Board to reply to Stone's $1 million offer

By P. J. Heller and Terry Peters
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

A special Board of Trustees meeting to consider "a suitable reply" to a million dollar offer to finance the cost of the controversial University House will be held at 3 p.m. today in the President's Office.

Under an agreement reached last Sunday between Chicago multimillionaire W. Clement Stone and SIU President Delyte W. Morris, a gift of stock shares in the Combined Insurance Company of America, of which Stone is president, would be made to the SIU Foundation with the provision that the shares be held for three years before being sold.

If the gift had been made to the University, the stock would have had to be sold immediately, since SIU is a state institution. The Foundation has other equity holdings it can sell to pay the cost of the house.

The Foundation would acquire University House from SIU, complete construction with the Stone grant, and then make the house available to the University.

"I invited President Morris to my home last Sunday and we worked out this plan to take the project out of the realm of controversy so that President Morris can proceed with his work of developing one of the greatest educational institutions in the world," Stone said.

The SIU Foundation's executive committee, which is chaired by Board of Trustee member Melvin C. Lockard, has already agreed to the plan, which must still be approved by the Board of Trustees. If the plan is approved, the name of University House would be changed to the SIU Foundation Center.

Lindell W. Sturgis, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said "we will consider this most generous offer and I think our trustees will accept it."

In response to questions concerning the grant, Morris said "Mr. W. Clement Stone's generous offer to fund University House through a gift of one million dollars to the SIU Foundation is most deeply appreciated."

"The University's Board of Trustees will meet this afternoon to consider a suitable reply to Mr. Stone's proposal. Mr. Stone certainly has displayed confidence in this University," Morris said.

Stone, a recently appointed member to the University of Illinois' Board of Trustees, said he had followed the controversy over the house with great interest. The project scheduled to be completed

City Council refers parking needs to study committee on city traffic

The Carbondale City Council referred a proposal for a study of parking needs to its Streets and Traffic Committee during its informal session Tuesday night.

The Council's action came after lengthy discussion with George Crawford, traffic engineer, on alternative methods of financing such a study and the recommendations that may come out of it.

"I personally backed away from this proposal when it was first presented," Councilman William Eaton said. "But I'm beginning to think we won't solve the problem unless we study it."

"But I'm still concerned with the cost," he said. He suggested that businessmen who have a stake in the parking conditions in Carbondale be asked to share with the city the cost of financing the study.

Councilman Hans Fischer suggested that the Streets and Traffic Committee "consult with the appropriate businessmen on the issue."

A related problem, the construction of a 25-car parking lot on Chestnut Street immediately west of North Illinois Avenue, was discussed by R.J. Schwegman, director of public works.

The purpose of the lot is to provide parking space which was lost by the construction of the north end of the north-south traffic couple through Carbondale.

Schwegman's presentation included three alternative plans for a parking lot the city would build for Technical Tape Corp., 420 N. Illinois Ave.

The parking lot for Technical Tape would replace the parking area it will lose when the city builds its Chestnut Street lot.

Eaton proposed that Schwegman try to arrange with Technical Tape for the construction of a second, larger lot, to be leased from the company by the city. Such a lot should be metered, Eaton said, and set up on a revenue-sharing basis between the city and Technical Tape.

The Council earlier approved unanimously a resolution of sympathy to the family of the Rev. Lenus Turley, who died Saturday after an illness.

Turley was the pastor of Rock Hill Baptist Church, and had been very active in various Carbondale civic projects.

Mayor David Keene announced that the funeral would be held at 2:30 Wednesday at the First United Methodist Church, rather than at Rock Hill Baptist Church, as had been reported.

Anti-war events taking shape on college campuses

Editor's note—Staff Writers Bob Carr, P. J. Heller and Student Writer Larry Haley contacted various universities throughout the Midwest to find out their plans for the Nov. 13-15 Fall Offensive November Action. The following story will tell of the events planned at SIU and around the area.

Over 350 persons have signed up to make the trip to Washington D.C. for the November Moratorium activities, Mike Johannes of the Southern Illinois Peace Committee said Tuesday.

At least 250 of this number will probably make the trip, to what the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, the sponsors of action, has called "the most massive, legal, peaceful and non-violent demonstrations ever to be held in the United States."

It was announced at Tuesday night's SIPC meeting that there will be five busses for the trip. The first will leave University Center at 8 p.m. Thursday, three more will depart at 8 a.m. Friday with the last one leaving at noon. The busses will leave Washington at midnight Saturday and should be in Carbondale by 6 p.m. Sunday. It is advisable to bring sack lunches, but no luggage or valuables, spokesmen for the SIPC said.

The New Mobilization Committee is arranging for sleeping accommodations in churches and possibly YMCA's in Washington. Food must be purchased by the individuals, however.

Plans were finalized Tuesday evening as to what speakers would be present for the scheduled SIU teach-in Thursday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the University Center Ballroom. The teach-in will also include a program of movies, folk singers and poets.

SIPC is calling for a boycott of classes Thursday and Friday and is urging Carbondale businessmen to halt "business as usual" for the two days. Friday's activities will be confined to the distribution of literature and a canvassing of the community.

An anti-war march through Carbondale is planned for Saturday.

Midwest universities contacted for information about their activities are as follows:

University of Illinois-Champaign

Moratorium weekend should be rather quiet in Champaign-Urbana. Planned activities include an overall canvassing of the communities beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday and continuing through Friday. Teach-ins will also be conducted Thursday and Friday. No marches or mass demonstrations have been planned, according to Carl Schwartz, news editor of the Daily Illini. He added that many of the local peace leaders will be in Washington D.C. for the national activities. All busses chartered for the weekend have been filled, he said.

next May, "had been unfairly criticized by people who simply don't know what it's all about," Stone said.

Stone also said he thought Morris had been treated unfairly by "some rather shortsighted individuals and organizations, including some of the news media who can't conceive of the thrilling future ahead for SIU and the area which is principally served."

Some of the interest in the University first began when he toured the campus after making a speech here last July.

"I was really amazed at what I saw," Stone said. "Everyone in the state should visit the school to see how our young people are being served by this magnificent institution."

Recent visitors to campus had somewhat differing opinions on the University however.

