Bigger budget

Board to vote on request for '93 money

By Julie Autor and Christiann Baxter
Administration Writers

The SIU Board of Trustees will vote today on the final version of a request to the state to increase resources for SIU by 19.62 percent in fiscal year 1993.

Resource allocation and management program submissions for fiscal year 1993 are operating budget requests that go through the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Deborah Smitley, associate director for public affairs with the IBHE, said the RAMP submission is the means through which universities request money from the state.

"Basically, it is a data collection mechanism for the IBHE. It has information relative to the university's current budget request," she said.

The fiscal year 1992 state budget allocated $236,036.4 for SIU. The board is requesting $282,341.4 for fiscal year 1993.

The resource request calls for a 5-percent general increase, a 5-percent general utility increase, a 15-percent increase for library materials and a 15-percent increase in salaries for faculty, professional staff, civil service and RAMP-defined administrators.

Walter Rehwaltd, assistant vice chancellor for financial affairs, said the increases are being requested because of a combination of inflation and lost funds from 1992.

"The increases for salaries combines projected inflation for 1993," Rehwaltd said. "For the past several years, increases haven't kept up."

Rehwaltd said library costs are

Soviets to withdraw Cuban brigade

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Mikhail Gorbachev announced Wednesday the withdrawal of a Soviet brigade from Cuba, signaling a change in the relationship of the two countries that once stood as a strong symbol of communist military power.

Gorbachev's announcement came at a Kremlin news conference with Secretary of State James Baker, who is seeking safeguards on Soviet nuclear weapons and economic reforms.

"We will soon be discussing with the Cubans the withdrawal of a Soviet brigade," Gorbachev told reporters.

Gorbachev said the talks "will begin in the immediate future" and added: "I do not think this is the kind of problem that will take many months to address. I think it's a question of the near future."

Asked whether he believes that Cuban President Fidel Castro supports the Soviet withdrawal, Gorbachev responded, "I understand that the Cuban leadership has a similar intention."

President Bush, asked at picture session at the White House about the Soviet move to withdraw some troops from Cuba, said, "I wish they'd hurry up."

Pentagon: Placement of U.S. forces to remain unaffected by troop pullout

By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

A pullout of Soviet troops from Cuba should not affect the placement of U.S. troops overseas, a Pentagon spokesman said Wednesday.

The Soviet brigade is stationed in Cuba primarily to protect Soviet military facilities located there and does not represent an anti-United States force the Pentagon counters, said Pentagon spokesman Greg Hartung.

In a press conference Wednesday Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said he planned to talk with Cuban leaders in the immediate future about pulling nearly 11,000 Soviet troops from Cuba.

Soviet military personnel in Cuba include thousands of advisors, technicians and office workers, Hartung said.

"If it occurs, it is a development we will welcome," he said.

The announcement of the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Cuba is not unexpected in Kidnappers hint at possible release of British hostage

HASBAYA, Lebanon (UPI) — The kidnapers of British hostage Jack Mann said late Wednesday that he was alive and hinted they may free him as a result of efforts by the United Nations to end the nine-year hostage crisis in Lebanon.

Earlier Wednesday, Israel freed

51 Arab prisoners held in Israeli-controlled southern Lebanon and returned the bodies of nine others in an effort to end the hostage saga.

"Our organization declares that British pilot Jack Mann is alive and in good health," the Revolutionary Justice Organization said. "He was kidnapped two years ago because of his affiliations with the British intelligence and the Mossad (Israeli intelligence)."

Thomas not decided on abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas told the Senate Judiciary Committee Wednesday he has not decided whether he personally agrees or disagrees with the high court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade ruling that legalized abortion.

During the second day of confirmation hearings punctuated throughout by the issue of abortion, Thomas was asked by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., if he had decided "in your own mind" if he agreed with Roe's rationale that women have a constitutional right to an abortion.

"I have not made, senator, a decision one way or another with respect to that important decision," Thomas responded.

The surprising answer came after Thomas earlier deflected insistent efforts by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, that he discuss his views on abortion and whether he believes it is constitutionally protected.

Thomas told Leahy he could not remember ever even discussing Roe, even as a law student in 1973.

Leahy said he had "some difficulty" with that answer, noting a number of past writings and speeches in which Thomas appeared to align himself with anti-abortion forces.

In 1986, while a member of the Reagan administration, Thomas signed onto a White House working group report on the family that called for the reversal of Roe. The next year, in a speech, he praised the use of the legal concept of "natural law" by conservative Lewis

Tyson charged, declares innocence

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges that he raped an 18-year-old beauty pageant contestant, then expressed his desire to again wear boxing championship belts.

