BOT budget request up 8.5 percent

TIM CHAMBERLAIN
 DAILY EGYPTIAN

Two documents outlining University budget guidelines for fiscal year 2001 were approved at Thursday's SIU Board of Trustees meeting in Edwardsville.

Both an operating budget request and a capital budget priorities list were passed by the board.

MORE INFO

The next Board of Trustees meeting will be Oct. 14 on the SIUC campus. Board of Trustees information, including agendas and schedules, can be found online at www.siu.edu/bot/.

The operating budget request is a planning document required by the Illinois Board of Higher Education before resources are allocated by the state legislature. The capital budget priorities document lists deferred maintenance projects at SIU that are most vital to University operation.

The operating budget, which includes plans for a 5-percent salary line increase, totals $330 million, an 8.5-percent increase compared to funds allocated for fiscal year 2000. The $25.9

Leon Scott, a local landlord and active member of several civic committees, was found dead near the SIU Arena Thursday morning, having apparently died of a heart attack while jogging.

Passers-by found Scott, 55, lying in the grass south of SIU Arena at 9:30 a.m., according to University officials.

Scott served on the City Planning Commission for the past several years, said commission Chairman Rolf Schilling.

Schilling said Scott was active in neighborhood issues, especially those involving zoning.

"If there was a zoning issue, he'd always fight for the neighbor's rights," Schilling said.

Schilling said Scott was an intelligent decision-maker whose presence in the city will be sorely missed.

Tom Redmond, director of Development Services and executive secretary to the commission, said Scott was a valuable asset to the community and showed strong dedication to the committee.

"He was an independent voice," Redmond said. "He paid close attention to the cases; he did his homework."

Scott also served on the Downtown Steering Committee, the Park District Board

Heads up! Cornell Craig #81, senior wide receiver for the Salukis, hurdles over Murray State defenders during a kickoff return. Craig caught three touchdown passes and had eight total receptions for 180 receiving yards. The SIUC defeated Murray State 58 to 51 in the high scoring game. Saluki quarterback Poteete broke a school record passing for six touchdowns and 399 passing yards.

Vice chancellor finalists narrowed to three

TIM CHAMBERLAIN
 DAILY EGYPTIAN

Three finalists in the search for a new vice chancellor for Student Affairs were named Friday, and the candidates will be invited to visit campus starting later this month, according to interim Chancellor John Jackson.

The finalists for the position are:

- George Anthony Antonelli, associate vice president for Student Services and Special Programs for the University of North Carolina system;
- Charles B. Kenyon, assistant vice president for Student Affairs at the State University of New York at Buffalo; and
- Sharon E. Whittaker, vice president for Student Affairs at Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Jackson said he had hoped to release the names earlier in the week, but the process was delayed for a few days because a fourth finalist took a job at another university without notifying the search committee. The committee then had to reconvene before the other three candidates' names could be released.

"Though we lost one candidate, the three who are coming are still strong people," Jackson said. "I am confident that we can get a good candidate and get this done in short order."

Harvey Welch, current vice chancellor for Student Affairs, announced in April that he planned to retire in December. The search committee, led by Thomas Guernsey, interim vice chancellor for Academic Affairs and provost, determined the finalists after reviewing the applications and nominations from the original pool of 31 candidates.

The committee was formed before Jackson became interim chancellor in June and has been working since late spring after Welch announced his retirement.

Though the final choice ultimately will have to be approved by the SIU Board of Trustees, Jackson said he hopes to have his recommendation to SIU President Ted Sanders by the end of October.

A Du Quoin native, Antonelli has served in his present position for the past 13 years, assisting the president and vice president in policy implementation across the University of North Carolina's 16 campuses.

Antonelli received his bachelor's in political science and history from SIUC in 1963, a master's in political science/education from the University of Wisconsin in 1968 and a doctorate in education from SIUC in 1972.

Students gain knowledge and understanding of the problems wheelchair users face daily

CARIN MCDANIEL - DAILY EGYPTIAN

Valerie Brooks, a graduate student in health education from Robinson, struggles out the door in a wheelchair for an assignment in Mark Kittleson's "Teaching Strategies" class. All students were required to spend 24 hours confined to a wheelchair and write a paper about their experiences.

RHONDA SCIARRA
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Valerie Brooks eased into a wheelchair Friday afternoon and began a journey down three floors and through several hallways to exit the only wheelchair accessible door in Pulliam Hall.

The trip to her car that normally would take less than a few minutes took more than 10 — proof that her next 24 hours in the wheelchair would not be easy.

Brooks, a graduate student in health education from Robinson, left the comfort of using two healthy legs to complete an assignment in Mark Kittleson's teaching strategies class. Students in Kittleson's class are required to remain bound to a wheelchair for 24 hours, so they can become more aware of the difficulties wheelchair-users experience.

Kittleson, a professor in health education, said the purpose of the assignment is two-fold.

"One purpose is to become a little more sensitive to different populations," he said. "Students realize how small hills can be a problem."

Kittleson said the exercise also stresses the method of "learning by doing" to his students, who in time will become teachers themselves.

Kittleson began using the exercise eight years ago after working with a doctoral student who used a wheelchair and became familiar with the daily obstacles that student faced.

Joe Watson, a senior in health education from Blue Island, thought being confined to a wheelchair would be as easy as riding a bike. He was wrong. He said maneuvering the wheelchair through buildings, into doorways and on sidewalks was an arduous task.

"The littlest hills just seem like a mountain," he said. "I never want to be in a wheelchair again."