State Rep. Philip Collins, R-Chicago, chairman of the Illinois House subcommittee which just completed a two day hearing on SIU budgetary practices, said the gift is a "wonderful thing...but it doesn't change the fact that funds are still pouring into the state universities and the administrations are using the money as they see fit."

Another member of the House subcommittee, Rep. Jim Nowlan of Toulon, said that although Morris has been a leader in the development of the University, "it appears that administrators have possibly lost the perspective of the functions of a university."

"When we can see inadequate housing for students and members of the community,"

Nowlan said, "it is unfortunate to see a house being built for one million dollars."

"Some administrators have what you might call an office complex," Nowlan said. "They feel that great buildings make a great university."

"Students are making us realize that this just isn't so," he said.

Ivan A. Elliott Jr., Carmi attorney and Board member, voiced appreciation for the proposed grant.

"It is a marvelous offer," Elliott said. "I'd like to express my appreciation as an individual not only for the gift, but for his (Stone's) pride in SIU and its officials."

Another Board member, Carbondale contractor E. T. Simonds, said he didn't know the facts about the offer and declined to comment.

Andrew H. Marzec, coordinator of University Extension Services and president of the SIU Alumni Association, said, "It is gratifying to know that someone has this kind of interest in SIU."

Marzec said the offer came so suddenly that the Alumni Association hasn't had time to discuss it.

"It's a matter for the president and the Board of Trustees to decide whether they will accept it," Marzec said.

'Symbolic gesture of peace' urged by Senator Hughes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Harold E. Hughes urged President Nixon Tuesday to propose this week a Christmas ceasefire in Vietnam as "a symbolic gesture of peace" toward antiwar demonstrators and "all peace loving Americans."

The Iowa Democrat said in a letter to Nixon that, if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong reject such a ceasefire, "it would still be worth our trying a unilateral and publicly proclaimed ceasefire in honor of the approaching holidays."

Film to be shown

The first in a series of French-produced films, subtitled in English, will be shown at 7:15 p.m., Monday in Morris Library Auditorium.

The film, "To Be a Crook," had the same director as the prize-winning "A Man and A Woman." "To Be a Crook" received an award for Best Direction at the Mar Del Plata Film Festival.

Students and faculty members are welcome to attend the film, which will cost 60 cents per person for admission.

The series is being presented by the French section of the SIU Department of Foreign Languages.

Critic will lecture on 'Iago as Satan'

Literary Critic Stanley Edgar Hyman will appear in a public lecture today at SIU.

His talk, at 8 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium, will be on "Iago as Satan," and will be sponsored by the SIU Department of English.

A staff writer for "The New Yorker" magazine, Hyman is widely known for such studies of modern literary criticism as "The Armed Vision" and "Poetry and Criticism." He was married to the late Shirley Jackson, prominent short story writer, and has edited a book on her works, "The Magic of Shirley Jackson."

Book sale at VTI

The Vocational Technical Institute Textbook Service will hold a book sale from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday-Friday. Discarded textbooks will be sold at minimum prices, according to Wilma Lantman, librarian.

He didn't do his homework

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reply to Tim Terchek's ridiculous letter which appeared in the Nov. 7 issue of the Daily Egyptian asking for head football Coach Dick Towers' resignation—I would like to inform Mr. Terchek that he is showing how uninformed and uneducated he is in the art of coaching.

Granted, Coach Towers admittedly took the blame for the Homecoming loss, but did it ever occur to you, Mr. Terchek, that a good coach will not embarrass a player by publicly pointing out his failures. That would be the best way to deflate the ever important spirit and team unity.

There are a lot of qualities which go into the making of a good coach, and one of these qualities is giving the player the same respect that the coach himself would like to receive. This personifies Coach Towers.

In mentioning the resignation of Coach Lutz you failed to mention the unexcused leave of absence and the questionable incidences of hitting players which shadowed Coach Lutz.

You mentioned Coach Towers' team record with a hint of disgust, failing to point out last year's winning season (6-3-0), the first winning season in many years, and you also failed to state that Towers took over after the previous head coach literally "walked out" leaving Coach Towers with a deflated budget and no recruiting time.

You also failed to mention that the schools we have been playing have handsome, impressive stadiums which lure good recruits. And, in asking for Dick Towers' resignation you did not point out that it is near impossible to recruit the top high school and junior college players when all you have to offer is a broken, outdated stadium. Most players had better stadiums in high school. Not to mention that the prospects of a better stadium have dwindled because this administration feels that putting a $900,000 plus roof over President Morris' head is a bit more important.

You did bring up Coach Towers' outstanding personality which is the asset that has drawn our present dedicated players.

As a senior in journalism, Mr. Terchek, it would be expected that you should understand your subject matter first and write a good letter second. You have accomplished the second without coming close to a knowledge of the first.

Next time, Mr. Terchek, stick to something that you know a little about.

Difficult problem

To the Daily Egyptian:

The President's house appears to be a difficult problem to resolve. Although many of the individuals involved are different, the same governing bodies existed when the situation first became known.

The story was well documented in the press two years ago. The projected cost at that time was much lower than it is now, but it was still considerable. The project only moved forward because there was little if any discouragement by people in high places.

Now it appears that President Delyte W. Morris and Chancellor John S. Rendleman at Edwardsville have become unintentionally entrapped in a situation only partly of their own design.

Public Forum

This Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through letters and editorials. Editorials are written by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major or faculty code, address and telephone number, preferably typewritten, and be no longer than 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and be guided by the policy of no libel, no obscenity, no profanity, no pornography. Acceptance for publication will depend upon the timeliness of issue and the timeliness and relevance of the material. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other material on pages four and five includes editorials and articles reprinted from other newspapers, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretations or opinion articles authored locally.

Let's vote today

To the Daily Egyptian:

Recently a great deal of attention has been drawn to our student government. Many students have voiced their opinions in regard to various actions taken by the Senate.

In response, the Student Senate has justifiably argued that many of these students did not care enough in the first place to vote at the election which put the present student officials in office.

The opportunity is at hand to remedy both situations. Today Senate elections are being held. Here is the occasion for students to determine the ideas and views that they want to be expressed in the Senate through an elected representative.

This election is of particular importance in light of the recent controversy over Senate actions.

