Law students part company with GSC

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Law students have voted to pull out of the Graduate Student Council.

Stan Irvin, law school representative to the GSC, said 142 students voted in favor of withdrawing from the GSC, 33 voted against the move. There are 250 law students and 177 voted on Monday.

The main problem between the GSC and the law students has been the distribution of fees. Law students recommended that two boards be established, while Gary Brown, GSC president, recommended a "student development concept" which would have given graduate student groups in the various schools and colleges money to use as they see fit. A resolution to accept Brown's proposal was passed at last Wednesday's GSC meeting.

Irvin said Student Bar Association President Jim Rodgers sent a letter to Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, informing him of the law students' decision. According to Irvin, the SBA will approach the Board of Trustees and ask for student constituency status.

Irvin said actions at last Wednesday's GSC meeting prompted the action to withdraw.

"I entered last Wednesday's meeting hoping to work out an objective compromise, but actions of Gary, Ricardo Caballero-Aquino and a few graduate representatives changed my mind," Irvin said.

"They wouldn't even listen."

Although the law students may gain constituency status and may be able to control their own monies, the law students will lose five representatives and voting rights on the GSC. Until they gain constituency status, law students will still be required to pay $5.25 per person per semester to the GSC.

The law students withdrew from the GSC for four reasons, according to a letter from the law student representatives to the GSC.

The letter states "law students contribute more to the GSC budget on a per student basis than do graduate students. Law school programs have not been funded because the GSC refuses to recognize the worth of golf tournaments, banquets, newsletters, and the moot court team, amongst other projects. The GSC gives prime funding consideration to conference travel for graduate students and to campus-wide speakers."

Six nominees selected

F-Senate concedes to Shaw

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

After nearly 45 minutes of debate, the Faculty Senate approved a resolution Tuesday accepting Chancellor Kenneth Shaw's request for six nominees for the Presidential Search Committee.

By approving the resolution, the senate came in conflict with its policy which states that the number of nominations submitted must be equal to the number of vacancies to be filled. The senate has three positions on the search committee, but Shaw requested six names from which he will select three.

It was stressed both in the resolution and by members of the senate that the resolution represented an exception and would not constitute a precedent for future nomination procedures.

Eugene Dybvig, chairman of the Radio-Television Department said, "I hope our position is strongly enough stated so there will never be a need for another discussion like this. Everyone must realize that our rule has worked. It is here for a purpose and accomplishes its purpose."

However, Herbert Donow, former president of the senate, said that to accept the resolution would destroy continuity of the senate's decisions.

"We adopted the policy four years ago and it had been reinforced since because we felt the Faculty Senate is a responsible body," Donow said. "It rests on a notion of respect. This exception is not consistent with that notion of respect. The chancellor understood from the beginning that the Faculty Senate's policy should be respected."

Joanne Paine, chairwoman of the Committee on Committees, agreed that the senate's policy was not new. She said Shaw was fully aware of it when he established the search guidelines.

"We didn't go the the chancellor with requests that were new," Paine said. "I don't see us as confronting him but because of the rejection of our policy—he is confronting us."

Some senate members also expressed fear that Shaw would reject all three of the nominees and the senate would not be represented on the committee.

The senate selected the six nominees for the committee, which will be submitted to Shaw on Wednesday. The names of the nominees will be ranked according to Senate preference in keeping with a suggestion made by Shaw when the policy conflict arose.

University police announced Tuesday plans to crack down on violations of bicycle rules and regulations due to an increase in bike accidents and parking and operating violations.

Police Community Relations Officer Mike Norrington said the biggest problem has been a recent rash of irresponsible operation of bicycles on campus. At least two serious bicycle accidents have occurred in the past week and both included injury to pedestrians, he added.

"The typical bicyclist operates as if he were a mobilized pedestrian and that's wrong," Norrington said.

University police have been instructed to watch closely for violations. Lt. Marvin Brazwell of University police said. The fine for a moving violation is $5 and the fine for a bicycle parking violation are $3.

University regulations covering the operation of bicycles on campus comply with the Illinois Vehicle Code. If a cyclist is given a ticket for a violation of the code, he may be fined $35 or more, Norrington added.

"The overwhelming majority of bicyclists know "hat the regulations are," Norrington said. "Enforcement is going to be our answer to these violations."

Norrington said students should read Sections 11-101, 11-102 and 11-103 of the Motor Vehicle and Bicycle Regulations for the corresponding laws on bicycle safety. The sections deal with proper courtesy and defensive riding which all bicyclists are required to practice.

Bicycles are being illegally parked in areas that block sidewalks and doorways which causes problems for handicapped and blind students, Norrington said. The only legal place for a bike to be parked on campus is in a bike rack or an area specifically designated for bicycle parking.

Police have the authority to cut either the lock or chain on a bike and impound it along with issuing a ticket, Norrington said. An additional fine of $3 is assessed to recover a bike that has been impounded.

Chain fences that border many of the sidewalks on campus are not designated areas for bike parking, Norrington said police will be ticketing bikes parked by these fences in the near future.

Research funds triple in 10 years

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The total amount of funds received at SIUC for faculty research and training projects has more than tripled in the last 10 years from $6.5 million to $20.5 million, according to Ed Kelsey, assistant director of the Office of Research Development and Administration.

"We've been on a pretty steady increase now for the past 10 years, which is a reflection on the increase in the amount of research faculty members are conducting," he said.

Kelsey said the increase also reflects the amount of administrative support on campus for research projects and that "this support is spreading throughout the campus."

"In the last four or five years, administrators have not only cooperated with the faculty in research activities but have also encouraged them in many ways. Research wouldn't be possible without the willingness of the administration to release these faculty members so they could have the time to conduct the research," he said.

Kelsey also said that a recent announcement by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw to continue an emphasis on research was helpful.

"This is where the support has to come from—the central administration—and we're glad to hear Shaw is going to be supportive of it," he said.

The funding received for research comes from both federal and state government and from various private industries, Kelsey said.

According to a breakdown of the funds received in fiscal year 1979, 121 grants and contracts worth $14.7 million were received from agencies within the federal government, and 116

Lewis Park plans conversions

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Lewis Park Apartments management may convert 189 two-bedroom apartments to four-bedroom units if the city approves.

The conversion of the apartments, which were originally designed to have four bedrooms when the housing complex was constructed in 1972, is planned for completion by the spring semester of this school year—if the city agrees the conversion of these units would not violate a 1973 agreement between the City and the owners of Lewis

Park at that time.

City Manager Carroll Fry said either he would decide if Lewis Park management will be allowed to convert, or he would send the issue to the Carbondale City Council.

"It is not in our interest to discuss an issue that is in the working stage," he said. Fry said he was quite sure the matter would be taken to the council.

City Attorney George Kiriakos, in a recommendation to City Manager Carroll Fry, interpreted the facts of the conversion as follows:

—In 1973, the owners of Lewis Park Apartments had four-bedroom apartments, which were allegedly illegal under a city zoning ordinance in effect at that time.

—After complaints from the landlord division of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, the Lewis Park owners agreed to convert the 789 apartments back to two-bedroom apartments in exchange for immunity from the city from the alleged zoning violations.

King, Queen election voided; re-election set for Thursday

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

The Homecoming King and Queen election held Monday has been found invalid, and a re-election will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday in the main solicitation area of the Student Center.

Complaints about an unpublicized voting at the Southern Illinois Airport were the reason for calling the re-election, Homecoming Chairwomen Theresa Peters said Tuesday. "There were discrepancies in the voting," Peters said, "so we're going to run it all over."

Only the Monday election will have to be repeated, and the same nine finalists selected last Thursday in the preliminary vote are still in the running.

