ATO members face charges

By Theresa Livingston
Staff Writer

The University's chapter of Alpha Tau Omega has been cleared of charges stemming from a group activity leading to the hospitalization of a pledge, but two members of the fraternity will face individual charges of hazing and violations of the University's Student Conduct Code, the assistant director of student development said.

Harriet Wilson-Barlow said the University's investigation into the matter is concluded and the fraternity as a whole has been cleared of any charges of misconduct.

"Our investigation encompassed not only the University and the local (ATO) chapter, but the (ATO) national organization as well. After studying the evidence, we concluded there was not sufficient cause to charge the fraternity itself," Wilson-Barlow said.

However, she said two fraternity members involved in the incident will face charges of hazing and violation of the Student Conduct Code at an undetermined time in the future.

"The two individuals did take more liberty with the directives of the activity than necessary. We have found some inconsistencies and possible violations of the code within the actions of the individuals. As a result of this, the matter has been turned over to the SIU Judicial Affairs Committee," Wilson-Barlow said.

Wilson-Barlow declined to release the names of the two fraternity members involved.

Panel suggests rejecting proposal

Plan would allow women assistant profs time for research

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate Executive Board voted to recommend that SIU-C President John C. Guyon reject a proposal allowing women assistant professors time off to pursue research.

The board discussed the merits of the proposal presented by Uma Sekaran, director of University Women's Professional Advancement, Tuesday in the Mississippi room of the Student Center.

The Faculty Development for Women Associate Professors asks that three women associate professors receive a semester away from teaching in order to concentrate on research. The program would be sponsored by the UWPA and Affirmative Action, Sekaran said.

Sekaran said research is an important element in receiving promotion to full professor. She said after speaking with a majority of women on campus this past year, women have more demands on their time than men do in the University setting, and therefore less time to devote to research.

"Since there are fewer women faculty, and women must be represented on committees, the women here have to work on more committees than the men," Sekaran

Abortion topic of discussion

State legislators to consider bill

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois abortion debate, expected to be a hot topic in the General Assembly's fall veto session, started quickly Tuesday with both sides clarifying their position prior to a legislative hearing.

Doctors, lawyers and other concerned citizens showed up at the State Capitol to voice opposing views on House Bill 574, which calls for a viability test for women wanting to abort a fetus of more than 20 weeks. The bill also mandates a second physician be in attendance during all abortion procedures and bans abortions in public hospitals.

The issue is one of the most important in the veto session because the Supreme Court on July 3 upheld a Missouri law similar to the current Illinois legislation. A 10-member House-Senate Conference Committee is considering the Illinois bill.

"What we're dealing with is whether the citizens of Illinois want to use their tax dollars to pay for abortions," said Ralph Rivera, head of the Illinois Pro-Life Coalition. "We are talking about a bill that deals with only prohibitions upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court."

Pro-abortion forces also outlined their arguments against the bill, saying only poor women would be hurt by the restrictions since they no longer would be able to use public hospitals.

"House Bill 574 reflects another step in the anti-choice minority goal of outlawing abortions and birth control, striking the most vulnerable women," said Betsy Brill, executive director of the Illinois Pro-Choice Alliance.

Another controversial issue to be decided is whether a fetus can survive at 20-weeks-old.

During the veto session, the General Assembly is supposed to act only on Gov. James Thompson's vetoes and "emergency" issues, but Rivera said the abortion issue is an urgent one.

"We're trying to protect viable, unborn lives," Rivera said. "They (legislators) should recognize this and move forward in debate."

Disabled student files discrimination charge

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

A University student has filed a charge with the Illinois Department of Human Rights claiming University Police discriminated against her.

In July of 1988 Susan Fehrenbacher, who is blind, was working as a student work supervisor at the Recreation Center, where she is currently employed, when she was asked to transport money from the Recreation Center to the Bursar's Office with a University Police escort.

"When the police officer, Leon Simpson, arrived he refused to acknowledge or talk to me," she said.

Fehrenbacher said Simpson said to her co-workers, "I can't take her."

Fehrenbacher, a 33-year-old senior in social work, walks with a seeing-eye dog.

She was diagnosed with diabetes in 1978 and during a 9-year period she went completely blind in both eyes.

"I know what it's like to see," she said, "I miss not being able to read the newspaper."

Fehrenbacher said she doesn't like to be told what her limitations are.

Fehrenbacher said University Police director Bob Harris called Mike Dunn, director of the Recreation Center, to apologize.

Council finds extra $900,000 in budget

City considers spending surplus on recycling program, landfills

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

The City Council considered ways to spend the estimated budget surplus of $900,000 at a special meeting called to discuss the five-year budget Tuesday.

The surplus is a direct result of the two-year state income tax hike, Carbondale City Manager Steve Hoffner said.

He should consider putting this to use developing the downtown area," Hoffner said. He also recommended the surplus be used for planning a civic center for the city.

Councilman John Yow pointed out that at the state will be watching the cities who received this money to see how they use it.

"If we do something good with it they might continue it for a few more years," he said.

Mayor Neil Dillard also advocated the funding of downtown development.

"Since the state works with the University and because of the proximity of the area to campus it would be a good place to spend the money," Dillard said.

The council also discussed recycling and landfills as a priority in coming years.

"This area is one we will have to take a strong look at," Dillard said. "This will probably be an area of major change in the state and the country."

Dillard said he is concerned about Jackson County becoming a dumping ground for other cities.

"Carbondale has always been a leader in these areas," he said. "Recycling will take hold."

The five-year budget submitted by Hoffner is what he describes as a "best guess at this point in time."

The budget assumes that property taxes will decline, no changes will be made in the number of city employees and that the state income tax will be eliminated in two years.

It does not include a renovation of the City's water plant or installation of a sanitary sewer for Park HealthCare Psychiatric Hospital.

Protesting in East Germany quiet after violent weekend

BERLIN (UPI) — East German police Tuesday allowed pro-democracy demonstrations to end peacefully after local communist officials called for dialogue — despite East German leader Erich Honecker's sharp condemnation of such protests. Police in some East German cities crushed weekend protests with clubs and water cannon. Protestant church sources said Tuesday that in the city of Dresden, where police violently dispersed a weekend rally, Mayor Wolfgang Berghofer met with reformist and church groups Monday. Sources said Berghofer agreed to meet again next week to discuss a 9-point plan.

Police blame cocaine cartels for 12 bombs

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — President Virgilio Barco denied Tuesday reports his administration was negotiating with cocaine cartels, which police blamed for 12 bombs that rocked commercial sectors of Bogota, Pereira and Barranquilla Monday night and early Tuesday, wounding 30 people and causing extensive damage, police said. Barco, speaking to reporters as he departed to Peru from Cañan military airport, attacked reports that the government has negotiated with the cocaine cartels.

Report: Civilian deaths rise in Colombia

LONDON (UPI) — Armed forces and paramilitary groups in Colombia have killed unarmed civilians on an unprecedented scale over the past 16 months, often in alliance with drug traffickers, Amnesty International reported Wednesday. The international human rights organization said the world should not overlook human rights violations by the Colombian armed forces just because their government is waging a U.S.-backed war against drug traffickers. Amnesty International said in a report that in the past 16 months the armed forces and other groups have executed about 2,500 Colombians without benefit of judicial process.

Coup plotters argued over Noriega's fate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Pentagon spokesman said Tuesday that last week's attempted coup in Panama was poorly organized and the plotters argued among themselves over the crucial issue of turning over Gen. Manuel Noriega to U.S. officials. Spokesman Pete Williams, however, was unable to say immediately whether the losers in that argument told U.S. officials, who believed them to be liaisons from the coup organizers, that there was internal bickering about what to do with Noriega, who is wanted on federal drug trafficking charges.

Abortion appeal denied by Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move that could chill the increasingly militant anti-abortion movement, the Supreme Court refused Tuesday to disturb a ruling that held a number of protesters liable under federal racketeering laws. The court refused to hear the case of more than two dozen anti-abortion protesters from the Philadelphia area whose convictions were upheld by the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Better education standards goal of Republican Edgar

By United Press International

Illinois public schools must increase student performance and parental involvement and reduce state regulation if they are to prosper, Secretary of State Jim Edgar said Tuesday. Edgar, who is seeking the Republican nomination for governor, told business leaders at a meeting in Rolling Meadows he will unveil a plan in the next month detailing the educational changes he will seek if elected governor next year. Edgar said the state currently spends too much time on "silly regulations."

Faculty Senate OKs motion on undergraduate program

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate carried a motion to reallocate the Undergraduate Academic Program to the College of Liberal Arts at its meeting Tuesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Broken into two degrees, special majors and University Honors, the program will be subject to COLA administrators.

The programs were originally under Academic Services.

The senate also passed a motion to reword a resolution condemning the sale of complimentary issues of textbooks received by professors.