Watson's other troubles included stares from other people and attempts to cross the street using designated crosswalks.

"The drivers on this campus will not stop," he said. "The crosswalks mean nothing."

“ I am more aware of things that I used to take for granted. It was a very good learning experience. ”

VALERIE BROOKS
Graduate student, health education

Along with physical obstacles faced by wheelchair users, students in Kittleson's class learned how other people react to seeing someone in a wheelchair.

"People look at you in a different way, like you are a nuisance," said Jeanne Greenwood, a senior in health education from Murphysboro.

Brad Heuring battled sidewalk cracks, hills and rocks in his path as he tried to cross campus a week ago

New chairman appointed

David Koster has been named the new chairman of the Chemistry and Biochemistry departments effective Sept. 1. He was previously acting chairman of those departments.

Koster began at SIUC as an assistant professor in 1967, and he became a full professor in 1981. His research interests include molecular spectroscopy and infrared laser induced chemical processes.

Recently, he has had interests in chemical education outreach programs and has conducted summer workshops for area high school chemistry teachers.

His appointment is subject to ratification by the Board of Trustees.

Argersinger motion hearings today

Motion hearings for former chancellor Jo Ann Argersinger's pending cases against the SIUC Board of Trustees will take place today in Williamson County.

The hearings will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Williamson County Circuit Court. Today's hearings could lead to the dismissal of all or some of the suits.

Argersinger and her attorney, Ronald E. Osman, filed suits against the board June 11 and June 18.

One case states Argersinger was denied due process and was fired in violation of the Illinois Open Meetings Act.

The second case states the board violated a contract stipulation that should have allowed Argersinger to remain in the chancellor's office for at least six months after being notified of her termination. The second court asks the court to order her reinstatement as chancellor.

Scoring big with students

Netscape's Web browser is better than Microsoft's, and L.B.M. is significantly cooler than Apple.

Or so says a recent survey of 1,200 college students conducted by Student Monitor for a slew of private companies — including computer and software manufacturers and traditional and online media corporations — interested in tapping into the college-age market.

The survey took a look at students' spending habits and opinions. It found that Web-surfing students preferred Netscape over Microsoft's Explorer by a margin of 58 percent to 27 percent, and that 5 percent had bought textbooks sold online. A whopping 80 percent agreed that boxers are much cooler than briefs, and 39 percent believed the country is "right on track." Another 77 percent said drinking beer was in, and 59 percent said the same about body piercing. Student Monitor, based in Ridgewood, N.J., conducts industry-specific studies and surveys starting at $12,000. Don't try looking for a copy of this year's full report online or even in the campus library. A one-year subscription to the survey's findings costs $20,000.

Women's services to offer sexual assault support group

DAPHNE RETTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Carbondale women who are survivors of sexual assault may soon have help coping with emotions that follow and draw out the trauma of an attack.

This fall, Women's Services will offer "healing toward wholeness," a support group for women coming to terms with some form of sexual abuse. The group will be open to women from SIUC and in the Carbondale community.

Carol Sommer, director of Women's Services and a graduate student in educational psychology, said the support group can help women dealing with a variety of different situations.

"It's open to anyone who has experienced sexual abuse and is trying to recover and be on the road to healing," she said. "It's about healing and growing and learning from each other." Sommer said the support group will meet on a weekly basis as soon as enough women come forward.

Participants then will take part in a 15-minute screening to ensure they understand the goals of the group.

Sommer hopes to get started within the next two to three weeks.

It is estimated that between one in three and one in four women are victims of sexual assault. Sommer said she is concerned that women are not seeking help because they blame themselves on some level.

"The ones that are reported are just the tip of the iceberg, and that reflects that women tend to keep things in," she said. "They feel that there's a stigma attached to being sexually assaulted."

Jenny Lybeck-Brown, a graduate student in counseling, will facilitate the group. Brown said groups such as "healing toward wholeness" can make a big difference in the process sexual assault survivors go through.

Alumni Appreciation Day enjoys increased participation

ANDY EGENSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN

James Prowell enjoyed the Alumni Association Appreciation Day football game at McAndrew Stadium Saturday, 44 years after graduating from SIUC.

The Alumni Association provided a lunch and game day tickets for their members and friends of the University. The Appreciation Day event brought in a variety of people from around the country and the area.

More than 700 alumni involved in the association were part of the 10,400 spectators who witnessed SIUC's victory against Murray State.

Greg Scott, assistant director of public and alumni relations for the Alumni Association, said the association initially planned to buy 700 tickets for the game but had to purchase more Friday.

Scott is optimistic about the increased participation because the association only purchased 500 tickets for the first Alumni Appreciation Day. He said alumni appreciation has been increasing every year.

"This is a way of extending our appreciation to them [SIUC alumni] and supporting athletics at the same time," he said.

This is the fourth year the Alumni Association has hosted an event for alumni before a Saluki football game. Scott said he feels there is great potential for the future of Saluki football.

"Let's not kid ourselves. A lot depends on how the team does," Scott said. "But if you have a good time at an event, you're going to say, 'Let's go back.'"

Scott said his main goal is to set up an environment that is enjoyable for alumni to attend.

"If they get here and enjoy the atmosphere, they may want to go to more games," Scott said.

Prowell, like many of his fellow alumni members, still enjoys being a part of the Alumni Association and University activities.

“ We try to sell SIU to everyone. ”

JAMES PROWELL
SIUC alumnus

"It is more than just a place to come and socialize," Prowell said. "We try to sell SIU to everyone."

