Revamp of chancellor's office OK'd

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees, meeting Thursday in Edwardsville, unanimously approved reorganization of the chancellor's office as proposed by Chancellor-designate Kenneth Shaw.

Acting Chancellor James M. Brown, who leaves office Saturday, was appointed vice chancellor at an annual salary of $55,284. The figure represents a 7 percent increase over Brown's salary when he was general secretary of the SIU System, before the February governance change. However, it is a $2,496 decrease in the salary he received as acting chancellor.

Brown's duties will be to assist Shaw in managing the SIU System and to assume the duties of chancellor in Shaw's absence. Brown will also direct the system's external relations with governmental agencies and with the public.

The reorganization plan calls for the addition of a public information officer to the chancellor's staff at an annual salary to be negotiated between $18,000 and $22,000. The public information officer will coordinate the production of printed material to inform the public about activities of the SIU system. He or she will also be charged with producing a "fact book" about the system for use by University officials.

Shaw said he expects the position to be filled within the next two to three months.

The only opposition expressed to the plan came from SIU-E Student Body President Michael Stern, who objected to the system having two top administrators with a total salary of more than $120,000.

Board Chairman Harris Rowe told Stern, "You seem to ignore the fact that we're in competition in the job market."

Stern complained that the board had not stated its intention of creating the new positions when it approved SIU's system of governance in February.

"It's true that we didn't say we were going to establish a vice chancellor's office," Rowe said. "But we didn't say we wouldn't either."

Shaw, in proposing the plan, said it would not violate an amendment he had proposed to the new system of governance in February which limits the budget for the chancellor's staff to that of the board staff.

At a press conference following the meeting, Shaw said the new positions would be paid for with surplus funds which have been appropriated for the staff but have not been spent.

Brown said that last year's surplus amounted to $160,600. Previously, the funds had been

Chancellor search outlay twice as much as expected

The nationwide search for a chancellor of the SIU System cost a total of $61,752 more than twice the estimate of Acting Chancellor James Brown when the Board of Trustees voted to begin the search in February.

The cost breakdown of the search, released by the board Thursday, shows that travel, food, lodging and salaries of the 23 members of the Chancellor Search Assistance Council alone amounted to $31,662.

CSAC Chairman Keith Sanders was unavailable for comment.

Other expenditures were:

- Candidate travel, food and lodging: $12,012.
- Travel, food and lodging for board members: $6,506.
- Advertising: $4,004.
- Student Center charges: $2,343.
- Presidential Search Consultation Service: $1,022.
- Printing: $400.
- Miscellaneous: $1,289 search.

Board Chairman Harris Rowe said he thought the cost of the search was "well within what was expected."

Budget approved

SIU-E project top priority

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

Despite the objections of SIU-C Acting President Hiram Lesar, the SIU Board of Trustees voted Thursday to rank the construction of a proposed $9.6 million multi-purpose building at $11.8 million higher than the proposed $3.3 million renovation of Davies Gymnasium.

In proposing the list of $25 million worth of capital development projects in the system for fiscal year 1981, the board ranked the multi-purpose building, Davies Gym and a new emission control system for the SIU-C Physical Plant as its top three priorities.

Priorities were ranked because of the possibility of a lack of appropriations for more than one project, the board said.

Bro Saal, SIU-C student trustee, was the lone dissenter of the proposal, which will now be sent to the Illinois Board of Higher Education for approval as part of the system's capital development budget.

Calling the gymnasium a "safety hazard," Lesar cited lack of space and deterioration as reasons for listing the project as "No. 1."

"I played high school basketball in that gym 50 years ago and nothing seems to have been done to it since," he said.

"We admit that Edwardsville has a need for a multi-purpose building, but the Davies project is not as important as the others are appropriated."

Speaking as the president of SIU-E, Chancellor-elect Kenneth Shaw told the board that the construction of the multi-purpose building should rank first since SIU-E has no gymnasium facilities.

"Having played college ball in the same gymnasium, I can understand that it definitely is a problem. I think remodeling is essential but you have facilities there, whereas at Edwardsville there are no facilities," Shaw said.

Lesar responded to Shaw's statement by saying, "One is better off for having nothing for men or women than having something inadequate for women and something more adequate for men."

Board Chairman Harris Rowe later said in a press conference that, should the system receive appropriations for only the first priority, there is a possibility that the board will try to move a special bill through the legislature in order to get the gymnasium funds.

Similar action was taken in order to receive appropriations for the construction of the new Law School at SIU-C.

The board also approved a $267,980,800 internal operating budget for the system, which is composed of both campuses and the Office of the Chancellor. The budget is based on state appropriations and anticipated non-appropriated income for fiscal year 1982, which began in July.

Under the board's approval, state appropriated funds will amount to $98,309,500 for SIU-C, $42,143,800 for SIU-E and $901,500 for the Office of the Chancellor. Carbondale will receive $34,303,990 in non-appropriated funds while Edwardsville will receive $12,322,100.

In other action, the board unanimously approved the following:

—the establishment of a Glenn "Ab" Martin chair and $1,000 education student scholarship. Funds for the

Enrollment defies odds; SIU-C figures up 1.5

By Karen Gallo
Staff Writer

Despite predictions by SIU officials of a drop in enrollment and government reports of a 1.2 percent drop nationwide for the 1979-80 academic year, fall enrollment at SIU-C climbed to a total of 22,696 students. This is an increase of 145 students over last fall's count. Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records said.

The largest number of women in attendance at SIU-C since the fall of 1971 is found in the breakdown of on-campus students—12,419 men, up 12 from last year and 2,202 women, a gain of 17.

An increase in the number of freshmen and transfer students and stability in the ranks of continuing students are the biggest factors contributing to higher enrollment this fall, Browning said.

There are 3,181 new freshmen at SIU-C this fall, 130 more than last year, Browning said. The figure for continuing undergraduate students stayed almost constant, increasing by four. Last year the number of continuing undergraduates dropped by 223, he said.

The largest increase was found in the number of students who are enrolled at SIU and attend classes at the Carbondale campus, Roland Klein, associate director of admissions and records said Thursday. The enrollment count shows an increase over last year of 129 students on the Carbondale campus, he said. Off-campus enrollment at extensions of SIU around the country, mostly military bases, is 1,967, an increase of 16.

"It's a strange year for enrollment to go up," Klein said. "The number of students graduating from high school has gone down and fewer jobs are available this year. These factors usually indicate a decrease in enrollment figures, but higher education in Illinois seems to be holding its own."

The greatest increases in individual class enrollment are in the number of freshmen and seniors, Klein said. While 159 more freshmen and 139 more seniors enrolled this fall, the number of sophomores and juniors actually decreased from last year.

Trustees approve salary increases

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees approved salary increases Thursday for administrators, faculty and Civil Service personnel as part of SIU-C's $152,613,400 operating budget for fiscal year 1980.

The increases are retroactive to July 1 (the beginning of the fiscal year), and were included in the Sept. 1 paychecks, said Robert Gentry, vice president for financial affairs.

Dr. Richard Moy, dean, professor and provost of the Medical School, is the highest-paid person in the system. His salary of $75,084 rose 3.22 percent from the $70,664 he received last year. The executive associate dean of the Medical School, Dr. David Taylor, received an 11.96 percent increase, from $63,460 to $70,932.

The highest-paid administrator at SIU-C, Acting President Hiram Lesar, received a 7 percent increase, with his yearly salary rising from $54,336 to $58,140. Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs, will receive a salary of $54,324, an increase of 6.34 percent over last year. Elmer Clark, dean of the College of Education, received a 7.51 percent increase from $46,000 to $49,464 per year.