In the Friday, Nov. 7, issue of the Daily Egyptian, a letter appeared by Bill Berra and Rick Holt. In it they referred to the spring election and stated that the candidates should have been questioned as to the feasibility of their intentions before they were elected.

This is the action the students should take now in regard to the present candidates. A note of warning is suitable here. Do not vote according to party preference. A candidate may not share the same views as the party with which he is affiliated, and in fact he may hold opinions that are diametrically opposed.

For this reason it is imperative that your decision be based on a knowledge and evaluation of the ideas and views that each candidate holds. This is your opportunity and right. If you neglect it, you also forfeit your justification for criticizing a government that was, in fact, democratically elected by students.

The concerned student voter is essential in assuring a responsible and effective Student Senate that can in turn communicate to the school administration the thoughts and needs of the student.

Let's demonstrate our interest in and concern for student government and the University and its policies by exercising our right to vote today.

Presidential Palace

Chancellor John S. Rendleman, of Southern Illinois University's Edwardsville campus, made an incomprehensible mistake by giving the go-ahead to a $900,000 presidential palace in Carbondale, to be used by Dr. Delyte Morris, SIU president, without approval of the State Board of Higher Education.

If any man should know that he was on slippery legal grounds, it is Rendleman, a professed authority on law, who served SIU as counsel and as vice president for business affairs at Carbondale before being promoted to his present position.

Members of the State Board of Higher Education reacted with shock when they learned that the presidential palace was about 50 percent complete without plans ever having been presented to them for approval.

"This episode has shaken the confidence of the public, the legislature, this board and others in the present administration of SIU," said George L. Clements, chairman of the state board, who went on to suggest that the resignation or removal of those responsible was in order.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has joined in the criticism, saying that public sympathy for higher education has been dealt a setback. The Governor described the situation as "very unfortunate." That's putting it mildly enough.

Rendleman has taken most of the heat in the investigation so far, as he should, but President Morris should be made to explain whether Rendleman received his present position because he was adept at dispensing favors for Morris.

It's ironic that Rendleman should find himself in a mess involving unauthorized use of funds. He served as counsel for the Illinois Budgetary Commission when it probed the scandal in the state auditor's office in the days of Orville Hodge.

Some people don't learn, it appears, not even those in higher education.

It can be said for Rendleman, a man who prides himself as having a flair for newness, that he may have behaved stupidly, but he surely isn't sneaky.

How're you going to hide a $900,000 presidential palace?

'The system'

To the Daily Egyptian:

I have discovered after returning to SIU from an involuntary absence, that the paper bureaucracy, which is SIU, has prospered to new heights.

Only since the most recent, intensified questioning of the $900,000 "Morris Manor" has my disgust with "the system" grown to such a level as to prompt a letter to the Daily Nothing.

I am currently being billed by the SIU Health Service for "medication" of an unmentioned nature, on an unmentioned date. I was never treated nor has my record number been changed from D1925 to 77951 as indicated on the bill. My correspondence has not been answered.

All this inaccuracy leads me to wonder about the obvious inequities surrounding the financing of "Morris Manor." According to the Chicago Tribune (10-22-69), the financing is coming from "The overhead allowances" the University receives from grants and contracts for training, research or services provided for federal or state agencies foundations and others.

Not only are these funds being misdirected but also they are slipping through the fingers of the administrators like a broken egg.

Unless Dr. Morris plans on training students or taxpayers or conducting research there is no justifiable cause for construction of such a costly home (?).

I suggest to the Board of Trustees, whoever they are, wherever they are, that a bit of change be spent to improve University record keeping.

Two students give views on Middle East war crisis

Hassan Rafi-Zadeh, former by-liner of the Iranian publications, is a Ph. D. candidate at SIU. He is a journalism major, and his field is international mass communications and international relations.

By Hassan Rafi-Zadeh

Francisco Casas, 22, is an Egyptian doing graduate work in economics at SIU. Yami Tarsi, 21, is an Israeli undergraduate in physics. They agree that peaceful co-existence is the answer to the Middle East war crisis but they agree on little else.

"I feel personally very pessimistic," Casas said. "I believe this is going on for 20 years, embittered by the whole background of conflict."

Casas, who was born and reared in Egypt, is a Roman Catholic with Spanish citizenship. In 1964 he was awarded a medal of "Science and Arts" by President Nasser for his "sign of intelligence." He has studied economics in France for two years. Tarsi, son of Israel's former ambassador to Mali, has been at SIU for two years and takes a different view.

"It is bad because of mentality," he said. "But they have the potential to improve, to coexist and to become friends because both sides are tired of losing men."

Tarsi said the Arab and Israeli peoples want the fighting to stop so that economic development can be realized to better their individual lives.

"Unfortunately, there is an inflexible policy on the side of the Arab governments and a fanatic state of mind among them," Tarsi said.

The two young men have conflicting views on the disputed land itself.

"The Arabs claim we threw them out of their land," the Israeli student said. "This is not true. The territory was bought from the Arabs. The Arab leaders don't want the Jews to be in the area."

Welcome to the Crunch

Casas disagrees. "The illegal occupation of the Palestinian land in 1948 is the real reason for the existence of problems. I am wondering what the Americans' reaction would be if someone from outside should come and occupy one of the states in this country," he said, "this is exactly what the Arabs feel about Israel."

Casas, however, agrees that the land was purchased—"by force and from people who were poor and impotent to resist force."

Tarsi and Casas agree that the Jews have been persecuted throughout history.

"But why should Arabs be punished for it?" Casas asks. "Why should there be a national home for the Jews? Do the Christian, Moslem or any other religions have a natural home? Moslems as well as Christians live in many countries."

The two agree that the Mideast conflict is not a religious war.

"But since the majority of Israeli are Jews, there is a resultant feeling of religious involvement in this war," Tarsi, the Israeli, said.

Casas says he has never met anyone who loves war and hates the Jews.

"But how is it possible for any reasonable person to think about the Palestinian refugees' problems and remain indifferent?" he asks. "Over one million people have been homeless for more than 20 years."

Tarsi says the Arab governments do not represent the views of their people.

"The Arabs don't want war, but they are antagonistic toward Israel," he says. "They have learned to hate and fight Israel. Because 80 percent of the Arabs are illiterate, they don't have any choice. Their system of government is a one-party system. But my government does represent my people's view."

