Al Capp

stirs

reaction

... at Convocation

By Margaret Nicley
Staff Writer

The convocation appearance of cartoonist Al Capp here Thursday developed into a confrontation between the speaker and the S.W.I.N.E.

S.W.I.N.E. is Capp's term for "Students Wildly Indignant about Nearly Everything," as used in his syndicated comic strip, "Li'l Abner."

He invoked criticism from one contingent in the audience with remarks about demonstrations in Chicago at the Democratic National Convention and student activists.

Capp contended that Mayor Richard Daley handled the riots in Chicago admirably and that the innocent people who were hurt there "should have stayed home."

"When anybody plunges into a wild melee, he's going to get hit by the flying fists," he said.

Asked by a student if he would defend the "indiscriminate clubbing of ministers, priests, newsmen and first aid personnel in Chicago," Capp said that individuals get hurt when they get in the way of "any explosion, whether it is dynamite or human passions."

He also invited the student to join him on the platform during the exchange because "I haven't heard diction like yours in a long time."

Capp compared Daley's handling of the unrest in Chicago to Mayor John Lindsay's handling of the take-over of Columbia University by demonstrators in New York. Lindsay waited six days before interlocking ("That was the day these kids set visionary and idealistic fires in the campus storerooms.")

"The only difference is that Daley clubbed them before they could do anything," Capp said. "If there is any criticism of Daley, it's that he's a party pooper."

He also said there was a link between the Columbia University incident and what happened in Chicago, since many of the same student activists were involved. He went on to define a student activist as "a fulltime brawler, arsonist and petty thief whose father's lawyer can also prove he is a part-time student."

In reference to one Harvard administrator's comment that students who had heckled and attacked former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara could not be punished for a "purely political action," Capp said, "If depriving a man of his freedom of speech, freedom of movement and almost his life is a political action, then rape is a social event and sticking up a service station is a financial transaction."

Staff Writer

Most of the students didn't like what the silver haired cartoonist-crusader from Boston had to say; but his gutsy abruptness and willingness to "tell it like it is" drew them like magnets.

The convocation appearance of humorist Al Capp only whetted the appetites of his audience, students visibly starved for answers to questions that confront our age, and an unprecedented crowd of nearly 1,000 followed the man to Ballroom A of the University Center for the scheduled coffee-hour following the address.

The Ballroom could not accommodate the crowd, and the group gradually re-assembled in and around the steps shadowed by Browne Auditorium.

"Let's establish some ground rules first," said the eager little man, apparently pleased with the reception.

"Only one person speaks at a time, and no one interrupts anyone but me—because I'm running the meeting."

The confrontation had begun. For the next 75 minutes the speaker proceeded to alienate, reproach, disgust, insult, and repudiate nearly all his listeners, in varying degrees and at different times.

"Some of you have already become useful citizens," he said, "but most of you still need to be toilet trained."

An obscenity was buried from the crowd. "Now that you have told us your name," shouted Capp, cigarette held between pointed fingers, "you can damn well get out of here. Go back to your room and masturbate!"

At one point in the discussion a student stood up in anger to demand a question. Capp refused to recognize the long-haired youth, shirt unbuttoned in the front and John Brown type hat poised above the brow.

"You should listen to me," the student shouted. "I'm a veteran. I've fought for this country. Have you fought for this country, Mr. Capp, are you a veteran?"

"No, I'm not a veteran."

"Why not?"

"I'm not a veteran because I lost my leg when I was nine years old!"

"Were you poor?"

"Yes."

"Are you rich now?"

"Yes."

"How did you get rich?"

"I WORKED!"

A round of applause swelled from the crowd, into the afternoon breeze, and carried away some of the anxieties of the confrontation.

"I'm dealing with you as you are with me," explained Capp. "I'm taking what you are throwing at me and rubbing your noses in it."

Someone asked about lowering the voting age.

"If I were a kid of 18, or 19, or 20, and I was asked to defend a system that I had no part in making the decisions of, I would be mad."

"Would you throw a rock?" someone asked. "No, I wouldn't throw a rock," he replied. "Why not?"

"Because someone would throw one back at me—you damn fool."

... and at press conference

By Norris Jones
and Gary Blackburn
Staff Writers

"Kids are vastly more ignorant now than they were ten or 15 years ago," Al Capp said in a press conference Thursday afternoon. "Then they listened. Now they talk." He said students today have bad manners. "You're wasting my time and paying for it. They should take the time to listen to a man."

"Students are exactly the same here as in other places," Capp said. "In fact if you switched SIU to Boulder, Colo., and placed Boulder at San Francisco State and brought San Francisco State here, everything would still be the same. Students are alike as peas in a pod."

Asked if he often spoke to small groups such as gathered outside Browne Auditorium, Capp replied, "Not very often, but when the wind is right these groups aren't hard to find. The students here were so dreary but sort of funny."

Capp reasoned that the students weren't really that dull, they were just a "dirty, un-toilet trained group."

"When the students decide to be bores, I have an unlimited supply of boorishness," he continued. "If a student is grown up enough to bellow out something obscene, he is grown up enough to take it."

Capp said the "same damn questions" were asked here that have been asked before. He keeps stock answers tucked away in his mind for all subjects.

"There were three or four new questions in the whole line," he said. "That's probably a little above average."

During the brief news conference Capp sprinkled the conversation with his favorite word, "uhhhh" and emphasized the important phrases, chewing each syllable with the fat of his cheeks.

He started a film interview for WSIU-TV and when a camera failed he quipped, "You're just as incompetent as the boys at NBC. What do you get, $1.25 an hour?"

He said he used to attack the right and get mail saying he was a Communist. Now he attacks the left and gets mail saying he's a Fascist.

"Only when I attacked the peace demonstrator was I threatened by violence. Isn't that ironic?" he said as he shook his head.

While explaining his "right of freedom" position, Capp said that the only way one can overcome in the end, is to persuade more people to come over to his way of thinking.

"To play the democratic game the team that gets the biggest score wins, and the losers have to abide by the result," he concluded.

Bombing deal made for GIs

CHICAGO (AP) -- The national chairman of the Remembrance of the Pueblo Committee said today that the State Department made assurances to Cambodia that Viet Cong staging areas in that country would not be bombed if 12 Americans held captive by Cambodia were released.

The 12 men were released Dec. 21, 1968, the same day North Korea freed the 81 Pueblo crewmen.

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom of Prospect Heights said that "reliable government sources" confirmed within the last 24 hours such an agreement. "The committee," the Rev. Mr. Lindstrom said, "has also learned from a well informed military source that during the bombing halt in Vietnam the enemy succeeded in building a railroad through neutral Laos to the front."

Operatives with the Central Intelligence Agency, the Rev. Mr. Lindstrom said, have seen the Red Chinese deliver 5,000 transport loads of war materials, 100 miles east of Savannakhet.

Revenue apparatus needs re-examination

Governor Richard B. Ogilvie's proposals for a state income tax are a step in the right direction, but what is really needed is a total re-examination of the state's revenue apparatus.

Ogilvie last week recommended a flat four per cent tax rate on personal and corporation incomes coupled with a $1.3 billion a year increase in state spending, most of which is allocated for public education and public welfare.

The state needs an income tax. Thirty-eight states already have one. An income tax is the most equitable tax available to government since the tax is tied directly to income. Ideally, an income tax should be graduated so that as one's income goes up, he pays a higher rate. A flat rate hurts low income groups more than the well-to-do, who have more surplus income after purchasing necessities.

The present Illinois constitution, however, prohibits a graduated tax. In view of this, the flat rate income tax is better than the alternatives. It is to be hoped that the coming constitutional convention will provide for graduated tax rates in any new or revised constitution.

Ogilvie is to be commended for not asking an increase in the sales tax. Illinois' sales tax is already one of the highest in the nation. Illinois has the highest sales tax on food of any state. All sales taxes are inequitable. A sales tax, by definition, takes no account of one's ability to pay.

A sales tax on food is the most unjust tax of all. Regardless of income, everyone must buy a certain minimal amount of food. The demand for food does not rise proportionately with income. Thus, a tax on food, in effect, takes a higher percentage of the income of the poor.

It is to be lamented that the governor did not provide some relief to low-income taxpayers who now pay out a large share of their income in taxes. The proposals would have been met more favorably if Ogilvie had reduced the sales tax or dropped the sales tax on food completely.

The General Assembly should take these factors into consideration as it deliberates on the governor's proposal. Consideration of the income tax should be only a point of departure for a complete examination of the state revenue situation as a whole. The income tax is the best solution to a pressing problem, but it should be accompanied with an effort to make the whole state tax structure as equitable as possible.