Prowell provides counseling to various small business operations in the Southern Illinois region along with being a coordinator of Carbondale United Way. He said SIUC gave him excellent preparation for a business career.

"I would tell someone thinking about coming to SIU to look at the graduates and what SIU can do to prepare you for a future," he said. "If you do, you will pick SIU."

Dedication, hard work propel Henry to presidency

TIM BARRETT
DAILY EGYPTIAN

When it came time to choose a running partner for Undergraduate Student Government last spring, Brian Atchison considered numerous people.

At one point, Atchison, now USG vice president, considered running for president himself, but instead asked former USG senator Sean Henry if he would run for president.

Henry accepted Atchison's proposal and won the presidency in April with Atchison as his running mate. Five months later, Atchison still is pleased with his choice.

"I've always liked Sean. I've always felt that he was dedicated to USG and to the organization," Atchison said. "He's here late at night. He's here all the time making sure this office is running smoothly and attending meetings."

Staying on top of issues and informing students about those issues is a large part of Henry's job, which is why his dedication is so important, Atchison said.

Henry, a senior political science major from Chicago, first became involved with student government the second semester of his freshman year, serving as executive assistant to USG president Troy Alim. He later became election commissioner for both USG and student trustee elections. His sophomore year, Henry became a senator representing University Park. He was instrumental in lobbying for continued late night food service, adding cable channels and offering improved laundry service in University Park.

"I've always liked Sean. I've always felt that he was dedicated to USG and to the organization."

BRIAN ATCHISON
USG vice president

Having that voice in policy is what makes student government so appealing, Henry said.

"I like to be a part of the decision making process," he said. "The only way you can do these different projects is through a student leadership position."

After being defeated in the USG presidential election at the end of his sophomore year, Henry took a year off from USG.

He became a resident assistant in University Park and was active in the Black Affairs Council. Henry credits council coordinator Sean Smith with helping to keep him informed of campus issues.

"He kept me involved," Henry said of Smith. "If it wasn't for him, I wouldn't be here."

By staying involved through the council and remaining informed on housing issues through his time spent as a resident assistant, Henry was able to accept Atchison's recommendation that he run for USG president.

As president Henry said he hopes to get more students involved in student government, and work to resolve issues on Select 2000, the proposed technology fee and landlord/tenant relations.

Henry describes himself as being neat, punctual and organized, characteristics he credits to his service in the Army Reserves, which he has been a part of since his junior year in high school.

The ability to listen to multiple viewpoints, compromise, bring people together and shake policy are reasons Henry thinks he makes a good president.

Those who have worked with Henry on campus seem to agree with his self-assessment.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson described Henry as "judicious" and "balanced," as well as a good listener.

"I think Sean is a very focused young man and works intensely on projects he's picked up," Jackson said.

Henry exhibited these qualities in his work with administration to keep the Morris Library open 24 hours, despite a lack of funds, Jackson said.

"The year is young, but I think so far we've had a good working relationship," Jackson said.

Nancy Hunter Pei, director of Student Development, said she worked with Henry during the summer on issues regarding the funding of Registered Student Organizations. Pei said Henry showed particular interest for student concerns and was open to new ideas.

"I found him to be somebody who is very involved with problem solving," Pei said. "I think students will feel a high level of communication with Sean and be able to go to him and have him be a good listener. I think he's going to be a really good leader for USG."

Ceremony takes athletes on stroll down memory lane

ANDY EGENSE
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Former SIU baseball standout Robert Jones started wondering how he ended up at Southern Illinois University.

Jones was among five others reminiscing about their favorite memories during the Sports Hall of Fame ceremony Saturday in the Student Center.

The six inductees included three men and three women who displayed great athleticism and for being first class individuals off their respective playing fields.

Jones and Jim Adduci represented the baseball team. Others invited to the ceremony were two-sport athlete Scott Gabbert, iron-woman swimmer Rene Royaly Contino, volleyball player Lisa Cummins Kowalski and women's basketball star Anita Scott.

Jones, who starred on Abe Martin Field from 1983 to 1986, said there were several reasons why he chose to come to SIU instead of signing a major league contract with the Cincinnati Reds straight out of high school.

When he was 18, Jones had a hard time deciding what to do with his future. While visiting the Carbondale campus, he ventured to Abe Martin Field to ask legendary SIU baseball coach Richard "Itchy" Jones for advice.

"He told me, 'You have to do what is right for Robert Jones.' Besides, it was January when this happened, and it was 70 degrees outside, and I said, 'I think I can handle this,'" Robert said.

The all-time Saluki RBI leader (176) went on to enjoy a successful professional baseball career after leaving SIU.

Scott Gabbert, star quarterback for the Salukis from 1988 to 1992, reflected on the people who helped him achieve his goals both on and off the field.

Gabbert, who is listed at the top of six different offensive categories for the Salukis, wanted to acknowledge the people who aided in his success but did not garner the glory.

"I especially like the guys who blocked and caught for me. They are my friends," Gabbert said.

On a serious note, Gabbert struggled to speak while dedicating the award to his 28-year-old friend who died of cancer.

"This award is for you," Gabbert said in a broken voice.

Anita Scott also took a trip down memory lane when she pulled into town his weekend.

Scott, who starred in a Saluki uniform in the early '90s, has played basketball overseas the last six years. She has only been in the country seven months since leaving SIU in 1993.

"I started having all these memories when I was driving down here. I could remember a pizza place and started thinking to myself how long it has been," Scott said.