"I'm confused by the whole issue," Tyson said at a news conference a few hours after appearing in Marion County (Ind.) Superior Court. "I'm just looking forward to the fight and becoming champion on Nov. 8."

Tyson is scheduled to fight champion Evander Holyfield at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., for the undisputed heavyweight title. All plans for the bout are on despite the indictment.

"My advice to Mr. Tyson is to win with integrity," Don King,

Iron Mike to fight despite indictment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Evander Holyfield Wednesday said he supports challenger Mike Tyson's decision to proceed with their Nov. 8 heavyweight title bout despite his being indicted on rape charges.

Tyson pleaded innocent and posted $30,000 bail in Indianapolis Wednesday, two days after he was indicted on charges of raping an 18-year-old beauty pageant contestant. He and champion Holyfield have been scheduled to fight at Las Vegas, Nev., since July.

"I'm not the judge of the situation," Holyfield said from his Houston training camp in a conference call with reporters. "I just know Tyson as a boxer. (The fight) is a business issue, it's not a personal issue. It's all about boxing. My job is to go in and train hard."

Holyfield declined to express his opinions on rape in general and refused to blame Tyson for jeopardizing the champion's $30 million purse. There has been some public and media pressure to postpone the bout until after Tyson stands trial.

Tyson's promoter, said during the news conference at the Hyatt Regency hotel. "We'll win the fight in Caesars Palace, then come back and win the one in Indiana."

Tyson is charged with rape, confinement and two counts of criminal deviate conduct for allegedly forcing a contestant in the Miss Black America pageant to have sex at a hotel room early July 19. If convicted on all charges, he could face up to 63 years in prison.

Tyson appeared in a four-minute initial hearing before Judge Patricia

J. Gifford, then was booked and released on $30,000 bond. Gifford entered an innocent plea for the boxer and trial was set for Jan. 27, 1992.

Gifford will consider defense requests Friday for a change of venue and a gag order on the case.

But before any gag order could take effect, Tyson and King held the news conference, mostly to outline documents and a videotape they plan to use in launching a lawsuit against Bill Cayton, Tyson's former co-manager.

"Economically, he's been raped," King said of Tyson.

King questioned Tyson not to answer questions that might get into specifics of the criminal case, but the fighter maintained his innocence and said he just wants to continue training for the bout.

Soccer tourney to feature teams from 22 nations

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

Players representing 22 countries and five continents have formed teams to compete in the first round of the International World Cup Soccer Tournament Saturday and Sunday, said Nabarun Ghose, International Student Council president.

The tournament has expanded in its seven-year history, Ghose said. This year 220 players — a 40 percent increase from 1990 — will participate in the tournament.

"I attribute the increase to the image of the tournament," he said. "The tournament is highly prestigious. I get letters from as far away as California and Texas to play one game in the tournament. The reputation carries on."

Fourteen teams will compete in the 1991 tournament, including the USA team and the North America team. Ghose said it is one event sponsored by ISC in which Americans show interest. It gives them a chance to interact internationally, he said.

The International Student Council's purpose is to help people from various countries interact so they can learn a little more about each other, Ghose said. Anybody affiliated with SIUC, including students, faculty and staff, can participate in the soccer tournament.

"There are many ways of encouraging them to interact, and the soccer tournament is one of them," Ghose said. "The tournament provides a sporting environment, and at the same time serves the purpose of cross-culture interaction."

The teams can have 11 to 18 players. The team only needs six players from the country it represents.

The other five remaining players can represent any country. This gives people from countries with a small representation at SIUC an opportunity to play in the tournament, said Shaukat Khan, chairman of the ISC soccer committee.

Men's cross country coach celebrates 10 years

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

SIUC track and cross country coach Bill Cornell has come a long way to achieve what he has today, and his athletes say they appreciate his experience and attitude.

At the tender age of 17, in his hometown of Chelmsford, England, Cornell set a world record in his age group in the mile run.

Illness forced him to quit the track team, but when former Saluki track and cross country coach Lew Hartzog discovered the young star in 1961 it led to Cornell's successful running and coaching career in the Midwest.

Hartzog, current men's golf coach, took a chance on the young runner and offered him a scholarship.

The results came instantly. In his first mile at SIUC Cornell clocked in with a time of 4:10.5. In his sophomore season, Cornell finished second in the NCAA national tournament in the 880-yard run to world record holder Darrell Burleson of the University of Oregon. He was named SIUC Athlete of the Year for 1962.

Cornell graduated in 1965 with a degree in physical education and achieved his master's degree from SIUC the following year.

In 1967 Cornell assumed the position of head coach of track and cross country at Murray State at Hartzog's recommendation.