To save mankind, save Allerton Park

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is in reply to the letter written by Mr. Larry Hawthorne. Mr. Hawthorne accuses me of being grossly out of proportion in my argument in the crusade to save Allerton Park. I have been called worse things, but never been proven to be so. Everything that the Daily Egyptian printed in the article "SIU students help save park" is true.

Allerton Park is another part of our natural heritage that is being devoured by man's ever-present desire for progress, may I add blind progress. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have become known for this type of progress ("dam-oriented" as most people consider them).

Oakley Reservoir is being built to act as a water supply for Decatur's sewage dilution. But in fact Oakley Reservoir will become one of the top ranking silt traps of the nation, as Lake Decatur already is. Being a new silt trap, Oakley Reservoir will be only a temporary solution to Decatur's sewage problem and a permanent destruction of another part of our natural heritage.

Mr. Hawthorne said that Oakley Reservoir will enhance Allerton Park, provide fishing, and possibly boating and swimming facilities. Nothing, except the Corps of Engineers, is farther from the truth.

Fishing, boating and swimming

Halt loss of life with one word

To the Daily Egyptian:

Over 7,000 human beings were killed in Vietnam during one week in March. These figures are read and digested with as much emotion as the Dow Jones Daily Stock Quotations.

Stop. Count slowly to 7,000. It takes a long time.

Imagine one-third of the students at SIU in Carbondale scattered in front of the University Center, some being burned alive, others blown or torn apart by explosives and sharp metal fragments. Can you hear the moaning, the gut-wrenching screams, the pain—imagine the pain?

Now, listen to the silence—the noise of the dead-smell, the rotting bodies. Realize that moments before, each one of these bloody figures laughed and talked and loved; each had a family, a home, a place now vacant. Imagine the one you loved most somewhere in the pile.

And now you poke and poke until your body aches and you gasp for breath and you wonder, not why this happened, but how to stop it from happening again next week and the week after that. It comes to you that STOP, a four-letter word, mouthed by the three right people would end it. A four letter word could save 7,000 lives next week; but the word isn't being said.

It's ok—you'll forget it happened by tomorrow. Don't bother to concern yourself.

John O'Brien

Letter

can be ruled obsolete as benefits of Oakley Reservoir. Oakley will become just as polluted and hazardous to boating and swimming as Lake Decatur presently is (Lake Decatur has been closed several times because of this high pollution). During spring and summer (recreation time) the water draw-down will be so great that a person will have to walk several hundred feet (600 ft. in some places) through mud in order to get to the water and then there will only be about 3 feet of water to swim and boat in. Fishing will be about as much fun and relaxing as fishing for sardines with a ship's anchor.

As to the statement about Oakley Reservoir enhancing Allerton Park, I think I could write a book. Allerton Park can't become any better than it presently is. It may have (as Mr. Hawthorne states) mosquitoes, snakes and crayfish in it, but so do the rest of the parks in the United States. I would also like to know what Mr. Hawthorne had in mind when he said "Allerton Park is hardly fit for human recreational purposes."

The true value of Allerton Park will be lost permanently if Oakley Reservoir is constructed. The bottomlands of Allerton Park lie in a natural flood plain and become flooded in late winter and early spring. If the Corps succeeds in building this "ill-conceived" project, the water will remain backed-up for a longer time than the natural environment is used to. With the bottomlands gone, the true beauty of Allerton Park will be lost.

A study of several less expensive alternatives (Oakley Reservoir will cost more than $70 million) was issued by the Harza Engineering Company, but thus far the Corps has paid no attention to these alternatives. What is really needed at this point is a positive approach from the Corps (even though it sounds impossible for the Corps ever to do.)

In conclusion, for those of you who side with Mr. Hawthorne (to build Oakley Reservoir), then I ask you to consider the following:

1) Since America was discovered, almost half of our wildlife, both plant and animal, have been destroyed.

2) What part of our natural heritage will be left for future generations if Allerton Park and places like it (like Lusk Creek here in southern Illinois) are destroyed.

3) "Can man survive in an environment that he alone creates?" Keep in mind that a natural environment does survive.

For those of you who back the saving of Allerton Park I suggest that you write a letter to State Senator John G. Gilbert, 513 W. Walnut, Carbondale, and ask why he withdrew his support for his own bill which called for a further study of alternatives to Oakley Reservoir.

For those of you have never seen a Corps project, I suggest that you go out to Crab Orchard and see how much it has silted in. At least the geese have found a use for mud-flats. With so much forestland down here it is hard to notice any loss of it. Don't fall asleep with the use of your natural resources down here in southern Illinois, because the Corps never sleeps.

Save Allerton Park or man will not long survive in his self-created environment!

Danger: Free School

To the Daily Egyptian:

Last Friday I was given a list of the courses offered by Free School this spring. If anyone wants information about the Free School courses, it is available at the Student Activities Office in the University Center.

There are many good, intellectually stimulating courses, as well as many activities that could be considered recreational in nature. The Free School is part of student activities, which is run by students and student government. The Free School allows the student to do his thing.

It is my feeling, however, that when doing your thing violates or endangers the rights of the majority of students such activity should not be permitted. Therefore I was very concerned when I found these courses being offered:

"Revolution"—Make it, don't write about it!

"Education for Anarchy"—The meaningless and absurdity of American institutional life has gone far enough! The time has come for radical change in the direction of total liberation. This is true for all phases of human life, political, social, psychological, economic, sexual, etc. The focus of this course will be on educational transformation. . . . Particular attention will be paid to the educational structures that now exist and to the methods of destruction and anarchic repattern-

ing. The AQUARIAN AGE is upon us and Nietzsche is reborn! Man is FREE. Repudiate false values. Let chaos and anarchy rule. Live.

"One Nite Stand" (In Free School Newsletter)—"Practical Workshop in Explosives" is the topic of the April 14 "One Nite Stand." The "Workshop" will cover the application of explosives to possible impending situations. Learn about the new military explosives and the makeshift home-made variety. Be prepared for any situation. Be the first on your block to own The Bomb! That's One Nite Stand at Free School.

It is my opinion that these courses of instruction on the means and methods of disruption and destruction with particular emphasis on educational institutions, is not in the interest of most students, because most students came here to become educated.

Thus, I urge all concerned students who see and realize the danger to call your senator or student government office and speak up. If your senator condones or ignores the advocacy of violence and disruption, then don't vote for him in the upcoming election.

If you are in favor of a peaceful campus, now is the time to speak. Don't wait! You must speak if you want your voice to be heard.

David Magadini

'Managerial jitters' unwarranted

Smothers satire imaginative, amusing

By Antero Pietila

The guardian angels of the nation's morals in Hollywood, New York and at your friendly local CBS affiliate saved you from evil last Sunday in deciding, on your behalf, that the scheduled "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" was not fit to see.

In Pierre Trudeau's swinging Canada it was shown, uncut and with David Steinberg's "sermonette." For all that we know, Canada still exists. What may be more in doubt is the continuing existence of "The Late Great State of California," even though its good people did not hear the monologue about Jonah who was swallowed by a "giant guppy."

"If the show still happens to be the thing in television, the Columbia Broadcasting System's cancellation of Sunday night's 'Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour' was a silly and suspect move. The program chanced to be one of the best that the Smothers Brothers have offered all season, imaginatively topical and genuinely amusing, and the 'sermonette' challenged by the network was not worth all of the managerial jitters."

This opinion was expressed by Jack Gould, the famed television critic of the New York Times after he had seen the original tape.

By now it should be clear that CBS's decision was prompted by considerations other than those given when the announcement was made. It has long been known that both CBS and the Smothers Brothers have been utterly dissatisfied with each other.

The network objected to the Smotherses' abusing red, white and Maddox; the brothers, on the other hand, have complained that the network has not permitted them the same freedom NBC grants to "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In." The "Comedy Hour" therefore goes off the air probably for the same reason Jules Feiffer, the cartoonist, was recently dropped from the New York Post, whose liberalism is as unquestionable as blood in its crime stories.

"Mr. Feiffer has ceased to be funny," a spokesman for the Post explained. What the cartoonist answered is not known, but he may have referred to his reluctance to fiddle when Rome is burning. This is approximately what Tom Smothers said when he testified before Sen. John O. Pastore's Communication Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee: "We are told that opinion or social comment has no place in entertainment programming. I have no special interest to push, but this country is falling apart, and this is not being reflected on TV."

He was the only entertainer to testify before the subcommittee, whose primary concern was violence on television. The "dumber" Smothers denied that the trouble with TV was sex or violence. The trouble, he asserted, is inanity. "Seventy or eighty per cent of television is inane. Glinches and embraces only make networks more afraid than ever of controversial matter in an entertainment program."

Tom Smothers blamed Sen. Pastore for creating a new environment of timidity. Later he said, "Our concern is that in America it is more than ever necessary that unpopular opinion and divergent views be shown on television. The network presidents say that the airwaves belong to the people. We believe that."