Scott has played basketball around the globe since graduation. Some of her stops have included Australia, Greece and Israel. But Scott said she did not think too much about her days at SIU until she was gone.

"I didn't take it all in when it was given to me," Scott said. "But now I can."

Adduci, another former professional baseball player, talked mostly about his baseball coach Itchy Jones.

Adduci, SIU's second all-time leading home-run hitter, played three seasons for the Salukis (1978-80) before playing for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Currently manager of baseball operations for the Chicago White Sox, Adduci said he was thankful to coach Itchy Jones for allowing him to come into a rich baseball tradition at SIU.

"[Itchy Jones] not only taught me baseball skills, but he taught me life skills," Adduci said.

Both Robert Jones and Adduci had the chance to meet with their old coach at a dinner hosted by interim Chancellor John Jackson.

"It was really special for them to get together with Coach Jones," Jackson said.

"But it was nice for all of them to sit back and reminisce and enjoy thinking about their time here."

"It was a high quality evening for all of us."

Groups band together to press for diversity

LOS ANGELES TIMES

NEW YORK — A broad coalition of groups representing blacks, Latinos, Asian Americans and American Indians said Friday they would join forces in demanding more ethnic diversity from the four major broadcast television networks: ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox.

The Rev. Al Sharpton, speaking at a Manhattan news conference to announce the new joint effort, also unveiled a plan, which he said was developed with NAACP President Kweisi Mfume, to pressure presidential candidates to take a stand on the underrepresentation of minority groups on the air and behind the cameras.

Before the formation of the 19-member coalition, the ethnic groups had largely been acting on their own since the issue came to the forefront when the networks announced their fall schedules in May, with almost no minority actors in their new shows.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, for example, has said it plans to launch a boycott of one or two networks during the November "sweeps" period that is used to set advertising rates. And a coalition of Latino groups has called for a viewer boycott, which they labeled a "brownout," for two weeks beginning Sunday.

Coalition members, noting that they represent 30 percent of the American population, said they plan to endorse one another's boycotts and any other future actions taken.

Debate squad has a committed new coach

BRYNN SCOTT
DAILY EGYPTIAN

During Jeff Bile's nine-year tenure as the Saluki Debate Squad director, the squad won four consecutive national titles. Now, Bile has returned to the team after a six-year absence in hopes of restoring the victorious record he helped make years ago.

The team won four consecutive Cross-Examination Debate Association National Championship titles from 1986-1989 under Bile's leadership.

Bile said he wants to see the team win a title and involve a more diverse group of debaters.

"One of my big goals is to get more people into debating, including Carbondale community members and SIUC students," Bile said.

"A non-policy format [forcing judges to make personal decisions about debate issues] would be ideal for less experienced debaters."

Though Bile is only signed with the debate team for nine months, he said he hopes structure in the program will change.

"This is probably a perfect position for Jeff at the time, considering that we are starting a national search for a debate team coach this year, and he is finishing up his Ph.D.," said Phillip Glenn, department chair of Speech Communication.

"Jeff brings delight as well as outstanding credentials as a teacher and debate coach to our program. He does a superb job."

Two coaches helping Bile make a change in the program are SIUC debate team veterans and graduate students Aaron Klemz and James Roland.

"Jeff is trying to step in the direction of community-oriented debate," said Klemz, a graduate student in speech communication from Minneapolis.

"This is a new direction for the program. Jeff brings a strong tradition back to the team and is also very thoughtful. He fits in with the students."

Bile earned his bachelor's in science and communication from Ohio University and his master's in speech communication from Eastern Illinois University.

Bile is in the process of completing his doctoral dissertation in the "Critical Examination of Communication in Western Culture" from Ohio University.

"I have really committed my life to debate. It is a way of learning," Bile said. "I feel that this culture is monological, and debate addresses that in a frontal way."

Kansas Creationist beliefs evolve into controversy

LOS ANGELES TIMES

DOUGLASS, Kan. — If they know anything, person after person here declares, they know this: God created them. Created all mankind. As for the talk about man evolving from tree-swinging apes? A hoax, they scoff — and a cruel one, at that.

The biblical creation story is bedrock belief for many in this blue-collar prairie town.

Yet, even as they call evolution a fraud, residents by and large say they do not object to their children studying it in school. Sure, there are caveats. Some think parents should be able to take their kids out of class when the subject comes up. Others insist evolution be labeled a tenuous theory.

Still, they grudgingly acknowledge that their children should be exposed to it, if only because it's so widely accepted.

The complex views expressed and debated here reflect the confusion rolling communities across Kansas since the state Board of Education last month voted to delete evolution from the mandatory science curriculum.

Teachers in Kansas still are free to present evolution, the theory that all life on Earth shares a common ancestor nearly 4 billion years old. And no one is required to teach creation, the biblical view that God created all species over the course of six days.

But the board's decision is far-reaching nonetheless.

It's now up to Kansas' 304 school districts to decide whether to spend class time on a topic that's not required and will not be tested on statewide assessment exams.

Parents can try to influence the curriculum through their elected school boards. But often, as in Douglass, those parents are deeply conflicted — believing on the one hand that their children should hear about evolution but convinced on the other that it's blasphemous.

So in the end, both evolutionists and creationists agree, what Kansas kids learn about our origins will depend in large measure on their teachers — and, quite possibly, on their teachers' personal beliefs.

"They'll be able to teach what they want to teach," said Mary Douglass Brown, a Board of Education member.

