Redevelopment project draws mixed reactions

The city's modified version of a downtown hotel-conference center project was introduced to the public Monday night and met with the same mixe reactions which have plague mixed the original redevelopment

City officials at the public hearing expressed hope that the new proposal would meet federal guidelines for using grant money earmarked for a conference center and that the city could purchase land neat the city could purchase land needed for the project. Citizens voirca both enthusiastic support of and strong opposition to the project.

Developer Stan Hoye, who pulled out of the project last November, told citizens who Mo., from 1978 to 1981.

The 53-year-old Dillard, assistant director of institutional research and studies at SIU-C, also stressed his governmental experience during the campaign. He has served on the Carbondale City Council since November 1981. Fisher, a 33-year-old lan-dlord, criticized present city policies during the campaign and said that if elected, he would work to lower taxes and reduce "unnecessary" government regulations.

Ivey also criticized city half during his bid for a council seat. The 29-year-minister at the Wall Street Church of Christ said he would work to maintain city funding of social services by soliciting private donations and would ensure that the council is responsive to all city residents. Bevis, a 43-year-old real estate salesman also said the city needs to streamline its ordinances to promote business growth. Tuxhorn, a 27-year-old retail clerk, said the city should make a commitment to social service funding.

Westberg has called for cluntary improvement of voluntary improvement of property by owners, coupled with stiffer enforcement of housing codes, to upgrade the quality of rental housing in Carbondzie.

Crim, a retired Air Force major, has billed himself as the "alternative candidate." A Jackson County Board member from 1980 to 1982, he has said "status quo" and ofters no new ideas for the city, a charge dismissed by Westberg.

Soviets hedge on verification plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union on Wednesday iled out further talks on the Reagan administration's bid to tighten verification provisions in two unratified treaties limiting underground nuclear tests.

In an unusual statement issued through its embassy, the Kremlin accused the United States of trying to undermine the Archim accords by pressing for the changes.

Promising not to take actions "inconsistent" with the 1974 and 1976 unratified treaties, the Soviets turned aside U.S. efforts to tighten verification procedures by saying procedures already exist for "mutual consultations" on any suspected violations

Reagan plan to bolster 'hot line'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration proposed Tuesday the bolstering of "hot Fine" communications with the Soviet Union, including a pow link between military centers, as a means for averting nuclear war through accident or miscalculation.

The proposals include upgrading the existing teleprinter "bot line" between U.S. and Soviet leaders to a high-speed system that could relay photos and charts, creation of separate lines between military commands and also between embassies, and provisions for consultation over nuclear terrorist incidents.

Soviet expert calls MX 'sinister'

MOSCOW (AP) — The new U.S. proposal for an MX missile system is a "rather sinister" step forward in an increasingly dangerous arms race, a leading Soviet arms control specialist said Tuesday.

But the specialist, Oleg Bykov, acting director of the Institute on the World Economy and International Relations, acknowledged that the Soviets are readying their own new missile that would counter the U.S. deployment of the MX.

That recommendation drew fire Monday night from members of the groups that would be hardest hit if the proposed budget is adopted.

The proposed budget calls for city funding to the Senior Citizens Center and Carbondale

Women's Center to be cut in half in fiscal year 1983-84, which begins May 1.

Two other programs, the Attucks Board Youth Program and the Jackson County Youth Services Program, would receive no funds next year under the proposed budget. This year they received $20,565 and year they received $20,565 and $6,740, respectively.

The Attucks Board Unified Social Services program would receive $21,450, the same amount as last year.

Joyce Webb, president of the Women's Center, said she realizes "money is short," but asked the council to consider the services the center provides. the services the center provides to the community.

She said the center, which received $10,000 from the city last year, provides nine full-time and five part-time jobs in Carbondale. The center, which requested $12,000 for next year, would receive $5,000 under the proposed budget. Although the next on her other funding center has other funding sources, she said, the city's share is vital to the center's operation, particularly its Shelter Program for abused women and children. Darnecea Moultrie co-director of the Attucks Youth Board, agreed with Maxwell, saying that the the Park District programs do not adequately serve the youth of Carbondale's northeast side.

"We're talking about youth who are not able to pay the money that the Park District requires," she said. "We're requires, she said. We're talking about youth who don't have the means to get out to Parrish School to play soccer. youth who don't even know what the word soccer means."

Abdul Haqq, the other co-director of the Attucks youth program, told the council the program helps prepare young people from the northeast side of Carbondale to contribute to the city's future.