Cornell guided the Racers to three Ohio Valley Conference cross country titles in his 15-year tenure, earned Coach of the Year honors four times and coached seven future Olympians and 28

All-Americans.

In 1980 Cornell was inducted into the SIUC Hall of Fame. He returned the following season and took over as cross country coach to work with his mentor Hartzog.

"Lew has always been sort of my father away from home," Cornell said. "Since I've been back at SIUC, though, Lew says I'm getting to old

Locke: Service key to winning in spiker games

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

The tension is mounting, and the SIUC volleyball team leads by a point. The win of the game rests on the team, but it also rests upon one person in particular. The server.

The serve is crucial to volleyball players because it is the only way a team can score a point, said SIUC head coach Sonya Locke.

"If your players cannot serve, you will not score any points," Locke said. "In our type of game, we serve to score and there is no way getting around it."

In the seven matches they played, the spikers have slammed 38 service aces, and in the Eighth Southern Classic last weekend, two games against Eastern Michigan University were won on ace serves.

Senior outside hitter Lori Simpson and senior designated server Kim Schaal were behind the line on game points. Both followed through with an ace to bring SIUC the tourney title. SIUC won without dropping a single game in three matches.

Other Salukis also have tallied up service aces so far in 1991. Senior setter Martha Firnhaber has eight, sophomore outside hitter Jodi Rae Miller has eight and Simpson has eight. Senior middle blocker Debbie Briscoe leads the team with a total of nine service aces.

Locke said there are four types of serves: A floater serve, comparable to a knuckle ball in baseball, a spin serve, a jump serve and a round-house serve.

"A spin server will put topspin on the ball like tennis players do, and a jump serve is basically a spike done from behind the serving line," Locke said. "A round-house can be either a floater or a spin, but it's done with a circular arm movement."

The floater serve is the most effective and the most common, Locke said. It is effective because it is hard to follow in the air when it is moving around, she said.

"The serve is a momentum building skill and there is a reason behind it," Locke said.

UNION CONTRACT MAY CAUSE MORE LAYOFFS — Secretary of State George Ryan might have to lay off 200 workers in his executive agency because of budget problems brought on by a new union contract, a Ryan aide said Wednesday. Department heads in Ryan's office Wednesday gave suggestions about where the positions can be eliminated. Ryan had hoped to avoid layoffs by refusing to grant a 5 percent salary increase to most of his workers in a union contract that took effect July 1.

TENSION BETWEEN EIU FACULTY, PRESIDENT — Faculty members at Eastern Illinois University have decided they need more time to consider an action that could further strain their already tense relationship with EIU President Stanley Rives. The university's Faculty Senate voted Tuesday to delay a controversial motion that it ask Rives to resign. Senators agreed to table the motion until Sept. 24 when some professors complained the issue was a "bombshell."

Most retailers, however, are pleased with sales at the mall, even with the increased competition of the new stores, he said.

Fraternity honored at convention

By Kristina R. Rominger
General Assignment Writer

The Kappa Tetartan Chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity at SIUC is one of only three chapters in the nation recognized for excellence in rush and recruitment.

The chapter won the Grand President's Special Achievement award last month at the 53rd General Convention in St. Louis, Mo.

Its membership has more than quadrupled in size during the past nine months.

Mark Anderson, president of Phi Sigma Kappa, said in December 1990, the SIUC chapter was reorganized because it was falling behind in numbers with people who were not participating in any activities.

National officers and advisers interviewed all members and rushees of the fraternity, and more than 30 individuals were asked to leave because they would not comply with the rules and procedures of the Grand Chapter.

"After all of the interviews, we were left with nine members. During the spring we worked hard and got 25 new guys in the house, bringing the number to 34," said Anderson, a senior in administration of justice from Orland Park.

Phi Sigma Kappa has rushed 27 new men this semester to push the number over 60.

The program is not a two-tiered system, with both pledges and actives participating, as in many other greek organizations, Anderson said.

By not using a two-tiered system, Phi Sigma Kappa can make the fraternity's program more successful, he said.

"During rush, we stress the importance of leadership," he said. "In other greek organizations, a pledge has to show that he wants to be a member of that chapter, but in Phi Sigma Kappa, we show the rushee he wants to be part of us," he said.

Phi Sigma Kappa was formed in 1873. The United States and Canada have 116 active chapters of the fraternity, including five chapters in Illinois at the University of Illinois, Illinois State University, Northern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and SIUC.

The SIUC chapter has been in existence since 1957.

Civil servants need protection of rights

FREEDOM OF speech has been an issue in the United States since before the development of the U.S. Constitution. Now a new law has been signed that guarantees government employees cannot be fired on the grounds of their political activity, which includes petitioning, free speech, campaigning for or against a candidate, seeking office, making campaign contributions and speaking out on public policy.