Thus, in a Topeka middle school, science teacher Shannon Keller plans to delay teaching evolution to the end of the year, figuring he won't have time to get to it. If he does find a spare hour for evolution, he said, he'll tell his students that, in his opinion, "the odds are astronomical against it." And he'll "provide examples of complex organisms" that he believes could not possibly have evolved due to random genetic mutation.

At a nearby high school, however, biology teacher Dennis Ary will continue to lecture on evolution, just as he always has. "Oh, yes," he said, sounding surprised that anyone would doubt it. In fact, Ary added, the current uproar has him talking more than ever about evolution, as students have come to him with question after question.

Seeking a middle ground here in Douglass, a southeast Kansas town of 1,700, junior high school principal Bob Swigart said he's told his teachers that "we're going to continue doing what we're doing," regardless of the board decision. If his teachers want to present evolution, he won't interfere — although he's made clear that he personally thinks it's bunk.

Still, for all his hands-off attitude, Swigart acknowledged that he expects his teachers to "gear up" for the state tests — which leave out evolution — by "using (state guidelines) to help plan the curriculum." And he added that he feels duty-bound to make sure public schools accommodate Christian parents and their views on education. "We need to meet their needs," he explained. "They're part of the public too."

Criticism of Reno for Waco continues

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — Former Missouri senator John C. Danforth said Sunday that he is already assembling a team of private attorneys and federal investigators to probe the government's 51-day standoff against the Branch Davidian sect in 1993 and would not hesitate to prosecute officials for wrongdoing.

"I have been given assurance that I can carry this investigation in whatever direction I see fit," he said on "Fox News Sunday." But Danforth's remarks, following his appointment as a "special counsel" last week by Attorney General Janet Reno, did little to quell a growing political controversy over the standoff outside Waco, Texas, that ended in a fire that killed 76 people.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., on CBS's "Face the Nation," renewed his call for Reno to resign. "I believe the time has come where that would help the sense of justice at the Justice Department," Lott said.

Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., chairman of the House Committee on Government Reform, said on "Fox News Sunday" that an internal Justice Department memo obtained by his staff last week indicates that the Justice Department failed to provide Congress with critical information about the siege. "She's responsible," Burton said on Fox. "So it remains to be seen whether or not she'll stay or go."

The controversy over the Waco siege, first investigated by Burton's committee four years ago, flared anew last month after FBI officials admitted they had used potentially incendiary tear gas canisters on the last day of the siege.

Reno, who said she had been misled by FBI assurances that no such devices had been used, sent U.S. marshals to FBI headquarters Sept. 1 to secure a videotape of the last day of the standoff. The move exposed a deepening rift between Reno and FBI Director Louis J. Freeh.

when he took his turn with the chair.

Hearing, a senior in health education from Evansville, Ind., said the battles he encountered enabled him to understand a little more about the problems wheelchair users face.

"When I first started, I didn't think it would be as difficult as it was," he said. "There is a lot you don't know about being confined in a wheelchair until you are in one."

Brooks walked away from her wheelchair Friday with a little more understanding and sympathy for people who use wheelchairs on a permanent basis.

"I am more aware of things that I used to take for granted," she said. "It was a very good learning experience."

and the Residential Leasing Task Force.

Redmond, who also served with Scott on the Park District Board, said Scott was a strong proponent of creating a walking trail and adding a second pavilion at Attucks Park.

"He was a very valuable member. He will be missed," Redmond said.

Raul Ayala served with Scott on the City Planning Commission and said he was impressed with Scott's ability to dig into issues, to not just accept a presentation but to look at all the angles.

"Scott was a hard-working person that had a very positive way of looking at things," Ayala said. "He always wanted to learn and was very inquisitive."

Scott, who owned rental property in Carbondale, joined the Residential Leasing Task Force in April. The task force, formed to resolve landlord-tenant problems in Carbondale, last met in early August.

Kevin Williams, a rental property owner in Carbondale, served on the committee with Scott.

"[Scott's death] was a real loss to the community. He was a nice individual," Williams said. "He was a good man, good for the community."

FINALISTS

Kenyon, who has been in his current position since 1992, oversees a variety of student areas at SUNY College at Buffalo, the largest of the liberal arts colleges in the SUNY system. These areas include intercollegiate athletics, career development, counseling and health services.

Kenyon holds both a master's and a doctorate from Harvard University with a doctoral concentration in organizational behavior and labor relations in higher education. He received his bachelor's in education from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Whittaker, who has been with Stillman College since 1995, oversees Student Development, health services, residential life and housing, financial aid, athletics and student activities at Stillman. Her office also supervises the people heading judicial affairs, student government and career planning.

She received a doctorate in educational administration from Illinois State University in 1983, a master's in student personnel administration from Howard University in 1976 and a bachelor's in English education from Howard in 1974.

BUDGET

million increase includes $17.9 million more for SIUC including the School of Medicine, $7.9 million more for SIUE and $89,000 for University-wide functions including the president's office.

Operating budget guidelines were approved by the board in July, and Thursday's vote was the final approval needed before the document is sent to the IBHE.

Interim Chancellor John Jackson said the increased funding will help SIUC continue to catch up on salaries and begin to address "very real" support cost needs.

SIUC projects included on the capital budget priorities list are $10 million in repairs to Altgeld Hall and the Old Baptist Foundation, $1.5 million for studio renovations in the Communications Building, more than $3 million for climate control renovations in the Neekers Building, and nearly $2 million each for renovations and additions to Morris Library and the development of the Transportation Education Center at Southern Illinois Airport.