In the Monday election, a voting booth was set-up in the Student Center, as well as one in the Communications Building and at the Southern Illinois Airport.

The booths at the Communications Building and the airport were staffed by members of student organizations other than the Student Programming Committee, she said.

"There was a mix-up in my committee as to who can and can't man voting booths," Peters said.

She said that she didn't know it was against any rules to have non-Homecoming Committee members operate the voting booths.

On Thursday the Homecoming King and Queen voting booth will be in the Student Center only, and only Homecoming Committee members will operate it, she said.

Citizens voice objections to rezoning for housing

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Residents from the Kent Drive and Chautauqua Road area of Carbondale addressed the City Council Monday to air their objections to rezoning an area of Carbondale from agriculture to planned unit development.

Ira Parrish, a developer in Carbondale, requested the rezoning of 64 acres of land on Chautauqua Road, near Tower Road, so he can initiate engineering plans for a 200-unit, middle-income housing complex.

James "Randy" Moore, attorney for residents in the Chautauqua Road and Kent Drive area who are opposed to rezoning, said the citizens are concerned about the drainage, sewage, water and traffic in this area.

"All of the people on Chautauqua will tell you that they don't have adequate water pressure," Moore said. The sanitary sewers are another tremendous problem. The septic tanks in the area are not feasible.

Carroll J. Fry, city manager, said it was "ridiculous to ask for answers to these questions now. Fry said plans had already started for resolving some of the existing problems in this area.

"Single family zoning is the highest use of the land. The question of the use of the land, not everything else, needs to be decided."

Fry said he agreed that the current policy does not require enough information of developers requesting a zoning change.

Robert Schulhof, attorney for Parrish, told the council that the time to look at the plans for the development is after the area is rezoned and the developer has the chance and money to prepare the plans.

"The questions are important to the citizens and they should be answered, but not now," Schulhof said Tuesday.

Schulhof said the decision to rezone or not rezone this land should be made only on the question of whether it is good land and use.

The council is scheduled to decide on the request at its formal meeting Monday.

In other council action, the city agreed to accept the Carnivale '79 plans proposed by the SIUC Undergraduate Student Organization. Office of Student Development and Towne Central.

Council members agreed to: -close South Illinois Avenue from College Street to Walnut Street from 7 p.m. Oct. 27 to 4 a.m. Oct. 28;

-amend the city code to allow "approved organizations" to operate booths without requiring solicitation permits;

-amend the ordinance providing an 8 p.m. closing time for solicitors so that booths can operate until 4 a.m.; and

-extend hours for liquor sales for the event until 4 a.m.

The "approved organizations" were defined as those recognized student organizations that obtained permission to have a booth from the Undergraduate Student Organization.

Groups that are not approved by the USO can receive a solicitation permit from the City Clerk's office, the council decided. Cost is $10 per person to operate a booth and $2 per person to sell on foot.

The council will take action on this at a formal meeting Monday.

Council members also discussed the demolition specifications for the buildings on the depot site of the Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project.

Bids for demolition contracts are scheduled to be let by the state Oct. 26, according to Eldon (Continued on Page 18)

Reducing assaults goal of transit

By Fila Reilly
Staff Writer

The new Campus Safety Transit System will not be a "student transportation system," said Ginny Hoffman, director of women's services.

The transit system's purpose is to help prevent sexual assault and to aid those most vulnerable to abuse, she said.

Hoffman said the transit system is for people who are walking somewhere alone and are afraid of sexual assault. The transit will take men if they are in fear of sexual assault, but this is very rare, she said. Hoffman said that the men on this campus are very understanding and realize they are less vulnerable to sexual assault than women.

"The transit system has nothing to do with people who want a ride because it is cold out, raining or they have to walk a long way," Hoffman said.

The transit system will have certain passenger priorities, but those are still in the planning stage.

There is no way that an 18-passenger van can handle 18,000 students, Hoffman said. It would be nice to have a student transportation system, but this is just not the case.

Hoffman said that the transit service, women's services and the administration will be working on ways to restrict misuses of the system and ways to restrict the use of the service to only "those who fear sexual assault."

The transit van will make a loop around campus every 30 minutes from dusk to midnight.

The current route for the van is in the experimental stage.

Trustees to set closed meeting rules

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees meets Thursday to discuss proposed guidelines for holding executive sessions which Chairman Harris Rowe has said are to "give comfort that this board is not violating the state law."

The meeting, scheduled for 10 a.m. in Student Center Ballroom B, is open to the public.

The state law Rowe referred to is the Illinois Open Meetings Act, which is the basis of a lawsuit filed against the board by Madison County State's Attorney Nicholas Byron. The suit charges that the board violated the Act by deciding to centralize SIU's system of governance in executive session.

At the board's Sept. 13 meeting, Rowe asked Chancellor Kenneth Shaw to develop executive session guidelines for the board's consideration. Rowe said at the time that he hoped the guidelines might persuade Byron to drop the suit.

The guidelines are not available for publication prior to Thursday's meeting, but the meeting will mark a departure from usual board practice because it will not be preceded by an executive session.

Of the seven board meetings held so far this year, six have been preceded by a scheduled executive session.

But Vice Chancellor James Brown said that fact did not necessarily mean that the board was considering the abolition of routinely scheduled executive sessions.

"It could be that they just didn't have anything to discuss (in executive session)," Brown said. "It's happened before."

The board will also hear a proposal from the SIU-C administration to raise the rent at Evergreen Terrace apartments by $18 per month, which Vice President for Student Affairs

Bruce Swinburne has said is necessitated by inflation.

Because of a board rule requiring that tuition and fee increases considered at two meetings, the increase is being proposed only for the board's consideration. Action on the increase is expected at the November meeting.

The board is also scheduled to vote on whether or not to give the campus presidents the authority to change their campuses' library fines policy. Currently, such changes can only be made by the board.

There is no mention on the board's agenda of the $10 increase in the athletics fee being developed by the SIU-C administration. While the agenda is subject to change, sources close to the administration and the board have said they are certain the increase will not come before the board Thursday. However, they left open the possibility that the increase would come before the board in November or December.

Police find second witness to killing

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Sheriff's police have located a second person who witnessed last Wednesday's killing of Daniel Boone, the father of an SIU-C student.

According to Jackson County Sheriff Don White the witness was driving by the intersection of old and new U.S. Highway 51 at the time the shooting occurred.

White would not reveal the identity of the second witness but said the witness's story corroborates the account of the event given by Robbie Mae

Clay, a passenger in Boone's car.

However, no suspects or motives have been established in the investigation.

Boone, 62, was shot once in the face after approaching a blue Ford pickup truck to ask for directions to Interstate 57. Boone and Clay were on their way to visit relatives in Memphis, Tenn., after dropping off a bicycle with Boone's daughter Veronica, a resident of Schneider Hall.

Police said Boone stopped at the intersection, left his car, and approached the pickup truck to ask for directions. He was shot with a handgun before he said a word.

Police are "still checking on a lot of leads" but have not yet established a motive for the shooting, White said.

"We just can't figure it out at all," White said.

The truck from which Boone was shot is described as a medium blue 1970-75 Ford pickup with a six inch topper on the back. Police have received about 50 calls concerning truck that fit the description but have not turned up anything definite, White said.

SBA stifles chances for compromise...