The books are mailed by companies to professors in the hopes the book will be selected for classroom use. At times, these issues are often kept by the professor. Book buyers approach the professors for sale of the books. If sold, the books are released to book stores, depriving the author and publishing company of royalties, several members of the senate said.

In other business, the senate heard Benjamin Shepherd, vice-president of academic affairs, state to the senate that searches for new Dean's of the School of Law and College of Technical Careers are continuing.

Shepherd also said a straw vote among chairpersons in the College of Communication and Fine Arts resulted in a 9-1 vote to retain Marvin Kleinau as the acting dean of CCFPA for one more year.

The senate nominated Ronald Stadt, a professor of vocational education, to the Outstanding Scholar Selection Committee.

Alcohol education aim of Awareness Week

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

Informing students about the dangers of alcohol abuse is more of a priority than in past years because alcohol abuse is a growing problem on the SIU-C Campus, Joe Baker, Wellness Center coordinator, said.

Alcohol education is the aim of the sixth annual National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week Oct. 15 through 21, Baker said.

He said national statistics show abuse of most drugs is on the decline, but the use of alcohol is increasing.

"There seems to be a kind of switching going on with people substituting alcohol for other drugs," Baker said.

Baker said that 1987 statistics show that 89 percent of all SIU-C students use alcohol once a month. The average consumption is 14.3 beers per student consumed per week and 150,000 beers are consumed by students every week in Carbondale, he said.

Alcohol Awareness Week will kick off at 5:45 p.m. Monday at the Campus Boat Dock. Moonlight canoeing, a one-and-one-half mile fun walk, a campfire, music and Party Light T-shirts, honoring the theme of the night, will be given away as supplies last.

"Our goal is to increase awareness of issues of responsible use of alcohol," Baker said.

Barb Fijolek, wellness coordinator, said the Alcohol Awareness Weeks of the past have been successful in informing students of the dangers of alcohol abuse and the support from the students, faculty and community has steadily grown.

"Everyone is doing their part to help students make informed choices," she said.

Fijolek also said SIU-C has had a nationally recognized drug and alcohol program for over 10 years and many universities across the country have formed programs in the past few years.

Baker said the purpose of the week isn't to make people stop drinking completely, if they don't want to.

"We're not against responsible drinking. We're against abuse (of alcohol)," Baker said.

He said responsibility with alcohol includes knowing when to stop, having a designated driver and pacing your drinking so as not to become intoxicated.

Baker said students are being challenged to go to a party and not drink, have a designated driver, organize a non-alcoholic outing, brag about a good time a person may have had sober and attend an Alcohol Awareness Week event.

"If you won't even consider going to some Alcohol Awareness Week event, maybe you really need to," Baker said.

SIU-C employees to get new health id's

University employees who were previously enrolled in the Carle Care health plan can expect their new State Quality Care identification cards in the mail by Oct. 18, Mary Ann Martin, of employment services, said.

"We mailed them out Tuesday," Martin said. "They should get them in a few days."

Martin said employees who do not receive their cards by Oct. 18 should contact the personnel services benefits office at 453-6668.

"The employees have been waiting for these cards since July 1, when they were all switched over to Equicore," Martin explained. "There was a lot of confusion about what was going on."

Martin said the cards will have an emergency phone number that employees can call to pre-certify hospitalization.

Lesson to be learned from ATO's accident

FRATERNITIES OFTEN draw a lot of fire from outside groups because of the type of activities that they engage in. These activities range from chants and cheers that non-greeks find to be silly or annoying to blatant forms of hazing that have often ended in death.

On the flip side, greeks lend a hand in several volunteer projects and charity causes that are seldom recognized. Greeks also offer an alternative to college students and provide an atmosphere of social activity and leadership.

Recently at SIU-C, the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity was involved in an accident that put a pledge in the hospital for three days after he ran blindfolded into a window of a nearby sorority. Instantly questions were raised as to what type of activity was going on at the time and who was responsible for the pledge's injury.

The activity going on at the time was identified by Carbondale police as an initiation ceremony, however Harriet Wilson-Barlow, assistant director of student development, who was in charge of the investigation, said the activity was a "trust building activity."

A national representative of ATO was called by SIU-C's ATO chapter to advise the chapter. National allowed the local chapter to have a judicial board to investigate the matter, Rodney Miller, president of the University's chapter of ATO, said.

AS A result of the investigation by the University, two students could face punishment from the SIU Judicial Affairs Committee for alleged hazing and violations of the Student Conduct Code.

Miller contends the two individuals who face charges acted outside the guidelines of the fraternity.

"It was strictly an individual action on their part and certainly the chapter will come down on them," Miller said.

This accident is not unique to ATO. Accidents similar to this have happened before at this campus and many other campuses around the country. This accident was relatively minor compared to some, but the fact remains that there was irresponsibility on the part of the chapter, and, or the individuals who face possible punishment.

The degree of irresponsibility accorded to each may never be fully known, but the accident raises a question that should be addressed by the ATO fraternity and other fraternal organizations:

WHERE SHOULD the line be drawn for the fraternities that decides where the responsibility for hazing shall lie? A fraternity is made up of many members who comprise the whole. Therefore the fraternity is responsible for each member and their actions when participating in a fraternal activity. Brotherhood in a fraternity creates an "all for one" attitude. But is this forgotten when trouble occurs and hazing is alleged?

Fraternities should not turn their back on members to save face or their charter. A member is a vital part of each organization. If the blame for a particular action is placed on the shoulders of an individual then the fraternity, as a whole, should decide what role it must play to protect its member. It should not back down and leave the member to face the consequences alone.

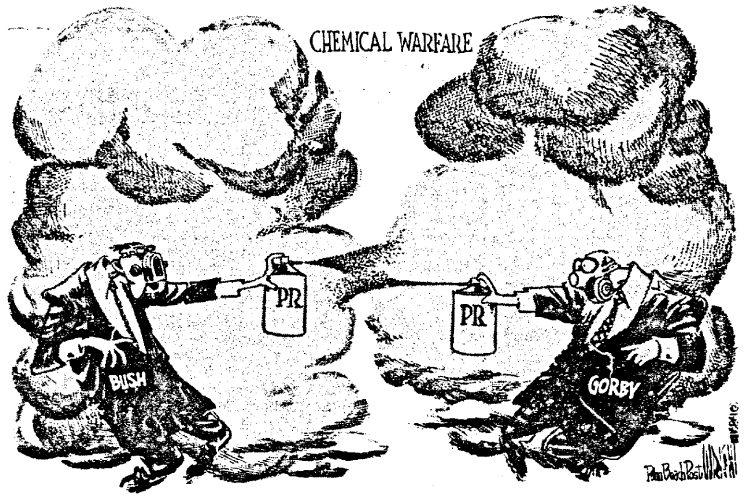

We realize that not everyone can be watched at all times, and that some members will always push the limits or break the rules. When a large number of people are living and interacting in a group, rowdiness and rough play will surely occur. This is something that is fine as long as it is under control.

This is where leadership and organization is paramount. Without the proper supervision, accidents such as this one will occur.

LEADERS ARE there to inform the members of the rules and to make sure they are abided by. When activities get out of control, and leadership slacks off, people forget that they have a responsibility to the fraternity and to those that are pledging.

We realize that fraternities will continue to have activities and also that accidents will happen. However, we urge the fraternities to keep the activities under control and under supervision.

Fraternities are under close scrutiny because of past occurrences, and will continue to be in the future. Therefore, it is in the best interest and safety of all involved to learn the lesson provided from this accident.

Blame for financial woes doesn't rest on football, check mismanagement

The problem with the recent clamoring for elimination of football at SIU-C is that it ignores its premise, the status of education at SIU-C. Jerome Handler, spokesman for the elimination, has claimed that football has not served the needs of this University and has been "sucking up money." He points to the continued increases in the 25 percent graduation rate as reasons for redistributing the funding of football into other athletic programs and into Morris Library. To say that this is a naive and ignorant argument on the part of Mr. Handler is an understatement. Handler's goal is improvement in academic quality at SIU-C. If this is true why concentrate on an athletic program? He offers criticism for the program and an unimaginative plan for redistributing the funds without addressing the real problem. Besides the inability to offer guarantees that these funds will be redistributed he neglects to address the rampant mismanagement of funds in the academic sector at SIU-C. How is it that the administration's annual raises and budget faux pas' are not an issue and a very meager amount of money in the athletic department is the issue?

If Handler's proposal is accepted it will set a dangerous precedent. Examine this scenario: the respective deans of engineering and communications (SIU-C's more productive and money making departments) get together and decide that the University can no longer afford the deficits incurred by the lesser programs such as history, religion and heaven forbid anthropology. The decision is made to take the "wasted" money from these programs and divert it into their more productive programs. While this is militant in essence, in fact this has begun to establish itself already on this campus with certain lesser departments Ph.D. programs being held hostage because of emphasis on money making majors.