Television in this country enjoys a greater amount of freedom than probably anywhere else in the world. But even the greatest freedom is no excuse for limiting it. Or, as the late A. J. Liebling used to say, "What's the use of freedom of the press, if you don't have any."

There are enough reasons why one should not feel happy about CBS's decision, but there are also two that make the picture a little brighter: (1) Although the "Comedy Hour's" Nielsen ratings were on decline in the fierce competition between NBC's classic "Bonanza" and ABC's real bonanza, the Sunday night movie, its ratings were still respectable; (2) As far as it is known, the show did not have any difficulties in finding sponsors.

More than anything else the Smothers Brothers therefore may be victims of something that is beyond anybody's control.

Maybe it is so that television simply is not a right medium for political satire? It was all right for Berlin to have its famed political cabarets in the 1920s or for America to have Will Rogers. After all, they could not do much harm; their arenas could only accommodate a couple of hundred people at one time. But today's political satire, growing out of the tube is dangerously uncontrollable as regards to the number of audience.

Maybe there is something to the old McLuhanistic truth about television's being "hot," too hot. The predecessors of the "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" have met a similar fate: after becoming popular (and bolder), they stepped off-limits and, in the resulting storm, were dropped. This is what happened to "That Was The Week That Was," the British show that was imported to America and died here from unnatural causes even before it was killed in Britain.

It has happened to other programs of same vein too, and it will happen again. Satire is always powerful and on television it might become a danger to those who possess the keys of power. Moreover, what happened in the spring of 1968 will not be soon forgotten. It was not the Smothers Brothers, not at least alone, but it was the television that changed the whole political picture and made President Johnson to decide against seeking re-election. What really happened that spring will be argued for decades but it seems unlikely that Walter Cronkite's and David Brinkley's decision to take a stand publicly on their shows against the war had nothing to do with the sudden change in the nation's mood that followed the shock of the Tet offensive.

Around that time CBS finally permitted the Smothers Brothers to have the blacklisted folksinger Pete Seeger sing on their programs some of his anti-war songs, including "Big Muddy." Here is something Pete Seeger said recently in an interview with Jim Luke, a reporter for The Spectator, an underground paper in Bloomington:

"I think that intellectuals too often act snobbish towards the TV medium—say, 'Well, let the slob look at the boob tube, I prefer to read a book that says something sensible.' This is about as snobbish and unfair as a person to say, 'Let anyone who wants to, swim in the polluted river. I have a swimming pool.'"

"Now we know what we think of that guy. He doesn't care how polluted the river is but all the kids in town have to swim in it. He's not gonna do anything to clean it up, because he's got a swimming pool. And it's the same way with intellectuals and the TV. They're not attacking the problem of the TV because they can read books. The average citizen is not a book reader. Now it's not because books and newspapers haven't got an important job to do. One of the things they can do is keep pointing out the fact that TV isn't free."

"It's an outrage. The air belongs to everyone, the air belongs to the rich and poor, the black and white, the fat and thin, it belongs to atheists, and believers, it belongs to the far right and far left, it belongs to the nudists and vegetarians and the anarchists, as well as to the John Birchers and everybody else. And everybody should at least get a snip of it. You needn't expect that everybody's going to monopolize the time, but there should be time in a big city with five or six TV stations every week, to have a little bit of everything."

Now That-We-Are-At-It-Dept.: One of the biggest failures of American commercial television networks is their inability to keep the nation aware of cultural developments. Pointing at the Educational Television is no excuse, nor is the appearance of Aline Saarinen on NBC newscasts from time to time.

Exhibit: Last fall Kenneth Tynan, the British writer and critic, came to New York for the premiere of Rolf Hochhuth's "Soldiers." As could be expected he was interviewed on NBC's "Tonight" show (don't tell that's the culture show!) by Johnny Carson, whose duty it is to entertain the tired nightcap-sipping nation and put it to bed without any explicitly dirty thoughts.

So what happened was that Johnny Carson after required references to the play began talking about Kenneth Tynan's being the first Briton to use a well-known four letter word on BBC Television (that word could not be mentioned on "Tonight," of course).

They professed to have a lengthy discussion about the use of "that word" which recently has so enriched American literature, and literature elsewhere too, for that matter. That chat was a waste of Kenneth Tynan and a splendid example of our double standards: let's talk about the dirty word but—bush, bush—let's not mention it.

Listening to that discussion one could only wonder why nobody has come up with a compact weekly wrap-up of the nation's cultural developments. There is certainly enough happening that warrants something more than pseudo-heroistic discussions about four-letter words.

SIU alumnus gets pilot wings

An SIU alumnus, 2nd Lt. Larry J. Wolfe, was awarded U.S. Air Force silver pilot wings upon his graduation at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex.

He is assigned to Bien Hoa Air Base, Vietnam for air duty with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces.

Wolfe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wolfe, West Frankfort.

A graduate of Frankfort Community High School, Wolfe received his B.S. degree in management from SIU, where he was commissioned in 1967 on completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Wolfe's wife, Margaret, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Elmo Meredith, West Frankfort.

Dean to attend board meeting

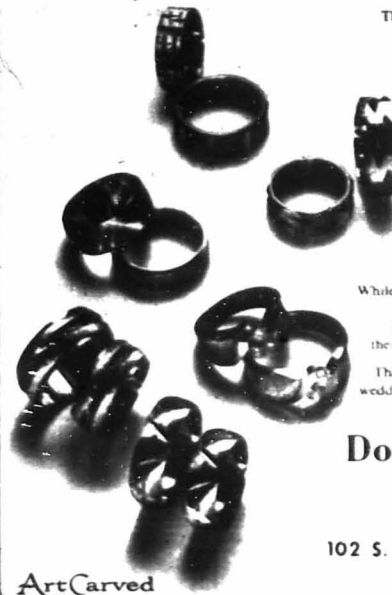

Eileen E. Quigley, dean of the School of Home Economics at SIU, will attend a board meeting of the Illinois Home Economics Association and a workshop of retiring and new officers and committee chairmen in Chicago April 18-19. Dean Quigley is the 1968-69 state president of the organization. This is the first such workshop for retiring and new leaders the association has held.

On April 22 Dean Quigley and Anna Carol Fuhs, chairman of the Department of Home Economics Education, will attend a meeting of administrators and junior college personnel at Western Illinois University, Macomb.

The ceremony is a moment cherished forever. With your wedding band carrying its message of love and promise.

But, should you wear a wedding ring with someone else's name inside?

You should if that name is ArtCarved.

It's there for a very good reason. Because ArtCarved craftsmen still pride themselves on the perfection of each ring they make.

While ArtCarved rings vary from elegant diamond set creations to simple Florentine bands, the care given to their detailing and finishing never does.

That's why when you select ArtCarved wedding rings, you can be confident they will last a lifetime... beautifully.

Botany professor publishes article

Jacob Verduin, SIU botany professor, has published an article in the Transactions of the American Fisheries Society.

In the article, entitled "Critique of Research Methods Involving Plastic Bags in Aquatic Environments," Verduin contends that large plastic bags used in research are as different from natural conditions as the old fashioned glass bottle.

Information gained from experiments using plastic bags is no more valid than that obtained from bottles, he said.

Ruth Ginsberg: a modern weaver

Homemakers of a century ago spun their yarn, dyed it with vegetable dyes and wove it into cloth for the family's use.

An SIU weaving instructor in the Department of Art spins yarn, dyes it with onion skin and other vegetable dyes, and weaves it into "architectural dividers," wall hangings and jewelry-like "neckpieces."

SIU grad gets

Air Force honors

Capt. Edward R. Williams, a 1959 SIU graduate has received the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal for his aerial achievements and service in Southeast Asia.

A graduate of Bowen High School in Chicago, Williams attended Wilson Junior College and received his B.S. degree in 1959 from SIU. He was commissioned from SIU on completion of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Williams, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Williams, South Holland, was also presented a special award and citation naming him to the elite Pacific Air Force "Order of Able Aeronaut." The special award and citation were presented during a ceremony in his honor at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas.

On Dean's List

A total of 132 out-of-state students have been cited for academic excellence during the winter quarter at SIU.

They were among 2,170 SIU undergraduates who were named to the Dean's List. The number represents about 11.7 per cent of the campus enrollment.

Ruth Ginsberg, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., has taught at SIU since 1966, showed a collection of her work in the University's Mitchell Gallery, in March.

Some of her pieces are architectural in feeling, others pictorial; some have double-weave "pockets," which she stuffs with cotton or wool and closes to create dimensional rolls or bubbles; still others have a lacy double-weave overlay.

Her woven jewelry is often studded with colored stones. She favors the use of line, wool or silk yarn, but incorporates synthetics, twine, nylon fish line, glass, bone, jet and even ceramics in some of her work.