Other action taken by the board Thursday included the approval of an agreement that gave the University a new exchange for about 46 acres of land.

The agreement is the final step in a process that began two years ago when the state asked SIUC for the land south of SIU Arena in order to reroute a dangerous section of U.S. Highway 51. In exchange for the land, the Illinois Department of Transportation built a new entrance to SIU Arena off U.S. 51 at a cost of about $317,000. The entrance was completed in fall 1997, and the road relocation project began a few weeks ago.

The board also granted a utility easement to Carbondale needed for completion of the Mill Street Underpass. The strip of land is located just south of University Court apartments and allows the city to reroute utilities for the Wesley Foundation Building, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

The next meeting of the Board of Trustees will be Oct. 14 on the SIUC campus.

Sweeping up competition

Softball team wins Saluki Invitational during weekend

COREY CUSICK
DAILY EGYPTIAN

SIU head softball coach Kerri Blaylock utilized the Salukis' intimidation factor when her ball club was in jeopardy of allowing the Saluki Invitational to slip away.

In the Salukis' fourth game of the Invitational at IAW Fields Sunday, Rend Lake College and SIU were deadlocked at 3-3, forcing extra innings.

The international tie-breaker rule in softball tournaments places a runner on second base at the start of every extra inning.

NEXT UP

• The Salukis return to action for the Bradley Invitational Friday through Sunday in Orlando Park.

Candice Hutcheson on second base. After a sacrifice bunt, Hutcheson advanced to third with only one out. Freshman Saluki hurler Katie Kloess walked the next batter putting runners on first and third.

Enter the intimidation, or in other words, senior flame-thrower Carisa Winters.

Winters jumped into the game, bounced and hopped around in her traditional fashion and made Lady Warriors' freshman Meredith Ramsey look sick at the plate, registering a strikeout. The next batter hit a weak ground out to third base ending the top half of the inning.

"She does have an intimidation factor," Blaylock said. "She throws the ball hard and they know she has a great change-up. And I think [Ramsey was intimidated]."

Winters' late inning heroics fired up the Salukis for the bottom half of the inning.

"Everyone wants to do their part," Winters said. "I just wanted to help do mine."

In the Salukis' bottom half of the eighth, others did their part.

Junior center fielder Marta Viehhaus, who homered earlier in the game, started at second base. Junior first baseman Chiara Calvert bunted Viehhaus to third, allowing an infield ground ball by sophomore Jenny Guenther to score Viehhaus and give the Salukis a 4-3 victory.

"I'll tell you what, Rend Lake is a good junior college team," Blaylock said. "They were very pumped up. I told our kids this weekend that we were the hunted because they all wanted to beat us."

The Salukis opened the Invitational Saturday with a 3-0 victory over Southern Indiana led by the arm of Winters (3-0) and the bats of junior designated hitter/pitcher Erin Stremsterfer and sophomore catcher Andrea Harris.

Winters pitched seven shutout innings, striking out 10, while allowing only two hits. Stremsterfer and Harris were perfect, going four for four and three for three, respectively, with one RBI each.

Stremsterfer was not done though. In the second game Saturday, Stremsterfer repeated game one's performance going four for four with a home run and two RBIs in the 7-0 shutout against John A. Logan College. Stremsterfer was a perfect eight for eight on the day.

"She was amazing [Saturday], but the thing that Erin does is that she stays so positive and so in the game that she gives herself the opportunity to succeed," Blaylock said.

With Stremsterfer's aid, Kloess (1-0) received all the run support she needed in her Saluki debut. Kloess pitched seven innings allowing only two hits, while striking out 10.

In game three of the tournament, Sunday morning, the Salukis made quick work of Shawnee Community College defeating them 10-2 in five innings. Stremsterfer (1-0) earned the victory going five innings and striking out 10. Both of the runs allowed were unearned. Viehhaus was two for three with a double and three RBIs, while junior first baseman Nette Hallahan hit her first home run as a Saluki, a two-run shot in the second inning.

The Salukis, who used five different lineups in all five games, finished the tournament with a 5-0 victory over Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

Winters pitched a one-hit shutout, striking out eight. It was her second shutout of the Invitational.

Viehhaus was two for three with a home run, her second of the tournament, and Stremsterfer continued her hot hitting going three for three.

For the tournament, Stremsterfer was 12 for 16 (.750 avg.) with a home run and three RBIs. Winters finished with three victories pitching a total of 14.2 innings, allowing only three hits, no runs and 19 strike outs.

"Carisa threw the ball very well this weekend," Blaylock said. "Overall, I was pleased with the weekend. There are definitely things we need to work on, don't get me wrong, but I think they gave good effort."

Volleyball team still winless

COREY CUSICK

The SIU volleyball team opened Missouri Valley Conference play with many of the same problems that plagued them in their first four matches of the season:

HOME OPENER

• The Salukis open their home schedule against Missouri Valley Conference foe Wichita State University at 7 p.m. Friday in Davies Gymnasium.

Errors and inexperience led the Salukis to their fifth and sixth straight losses of the early season, but this time, both losses were against Valley foes.

The Salukis (0-6, 0-2) fell to Creighton University, 1-3, (15-10, 15-7, 16-18, 15-5) Friday night in Omaha, Neb., and Drake University, 1-3, (15-12, 5-15, 15-8, 15-7) Saturday night in Des Moines, Iowa.