"We have been making progress with the youth," Haqq said. "You may not see it now, but I'm sure that the citizens of Carbondale will see it five or ten years from now."

Maxwell asked the council to

Although the council will not make any final decisions on the budget until next week, two council members indicated support for the youth program.

Election's over; let leaders lead

GPSC VICE PRESIDENT Dan Venturi said after last week's election that he was happy to get all the politicking out of the way and get down to business. Graduate students, who usually are down to business and don't have time to worry whether an election is run by the book, will be none too glad to see the Graduate and Professional Student Council get down to business.

Ann Greeley, who was re-elected president of the GPSC, can feel confident — as should graduate students — that stability is once again becoming evident in the council. Greeley has now won two consecutive elections against Steve Katsinas. It's time to reconcil differences and allow old wounds to heal. Graduate students shouldn't have to put up with bickering that has gone on in the past.

eley is wrong if she thinks the council has gained instant respectability by showing it could rectify past election mistakes. Respect for student leadership — unlike coffee and tea — doesn't come "instant."

GRADUATE STUDENTS will have to see for themselves in coming months whether the council can stand on its feet again and go to bat as advocates for graduate and professional students. The road to respectability for the council is just now being laid.

But graduate students should be relieved by signs of revival. A scheduled trip to Springfield on April 19 to lobby for the proposed tax increase underlines teelings on the council that alternative funding for students is a top priority.

As Greeley said following the election, good ideas emerged during the campaign. With all the politicking behind, it's time to incorporate those good ideas into a strong and responsible GPSC. Leave the politicking to the campaign. It's time for GPSC leaders to

Sexism starts on Saturday mornings

I've had it! I can't even watch Bugs Bunny on a quiet Saturday morning anymore without being morning anymore without being bombarded by the same stereotypical television commericals that invade TV programming at all other times of the week.

What ever happened to the sacred "kiddies" hour?

sacred "kiddies" hour?
It's sickening. If I see one more girl sigh longingly over 16-year-old, Billy, who is intelligent and manly enough to decide what potato chips he likes the best, I'll sell my $15 TV set and donate the money to the "Extinction of Sexist Advertisers Fund."

Of course, it should be un-derstandable. Kids watch cartoon characters bash each other over the head (and never really get hurt), so why shouldn't they learn how to stereotype men and women at an early age:

For example: Seven-year-old Bobby pushes his Hot Wheels car over rugged terrain and destroys the forces of evil with his Incredible Hulk doll while six-year-old Sally (remember, the man has to be older) stands on the sidelines and gapes at his young masculinity.

Admittedly, men are also stereotyped in commercials but I just don't seem to care as much about them. Somehow, they seem to still get the better deal out of life so I'm not as sympathetic to the fact that they might, just might, be exploited a little. They can defend themselves people and a lot of attitudes. So, with all the ways women are portrayed in commercials, it's wonder that breaking down traditional sex roles is slow

There seem to be two types of women in commercials. First, there's the beautiful woman who has a great body, great clothes and an exciting life. Then, there's the housewife.

And, did you ever notice that the housewise in those housewives in those detergent ads are never really "good-looking"?

I almost pure everytime I see

I almost pute everytime! see some homely-looking 30-year-old in a 'hidden-camera' commercial getting all worked up about how her husband's shirts look.

I usually end up screaming at the TV: "Who really gives a damn? Let him wash his own shirts, anyway!"

To give a nice contrast to the poor housewives sitting around their newly-scrubbed kitchens using Shake & Bake, advertisers give us the independent, modern woman who manages a career husband and manages a career, husband and three kids all at once, with time for five hobbies, a busy social life and a three-story $300,000 house (the hubby's a prominent attorney, of course) which snaps into order when she walks in the door at 5 p.m. And this is all easily at tainable. Just wear Enjoli, drink Diet Pepsi all day, use Easy Off on your oven, have Easy Off on your oven, have your hair done by Vidal Sassoon your hair done by Vidal Sassoon and you're all set.

Oh, it's all so typical. They have to show the beautiful young career women so the housewives doing laundry will have something to dream about And I suspect these commercials cause a lot of unhappiness for women who don't take them at face value.

don't take them at face value.

It's hard to watch a bikiniclad body glide across the screen in a Diet Pepsi commercial and not be dismayed at your ow: pot belly and flabby thighs.

And watching a sexy blonde sleek around an elite dinner party in a tight black evening gown, gathering every man's attention, can sure make a Saturday night Monopoly game seem dull.