Miss Ginsberg teaches both undergraduate and graduate students at SIU. Usually, about a third of these are men.

"There are no greater differences between the type of weaving produced by men and women than those personal expressions and distinctions one finds in painting or sculpture," she said. "Weaving is just another expressive medium. I would say, however, that the loom, as a simple machine, holds a certain fascination for men."

Miss Ginsberg says her design ideas are improvisational and develop as the weaving itself grows.

Rare Bach sonatas planned for April 16 faculty concert

Two rarely-performed Bach sonatas will be presented by two SIU faculty musicians in a violin and harpsichord concert at 8 p.m. April 16 in Muckelroy Auditorium.

Wesley Morgan, harpsichord, and Herbert Levinson, violin, will play the two selections, both composed for violin and "continuo"—a form of Baroque composition in which the violin plays the melodic lead, supported by the harpsichord or other instruments. The second number is written in G major. In the Vivaldi "Trio Sonata for Violin, Oboe and Continuo," the trio will become a quartet—Levinson and Morgan, assisted by George Hussey, oboe, and David Cowley, cello.

The concert will close with Walter Piston's "Sonatina for Violin and Harpsichord."

The public is invited to attend without charge.

'Dark of moon'—black magic

The Calipre Stage at the Communications Building will be the setting for the Interpreters Theater production of "Dark of the Moon" April 25.

Paul Setbert, Rick Holt and Carol Roseen will play the lead roles in the play which stems from an old Appalachian Mountain folk myth. The myth portrays a witch boy in love with a mortal girl. He too wants to be mortal so he confronts the conjure man who tells him he can be mortal for a one year period with varying consequences on both himself and the girl depending on his behavior during the year.

"Dark of the Moon" is directed by Bill Parker who is assisted by Lois Harris.

There is no admission charge to the play which begins at 8 p.m.

VTI anticipates eighth open house

Programs at the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute will be described on area radio and television stations this month as the school prepares for its eighth annual open house April 25 and 27.

Faculty and staff members will appear on various programs to publicize the event and to describe educational opportunities available at VTI.

Three appearances will be made on Monday, April 21. Douglas Morr, instructor in dental laboratory technology, will be on the KFVS-TV Breakfast Show at 7:40 a.m. on Channel 12, Cape Girardeau.

Arthur Workun, speech instructor, and Harry Soderstrom, chief academic adviser, will be the guests of Larry Doyle on the "Coffee With Larry Show" at 8:30 a.m. on radio station WCIL, Carbondale. Chester Johnston, faculty chairman of VTI business programs, is scheduled to appear on The Hour at 3:30 p.m. on WSIL-TV, Channel 3, Harrisburg.

Donald Hertz, assistant professor of the mortuary science and funeral service curriculum, will be interviewed at 9:15 a.m. Tuesday, April 22, on radio station, WFRX, West Frankfort.

On Thursday, April 24, Robert Murdock, instructor of machine tool technology, will appear at 8:30 a.m. on the "Coffee With Larry Show" on WCIL, Carbondale, and Denny Corbell, instructor of electronics technology, and David Saunders of University News Service will be interviewed on Spotlight on Southern Illinois at 6:30 p.m. on WSIL-TV, Channel 8.

Opened in 1952 as the first school of its kind in the state, the Vocational-Technical Institute has some 1,500 students enrolled in 28 associate degree programs and options ranging from aviation technology to data processing and auxiliary health services.

Open house will be held on the campus, located on Old Route 13 east of Carversville from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, April 25, and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 27.

Mark Stoltz brings up a point as Bernice McLaren, SIU assistant professor, shows kindergarten pupils some of the child's books her pupils have made in her elementary education course in childhood literature. Other youngsters are Tanya Petty, center, and Teresa Stokes.

Fact and legend mix in education course

An SIU coed bicycling near the campus saw a small boy peering so cautiously into the shadows beneath a bridge that she stopped to find out why. "I'm looking for a troll," said the wide-eyed lad. "I've heard trolls live under bridges."

The girl took the idea of an inquisitive boy looking for a legendary supernatural being back to class with her and came up with a fascinating child's book manuscript based on this one incident.

She was a student in an elementary education course in children's literature taught each term by Bernice McLaren since the fall of 1966. Since then an estimated 1,000 children's stories have been researched, written and compiled into book form as a major part of the class work. It's a course where both fact and legend become mixed with imagination in the production of book manuscripts for children.

Latest book titles included "The Dog with the Biggest Feet in Town," "Taffy Turtle's Terrible Trouble," "Waldo and the Ladder," "Pepper Magilicuddy Goes to Jail," and "Elmer the Elephant Who Forgot to Remember." Not all are animal stories, however. "Nothing to Do," "Artful Archie," "Clarence the Clock" and "The Bookworm" are others.

When Miss McLaren, a Toronto, Canada, native with a doctorate from Columbia University, came here her first course had a total of between 60 and 65 students in three sections. Last quarter there were 182, of whom 87 per cent illustrated their own books, a sharp rise from early classes when most class members got artistic friends or art students to do the illustrating.

Students, many with tape recorders, roam Southern Illinois in search of lore, legend, and fact that can serve as the theme, or else supply material, for projected books. Some take cameras.

Although all students, Miss McLaren said, develop a real enthusiasm for the work, some at the outset feel they just cannot get an idea for a theme. However, a few interviews with the teacher usually lead to a subject.

One girl had been having problems until she mentioned she liked to water ski. Product was a book about a land turtle that learned to ski on water.

"How does a course featuring book writing help a student studying to become a grade school teacher?" Miss McLaren was asked.

"It gives him a good look at the world of the child as he writes from the child's point of view," Miss McLaren said. "The essence of how a child feels is often brought out in a story. The world of imagination and humor is caught and we understand a little better how to be Lilliputians in a land of Gullivers, where an underdog can come out on top, be accepted, belong, and have security in the world in which he finds himself."

Student Senate considers election qualification bills

By Morris Jones
Staff Writer

With Student Government elections drawing near, the Student Senate Wednesday night considered two bills dealing with election qualifications.

The Senate also recommended lowering the drinking age to 18, allowing undergraduate women to determine their own hours, and endorsing a local discount store.

At present, only graduate students, undergrads, and part-time students who have paid their activity fees are eligible to vote in Student Government elections, Paul Wheeler, chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee, said.

"This is a poll tax," he added.

The choice of paying or not paying activity fees should not affect one's ability to choose his representatives, Wheeler said.

The Senate then unanimously passed to mandate the Elections Commissioner to allow all students to vote in any Student Government election upon presentation of a current fee statement and I.D.

Wheeler next motioned for a constitutional amendment to eliminate the junior-senior requirement for executive officers so that any student, carrying any number of hours, whether classified or unclassified, full time or part time, audit or credit, could run.

Carl Courtner, senator from small group housing, said that anytime the Senate would keep the student body from choosing the representative they wanted, it was not doing their job. "It is not our duty to restrict or make up the student's mind," Courtner said. "Our duty is to serve the student body."

Although voting nearly unanimously in a 17-1 vote in favor of the bill, the amendment failed because the required three-fourths majority (18 votes) could not be reached.

James Faughn, chairman of the Student Rights and Responsibilities Committee, then presented a proposal to lower the drinking age to 18. The Senate approved of sending the proposal to Governor Ogilvie, Representative Williams, and others.

Courtner then submitted a bill seeking to allow women to determine their hours.

Any undergraduate woman who obtains written parental permission or is 21 years of age or older, may determine her own hours if she attends a state-supported institution, Courtner said.

It is the responsibility of the Senate to guarantee to the members of the student body their legal rights under the legal system and constitution of the United States, he said.

Courtner explained that according to four lawyers, including two members of the American Civil Liberties Union, this right is guaranteed under this country's legal system.

The Senate unanimously approved of having the subcommittee on legal rights contact the national office of the ACLU to substantiate this opinion and recommend the appropriate course of action.

Tom Bevitt, chairman of the student consumer committee, brought up the final business of the session—that of recommending students to patronize a large discount store outside the city. Most business establishments in Carbondale do not care about or cater to student needs, Bevitt said. All that the committee has gotten from many is criticism, complaints, poor service and no guarantees.

"When we conduct the Price Comparison Survey many stores bawl us out, crab and tell us they don't want anyone fooling around in their business."

The large discount store outside the city limits has cheaper prices, guarantees satisfaction, and wants the student, Bevitt said.

"We are going to find some way of endorsing these stores which cooperate with us and want to serve the student," Bevitt added.

THE FACULTY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

a Southern Illinois University

100 South Third Street, Carbondale, Illinois 62901

A Ministry For Meeting In Higher Education

MONDAY: CAMPUS MINISTRY: What is it? What should it be? Campus Ministers at SIU will serve as a resource panel for these three discussions. Have some ideas? Opinions ranging from devoutly Christian to fervently agnostic to evangelistically atheistic will make for stimulating discussion. DATES: April 16, 23, and May 12.