By Gary Brown

President, Graduate Student Council

Garrick-Clinton Matthews gone, the circus remains. I am sorry to report that student governance cannot yet be taken seriously this year. It took long years and drawn out battles with the Brandt administration to achieve a semblance of respect. It may take less than $3,500 (the amount that would be withdrawn if the law students split from the GSC) to attain what administrators dream of in the name of the conservative 70s—namely, the relegation of full student participation in the governance of the University to the choosing of a homecoming theme. The Graduate Student Council is not ready or willing to become a petty debating society where the main issues under consideration will be the desirability, feasibility, advisability, or morality of roller skating in the Student Center. The well publicized "GSC versus Student Bar Association" controversy has transcended from the realm of sensible compromise to one befitting a comic opera. The shop-keeper mentality of the SBA leadership apparently holds no remorse. For a few bucks to be used in "social activities," they are intent on destroying the GSC to save it from Graduate Students.

To no avail, past and present administrations of the GSC laid bare facts for the public record. The Law School has the single largest, most powerful block of votes in the Council. For the past few years, the same school has been the top money getter. Last year, more than 50 percent of the allocations which went to the law students was not spent. SBA President James Rodgers publicly blamed his ignorance of the guidelines for the unspent amount. It is frightening that once appointed by the Dean of the Law School to the Fee Allocation Board, he was accepting requests without the benefit of knowledge of the two-page guidelines. Instead of mercilessly assailing the Fee Allocation Guidelines for discriminating against Law Students, he might want to read them first.

The guidelines in effect today—with minor changes in emphasis—were institutionalized under the leadership of one of the most effective presidents the

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following articles attempt to clarify some of the issues involved in the current dispute between the Graduate Student Council and the Student Bar Association. The authors are the chief executive officers of the GSC and the SBA.

GSC ever had. Ms. Ellen Schanzle-Haskins. I seriously doubt that Ms. Schanzle-Haskins, herself a law student at the time, could be accused of discriminating against the Law School. Since those times, the GSC decided to discontinue funding picnics and parties with fee monies. This option was taken when faced with a substantial drop in total budget. To my knowledge, departmental picnics and parties are still flourishing—and they serve a useful purpose—only now they are financed by those who attend them.

The Graduate Student Council did not create the Student Activity Fee nor do we collect it from students. We are merely fighting to keep it low and under student control for the benefit of the largest possible segment of the student population. Without the GSC, those fee monies could have been financing homecoming celebrations instead of being reverted to those interested in furthering their academic and professional concerns through conference travel or scholarly publications. The Council gets a lump sum from Vice President Swinburne and it allocates amounts based on merit and not on divisive headcount schemes. The GSC's refusal to fund a Golf Tournament last year should not be construed as discrimination against the SBA. It simply mirrors the Council's financial sense of propriety. If Ricardo Caballero-Aquino had wanted to use GSC funds for a Golf Tournament for local Paraguayan non-resident aliens, the GSC would have equally laughed him out. However, if the SBA requests funds for speakers, travels to ABA conventions or similar professional events, films, yearbooks, scholarly publications, trips to Moot Court Competition etc., the Council will gladly fund them. In fact, we are eagerly awaiting for their first request this year. They will be pleasantly surprised with the outcome.

The major obstacle that the SBA has encountered so far lies in its own strategy. In a Council where decisions are made based on simple majority votes, to attempt to play macho politics in the absence of such votes—as the SBA did last year—is tacky and hopelessly ineffectual. Courting such votes with petitions to withdraw from the Council invites hostility, not votes. Further, when they are advised to pull out, the SBA prefers to stay; when a new president shows willingness to compromise, the SBA threatens to withdraw. The GSC has too much pride to engage itself in Child Care Center tactics. If my words betray my utter disillusionment, it simply proves that there is a limit to endurance and human patience. This feeling is shared by a steadily growing number of GSC representatives. All the proposals originating in the SBA carry the distinct aroma of deja-vu. Today, they withdraw, tomorrow they want to change the constitution, next week they want to reduce fees. When all fails, they try again.

I am hereby inviting the leadership of the SBA to come to our meetings as full-fledged members of the soon-to-be Graduate and Professional Student Council, not as adversaries. The SBA should also request and receive funding, not because they have 254 students, but because such events will benefit their academic training and professional development. Every law student is a member of the GSC and they are cordially invited to become aware of our policies and practices. The only discrimination the GSC endorses has to do with academic quality and a desire to have a University the Law School can be proud of.

The so-called "controversy" threatens the stability and respectability of not just a few students. It affects the ability of a responsible student leadership to impact upon the direction and the ultimate enrichment of the whole University. The GSC needs the valuable contribution law students have to offer. The price of that cooperation however cannot include the demise of the Council.

...But GSC is unwilling to treat SBA fairly

By James Rodgers

President, Student Bar Association

The Graduate Student Council officers have not made a true good faith effort to resolve the problems existing between the GSC and the Student Bar Association.

Last May, at the request of Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne, SBA representatives met with GSC representatives (including Gary Brown and Pat Melia) in an attempt to form a compromise solution to the problems which threatened to split our two groups.

At the meeting, the SBA offered a compromise plan which would create a Graduate and Professional Student Council. This plan included the provisions that graduate students would deal separately with issues only of interest to them and professional students would do the same. Each group would have a separate fee allocation board and each would contribute part of their funds for the administration of the umbrella organization. This plan was the only one offered at the meeting and all of the participants accepted this plan in principle as a framework for working out the difficulties.

During the summer an Ad Hoc Constitutional Revision Committee met three times to work on the details of the compromise. The members of the Committee agreed to having an umbrella organization named the Graduate and Professional Student Council with a graduate student group and a professional student group.

The graduate student representatives then began their repudiation of the plan they had already agreed to in principle. They then stated that they did not want to set up separate fee boards for graduate and professional students. And, they felt that professional students should not only contribute to administration but also to a central fund for programs that they would decide were beneficial to graduate and professional students.

At the third meeting this summer, the law students presented a rough draft of proposed GSC constitutional changes to reflect the plan agreed to at the May compromise meeting.

This rough draft was presented in order to define the areas of agreement and disagreement so the compromise process could begin.

Professing a desire to bring the medical student representatives into the process, Gary Brown said he would contact them and schedule a meeting to discuss the rough draft we had presented. This was the last meeting of the Ad Hoc Committee until approximately two months later, Friday Sept. 28.

Instead of arranging a meeting with graduate, medical and law students, Brown met with the medical school representatives and the Dean of the Medical School alone. At that meeting, Brown told the medical students the GSC plan, which would change fee guidelines, and failed to mention the SBA compromise plan, which would not only change the guidelines but also would give professional students control over their fees.

At the Sept. 28 meeting of the Ad Hoc Committee, three law students were ready to compromise the plan all parties had agreed to in May. Instead of discussing the constitution revisions, the GSC representatives stated the Council would never accept any part of the plan and that the GSC representatives had never accepted it in May. The GSC instead presented their plan of one fee allocation board controlled by a majority of graduate students and new fee allocation guidelines. Even if this plan was enacted with a provision that the guidelines could not be changed without a constitutional amendment, we do not feel that this plan would offer the security needed to assure funding for future law school programs. A system of two fee allocation boards—one controlled by medical and law students—would give the added security needed for professional students to plan future events.

The reason we would like separate fee boards is simple. One of the main problems between our two groups is the fact that last fall, fee allocation guidelines were passed by the GSC which emphasized use of funds for conference travel. We realize it is important for graduate students to attend these conferences for future job opportunities. But we felt it was unfair to emphasize this activity while eliminating funding for social events which allow law students to interact with local attorneys, also in hopes of creating job opportunities. A system of two fee boards would allow both professional and graduate students to decide what funding areas are important for them. All we have been asking for is equal treatment and we do not feel we have received it from the GSC leadership.

Medical and law students only make up one-eleventh of the total number of graduate and professional students. But because over 90 percent of professional students are full time students we pay one-seventh of the GSC budget. Since the GSC spends almost all of its time dealing with issues affecting either all students or only graduate students, we had hopes of implementing the SBA plan in order to give professional students an equal opportunity to meet and discuss issues affecting them. Is it unreasonable to ask for the opportunity to discuss our unique concerns just as the GSC discusses graduate student concerns at each meeting?