Where will Handler and his followers stop. What about baseball, surely that money could go to better use? The money spent on the swim team might help to refurbish Handler's office. Where are the priorities? The great minds of reform point to academics over athletics yet in practice they fail to generate criticism or coherent reforms for academics and attack athletics. If we are to establish an Ivy League attitude toward sports, academics must be addressed first. SIU places little emphasis on education and major emphasis on graduation. There is quite a difference. While I am not naive to the fact that the University is a business, I am aware that the purpose of the University is higher education and the standards must be raised. If this means doing away with the bread and butter, "if you fog the mirror you're in" attitude and the reduction of rolling admissions and specifying separate curriculum for those who do not reach minimum or their ACTS and GPA then so be it.

The problem at hand is not football it is education. The benefits of doing away with football are minimal in comparison with an effective academic reform that would promote an education not a degree. Until SIU-C decides that its purpose is to promote high education and not serve as a poor facsimile of a paper mill then it should attend to the football issue. However, until serious attempts at academic reform are made the 1/100th cost of funding football, taken be it the total amount of money brought in by tuition alone, does not constitute a crisis.

The logic behind cutting athletics based on purely financial reason will lead to the entire collapse of athletics. Athletics should be seen as a minor extension of the University, but one that furthers the University. — Robert Barra, graduate student, history.

Police here to uphold law not infringe upon it

The U.S. Constitution guarantees Americans certain rights including freedom of speech and freedom of assembly. Those rights were denied to members and supporters of SIU NORML last Friday by the police. I would like to clear up the haze of contradictions surrounding our presence at 611 Pizza.

1. We received permission from the manager to move our rally to his establishment.

2. It was announced three times that there would be no marijuana smoking on the premises.

3. The police did not see or smell anyone smoking marijuana.

4. The man arrested on the weapons charge had a hunting knife (he was camping out in Shawnee for the weekend), was cooperating with police and only needed to retrieve the keys to the car before he could return the knife when he was arrested.

5. The police threatened to search everyone on the premises and when I inquired into why, I was told that they had received reports about marijuana smoking on the premises and that was enough probable cause for the search.

6. The owner of 611 Pizza was told by police that they would close her down permanently if she did not make us leave.

The job of police is to uphold the law, including the U.S. Constitution. Instead, they violated NORML's rights under the pretense of upholding the law. This and other incidents of police harassment in Carbondale must stop. — Kirsten Bonde, sophomore, anthropology and president of SIU NORML.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Quiet life in Makanda helps artists create work

Makanda, population 400, is a tiny, old-fashioned village on the outskirts of Giant City State Park that has a higher than average share of artists and craftspeople.

Residents and business owners say there are many good reasons for the town's creative atmosphere.

"IT'S SLOW. Not too much pressure here," Chuck Dixon, owner along with his wife Muri of the North Pass Galleria on the town's boardwalk. He hand-crafts willow chairs, and Muri creates prints and wood burnings.

Al Kuczynski, who makes tables, counters tops and other surfacing materials from the granite-like wood substance corian, said Makanda is an artistic community because "it's far away from the hustle and bustle of the city. It's an affordable place to do business."

Makanda is an artistic community because "it's far away from the hustle and bustle of the city. It's an affordable place to do business," says Al Kuczynski, a craftsman who makes tables and countertops from corian.

KUCZYNSKI OWNS the Fine Wood Shop, which holds open studio hours from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. every Saturday and Sunday. He said people can come in to ask questions and examine his work.

Anita Abney, owner of the Southern Sisters Workshop, weaves rugs, placemats and pillows on an old-fashioned loom at the back of her store. She has worked in Makanda since 1983.

"THE FIRST TIME I came to Makanda, I just had to be here. It's such a neat little village," she said.

She said when she heard that over a million people drive through Makanda each year on their way to Giant City, she knew the town would be a good location for a business.

OVER THE years, Makanda has had good times and bad times as an arts and crafts center. Kuczynski, who has worked in the town for 13 years, said he has "watched all the buildings close up, and watched them open again."

He said Makanda underwent a resurgence thanks to the efforts of concerned citizens.

"THE OLD BUILDINGS were kind of falling apart and run down a few years ago. Through a lot of hard work and sweat, they're functional again," he said.

Makanda's buildings, many of which date to the 1800s, and its sleepy pace make it seem like a ghost town left over from another era. But as a home for the arts, Makanda is very much alive.

South Africa to free 8 political prisoners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — President Frederik de Klerk announced Tuesday the unconditional release of eight prisoners, including former African National Congress secretary-general Walter Sisulu and others sentenced to life imprisonment with Nelson Mandela a quarter-century ago.

De Klerk said government officials had "fully apprised" Mandela of the plans to free the eight but he quoted the nation's most famous political prisoner saying his own release from prison "is not now on the agenda."

The newly elected president, who has called for power-sharing negotiations with black leaders to end the country's protracted racial strife, said the eight men would be released unconditionally "as soon as the necessary formalities can be dealt with, which can take some time."

Widely rumored for several weeks, the announcement came on the eve of the highest level talks between the government and South African black leaders since July 1986. De Klerk is scheduled to meet Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu and two other leading clerics in Pretoria on his racial reform plans.

The announcement also precedes the Oct. 18 meeting of the leaders of the 48-nation Commonwealth and is seen as a gesture to strengthen the hand of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who stands virtually alone in the alliance against tougher sanctions as a means to force an end to apartheid.

Thatcher, informed of the announcement in a telephone call from South African Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha, called the decision "a major step in the right direction" and said she hoped it would lead to Mandela's release.

Botha also notified Secretary of State James Baker and French President Francois Mitterrand, foreign ministry officials said.

Sisulu, 77, Mandela, 71, and six other members of the outlawed ANC were sentenced to life in prison on June 12, 1964, for plotting the overthrow of the white minority government. Their eight-month trial became known as the Rivonia trial.

Lecture on immigration presented

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Dr. Lars Ljungmark summarized more than 30 years of research on Swedish immigration to the American Midwest in the 19th century in a presentation at the University Museum Auditorium Monday.

Ljungmark, the author of "For Sale — Minnesota" and "Swedish Exodus," is on leave from the University of Gothenburg, Sweden. SIU-C was Ljungmark's third stop on his lecture tour.

"The Selling of the American Midwest," the paper presented by Ljungmark, looked at the propagation used by state governments and private businesses to lure Scandinavian settlers.

"There were very well-organized efforts made to get them to go to this area," H. Arnold Barton, SIU-C Scandinavian history professor, said. "This is an aspect not very well known to most Americans."

Ljungmark began researching the immigration movement in 1958. This is his third visit to America, where he has compiled all of his research material.

"This is a good period of the year to travel," Ljungmark said. "I leave for research after the tour and go to Winnipeg for a week or two."

American mythology topic of Eureka luncheon series

By Mario Millikin
Staff Writer

Contemporary perspectives of American mythology will be the overall theme of the Eureka luncheon series this semester.

Each session of the seven-week series will consist of a 20-minute presentation followed by a discussion time, the Rev. Ken Wallace of the Wesley Foundation, said.

According to Wallace, each semester's theme relates to some aspect of higher education. Once a theme has been designated, potential speakers are referred to Wallace by various experts in relevant fields. Prospective speakers are then contacted and asked to take part in the given series.

While a series of speakers generally include community members as well as University people, the fall series consists of University faculty and students representing the departments of sociology, philosophy, graduate studies and Black American studies.

Sponsored by the Wesley Foundation, the first meeting held Oct. 4 attracted about 35 people. The Foundation would like to get as many people involved as possible, Wallace said.

Each program begins at noon every Wednesday through Nov. 15. A catered lunch is available by phoning the Foundation office one day prior to the scheduled program.

The cost for a catered lunch is $1 for students and $3 for non-students, Wallace said.

City residents to state views on proposed enterprise zone

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

City officials are conducting a hearing next week to gauge community response to the proposed enterprise zone that would encompass parts of Carbondale.

An established enterprise zone would enable Carbondale to offer state incentives that would encourage companies to expand or locate within the zone, bringing new and additional businesses to the city, Steve Hoffner, city manager, said.

Some state incentives include sales and utility tax exemptions, investment tax credits, job creation tax credits, income tax deductions and increased accessibility to the state's business financing program, Hoffner said.

During the public hearing, citizens are invited to ask questions or make comments about the proposed enterprise zone, Hoffner said. Written comment also will be read during the meeting.

The hearing is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Monday in the Carbondale Community High School east cafeteria.

"I think the enterprise zone program would be a tremendous asset to the city and it could be a key component to helping us achieve the growth from the economic development," Hoffner said.

According to an administrative report from the Carbondale City Council, the Illinois Enterprise Zone Act of 1982 mandates that the state legislature has the power to set aside a certain number of zones each year.

Gov. James R. Thompson signed a bill this year that allowed the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs to create seven new zones in Illinois in 1990, the report said.

Murphysboro and the area near the Southern Illinois Airport also will be included on the enterprise zone application.