The FACULTY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets on alternate Mondays. The Faculty Luncheons are $1.25. If you would like to have your name on the mailing list, please call 549-7387. DATES: April 7, 21, May 5, 19, and June 2.

TUESDAY: UNIVERSITY AGENDA, Open or Closed? Moderator, Doug Allen, Instructor in Philosophy. Theme: The Structure and Function of the American University. Are students being educated? Who controls our universities? What is the relationship between the university and business? The university and the government? The university and the military? These and similar questions will be the focus for the Tuesday Seminars. DATES: April 15, 22, 29; May 6, 13, 20.

WEDNESDAY: LATIN AMERICAN PERSPECTIVE. Free School Class. Moderator, Frank Sehnert, International Student Services. Suggested topics include: The Church in Latin America, Land Reform, Education, SIU Latin American Institute involvement in Latin America, and Latin American Social Institutions and Social Change. Resource persons will lead these discussions which are designed to give a realistic look at the involvement of the United States in Latin American affairs. DATES: April 16, 23, 30; May 7, 14, 21.

THURSDAY: CHIPS AND SANDWICH THEATER, PART II. Coordinator, Dr. Christian Moe, Theater Department. New student written songs and poems and four new student plays presented in conjunction with Southern Players. Plays sweep in subject from American folklore to the Hippie attack on Chicago. Readings of the plays will be directed by the authors. Critics hard or soft are welcome. DATES: April 17, 24, May 1, 8, 15, 22.

FRIDAY: EXISTENTIALISM AND THEOLOGY. Moderator, Allen Line, Director of the Student Christian Foundation. These seminars will examine the thinking of Martin Buber, Jacques Maritain, Nicolai Berdyaev and Paul Tillich. "Four Existential Theologians," edited by Will Herberg, will be used as background material. DATES: April 18, 25, May 2, 9, 16, 23.

At 12:00 noon each day, lunch is served cafeteria style for 50¢. The public is invited. You may participate in one or all of the seminars. Those wishing lunch should plan to arrive by 12:15. Any formal presentation will end in time for 1:00 p.m. classes.

Your presence is requested to make these seminars more stimulating.

Big Muddy Gazette loses permit to sell on campus

By Don Van Atta
Staff Writer

University officials affirmed Wednesday the withdrawal of a permit which makes possible the sale of the Big Muddy Gazette at SIU.

According to University statutes, passed by the Board of Trustees, a University permit is requisite to the vending of soliciting of any materials on the SIU campus.

SIU Carbondale Chancellor Robert MacVicar confirmed the report that the permit had been withdrawn after word of the action had spread rapidly through a crowd of more than 2,000 students and activists gathered on campus for the appearance of humorist Al Capp. MacVicar refused further comment on the matter.

Related reports that the SIU chapter of Students for Democratic Society (SDS) had lost University recognition were circulating Wednesday. MacVicar said he could neither affirm nor deny these reports, but Wilbur Moulton, SIU dean of students, said no such action has been taken by his office.

Ordinarily, policy decisions relating to the recognition of student organizations are executed through the Dean of Student's Office.

Moulton said the SDS chapter is not under any special investigation, and is still being regarded with the same "concern paid to any student organization."

On the question of the Big Muddy Gazette, Moulton said the content of the publication was one of the reasons the action was taken.

"The decision relates to the content, as well as the fact that it was not clear who the publisher is; the person to accept the responsibility for what appears," Moulton said.

Moulton said the decision had been made not to issue a permit to the Gazette earlier. He said their present permit was issued by mistake, and the accidental permit had been withdrawn Wednesday morning.

"I don't think the Big Muddy Gazette was an organ of SDS," Moulton said. "Every organization, including the Daily Egyptian, has to exercise some control over how its name is used. SDS cannot be responsible for everything that anyone might do in its name."

Even further reports cited by reliable sources Wednesday indicated that the Free School may be in jeopardy of losing its fund allocations for next year. SIU's annual budget is being considered presently, along with other higher education expenditures, by the state legislature.

Paul Morill, assistant to President Delyte W. Morris, denied any knowledge of this or other developments Wednesday. He said President Morris might know, but all other sources should be exhausted before the president would consider working a reporter into his tight schedule.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dwight Campbell's idea — 'Unity is strength'

By Morris Jones
Staff Writer

The Unity Party is not an actual political party, it is more of an idea than anything else, Dwight Campbell, the Party's student body presidential nominee, said at a press conference Thursday night.

The Unity Party stands for what the name implies — unity, Campbell said. In Unity there is strength. This is the principle upon which the members of the Unity Party stand.

Speaking before nearly 70 students, Campbell explained that the only way students can make any significant change at this University is that all students put forth a united effort.

"In the past the University administration has always used the old divide and conquer game on the student body," he said, "to keep them from effecting those necessary changes and revisions on University policy."

We've got to realize that we are all students and that all our problems are inter-related. We've got to get together, all of us, to obtain the objectives of all of the students," the nominee from University Park, said.

Unity Party stands for a united student body working together for changes in the following areas:

(1) "We want students to determine how and where they want to live." We call an end to women's hours.

(2) "We want the students in each living unit to determine their own policies with regard to visitation rights.

(3) We call for a revision of all unfair housing policies.

(4) "We feel that the regulation of motor vehicles beyond the limits of the campus is most illegal."

(5) "The loyalty oath which the student workers and faculty members are required to sign to obtain employment should be abolished.

(6) "The Student Senate must have exclusive control of the allotment of funds from Student Activities.

(7) "The Students should have a more direct influence on the decision making body at this University, including the Board of Trustees.

(8) "Carbondale businessmen must recognize the students as important consumers and treat them accordingly.

(9) Because only two full time black professors are on this campus the need for black faculty and black administrators is critical," the presidential nominee, who is also black, said.

(10) "We are opposed to the increases in tuition, room and board.

(11) "We must become more involved in the community. How can a University spend so much money for campus physical growth yet give so little to improvement of the dispicable conditions on the northeast side of Carbondale call itself an educational miracle?" Campbell asked.

(12) "We must question the priorities of this institution. We want to know why the university can allot funds to begin the construction of a palace for President Morris and yet not provide the long needed overpass for the students," he said.

Changes can only be effected by united student body.

"To unify the campus the Party has to have people who dig people, and this is the first thing I do," Campbell who is a resident fellow, said.

If the students are to unify, they have to have people who are going to relate to all segments of the student body. This is the kind of people we have on our party. Richard Wallace, Campbell's running mate at the student body vice presidential spot, and Billie Jean Duke, taking the vice president of student affairs post, completed the Party ticket.

Al Capp fights SWINE

"You can't take any freedom that injures the freedoms and the dignities of others," he said. "That is the only restriction on the freedom of a free man."

His comments about dress, personal cleanliness and hair length of some members of the audience drew both applause and heckling from students.

Capp said at one point, "I'd give a million to have de-lousing rights for this group." He also told one student who questioned his report that demonstrators at Chicago had threatened to poison the drinking supply and wanted to know how Lake Michigan could be poisoned, "I would suggest several people like you bathe in it."

Several students in the group Capp criticized carried signs reading "S.W.I.N.E. for peace" and "Capp is a fascist pirate" or bore swastikas.

Despite heckling, shouting and loud disagreements with some of his statements, Capp was surrounded by autograph seekers after the convocation and at a later bull session in front of Browne Auditorium. For most of the rest of the afternoon, he wore a daffodil boutonniere that one long-haired, barefooted student gave him.

The artist and social critic also made several comments that were widely applauded by the convocation gathering:

--Curfew. "If you can't score by 12:30, there's no point in giving you a couple of extra hours to make fools out of yourselves."

--Moral breakdown on campuses. "The sanctimonious tone of this question doesn't fool me at all. This student doesn't want to know if there is a moral breakdown on other campuses; he wants to know when it's getting here. You show me a student who is worried about other people's morals, and I'll show you a student who's not getting much action."

--Future crusades. "My next crusade will be against the ten-cent restroom. We must face these crises."

--Interracial marriage. "I never heard of one. Most people who get married belong to the human race."

More victims of VC massacre found

HUE, Vietnam (AP)—In the white sands east of Hue, volunteers for two weeks have been digging up the victims of the worst massacre of the Vietnamese war.

These are the bodies of men, women and children shot, clubbed or buried alive by Viet Cong execution squads during the Tet offensive of last year that overran part of this old imperial capital.

The workers dug up 60 bodies from mass graves Thursday, bringing to 441 the number thus far exhumed. Allied officials say as many as 2,000 may be found before the work is over.

Some of the victims were soldiers, but most were civilians on a death list carried by political commissars of the invading North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

Survivors say the list included anyone who worked for the Americans or actively supported the government, including police, political leaders and civil servants.