The new law is good. The law gives an added protection to the freedom of speech.

STATE EMPLOYEES are not the only people covered by this new law, it includes workers of school districts, police departments and other local governments as well.

This law should have been an unspoken rule since the First Amendment was written, but some people need to have rules spelled out for them.

Being able to voice opinions, whether positive or negative, about a political organization, a state agency or a particular political candidate is a form of free speech.

ISN'T IT ABOUT time government employees got to share in the First Amendment rights like every other U.S. citizen?

Patronage should be pushed right out the door if it continues to infringe on the rights of government workers.

Illinois has been known for its political patronage system in the past. The merit system is formally in place now, but some facets of patronage still exist.

The patronage system still is used in some instances to obtain a recommendation, or to check how a person voted in the last election. This is not done on a regular basis, but it still occurs in some political realms of society.

SOME PEOPLE may say the new law will not help employees because employers will find other reasons to fire an employee.

But to fire a state employee is next to impossible. An employer must document causes and even then it is very difficult.

Other people might say, "Well if that is the case, it would be difficult to fire an employee even if the law did not exist." That is true too, but this new law lays it on the line.

IT SPELLS OUT the rights of government workers and gives them a peace of mind that they do have a law on their side, just in case.

All this doesn't mean that work-place harassment will cease to exist, but it is a step in the right direction to put politically discriminatory people out of business.

Purse matcher: Bus passenger in Chicago reunites lost bag with owner

When I left my purse on a downtown Chicago bus, I never expected to see it again.

A friend of mine quit watching her purse long enough to maneuver a cardboard boat out of her dorm room door. It was stolen and a janitor found it later in a trash can in her dorm. She didn't have a quarter left to call the police.

They say what goes around comes around. But I always turn in items I find, and my lost things usually don't come back.

Especially in a big city, I didn't expect anyone to return a lost item. Because of the time I've lived in Carbondale, I've learned to take things loss.

The people who know me wave at me and say "hi" when I meet them on the sidewalk or even when they are on the other side of the street.

When I walk down the street in Chicago, no one looks me in the eyes. People are so busy rushing to work and worried about their corporate problems they don't seem to notice the people around them.

When I discovered I had lost my purse, I continued walking to my hotel so I could call the bus system to see if anyone at the station could track down my purse. It was wishful thinking but worth a try.

Annette Holder
City Writer

A man with the bus system told me that people leave things like purses, typewriters and keys on the bus every day.

Somehow that made me feel a little better, even though he led me to believe I probably wouldn't see my purse again.

I assumed the worst and canceled my credit cards.

I had another day left in Chicago and originally planned on using my cards for money. Somehow I budgeted just right and had enough cash for hotel, food and gas for the ride home.

When I returned home I had a message on my answering machine from Bruce Waldman, a man telling me he found my purse.

He thought I would be checking my answering machine for messages from Chicago. He wanted me to enjoy my time in Chicago and told me not to worry.

When I got the message I was elated. I asked him to mail it to me after he asked how I would like it sent. I told him to take money out of my wallet to help pay for his trouble and costs.

He told me not to worry about payment. He said if his wallet was ever stolen he hoped someone would give it back to him, also.

He even expressed concern that my purse would be smashed going through the mail.

I wanted at least to send a letter to his boss because at first I thought he worked for the bus system, but he worked in a small law firm and didn't have a boss.

He didn't want me to send a letter to the Chicago Tribune saying what a great guy he was, either.

A couple of days later he left a message on my answering machine again telling me his wife was sending it.

Some people have told me that he didn't want money because he didn't need money, otherwise he would have kept my purse.

I don't think so. I think Mr. Waldman is just a great guy.

Letter to the Editor

SIU Head Start needs building soon

Carbondale has had a very important program based here for many years. The name of this program is SIU Head Start.

I first learned of this program when a very dear friend told me that her son had attended Head Start and that my son would probably enjoy it.

Well, that's been six years ago and two of my sons have graduated from Head Start. It prepared them for preschool, socially and emotionally. Their success in elementary school is directly linked to this program.

Head Start is not only for children but helps the parents and siblings, as well.

It is a teaching institution offering counseling, social services, health education and referral services. It helps you to see the positive aspects of your life as a parent and as an individual.

Now I am faced with a dilemma, my daughter may not be able to attend Head Start. Not because she doesn't qualify but because Head Start doesn't have a building for her to attend.

You see when Rainbow's End was displaced, Head Start was also. Head Start is in desperate need for a building and is running out of time. School is to begin on Sept. 23 and there are 157 children with no where to go.