Hoffner said DCCA indicated that Carbondale's chances of receiving a certificate for an enterprise zone would be enhanced if a joint application were submitted.

A zone preapplication must be submitted to the DCCA before Nov. 1 for prior consideration.

"Before that time, the city will be expected to take a lead position in formulating a specific economic development strategy and goals, developing an ordinance and deciding on what types of local incentives should be offered to encourage development within the proposed zone," Hoffner said.

There are currently 68 established enterprise zones in Illinois, including ones in the Southern Illinois towns of Mount Vernon, West Frankfort and Mount Carmel.

The areas within Carbondale that would be considered in the zone include the downtown area west of University Avenue and north on U.S. Route 51, as far as the two industrial parks.

The zone also would extend to Giant! City Road along Main and Walnut Streets. The third area would extend along West Main Street to the Carbondale city limits.

Richard C. Hayes, head of the campus judiciary board, declined to comment on the matter.

Rodney Miller, president of the University's chapter of ATO, said the two individuals acted outside the guidelines of the fraternity.

"It was strictly an individual action on their part and certainly the chapter will come down on them," Miller said.

Lt. Andrew Smith of the University Police said the student involved, James Friel, 20, 600 E. Campus Dr., was taking part in an initiation ceremony Sept. 30 in which he ran into a window, breaking the window and cutting his right hand.

him," Smith said. "Cababe yelled at Friel to stop, but he didn't hear him and slammed into the Sigma Kappa sorority kitchen window."

Friel suffered lacerations to his hand and was taken by ambulance to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, where he spent three days.

University Police officer Phillip Saupe said a finger on Friel's right hand was mangled and the bone was exposed.

Friel has declined to comment.

Miller said the chapter held an emergency meeting following the incident to determine what had happened.

"We called our national representative, Jeff Wilson, and he came down to talk to us. National allowed us to have a judicial board to investigate the matter," Miller said.

Wilson could not be reached for comment.

Wilson-Barlow said the activity in which Friel was involved in at the time of his injury was not an initiation, but a "trust building activity" that was sanctioned by the ATO national organization.

However, the University Police's report from the scene of the incident indicated Friel had been injured in "an initiation ceremony."

Miller agreed with Wilson-Barlow, saying the activity in question is one of several that ATO uses to instill trust and brotherhood in pledges.

Miller said the activity called for an active member to lead a blindfolded pledge on an indoor walk, gize for Simpson's behavior.

Fehrenbacher said Harris told her the reason for not allowing her to carry money to the Bursar's Office was because of safety purposes.

"He (Harris) said myself or the police escort could get hurt if we were held up by a robber," Fehrenbacher said.

"Harris apologized but reiterated that a money run to the Bursar's Office would not be possible as long as I was carrying the money," she said.

After discussing the issue with Fehrenbacher at the time of the incident, Harris currently declines comment on the matter.

A week after the incident, Fehrenbacher met with the University Police officer and Dunn, but she said nothing was resolved.

In January, Fehrenbacher filed a complaint with the Department of Human Rights. She said the department concluded an investigation was warranted, but the department was on a 9-month backlog.

The department has yet to begin an investigation, Dick Battle, spokesman for the department, said.

In May, Shari Rhode, chief trial counsel of University Legal Counsel, contacted Fehrenbacher.

Fehrenbacher, Jerome Handler, an SIU-C anthropology professor and a personal friend of Fehrenbacher, and Rhode met to discuss the situation.

"At that time I knew I wanted an apology from Officer Simpson and an education program informing University police officers of how to handle disabled people," Fehrenbacher said.

She said Rhode said the apology and the education program were possible but the bottom line was the University Police were going to stand firm on not letting her carry money to the Bursar's Office.

Rhode currently declines to comment on the matter.

Ruby Bacon, assistant bursar over cash payments, said the Bursar's Office would prefer that depositors not be visually impaired, but the office would not reject a blind person who is making a deposit.

"We want the depositor to see the cashier handle the deposit," Bacon said. "Especially if there's money involved."

The Department of Human Rights, which is an investigative agency, will hold a fact-finding conference, Battle said. Should the department find subsequent evidence, the department will file a complaint with the Illinois Human Rights Commission, which is a judiciary commission.

The fact-finding conference date has not been set because of an "incredible back-log," Battle said.

"Both the work place and the home hinder women in doing research work," Sekaran said.

Many of the board members rejected the proposal on the grounds that it was discriminatory.

Donna Falvo, director of behavioral science and an associate professor was on the committee which examined the proposal.

"I do think it's discriminatory. It implies that women need special help," Falvo said.

"There are a minority of women who have asked for special treatment and have gotten it," Falvo said. "This is a thorn in our side because it makes the accomplishments of others suspect."

Falvo said if the program were implemented she would take advantage of the opportunity it provided.

"I don't think it's discriminatory or patronizing in the slightest," Ann-Janine Morcy, associate professor in the English department told the board.

Morcy, who would have been eligible for the program, referred to the amount of committees women are asked to be on, saying.

Future of aviation focus of seminar

Event's purpose to show opportunities

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

The future of aviation was discussed at a seminar held Tuesday in the SIU-C Student Center Auditorium.

The event, sponsored by the Aviation Management Society at the College of Technical Careers, was culminated by a banquet Tuesday evening in Student Center Ballroom D.

Terry Bowman, SIU-C professor from the College of Technical Careers, said the seminar was the third at SIU-C in as many years.

Bowman said the purpose of the event was to present students interested in aviation with authorities on different areas of aviation.

An FAA spokesman said they will be hiring around 600 new employees over the next two fiscal years.

David A. Newmyer, coordinator of aviation management and airway science, said the speakers were asked to cover two areas in their presentations.

"We asked them to speak on careers in aviation and the immediate future of aviation in order to inform students as to what to expect when they receive their initial job assignments," Newmyer said.

"Aviation has undergone a great deal of evolution in the past few years and we expect to see it continue to make changes in the future," he said.

The first speaker, Jerry Morgan from Federal Aviation Administration Air Traffic Control, said there have been many changes in his area of expertise — air traffic controlling — in the past few years.

"We are going into greater automation in control towers all the time. In the past few years, we have implemented a totally new computer system in most towers," Morgan said.

He also said the FAA has placed a great emphasis on hiring for the past five years, and is expected to continue this emphasis for fiscal years 1990 and 1991.

"The FAA will be hiring around 600 new employees over the next two fiscal years. Many of the long-time executives, like myself, will soon retire, and there is a need for constant replenishment as everyone moves up the ladder after retirements," Morgan said.

Other speakers during the seminar included Duane Moore, from the Illinois Department of Transportation Division of Aeronautics; Edward "Rocky" Wilkerson, from the Airline Pilot's Association and Jim Dermody, from the FAA Great Lakes Region Aviation Information Division.

At 3 p.m. a panel of SIU-C aviation graduates gave a presentation on their recently begun careers. The panel members included Paul McGraw, Air Transport Association; Ed Newby, American Airlines; Dominic Sawchuk, McDonnell Douglas Corp.; Bill Zangs, Midway Airlines and Dan Shipner, Midway Connection.

The featured speaker at the banquet was Shipner's father, Robert J. Shipner, president and chief executive officer of Interand Co. and former Eastern Airlines vice president of flight operations.

Bowman said he expected Shipner to speak on his career at Eastern and possibly comment on new ownerships and the present state of major airlines. A question-and-answer session was also scheduled.

Campus parking for Halloween visitors available

Students who have visitors driving to Carbondale for the Halloween weekend must have them obtain a parking permit from the Parking Division at Washington Square, Marilyn Hogan, parking coordinator, said.

Hogan said if a student lives on campus he must come with his visitor to the Parking Division Office in Washington Square.

Visitors will be permitted to park their vehicles in Parking Lot 56.

Students who live off campus are not eligible for a guest parking permit.

SIU-C student traces ancestors back to 1804

By Irene Cplon
Staff Writer

Roseta O'Neal's interest in her family history began at an early age. When she was seven months old, she asked about her mother who had died.

Question led to question, and O'Neal, brought up by her grandparents, became anxious to find more about her roots.

"I jotted down notes from conversations and it all came together when I was asked to write a family history for our family reunion," O'Neal said.

O'Neal has been able to trace three generations of ancestors who were slaves as far back as 1804.

Genealogical research comes naturally to O'Neal, who recently began a Little Egypt chapter of the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society.

With the notes she accumulated from conversations with relatives, O'Neal took her genealogical search to the national archives in Washington, D.C., to verify the facts she had obtained verbally.

By checking census records, O'Neal found that her great grandfather, John Moore, bought 220 acres in Tennessee, after slavery was abolished, with money he was able to save from repairing shoes while he was a slave.

But finding genealogical information is difficult for blacks,

O'Neal said.

"The first year blacks were named in a national census was 1870, before which they were simply counted as a number. And, registration of black marriages was not mandatory until 1868, though few were documented until long after that date," O'Neal said.

While doing research at the national archive, O'Neal sought help from professional genealogists, which led her to the national organization of AAHGS.