The solution to these asinine commercials has always been to grin and bear it.

Saying women let themselves be exploited is too simplistic. Saying men always exploit women won't cut it either. The wer lies somewhere in the middle.

But, for now, I'm stuck gritting my teeth and worrying about those poor kids on Saturday morning who are learning constructive things like how to bat their eyes and with (the Girle) are between sigh (the girls) or how to act manly (the boys) while pretending not to care if there's an admiring female on the sidelines.

The process never ends.

Standing ovation for men in yellow

Countless times through my experiences with concerts at Southern, I have encountered inconsiderate, rowdy and belligerant people. This is not to say I don't enjoy a good time. I do but not to the extreme of disrupting others. However, through some strange reason, I enjoy these shows. Why? The praise goes out to the men clad in yellow, otherwise known as security. No, I'm not kidding!

Recently at the Willie Nelson concert, my companions and I were swamped with picture takers and up-close glancers who all stood directly in front of us (our seats being located on the main floor and to the side). Yet whenever someone rude or stepping out of line, ecurity was there to answe the call, always being polite and

In one particular incident, a fan, after velling obscenities and moving around a great deal, received fair warnings. In turn, security was met with resistance. Conclusion? Thank security for throwing him out. It made the concert much more eniovable.

Of course, typically we do not all act this way, but all that needs to be pointed out are a

Fed up on Cookonomics

After this year of Jerry Cookonomics, frankly, I am fed up. The present USO ad-ministration has had their chance and it did nothing out-standing for the un-dergraduates of SIU-C that wasn't already in effect.

Jerry and Fritz did, however, make great advertisements on the local radio stations. They filled the gap left by the now defunct Kemper and Dodd duo.

And if the Trojans are elected And if the Trojans are elected to the USO executive branch, we will probably have to sit through another year waiting for long-forgotten campaign promises to be fulfilled. Or we could instate Andrew Herr-mann as king. What have we got to lose? — John C. Mallon. Junior, Marketing

Student voice stronger under the Maverick Party

In my first two years here at SIU-C I was never involved in student government. Why should I have been? What had the USO done for me.

This year I decided to find out. I became involved with the Academic Affairs Commission. On this commission, I saw that the students in the USO were not just there to smile pretty at a camera.

USO is not a social organization — it has become an effective, dedicated organization made up of students, for students. In a time when so much is going on and voting seems so irrelevant, it is important to stop to realize that someone cares

Those dedicated students in the USO go under the name of the Maverick Party and I am one of them...and PROUD of it!

Sale of industrial bonds backed by City Council

Carbondale City Council members indicated Monday night that they will support the sale of $2.5 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance an expansion of the Tuck Tape manufacturing plant.

Fifty job openings would result from the plant expansion. resultivin de pain expansion; according to a memorandum written by Frank Moreno, the city's director of economic development. The expansion would include construction of a two-story addition to the nor-theast corner of the plant, purchase of new equipment and relocation of existing equip-ment. An existing building would be demolished.

The council will vote on a resolution to approve sale of the bonds at its formal meeting next Monday.

Tuck Tape recently received a $100,000 grant from the Illinois a $100,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs to pay to train 50 new entry-level workers and upgrade the skills of 25 employees.

Program for clinical staff set

A program consisting of a luncheon and a seminar will be given to clinical instructors of 12 hospitals from three states Thursday in the Mississippi Room in the Student Center.

The luncheon will start at 11:45 a.m., followed by the seminar at 1 p.m

The purpose of the seminar is to teach the instructors how to manage students who will be working for various hospitals in Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky. The Students are from SIU-C and will be completing on-thejob training requirements for an associated degree in radiologic technorespiratory therapy. technology

The seminar is sponsored by the Department of Vecational Education Studies.

City candidates accused of vote buying

CAIRO (AP) — Reports that voters were given money, cigarrettes or whiskey were among allegations that led to impoundment of absentee ballots representing nearly 25 percent of Cairo's voters, of-ficials said.

Nearly 1,000 ballots were impounded Monday, as voters in this river city prepared to select between two candidates for mayor and 12 candidates for six spot; on the city council in Tuesday's election.

In addition, a petition said six voters told state agents that either a candidate or a can-didate-affiliate had marked their ballots.