When we asked the GSC Executive Council why they were against the idea of professional students having some separate meetings and a separate fee allocation board their reasons were: (1) Separate meetings would weaken the effectiveness of the GSC. On the contrary, it would allow for even more effectiveness since each group would work separately on issues they are particularly interested in and we would all work together on common issues. (2) The GSC felt that allocating funds to two separate fee boards would create problems in that the Council would lose control over the way the funds were allocated. We offered to let the Council approve our fee guidelines, and since we are members of the Council, the Council would not lose control over the money. All we would do is use our knowledge of professional student needs to allocate the fees to best benefit the students who originally paid them.

If we had not intended to compromise with the GSC leadership, we would have resolved this problem by withdrawing from the Graduate Student Council last spring. We had hoped we could work out our differences in order to make the GSC-SBA relationship a profitable one for both organizations. Unfortunately, the GSC officers did not feel the same way. We only regret that the process has created ill feelings between law students and graduate students, and we further hope that regardless of the outcome graduate and law students will continue to strive toward the same goal: better education.

Shaw to support Senate bill altering student loan program

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw is scheduled to testify Wednesday in support of a U.S. Senate Bill which would reorganize the student loan program, according to Allen Cissell, deputy director of a Senate subcommittee on post-secondary education.

Senate Bill 1600, the National Student Loan Reform Act, would organize the present loans systems into two parts, basic loans and unsubsidized loans. Under the proposed plan, both parents and students would be able to borrow federally subsidized money to pay for education.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., sponsored the bill in the Senate. A similar bill, sponsored by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., is in the House. Parents would be able to borrow the amount that the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant financial aid statement lists they should contribute to the child's education under the proposed plan. Loans would be available from private lending institutions at a minimum interest rate of 7.5 percent.

Additional loans would be available to students, to pay the difference between financial need and aid, through a federal financing bank, at an interest rate of 7 percent.

Other university presidents, as well as Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., are scheduled to testify during the hearing.

Fire prevention week proclaimed

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Fire Department will concentrate on educating students and residents on prevention methods during Fire Prevention Week, which lasts until Saturday.

Rushing said the fire department will give general fire prevention information to students in the seven grade schools in Carbondale during the week.

Rushing said the fire department has also scheduled a three-day display on fire prevention and safety at the University Mall.

"We will have an informational booth with some slides of fires in Carbondale at the Mall," Rushing said.

The booth will be set up from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Law students vote for split

It also said the issues addressed at GSC meetings concerned mainly graduate students and not law students and that the GSC officers and executive council held an "anti-law school" attitude.

Brown said that any law student may request funds for an event. "GSC has not shut the door on law students."

"They have ever and over again tarnished our reputation in the press, carried on discussions with University officials without informing us of the nature of what they were proposing and threatened the council with rumors of leaving," Brown said. "If there has been any discrimination against the law students by the council it's because graduate students are sick and tired of the law students' failure to negotiate in good faith."

SOAR plans weekend trips

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

If you want to go backpacking in the Grand Canyon in Arizona or in the heart of the Shawnee National Forest, Student Outdoor Adventure Recreation will take you there.

SOAR, a Touch of Nature program, sponsors weekend trips for 10 people who are associated with SIU-C. Debbie Sugerman, coordinator said.

Backpacking Nov. 17 through 25 in the Grand Canyon in Arizona is the biggest trip planned for the semester, she said.

The cost of the trip is $235, which covers transportation, food, and equipment. Every weekend, SOAR has an outing, on Oct. 26 to 28, a backpacking trip to the Garden of the Gods is planned.

During the trips, the group leaders offer instruction on how to pack a backpack or what foods to eat while camping.

Sugerman said the group also stresses environmental impact. "That's the reason we only take small groups of 10, because it doesn't damage the area we camp in as much. In fact, once we leave a camping area, you can't tell we've been there."

Other trips SOAR is sponsoring include exploring a privately-owned cave in Missouri for $41 on Nov. 2 to 4.

On Nov. 9 to 11, SOAR is offering a backpack trip to Belle Smith Springs for $16.50. The group will begin to teach winter camping.

"Really, winter is my favorite season to camp in, because there are less people and no bugs. Probably there would be more people doing winter camping if they knew how to do it," she said.

A workshop on Nov. 28 about pine tarring will be held at the Touch of Nature. The workshop will instruct people who have snow skis on how to tar them for water protection. The cost of the workshop is $2.50.

Lusk Creek is the destination for backpackers on Nov. 30 through Dec. 2. The cost is $16. A free winter camping workshop is also offered in December, as are two backpacking trips. One to Tatum Sauk Trail, Mo. on Dec. 7 to 9 for $22 and one to Pine Hills for $15.50 on Dec. 14 to 16.

A skiing trip to Vermont between fall and spring semester is in the planning stages.

Every trip has a mandatory pre-outing meeting, usually a week ahead of the scheduled day. SOAR will be sharing an office with the Student Environmental Center, in the third floor of the Student Center. Students can sign up for the trips here or at Touch of Nature.

The fees for the trips include transportation, instruction and group gear, but not food or personal equipment.

Sculpture exhibit at SIU-C galleries

The Illinois Traveling Sculpture Exhibition II is on display until Oct. 21 at the University Museum and Art Galleries. The exhibition, which includes works by Thomas Walsh, head of graduate sculpture at SIU-C, can be viewed at both the North Gallery in Faner Hall and the Mitchell Gallery in Quigley Hall.

The display was put together by Edward McCullough, a professor of sculpture at Illinois Wesleyan University in conjunction with the Illinois Arts Council. It consists of 68 works by 27 Illinois artists and took more than two years to organize, according to Mitchell Gaul, University Museum coordinator.

SIU-C is the last stop for the exhibition, which has been showing throughout the state since Oct. 15, 1978, Gaul said.

Mitchell Gallery is open weekdays 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The North Gallery is open on weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sundays from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Admission to both galleries is free.

Graduate photo exhibit is a collection of themes

By Michelle Edmonds

Student Writer

"Photographs," a traveling show designed by SIU photography graduate students, has opened with an exhibit in the Vergette Gallery, located in the Allyn Building. The exhibit will run through Oct. 12.

Gale Farley, a participant, said an important factor of the show is that no faculty members are participating.

Dan Carruth, also a participant, said that photography graduate student work has not been shown in an exhibit since fall semester of 1977.

Each of the eight students is exhibiting two prints in the Vergette Gallery. In the traveling show, however, each student will show three prints.

There is no specific theme or style in the show. "It is a collection of individual styles," Carruth said.

Farley said the show will be sent to other institutions interested in displaying it. In addition, the show may be exchanged for exhibitions from other institutions.

Benefit concert 'successful'

By Jordan Gold
Staff Writer

The Mobilization of Volunteer Effort's (MOVE) benefit for the United Way Monday night at Hangar 9 netted "between $675 and $700," according to MOVE coordinator Patty Sundquist. The concert was part of MOVE's week-long effort to raise funds for the United Way.

Doctor Bombay, one of Carbondale's most popular bands, provided the entertainment for the concert. Bombay's unique blend of jazz, blues, rock and funk kept the capacity crowd at Hangar 9 entertained and the dance floor filled as well.

Funds were amassed from cover charges, donations from Pabst and Hangar 9, money deposited in cans and an auction staged by WIDB.

"WIDB has been phenomenal," Sundquist said, adding that the station will also take part in the rest of this week's activities. Those activities include a Wheel of Fortune and competition between student organizations. Most of the activity will take place in the Free Forum Area.