The Salukis opened both game one and two against the Bluejays with a 4-1 lead, but errors burdened the young team giving Creighton (3-3, 1-1) a two game advantage.

The Salukis played strong in game three and held off a Bluejey comeback to win 18-16, but could not repeat the performance in game four falling 15-18.

"Our downfall Friday night was that we didn't have any offense," Saluki head coach Sonya Locke said. "We had some good blocks and digs, but not enough offense."

Senior outside hitter Marrisra Kimbrough exerted a tremendous effort for Locke, recording a career high 22 digs against the Bluejays, while senior setter Debbie Barr paced the Salukis with 32 assists and 11 digs.

Freshman outside hitter Tara Cains led the Saluki offense with nine kills and nine digs, while fellow freshman outside hitter Kristie Keinner had 11 kills and nine digs. However, both of the freshman committed 10 errors a piece in the match.

"Errors," Locke said bluntly. "We committed too many errors."

Saturday night was much like Friday night for the Salukis, just a different opponent.

The Salukis battled with the Bulldogs (3-5, 2-0) for the first two games, losing the first game in a hard-fought 15-12 loss.

Locke's troops regrouped, however, to capitalize on their opponents' errors for once, eight in all by the Bulldogs in game two, leading to a 15-5 Saluki victory.

After the Game Two defeat, the Bulldogs put the Salukis away after jumping out to early leads in both game three and four, winning 15-8 and 15-7, respectively.

"We haven't been able to put a consistent performance together yet," Locke said. "We just need to develop some consistency in a lot of aspects and put the total package together."

Middle blocker Kim Bahr led the Bulldogs with 17 kills, while Lacey Corcoran recorded 12 kills and 12 digs.

The Salukis were led by sophomore middle blocker Jenny Noel with 15 kills and four digs. Barr had 31 assists to go along with her nine kills.

"We haven't really played a match yet in where the other team has beat us," Locke said. "Not to say anything about the other teams, it's just that we're making so many errors in critical game situations."

Records are made to be broken

Sherard Poteete, Cornell Craig and Brian Hamlett all put themselves in the record books

JAY SCHWAB
DAILY EGYPTIAN

By the end of the SIU 58-51 whirlwind victory over Murray State University Saturday, it would be easy for fans to forget many of the outstanding individual performances that shaped the wacky win.

Luckily, the record books won't forget them anytime soon.

Take the 399 yards Saluki quarterback Sherard Poteete passed for, a new SIU record. Poteete surpassed Scott Gabbert, who threw for 381 yards in a 1989 loss to Northern Illinois University.

"I didn't know about [breaking the record] until the game was over," Poteete said. "But it was a good win for us. The offensive line kept them off of me in the first half, and I was able to throw the ball around."

Having plenty of time to throw the football and a pair of outstanding wide receivers at his disposal helped make the day a special one for Poteete, who hooked up with wide receivers Cornell Craig and Brian Hamlett for three touchdowns apiece.

Poteete's six touchdown passes on the day ensured another prestigious spot in the record books, as the previous SIU record for touchdown passes was four — a feat five different Saluki quarterbacks have accomplished.

With their productive outings, Craig and Hamlett tied the SIU all-time mark for most touchdowns catches in a game. Containing the duo should be a monumental task for opposing defenses all season.

"Hamlett's got good size on him. He's bigger than most of the corners," Poteete said. "Then Cornell's got good speed, and probably the best hands in the conference."

Murray State head coach Denver Johnson came away from the game highly respecting the SIU offense, with eight receptions from Craig especially tickling in his mind.

"(Craig) is about as good as we're going to see," Johnson said. "That son-of-a-gun is pretty good."

The three touchdown passes caught by Hamlett came as a big relief to the lanky sophomore wide receiver from Vernon Hills. Last week, Hamlett did not have a reception in the Saluki romp over Southeast Missouri State.

"I was a little down on myself, but coach had a talk with me and said, 'You know something's going to happen this week,'" Hamlett said. "And something happened, so I'm just happy to get out of here with a few catches."

There will be plenty more catches the rest of the way if the confidence the receivers have developed in Poteete is any indication of things to come.

"We're real comfortable with Sherard," Hamlett said. "We've got all the timing down, and it's just all clicking really well."

SIU head coach Jan Quarless said Poteete is the type of player who can be remarkable on occasion.

"I think we've always felt he's had a good arm, and that he has the capability of doing these kind of things," Quarless said.

Although the Salukis jumped to a 41-12 halftime lead against the Racers, Poteete knew his work for the afternoon was not over. Poteete graduated two years behind golden-armed Racer quarterback Justin Fuente at the same Oklahoma high school, and was well aware of his counterpart's dangerous capabilities.

Fuente shattered his school's passing record Saturday, picking apart the Saluki defense in the second half to finish with a whopping 553 yards on 35 for 55 passing.

"I know Justin pretty well, and I knew he wasn't going to quit," Poteete said.

"I told the guys at halftime, they were going to come back, so we've got to come out and put some more points on the board."

With his unprecedented performance against the Racers, Poteete may have cooled down the challenge for the starting job from fellow junior Ryan Douglass.

The two quarterbacks split time in the season opener, but Poteete was playing too well to be removed from the game Saturday. The 58 points scored by SIU is the most since a season opening 63-0 win in 1985.

After the game, however, Quarless said he was disappointed he did not have the opportunity to insert Douglass.

"That's not up for me to decide," Poteete said of whether he earned the right to be the sole quarterback. "But I'd like to think so."

At the conclusion of the game, tempers flared on the field between SIU and Murray State players and assistant coaches.