Sport cards lucrative, dealer says

By David Sedman Student Writer

With the coming of March comes the new baseball cards. To SIU-C freshman Harold Sugarman, baseball cards are big business. Sugarman, one of the foun-Sugarman, one of the founding members of the Southern Illinois Sports Collectors' Society, said he collects anything pertaining to baseball, including gloves, statuettes, autographs and broken bats.

"For myself and other dealers it has become quite a business as well as a hobby." Sugarman said.

Some dealers make more money than doctors. They can make about $4,000 a week and they don't have to worry about malpractice.

The turnover in baseball cards is very good, Sugarman said. During Christmas break, Sugarman said he bought some sport cards with different non-sport cards with different animals depicted, "inex-pensively." At the SISCA's first baseball card show in February, Sugarman traded about half of the non-market about half of the non-sport cards for one Willie Mays card.

Grants to assist local tourism push

The Southern Illinois Tourism Council will receive a portion of grants that total $26,545 to fund promotion of area tourist attractions, the state Department of Commerce and Community Affairs has announced.

The Southern Illinois Tourism Council, a volunteer group located in Murphysboro, as well as the Western and Central Illinois Tourism Councils, will receive a total of 10 grants.

The Southern Illinois council was awarded funding for seven projects. The total grant awarded the Southern Council is $17,793.

According to DCCA Director Peter Fox, the intentions of the grants are two-fold.

"Money invested in tourism promotions reaps over-whelming returns," said Fox. "Not only do tourists spend millions of dollars in Illinois each year, but we also are able to show the world the beautiful state in which we live."

The reprinting of the "Southern Illinois Fishing Guide" and a series of "minitrip" brochures are projects included in the funding. Also funded is the production of a funded is the production of a brochure featuring the Shawnee National Forest and one promoting Belleville.

The Central Illinois Council will receive $3,260 to fund three grants. The Central council will concentrate its resources in the concentrate its resources in the state capital. Projects include production of the "Springfield Hotel-Motel Guide," the "Springfield Restaurant Guide," and the "Springfield Camping Guide."

The Western Illinois Council The Western Illinois Council was awarded funding for three projects. Nearly $1,995 in grants will be used to print a tour map of Knox County and a guide to events in Peoria. Funding will also be used to promote the "Rock Island Summer Festival." Three grants totaling $3,495 will help in promotion of Springfield's annual "Lincolnfest," promotion of Oak Park's Austin Shock Historical Association festival and production of a brochure about the town of Hoopeston.

Money for the grants is allocated by the DCCA's Division of Tourism upon request of the regional councils. By law, the DCCA can fund no more than 60 percent of the total cost of any project. Local funds must also be generated.

Men made women scapegoats from the start, professor says

Most people know the story of Eve from the book of Genesis and the story of Pandora from mythology. Eve ate from the tree of knowledge and brought sin to mankind while Pandora opened a box that let evil loose in the world.

According to Joan O'Brien, those two incidents marked a great demotion in "creation goddesses" in mythology and of women in society.

O'Brien, an associate professor in foreign languages, says that creation goddesses are "mother goddesses who gave birth to the world." She believes that men in antiquity O'Brien. an believes that men in antiquity were looking for someone besides themselves to blame their problems on and women made a handy scapegoat.

Since almost 2000 B.C., society has been patriarchal in structure, she points out. "It is time for lemale opinions" in mythology, says O'Brien. In the past, society was mostly controlled by men, and women suffered because of it, she said.

O'Brien thinks woman's position in society is now at an important historical moment of change because of the emerging eress of women a

The story of women in ancient mythology is a new field, popular only for the last 10 years or so. O'Brien, who has been interested in the field since its beginning, attributes its previous obscurity to the fact that men have traditionally dominated the classics field. That, however, is changing, O'Brien says.

"Mythology is kind of a romantic field." she says. "It's natural that women, as well as men, would be attracted to it."

O'Brien says people's in-terpretations of myths, as well as of women in myth, will continue to grow and change because of scholars with new ideas entering the classics field.

There are constant dramatic changes in mythology," O'Brien says. "Our reading of them will change as our per-spectives change."

O'Brien will go on sabbatical next spring to work on a series of articles on the role of women in creation myths and will try to link the figures of Eve and Pandora with earlier goddesses from other civilizations from other civilizations.

"In Greek prehistory, we have evidence of male warriors but we don't have much evidence of queens." O'Brien says. "Those who want to push says. Those who want to push for matriarchy turn to the Minoan civilization of 3000 to 1500 B.C., where females seemed to be more powerful than males."