W.D. Künstra, professor in zoology, is the highest-paid faculty member with a yearly salary of $52,120. His salary rose 8.62 percent from $48,000.

Other administrators and their new salary levels (last year's salary in parenthesis) include: Don Knapp, physician for the student health programs, $49,452 ($46,212); John Guyon, associate vice president for research in the Graduate School, $49,440 ($45,780); Gentry, $47,388 ($45,800); George Mace, vice president for university relations, $47,124 ($43,704); Barry A. Adams, executive director for computing services, $45,768 ($42,168); John Darling, dean of the College of Business and General Administration, $45,346 ($41,888); Arden Pratt, dean of the School of Technical Careers, $45,312

Major student groups allocated funds

By Diana Penser
Staff Writer

The Student Senate allocated $160,170 in student fees to six major student groups at its second meeting Wednesday.

Undergraduate Student Organization President Pete Alexander earlier this week vetoed the allocations approved by the Senate at its first meeting on Sept. 5. There were not enough senators at the meeting to form the two-thirds majority required to override a veto.

Alexander said earlier this week that it was "hard to justify giving some groups an increase and not others."

"Our intent now is to allocate to major impact groups" and the larger programming councils, Alexander told the Senate. He said that smaller student organizations should request funds from the Senate Finance Committee and the "blanket" organizations, such as the Student Programming Council and the Black Affairs Council.

The amounts allocated were $27,830 to the Undergraduate Student Organization, $68,160 to the Student Programming Council, $17,985 to the Black Affairs Council, $8,450 to the Inter-Greek Council, $2,165 to the International Student Council, $13,600 to WDB Radio Station and $2,000 to the Student Senate Special Projects fund.

The remaining monies, about $20,000, will be placed in the Student Organization Activity Fund, and will be distributed to recognized student organizations on a case-by-case basis. There are about 300 organizations on campus eligible to request funds.

Motions to increase the amount of funds given the Black Affairs Council by $5,000 and to give the Veterans' Association $2,750 were defeated.

Offering no explanation to the Senate for his action, Alexander pulled from the agenda the nomination list for chair of the Presidential Search Committee. Alexander said Thursday that because the procedure to select the chair has been changed, there was no longer any reason to make the nominations. According to a leader of one of the campus constituencies, Chancellor-designate Kenneth Shaw told constituency heads to put their nominations "on hold."

In other business, the Senate approved Mitzi Wisniewski as public relations commissioner and Kellie Watts as election commissioner, as well as several other presidential appointments. The Campus Internal Affairs committee is still reviewing several appointments.

End of merit system for deputies urged

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

A lawsuit filed recently against the Jackson County Board has apparently compelled the board's chairman to recommend that a merit system for the county's deputy sheriffs be abolished.

County Board chairman Bill Kelley introduced a motion at the board's meeting Wednesday night calling for an end to the five-year-old merit commission which oversees tenure, promotion and raises for the county's deputy sheriffs. The three-member commission also administers competency tests used for hiring purposes.

The lawsuit, filed by jailer Willie Nelson and deputies David Youngberg and Dan Stone, contends that the county board has interfered with the functions and duties of the merit commission. They are asking that an earlier decision by the county board to exclude jail officers from the merit commission be overruled.

In his motion before the board, Kelley stated that "many problems have developed from the merit system," including "a very expensive lawsuit and that elimination of the commission would be beneficial to residents of Jackson County."

Board member Gene Chambers said that his idea of a merit commission had been one of partnership with the board. However, Chambers said, the commission has never tried to cooperate with the board and has only come before it to ask for money.

Action on the motion was postponed until the board's next meeting on Oct. 10. The preliminary hearing for the suit, filed on behalf of the Jackson County Deputy Sheriff's Association, is scheduled for Sept. 27.

Kelley said he had supported

CIPS rate hike blasted

A city can raise service fees or cut services to cover high utility costs, but just what do people on fixed incomes cut back on—food, shelter and clothing? asked Carol Fry, Carbondale city manager, Thursday afternoon.

Fry was one of several people, who testified at a Illinois Commerce Commission public hearing concerning the Central Illinois Public Service's proposed 12 percent rate increase.

City employees only received a 6 percent wage increase last year, Fry said. How do you expect them to pay a 12 percent utility rate increase when they only received a 6 percent wage increase, he questioned, expressing his opposition to the rate hike.

He said that before the ICC

Law School needs funds, may leave GSC

By Charly Gould
Staff Writer

If the Law School drops out of the Graduate Student Council, it will probably ask to do so by submitting a bylaw at the next GSC meeting, said Jim Rodgers, president of the Student Bar Association.

"There are two alternatives," Rodgers said. "I could go the the GSC and introduce a bylaw to separate the Law School from the GSC and if it is passed by the council I will ask for our funds. If the council rejects our bylaw, we will appeal to the administration."

The second alternative will be bypassing the GSC altogether and going directly to the administration, Rodgers said.

Rodgers said at this point, he did not know which route he would take, but if the first alternative is taken, the law students would ask to be separated from the GSC at the council's next meeting.

"The main reason for all of this," Rodgers said, "is if the SBA is going to be an effective organization, we need to grow, and I don't see any growth with the GSC. Also, in order to grow, we need funds and as long as the GSC holds the strings to the funds, we aren't going to grow. I hope to make the SBA a strong organization."

According to Rodgers, the GSC has not been supportive of the Law School. In one incident occurring spring semester 1978, the Law School asked Ray Huebechmann, GSC president

Hurricane wrecks Gulf Coast

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Hurricane Frederic pushed inland Thursday after cutting a 100-mile-wide swath through the scenic Gulf Coast, leaving behind a rubble of splintered dwellings, boats and businesses and at least two people dead.

Some of the more than 400,000 people who had fled before the hurricane moved ashore late Wednesday picked their way back home only to find their houses in shambles. Thousands of others remained in emergency shelters.

President Carter designated 30 counties in Mississippi, Florida and Alabama as major disaster areas, making them eligible for federal aid, and the White House said the president will personally inspect the area by helicopter Friday.

Looting broke out in Mobile and suburban Prichard as Frederic howled northward through southeast Mississippi and into Alabama Thursday afternoon, and the National Guard was called out to a d police.

Neo-Nazis jailed in West Germany

BUECKEBURG, West German, (AP) — A West German judge sentenced six neo-Nazis Thursday to prison terms of four to 11 years on charges they organized or participated in right-wing criminal activity planned by their American leader.

The prison sentences followed the first major trial of neo-Nazis in this country and came after a government report warned that such groups were adopting terrorist tactics in an effort to overthrow democracy.

After a four-month trial, the court concluded that the six men followed the orders of self-styled U.S. Nazi leader Gary Rex Lauck, of Lincoln, Neb. Lauck, 25, classified by the federal prosecutor's office as "persona non grata" in West Germany, was given a safe conduct pass and immunity so he could enter the country and testify for the defense.

Members of the neo-Nazi group, in frequent public appearances, wear black paramilitary outfits with insignias.

Learning requires both student and teacher effort

The New York State Court of Appeals ruled this summer that a school district can't be sued for educational malpractice. The ruling came in a lawsuit filed by the parents of a high school graduate who, despite his possession of a diploma, was functionally illiterate.

The case, Donohue vs. Copiague Union Free School District, concerned Edward Donohue, who was graduated in 1976 from Copiague Senior High School on Long Island. His lawyers claimed that he graduated without "even the rudimentary ability to comprehend written English on a level sufficient to enable him to complete applications for employment."

Donohue and his parents sued for $5 million in damages on the grounds of educational malpractice. Judge Matthew Jason noted that the state constitution does not require school districts to ensure that each pupil receives a minimum education.