MOVE's goal for the week is to collect $1500 in donations for the United Way. Sundquist doesn't anticipate any problems in achieving that figure. This was MOVE's first benefit concert ever, according to Sundquist. Bombay was chosen because they are an excellent and extremely popular band, Sundquist said, and "because Carlos (Penny), the leader of Doctor Bombay) said he would do it."

'Rich Kids' deals with feelings

By Mark Marks
Student Writer

When an executive producer gets prominent mention in a movie advertisement, right away you know one of two things: either the person is famous enough to be a drawing card or there's nobody else in the cast or crew well-known enough to bother publicizing. The case with "Rich Kids" is a little of both.

Robert Altman, director of "Nashville," "Mash" and "A Wedding," (among many others) is executive producer of "Rich Kids." He is part of a growing trend in Hollywood filmmaking wherein some successful directors can adopt projects, raise money, initiate production and insure quality - all this for films which otherwise might never have been made.

"Rich Kids" is a case in point - no bankable stars, no thrill-laden script, no exotic settings, just Altman's patently competent production company (Crown's Cofco) and a great cast of nobodies.

The plot is simple. The parents (Katheryn Walker and Terry Kiser) of 12-year-old

A Review

Fran (Trini Alvarado) are getting divorced so her friend, Jamie (Jeremy Levy), helps her through it. Since his parents have already been divorced, Jamie knows the ropes.

The emphasis in "Rich Kids" is on personal interchange and context, not story. How the parents relate to each other and their kids is the focal point here. Both kids of the professional elite, Fran and Jamie's problems are compounded by the over-psychologizing of their parents who are hypocritical and deceptive "so as not to hurt them." In a characteristic moment of parental two-facedness, Fran's father smiles, waving good-by to her, though furious that she is going out.

The setting is the upper west side of Manhattan, a world of pet secretaries and bedroom discos, what Woody Allen once likened to a breeding ground for neurotics. The non-adults make up a lot of these parents' lives. In this closed universe, divorce becomes the logical result of marriage.

The kids themselves are "real" - their actions and speech ring true. They're not "look at me, I'm cute" movie kids, but street-wise and mature beyond their years - like kids are these days. (Considering the city noise, the city pace and the swinging city parents, Fran and Jamie are incredibly well-adjusted. "Maybe someday we'll understand our parents," Fran says. "No, then we'd be frowny-ups and we'd be messed up," is Jamie's dry reply.

The film's continuing respect for the integrity of the kids' view is especially praiseworthy. Outside of Francis Truffaut, there aren't many filmmakers who can or even care to address children's concerns.

The problem for "Rich Kids" will be in finding its audience. Too serious to be a kids' film, too kid-oriented to create "adult drama" and too meaningful to appeal to "love and bullets" crowds, "Rich Kids" is a good movie that won't go anywhere. At the very least, it is a definite must for "children" ages 6 through 60 of divorced parents.

Director troubled by Arena crowds

By Craig DeVriese
Staff Writer

Smoking in restricted areas, drinking and general unruliness by concert-goers is causing the SIU Arena problems and the management is currently searching for answers, according to Arena Director Gary Drake.

Drake said the problems are not new, but that as concert attendance has increased so has the magnitude of the problems. "There are probably only 30 percent of those in attendance who are causing problems," he said, "but in the past couple of years we've been fortunate enough to attract bigger name bands and our attendance has increased. And as the size of the crowd's get larger, so does the 30 percent."

The Arena provides designated areas for smoking but concert-goers are smoking in their seats, Drake said.

"We don't care to distinguish between what they're smoking," he said, "but no matter what it is it's not supposed to happen in the seating area."

Drake said smoking causes damage to the seating area and also is a fire hazard, particularly because of debris beneath the seats.

People bringing alcoholic beverages into the concerts, which is against University policy, is also on the increase, he said. Campus Security is on hand to confiscate liquor if it is seen, but Drake said that has done little to stop the problem.

"We don't ask to look in purses, pockets or backpacks—we don't want to do that. We don't want to get into frisking at the door, either," he said. "You would hope that people wouldn't force us to use those techniques."

Rushing the stage and standing on chairs have also become greater problems at the Arena. People standing on chairs not only poses problems for the people seated behind them, but also causes damage to chairs and risk of injury, Drake said.

Rushing the stage is a common occurrence at concerts and Drake said that the Arena tolerates it because it happens at the end of a show. But, he said, concert-goers have been attempting to move near the stage early in the shows and are disturbing the vision of others who paid for main-floor seats.

This year the Arena has been divided into 10 separate sections, patrolled by eight ushers and an usher supervisor. The main floor has been roped off and access has been restricted to people with main-floor tickets. This has alleviated but not eliminated some of the problems, Drake said.

By making concert-goers aware of the problems they are causing, Drake hopes to solve the dilemma. He said that he doesn't know what the consequences could be if the problems continue.

"What it takes is for people to realize that they are causing a problem," he said. "You hope that people can be mature enough to police themselves."

Campus Briefs

"Love," a video tape and discussion based on the book "Love" by Leo Buscaglia, will be held from noon to 2 p.m. Wednesday on the fourth floor Video Lounge. At the same time, a program entitled "Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual: Alternatives in Sexuality" will be offered in the third floor Activities Lounge. Both programs are presented by the Student Programming Council and Human Sexuality Service.

The Road Runners Club is sponsoring the 6th Annual Lake Murphysboro 3.8 mile Gutbuster and Social Gathering at 2 p.m. Sunday at Lake Murphysboro State Park. Bring a picnic lunch. Drinks will be provided. Call Craig Dittmar at the Department of Recreation for more information.

A workshop on grantwriting will be offered by the Women's Services from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday in Woody Hall, Wing C-225. Skill building exercises will be provided and the resources available to grantwriters will be discussed. No pre-registration is necessary.

Frederick Williams, assistant professor of classics, and K.K. Collins, assistant professor of English, will discuss their proposal to change the SIU grading system at 7:30 p.m. Thursday on WSIU radio (FM 92).

The Medical School Faculty-Student Colloquium Series has rescheduled the film "The Stray Messenger," from Oct. 9 to Dec. 4. The film "The Grain of Stone" will be shown Oct. 16.

"Eating for the Health of It," a slide show and discussion of nutrition, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in the Ohio Room. The program will discuss the food industry and some tips for healthier eating. Sponsored by the Student Wellness Resource Center.

Delta Chi Founder's Day Banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Marion Ramada Inn. Executive Director Ray Gaibreaux will present a slide show.

The Touch of Nature Soar program is offering a backpack trip Oct. 28-30 to the Garden of the Gods. The cost is $16.50. Register by Oct. 18 by calling the Touch of Nature Environmental Center.

"Your Body and How to Keep it Running," a lecture by Craig Dittmer of the Department of Recreation, will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Activity Rooms A and B. The lecture is sponsored by the Student Programming Council Lectures Committee. Admission is free.

Foresters enter annual conclave

Forestry Club members are practicing for the Midwestern Foresters Conclave to be held Oct. 19-20 at the University of Minnesota.

Members are practicing from 3 to 6 p.m. Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays near the Poultry Center for events such as the log roll, chain throw and pulp toss.

Eleven other schools are scheduled to compete in the Paul Bunyan-like contest. This Conclave will be the 28th.

Joliet Prison photographs to be exhibited

A set of photographs that document the Joliet Prison from 1890 to 1930 will begin a national tour in January, 1981.

The researcher, Richard Lawson will present them to the public from 9 to 11 a.m. on Tuesday in Room 1122 in the Communications Building.

Reprints of photograph negatives have been taken, put on print-out paper and gold-toned to bring out the quality and permanence. Lawson will discuss his work and give a demonstration of the printing methods at the presentation.