The state of the bodies was such that so far only 80 have been identified.

One who made an identification Thursday was Mrs.

Nguyen Thi Xuan Dao, 39. A frail woman, her eyes red from weeping, she was dressed in a coarse white garment of mourning. So were the two children who clung to her skirts.

She had a picture of her husband, taken soon after they were married. He was a strong, handsome man, smiling at the photographer. The remains of her husband lay in a crude wooden coffin wreathed in incense from smoking joss sticks.

He had been a soldier in the Vietnamese rangers and about four years earlier, in fighting near Saigon, was wounded in the left leg, which later was amputated. The body of her husband was the only one found with a leg missing, and in addition, his army identification tags lay nearby.

Mrs. Dao recalled how she and her husband were sitting in their home on Hue's eastern outskirts when two Viet Cong soldiers entered.

It was early evening, she said, and both of the soldiers carried rifles.

"They asked my husband how many V.C. he had killed," she told a translator. "He replied that he had only been in the army several months when he lost his leg and returned home—and that was two years ago."

The two soldiers went away but at midnight two days later, they returned.

"They came and said they were taking my husband to teach him communism, but when I asked where they were taking him, they did not answer," she said.

Mrs. Dao said her husband pleaded with the Viet Cong to let him remain with his family—that although he had been badly wounded, he could still help to feed his wife and children.

Sometime within the next week, Mrs. Dao's husband, Pvt. Nguyen Van Trai, 40, was lined up with a score of other men and women beside a shallow trench scooped out of sand.

Here's quite a sports oddity... Did you know a man once won the 26-mile Marathon Race in the Olympics by running the ENTIRE 26 miles in his bare feet? ... The man who did this was Abebe Bikila of Ethiopia in the 1960 Olympics — and another oddity about him is that he had never before run in a marathon race in his life — yet he was able to beat the best marathon runners in the world in the Olympics, and set a world record!

Here's an oddity: Three of the greatest players in pro football, college football and basketball in the last decade — Jim Brown, O. J. Simpson and Sandy Koufax — all wore exactly the same number. Brown, Simpson and Koufax, oddly enough, all wore number 32!

Here's a tough basketball question for you... Everyone knows the Boston Celtics have won the most championships in the history of the National Basketball Association — but see if you can name the team that's won the next-most... What's your guess? Answer is the Lakers... They've won the NBA title 5 different times to rank second to the Celtics who've won it 10 times.

I bet you didn't know that college graduates have a longer life expectancy — lower death rate and are living five years longer on the average — than non-college men. The lower death rate of college men makes possible broader benefits and greater cash values in College Life policies. This certainly makes good sense, doesn't it?

Financial improvement plan approved by grads

By Terry Peters
Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council (GSC) approved a "package" motion Wednesday night calling for increases in salaries of graduate assistants and the availability of some graduate assistantships on a 12-month basis.

The GSC postponed discussion on seeking official University recognition for the council until the next meeting, to be held May 7. The GSC meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Wednesday after the first Friday of each month in Room 219 of the Wham Education Building.

The package motion included four items from a list of seven presented to the council by the Salaries Committee, renamed Wednesday night the Committee on Student Welfare and Employment.

The four items called for:
--An increase in the salary increments received by graduate assistants for experience, and the awarding of such salary increments on a quarter basis.

--The inclusion of a "cost-of-living rider" in graduate assistant contracts to compensate for inflation and increases in University fees applicable to graduate students.

--An increase in the base salary for graduate assistants, and a corresponding increase in salaries for other experience levels.

--The availability of a percentage of graduate assistantships on a 12-month basis.

The council discussed at length the possibility of getting tax-exempt status for graduate assistant salaries. Jim Nagle, representative from the Department of English, said he knew of two English students who petitioned for and received tax exemption on the basis that their teaching was a part of their education.

It was suggested that teaching could be considered to fall within a loose definition of "research," which is tax-exempt. The council took no action on the matter, deciding to contact Lon Shelby, associate dean of graduate studies and research, to see whether such a definition of "research" was acceptable.

It was suggested that if Shelby accepts teaching as "research," the GSC should petition the University to stop withholding income tax from graduate assistants' paychecks.

The GSC also approved a motion condemning any attempt to raise the number of work hours per week required of graduate students on teaching assistantships. Steve Bickham, representative from the Department of Philosophy, said he knew of such a move underway.

If elected, TERRY THALMAN and ED SULZER will work within the board to

1. Encourage active participation in school matters by all members of the community, with open communication between citizens and the board.
2. Ensure improvement of education for all of our children under the reorganization plan adopted by the present board.
3. Review the budget to secure better allocation of present resources and seek additional funds from external sources to improve current programs and implement needed new ones.
4. Develop or expand specialized programs for exceptional, gifted, and disadvantaged children, including expanded library and audio-visual resources and guidance counseling.
5. Pursue the assistance of available specialists in the broad field of education and welcome their advice in exploring present and future needs of the schools.
6. Explore the educational advantages and economic feasibility of joining with other school districts—elementary and secondary.

Ike intern program begun

Victor L. Smith, chairman, Illinois Republican State Central Committee, announced Thursday a Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial Summer Intern Program. Eligible candidates must have completed one year of college work by June, 1969, and must have at least one term remaining following the summer of 1969.

Smith said the program is designed to offer Illinois college students an opportunity to study first-hand the functions of a political party. The GOP leader said an extensive statewide search will be conducted to locate three qualified people to fill intern positions in the party. Only residents of Illinois can qualify.

The job will include spending one month with each of the functional departments of the party. They are field operations, public relations and research. Time also will be spent with the director of administration.

Smith said that application procedure would include the submission of a typewritten essay, interpreting "Forward Together." Party leaders will serve as judges without knowledge of authorship.

Prospective applicants should submit a completed entry form in addition to the essay. Entry forms can be obtained from any Republican county chairman, state central committeemen, state representatives, state senators, Illinois congressmen or by writing the Illinois Republican State Central Committee, 200 S. Second Street, Springfield.

Sen. Alan Dixon proposes emergency SIU med program

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Alton, Thursday proposed an emergency program to beef up Illinois medical training programs, including a $3.5 million appropriation to SIU.

"I read that last year we graduated fewer medical students than in the depression years," he said. "This is a grave problem."

Dixon proposed the $3.5 million appropriations each to SIU and the University of Illinois for an emergency program to teach medical students.

The bills would also direct the state scholarship commission to guarantee loans of up to $3,000 per year for up to five years to medical students residing in Illinois. The money would be repaid by the student after graduation over a 10 year period at 5 per cent simple interest.

If the student practices medicine in Illinois, he would be required to repay only three-fourths of the loan. If he practiced in smaller counties of less than 40,000, he would repay only half.

Seminar series planned

The Student Christian Foundation is sponsoring a series of seminars dealing with campus ministry.

"Purpose of the seminars is to find ways in which campus ministry can be effective and to find out the needs of the students," the Rev. Allen Line, director of the foundation said. "We want to find out how the church can provide a ministry on campus which can be successful."

Some members of the panel are the Rev. Ronald Seibert and Cathy Carlson of the Wesley Foundation, the Rev. John Meyer of the Canterbury Foundation and the Rev. M. Allen Line of the Student Christian Foundation. They will be members of the panel on Monday, April 14.

The series is being presented as part of the foundation's luncheon seminars on April 14 and 28 and May 12.

"U.S. Grant" alive and well -- visits SIU

By Ann Stone

Ulysses S. Grant spoke Monday night to Free School participants on "the forces at play."

The discussion began as a workshop for assembling home-made bombs and switched to Grant's original rendition of what he called "divine assurance."

Grant, a bare-foot, bearded man, dressed in blue jeans with yellow stripes down the sides introduced himself Wednesday to SIU history professor John Simon, who is publishing some of the original Grant papers.

The General said he drove from his New Mexico headquarters to SIU with his troops—a girl and two dogs—to discuss the publishing of "his" papers with Simon.

Simon said he was delighted to present him with copies of all the Grant works published to date by the SIU Press.

The Grant lecture was sponsored by the Free School in its "One Night Stand" program.

Nowell Wisch, Free School coordinator, said the program will host anyone with something to say—including, obviously, anyone identifying himself as General U.S. Grant, reincarnate.

General Grant said much about what he called the present chaos in the United States. He suggested that Americans should destroy all factories because they pollute the air. When the audience protested this violent action Grant replied, "blowing up a factory isn't anarchy—it's surgery."

"I first realized my inner identity when I was three years old," Grant said. "But my mother cooled it when I tried to tell her who I am. Finally, when I was 31 years old, I felt I could no longer remain anonymous, so I set out to save the world."