The state constitution does require that a person go to school for a certain number of years and punishes those who do not comply. That's common policy. Some say that if the student must attend, then the school must educate. That's what Donohue's lawyers said.

But education is not the one-way street approach that Donohue and his supporters think it is. The school provides some of the means for education, but some effort must come from both the student and parents. No teacher can force anybody to learn. What was Donohue doing and what were his parents doing as he proceeded to graduation? Didn't anyone notice that he couldn't read? Didn't his parents notice his illiteracy? Didn't Donohue himself realize his inability?

Parental and student responsibility are still necessary ingredients for a proper education. If neither parent nor student puts forth the minimum effort to even learn to read, not even the most brilliant educator can help.

That isn't to say there aren't any bad schools, goof-off teachers, lax administrators or inequities in educational opportunity. Those problems do exist.

But malpractice lawsuits of the Donohue sort aren't the way to solve them.

Pity the teacher who has to contend with students who are so dull-witted or uncaring, for whatever reason, that they can't or won't take it upon themselves to learn what they're there to learn.

Donohue's parents have put the cart before the horse. Now that Donohue has blown his chance to get educated, they want monetary rewards because their son (and themselves) failed to meet their own responsibilities.

The court's ruling was a good one. Unlike medical or legal personnel, who are subject to malpractice rulings, the educator must rely not only on his or her teaching ability, but also on willing students. An educator can lead the horse to water, but he can't make him drink.

Protestants anti-abortion, too

I read with interest the article about the new organization "The Southern Illinoisans for Abortion Rights." In a democracy, they have every right to exist and to do what they can to convince others that their viewpoint is correct.

Rep. Ralph Duns, R-Du Quoin, was quoted in the article as thinking the general feeling in Southern Illinois was strongly anti-abortion. I was born and raised in Du Quoin and I certainly agree.

Southern Illinois is heavily Protestant so its strong anti-abortion position might surprise those who falsely believe only Catholics oppose abortion. Catholics are a minority, too in the State Legislature that passed the bill which Jan Susler calls an anti-abortion bill.

It is not surprising to see so many Protestants against abortion on demand.

Letters

The great Protestant theologian Karl Barth declared, "Deliberate abortion is irrefutably seen to be sin, murder and transgression."

The famous Protestant minister Dietrich Bonhoeffer said, "Destruction of the embryo in the mother's womb is a violation of the right to live which God has bestowed upon this nascent life. To raise the question whether we are here concerned with a human being or not is merely to confuse the issue. The simple fact is that God certainly intended to create a human being; and that this nascent human being has been deliberately deprived of life. And that is nothing but murder."

And that is why Protestant Southern Illinois is anti-abortion.

Health directory needed

At first glance, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale fares some of the finest health maintenance and health promotive organizations at the South or Midwest universities. You need only read the Daily Egyptian or peruse the barrage of red, blue, or white leaflets scattered throughout the Student Center and campus to notice that yes, there are smoking cessation programs, single-parent support groups, stress management workshops, counseling services, patient activation programs, and others that are available to complement the "traditional" curative medical services available.

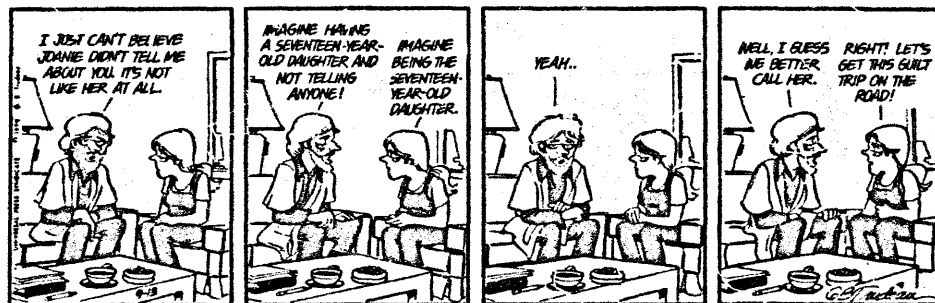

Things, however, are not ideal. The information is scattered and much that is available is incomplete. Sources, costs, contact personnel, locations, and telephone numbers are often left up to the imagination of the students who may want or need the services. One might wonder also about the effectiveness of a 15 word ad in the Daily Egyptian as to whether it really draws persons interested in the activities. Equal and adequate student and staff coverage is also questionable. If a student does not read the Daily Egyptian or those scattered leaflets, it is unlikely that he or she will take advantage of the services.

While certainly not an absolute panacea, I recommend that serious consideration be given to the preparation of a consolidated annual "yellow pages" of health promotive and health maintenance activities and organizations on campus for dissemination to all students each year—updated as required—whereby each student has at his or her disposal a comprehensive guide to the services and activities on campus. Perhaps the Illinois Public Interest Research Group (IPIRG), the student government, or one of the health promotive organizations could take on the task. Such a guide would enhance communications between the existing health services and prevent any unnecessary duplication in services.

The health maintenance and health promotive services are here at SIU-C and we are most fortunate to have them. Providing effective comprehensive informational coverage to the student and staff populations should accompany these services. The more that people know of the services, the more likely they will seek utilization of them.

Festival contest has crowd 'a-peel'

By Paula Walker
Staff Writer

Imagine being up on a stage, in front of a crowd, trying to get the longest possible whole piece of peel off an apple in three minutes.

Participants in the apple peeling contest at the Apple Festival in Murphysboro Wednesday night didn't have to imagine what that would be like. They were experiencing it.

The longest whole peel, carved off by Helen Pierson, was 29 inches. The second-longest peel was 26 inches.

Winners were picked in three categories for most total inches of peel. No pieces under six inches were counted.

In the senior division, Helen Tippet took first place for 482 total inches. Second place went to Brenda Harrison for 348 inches. Joanne Cross, second-place winner for longest peel, accumulated 349 inches.

Angie Givens took first place in the junior division, which was for contestants 16 and under. In the military competition, Air Force Sgt. Chuck Ferguson won with a total of 210 inches.

One contestant, hindered in the competition because she had only a plastic knife, decided to eat her apple instead of peeling it. Three-year-old Becky Bitner, whose siblings, Patty, Danny and Mary, were in the contest, decided she wanted to enter, too.

Auditions set for next week

Auditions will be held for "An Evening of New Plays," three original one-act plays, at 7 p.m. on Sept. 17 and 18 in the Communications Building Laboratory Theater. Roles are available for 10 women and 17 men. The plays will be presented Oct. 18 through 20 in the Laboratory Theater.

The program provides student playwrights who have demonstrated noteworthy skill an opportunity to have their work performed. Supervised by Christian Moe, director of the theater department's playwrighting program, the plays are produced by students who work closely with the playwrights in order to bring the productions to life.

The plays selected for presentation are "Telmah," "Country of the Blind," and "Is This a Murder Mystery?" "Telmah," by John Keppa, is a comic spoof of Shakespeare's "Hamlet." Set on the battlements of Telmah's castle, the play concerns the battles Telmah must fight and win on a path to his kingdom and his love. The play is directed by Daniel Hintzschne.

"Country of the Blind" is an adaptation of a short story by H. G. Wells written by Mary Nitti. The plot centers on the accidental discovery of an isolated colony of blind individuals by an adventurous mountain climber, Armando. The colony is ruled by a council of elders from whose dictatorial rule Armando tries to "liberate" the inhabitants. Highlighted is the conflict of change versus tradition. The play is directed by George Piroya.

Dan Martin's play, "Is This a Murder Mystery?" will be directed by Frankie Day.

