as to order his ambassador to Peking to return home and said an attack on the embassy was expected. In his own words, "Our difficulties with China came from a complete change of attitude of that country's government towards ours. While Peking had chosen to be our most respectful friend between 1965 and 1966, it has now for a year been acting under the influence of cultural revolution, exporting 'Maoism' massively, not only with the Chinese living in Cambodia, but with the Khmers, particularly among the youths."

But the Cambodian embassy was not attacked by the Red Guards. Partially this was due to the fatigue of the revolutionary zealots after intense summer activities, and Jungle warfare.

ADLAI E. STEVENSON III

SIU Young Demos to Initiate Stevenson Memorial Lectures

Illinois state Treasurer Adlai E. Stevenson III will deliver the first in a projected semi-annual series of lectures in memory of his late father Tuesday at SIU.

The Adlai Stevenson Memorial Lectures have been established by the SIU Young Democrats Club. Jana Ogg, a junior, of Cairo, is president.

"The purpose is two-fold," said Miss Ogg, "to honor Adlai Stevenson and to bring nationally known personalities to the campus for lectures on contemporary politics." She said Vice President Hubert Humphrey has been invited to deliver the spring term lecture. He is expected to reply after the first of the year.

Stevenson will speak at 8 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. The lectures will be free to the public.

Register Now; Official Says Business Slow

All continuing students should advance register for the winter quarter or they will experience difficulty securing a suitable schedule of classes, according to H. W. Wohlwend, assistant registrar.

Any continuing student who fails to advance register or who has advance registration cancelled for non-payment of fees will not be permitted to register until Friday, Jan. 5, which is the fourth day of the quarter.

Since the advisement and sectioning centers report a lack of business at this time, any student who is not registered should make an advisement appointment immediately, Wohlwend said.

Because business is slow, registration can be processed quickly in comparison to the difficulty that arises at the close of the registration period.

Advisement and registration offices will close Dec. 8. The deadline for payment of fees for undergraduate student is 4 p.m. Dec. 13 unless the student has an authorized deferment.

International Students Set Talk

The Visiting International Students Association will meet at 3 p.m. Sunday in Morris Library Auditorium.

Moon Rocket Flight Successful

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's majestic Saturn 5 super-rocket, performing like a veteran on its first test flight, hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,234 miles into space Thursday to spark new hope that U.S. astronauts can land on the moon in 1969. Guided by an automatic pilot taking the place of astronauts, the Apollo spacecraft 8 1/2 hours later survived a fiery plunge through earth's atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour. It parachuted to a bullseye landing within sight of cheering crew members aboard the USS Bennington, the prime recovery ship, in the Pacific 600 miles north of Hawaii.

Surveyor Hits Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Camera-carrying Surveyor 6 landed gently on the moon Thursday, giving the United States its second space success within 12 hours.

Buildup Set at Dak To

SAIGON (AP) — The U. S. Army beefed up its combat forces in the Dak To sector Thursday in an effort to root out North Vietnamese regulars, bloodied but still aggressive after a week's sporadic battles. The official count of North Vietnamese dead in the jungle fighting around Dak To, in the central highlands 270 miles north of Saigon, climbed to 209. The U.S. Command said 45 American troops have been killed and 130 wounded.

Wilson Refuses

To Compromise

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson refused Thursday night to compromise on his Labor government's policy of deflation despite a growing revolt within his own party and increasing unpopularity in the nation. Wilson told the House of Commons, however, that full employment remained the Labor government's objective.

Egypt Accuses Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Egypt accused Israel Thursday night of waging a "piecemeal war" and asked that the U.N. Security Council apply enforcement measures unless Israeli troops are withdrawn from occupied Arab territory.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad laid down the Egyptian position after the United States lost in a move to have the council let Israel speak right after Egypt at the start of a new debate on the Middle East.

Illinois Central May Halt Trains on St. Louis Run

The Illinois Central will continue to run special trains between St. Louis and Carbondale during peak travel periods for SIU students, even though the railroad has announced plans to discontinue its regular passenger service between the two cities.

For normal travel periods, the IC said, it has made arrangements with Gulf Transport Lines to provide additional bus service for students between Carbondale and St. Louis.

The IC's plans for special student travel arrangements were part of the announcement made here Thursday by the railroad that because of financial losses, it hopes to drop its six trains that operate along the Carbondale-St. Louis line.

In making the announcement, Otto H. Zimmerman, IC general manager, said that "after a year of scrutiny we've come to the conclusion that the trains are a burden on the railroad and serve little of the public interest in continuing to operate."

Zimmerman told a group of government, Chamber of Commerce and SIU officials the IC will request permission in early December from the Illinois Commerce Commission to drop the six trains.

If permission is granted, the Carbondale-St. Louis trains will make their last run sometime in April or May, Zimmerman said.