Casas and Tarsi were asked to respond to opinions voiced in some communications media.

Time magazine on Sept. 19 wrote: "Each side is backed by one of the world's two big powers and yet, while neither the U.S. nor Russia wants war in the Middle East, neither seems capable of making peace."

Casas and Tarsi agree that U.S. and Soviet support helps the war to continue. Casas says, "Surely, feelings of having support is one of the reasons for the war."

Benjamin Shwadran, editor of Middle Eastern Affairs, wrote in the December, 1967, issue of Current History: "The Soviet Union challenged the West and its interests in the area ... Israel accepted the challenge ... (and) prevented ... a second Vietnam."

Tarsi faulted the Soviet Union.

"The U.S.A.'s support of Israel all the time has come after Russian support of Egypt. And the support by America is for the creation of an armament balance in the Middle East."

In the same issue of Current History, Prof. Harry N. Howard of American University wrote: "The United States, rightly or wrongly, gave the impression of identifying American interest with that of Israel, infuriated Arab nationalists, dismayed the more moderate pro-Western 'friends' of the United States in the Arab world, and may have put in jeopardy its long-standing cultural and economic interests, to say nothing of its more recent politico-strategic interests in the Middle East."

Casas said he believes the Soviet Union does not want the war in the Mideast. "As a matter of fact," he says, "she voted in favor of Israel at the time of Israel's declaration." Tarsi acknowledges this but adds, "Since Israel has rejected the Russians' influence in her territory, Russia turns to the Arabs."

Casas mentions the "moral support" the two superpowers are providing the disputants and says, "The U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. are the only ones that are able either to impose the peace or to find a solution for the present problems."

Neither the November 1967 resolution of the United Nations nor the four-power conference has brought peace to the area.

Tarsi says that only the parties involved in the fighting can make peace.

"France and Britain have no right to tell us what we should do," Tarsi said.

"But the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. have the right because of the economic involvement."

Tarsi agrees with his government's rejection of the U.N. proposal. "Accepting the U.N. resolutions is a return to the same position as we had before the war. The November 1967 U.N. resolution, like the other resolutions drawn since, doesn't work. It just condemns either Israel or the Arab nations."

U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee March 27: "... It is all too clear that if another war should break out, it carries with it the risk of outside involvement." He said the U.N. resolution "will be the bedrock of our policy." Casas thinks the U.N. solution is a good one.

The resolution proposed by Britain and adopted by the Security Council, calls for the withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab territories and an end to all belligerency. It asks the Secretary General to designate a special representative to the

Washington Evening Star

Cooling it in the Middle East

Middle East. The resolution affirmed the necessity for guaranteeing freedom of navigation through international waterways, achieving a just settlement of the refugee problem and "guaranteeing the territorial inviolability and political independency of every state in the area."

Casas and Tarsi agree that Egypt and Israel can get together and settle the problems.

"But, Tarsi says, 'There is a problem. The Arabs don't accept the existence of Israel. They don't face reality.'"

Casas says he favors indirect negotiation. "Accepting the fact of Israel gives me a bad conscience, but Israel is there and my conscience doesn't solve the problems," he says.

There is no reliable report on the exact number of Palestinian refugees.

The New York Times of Sept. 27, 1968, said 1,464,269 refugees were registered with the U.N. Relief Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees (UNRWA). Not all refugees are registered with UNRWA. In 1948, the time of Israel's birth, there were 650,000 refugees.

Prof. John B. Wolf of the State University of New York wrote: "Essentially, the Arab refugee problem differs from many other refugee problems because the passing of almost 20 years and the evolution of a new generation of refugees within the camps have intensified rather than modified its impacts."

Wolf wrote: "Life in the refugee camps is miserable ... overcrowded conditions necessitate strict compliance with regulations designed to prevent epidemics and pestilence ... Dwellings constructed of mud-brick or concrete block, in which up to five members of a family share one small room are standard accommodations ... The refugee's food ration, consisting entirely of dry foodstuffs at a cost of four cents for each individual a day."

Casas says, "Egypt is too overpopulated to accept all refugees, Jordan doesn't have enough resources and Lebanon is too small." He says the refugees should be divided among the countries involved in the war.

Tarsi says, "The refugees should be given the right to immigrate to any country that they want. But if all of them want to immigrate to Israel because of her better living condition, it makes the solution impossible. In that case they should be divided among the countries involved in the war."

"It takes three to four generations to solve the 'mentality' problem which exist among the Arabs against Israel," Tarsi said. "But to start negotiation today is better than tomorrow."

Trainer unsung hero

He's probably the most unheralded hero of any successful athletic program. The hard-working lineman? Wrong. The basketball player who passes up the good shots to set up his teammate with the better shot? Wrong again; he's the trainer whose knowledge and skills can often determine a season's outcome.

Bob Spackman, (below), SIU head trainer since 1957, is an assistant professor in physical education as well as an author.

Countless rolls of tape have unwound through the skillful hands of Spackman and assistant Ed Dirks, (above), to aid athletes in all sports to function in the best possible way.

Spackman graduated from West Chester State College in Pennsylvania and earned his Masters degree in physical education at SIU. He has published books entitled, "Baseball," "Two-Man Iso-metrics Exercise Program for the Whole Body," "Conditioning for Baseball," and "Conditioning for Football."

Colleges outline moratorium plans

Northwestern University

Moratorium plans have not yet been finalized at Northwestern, although certain definite activities have been set, it was learned.

Two movies, "Year of the Pig," and "War Game" will be shown at 8 p.m. today through Saturday and at 1 and 4 p.m. Thursday.

In addition, various seminars and panel discussions will focus on different aspects on the war and violence in general. Speakers will include Don Peterson, head of the Wisconsin delegation to the Democratic National Convention; William Kunstler, defense lawyer in the Conspiracy 7 trial; and D.S. Fleming, professor emeritus of international relations at Vanderbilt University.

A candlelight parade has been planned, and on Saturday, 11 Evanston area high schools will be represented in a march converging on the First Methodist Church of Evanston.

Approximately 200 Northwestern students will go to Washington.