Those interested in auditioning should report to the Laboratory Theater at 7 p.m. Information sheets are available in advance in the Green Room adjacent to the University Theater. Scripts may also be signed out from the office of the department secretary. For further information call: Eloise Scherzer, 453-5741.

Jiff Clayburgh and Alan Bates star in "An Unmarried Woman," to be shown in the Student Center Auditorium.

Two movies scheduled

Two movies, "An Unmarried Woman" and "Swept Away," are slated to be shown at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. this weekend in the Student Center Auditorium for $1.

"An Unmarried Woman," the story of an attractive, intelligent woman trying to bounce back emotionally from the ending of her 17-year-old marriage, will be shown in the Student Center Auditorium Friday and Saturday nights.

Written and directed by Paul Mazursky, the movie stars Jill Clayburgh, Alan Bates and Michael Murphy.

Clayburgh plays the role of Erica, an upper middle-class woman who thinks she is safe in a good marriage until she is abandoned by her husband and finds herself lost and alone.

"Swept Away," the story of a love affair between two people marooned on an isolated island in the Mediterranean, will be shown on Sunday night.

Written and directed by Lina Wertmuller, the love story depicts Raffaella, a capitalist for whom the system has paid off and Gennarino, a dedicated communist.

Integrating the themes of sex and politics, the movie explodes into a fierce battle of the sexes that is as "ferocious as it is funny," according to Saturday Review.

Landscape exhibit to open on Friday

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Student Writer

Ten landscape artists will exhibit their paintings at a show titled "Southern Illinois Landscape," which will open at 10 a.m. Sept. 14 at the Hundley House Gallery.

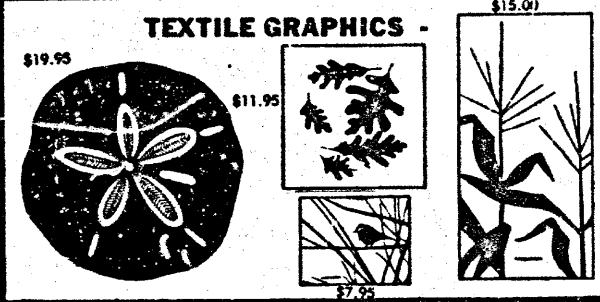

Exhibitors include Herbert Fink, professor of art and Robert Paulson, associate professor of art and SIU-C graduates Ann Peck, her husband Bruce, and Diane Tanchak. An SIU-C student, Mary Baumann, and Carbondale residents Russell Oakes, Marcia Leebeus and Werner Mertz will also exhibit their works.

Millie McElheny, manager of the Hundley House, said that the exhibitors are considered some of the finest landscape artists in Southern Illinois. She added that though the artists will feature only a few pieces of their work, there will be a variety in style.

The show will run until Oct. 4. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. It is located on the second floor of the Hundley House, at 601 W. Main. Admission is free.

Mutt show features look-alike contests

By Jordan Gold
Staff Writer

Ever wonder what your dog with the 12-foot-long tail is good for? When you and Rover walk down the street do people think you're related? Can you only find Spot after you step on him? Well, bring your mutt to the Humane Society's dog show at 10 a.m. Saturday at Evergreen Park.

The show is open to all dogs, according to Humane Society Manager Cindy Gerrish, but mutts are to be featured. Gerrish added that she is hoping for about 100 dogs to attend. "The dog doesn't even have to do tricks to win in a category," she said.

Awards will be given in several categories, including Best Groomed, Longest Tail, Most Unusual Feature, Cutest Trick, Owner-Dog Look-Alike, Benji Look-Alike and others, according to Gerrish.

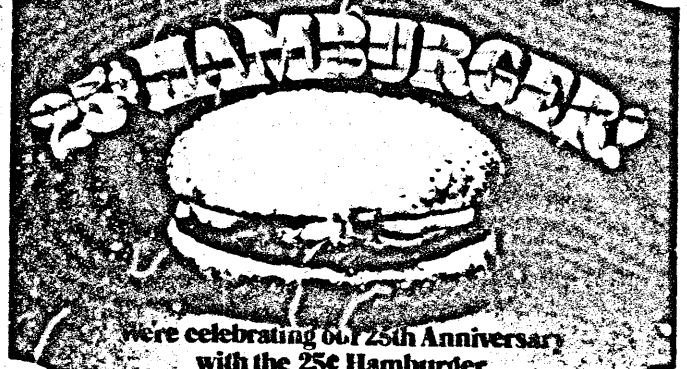

"Ribbons will be given to the top three dogs in each category," she said, "and a plaque will be given to the best dog in the show." Every dog that enters will also get a prize. Gerrish said, but she wouldn't say what the prize was. "It's a surprise."

Other categories include Smallest, for dogs 6 months of age or older, Most mixtures and Most Colors. A frisbee contest, which has four categories of its own, will be held after the initial competition, Gerrish added. "A plaque will be given to the winner of the frisbee competition also," Gerrish said.

Judges include the Animal Control Wardens for Carbondale and Jackson County and Carl Hausler of animal industries. Hausler will give a talk on pet care. Other activities planned include a talk on dog grooming.

Acting president of SIU-E named

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

Earl E. Lazerson, vice president and provost of SIU Edwardsville, was appointed acting president of SIU-E by the Board of Trustees Thursday.

Lazerson, 46, will replace Kenneth Shaw, who becomes chancellor of the SIU System Saturday. Lazerson's salary will be $54,000 a year.

Lazerson's appointment was recommended to the board by Acting Chancellor James Brown after consulting with Shaw and SIU-E constituency groups.

"I shall, therefore, assume the duties of the office knowing that I enjoy the support of a great many of my colleagues," Lazerson told the board after divided between SIU-C and SIU-E at the end of each year. Brown added that the amount was not great enough to put a dent in either institution's budget.

Shaw's plan also changes the titles of five members of the chancellor's staff.

William O'Brien, a professor in the College of Education, has been named the first occupant of the chair.

his appointment. "I expect to seek their wise counsel in matters of vital interest to our mission in higher education."

At a press conference following the meeting, Lazerson would not rule out the possibility that he would seek to succeed himself as president.

Shaw said he was nearing completion of guidelines for presidential searches at Carbondale and Edwardsville. He said he planned to send open letters outlining the guidelines to both university communities next week.

Lazerson first came to SIU-E as an associate professor of mathematics in 1969. In 1972, he became chairman of the mathematics department, and in 1973 he was appointed dean of the School of Science and Technology. He has been vice president and provost of SIU-E since 1976.

A native of Detroit, Lazerson holds a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University and a master's degree from the University of Michigan. He is a former Fulbright scholar at the University of Leiden in the Netherlands.

Flea market customers triple town's population

By Conrad Stuntz
Staff Writer

It's not often that a town's population is matched, doubled, even tripled by an event sponsored by its junior baseball league.

But that's what happened in Johnston City, population 3,900, when well over 15,000 potential customers flocked to Legion Ballpark to attend the Flea Market and Peddlers' Fair.

The event, sponsored by the Johnston City Junior Baseball League, was conducted last Saturday in order to buy lights for the youngsters' ballpark. The event netted approximately $7,000, but it wasn't enough to purchase the lights.

Eileen Crosby, organizer of the flea market, said that over 300 booth holders from five states and northern Illinois "brought really nice things" to sell, including an array of antiques, arts and crafts.

Johnston City is famous for its Fourth of July crowds, but the Johnston City Police Department said that the flea market crowd was three times as large as any they had ever dealt with before. "It was so big that people begged us to hold it over Sunday," Crosby said. Plans are already being made to hold another flea market next May, making the event semi-annual.

The ballplayers had their own booths at the event, ran a snack bar and collected 25 and 10 cent entrance fees from adults and children respectively.