Paul H. Reistrup, the railroad's vice-president for passenger services, said the IC lost $400,000 operating the six trains in 1966, and expects to lose more than $500,000 this year.

Reistrup said the railroad has made "every attempt" to maintain service between Carbondale and St. Louis but the IC has found that operating passenger trains over such a short distance would never reach the break-even point in costs, much less make a profit.

Reistrup explained the IC would have been able to continue to St. Louis if the U.S. Post Office had not decided to discontinue operation of its railroad post office cars in favor of air and truck carriers.

According to Reistrup, the railroad post office cars brought the IC enough revenue to justify continuation of at least one or two passenger trains between Carbondale and St. Louis.

In order to accommodate the displaced train travelers, the IC officials announced they have made arrangements with the Gulf Transport bus lines to add an additional round-trip bus route to the three it presently operates between the two cities.

In addition, the bus line has agreed to coincide its schedules with incoming IC schedules so that main line train passengers can obtain immediate connections to St. Louis by bus.

If the trains are discontinued, the bus line will operate from the IC Passenger Depot in Carbondale and will make stops at train stations in the cities where the trains normally stopped.

Zimmerman also said the bus line may eventually come under control of the railroad, if merger talks between the IC and the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio, which owns the bus service, prove successful.

The IC's plans received the enthusiastic approval by the civic and business leaders gathered for the announcement meeting at the Carbondale IC office building.

They saw the move as a partial solution to the city's traffic tieups now resulting in part from the railroad's switching operations.

Carbondale Mayor David Keene said he was especially pleased to learn that a residual effect of the move will be an 80 per cent decrease in the IC's switching operations that have caused traffic tieups at Carbondale's Main and Walnut Street crossings.

The mayor, Chamber of Commerce officials Harry Weeks and Hans Fischer, and SIU representative Paul Isbell said they will support the IC's plans to discontinue the service.

Fischer said he was particularly glad to see that the IC brought the proposal before the community discussion before going ahead with final plans.

Words Might Change Lives, Ex-Convict Says

"Good," "love," and "work," are three four-letter words that can change a person's life, an ex-convict told SIU convocation audiences Thursday in Shryock Auditorium.

Bill Sands, a former lifer from San Quentin Federal Penitentiary got an enthusiastic crowd response to his humorous comments and received a standing ovation at the conclusion of his talk. Afterwards, the River Rooms overflowed with students eager to talk and listen to him.

Throughout his talk, Sands referred to warden (Clinton) Duffy who told him that if he applied the three four-letter words he would get out of prison. It worked. He served his three life sentences in three years, four months, and was then paroled.

Convict 66836, as he referred to himself, believes that many prisons are still horrible. He noted that there were two prisons in Arkansas brought to his attention by Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. In these prisons tortures such as cracking a man's knuckles with a nutcracker, sliding a hypodermic needle under a man's fingernail, or using the "Arkansas leather strap" presently exist. The leather strap is used effectively by guards so that the skin can be ripped to the bone with only a slight twist of the guard's wrist.

Sands noted that his own injuries included many broken bones, broken ribs, and a broken nose. In addition, all of his teeth were knocked out. These injuries were caused by current torture methods which included being brought to a cell resembling an old Spanish cell block. There he was questioned by guards when he was thought to be a witness to a crime within the prison. His fingers were then broken systematically to make him speak.

Future Bride Reserves Ballroom

Center Wedding Reception

A relatively new use for the University Center has been discovered. Miss Sharon Sinclair, who will become the bride of James P. Pope, has scheduled a wedding reception in Ballroom A of the University Center Saturday evening.

Miss Sinclair, whose engagement was announced Feb. 14, said about 200 invitations to the reception have been sent.

She chose the University Center for the event, she said, because some of her friends have had receptions there. Miss Sinclair said she checked into the matter of reserving the ballroom about two months ago.

Miss Sinclair also said that the use of the ballroom was just ease by the Huskies of Washington by four points.

The other major conference leaders shouldn't get themselves into too much hot water. Top-ranked Southern California should whip Oregon State by 15, while Tennessee #2 in the country and #1 in the Southeast Conference, will take Tulane to task by twenty points.

3rd-ranked North Carolina State, the biggest wheel in the Atlantic Coast Conference, goes hunting outside the league --they might wish they'd stayed at home. Their travels will run them into some real belligerent Lions in Pennsylvania. Penn State will give the Wolfpack a mighty busy Saturday afternoon.

Ball State Offense Paced By High-Scoring Halfback

At Ball State, they leave it to Amos. Amos Van Pelt, that is.

Van Pelt is the core of the Ball State rushing attack which is averaging 274.6 yards per game despite a loss to St. Joseph of Indiana last weekend.

Saturday the Cardinals face the Salukis at 1 p.m. at Ball State.