Grants from SIU-C and the Illinois Humanities Council funded the research project.

Thank you, to the World of SIU for the Parents

Fate of merit commission on County Board agenda

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

If the Jackson County Board dissolves the deputy sheriffs' merit commission, the county will be taking a step backwards, said Jackson County Deputy Sheriffs' Association President Dave Youngberg.

The Jackson County Board will vote at its monthly meeting Wednesday on a motion to dissolve the five-year-old merit commission.

The merit commission consists of a three-member board appointed by the sheriff and approved by the county board. The commission oversees tenure, promotion, raises, discipline and the discharging of deputy sheriffs.

Chief Deputy Greg Gillen, who has been a Jackson County deputy for eight years, said that in the patronage system, which was used before the merit system, the turnover of deputies was about 90 percent each year. "No one stayed over a year,"

News Analysis

Gillen said. "They came here solely for a year's experience and then looked for another job."

He said now there is only one deputy that has been at the county for less than a year.

"It takes two years to even know the county," Gillen said.

"A new person is totally lost."

He said that if the merit commission is dissolved, the rate of turnover would again be very high. He said that the deputies wouldn't stay because they would have no job security and that without a commission a new sheriff could just come in and "clear house."

Without the merit system the county board will have difficulty getting experienced personnel, he said. Deputies will only come here for the training and some experience before moving on to a department with a merit system.

"I don't think we have a man here that isn't married," Gillen said. "They have families and houses with house payments and they need job security."

Bill Kelley, chairman of the county board, filed the motion to dissolve the merit commission at the last board meeting. He said that he had supported the commission when it was first instituted in 1974, but that he had since changed his mind.

"I'm totally for job security and professional training, but the merit commission has gone beyond the bounds of protecting people's jobs," Kelley said.

The issue here is not job security, it is whether the commission has the right to dictate to the board without compromise what the deputy's salaries and benefits should be, Kelley said.

He said that the commission has constantly asked for higher pay raises, health insurance and overtime pay over and above what other county employees receive. The commission doesn't take into account what the county's budget is, he said.

Kelley said that in 1974 there was no law requiring law officers to be trained. Anyone could "strap on a gun" and there was a need for a merit system. Now there is a law requiring training.

A lawsuit by a county jailer and two deputies, who contend the jailers were and still should be part of the merit system, was also mentioned by Kelley. He said that the county would be fighting this "very expensive suit" with taxpayers money.

Kelley said that there was no record of the county board approving the jailers as part of the system. But the lawsuit states the jailers were part of the system before a meeting on April 11, when the county board passed a motion stating that the jailers were not on the merit system and had never been.

The suit was recently dismissed on the grounds that there was no injury shown to the plaintiffs, jailer Willie Mason and deputies Youngberg and Dan Stone, who are representing the deputies association.

Gillen said a deputy now can file a grievance with the merit commission if he is to be fired or disciplined.

"Whether they were right or wrong, they were always fair," he said. "I just don't think we can get the same deal out of the county board."

State ERA activist leader discusses future strategy for statewide support

By Jacqui Koszrak
Staff Writer

If it is true, as some say, that the Equal Rights Amendment issue is dead in Illinois, it was not apparent at the informal meeting of ERA supporters at the Carterville Civic Center Monday night.

Local ERA activists chattered freely with their state leader, Ruth Whitney, who left a teaching position at Rutgers University in New Jersey five years ago to devote all her time to the Illinois ERA ratification project. The ten women related their history of personal involvement at ERA marches and rallies and shared the decisive experiences that led to their determination to see the ERA passed in Illinois.

They gathered around Whitney, a native of Quincy, to learn the roles they would play in the upcoming strategy for arousing statewide support before the spring session of the General Assembly.

She smiled at the group, thanked them for their active support, and began, "Equality of rights under law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

"You all know it, you've heard it many times before," she said. "And you also know that there are 800 federal laws and 1800 state laws that deprive women of this basic freedom, one that promised 200 years ago in the Declaration of Independence."

She referred specifically to laws concerning divorce, child custody, employment, acquisition of bank credit, and inheritance taxes, as discriminatory measures that "exist in almost every state."

"After I graduated from college, I worked as a Peace Corps volunteer in Africa for two years. I was proud of the fact that my country could send teachers to help underprivileged nations."

"When I returned, and began looking for a job, I found sex discrimination. I wasn't as proud anymore," Whitney said.

Since leaving her teacher's position at Rutgers, Whitney told the group that she has traveled 3,000 miles each month throughout Illinois setting up community-based ERA ratification organizations.

"We have an active group in Carbondale, and I would like to see one get off the ground in Carterville," she said.

She instructed the women, who were from both Carbondale and Carterville, on the workings of telephone and letter-writing campaigns which are used to activate community input to state and national legislators.

"I've seen how effective these campaigns can be," Whitney said.

She recounted an incident that occurred during the ERA extension drive in 1978.

"We were in Washington, and we had already failed at several attempts to get the extension bill put on the agenda," she said. "Then we contacted our community organizations, and within three days, 90,000 messages from all over the country poured into Washington."

With a satisfied smile she said, "Needless to say, the extension bill was put on the agenda in a matter of days."

Faculty funding triples in 10 years

projects totaling $3.6 million were received from the state. In addition, SIU-C received $2.2 million from private industries and foundations to fund 187 grants, Kelsey said.

Kelsey said SIU-C is probably the largest recipient of funding in Illinois, with the exception of the University of Illinois in Champaign, but that "we're catching up on them."

Some of SIU-C's most highly-funded research projects this year were:

—$3.4 million in federally-funded Basic Educational Opportunity Grants, and $1.9 million to support work-study programs;

—$2.2 million from the U.S. Agency for International Development to set up and operate a radio-linked teacher training program in Nepal;

—$690,000 from the Illinois Department of Public Health to pay for operation of family practice residency programs at SIU-C's Medical Schools in Belleville, Decatur and Quincy;

—$400,000 from the Illinois Department of Vocational Rehabilitation to support operations at the University's Evaluation and Developmental Center in Carbondale;

—$389,000 from Peabody Coal Co. to support continuing archaeological excavations at the Black Mesa site on Peabody land in Arizona.

Lewis Park plans room changes

did convert these units back to two-bedroom dwellings, and since then the city has amended its zoning ordinance which will now permit four-bedroom apartments at Lewis Park.

Kiriakos, in a legal opinion on the request to convert the apartments, stated the agreement of 1973 is superseded by the city's present zoning ordinance.

According to Rex Renfrew, Lewis Park manager, tenants of these apartments over the last six years have separated the shared bedrooms into two separate ones. The homemade partitions and door systems consist of "a combination of very poor quality materials," according to a letter prepared by Renfrew.

In the letter, Renfrew said the present owners, Allen and O'Hara Inc., of Memphis, Tenn. plan to construct two more doors in the apartments making the conversion to four-bedroom apartments complete. Currently, one door leads to each partitioned bedroom. Renfrew said if the city approves the conversion of the apartments Lewis Park management will begin advertising four-bedroom apartments beginning spring semester.

The proposal to convert the apartments will have to go to the home office of the owners before construction of two additional doors for each apartment can begin. "It should have been done four years ago. If prior management had been more attuned it would have taken care of it then," Renfrew

Rekknowned author to discuss freedom and human spirit

Rollo May, rekknowned p-ychotherapist and author, will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday on "Freedom and the Human Spirit" in Student Center Ballrooms C and D.

May, a practicing psychotherapist in New York, began his psychotherapeutic studies in Vienna. In addition to his clinical practice, he is a training and supervisory analyst at the William Alanson Institute of Psychiatry, Psychoanalysis and Psychology. He has also taught at Harvard and Princeton.