"Fantastic," was the way Crosby described the event, which created "bottleneck" traffic for several miles north and south on Highway 37 and at least one mile each way on Interstate-57.

Police to hold auction of unclaimed evidence

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

Abandoned and unclaimed bicycles, stereos, televisions, as well as other merchandise, will be auctioned by the Carbondale Police Department Saturday, said Randy Jackson, public information officer for the city.

The auction will begin at 10 a.m. in the Community Center Building, 607 E. College St. Inspection of the merchandise will begin at 9:30 a.m., Jackson said.

The merchandise, which includes bicycles, bicycle parts, jewelry, stereos and parts, albums, televisions and other miscellaneous items, will be sold to the highest bidder, Jackson said.

The Carbondale Police Department holds two auctions each year to dispose of unclaimed evidence. The auction Saturday will be an addition to the regularly scheduled ones, said Sgt. Jerry Reno of the police department.

ROTC students visit air force base

By Mike Paluck
Student Writer

"Most of us are here because we want to fly... I want to be an Air Force pilot," Mike Bristow, freshman in computer science, said. "It's what I've always wanted to do."

Bristow was one of 50 SIU-C ROTC students to get an inside look at Scott Air Force Base Saturday.

The day-long tour was designed to give the cadets some experience with Air Force base operations and to learn of Scott's role as the headquarters for two major air commands; the Military Airlift Command and the Air Force Communications service.

The majority of the cadets on the tour were freshmen and sophomores who have no commitment to the Air Force. Several of the other cadets have signed contracts and will receive commissions when they complete their training.

Debbie Hurt, who is currently working on her master's degree in French, is a three-year cadet. "I would like to work with the intelligence branch of the Air Force," Hurt said. "I want to go overseas and translate Air Force information."

Hurt said she would also like to brief or debrief pilots assigned to reconnaissance missions.

Cadet Cindy Schisler is preparing for a medical career with the Air Force. "I want to be a doctor," Schisler said, "but if I can't get into medical school I'll be a nurse in the military."

Jay Edmistor transferred to SIU-C from Illinois State to become part of the program. "I haven't had any ROTC training," Edmistor said, "so I'm doubling up and taking 100 and 200 level courses together. I'm competing for the ROTC scholarship and a pilot's slot. "I'm really enjoying the program here and I think I can contribute a lot," Edmistor said.

Schisler, Edmistor and Bristow came from Air Force families, like many of the cadets, and are accustomed to life on an Air Force base. For some of the others, the trip Saturday was their first experience with base life.

"I expected to see people marching and more planes," junior Rob Burke said.

Freshman Marilyn Melvin, who plans to sign a contract, said the Air Force offers a more secure future and a guaranteed job.

The cadets also visited Scott's weather station which can contact any part of the globe within seconds and relay the information to their pilots during a flight.

Later the cadets had a discussion with recent Air Force Academy graduates and dinner at the Officer's Club.

On the ride back to Carbondale the cadets agreed the visit to the base was an important part of their training. Hurt said, "Everybody in the program should do this to see what goes on at an Air Force base."

Enrollment of foreign students up, majority study in technology fields

By Michael Pirages
Student Writer

More than 250 new foreign students have been admitted and are registered at SIU-C this semester.

"This is one of the largest groups of new foreign students," Beverly Walker, foreign student advisor said.

"SIU-C has no active recruitment force overseas, because there isn't a need for one," Walker said. The prospective foreign student finds out about SIU-C through the overseas offices of the United States Information Agency, friends, relatives and alumni.

Kwang Hwei Lee, 22, a freshman in educational media, is in the U.S. for her first time. She said she learned about SIU-C from a college guidebook in her native Taiwan.

"I didn't even consider any other American university," Lee said.

The majority of new foreign students attending the University are from Malaysia (60), Taiwan (18), Japan (17) and Iran (15).

Admission of foreign students this year increased about 40 percent over last year.

The majors chosen by foreign students are diverse. The most common majors among foreign students include engineering, technology, business, education and the sciences.

"They come to the U.S. because we are recognized as a highly technological nation," Walker said. "Many countries around the world just don't have the facilities or capabilities to educate on the university level."

The foreign student invests a lot of time and effort to have the opportunity to study here, she said. They go through a maze of application forms and government red tape in order to be admitted, Walker added.

"Aside from supplying us with copies of academic records, the foreign student must have English proficiency and be able to verify adequate financial resources, said Jerry Pfaff, director of admissions and records.

Proficiency in English is determined by a Test of English as a Foreign Language. If students score too low on the TOEFL, they can be admitted by passing the test offered by the Center of English as a Second Language.

English training given for these tests is at the applicants own expense. The foreign student is suggested to have financial resources of not less than $4,705 to cover room and board, tuition and fees and incidentals for two semesters. Foreign students pay out-of-state tuition at SIU-C.

Some foreign students receive financial aid to help pay their expenses, Walker said.

Mario Congrieve, 21, a freshman in Radio-TV and Cinema and Photography from Concepcion, Chile, was given a scholarship from the Fulbright Institute of International Education which pays for his tuition. Other sources of financial aid include government scholarships, independent scholarships from the U.S. and abroad, and SIU-C.

The University gives about forty tuition awards annually to foreign students.

Foreign students currently enrolled at SIU-C come from more than 40 foreign countries. Within the next few years that number will increase, with students arriving from the Peoples Republic of China and other nations, Walker said.

"The trend seems to show the enrollment of foreign students will continue to rise during the coming years," Walker said. "Education has become one of the leading exports of this country. We have the finest technology, facilities and teachers."

Zambian professor sees no end to racial conflicts in Rhodesia

By University News Service

Despite the opening of peace talks in London this week between warring factions from Zimbabwe, Rhodesia, settlement of racial problems in that area will not come soon, according to a former United Nations human rights officer now teaching law at SIU-C.

Isaak I. Dore, assistant professor of law and a native of Zambia, has closely studied the racial problems in South Africa, Namibia and Zimbabwe Rhodesia—both as a law student and later as a specialist with the United Nations in Geneva, Switzerland.

"In my view, the so-called black government in Rhodesia is just a cosmetic change. It does not fundamentally change racial minority control of the country, its army, the civil service and the police," Dore said.

Earlier this year, bowing to international pressure, Rhodesian President Ian Smith handed over the reins of government to Bishop Abel Muzorewa and other moderate black leaders. But special rights were retained by the white minority while black leaders from the Patriotic Front, which led the fight against white minority rule, were excluded from the new government.

"As long as the forces which

have been seeking to promote change and majority rule are excluded from power, there can be no majority rule in a meaningful sense," Dore said.

The Patriotic Front has been fighting a guerilla war in Rhodesia for seven years. With forces based in neighboring Mozambique and Zambia, the Front has been continuing to fight the new government headed by Muzorewa.

The London talks are hoped to bring peace through a new constitution. Dore said previous attempts to reach a peaceful solution have not been successful, but added that efforts to teach a non-violent settlement must continue.

The United Nations has maintained economic sanctions against Rhodesia since 1965 when the country declared its independence from Great Britain. Those sanctions are still in effect, but the South African government has not honored them, Dore said.

"The economic power of South Africa is what has sustained Rhodesia," Dore said. "Even if meaningful majority rule does come to Zimbabwe Rhodesia, it will not end racial discrimination in South Africa and Namibia. We may be able to convince South Africa to give up its support of Rhodesia, but we can't convince South Africa to give up itself."

While with the United Nations, Dore worked with a special unit studying the problems of racial discrimination including the apartheid system of South Africa. The unit developed a background paper for a world conference on racism and racial discrimination held last year in Geneva.