Surely there is an empty building suitable for this program. Who knows—maybe the Stone House? What else is it being used for?

What I ask of you is to become involved in helping Head Start. Contact the department of curriculum and instruction at SIUC, 536-2441, or SIU Head Start, 453-6448, if you know of any buildings or would like to help.

Let's support programs like Head Start that teach our children how to get a head start on life before it's too late.—Lisa R. Porter, Carbondale.

escalating because of expensive technical materials.

Total increase requests for SIUC is 20.08 percent and 18.69 percent for SIUE.

The board also has requested an increase in resources for operating and maintaining the SIUC Wildlife Research facility.

The budget request is to be submitted by Oct. 1 to the IBHE. The IBHE then will vote on the request sometime in January.

In other business, the board will welcome Acting Chancellor James M. Brown to the meeting.

Brown attended a special board meeting in August for his reappointment, but has not attended a regular business meeting since his retirement June 30, 1989.

"I've been doing a fair amount of preparation," he said. "I've been busy trying to catch up on what I need to know, but I think it will pretty much be like it was before. If I'm adequately prepared, things will go smoothly."

The chancellor and the presidents of SIUC and SIUE do not have a vote at the meeting, but they make reports and respond to concerns.

Donald W. Wilson, board treasurer and vice chancellor for financial affairs, said Brown will perform well at the meeting.

"He's very knowledgeable of the University and what has taken place and what we need to move ahead," Wilson said.

President John C. Guyon said board business will continue on as usual with Brown.

"The board meeting will function with Brown taking (former chancellor) Pettit's place," he said.

New board member John Brewster, a Marion lawyer, will attend his second meeting. He replaces Ivan Elliott, who was a board member for 24 years.

Elliott was not reappointed to the board by the governor at the end of his six-year term.

"I don't come to the board with an agenda," Brewster said. "I hope to be able to contribute."

Elliott will be honored today at the board meeting which starts at 10:30 a.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

light of Cuba's waning value to the Soviet Union, said William Turley, SIUC political science professor.

Turley said that during the 1960s, the Soviet Union wanted to use Cuba as a strategic military foothold in the Western hemisphere and as an example to other Latin American countries that a socialist government could be successful.

With the recent changes in the Soviet Union's economic system and its improved relations with the United States, Cuba has lost its usefulness, he said.

"Why poke a needle in our ribs if we're friends?" Turley said.

Gorbachev has said the move would modernize the Soviet Union's relationship with Cuba in context of the changes in the world, but the economic ties between the two countries would continue.

The Soviet Union has often reduced the cost of the oil it traded to Cuba for sugar and fruits, at increased market prices, to help subsidize Cuba's government, Turley said.

The Soviets also have provided project assistance to Cuba, such as building roads and dams.

This aid has continued despite the Soviet Union's worsening economic situation, probably as an emotional commitment to a friendly nation it has supported for 30 years, Turley said.

concentrated at the other stores," Miller said. "We don't have the flow through traffic we used to have."

Carbondale Director of Community Development Don Monte said it is too early to tell how much impact Sears' relocation in Marion will have on the city.

"The impact on the city will be the loss of sales tax revenue, but that won't show up for a while," Monte said.

City sales tax is sent by the mall stores to a state agency that later returns the tax dollars to Carbondale. It takes about three months to receive the revenue.

Sam Rossi, general manager for the new Illinois Centre Mall, said business at the mall has been better than expected with only two anchor stores, Phar-Mor and Sears.

"Sears is a significant drawing card," Rossi said.

Dale Bruner, Sears manager at the Marion store, would not comment on the way Sears and Roebuck might benefit the Illinois Centre Mall in Marion.

"I'm not going to fuel any more fire between Carbondale and Marion," he said.

the plight of detainees has become near."

The statement by the organization was delivered to the Beirut An-Nahar newspaper. Attached to the statement was a close-up color photograph in which Mann appeared bearded and thin.

The 77-year-old former British pilot, more recently a nightclub owner who lived some 40 years in Beirut, was kidnapped in the Lebanese capital May 12, 1989.

The captors in the statement expressed satisfaction at the release earlier Wednesday of 60 Arab prisoners — including nine bodies — by Israel but indicated that the release of Sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid, a Hezbollah cleric, remained a principal condition for a breakthrough in the hostage plight.

"Present negotiations with the United Nations and other mediators have reached a mechanism to release the struggler sheikh Abdel Karim Obeid and other detained brethren in stages," the RJO said.

It added, "The first phase was finalized with the release of the first batch of prisoners, but we hope that other steps be taken to end the end the issue.

"We will stand by our pledges and commitments as long the others honor their obligations."