His SIU sojourn is his first step to enlighten mankind. The General said he can prove his identity because the FBI told him his fingerprints match those of the original Ulysses S. Grant. Grant also said that Ben Franklin, who Grant alleges is currently living in the body of a 27-year old girl in Tulsa, Oklahoma, told him that he looks like the original Grant.

General Grant said he has also met the new 21-year-old version of Mark Twain. "But that person hasn't realized his identity yet," Grant said.

Grant said he would like to put the U.S. under martial law long enough to eliminate all things other than clean air, food and water.

He believes fences, credit cards and money are detrimental to man's well-being and suggested that such things should be eradicated. His criterion for peace is "take what you need."

He said "a dictatorship will save the constitution and will give absolute freedom to all." Grant also urges everyone to move from the lowlands be-

Plant Club fete set April 19

An Agronomy Exchange Day will be held here April 19. The program is sponsored by the Plant Industries Club with Donald M. Elkins, assistant professor of field crops in the Department of Plant Industries, serving as coordinator.

Purdue University, the University of Illinois and the University of Kentucky will participate with SIU in the event.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. with students registering in the Agriculture

Seminar Room. Students will view a slide presentation of research and teaching activities within the Department of Plant Industries. Tours of research and teaching facilities, of the Agronomy Research Center, Horticulture Station and Small Fruits Station will be conducted.

Students will be served a barbecue lunch at noon, and at 1 p.m. students will tour strip mine areas near Duquoin. The program will conclude at 4 p.m.

SIU gets geological samples

Two oil companies and the Kentucky Geological Survey have made substantial gifts of subsurface samples and records to the SIU Department of Geology, according to Daniel N. Miller, department chairman.

Stage band tour today

A student stage band from the SIU Carbondale campus will make a one-day tour of three area high schools, playing concerts at each Friday, according to Donald Lemasters, director.

The group will be accompanied by Kathryn Grimmer of Belleville, a graduate student, as vocalist.

Performances will be presented at Christopher High School, Trico High School and Chester High School.

The contributions have greatly increased the research capabilities now available to geology students and faculty, Miller says.

The recent gifts include 500 sets of electrical, gamma ray-neutron, and induction surveys of bore holes in Oklahoma and northern Arkansas from Pan American Oil Co., about 850 similar surveys from Sun Oil Co., covering drill holes in Indiana and Kentucky, and 50 additional sets of drill-cutting samples from deep oil tests in Kentucky from the Kentucky Geological Survey.

Miller says the department's library holdings now include more than 4,000 sets of such samples and underground surveys from deep oil borings in Missouri and Illinois.

Brock and Griffy schedule recital

A joint piano and trumpet recital will be held at 8 p.m. April 21 in Davis Auditorium. Patricia Brock, a senior from Fairfield, will play piano selections by Chopin, Schumann, Prokofiev and Faure. Miss Brock's instructor is Mary Jane Grizzell.

Soloing on the trumpet will be Floyd Griffy, a senior from Newton. His selections will be from Senece and Thome. Griffy's instructor is Donald Lemasters.

Mae Smith has highest grade average

Mae Smith Hall had the highest grade-point average of campus residence halls for winter quarter. The average was 3.618. The highest average for a male campus residence hall was 3.495, which was recorded at Abbott Hall.

Sigma Kappa's grade average was 3.545, the highest for Greek Row residence halls. Sigma Pi had the highest average for fraternities, 3.423.

These figures were compiled by the Dean of Students office. Although the figures contain averages of some persons who no longer live in the individual housing units and do not reflect grades of everyone who lives at each facility, they were the only figures available when the report was compiled.

Isleta Indian art on display

Paintings by an Isleta Indian of New Mexico, revealing for the first time a pictorial record of ceremonial life in the closed society of the small American Indian village, are on display at the SIU Museum.

The artist, Joe B. Lente, executed his paintings in secret, endangering his life, and would not permit them to be published until after his death. In 1962 the Smithsonian Institution published most of the 140 watercolors in a volume entitled "Isleta Paintings."

Lente was discovered by two women anthropologists, Elsie Clews Parsons and Esther S. Goldfrank, on visits to Isleta in the mid-1920's. After publication of their report, Lente criticized the illustrations they used and agreed "for a modest price and a solemn promise of anonymity," to furnish better ones.

He was a self-taught artist but achieved paintings of "extraordinary scientific interest and beauty," according to the Smithsonian.

The collection on display at SIU until April 28 is a Smithsonian Traveling Exhibit, comprising paintings on loan from the American Phil-

SIU's Illinois String Quartet presents spring concert today

The Illinois String Quartet of SIU faculty members which has been called by a Washington (D.C.) music critic "a major string quartet," will present its spring concert Friday at 8 p.m. in Muckelroy Auditorium.

This group, composed of Myron Kartman, violin, Herbert Levinson, violin, Joseph Baber, viola, and David Cowley, cello, received glowing praise from reviewers following its December concert tour to Washington, Yellow Springs and Granville, Ohio.

For the April 11 concert here, the quartet will play Mozart's "Quartet in C Major" and Beethoven's "Quartet in C Sharp Minor," as well as a 1947 quartet by Walter Piston.

The public is invited to attend without charge.

ROTC program for SIU women considered

By Rick Kraus

Don't be surprised if you see women marching in the ranks of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps instead of with the Angel Flight organization.

Sometime in the future, SIU women may be given the opportunity to participate in the AFROTC—either in the newly established two year program or on a non-commissioned basis.

According to Col. Edward Murphy, assistant professor of aerospace studies, the Air Force is testing a program at selected colleges whereby women will receive commissions in the AFROTC two-year program.

Schools involved in the test program are—Auburn University, East Carolina University, Drake University and Ohio State University.

Women will be selected on a fully-qualified basis at these schools this year, and they will not count against the limited male enrollment quotas.

Women are required to meet essentially the same medical requirement as men, and they will have to meet the special medical and administrative requirements established by Air Force directives as prerequisite to enlisting women in the Air Force Reserves. Women must be at least 18-years old at enlistment, meet commissioning requirements prior to reaching 30 and have no legal dependents.

There is also a possibility that a woman may be able to substitute the non-commissioned ROTC program for her physical education requirement.

A program recently established at Temple University gives women the choice of either the normal physical education courses or the military drilling of the ROTC program.

Although no plans have been made to adopt this program at SIU, "I have no reason to be against it," Col. Murphy said.

He said that in the beginning there might be drill problems, but that they could be overcome. The program's success would depend on the women's interest in it.

Women in Angel Flight were asked to give their opinions of the possible program.

"It's a good idea," Lynda Miller, a junior from Aurora, said. "It would give us a chance to integrate with the guys and know more about the program. Also, it would give us some good physical exercise."

"It's a good way to meet guys," Barbara Moore, a sophomore from Suttland, Md., said, "but I'm not interested in drilling."

SIU grad to present recital

A former music student at SIU, now a doctoral student at the University of Kansas, will return to the campus April 12 to present her doctoral piano recital.

Mrs. Susan Caldwell Heald, who completed her bachelor's degree in 1963 and her master's a year later, will perform at 8 p.m. in the Home Economics Building Auditorium, as an offering in the SIU Department of Music Guest Artist series.

Her recital program will include J.S. Bach's "Partita in B-flat Major," Mozart's "Sonata in D Major," "Suggestion Diabolique" by Prokofiev, and Brahms' "Sonata in F Minor."

Mrs. Heald and her husband, William, who is also a master's degree graduate in music from SIU, last August played a piano duo-recital here. Heald, from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is working on his doctoral degree in musicology and piano at KU. Mrs. Heald, whose home was Carbondale, holds a teaching fellowship at the Kansas institution.

The public is invited to attend Mrs. Heald's recital without charge.

Composition adapted for TV

A composition by Will Gay Bottje, associate professor of music at SIU, has been developed into a full half-hour television program with choreography and is appearing on educational television stations, he reported.

Entitled "The Fabled World of James Thurber," written for narrator, piano and wind quintet, the Bottje piece was shown on a San Diego, Calif., station March 30, and will be on NBC-TV, Los Angeles, April 6 and on KETC-TV, St. Louis, some time next fall.

It is one program in a television series called "Profiles" developed at KOGO-TV, San Diego State College, where Robert Forman, former member of the SIU music faculty, now teaches. Forman, an oboist, was a member of the SIU quintet which performed the Bottje composition here several times.

Slocum, Jones publish paper

A paper co-authored by D. W. Slocum and W.E. Jones from the Department of Chemistry at SIU was published recently in the Journal of Organometallic Chemistry.

The paper, entitled "Reduction of Ferrocene Methiodides with Sodium in Liquid Ammonia; A Route to Alkylferrocenes," reported a new method of synthesizing hydrocarbon derivatives of certain organometallics, which are difficult to synthesize by more conventional methods.

In addition, tentative identification of a novel electronic effect in the ferrocene ring system was reported.