May is presented in cooperation by the Student Programming Council, GSC and the Catholic Knights and Ladies of Illinois.

May is the author of award-winning novels such as "Love and Will" and "The Courage to Create". In his books, he writes about his experiences as a therapist observing and helping people in their struggle to find their creative possibilities. He discusses creativity as "the divine madness".

Admission to the lecture is $1.

Horkey equipment stolen from locker in Pulliam

Over $500 in floor hockey equipment was stolen from a locker in Pulliam Hall sometime last weekend, University Police said.

Forty jerseys, 12 floor hockey sticks, six referee shirts and four floor hockey pucks, valued at $540, are listed as stolen.

Police said the burglars pried the clasp off the equipment room door, 101 B Pulliam, and then pried open the bottom of a locker and took the items.

Residents object to zoning request

Gosnell, railroad relocation project director, Gosnell said he learned Monday of the possibility that demolition may not begin as scheduled—in late December or early January.

"I can't really say if they will be ready (for demolition) on Dec. 1," Gosnell said.

The city discussed possibilities of allowing the merchants who are being relocated from South Illinois Avenue, due to the train depot, to remain in the buildings if demolition is not to begin on schedule.

The City and the Illinois Department of Transportation are investigating the possibilities, according to Gosnell.

Councilwoman Helen Westberg told the council that Towne Central members may request that the City allow merchants to stay in the buildings as long as they possibly can.

Mayor Hans Fischer said, "We are going to look like a bunch of idiots if we say we have to have these people out by December and then the buildings are not demolished by February."

Proposed grade system has pluses and minuses

by Shelley Davis Staff Writer

The advantages of a plus-minus grading system will be discussed at 7:30 p.m. Thursday on the WSUI-FM "Speak Out" program.

Frederick Williams, assistant professor of foreign languages and literature and Ken Collins, assistant professor in English, will be answering questions concerning the pros and cons of initiating a plus-minus grading system at SIU-C.

Williams, who proposed the change last year, said the plus-minus system would provide for more fairness and equity in the distribution of grades.

"I can distinguish more levels of possible performance right now but can only hand out four grades of rating performance," Williams said.

Opponents of the change cite the operation of a dual grading system, possible grade inflation, difficulty in transferring credit and the 1978 change in the grade system as reasons not to institute a plus-minus system.

However, Williams said he feels none of them are viable arguments. He said he has yet to hear a substantial argument against the change.

"It is the feelings that are not logical, that are often the most important," Williams said. "If it fails, I suspect that for whatever reason people won't like it but they won't know why."

The proposal for the plus-minus system was voted down by the Undergraduate Education and Policy Committee of the Faculty Senate and the Undergraduate Student Organization last year.

This year a survey will go to all faculty members to decide what should be done. The surveys will be mailed this week and should be returned by Oct. 26.

The USO will discuss the change at their next meeting on Oct. 17. USO President Pete Alexander said if the USO passes the proposal he will sign it.

Craddock given Valley honors

Senior safety Oyd Craddock, a four-year starter for the Saluki football team, was named Missouri Valley Conference defensive player of the week following SIU's 7-0 win over Illinois State.

Craddock made 11 tackles (eight of them unassisted) and broke up four Illinois State passes. Two of the passes Craddock knocked down were in the Redbird's last minute surge deep in Saluki territory, late in the fourth quarter.

Craddock's performance couldn't have come at a better time for the Salukis who have a number of starting players lost from the No. 1 defense.

"With so many people injured in the front seven," said Head Coach Rey Dempsey. "We needed a good performance from our secondary, and they delivered."

Tom Piha, James Phillips and Rich Seiler are out with injuries

and Percy Gibson has been playing with a shoulder injury.

The Saluki defense is graded on each game and Craddock scored an 81, the highest grade on defense this season. "We are very tough when we grade our players, and the lowest mark we gave a defensive back was 72 percent. Oyd graded much higher. He played an outstanding game, especially toward the end."

The former New Orleans, St. Augustine High School star earned second team ALL-MVC honors last season, while leading the secondary in tackles. Craddock's four pass deflections represent a team high for the Salukis this season.

Craddock and the Salukis will play host to MVC rival Wichita State this Saturday at 2:00 at McAndrew Stadium. The Salukis are 3-3 overall and 0-1 in the Valley. The Shockers are 0-5 on the season and 0-2 in MVC play.

Gymnast Moran leaves Southern for Arizona State

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Cindy Moran, a three-year star on the SIU-C women's gymnastics team who was involved in a team dispute last spring, has transferred to Arizona State University, women's gymnastics Coach Herb Vogel confirmed Tuesday.

Moran, who was to have been a senior at SIU, decided to transfer to ASU rather than consent to several team policies, Vogel said. He added that Moran would have been allowed to return to the team only if she adhered to these policies.

"She had to agree to be coachable," Vogel said. "She had to get along with the team. She had to agree to not coach other team members. She had to relate to the other team members other than in four-letter words. If she came back, she also would have had to make the team."

Vogel said Moran would have had trouble making the Salukis because of a knee injury she suffered last spring. He said that she may be redshirted at ASU this winter because of the injury.

"It's very doubtful whether Cindy could have made our team," Vogel said.

A native of Massachusetts, Moran came to SIU-C in 1976. An all-around performer for the Lady Salukis, she qualified for Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIW) nationals twice and was also a two-time All-America selection.

Although she qualified for the nationals in 1979, she could not compete because of her knee injury.

Vogel said that because of the skills of several new team members, the effects of Moran's transfer on the team will be negligible.

"It won't affect us at all," he said.

Golfers take 2nd at Intercollegiates

Doug Clemens, the SIU men's golf team's No. 1 player, was a consistent Saluki performer this fall.

By Rod Smith

Staff Writer

"We're No. 2, We Try Harder," was the slogan of a national rent-a-car company.

That phrase can also be applied to the Saluki men's golf team after its second-place finish to SIU-E Monday in the Illinois Intercollegiate Tournament at Quail Creek Country Club in Robinson.

"We were disappointed that we didn't win the championship because we really feel we have the better team," Coach Walt Siemsglusz said. "We'll work hard over the winter in order to prove it next spring."

The Salukis were named Division I champion, but finished 11 shots behind the Cougars in the overall competition.

Doug Clemens, medalist last week at the Sycamore Classic, won a sudden death playoff to gain third place in the individual competition. Clemens, with a seven-over-par 51, finished four shots behind medalist Les Agne of Edwardsville. The Cougars' Mark Hofstetter was one strike back of his teammate in second place. Butch Poshard, the Salukis' No. 2 man, finished in a tie for sixth place at 154, despite a poor first round which included a nine on one hole.

"Edwardsville had a good first round because their three and four men played well for the first time this year," Siemsglusz said. "We didn't make a move the second day, and Agne and Hofstetter kept them on top."

"I'm a little disappointed that we didn't win the overall state crown, but Edwardsville played its best round of the year," Clemens said.

Rich Jarrett, 157, Jim Reburn, 150, and Mike Thompson, 165, were the other Saluki participants.

The Salukis will have a chance to prove they are the best in the state when the Illinois Intercollegiates move to the spring. Siemsglusz said the move to spring was made in order to get more schools involved. The University of Illinois was among the teams that were unable to participate because of scheduling conflicts.

"This was our best finish ever in the Intercollegiates," Siemsglusz said. Illinois State had won the tournament every year since it began four years ago.

"It used to be great to finish second, but we'll be out to win it all in the spring," Siemsglusz said.

The Salukis finished seventh at the University of Evansville Invitational last week. The five-man team consisted of four freshmen playing in their first meet. Dave Glass finished 12th for the top Saluki performance.