The group talked of pledges that had been made by the United Nations, saying, "We will distribute details of some negotiations with delegates from the United Nations in a videotape to make public the pledges and commitments that were made."

The release of Obeid has been a main demand by the kidnapers of the Westerners.

In addition to Mann, the Revolutionary Justice Organization claims to hold U.S. hostages Joseph Cicippio, 60, deputy controller of the American University of Beirut, kidnapped Sept. 12 1986.

Lehrman to justify outlawing all abortions.

"I can't believe all of this was done in a vacuum," Leahy told Thomas.

"I did not and do not have a position on the outcome" of Roe, Thomas said.

During two days of questioning, Thomas has repeatedly distanced himself from both the White House paper and the Lehrman article, saying he had read neither in their entirety.

Thomas said he was involved in the White House project only to push for help for low-income families, and cited the Lehrman article in passing to convince conservatives to apply the same natural law theory — that man has inherent rights even beyond the Constitution — to move forward on civil rights.

Metzenbaum accused Thomas of using his judicial role as an excuse to dodge the abortion issue, while answering questions about other less controversial issues that also could again come before the high court.

And Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League, said Thomas "singled out constitutional protection for the right to choose as the only area of law on which he refuses to comment."

Gorbachev did not indicate the exact number of troops to be withdrawn. A 1988 U.S. Defense Department publication described a Soviet military brigade of 2,800 soldiers.

In 1988, there were about 12,700 Soviet personnel in Cuba, including 2,800 soldiers, 2,800 military advisers, 2,100 intelligence personnel and 5,000 civilian workers, according to Defense Department figures.

The State Department estimated Wednesday that currently there are about 7,600 Soviet personnel in Cuba. The department said these included the 2,800-man combat brigade, up to 1,500 military advisers, 1,200 civilian technical advisers and 2,100 technicians at the Soviet signals intelligence facility at Lourdes.

"We are going to modernize our relationship with Cuba in the context of the new situation, in the context of changes in the world and changes in our relationships with other countries," Gorbachev said.

The Soviet Union, despite its poor economic performance, has heavily subsidized Castro's government. Until 1987 the Soviets provided $4.5 billion a year to Cuba in aid, with that total subsequently falling as the Soviets' economic situation has worsened.

Saturdays aren't for playing for local whiz-kid students

By Chyrese Wolf

The Illinois Board of Education has approved an $85,000 grant for a program at Rend Lake College that offers elementary school children a chance to excel in math and science.

The program, Science Saturdays, is not a program exclusively for gifted children, said Larry Williams, chairman of the math and science department at Rend Lake College.

Colleges and universities sponsor supplementary educational programs so elementary school students can have access to different resources, said Donald L. Beggs, dean of the SIUC College of Education.

"Educators are always looking for ways in which children can learn about science and math in a positive way," Beggs said.

The program was initiated last year "to extend science and math learning beyond the school week and beyond the classroom," said Bob Ross, director of resource development at Rend Lake College.

The program last year was a pilot used to determine how well the concept would be accepted, Williams said.

It is offered free to interested students in the Rend Lake College district, he said.

The district includes Jefferson, Franklin, Hamilton, Perry, Wayne, White, Williamson and Washington counties.

The program offers students the opportunity to do lab projects and to use equipment not available at their elementary school.

Students are placed into two levels: grades three through five and six through eight.

Subjects offered at Science Saturdays are biology, earth science, chemistry, physics, mathematics and computer science.

Elementary school teachers involved in the program benefit because they are introduced to new teaching methods, Kelley said.

"Teachers can also take the experience back to their school and use it there," he said.

No other community college in the state is offering elementary school children anything similar to the Rend Lake program, Ross said.

Anglers fish for prizes at charity fishing derby

James T. Rendulich
General Assignment Writer

Anglers will have the opportunity to fish for money and prizes in addition to helping the Special Olympics program Sept. 22 at the 10th annual Buddy Bass Tournament on Cedar Lake.

"This tournament gives people a chance to get out, have a great time and win some excellent prizes while helping the Special Olympics" said Linda Votava, special populations coordinator for the Carbondale Park District.

The top 10 teams will receive cash prizes in addition to trophies and prizes donated by local businesses.

The first place team will earn 50 percent of the tournament earnings plus a $400 bonus. Winners last year split more than $3,200 in winnings.

The winner of the tournament will be determined by the combined weight of the top seven catches that meet weight and other specifications.

Anglers who want to participate in the tournament need to attend a pre-tournament meeting at 3 p.m. Sept. 21 at the Carbondale Eagles Club.

"The meeting will cover the rules of the tournament and will give the exact starting time, estimated to be around 5 a.m. depending upon the weather.