"The organization provides resource materials, as well as contacts with many professional genealogists," O'Neal said.

O'Neal decided to start a Little Egypt chapter of AAHGS, which was installed into the national organization in April.

Students as well as community members are invited to attend a workshop held by the Little Egypt chapter from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday in the Lesar Law Building.

Featured at the meeting will be three guest speakers who will discuss getting started in genealogical research and Afro-American history.

Further information can be obtained from publicity committee members, Sandra Mckinnley at 549-6582 or Winona Whitfield at 536-7711.

Accident victims recovering

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Four people involved in a two-car crash Monday evening were listed in stable condition Tuesday evening, hospital spokesmen said.

The accident occurred at 5:30 p.m. near the crest of a steep hill on Reed Station Road, three-tenths of a mile from new Route 13, the Jackson County Sheriff's Department said.

Police said a southbound pickup truck driven by Suzanne Ward, 40, of Cartersville, collided with a northbound car driven by Jonathon McCreery, 17, of West Frankfort.

Ward and her passenger, Lorena Penrod, 70, of Cartersville, were transported by Jackson County Ambulance Service to Memorial Hospital in Carbondale for treatment of major injuries, police said.

McCreery was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and was later flown to St. Louis University Hospital, where he was listed in satisfactory condition, a hospital spokesman said. McCreery's spokesperson, Crystal Hogan, 17, of West Frankfort, sustained serious injuries and was transported to Memorial Hospital.

Police reported that none of the four were wearing a seatbelt. McCreery was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving in the wrong lane.

NASA delays Thursday's shuttle flight; onboard computer at fault

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — NASA managers Tuesday ordered engineers to replace a balky computer aboard the shuttle Atlantis, delaying the ship's Thursday launch to fire a nuclear-powered probe to Jupiter by up to a week.

The decision was announced shortly after a federal judge in Washington cleared Atlantis for launch at 12:29 p.m. Thursday, denying a request by anti-nuclear activists to ground the mission because of concern about the safety of atomic power packs bolted to the $1.4 billion Galileo Jupiter probe.

In the meantime back at the Kennedy Space Center, engineers were working to figure out why a computer mounted to one of Atlantis's three main engines generated faulty data during routine pre-launch tests.

Efforts to duplicate the malfunction, apparently failed, and late Tuesday launch director Robert Sieck issued a brief statement delaying the sixth post-Challenger launch until the engine controller can be replaced.

"After careful evaluation of testing data, we have decided to change out the controller on main engine No. 2," Sieck said. "That work is beginning immediately.

"We estimate that it will take about two days to assess the time required to complete the work. Therefore we would expect to have a new launch date within the next couple of days."

Astronaut Robert Crippen, a top shuttle manager, said earlier Tuesday work to replace the controller on main engine No. 2 would take up to a week. But NASA has a history of beating such preliminary schedules, and it is possible Atlantis could be ready to take off as early as Monday. Sieck made no estimate.

The Galileo project is seven years behind schedule and $1 billion over budget because of repeated delays.

In any case, the delay was a frustrating blow to Galileo project scientists and engineers. The project already is running seven years behind schedule and $1 billion over budget because of repeated delays since its inception in 1977.

Atlantis's five-member crew — commander Donald Williams, 47, co-pilot Michael McCulley, 46, flight engineer Franklin Chang-Diaz, 39, Shannon Lucid, 46, and Ellen Baker, 36 — planned to fly back to the Johnson Space Center in Houston early Wednesday.

At issue was the possibility that the controller, which monitors engine performance 50 times a second during ascent, could fail during launch, unnecessarily shutting down the engine.

"The worst scenario you could get into is you could shut down an engine when you didn't want to shut down an engine, which would put you in an abort condition," Crippen said.

To replace the breadbox-sized computer, technicians will have to remove heat shields at the base of the shuttle, reposition main engine No. 2, replace the suspect controller and conduct a series of tests to clear the new unit for flight.

Earlier Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch in Washington denied a request for a temporary restraining order blocking the launch that was filed by activists who argued that Galileo's atomic power packs could leak toxic plutonium into the environment in the event of a launch catastrophe.

"NASA has complied satisfactorily" with government regulations covering the launch of nuclear materials into space, Gasch ruled seven hours after a hearing, removing a legal roadblock to launch.

Anti-nuclear activists said Monday if legal efforts to block the launch failed, they would try to infiltrate the Florida shuttleport to disrupt the countdown and delay the flight. But that confrontation was delayed, along with Atlantis's launch, by the decision to swap out the engine controller.

The problem cropped up early Tuesday when the controller generated false information in two of 320 data samples taken to calibrate sensors used to monitor engine performance during ascent.

Florida legislative committee rejects bills by governor restricting abortion in state

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Legislature opened a special session on abortion Tuesday, and within hours lawmakers handed Gov. Bob Martinez his first setback in his push for further restrictions.

The special session, the first in the nation since the U.S. Supreme Court in July gave states more power to limit abortion, made Florida the focus of the emotionally divisive issue.

House and Senate members gathered under tight security at noon and dispersed 40 minutes later into committee meetings, where many observers expected the fate of Martinez's proposed abortion restrictions would be settled during the next few days.

The Senate Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee voted 9-3 to kill three of the four bills containing the governor's proposals by 7:20 p.m. A fourth bill was defeated on an 8-4 vote 30 minutes later. Among the bills killed was the governor's proposal to require fetus viability testing at 20 weeks — the centerpiece of the governor's proposals.

"They're pretty dead," said Chairwoman Eleanor Weinstock, D-West Palm Beach.

Sen. John Grant, R-Tampa, sponsor of the viability bill said, "Make no mistake about it, this is a bill to place further restrictions on abortion in Florida. If the unborn people don't have the right to life, maybe the rest of us don't have any rights at all."

The other two bills would have required a woman seeking an abortion to wait seven days before an operation and would have banned the use of public money for abortion counseling and abortions at any public hospital.

"It's obviously a setback, and we're disappointed with that," said Pete Dunbar, the legislative liaison for Martinez, who called the session in July. "But it's not over 'til it's over."

The House Health Care Committee also considered the proposals Tuesday, but adjourned without taking any action. Two other key committees, one in the House and the other in the Senate, are scheduled to take up the four bills Thursday.

Anti-abortion advocates are pinning their hopes on the bill that would place further restrictions on abortion clinics, which they believe has the best chance of making it to the House or Senate floor. There it could become the vehicle for amendments imposing the other proposed restrictions, although anti-abortion lawmakers were proceeding with caution.

"I certainly would not want to try to play games on the floor and end up going home without doing anything to protect people in this state," said Sen. John Grant, R-Tampa.

Aides to the Republican governor began to maneuver early Tuesday to try to reach a compromise that would allow a senate vote on the clinic regulations bill. But at an impromptu news conference Martinez insisted that he was still fighting for his full package of abortion limits.

"We're pushing on all pieces of legislation," Martinez said. "Admittedly, the abortion clinic legislation has the most attention. I'm not going to stand here and tell you otherwise."

But key lawmakers continued to predict the $40,000-per-day session will produce no changes in the state's abortion laws. Senate President Bob Crawford and House Speaker Tom Gustafson, both Democrats, said they expect the Legislature may adjourn Wednesday or Thursday, even though Martinez had called for the session to run through Friday.

"I haven't seen a bill yet that doesn't violate (the Florida Constitution's right to) privacy," Gustafson said.

Just before lawmakers began the session, about 10,000 abortion-rights advocates marched through a light fog to the Capitol.

Daytona seeking new image, slogan

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPD) — Daytona Beach is not happy with its self-proclaimed image as the Spring Break capital of Florida, if not America, and is offering prizes for a new slogan.

"What we're trying to do is get rid of the 'party-till-you-puke' image," said Suzanne Smith, director of the Daytona Beach/Halifax Area Chamber of Commerce's spring break festival task force.

Dinner for two at McDonald's is one prize that has attracted hundreds of suggestions in the contest.

Although the ritual college party brings about $120 million to the city during March and April, many residents were outraged the past two years by the behavior of some of the half-million kids who took over the Florida East Coast city.

Business leaders and city officials have indicated next spring break could be the last for Daytona if something is not done to reduce the drunken, lewd and destructive actions of the minority of breakers and area residents.

Already some legal measures have been taken. Hotel owners will be billed whenever police are called to quell a disturbance, the bars are closing an hour earlier and officials are moving to reduce or eliminate pool deck drinking.

Some of the wholesome slogans sent in on postcards, corporate letterhead and even scrap paper include: "Daytona Spring Fiesta," "Daytona Beach Fun Week," "Daytona Beach Break-fest," and "Spring Frolic."

The contest began about two weeks ago. Smith said a winner should be chosen within two weeks.

The slogan will be used with the new spring break logo, block letters forming "Daytona Beach" surrounded by youths surfing, skateboarding, running, playing volleyball — but not drinking.