Dore received law degrees from the University of Zambia and Yale Law School. He joined the SIU-C faculty this fall and teaches courses in jurisprudence and international law.

"Bro. Lowe calls for unity"

It must include all races and sex. It must be based on autonomy interdependency and mutual love for one another, this is God's love as expressed through Christ. It's coming Universal sufferage for all races and sex will be eliminated. The false Theologians will be restraint. There will be liberty, justice and freedom for all. All deception about God and Christ is done for money. There will be no more bureaucracy atrocity and human arsenal for destruction. These false prophets have more power than Christ had. It's satan and his diabolic demons have this right, Christ gave the believer the right to love not to hate. Saten's dominion is destructive, Christ's dominion is constructive, it's not destructive. There will be no plates passed at this meeting. Our younger generation is the most eloquent generation that has ever lived. Come out I will exalt you, anyone doing good work should be honored and not condemned. For 30 years I preached the word of God, lived and practiced it, mankind don't want to be ruled by God's love. I have never taken one penny for the Lord's service. I have a bumper sticker for everyone that has a car, it's free. Lets show the world we can unite, if not I will stand alone. We have no prejudice, I want all races to be present. This is a survival meeting. It effects all sagement of life. I need you. Bring your Bible please.

Student hurt seriously in bike accident

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

An SIU-C student suffered a severe brain injury and was transported to Firmin Desloges Hospital in St. Louis, following a bicycle accident near Lincoln Drive, Wednesday morning.
Carolyn Short, sophomore in business, is reported to be in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care ward, said Dr. Ken Strith, who is handling the case.

Short, 20, sustained injuries on the right side of her head as she apparently fell from her bicycle. She was lying about five feet from a street drain on the Neckers Building side of Lincoln Drive, said officer
James Lindsey of University police.

Witnesses said Short appeared to have tangled her sandals in a bike pedal, which caused her to be thrown against a curb. Lindsey said the victim was lying face down with her head next to the curb, and the rest of her body in the street.
She was first transported to Carbondale Memorial Hospital and later moved to St. Louis.
Police said her condition was critical when she was transferred to St. Louis.

Pictures were taken at the accident site. No road defects which might have caused the accident were present, police said.

Stereo equipment stolen from vehicle

Four hundred dollars in stereo equipment was reported stolen Wednesday from a vehicle parked at Wilson Hall, 101 S. Wall, Carbondale police said.

Carl Bolander, freshman in the School of Technical Careers, said his Chevrolet Blazer was entered through the rear door and the equipment taken, according to police. He reported the theft at 10:57 a.m.
Wednesday.

Police said they have no witnesses or suspects and are continuing an investigation.

End of merit system suggested

The merit system when it was instituted in 1974, but added that circumstances involving the commission since then have changed his mind.

He said that in 1974, the state did not require law officers to be trained for the job. Rather, the sheriff, under the patronage system, could hire anyone for the job. The state now requires six-weeks of basic training for law officers.

The lawsuit further claims that jailer Mason had undergone training, schooling and testing under the rules of the merit system and had been considered to be covered by the merit commission for four years. But on April 11, 1979, the county board unanimously approved a motion declaring that jailers were not to be included in the merit system.

Although Jackson County Sheriff Don White has been named as a defendant in the lawsuit for hiring a jail officer who did not pass merit system conditions for employment, White said Thursday that he did not want to see the merit system for road deputies abolished. He said the deputies now working in the department are "a dedicated group of men who have roots in the area."

Proposed CIPS rate hike blasted

approves any rate increase, CIPS should prove that it is giving the best possible service for the least possible price, and it should also develop a mandatory energy conservation program.

CIPS requested a 12 percent rate increase last January to cover the costs and maintenance of anti-pollution devices and advertising costs. The ICC has until December 28 to make its decision on whether to accept or refute the rate increase.

Several members of the Southern Counties Action Movement, a local consumer group, accused CIPS of mismanagement and poor operating procedures which cost consumers millions of dollars.

Preston Levi, a SCAM member, said evidence shows CIPS maintenance and service operating expenses are comparably higher than other state utilities.

He said that a suggestion was made after a CIPS audit to cut costs by decreasing its vehicle fleet. He said that CIPS has not complied, and has been allowing employees to use company cars for personal purposes.

Levi said that due to the poor maintenance of CIPS' Coffey plant in Hillsboro, it may have to be closed for repairs. He said the closing would be an excuse to start the construction of an additional Newton plant which was scheduled to be constructed in a few years. The new plant would result in more rate increases, he said.

SCAM is also protesting the cost overruns of the new scrubber in the Newton 1 plant.

SCAM chairman, Christine Heaton, presented the ICC with a large mock envelope filled with CIPS advertisements to protest CIPS' request for consumers to pay advertising costs as part of the 12 percent rate hike.

Lack of support grieves Law School at the time, to write letters to the state legislature supporting the Law School's accreditation. The American Bar Association threatened to revoke the Law School's accreditation because of inadequate facilities. Rodgers didn't remember whether Huebschmann took any action.

"The law school felt that a resolution wouldn't do much good, we thought dealing directly with the legislature would help us the most," Rodgers said.

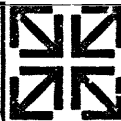

But, according to Ricardo Caballero-Aguino, 1978-79 GSC president, Huebschmann did write the letters to the state legislature.

Another "non-supportive" move by the GSC was that the fee board guidelines were changed in the fall 1978 so that "more money was being spent on conference funding and not on social events," Rodgers said.

Despite illnesses, netters win

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Despite physical problems which sidelined two team members, the SIU women's tennis team had a relatively easy time defeating the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle Thursday.

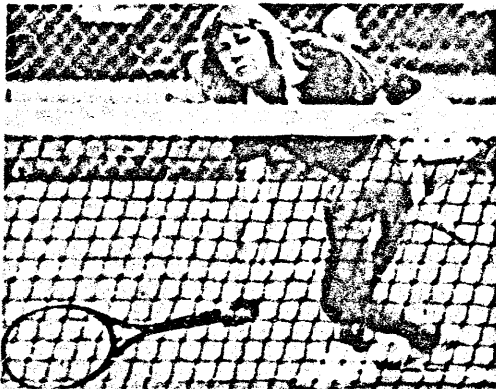

The Salukis won 7-2, even though Mauri Kohler and Lisa Warren missed the match due to illness.

"We weren't tested that much," Coach Judy Auld said following the match. "I'm glad I was able to get everybody involved."

Auld said she saw some good points during the match, but added the Salukis still need to work on serves and service returns.

The Salukis won four of six singles matches, and swept the three doubles matches. Carol Foss, Fran Watson, Mona Etchison and Thea Breite all won their games. The teams of Foss-Debbie Mar'n, Watson-Breite and Tammy Kurz-Debbie Burda won their matches.

Foss defeated Diane Zalatoris in straight sets, 7-5, 6-0. Watson topped Barb Sherry 6-1, 6-1. Etchison defeated Linda Sokolowski 6-2, 6-3 and Breite also won in straight sets

Saluki Jeannie Jones bends low to return a shot. Jones lost her match to Marge Molek of the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle 6-3, 2-4, 1-6 Thursday evening at the University tennis courts. (Staff photo by Dwight Nale) over Debbie Bendewald 7-5, 6-2.

In doubles play, Foss and Martin beat Sokolowski and Marge Molek 6-1, 6-3. Watson and Breite defeated Sherry and Judy Rayivas 6-2, 7-6 and Kurz and Burda whipped Zalatoris and Bendewald 6-4, 6-2.