Officials also will give information on an individual bass tournament at the pre-tournament meeting.

The entry fee for the tournament is $150 for a two-person team.

Thirty percent of the entry fee goes directly to the Southern Illinois Special Olympics, Votava said.

The tournament is produced by the Carbondale Park District, Venegon Distributing and the Southern Illinois Bass Busters.

Student represents SIUC at national Nintendo finals

By Casey Hampton

University student Steve Lucas will represent SIUC in the finals of the national Nintendo Campus Challenge next year in Orlando.

Lucas, a sophomore in computer information processing from Jacksonville, won the SIUC competition this week.

"My dad calls my Nintendo my pride and joy," he said.

SIUC students competed Monday and Tuesday for a chance to represent the University in the finals.

The competition began at Texas A & M University on Dec. 3, 1990, and will finish at the finals competition at Disney World after 54 U.S. campus competitions.

Twelve students compete simultaneously in six minute rounds on a specially designed cartridge of three of Nintendo's most popular games: "Super Mario Bros. 3," "Dr. Mario" and "Pinot."

Michelle Reed, a senior in accounting from Streator, placed second.

Battling Bands

Rock quartet takes first, but solo, acoustic act wins respect

By Jefferson Robbins
Entertainment Editor

Local quartet Hinge fired off a load of danceable Midwestern power pop Tuesday night, overcoming two competitors to win the Battle of the Bands' second round at Hangar 9 in Carbondale.

Hinge placed first in the tallying of points, with folk singer, Darby, and metal band, Terminal Mistake, coming in second and third respectively.

Bands were graded by a panel of four judges in four categories: originality, audience response, stage presence and musical content.

Only about a 10-point margin separated Hinge and Darby, said Theresa Livingston, one of the judges.

But Hinge guitarist Brad Cassetto downplayed his band's win.

"We just like to be able to play for people who haven't seen us yet," Cassetto said.

Hinge songs such as "Unity" and the closing tune, "Jack in the Box," had the audience hopping like rabbits on the floor of the bar, allowing Hinge to score high in the crowd response category.

Vocalist Seth Henrikson provided a large part of the stage energy, dancing like Popeye the Sailor while harmonizing with Cassetto on several songs.

Some of that harmony may spring from Hinge's Beatlemania, Cassetto said.

"They're just about the only band we all listen to," he said.

Hinge formed in April "because we all lived by each other," Cassetto said. Henrikson and Cassetto merged with drummer Mike Riseman and bassist Scott Doudera and threw together a handful of original tunes.

During the last month of spring semester the band performed at basement parties and at the Student Programming Council Coffeehouse in the Student Center.

Cassetto and Henrikson said the current band scene in Carbondale can be evaluated in two words: "could be."

"There's a lot of potential here to have a good music scene, but it depends on the University, on the students," Cassetto said. "People have to start paying attention to music."

"To all the arts," Henrikson said. "—instead of just looking for the best drink special," Cassetto finished.

Darby McGrann, a student at John A. Logan College and a one-man acoustic band, belts out a song during Battle of the Bands Wednesday night at Hangar 9. The winner of the battle was Hinge, comprised of Seth Henrikson vocals, Brad Cassetto on guitar, Nike Riseman on drums and Scott Doudera on bass.

Livingston, an editor of Carbondale Nightlife, said the Battle of the Bands gives local music-lovers a chance to glimpse now.

"It gives a lot of young bands exposure and gives them a chance to show their talent," Livingston said. "The point is to help strengthen the culture and music scene in Carbondale."

Livingston said the mass of bands playing in Carbondale, a mid-size college town, is an anomaly.

"We have a really burgeoning music scene relative to where we are," she said.

Aside from giving new bands a forum, the Battle seems to be a crowd pleaser as well. Concertgoer Ben Planchon said the inclusion of Darby, a solo acoustic act, was a high point of the show.

"Why should it just be bands?" asked Planchon, a junior in University Studies from Naperville and a musician. "It's much easier to mix it up with musicians. It takes a lot more guts to get up there on your own."

Renee Targos said she preferred Hinge's show.

"Darby was smooth, but Hinge was soulful," said Targos, a junior in sociology from Palatine.

Darby, armed only with an acoustic guitar and harmonica, opened the show with a Dylanesque approach. He mixed melodic originals with cover tunes such as the Rolling Stones' "Sympathy for the Devil" and Patsy Cline's "Crazy" to strong applause.

Terminal Mistake played a brief set of moody, semi-thrash metal with professional style.