Injuries are problem

Thinclads at Texas Relays

The SU track team faces its toughest competition to date today and Saturday at the 42nd annual Texas Relays in Austin, Texas.

However, the Salukis have several question marks as far as top physical condition is concerned. Oscar Moore, bothered by a recurring heel injury is a doubtful participant in the distance events.

Bill Buzard in the hurdles is hampered by a hamstring pull and Gerry Hinton's Achilles tendon injury cuts down on SU chances in the middle distances.

Chuck Benson, Barry Liebovitz and Willie Richardson, however, are healthy, and will definitely be entered in the 440-yard and mile relays.

"I've been pleased with our mile relay team," Coach Lew Hartzog said, "But I know we'll do a lot better when Chuck Benson rounds into shape." Benson has been training for track only since the end of basketball season.

Dan Tindall, in the 1968 Texas Relays, was the first freshman ever to win an event, and can't improve much on that record in the javelin throw.

Other individual entries are Ralph Jones, long jump, Fil Blackiston, discus and Buzard, 440-yard intermediate hurdles.

If Hartzog thinks that Hinton is ready to go, he will join Benson, Liebovitz and Richardson in the sprint medley and Glenn Ujje, Ken Nalder and Moore (if healthy) in the four-mile event.

Cards drop 3rd to Pirates

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Pittsburgh made it three in a row over the defending champion St. Louis Cardinals Thursday, 3-2, when a double by Willie Stargell and a single by Bill Mazeroski featured a tie-breaking, two-run rally in the eighth inning.

Stargell's double off loser

Ray Washburn snapped a 1-1 tie after Richie Hebner had opened the inning with a single and Roberto Clemente walked.

An intentional walk to rookie Al Oliver filled the bases again, and Bill Mazeroski drove in the second run of the inning on a single off Washburn's hip.

Casper takes Masters lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Al-
lery-plagues Bill Casper, pampering the Augusta national course as if she were a fickle female, fired a six-under-par 66 Thursday for the first round lead in the Masters Golf Tournament.

"I didn't feel comfortable out there, I didn't want to gamble," said the 37-year-old Mormon lay minister after easing around the 6,980-yard, par 72 layout without a bogey.
He laid up on the long holes and hit for the fast part of the green rather than take chances on others.

He took a one-shot lead over Bruce Devlin, the one-time Australian plumber's helper, and towering George Archer, rated by many as the best putter in the game, tied at 67.

Two strokes farther back at 69 were the 20-year-old U.S.
amateur champion, Bruce Fleisher, Gene Littler, the reticent, leading money winner of the season, Mason Rudolph,
Dan Sikes and Australian,
Bruce Crampton.

Big Jack Nicklaus sank a 25-footer for an eagle on the 520-yard, creek-guarded 15th hole and finished in a blaze
at 68.

Defending champion Bob Goalby, distressed over the abuse he took after a scorecard error knocked Roberto De Vicenzo out of a tie for the 1968 title, fought back from a 12-month slump with a two-under-par 70.

"People gave me a big ovation when I sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie at the first hole," Goalby said. "They stood and cheered me every hole I played. I felt 10 feet tall."

The victim of the error,
De Vicenzo, shot a 73. Three other gallery favorites failed to muster a charge. PGA champion Julius Boros shot

72, as did Lee Trevino, the vulnerable U.S. Open king. Gary Player of South Africa, only foreigner to win this title, had a 74.

Fleisher, a 6-foot-3, good-looking Miami collegian wearing long sideburns, played as a partner of the great Arnold

4 runs, no hits, 1 victory

Third straight for Freshmen

SIU's freshmen baseball team scored four runs on no hits in the bottom of the third inning yesterday afternoon to down Mineral Area Junior College 7-3.

In the third inning, Southern sent nine men to the plate—three walked, two were hit by pitches, one reached on an error, one reached on a fielder's choice, one struck out and one hit into a double play.

Trailing 3-2, Saluki pitcher Carmen Nappi led off the inning by striking out. Then, the next seven batters reached base safely before second baseman Ken Kirkland grounded into a double play.

SIU scored in the first on an RBI single by Jack Liggett, driving in Jerry Devins who led off the game with a walk and then stole second. Devins also slammed a solo homer over the center field fence in the fourth and followed with a single in the eighth.

He and Jim Macrogliou combined for half of the Salukis hits. Macrogliou had two doubles.

After the third inning, Nappi (1-0) breezed the rest of the way, giving up only three hits and retiring 11 of the last 12 men he faced.

Of the seven hits he allowed the Fiat River, Mo., school, only one was for extra bases, a double in the ninth. Nappi struck out nine and walked none.

The game ran the yearling's record to 3-0. Their next outing is a double header with Danville Junior College April 19 at Danville.

Lou Pinella is a wheeler-dealer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Lou Pinella, who has been the property of six baseball organizations in his seven years as a pro, figures there must be something about him somebody likes because he keeps getting traded.

Right now, the 25-year-old outfielder from Tampa, Fla., belongs to the Kansas City Royals and the association has gotten off to a splendid start.

Pinella has found instant major league stardom in Kansas City.

He lashed out four hits in the Royal's 4-3, 12-inning opening day victory over Minnesota Tuesday, then drilled a 17th-inning single to drive in the winning run in another 4-3 triumph over the Twins Wednesday night.

"It's a little bewildering," Pinella confessed Thursday as the Royals took the day off before heading west to open a four-game weekend series Friday night at Oakland.

"You always hope you'll get a chance like this," he added. "And then to be able to help the team get off to a start like this is great."

The Royals acquired Pinella a week before the season opened, giving Seattle outfielder Steve Whitaker and pitcher John Gelnar to get him. The trade was made primarily to balance the Royals' roster between right

"All I've wanted was a chance to play in the big leagues to see if I could hit."

NBA super stars not selected

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a new look to the National Basketball Association's All-Star team announced Thursday by Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

Wes Unseld, the Most Valuable Player and Rookie of the Year, and teammate Earl "The Pearl" Monroe of the Baltimore Bullets, and Philadelphia's Bill Cunningham all made the first team for the first time.

Wilt Chamberlain, Bill Russell and Jerry Lucas failed to make either the first or second team for the first time in their starry careers.

The other two on the first All-Star team are automatic picks—Oscar Robertson and Elgin Baylor. Robertson, the Cincinnati backcourt great, made it nine out of nine times. Baylor, of the Los Angeles Lakers, has been a first team choice 10 of 11 years, missing only in 1963 because of knee injuries.

Monroe, the flashy guard and Rookie of the Year for 1967-68, and Robertson are the guards, Unseld the center, and Cunningham and Baylor the forwards.

First team picks receive $500 each with $250 going to members of the second team.

Bowling leagues to begin April 14

Spring quarter intramural bowling leagues swing into action next week. The University Center Lanes is now accepting teams for a men's circuit, a three-man league and a co-ed league, according to Henry Villani, lane manager.

The men's league will bowl Monday through Thursday at 9 p.m.; the three-man teams roll Sunday at 9 p.m.; and the co-ed league (two men and two women) roll Wednesday at 9 p.m.

The leagues will be conducted on a round-robin basis with each team playing each other team. All matches consist of three games and the league operates on an 80 per cent from 190 handicap. Scoring is based on the four-point system—a point given for each game and one point for high series.

The cost per bowler is $1.05 for a three-game series and 15 cents shoe rental.

Trophies will be awarded to the winning team in the league and also for high individual three game pinfall, high individual single game and individual high average.

Those interested may pick up application forms at the bowling alley.

PUEBLO: Bucher did what he had to do. He behaved like a soldier and a human being, and that's a damned tough combination.

FREEDOM: Bless those who complain about freedom as long as they don't infringe on other people's freedom.

DUTIES OF HUMORIST: Charge as much as you can for it. Expose fakery, foolishness and fraud wherever they exist. I have never changed my position. I have stood right where I always have and shifted my aim.

VIETNAM: I say shoot back, no matter how much that would disappoint Dr. Spock.

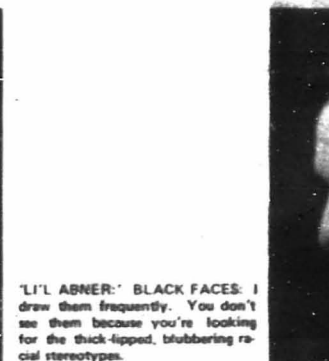

CURFEWS: If you can't score by 12:30, there's no point in giving you a couple of extra hours to make fools out of yourselves.

DRUGS: The law also says it's wrong to indulge in arson, larceny and poisoning pigeons in the park.

POLICE: Why are you so stunned that the police are human?

'L'I' ASNER: BLACK FACES: I draw them frequently. You don't see them because you're looking for the thick-lipped, blubbery racial stereotypes.