Smith acknowledged there is plenty of anti-break sentiment in Daytona, but she said the economic boost the event gives the community makes it crucial to find a way to have a calm, sober spring.

Art historian to lecture on research

Mario del Chiaro, an archaeologist and art historian from the University of California-Santa Barbara, will speak Thursday night as part of the University Honors Program lecture series.

Del Chiaro's lecture, "An Extraordinary Roman Villa in Tuscany," will focus on findings he has made on archeological digs in Tuscany, a region on Italy's northwest coast.

Frederick Williams, director of the University Honors Program, said Del Chiaro has been studying a villa that existed close to the time of the early Roman civilization.

"This villa may have been a vacation home for a rich Roman senator. It could have belonged to a friend of Cicero's," Williams said.

The speech is free to the public.

Long Island rap group to perform

Rap group EPMD will bring the sounds of New York City to Southern Illinois when it appears at DuMarac's tonight and Thursday night.

The two-man crew from Long Island have put out two albums since 1988: "Strictly Business," which sold 600,000 copies, and the recently released "Unfinished Business."

The group's biggest selling-single is 1988's "You Gots to Chill."

EPMD, which stands for Erick and Parrish Making Dollars, is composed of Erick Sermon, 20, and Parrish Smith, 21. The group's bass-heavy, dance-oriented music has been acclaimed by many music critics. Stephen Holden of The New York Times said, "They are on the leading edge of a new wave of rap groups whose music often fuses reggae and rap."

John Leland of Spin called EPMD's debut "possibly the most

More acts to perform at Arena

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Two more bands will perform at the SIU-C Arena in November as a part of this year's season.

L.A. Guns will perform at the Arena Nov. 13 and the Statler Brothers will be here Nov. 18.

Michelle Suarez, promotions director of the Arena, said L.A. Guns will perform with two other bands, Dangerous Toys and Tora, Tora. The concert is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

Suarez said line reservation cards will go on sale at the Arena Oct. 21 at 7:30 a.m. Disc Jockey and Record Bar in the University Mall and at Country Market will also sell tickets, but line cards will be available only at the Arena.

The Statler Brothers' concert will begin at 8 p.m. Suarez said the band does not have a definite opening act yet.

Tickets for the Statler Brothers show will go on sale Oct. 21 at 10 a.m. Tickets, not line cards, will be directly available when the Arena opens at 10 a.m. Tickets for that show will be available at the other ticket outlets.

NFL owners meet in Texas, interview candidates for job

GRAPEVINE, Texas (UPI) — NFL owners met Tuesday to interview four prospective successors to Commissioner Pete Rozelle amid an apparent growing commitment to make a selection as soon as possible.

"I'm very positive that something might happen in Dallas," Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said as he entered the meeting room. "I think we have a resolve to get things done."

The first session called for the NFL's search committee to introduce the four candidates and allow the owners to question each for an hour.

New Orleans Saints President Jim Finks is the favorite to succeed Rozelle, but published surveys of the owners indicate he was two votes short of the 19 required to elect a commissioner.

The other three candidates selected by the committee were NFL attorney Paul Tagliabue, Hall of Fame defensive end Willie Davis and New York Republican state chairman J. Patrick Barrett.

The owners' agenda called for their first session to last until 8 p.m. EDT and continue after a dinner break. Balloting was expected during the evening.

This is the second major attempt by the owners to find a successor for Rozelle, who announced last March that he would retire after 29 years on the job.

The first appointed NFL search committee recommended only Finks, but when the owners met in Chicago two months ago they rejected it at recommendation.

A group of dissident owners, Jones among them, voted to abstain because they felt they had no input in the selection of the lone candidate.

"Some of the members of the so-called Chicago 11 (who voted against Finks) have gotten together, and said that they wanted to get something worked out in the next two or three days," Jones said.

"I wouldn't discount the possibility that something may happen here. Now that may not necessarily mean the election of a new commissioner, although it may. But I think we are certainly going to decide what kind of time frame we are going to work in.

"A lot of us have talked it over and we want to get our heads together and compromise or do whatever it takes to get things going."

Rozelle chaired the meeting at a Dallas-Fort Worth airport hotel and he had asked the owners to clear their schedules through Thursday. But there were indications if an agreement could not be reached Tuesday night, the meeting could come to a quick end.

No. 1 Irish way of No. 14 Air Force

Holtz considers Air Force among top 10 in nation

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Knowledge is no blessing for Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, whose top-ranked Irish face No. 14 Air Force and the NCAA's top rushing attack a wishbone offense directed by Heisman Trophy candidate Dee Dowis.

"Maybe we know too much about the wishbone. We know enough to be scared," Holtz said Tuesday. "The wishbone offense is very difficult. You don't play a wishbone and win with effort. You win with execution. They are the best wishbone offense I've ever seen."

The Irish, defending national champions, are 5-0 this year and own the nation's longest win streak at 17 games. Air Force (6-0) averages 44.8 points and 449 yards rushing a game. Dowis, an elusive 5-foot-10 senior, has rushed for 802 yards on 74 carries, while running back Rodney Lewis has 584 yards on 81 carries.

"Dee Dowis is an outstanding quarterback," Holtz said. "You look at stats and he owns all their records. He's exceptional. You can't hit him. You can't intimidate him. You can't take him out of the game. But Air Force is more than Dee Dowis. They have a strong offensive line and they have running backs who carry the ball well. Defensively, Air Force is quick and they've gotten tremendous pressure on opposing quarterbacks."

The Irish emphasize the run as well, rushing for 241 yards a game behind the option play of Tony Rice and endurance of running backs Ricky Waters and Anthony Johnson. Notre Dame also uses the wishbone, but that will be little help in preparing the Irish defense for the Falcons, Holtz said.

"We have an advantage over other teams because we can run the wishbone in practice," he said. "But we can't run it as sophisticated, as complicated and as complex, nor do we execute it as well as Air Force. We cannot simulate the precision."

"If you defend the wishbone perfectly, you still can't necessarily stop the wishbone on paper. If one person blows a tackle, not only are they going to make yardage but they're going to make a lot of yardage. Defending the wishbone, you can't let imagination replace good judgment. The whole thing will be how well we adjust to what they do," Holtz said.

Air Force has not faced a defense as fast as Notre Dame's unit, Holtz said, but he respects such Falcon blowout victims as San Diego State, Wyoming, Colorado State and Navy.

"I've rated them in the top 10 in the country," Holtz said. "They're that good. They haven't even been challenged. They haven't been in a (close) football game."

The Irish enter the game healthy except for defensive end Devon McDonald, who has a knee injury. Improving the Irish pass attack is a major concern for Holtz in practice this week.

"We're not what I would refer to as a productive offense," Holtz said. "We see different defenses stunting, moving and jumping and we have difficulty handling that. We're going to have to throw the ball more."

Illini QB awaits Purdue showdown

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — University of Illinois quarterback Jeff George has waited almost three years to face Purdue at Ross Ade Stadium and he's hoping something as little as an injury won't keep him from starting Saturday in West Lafayette, Ind.

George, who transferred from Purdue after his freshman season, sprained his right knee early in the first quarter of Saturday's 34-14 win over Ohio State. The junior sat out the rest of the half but returned to start the third quarter.

George has missed practice so far this week, but he said he should be ready to play against his former school.

"I just want to make sure I'm ready for Saturday," George said at a Tuesday news conference.

"We'll try to be sure that the days Jeff does not practice, he has a good visual and mental idea of the things we're trying to do," Illini coach John Mackovic said. "Hopefully he'll be able to get enough reps (repetition) that he can handle the game without any difficulty."

The coach of the No. 15 Illini, 3-1, said if he thinks George is not yet fully recovered by game time, backup Jason Verduzco will get the call.

"We will not jeopardize the team, nor will we jeopardize Jeff, if we don't feel that he's physically able to handle things in the game," Mackovic said.

Mackovic added the game being against George's former team will not enter into his decision.

"I can be somewhat dispassionate about situations like that," Mackovic said.

Verduzco surprised the Memorial Stadium crowd during the first half Saturday, as he connected on nine of 14 passes for 126 yards before giving way to George in the second half.

"Jason is much more mobile and he hasn't been hit as many times as Jeff's been hit," Illinois defensive end Mel Agee said.

pleting 28 of 55 passes to win his first Gateway honor.

Gabbert also credits the coaching staff for allowing him the opportunity to play and having the confidence in him to run the offense.

Winning the conference and national awards was unexpected for the season, Gabbert said.

"I'm excited," Gabbert said of the national honor. "I'm surprised and elated. It could be a once-in-a-lifetime thing."

Playing only as a holder in the first three games of the season, Gabbert replaced Fred Gibson in the fourth game of the season at Murray State University after Gibson injured his knee. Since then, Gibson has underwent arthroscopic knee surgery and will back up Gabbert.

In other Gateway news, three of the conference teams are listed in the national poll of Division I-AA teams.