Northern Illinois University

Moratorium activities will begin at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in Dekalb with a torchlight parade through the campus and the community. The Student Mobilization Union Committee, the sponsor of the parade, is also calling for a Friday class boycott, and will picket two lecture halls on campus trying to gain support for the movement.

In addition to passing out leaflets, the SMUC will hold a send-off rally at 2 p.m. Friday for the estimated 80 students who will be attending the activities in Washington. The Northern Star, NIU's campus newspaper reported.

University of Illinois-Chicago Circle

A wide range of activities are planned at Chicago Circle, the Chicago Illini, the student newspaper, said.

On Thursday, the Committee to End the War in Vietnam will petition the university's board of trustees to shut down the campus for the weekend. A noon rally at the main dining room will feature a variety of speakers, including Tom Owens, a "busted" GI; Robert Lucas, a member of the Coalition for United Community Action;

Egyptian in error

The two-hour special highlighting how area residents view the proposed auto liability laws was aired on WSIU-TV last Sunday and not this coming Sunday as reported in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

The program, which polled residents of Boston and Carbondale, concerned the legislative action to take the "fault" out of automobile accident damage claims.

**"Reps" is "Tomorrow" in the Telugu dialect of India.

Visit the Colonel independent city alderman Sammy Rayner; and speakers from the Young Lords and SDS. If possible, Cesar Chavez and a member of the Conspiracy 7 trial will also address the gathering.

On Friday, a rally at the Amphitheater will feature speakers from the Black Panthers, the Young Socialist Forum, the student government and the Committee to End the War in Vietnam. A boycott of classes has been called for, and a group will march to Grant Park to support the approximately 200 students from CC who will be going to Washington.

Illinois State University

Illinois State University plans to send no students to the moratorium activities in Washington D.C. A previously scheduled march for protest against the war had been planned for 7 p.m. Friday night, but due to a clash between the Moratorium committee and SDS, the march has been called off.

Other activities included a debate on the Vietnam war Wednesday with a "Fireside chat" following.

Bradley University

Little activity is planned at Bradley, with the bulk of Moratorium activity to be centered in Peoria itself, the Bradley Scout reported. According to the Scout, the campus activities and the trip to Washington have not been well organized, and there is no estimation on how many will be making the trip.

Western Illinois University

On Thursday night the president of the university, Bernard Burnhart, will speak out against the Vietnam war in Hansen Field, the football stadium. Following his speech will be a candlelight procession scheduled to remain on campus.

On Friday morning a non-denominational service will be held in the form of an open mass.

Various workshops will be held on Friday. Student government on campus is backing the movement entirely. Vietnam Information Centers will be set up to bring the issues closer to the students.

Later Friday, a rally will be held for the approximately 100 people going to Washington, D.C. There will be a car caravan to Chicago and the students will then board a Chicago Peace Council bus to Washington.

University of Wisconsin

According to the Daily Cardinal, Wisconsin's student newspaper, activities on the Madison campus will be few, due to the fact that over 2500 students will be traveling to Washington. In addition, a number of the townspeople will make the trip.

Boycotts will be held on Thursday and Friday though, as well as teach-ins and workshops. An estimated 85 per cent of the student body boycotted classes for the first Moratorium, and the Cardinal said that a similar percentage of absenteeism is expected this time.

No marches or demonstrations are planned.

University of Missouri at Columbia

The University of Missouri at Columbia plans to send at least 150 students to Washington. Activities on campus are confined to a peace vigil which will last the 48 hours of the protest. During this time, a peace torch, guarded by police, round-the-clock, will be kept lit as a symbol of the protest.

The vigil and memorial service is scheduled to start at 9 p.m. Thursday. There will be a rally on Sunday evening at 6 p.m. to welcome home the students who participated in the Moratorium. The students will travel by bus, which is scheduled to leave at 10 p.m. Thursday night.

University of Evansville

Although no move has been made to boycott classes at Evansville, the Evansville Peace Fellowship has organized a torchlight parade to begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday. The parade will begin on campus and end at the Federal Building in Evansville where a short peace service will be held and the names of former Evansville graduates who have been killed in Vietnam will be read.

Pennsylvania Ave. open to Viet protesters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government agreed Tuesday to compromise and allow anti-war protesters to use part of Pennsylvania Avenue for a massive demonstration this Saturday.

The agreement was announced by Mayor Walter E. Washington and Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, who declared last Thursday that "under no circumstances," could the Pennsylvania Avenue route be used.

The agreement followed several days of virtually continuous negotiations with sponsors of the march. It provides for the procession to proceed down the traditional parade avenue from the Capitol as far as 15th Street and from there to the grounds of the Washington Monument for a rally climaxing three days of anti-war activities.

This route makes no provision for a swing by the White House—one point that the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam had demanded.

Kleindienst and Washington also said the government agreed to the route after the New Mobilization Committee provided enough parade marshals to ensure order during the mammoth march, which is expected to attract about 200,000 in what could be the biggest antiwar protest in history.

Under terms of the agreement the committee will provide 2,000 parade marshals to keep demonstrators on the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue and another 500 marshals to keep crowds away from government buildings on the other side of the thoroughfare.

Meanwhile, a small advance party from the 82nd Airborne Division flew here from Ft. Bragg, N.C., to prepare for possible movement of paratroopers to the capital in connection with the weekend demonstrations.

Moratorium plans

Washington University (St. Louis)

An estimated 500 persons from Washington University in St. Louis will be taking part in Washington activities, with buses leaving either Thursday or Friday.

A classroom boycott has been called, and light class attendance is expected. Protests will take place at the Army Induction Center, McDonald-Douglass Aircraft and the Federal Building. A Thursday march from 12th and Washington St. in St. Louis will end at the Gateway arch, where several speakers, including Mrs. Coretta King, Hal Gibbons of the International Teamsters Union and possibly Sen. George McGovern will address the crowd at the riverfront.

Leaflets will also be distributed in the community.

St. Louis University

Reports from St. Louis University say that students will be going to Washington, although no estimates of how many were given.

According to the student newspaper, students not going to Washington are being urged to attend the Riverfront gathering.