During the Racer win against SIU last season, the Salukis were none-too-thrilled by the Racers' continued attempts to add points once the outcome of the game was decided.

Quarless watched the hubbub from afar, and said the incident speaks to a rivalry that has developed between the regional foes.

"This is a high emotional game," Quarless said. "If you really look at the high and the low ebbs of it, it's something that might be expected — particularly, I'm sure [the Racers] were extremely frustrated by losing after having a valiant effort in the second half."

Frustration puts it mildly, as a disgruntled Johnson bemoaned the wasted performance by Fuente that resulted from his squad's inability to stop Poteete and the Salukis.

"It's disheartening to me the way we're playing defense," Johnson said. "We just gave up way too much passing yardage. . . we're just not getting it done, and I don't know that I really have an answer for it right now."

"I'm proud of my team for battling back the way they did, but I'm certainly disappointed in them for letting ourselves get in the position we did in the first half."

For SIU, the personal accolades for Poteete, Craig and Hamlett mean little compared to the big picture. The Salukis, left for dead by most preseason pundits, are 2-0 entering next week's trip to Eastern Illinois University.

"I'm just real excited for the players," Quarless said. "Because they work pretty dogged hard, they really do."

I didn't know about [breaking the record] until the game was over. But it was a good win for us. The offensive line kept them off of me in the first half, and I was able to throw the ball around.

Men's team takes second

The SIU men's golf team placed second of 10 teams, falling just one point shy of first place Northern Illinois University (893), in the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay's Invitational last Thursday.

Tim Countryman of NIU finished first (73-73-71—217), followed by SIU freshman Brandon Bullard, who placed second (73-73-77—223), senior Justin Long came in fourth (70-85-70—225), and freshman Kurt Pfaff came in seventh (77-75-74—226).

Other SIU finishers included freshman Tim

Hoss (71-79-82—232) who placed 20th, freshman Kyle McClure, who placed 32nd (79-77-81—237), and junior Trent Hudgens, who came in 39th place (82-77-80—239). The Salukis currently are competing at Southeast Missouri State University at the SEMO/Drury Intercollegiate Tournament in Cape Girardeau, Mo. The tournament ends Tuesday.

Gabbert's. Poteete collected 330 passing yards and five touchdown passes in the first half as the Salukis seized a 41-12 half-time lead.

"I met Scott just a few minutes after the game was over," Poteete said. "He said to leave him a few records."

"It was a fun day. The offensive line gave me great protection. I could just sit back in the pocket and just pick them apart."

Racers took over on their own 33. Senior safety Carlo McClelland picked off a Justin Fuente pass two plays later.

The SIU drive stalled at the Racer 12-yard line, forcing the Salukis to settle on a 30-yard field goal by Everhart to give the Salukis a 58-44 lead. He was one-for-two with both field goals attempts being 30 yards.

The Racers responded with a four play, 69-yard drive capped by a Fuente, who completed 35-of-55 for 553 yards and four TDs, pass that skipped through the arms of SIU linebacker Luther Claxton's arms into the waiting hands of Murray State receiver Joe Perez for a 46-yard gain. Justin Bivins then scored on a three-yard run cutting the lead to 58-51 with 2:42 to play.

Outscoring the Salukis 39-10 since the 10:30 mark in the third quarter, Racer head coach Denver Johnson elected for an on-side kick knowing that his defense allowed the Saluki offense to rack up 553 total yards for the game. The Racers recovered the kick on their own 46.

"We made it way to easy on him," Johnson said about the defensive pressure that his team did not exhibit. "We busted some coverages and we didn't ever mount much of a pass rush on [Poteete]. Those guys protected well for him and he did his part."

Freshman defensive back Charlie DeTorres broke up Fuente's fourth and 12 pass giving the Salukis possession and killing the clock for the 58-51 final.

"I saw [Tillman] break to the inside. I broke inside and kept the ball in front of me," DeTorres said. "As soon as I saw the ball coming, I just broke to the ball and did what I had to do — I broke it up."

For DeTorres and the Saluki defense, it was a tale of two halves. The Salukis allowed only 26 yards rushing, but 229 yards via the pass as they limited the Racers to 12 first-half plays. The Saluki defense kept the Racers to 86 rushing yards while giving up 324 more yards through the air.

"We really couldn't get to Fuente, who did a great job in the second half," a relieved SIU coach Jan Quarless said.

"Really, I look at the turnovers (two) in the second half. They were very difficult for our defense to handle. But then they came up with big plays when they had to."

The Saluki offense made their big plays early and often as Poteete connected with sophomore receiver Brian Hamlett for touchdown passes of 11, 13 and 26 yards in the first half. Senior receiver Cornell Craig also caught three TDs of 24, 24 and 13 yards. Craig led all receivers with 180 yards on eight catches. Hamlett had 87 yards on four receptions.

Freshman running back Tom Koutsos, who rallied 194 yards against Southeast Missouri, led the Saluki rushing attack with 91 yards on 25 carries along with TD runs of 3 and 31 yards.

"It's kind of ironic, isn't it?" Quarless mused over Poteete's record-breaking performance in the presence of Scott Gabbert. "You know me though; I'm not a man for records. I think it's a team game, and I'm very proud of the fact that he did, likewise, what we did last year with the guys."

"But it's a team game and I think when you get a chance to break a record, it's 11 people involved. Only one man gets the credit sometimes. I'm happy for him, happy we did it on [Gabbert's] day."