Van Pelt, a 6-1, 205 pound junior halfback, has rushed for 748 yards in 125 attempts this season for an average of six yards a carry. He has scored nine touchdowns. Van Pelt also has scored four two-point conversions for eight points making a total of 58 points and the Ball State scoring lead.

In addition, Van Pelt is also tied as the leading pass receiver for the Cardinals with seven receptions good for 58 yards.

Van Pelt handles most of the Ball State kickoff returns and is averaging 26.4 yards per return.

Last year he set a Ball State and Indiana Collegiate Conference record with 288 yards gained in one game.

In addition to Van Pelt in the backfield the Cardinals have two other fine backs, Dick Lester and John Ondrejko.

Lester, the other halfback, has gained 551 yards in 108 attempts for an average of 5.1

yards per carry. He has scored eight touchdowns.

Ondrejko is right behind Lester as far as statistics go. The fullback is averaging 4.7 yards per carry by virtue of 498 yards gained in 107 attempts.

In gaining almost 1,800 of the Cardinals' 2,197 yards, one cannot ignore the offensive line that has helped those three gain their yardage. And a big one it is, averaging 241 pounds per man.

The Cardinal passing game, which has averaged only 58.1 yards per game, is handled by Doc Heath.

He has completed only 28 of 66 passing attempts good for 409 yards. He has thrown no touchdown passes—nor has any other Ball State passer—and has had six passes intercepted.

His favorite receiver, along with Van Pelt, is Tim Hostrawser, who has caught seven passes for 125 yards.

While Ball State's total offense is 332.7 yards per game, its defense has also been generous by giving 271.3 yards per game on defense. But most of the opponents have not been able to cash in on this, as the Cardinals' opponents have scored an average of only 11.6 points per game.

The Cardinal defense uses an unusual setup, with two ends, two tackles, four linebackers, two halfbacks and a safety.

The defense for Ball State averages 207 pounds per man as compared to Southern's average of 205 pounds per man.

Women Gymnasts to Perform Tonight in Season's Opener

The fifth annual Kennedy Memorial Meet at 8 p.m. tonight in the Arena will kick-off the 1967-68 Women's gymnastics season.

The meet will be a combination of intrasquad gymnastics meet and a touch of show business.

Gymnastically it will feature Judy Wills, four-time World Trampoline Champion; Donna Schaezner, World Pan American and University World Games team member; Gail Daley, four-time Canadian National Champion and Olympian; Joanna Hashimoto, University World Game team member; plus All-Americans Sue Rodgers, Linda Scott, and Mary Ellen Hallett.

The meet will feature a look at the past accomplishments of women's gymnasts at SIU. These accomplishments will be shown in words as well as action.

Some of these accomplishments are: four National Team Championships, 43 consecutive all competition victories, 18 All-Americans, six world Trampoline Individual and Synchronized Championships.

Special features at the Meet will be the presentation of the J.F.K. Achievement Award. It is awarded to the individual who brought "honor and distinction to SIU through her athletic achievement through the preceding year."

Past recipients of the award have been Gail Daley and Dale McClements in 1964-65, Judy Wills in 1965-66, and Donna Schaezner in 1966-67.

The team captain will also be announced. This is an award voted on by women gymnasts themselves.

The show business angle will come from the Angel Flight, who in addition to ushering will also sing and dance. There will also be scorekeepers with the "mod" look, and the gymnasts themselves doing free exercises with a background of music ranging from jazz to classics.

There will also be the annual "Beat the Champ" contest, in which Judy Wills, world tumbling champion, will attempt to match the combined total of consecutive backflips as executed by her teammates.

There will also be a new format of competition in the intrasquad meet this year which will follow an instructional and informative form.

Each event will be explained, using demonstrators, to inform spectators what to look for in viewing, and what the judges look for in a winning routine. Then the gymnasts from "black" and "blue" teams will compete for score.

There will also be synchronized trampoline and uneven bar competition.

Proceeds of the Kennedy Memorial Meet will be used to meet expenses of SIU's representatives to the University Student World Games in Tokyo last summer.

Sigma Pi, which finished fourth in the Fraternity League, placed three on the annual intramural flag football All-Star team.

The three from Sigma Pi were Darrell Arne, Daniel Lanno and Edward Hoffman.

Delta Chi, which won the intramural flag football championship Wednesday, placed Tom Grady on the All-Star squad.

Others selected were Irvin Seger, Lucky Leos; John Rosynek, Wright I Rebels; Ron Guagenti, Phi Kappa Tau; Paul McDevit, Felts Irishmen; Frank Passarella and John Robert, Cheeks.

Bess Resumes Place

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)--Bob Bess resumed work as Illinois quarterback Wednesday and will be used as back-up man to Dean Volkman against Michigan Saturday.