The only Salukis who dropped a match were Martin, who lost to Rayivas, 6-2, 7-5, and Jeannie Jones, who was defeated by Molek 6-3, 2-4, 7-6.

Auld said the next Saluki match, a home meet, at SIU-Edwardsville Monday, should be a much better test of the team's ability.

Passing seen as 'Tiger tamer'

end is the hardest man to cover, according to Dempsey.

"We need to get the ball to our backs faster," Dempsey said. Quarterback John Cernak completed three passes for 19 yards to running backs in the 17-7 victory over Southwestern Louisiana last week.

Dempsey said he would like to throw the bomb more because it will spread the defense out and open up the field for the short passing game.

Passing will be the primary Tiger offensive weapon. Joe "747" Adams returned after a record-breaking year as a sophomore. Adams broke Joe Gilliam's school records for most yardage and most completed passes in a season. He completed 15 of 31 passes for 189 yards and three touchdowns last week. He has passed 46 times in one game.

"He gets back fast and can run if he wants to," Dempsey said. "He can spot men as you are putting him down. He's 6-3, 185 pounds. All the things they say about him are true."

Adams' favorite target is tight end McDonald Oden, who Dempsey says "moves well." The head coach added wide receivers Mike Jones and Lee Haynes run deep patterns well.

Dempsey believes a strong pass rush is needed to slow down the Tiger passing attack. He added that last week's rush was one of the strongest he has seen in some time.

"The pass rush means a lot," Dempsey said. "When a quarterback throws an interception, it is because you flushed him out. You've made him do something that he is not used to doing."

An injury to nose guard Tom Piha has allowed Percy Gibson, a 5-9 senior, to start. It is ironic that an injury to a starter may help a team. Gibson, however, is used in passing situations because of his quickness.

"This may be a good week for him to be playing," Dempsey said. "He's quick and they may try to single-block him. Tom is good against the draw. Percy is so quick he may step around a man one way, and they'll run the draw the other way."

Tennessee State is suffering from numerous injuries. Running backs Larry Kinnebrew and Roland Holland both will miss the contest. Kinnebrew broke his leg, and Holland must have knee surgery. Running backs Morris Harris, twisted knee, and Aaron Jones, hip pointer, also may miss the game.

"I don't think about it," Dempsey said of the Tigers' health report. "You look up at game time and see their numbers and they're playing."

Tiger Coach John Merritt is planning to start Henry Foster and Mike Jolly at the two running back positions. Both are juniors, and Jolly is a former quarterback who transferred from Georgia Tech.

One need not remind Dempsey of what occurred the last time a quarterback-turned-running back faced SIU. West Texas State's Clint Plant rambled for 109 yards in the Buffs' 14-0 victory. He'd rather not think about that either.

Saluki Shorts

Both teams will be trying to shake off bad habits — penalties for SIU, fumbles for Tennessee State. SIU was penalized 162 yards in the victory over Southwestern Louisiana. Dempsey termed most of them "stupid and senseless."

Fumbles allowed Jackson State to score 17 points in the final quarter, wiping out what was a 21-10 Tiger lead.

SIU lady harriers to host invitational at Midland Hills

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

The women's cross country team had better be prepared for more than a race this Saturday morning at Midland Hills Country Club, because the Murray State Racers remember vividly what the Salukis did approximately one year ago at Murray, Ky.

"Our runner finished in the first five places in their invitational" cross country coach Claudia Blackman explained. "And nobody likes being skunked on their home course, much less in their own invitational."

The 5,000-meter race will also include three runners from Memphis State. Starting time is set for 10:30 a.m.

"We're gonna be ready to run and so will they," Blackman said of the Racers. "They'll have fire in their eyes and revenge on their minds."

The Murray State team has several returning runners from last year's squad, including seniors Wesly Slaton, L. W. Hoimes, and Sharon Macy. All three raced in the invitational last year, placing 35th, 43rd, and 56th, respectively.

"They're going to run out fast for the first few miles like they always do," Blackman explained. "I just hope our girls are smart enough to not follow their lead."

Blackman explained her strategy this way: If her team could stay within striking distance of the Racers until the halfway point, and then come on strong at the end, her team will do well because of the type of course they will be running on.

"We've been training on this course all week," Blackman explained. "Their course at Murray is much more flat, so they've been training on their campus. It has some hills, but nothing comparable to Midland Hills."

Lady golfers travel to ISU

The practice greens at Crab Orchard Golf Course have been closed, McGirr said. The short game, chipping and putting, has fallen behind because of it.

"Our putting is the pits right now," McGirr laughed. "We're three-putting a lot. The only time we get to work on it is when we play nine holes."

Work is needed on the mental aspect of the game also. The Salukis twice will walk nearly four miles to complete the 5,800-yard course.

"We could play super," McGirr said of the tournament. "Mental concentration is about 75 to 80 percent of the game. I think we should be ready by the time state rolls around."

"We're about two weeks away from peaking. We should be better than we were last year. I know they won the state tournament last year."

It seems nothing would make McGirr happier than to have the team to win it again.

Dempsey sees pass as 'Tiger tamer'

By David Gafrick
Sports Editor

Saluki football Head Coach Rey Dempsey faces a big problem Saturday evening. It is then that his team faces Tennessee State, a club which is tall, lean and very mean.

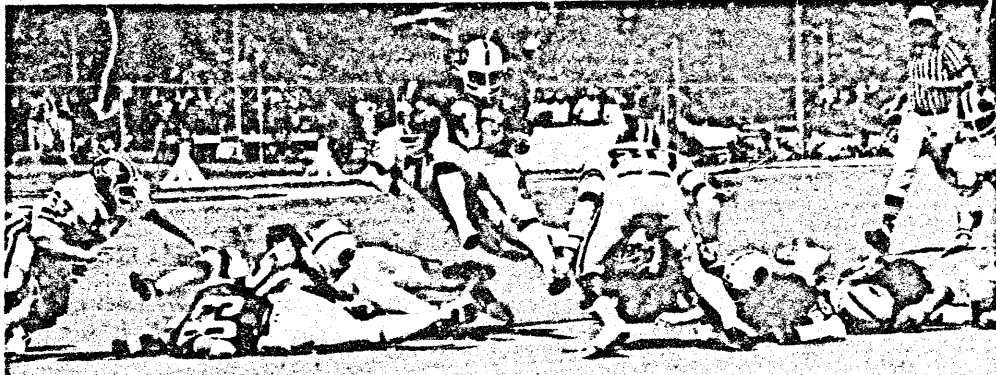

"They're real good," Dempsey said. "They have good talent. They're the best assembled team we've faced since East Carolina."

East Carolina destroyed the Salukis in the two meetings since Dempsey became head coach: 49-14 in 1976, and 33-0 in 1977. The fourth-year mentor hopes similar results won't happen against the Bengal Tigers, who dropped their opening game to Jackson State last Saturday, 27-21.

The first-ever meeting between the Salukis, 1-1 this season, and Tennessee State kicks off at 7:30 at Nashville's W.J. Hale Stadium.

Even though the Tiger start four freshman on a five-man defensive line and two more on the offensive line, Dempsey feels SIU may have trouble controlling both units because of the size of the line men.

"They have big people in there, guys who are 6-foot-5 or 6-foot-6," Dempsey said.

"They're big enough to take a block and slide away."

Dempsey said the defensive ends are quick and are able to penetrate and cut off runs to the outside.

"It means we'll have to run more plays off tackle than around the ends," Dempsey said. "They're not the team you can ground it out against."

"I think we'll make yards on the ground — more yards than they may think. But to win, we're going to have to throw the ball."