Why Are You A Poor Talker?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed to anyone who requests it. ## Professor's textbook published for use in Mexico's colleges

The first edition of a Spanish-language agricultural economics textbook by Herman M. Haag, SIU professor of agricultural industries, is off the press in hard covers for use in Mexico's colleges and universities.

Titled "El Mercadeo de Los Productos Agropecuarios," it is a 410-page textbook on the marketing of agricultural products in Mexico. It was printed under the editorial direction of Limusa-Wiley of Mexico City. Collaborating with Haag in an editorial capacity on the book is Jose Soto Angli of Mexico, an agricultural economist with a master's degree from Purdue University.

Haag prepared some of the material for the textbook while teaching agricultural marketing for seven months at the Monterey Institute of Technology in 1966.

At Sigma Delta Chi convention

Staff writers active in student press panel

Three Daily Egyptian staff writers will represent the SDX chapter of Sigma Delta Chi (SDX), professional journalistic society, at the 60th national convention being held this week in San Diego, Calif. SIU was one of five universities and colleges asked to participate on a student press panel at the convention.

Wayne Markham, SIU chapter president of SDX, will present a report on SIU's experimental press council, which was set up last year.

The press council, designed to study The Daily Egyptian, is believed to be the first of its kind established on a campus press level.

Invitations offered to foreign students

International students at SIU are invited to spend Thanksgiving holidays with families in area communities.

Several students will be guests of Fairfield families, Nov. 26-30. Receptions, farm trips and sight-seeing tours have been arranged for the visitors.

Families in Carbondale, Carterville, Herrin and Marion have extended invitations for a Thanksgiving dinner, according to the committee of international hospitality of the International Student Services.

Mrs. Mary Gray, committee chairman, urges international students to sign up for the Thanksgiving program at her office in Woody Hall.

The other schools represented will be Wayne State University, San Francisco State College, University of Florida and San Diego State College.

Also attending the convention from SIU will be staff writers Norris Jones and Nathan Jones.

SIU was one of three universities on the SDX national board of director's student advisory committee this year. Markham, who served on the committee, will participate in the concluding banquet of the convention which precedes the appointment of next year's student advisory panel.

SIU agricultural scientists publish two research articles

Two SIU agricultural scientists are authors of research articles appearing in recent issues of scientific journals.

Stanley Nemec, a plant pathologist with the Federal Small Fruits Research Station, had an article on "Sporulation and Identification of Fungi Isolated from Root Rot-Diseased Strawberry Plants" in the October issue of Phytopathology.

George Waring, assistant professor of animal industries and zoology, had an article on "The Unvoiced Warning and Investigative Sounds of the Pronghorn" published in the Journal of Mammalogy. Waring's research interest is in interpreting sounds of animals.

Featured speakers for the four-day convention will be Julian Bond, Georgia state legislator who has risen to national political prominence; Fletcher Knebel, former Washington reporter and co-author of "Seven Days in May;" Merriman Smith, United Press International Washington correspondent, and Marvin Kalb, CBS Washington reporter.

Pilot sees philosophical side of flying

Editor's Note - Darrell Aharin, Daily Egyptian Staff Writer, was sent up, up, into the air above Carbondale Saturday as a guest of the SIU Saluki Flying Club. His reactions to being "up there" follow.

By Darrell Aharin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale looked pretty good Saturday afternoon. The autumn colors mixed with the rooftops, the countryside was divided into a patchwork pattern. Don't remember the view? You would if you were 2000 feet straight up.

Flying is more than a hobby or a pastime, it becomes a part of a person after awhile, said Ross Logan, a graduate student and a member of the SIU Saluki Flying Club.

Logan has been a licensed pilot for a year and was at the controls of the two-seated Cessna 150 Saturday. Periodically his attention would turn from the many dials and switches before him and focus on the philosophical side of flying.

"It's a great feeling to be high in the air. It is such a free feeling. Also it is weird sometimes to be able to have such control over your environment," Logan said.

But before a flier can experience that "free feeling" there are a number of technical steps that must be taken.

The first step in preparing to fly a plane involves an on-the-ground inspection of the plane's external apparatus. Wing flaps are checked for free movement and the leading edge of the propeller is checked for cracks.

After seatbelts are in place, the plane taxis to the runway. Several safety checks are made on the way. The dials and knobs have to be tested and checked so that no problems will turn up while airborne.

Then, after the checks and rechecks, the plane races down the runway and gradually streaks upward. That "free feeling" is now in effect.

One important item to remember while in the sky is to watch out for other planes, Logan said. This sounds simple, but in small planes, it is an important procedure.

A question that usually comes up concerns parachutes aboard the plane. Logan said that a plane such as the Cessna 150 is so safe that parachutes are not needed. If engine trouble developed, the plane would have enough time to glide to a suitable landing spot.

Logan added that accidents with this type of plane are rare.

After minds have been eased, Logan said, he usually gives his passengers a turn at the controls. Actually it is not as bad as it sounds.

Pull back the yoke, the plane goes up. Push in on the yoke and the plane goes down. Simple enough, but the inexperienced pilot should not get carried away with his new power. The dials, switches, magnetos and arrows still merit some attention.

After the plane was back in capable hands, Logan demonstrated some of the basic maneuvers that pilots perform in order to get their license. Power-on and power-off stalls, right and left banks and pin-point landings are just a few of them.

Back on terra firma, Logan explained that the Saluki Flying Club is open to students, staff and faculty. No flying knowledge or experience is necessary to join the club. Logan said most members are working on their pilot's license through the club.

Club members pay dues quarterly and are entitled to discounts on plane rental rates from the Southern Illinois Airport. The club has executive use of two planes owned by SIU, a Cessna 150 and 172.

'Contemporary Japan' topic of public lectures

C. Harvey Gardiner, research professor of history at SIU, will give three public lectures on "Contemporary Japan," at 8 p.m., Nov. 18, Dec. 2 and Dec. 9, in Room 221, Lawson Hall.

Gardiner, who was a Fullbright exchange professor in Japan last year, will talk on "Contemporary Japan: Society and Education" in the first lecture, in which he will deal with the problems of Japanese universities, and the urbanization of Japanese cities.

"Contemporary Japan: the Economic Miracle" will be the second topic. Gardiner will explain how Japan has risen from a ruined economy after the world war to become a country with the second highest gross national product in the free world.