Southwest Missouri State

University is the No. 4 team in the country behind No. 3 Furman, No. 2 Eastern Kentucky and No. 1 Georgia Southern.

Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois both received votes but were not in the top 20.

Two past Saluki non-conference opponents were listed in the top 20 as well. Arkansas State University is ranked No. 11 and Murray State is ranked No. 19. ASU beat the Salukis 28-23 and MSU defeated the Dawgs 24-11 earlier this season.

Chicago Cubs fan Clint Norris displays some of his Cubs memorabilia before the National League Playoff Series last week at the Baptist Student Center cafeteria.

Hardcore Cubs fan disappointed, but still holds hope for next year

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Now that the National League Championship Series is over, the true Chicago Cub fans can be separated from the fans who jumped on the bandwagon.

Although the Cubs were pounded out of World Series contention, there is at least one Cub fan who will stand up and say wait until next year.

Clint Norris, a 30-year-old cafeteria worker at the Baptist Student Center who lives in Carbondale Towers, has followed the Cubbies through thick and thin since 1984.

As an avid collector of Cubs memorabilia, Norris has bats, buttons, jackets, posters, stuffed toys, hats, catalogs and books on the team. He keeps updated on scores and highlights by reading The Sporting News.

In light of the Cubs' loss to the San Francisco Giants in five games, Norris is a little discouraged over the quick exit. As for next year, he says the Cubs will return to the NLCS.

"I'm a little disappointed, but as the old saying goes, wait until next year," Norris said.

Norris said the team needs to fill a few voids with some established players on the free-agent market.

"The Cubs are one of the better teams in the league," he said. "The Cubs and Mets will be the teams in the '90s — everyone else will have to get by. If the Cubs can stay healthy and pick up a few free-agents, they'll do it again next year."

"They need to find a catcher with the talent of a (Tony) Pena or (Gary) Carter," Norris said. They need to go after some free agents like (Hubie) Brooks or (George) Bell."

When asked to point out the differences between the 1984 and the 1989 Cubs, Norris attributes the differences to the amount of experience on the team.

"The '84 team was mostly veterans," Norris said. "They had a lot of older players like Matthews, Moreland and Lopes. This year's team is mostly youngsters. They're on the right track. The next time they get to the playoffs, they'll have the experience and they'll be tougher to beat."

"He has a very thorough knowledge about the Cubs," Childress said. "He has a very unique attitude about the team. Nobody can beat him out as a Cub fan. He's even sent letters to members of the team and management."

Norris seems to be the ultimate Cub fan who will always stand up for his team — even if a World Series game never gets played in Wrigley Field.

Oakland insists this Series won't be repeat of last year

By Jack Etkin
Kansas City Star and Times

This time the Oakland Athletics insist America will see the real thing. Wicked history repeating itself? Another World Series pratfall like last year?

The A's know they have to answer to last year. Then, the mighty A's, winners of 104 games, were disgraced in five games by the upstart Los Angeles Dodgers. Worse, the A's never scored more than four runs in any one game; and that modest peak came in the 5-4 game one loss that certified Kirk Gibson for World Series immortality. In five games, the A's had 11 runs and 28 hits.

They won their second consecutive American League pennant Sunday, beating the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3. The victory completed a 4-1 AL playoff breeze past the Blue Jays. The A's have until Saturday when the World Series opens in Oakland to dwell on their October mission.

"I think they're going to be real ready," A's manager Tony La Russa said. "I think we all learn from our experiences, and I think we'll have a better shot this year. I think we're going to play real good baseball in the World Series."

"If the other team can beat us, it's because they outplayed us, and we were playing good. Last year, it bothered me because we didn't play as well as we can. It didn't hurt quite as much if you play real good and somebody plays better."

The Blue Jay's certainly couldn't play with the A's. Despite late-inning sprints in game four — three runs in the last three innings but a 6-5 loss — and Sunday — three runs in the eighth — the Blue Jays won't take the field again until February in Dunedin, Fla.

The A's limited them to 21 runs and 40 hits, only eight of which went for extra bases, and a .242 average. A's pitchers kept the Blue Jays power in check, holding Fred McGriff (3-for-21, .143 average) and George Bell (4-20, .200) down. Combined, McGriff-Bell had just one home run and five RBIs.

The A's got their usual high-voltage charge from Rickey Henderson, the unanimous selection for Most Valuable Player in the playoffs. Henderson batted .400 (six for 15) with two homers, five RBIs, eight stolen bases, seven walks and had a 1,000 slugging percentage. The A's also benefited from superb scouting reports and excellent fielding.

"We won a lot of ballgames with our pitching and our defense and showed we're not just a power-hitting team," said Mike Gallego, the A's versatile infielder who played second base and shortstop in the series. "We've got so many ways to beat you. It makes this club so tough to pitch to, so tough to defense, so tough to execute against because there are guys that can do anything that's called upon in the game of baseball. We can run. We can play defense. We can hit for power. We can hit and run."

And they can showboat. Some freeze frames of this series include Dave Parker taking a casual stroll around the bases, index fingers wiggling, Jose Canseco watching the monstrous homer he launched into the SkyDome's upper deck Saturday and then flipping the bat aside and taking a slow trot around the bases.

And Henderson, always Henderson. Lime batting gloves. Headlong slides to steal another base. And adding a series of stutter-steps — baseball's equivalent of the Ali Shuffle — on his home run trots.

"Our team is made up of a number of outstanding individuals," A's general manager Sandy Alderson said, "who have their own style, and the nice thing is the individual style doesn't get in the way of the collective effort."

"There is a fine line between discipline and rigidity, and Tony is able to maintain good discipline without stifling exuberance, creativity and enthusiasm. Plus it's nice to win. I think you have to win over a period of time to tolerate the creativity, individuality and exuberance."

The A's survived injuries to Eckerlesley, who missed 40 games; Canseco, 38 games; shortstop Walt Weiss, 65 games; first baseman Mark McGwire, 14 games; pitcher Storm Davis, 20 games; and pitcher Bob Welch, 14 games. Still, the A's were never more than three games behind after April 20.

They moved into first place for good August 10, took undisputed possession of first for good August 21 and broke away from the California Angels and Kansas City Royals.

Will Clark stresses importance of hunting in father-son relations

By Tom Steinstra
San Francisco Examiner

Will Clark gets that same fixated stare watching a duck fly overhead as he does gazing at a knee-high fastball. It's like his eyes are lasers that will melt anything in his path.

He tends not to miss, whether it's a low slider with the bases loaded or a flight of mallards diving-bombing out of a dark morning sky.

"It's one of those things you are born with," Clark said. "Because I've played baseball, those qualities have been enhanced a little bit and carried over into my shooting."

Clark, 25, of the San Francisco Giants, believes that hitting and hunting go together — just like father and son, and shotguns and conservation.

He's taking the stand that hunting can provide the link that can bond a father and son for life. In turn, the sooner kids can be educated about the values of hunting, the easier "they'll be able to make the transition to becoming conservationists," Clark says, and protect the wetlands that waterfowl must have to survive.

To prove his sincerity, he's willing to make this one-of-a-kind offer: "Come duck hunting with my dad, brother and me."

Clark will hold a drawing for anybody under 21 who joins the California Waterfowl Association ($5, youth classification). The winner will receive a first-class, two-day, all-expenses-paid duck hunt for two (parent/child) with Will, father Bill and brother Scott, 12. The hunt will take place in December in the Bay Area.

Why is Clark making the offer? Simple, he says. Reasons like the strength of family ties and seeing the greatness of nature from conservation work.

"Duck hunting in general has always been a father-son relationship in my life," Clark said. "I learned from growing up with my dad, who would go out of his way to teach me about duck hunting, how important that relationship is.

It's the same way with me now, trying to teach my little brother.

"I've been involved with duck hunting since I was a youngster. My father taught me how to handle a shotgun, how to handle it carefully, and also taught me about the benefits and fun of hunting. I've been into it ever since I was 5 or 6 years old."

Clark says it has become critical that younger hunters be recruited in order to aid the conservation effort to save and restore waterfowl habitat. In California's fertile Central Valley, 92 percent of the historical wetlands have been lost.

While politicians look the other way, duck hunters have raised millions of dollars for waterfowl habitat restoration.

"Hunting in California has been a different experience because of the different habitat," Clark said. "You don't find much marsh in California, at least not the type of marsh or swamp that we're used to in Louisiana."

Bay Area mayors involved in spat

(UPI)—Bickering between the mayors of San Francisco and Oakland may prevent the traditional World Series bet between heads of the rival cities.

An angry Oakland Mayor Lionel Wilson accuses San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos of maligning the home city of the American League champion Athletics.

Agnos, asked what he would bet Wilson if the Giants won the National League pennant and met the A's in the World Series, told an Oakland television reporter last week: "There is nothing in Oakland I want."

Agnos later said he was joking. But Wilson didn't take it that way. He fired off an irate note to the San Francisco mayor.