If so, the Salukis will be attacking the strongest part of the Tiger offense. Seniors Aaron Joseph and Emmet Haynes return at linebacker. The secondary is perhaps the strongest unit. Seniors Lanny Martin and Dave Coleman return at safety, while senior Mike Thomas and junior Gerald Perry guard the corners.

"By passing, we get them running backwards, and that may help get our running game going," Dempsey said.

Dempsey hopes to throw more passes to his running backs, who will circle out of the backfield and try to go one-on-one with the linebackers. Split end Kevin House should get more than one opportunity to catch the bomb. Tight end Larry Kavanagh also is a prime target because the tight

Spikers win first home match

By Mark Pabich

When the women's volleyball team opened its 1979 training camp with only four of 16 players returning, Coach DeLoie Hunter wasn't the least bit alarmed.

"The situation isn't even scary," Hunter said, the day tryouts began. "I'm not worried about finding the right players and the right winning combination."

Hunter's squad found the perfect blend of old and new talent Wednesday night when the Salukis defeated Southeast Missouri in three straight games, winning their opening match of the season.

Ten players saw action in the match, including standout performances from four freshmen.

"Our enthusiasm as a group was a pleasure to see," Hunter said. "Everyone was excited, which helped cover us on a few mistakes."

On more than one occasion during the match, the Salukis were caught with the ball in the air and a confusion underneath deciding who would set the ball. The confusion was always settled, but many times by the wrong person. Hunter said that communication was a problem on the court.

"Even though we did a good job of setting the ball and attacking the net, we still were having a problem with teamwork," Hunter said. "The players were not talking to one another and consequently, there was some overlap of duties."

Despite some bad speaking connections, the Salukis easily put away SEMO 15-5, 15-4 and 15-2. The solid play of veterans Dinah Devers, Ann Cronin and Robin Detering along with a surprising freshmen display of talent kept the Salukis in control the entire match.

Freshmen Leslie Lee and Erin Sartain dominated the offensive attack in the first game. Three perfect serves from Lee and a variety of spikes from Sartain gave SIU a commanding 10-5 lead before senior standout Detering took over and iced the game with five straight serves.

Game two once again highlighted Lee's serving. The Oak Forest native scored five points. Another freshman, Sonya Locke, from South Bend, Ind., put on an awesome display of spiking and blocking power.

"Both girls (Locke and Lee) have such talent," Hunter said. "They are good all round athletes. They have a lot of physical strength."

Sophomore Ann Cronin, who sat out the first two games, came off the bench in game three and quickly served in eight straight points. The serving fury was too much for SEMO to handle and two players were substituted where Cronin's serves were landing. The personnel change didn't help, however.

"Ann (Cronin) has a lot of discipline in her game," Hunter said. "Her desire will have her seeing action."

The volleyball team will get a chance for plenty of action this weekend when the team travels to Indiana for the Ball State Invitational. Six teams will be competing in the two-day tournament. The six teams will be divided into two pools, with SIU, Ball State and North-eastern Illinois in one pool, Indiana, Michigan State and Western Illinois make up the other pool.

"We are considered one of the power houses at the invitational along with Indiana and Michigan State," Hunter said. "But that doesn't mean too much."

Hunter said that the tournament would be a "testing ground" for the team.

Veteran golfers 'help out' new coach

By David Gafrick

It's a rare day when the players of a team can help the coach learn a few things about a game. In this case, it's not that the coach is inexperienced, just new.

The rapport between coach and players of the women's golf team may be described properly as a working relationship. The coach, 26-year-old Mary Beth McGirr, helps the players in all aspects of the game. The players, seven of eight are seniors, help the coach learn about the quality of play on this year's schedule.

McGirr replaced Sandy Blaha, who resigned in mid-July to pursue other career opportunities.

Some of the tutoring seems to have helped. Even though McGirr said she can't make a prediction of how well the team will perform this season, she does know they will face some strong competition Friday and Saturday at the Illinois State Invitational at Normal.

"Michigan State, Iowa State, Stephens College and Purdue all should be strong," McGirr said. Michigan State is the defending champion in the 36-hole tournament. SIU finished fifth last year.

"It really is hard to set a team goal," McGirr said. She does have some expectations, though. One is an average score of between 75 and 78 from senior Sandy Lemon, the team's No. 1 golfer. Lemon finished third at last year's tournament. Another is to get scores of 80 or lower from seniors Lori Sackman and Sue Fazio.

Joining Lemon, Sackman and Fazio are seniors Lucy Donrman, Kim Birch, Jo Idoux and Penny Perter. Freshman Jean Sackman, Lori's sister, rounds out the roster.

"It really helps having this many seniors," McGirr said. So much so that the team will not play a practice round at the university course because many have played it before. Problems remain, though. Strokes must be fluid, chips must be directed toward the pin and putts must be accurate. The only way these are corrected and mastered are in games.

"A lot of them can hit from the tee to the green well," McGirr said. "We all need refinement on our chipping and putting."

Masks reveal characters' 'character'

By Karen Gallo
Staff Writer

Masks—white, expressive faces to grotesque grins—are Andrew Hepburn's specialty. Hepburn, assistant professor of theater arts at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wis., demonstrated the use of masks in theater with a collection of self-designed masks last week as a Classics at SIU presentation.

Hepburn, a native of Bryn Mawr, Philadelphia, has been designing and using masks for over 10 years. He says masks are very useful for students in acting and improvisation because they take the emphasis of expression away from the face and re-introduce it to the body.

"Wearing a mask makes an actor more aware of his movements because he can't use his facial expressions alone to convey his character's feelings," said Hepburn, who teaches acting and stage movement at Marquette. "I ask my students to imagine themselves as totally innocent when they have a mask on. They go through a process of self-exploration and self-discovery, resembling the actions of a child."

At a two-hour workshop at the Laboratory Theater Thursday, Hepburn demonstrated the use of masks by asking acting students to put on various masks and explore their environment and each other, not through their own eyes, but through the eyes of the mask.

The mask, made of a soft plastic called celastic, is a guide to finding a character, Hepburn says. They set the imagination going, and some actors feel more secure when wearing a mask, he said.

Because they lose their identity as a person, they become the person the mask portrays.

Hepburn explained how a "mask of wonder" (a plain white, expressionless mask) enables the acting student to experience neutrality before they begin to form a character.

"In Japanese theater, the mask of wonder is called a nonoh," Hepburn said. "The neutral mask, once it is put on, changes the actor. He must really get to know the mask as another person while he is forming his character. He must know the mask's walk, talk, expressions, and feelings so he can incorporate those movements into the character when he takes the mask off."

While living in France this summer, Hepburn spent several weeks studying with Jacques Le Coq, a movement teacher and mime in Paris. Influenced by Le Coq's techniques in movement and stage combat, Hepburn uses some principles of acrobatics and juggling in his own stage movement techniques.

Hepburn also works with masks of expression—ancient masks, tragic and comic masks and grotesque masks. He feels masks add stature to characters of royalty, especially in comedies and tragedies.

Hepburn travels infrequently to universities displaying his collection of masks, he said. Most of his time is spent teaching acting, stage movement and mask design at Marquette.

Jazz lounge opens soon

By Ed Dougherty
Student Writer

After four weeks of redecorating, the Cypress Jazz Lounge will be open for business Tuesday in the location previously occupied by the Washington Street Underground.

New ownership and management are introducing a brand new atmosphere—live jazz. "We're not a saloon, not a bar—we're a jazz lounge," manager Peter Drohomysky said.

To highlight the change in atmosphere the lounge will feature live music four nights a week. Bands from Southern Illinois and eventually from the St. Louis area will be brought in to perform. The bands will play strictly jazz.

Previous customers will notice several changes in the appearance of the lounge. The