In the third speech, "Contemporary Japan: Politics and Policies," the SIU professor will discuss the political parties in Japan and their policies dealing with economic, social, and foreign affairs. Emphasis will be placed on Japanese positions in reference to Communist China, Vietnam, Okinawa, and military presence of the United States in Japan.

The first lecture will be sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, and the College of Education.

A second straight undefeated season and another Big Ten championship are just two games away for Ohio State, back in the nation's top slot this week. However, the opposition will be the two strongest challengers, Purdue and Michigan. The life-ranked Boilermakers face the Buckeyes this week in what is also a do-or-die game for Purdue as far as the Rose Bowl is concerned. Having already lost to Michigan, the Riveters must win. The difference in power quotients, however, gives Ohio the edge. — Mike A. Coyne.

Missouri. . . Kansas State by just two.

9th-ranked U.C.L.A. and 11th-ranked Southern Cal have just one warm-up game remaining before their major confrontation on November 4th. The Uclans will shell Oregon Saturday by thirty points, and the Trojans will blast Washington by 27.

Two other powers that are prepping for a major battle at a later date (December 6th) are Texas, #2, and Arkansas, #4. Both are undefeated and tied for the top spot in the Southwest Conference... both will continue to win. The Razorbacks will beat S.M.U. by 18 points, and the Longhorns will bounce I.C.H. by twenty-five.

10th-ranked Penn State, with a certain bowl bid in its vest pocket, will defeat Maryland by 32. Notre Dame, #5, goes South for a visit and will up-end Georgia Tech b 23.

Back in the Big 8, the Missouri Tigers, 8th in the country and tied for 1st in the conference, will be too tough for Iowa State, winning by 24. 6th-ranked L.S.U. will barge by; Mississippi State by 24, while Michigan, #12, will try to forget about Ohio State next week and concentrate on Iowa. The Wolverines will win by 20 points.

Athletes, coaches confront student rights

By Paul Carson
Copley News Service

Campus confrontation between students and administrators has reached the football field. Coaches seem just as perplexed as college presidents in deciding how to deal with the problem.

Actually, the differences between black college football players and coaches have not been violent. No one has occupied a football stadium, nor burned down a locker room. And it is true the issues are not new; some have existed for years.

But never before has the public been so exposed to the sometimes ugly infighting between athletes who feel certain rights have been denied them and coaches who insist on maintaining discipline.

Perhaps the most publicized episodes have occurred at the University of Wyoming, where coach Lloyd Eaton bounced 14 black athletes from his unbeaten squad; Washington, where four black players were suspended; and the University of Indiana, where 10 of 14 black athletes were dismissed by coach Johnny Pont despite the Hoosier bid for a Rose Bowl berth.

More than a few alumni of these and other schools are troubled because neighboring colleges and universities seem able to handle problems which on the surface are similar to the difficulties encountered at Wyoming and Washington.

The problem at Wyoming didn't involve the team itself. It arose when black footballers wore armbands on their street clothes when they appeared at the athletic office for a meeting with Eaton.

They wanted to protest what they regarded as racial discrimination at Brigham Young University, a fellow member of the Western Athletic Conference (WAC). They were dismissed for violating school regulations by wearing black armbands despite Eaton's objections.

Six of the Negro athletes were starters, three on offense and three on defense. Somewhat ironically, the all-white Wyoming survivors routed Brigham Young, 41-7, but were soundly trounced by Arizona State University of the WAC, 30-14. The Arizona team used as many as 10 black athletes as starters, and the top rusher and receiver in the game were Negroes.

Why hasn't the problem of black dissidents surfaced at more schools?

One main reason is coaches and athletic directors, anticipating trouble, opened the door to all players to give them the opportunity to talk over problems.

As one administrator put it, a coach can paint himself into a corner by threatening dismissal of the athletes if they violate regulations. To maintain discipline, it becomes necessary to carry out the threat even if the violation is relatively mild.

Another WAC coach—and he is not alone in college football—tried a different method and thus far it has worked. He told his black players there was no objection to protesting BYU policies on campus, but they could not expect to avoid discipline if they carried their demonstration to the clubhouse or playing field any more than a white athlete lobbying for the Students for a Democratic Society or some other group.

There is really not much difference between the latter policy, as carried out by Frank Kush of Arizona State, and Eaton. But the dialogue and the recognition of the right of the students to dissent seemed a major selling point to the young men.

One administrator who declined to be identified said these coaches who tried to exercise discipline over players on a "yes" or "no" basis were living in the past, failing to recognize the change in educational patterns and in the students themselves.

"You simply can't give orders without explaining why you are doing what you are doing," he said. "These men are different from those of 20 or 30 years ago. They want to know why."

The same official stressed that this did not mean a breakdown in discipline on the playing field. Discipline is an absolute must in team or individual sports, just as in self-discipline, and frivolous demands can't be granted, whether the athlete be white or black.

Lack of experience, size hurts cagers

By Bob Richards
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An obvious height problem and a lack of playing experience are the only problems facing this year's SIU basketball team, according to Coach Jack Hartman. Six returning lettermen including two starters and a talented group of sophomores and junior college transfers have been working with Hartman to build a winning team.

The first question of most Saluki fans this year is when senior forward Bruce Butchko will be available for full time duty. The husky six-foot seven-inch Butchko, a starter the last two years, tore some cartilage in pre-season workouts and had an operation on his knee in early October to remove the damaged tissue.

Always a fine shooter and rebounder, Butchko had been expected to be able to play by the Dec. 2 opener with Texas-Arlington but now it is doubtful he will see action before January.

Facing their toughest schedule yet, the Salukis have been working to offset the loss of regulars Dickie Garrett, Willie Griffin and Chuck Benson who helped SIU to a 16-9 season and a berth in the National Invitational Tournament, won by the 1967 Salukis.

Pointing toward the December games which include four home contests before Christmas, Hartman has a tentative lineup set, consisting of Juarez Rosborough (6-5) at center, Tom McBride (6-4) and L.C. Brasfield (6-4) at forwards and Rex Barker (6-0) and Bobby Eldridge (6-3) at guards.

Hartman did indicate that sophomore John Garrett could be put in at guard with Eldridge moving to a forward spot. Garrett averaged 26.2 points per game on last year's freshman team.