This was his first season the Saluki golf team competed in a fall schedule and the first season for Coach Walt Siemsglusz. Siemsglusz, a Marion native, is a former grad assistant and player for SIU. The new coach lettered four years as a Saluki. Siemsglusz brought home two major trophies in his first year as a head coach.

The Sycamore Classic, played at a tough Hulman Links course in Indiana was the first major championship the Salukis won under Siemsglusz. The second place finish at the Intercollegiates earned the team their second major prize.

The golfers will be practicing all winter long at the Student Recreation Center.

Fielders lose, Illner frustrated

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

Frustration was all women's field hockey Coach Julie Illner could convey after the Salukis' two games at Richmond, Ky., last Saturday. Frustration because of the way SIU lost to Eastern Kentucky University, 2-0, and the way the way the Salukis defeated Ohio University, 2-1.

The Saluki's next game is Tuesday at SIU-Edwardsville.

Illner's frustration began in the EKU game, when all of the Salukis' 39 shots were blocked. Two of Eastern Kentucky's 10 shots were goals. One of the goals came on a breakthrough in which no SIU player was close enough to defend.

"We blew it. There was no reason for poor defense," Illner said. "We made three errors on that play. Nobody got back when the set-up pass was made, nobody tackled the EKU player when she made the shot, and (goalie) Kanda Cunningham missed the shot."

Illner said it was not the first time her team's defense didn't respond quickly enough to an offensive attack. The breakdown on defense is costing SIU goals, she added.

"The transition from offense to defense should be automatic," Illner said. "We are still thinking about the situation, and it is that split second where the other team is getting the jump on us."

Illner said SIU sustained its offensive attack mainly from the right side of the goal. This made it easier for OU's defense to stop the Salukis. SIU had 7 shots on goal to Ohio's eight.

"We have got to use the whole field," Illner said. "By crossing from right to left on our drives, we will cross the defense up and make it easier for us to get a clear shot off."

Illner said she was unhappy with the officiating in the EKU game. She said she was especially upset over a call that gave Eastern a penalty shot, which set up the second goal of the game.

A penalty shot is awarded when the referee feels the defense committed a foul that prevented a goal. The ball is placed in front of the defensive team's goal, and the offense has one direct shot against the goalie before the defense can help.

"I don't see how a penalty shot could have been awarded when the goalkeeper wasn't even in front of the goal when the referee blew the whistle," Illner said.

Illner's frustration was alleviated somewhat when the junior varsity won the tournament it hosted Sunday at McAndrew Stadium. The J.V. team defeated Missouri, 5-1, and Eastern Illinois, 3-2.

Tacy Miller scored four goals against SEMO, tying the single-game scoring record she set earlier this season. Miller also scored the winning goal in the final 10 seconds of the EIU game.

Exciting contests in IM finals

By Gregg Ochoa
Student Writer

It could have been called the "Fall Classic."

No, it wasn't the World Series, but the championship intramural softball games that were played last weekend that had all of the drama and excitement that one would expect in the big leagues.

In three of the five title games, the margin of victory was fewer than three runs. In the men's Division A, there is a new champion. Defending champ Tau Kappa Epsilon was beaten in the semifinals by Phi Sigma Kappa, the eventual winners. Phi Sigma Kappa needed clutch hitting and a little luck to edge the Warriors, 6-5, in the final.

The game was close down to the wire. The Warriors had several opportunities to put the game out of reach, but they couldn't capitalize. In the seventh inning, the Warriors had the bases loaded and nobody out, but scored just two runs. That low run production would haunt them later.

The game started off fast with Phi Sigma winning three runs in the first on hits by Mark Polson, Bill Hajek, Frank DuSimone and Bart Yakos. The Warriors countered with two runs in the fourth and seventh innings. Bob Scott, Tom Maloney and Neil Sherman provided the spark as they each had three hits. However, Phi Sigma won it in the top of the 10th on hits by John Scott, DeSizone and Yakos.

In the Division B final, the Oral Advocates downed Nothing Short of 12 Inches, 5-4. As in Division A, it was a close game. The Oral Advocates won the game in the sixth inning when Brad Stonecipher, Scott Jones, Eric Rudd and Alan Cary all collected hits.

In the Women's Division, Chuck's bombed Tequila Sunrise, 2-0, for the title. Chuck's scored in every inning but the third, as every team member hit the ball well all day. After it began, as Chuck's scored 10 runs on as many home runs in the first inning. Some members of Chuck's hit two or more home runs during the game, Ellen Reynolds (2), Ruth Bernhard (4), Debbie Briske (2), Barb Zelik (2), Kathryn Williams (3), Terri Murphy (2) and Minetta Wallingford (2).

However, Tequila Sunrise had some home run hitters, too. They were Cheryl Sulb-an (2), Denise Aubuchon (5), Cathy Skokna (2) and Pat Stong (2).

In Co-Rec Division A, Frozen Snowball Theory, winners of 17 straight games in the spring and fall, best Last Chance, 17-7, for the title. For the winners, Terry Lafien had three hits and Ron Ziegmont two. Mike Staszak, Maxine Mastey and Greg Seidler all had three hits for the losers.

In the Co-Rec Division B finals, Diddley Squat edged Learned Hands, 14-12. Diddley Squat helped put the game away with an eight-run third inning. Jim Bergstrom had four hits, Scott Sinkhorn three hits and Gerry Woods two hits for the winners. Vito Mastroangelo had three hits for the Learned Hands, while Mark Cussens and Barb Vogler had two.

Touching Nature

Debbie Sugerman

Information easily obtained on hiking in Southern Illinois

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of outdoor columns which will run periodically. The columns will deal with a variety of outdoor activities and sports. Debbie Sugerman works with the SOAR program at Touch of Nature full-time and has an extensive background in outdoor and wilderness activity.

Fall is a great time to backpack in Southern Illinois; the temperatures are cooler, the bugs have pretty much disappeared, and the changing colors make for spectacular view. The Shawnee National Forest offers many trails for backpackers located in areas ranging from gently rolling hills to rugged terrain.

How do you find out about these places to go backpacking? Where can you get information on trails, camping areas, fishing spots or whatever? A good place to start is Leisure Exploration Service (LES) located in Barracks T40 behind Fanner Hall.

The office of LES is full of files on outdoor recreation possibilities in Southern Illinois. You can find maps, trail descriptions and any other information you might need for a trip. The staff is knowledgeable about the areas and very willing to help you plan your trip.

After deciding where to go, you need to get some equipment together. The Student Recreation Center Base Camp rents camping equipment at a very reasonable rate. Equipment in stock includes: backpacks, sleeping bags, tents, canteens, stoves and even eating utensils. The Base Camp is located on the west side of the Recreation Center.

You don't know the first thing about backpacking, building a fire, or using a map and compass to keep from getting lost? Or maybe you want to get away for the weekend and enjoy the fall colors, but don't have time to plan the trip.

The Touch of Nature Student Outdoor Adventure Recreation (SOAR) program offers weekend backpack trips throughout the semester to various locations in the immediate areas such as Pine Hills, Garden of the Gods, Land Between the Lakes and the Missouri Ozarks.

The trips are recreational in nature with emphasis on learning outdoor skills, sharing the adventure with people on the trip and becoming aware of the wilderness in which the trip takes place.

The cost for these weekend trips includes transportation, instruction and group gear such as cooking utensils, maps and compass, a stove and the essentials. Each person is responsible for personal gear which can be rented at the Base Camp. The group buys food for the weekend together and can easily come up with tasty inexpensive meals.

Anyone interested in going on one of SOAR's trips must sign up beforehand at the SOAR office located on the third floor of the Student Center or by calling Touch of Nature at 451-0348.

Next week's column will be about food and wilderness food preparation.