Musical makes life of P.T. Barnum greatest show on Shryock stage

By Casey Hampton
Entertainment Writer

Musical Review

"Barnum," the Tony-winning Broadway musical salute to the circus, paraded into center ring Tuesday night to a crowd of more than 1,000 to lead Shryock's 1991-92 Celebrity Series.

Bursting with blaring brass, ear-pleasing tunes, eye-catching jigs and elaborately colored costumes, "Barnum" puts pure energy and excitement into the "Greatest Show on Earth."

Beautifully directed by Victoria Bussert, "Barnum" is set on a stage that resembles a circus tent, complete with jugglers, fire-eaters, acrobats, clowns and a ringmaster.

The show follows the life of P.T. Barnum from 1835 to 1880 in his struggle to create the now famous sideshow.

At every crucial moment in his life, a ringmaster blows a whistle and makes a zany announcement about what is about to take place, much like a Greek chorus.

During one moment, the ringmaster forewarns that Barnum is about to confront his enraged wife, Chairy.

"He is about to face the most fearsome beast of all time, a female kept waiting over one hour and 14 minutes," he says.

Wonderful performances are given by David Mendes as the compulsive liar Barnum and Rebecca McCauley as the headstrong, yet poised, Chairy.

Together, as well as separately, the two fill the auditorium with powerful songs.

The music is the most splendid aspect of the show. Show tunes, choir songs, opera and blues are blended together to form a delightful array of award-winning songs with an equally impressive orchestral background.

As a grand finale, Barnum and company join together in the musical-dance number, "Join the Circus." This spectacle itself makes joining the circus a tempting idea.

But unfortunately the show paraded out of town Tuesday night after a one-night-only showing.

Word of mouth alone could have filled the auditorium a second night.

"We pick out a target area on the court, either open areas or weak players, and we make our serve effective enough so our opponent can't return it."

Firnhaber said in practice Locke shows the players a certain spot on the court to hit with a serve or they find the spots themselves.

"I get behind the line and want an ace," Firnhaber said.

"I do my best to do that. We try for the place on the floor the other team doesn't cover, and we try to make our serves more effective by serving them where the other team is not."

Miller, who is one of the only players to perform the spin serve, said her greatest concern is timing.

"I need to get height on my serves," Miller said. "I have to toss it higher than everybody else, and I have to hit it right on time. If I hit it too early, it goes out, and if I hit it too late, it goes into the net."

"I mostly need to get my timing down to connect at the right time."

Locke said Miller's spin serve is used as a change-up.

"The players are expecting a floater serve and when it spins, they miss it and Jodi has an ace," Locke said.

Firnhaber and Miller said serving is a vital aspect of the game.

"If you can't serve, you can't score, and if you can't score, you can't win," Firnhaber said.

for him to be a father image. Now we're more like brothers.

After his return in 1981, Cornell was able once again to produce instant results. In 1982 and 1983 he coached the Salukis to the Missouri Valley Conference championship.

In 1984 Cornell took over as the Saluki men's track coach and led the team to the outdoor conference championship in 1987, '89, and '91, as well as the outdoor title in 1988, '90, and '91.

In beginning his 10th season at SIUC, Cornell said he isn't complacent.

"Our goal has always been to win the conference championship," Cornell said. "But after 10 years you're not even satisfied with a championship."

"We want to qualify men for the NCAA nationals. This season I really feel that we have seven or eight men who are capable of qualifying."

Saluki Senior cross country runner Mike Danner attributes Cornell's longevity to his understanding of individual athletes.

"He understands our needs because of his experience," Danner said. "He knows that we have responsibilities and allows us to reach our maximum potential by giving us time to live our personal lives."

Freshman Garth Akal added that Cornell understands athletes' needs and is conscious of their health and injuries.

"One of the reasons I came here is because of his enthusiasm," Akal said.

And Cornell conveys the eager attitude with every word.

"I really like it here," he said. "I plan on staying here the rest of my life ... or at least as long as they'll have me."

"It helps get people together especially from countries who don't have a lot of people represented here," Khan said. "It helps them interact with people of different countries."

Senior Frangiskos Yiangou, captain of Greeks United, said soccer styles and strategies are different with some nations. The culture is expressed by the way they play, he said.

"We see people from other places like Africa, who I did not know played soccer," he said. "They played very well. The basics of soccer are the same, but each country has a different system."

The 1991 tournament sports many strong teams, Ghose said. The tournament is open and almost everyone has a good chance.

Alexander Blanco, captain of the Latin America team, said he thinks his team will have a good chance.

"I think my team will do very well. We are all united," Blanco said. "The tournament is something good to establish international friendship."

The tournament begins Saturday and Sunday and runs from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Match play continues Sept. 21 and Sept. 22. The semifinals and finals will be Sept. 28 and 29.