"He called me but I didn't return his call," Wilson said. "I was too upset, and I think I had a legitimate reason. I've never said anything to try and diminish San Francisco."

Wilson said he may make the traditional World Series bet instead with Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, who represents San Francisco, or state Senator Quentin Kopp.

Or if he does bet with Agnos, Wilson said "maybe I'll have a plastic foot made (that) he can put in his mouth."

Carol McArthur, an aide to Wilson, said Monday night she expected the dispute to be settled.

"As far as we're concerned, anything that happened in the past is being handled privately," McArthur said. "I hope we can just put this behind us and move on."

Wilson once called San Francisco "a nice amenity for Oakland" during a 1987 spat with San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein.

Gabbert garners national accolade

Sophomore quarterback Scott Gabbert added to his list of awards Tuesday when the Sports Network announced he had won their award for the national Division I-AA Offensive Player of the Week.

Tracie Dittmore, director of information for the Gateway Conference, said it was the first time this year a player from the conference was given the honor.

It was also the first time in the five year history of football in the Gateway Conference that a Saluki was chosen for the award, Dittmore said.

Former Western Illinois quarterback Paul Singer was the last player from the conference to win the national honor, she said. Singer was chosen last season.

Gabbert said the award was one the entire offensive unit could share.

"I'm just thankful for the opportunity to play," Gabbert said.

"It's a credit to the offensive line," Gabbert said. In Gabbert's record-breaking performance against Northern Illinois University last Saturday, Gabbert threw for 381 yards, completing 41 of 60 passes, all Saluki records. Gabbert was sacked only twice on the day.

"I threw to 11 different receivers and it's (the award) a credit to them for catching the ball," Gabbert said.

Gabbert nailed down the Gateway Conference Offensive Player of the Week for the second straight time with his performance against NIU. Against Arkansas State University two weeks ago Gabbert threw for 343 yards, com-

Saluki defense glad to play against a non-wishbone set

Saluki defensive end Scott Boelte has had enough with the wishbone offense and is ready to get back to playing basic defense.

The last two teams the Salukis have faced, operated the run-oriented offense with some success against the Saluki defense.

Northern Illinois University racked up 416 yards rushing in their 29-24 victory over the Salukis last Saturday. Arkansas State University compiled 308 yards on the ground two weeks ago in a 28-25 triumph over the Dawgs.

"We are finally going to get back to the basics," Boelte said. "We need to get back on our basic defense and get after it a little bit."

Stanley King, defensive backs coach, said the Salukis are not looking back at past performances, nor are they looking past their next opponent.

The Salukis will enter back into their Gateway Conference schedule Saturday at home against Illinois State University.

"This is a new season," King said. "We have to set our sights on them and not look ahead."

Boelte said the Salukis cannot take the Redbirds' 1-4 record lightly.

"Their record is a little deceiving like ours," Boelte said. "We need to get up for this game."

The Salukis return home after three straight losses on the road.

"It has been kind of a long discouraging road trip," Boelte said. "Coming home will be like a new season for us."

The Saluki defense may be without linebacker Kevin Kilgallon, who leads the team in tackles with 61, because of an ankle sprain sustained after making an interception against NIU.

King said Kilgallon hasn't practiced thus far this week and would be hard to replace in the defensive lineup if he were to miss the ISU game.

"We've got some bumps and bruises on defense," King said. "We are looking for some people to step in and take up the slack."

"We are really hoping (Kilgallon) is out there" against ISU, King said. "He is a tremendous team leader and competitor."

Either sophomore Leroy Wright or senior Brian Miller will fill in at Kilgallon's position if he is not able to play.

The Salukis have beaten the Redbirds 12 of the last 13 times the teams have met and the last four years in a row. The Redbirds last beat the Salukis in 1984 by the score of 35-7.

Salukis win Gateway awards

Senior Lisa Johnson and freshman Leeann Conway were selected as Coors Gateway Conference Athletes of the Week in their respective sports.

This is the second award for each Saluki this season.

Johnson, a member of the women's golf team, captured the award after her performance at the Lady Buckeye Invitational last weekend in Columbus, Ohio.

Johnson tied for 18th place out of 84 golfers, establishing her 54-hole career low of 240 strokes.

Johnson was named Gateway Player of the Week earlier this season when she set her previous 54-hole career-low of 241 at the Lady Northern Tournament in Minneapolis.

So far this season, Johnson has a team-best 80.5 average for eight rounds of play. She has fired four rounds in the 70s.

Conway, a member of the women's cross country team, won the award for the second week in a row. She placed fourth at the Indiana State Invitational last weekend and moved into seventh place on the Saluki all-time list.

On Sept. 30 Conway was the individual winner at the Saluki Invitational with a time of 8:11.11.

Conway's time of 18:10 is second best in the Gateway this year. Kathy Campbell of Western Illinois University set the fastest time at 17:56.

Cubs look to get farther next year

CHICAGO (UPI) — After a dreamlike season that ended with a slap in the face by the San Francisco Giants, the Chicago Cubs look toward next year.

"This year's over with," said reliever Mitch Williams, who gave up the winning hit Monday in Game 5 of the National League playoffs. "We just finished five games longer than anyone expected us to play this year."

"So I'm happy with the year, I'm not content with it. I think that we can be in a World Series, and hopefully next year we can come out and get a little further than we did this year."

Instead of preparations for Game 6 at Wrigley Field Tuesday, groundskeepers ripped up grass in foul territory. Players arrived at the clubhouse one by one, packed their belongings and said goodbye.

The 1989 season lasted longer Page 24, Daily Egyptian, October 11, 1989 for the Cubs than anyone thought, although it ended abruptly and in traditional heartbreak fashion when the Giants swept three games at Candlestick Park to move on to the World Series against Oakland.

Still, Cub fans can look toward the young players that were so important this season. Chief among them were center fielder Jerome Walton and left fielder Dwight Smith, both candidates for NL Rookie of the Year honors.

"We got a lot of experience this year with the success we had, and success always brings confidence," Smith said. "And I think that's going to carry on to next year."

Veteran right fielder Andre Dawson will undergo knee surgery in the offseason. But he will be back, with the Cubs having picked up the final year of his contract.

The Cubs also found another diamond in their infield in first baseman Mark Grace, who batted Giants first baseman Will Clark nearly hit for him during the playoffs. Grace shined along with second baseman Ryne Sandberg and shortstop Shawn Dunston, who put together his finest season. Third baseman Vance Law may move on because of the late-season acquisition of Luis Salazar from San Diego.

The Cubs have three strong catchers. Rookies Joe Girardi and Rick Wrona contributed after Damon Berryhill was lost with shoulder problems.

General Manager Jim Frey may spend the winter searching for pitching help because Manager Don Zimmer was forced to rely on three main starters much of the season.

Gateway Conference play begins for the 9-6 Salukis at 7 p.m. Friday as the Western Illinois Westerstinds blow into Davies Gymnasium. The Westerstinds are 14-5 for the season. This contest represents the first Conference match for both teams.

Last year the Salukis beat the Westerstinds in three games. This matchup is going to be a tough one, Saluki volleyball coach Patti Hagemeyer said. "Western is a good team and this year they are off to their best start ever. They are a team that is big and strong. Western has some pretty quick wins, they have won a number of matches in under an hour."

Western seems to overpower some of the teams they play, said Hagemeyer. "I think they are physically bigger than we are, but I don't think that's anything we can't combat. One thing I know for sure is that Western wants to beat us pretty bad. I guess it's my job to get our kids ready for that game on Friday."

The Westerstinds are chomping at the bit to get a chance to play Southern again. Western Illinois volleyball coach Juli Kartel said, "I expect Southern to be a different team from last year due to a new coach and new players. We are anxious to play, our seniors are especially hungry for a win against Southern."

"We were ready a week ago to begin conference play. I can hardly hold them back, they are about ready to burst," Kartel said.

Kartel said Western team has prospered due in part to their superior senior leadership. "Our senior leadership is very mature. They are emotional, dedicated and an inspiration to the team. The team is very consistent in backing them up. We are mentally and physically better this year."

The pressure to win in conference matches is intense for both teams. "You only play everyone (in the conference) once, there is a tremendous pressure to win," Kartel said.

Chicago player suspended

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Blackhawks defenseman Dave Manson has been suspended for three games for bumping linesman Ron Asselstine to the ice during a fight-filled 5-3 loss to the New York Rangers Sunday night, the team announced Monday.

Blackhawk General Manager Bob Pulford argued against the suspension, saying the Rangers' Chris Nilan also was involved.

"It was a borderline call," Pulford said. "Asselstine had a hold on Nilan" stick with one hand. When Manson went by to get at Nilan, he shoved Asselstine out of the way. But at the same time, Nilan jerked his stick, which spun Asselstine."

Blackhawk Assistant Coach E. J. McGuire also was unhappy with the decision to suspend Manson.

"As I reviewed it, it was Nilan as much as Manson responsible."