"I think we are going to be a good basketball team," said Hartman. "We have real problems height wise but we will offset this with quickness, but to what degree I'm not sure."

The key to a faster offense will be Southern's ability to move the ball off the defensive boards which will require key rebounding by the SIU front line.

Greg Starrick, a transfer from the University of Kentucky, and Sam Gowers, a junior college transfer from Chicago, will both become available for duty Jan. 2. Starrick was an All-America high school player at Marion high school.

Of the five tentative starters mentioned by Hartman, Barker is the only man with steady playing experience. The six-foot guard from Norris City appeared in 23 games last year, averaging 7.2 points a game while sharing the backcourt duties with Dick Garrett. "As a senior he has experience and I know he'll give us a good season," commented Hartman.

Rosborough, a native of Houston, Texas, logged limited playing time last year but played a consistent game as he scored 51 points and grabbed 42 rebounds in 18 games.

"He knows the game well," said Hartman about his center, "and he's a real good jumper and has quickness." Rosborough isn't real big and will be going against bigger men in many games according to Hartman.

Brasfield and McBride, both six-foot-four, could give SIU some rebounding strength but once again they will face height disadvantages against several opponents. McBride has rebounded well on the defensive boards in practice and Brasfield is a good shooter and jumper with a good attitude, according to Hartman.

Eldridge, a transfer from Robert Morris Junior College, is called a rugged, hard-working competitor by his coach.

Pre-season hopes had also been placed on Mike Hessick, six-foot 10-inch center from New Athens. Hessick, red shirted last year, needs improvement in quickness and jumping according to Hartman. "I've been somewhat disappointed with his (Hessick's) development. He hasn't developed to the point where he should be," Hartman said.

Other strength is expected to come from returning letter winner Terry Buhs (6-3), as well as sophomores Marvin Brooks (6-5), Stan Powles (6-8), and Steve Wilson (6-4).

Saluki cage fans will have their first look at the 1969-70 edition Nov. 20 when the varsity seeks to avenge last year's 58-57 defeat by the freshmen. The varsity-trosh contest is slated to begin at 8 p.m.

Following the opener with Texas-Arlington, SIU will host Iowa Dec. 6; California State at Los Angeles, Dec. 11; and San Diego State, Dec. 20 before competing in the Carolina Classic, Dec. 29-30. The Salukis will be at Wisconsin Dec. 13.

Hartman said this year's club will be tough defensively in keeping with past Southern teams. Named "Coach of the Year" by the Sporting News, following SIU's spectacular win at the NIT in 1967, Hartman has compiled a won-lost record of 131-54 since taking the helm at SIU in 1962.

"We will be fun to watch," said Hartman, who was quite pleased with early ticket sales.

"It is real encouraging to know the fans are behind us," said Hartman. "I hope we can give them the type of team equal to their interests."

Cats and Dogs

Rex Barker (12) will be the only mainstay in the lineup when SIU opens play Dec. 2, against Texas-Arlington. Barker, who shared backcourt duties with Dickie Garrett (22) last year, averaged 7.2 points a game in the 16-9 Saluki campaign. Garrett, now playing for the Los Angeles Lakers, is expected to be replaced by junior-college transfer, Bobby Eldridge. (Photo by John Lopinot)

Soccer Club faces tough game

The SIU International Soccer Club is bracing for its toughest opponent of the year Saturday as they prepare to face the University of Illinois-Circle Campus in Chicago.

Southern may be handicapped in the game through the probable losses of Max Keshkevarz, Firemon Kasato and Neil Zimmerman who will not be available for action this week.

Circle Campus held Illinois-Champaign to a 0-0 tie last week and earlier lost to SIU-Edwardsville 3-1. SIU-Edwardsville is currently ranked sixth in the nation with a 10-0-1 record.

The Salukis moved their record to 3-1 Saturday with a 6-2 win over Kentucky. The trend was set early as SIU took a 3-0 lead after 15 minutes.

Leading the scoring spree were Ian Beattie, who scored on a 30-yard shot, and Neil Zimmerman, who smashed in a rebound.

Ali Mozafarian appeared fully recovered from his leg injury and scored on a 13-yard penalty kick for the 3-0 lead and added another goal as the first quarter ended, making it 4-0.

Kentucky broke the ice midway through the second period on a penalty kick. Solid defensive play on both sides kept the score 4-1 at the half.

SIU inserted its entire reserve unit in the second half with the exception of first year man George Ramsey. The reserves tallied making it 5-1 but a Kentucky player took a corner kick and scored on SIU with a well-executed head shot to cut the lead to 5-2.

Jim Bell scored SIU's final goal towards the end of the third period when he took a pass from the middle and put in a left-footed unassisted shot.

Kentucky was unimpressive compared to the Wildcat team that tied SIU 2-2 last spring but the game did allow most members of the team a chance to gain playing experience.

Saluki Sailing Club sweeps past three schools in regatta

The Southern Illinois Collegiate Sailing Club sailed away with their own trophies in a regatta held last Saturday on Crab Orchard Lake.

The local club took the regatta trophy with 10 points while Notre Dame took second with 20 points. Ball State scored 22 points and SIU-Edwardsville was last with 26 points.

Members of the local sailing club took individual honors as low point A and B team skippers. Bob Hunsaker with Conrad Morris as crew skippered the A team. Dan LeCocq with his brother Jerry LeCocq as crew skippered the B team.

Hunsaker and Dan LeCocq are entered in eliminations for the Timmie Angstein Memorial Regatta to be held November 29-30 in Belmont Harbor at Chicago.

Four teams survive playoffs in flag football championships

Four teams were still in the running following quarter final games Monday in the intramural flag football tournament.

Getting within two games of the championship trophy were Theta Xi, with a 32-0 rout of Ivy Hall; VTI, victorious 19-12 over Bachelors III; Leo's on a 6-0 shut out of the Saints; and The Rat Hole, who eliminated Phi Kappa Tau, 20-6.

In Tuesday's semi-final matches, VTI was pitted against Leo's while The Rat Hole squared off with Theta Xi.

The winners will play for the championship Sunday afternoon with the losers battling for third place on another field. Trophies will be given to the top three teams.

Tribute to SIU great