On her sabbatical, O'Brien plans to travel to Harvard University, London and then on to Greece, where she will use art as well as literature to help substantiate her theory substantiate her theory

O'Brien presented a paper on early creation goddesses recently at Ohio State University and will travel to Greece this summer for a four-week seminar sponsored by the SIU-C Pepartment of Philosophy, where she will begin her research on the island of Samos in advance of her sabbatical.

Leon Redbone

Redbone first came to prominence after an ap-pearence on "Saturday Night Live," which led to a prompt boost in the slaes of his first album, "On The Track." Over the years since then, Redbone has renained a man of mystery, yet he has continued to impress both the general public and other performers with his style. His age and pointof-origin are unknown. For Rick Naas, music is a

His grandmother started his musical geneology singing civil war folk songs and playing guitar. She taught his mother, who sang on her own half-hour radio show in Harrisburg

Naas. a 28-year-old sophomore in music education from Murphysboro, said his mother always had a guitar lying around the house and he learned to play by "just pickin' around on it."

He has been "pickir' around on it" for over ten years now and has established himself as a fine musician in his own right

Recently, Rick and his brother Tom — a tall, thin curly-headed jokester who contrasts Rick's short, stout frame and quiet demeanor — performed on SPC's Student Stage in the International Lounge of the Student Center. tounge or the Student Center.
It's usually a hard crowd to play for. People wander by, listen for a couple of minutes and leave. A few people lie around on s, some sleeping.

But during their per-formance, people were wan-dering in and not out. The during their nce was awake ande. Rick and Tom and tentive. Rick and Tom (I'm tempted to overcompare them to Simon and Garfunkel because of their style, looks and large repertoire of Simon and Garfunkel songs) breezed through Neil Young's "Needle and the Damage Done" and "Ohio." Songs they have been doing together since 1972

After doing one more cover — a version of the Beatles' "Rocky Raccoon," that Tom says is off the "Caucasion" album — they in Smoke," Tom says, was written at 3 a.m. on caffeine, but it doesn't sound like it.

Both performers have excellent ranges — about three and a half octaves, according to brother Tom — and go about their work with a professional savvy rarely found in student performances. They really enjoy their work and they work often.

According to SPC
Programming chair Glenn Stolar, they have done "lots of these tind of things. Four student stages this semester and a few last semester." They also headlined SPC's Spotlight Series' Accoustical Music Fest
last Thursday in the Student Center's Old Main Room.

Rick's band, L7, frequently plays around the Strip and won last year's battle of the bands contest at Shawnee Bluff. More recently, Rick was this region's representitive on the American Collegiate Talent Search, winning the regional contest with two songs he wrote and performed.

"I usually write love songs," he said, and the songs that won the talent search are just that. "It's Not For Me To Say" and "I 'It's Not For Me To Say Don't Know," are both beautiful ballads that speak as well for his song writing ability as nis ' are both beautiful flawless tenor voice.

Naas classifies his music as Naas classifies his music as "pseudo-folk or accoustical rock." But not all his songs are love songs. "I wrote one called 'Small Change' that was about clubbing baby seals and nuclear "ar."

The anti-nuclear movement is The anti-nuclear movement is something that Naas feels strongly about. He and his band, L7, (Tom just hauls equipment around) also performed at Hangar 9 in a benefit for the Mid-America Peace Project last Monday. Before his final song at the student stage he reminded the audience that "mankind never made a weapon he didn't use."

Another Nass original, "Riders in the Rain" was written with his grandma in mind. It's a beautiful civil war mind. It's a beautiful civil war song that gives away Naas' Southern Illinois country up-bringing. It was also the best song of the set — lyrical, evocative and honest.

Grandma would be proud.

'Final Cut' beautiful, vicious

Welcome to a pleasant little drive through Armageddon Pink Floyd's latest release, "The Final Cut," is an unex-pected vindication of the death of a father, an unmerciful at-tack on western political leaders and the crown jewel in the genre of art-rows.

Roger Waters has acheived a new plateau in recording history. He has scaled the wall of flatulent metaphor and honed his wit to a razor's edge. "The Final Cut, A Requiem For a Postwar Dream," is as beautiful as it is vicious.

The annum began from tunes

The anum began from tunes written for the movie, "The Wail." about Water's father, Eric Fletcher Waters, who was killed at the battle of Anzio in 1944. It moves from the self-piting neurosis if the Wall to a biting sensitivity to the fate of mankind mankind

The album opens with "The Postwar Dream," asking "Tell me why was Jesus crucified, is it for this that daddy died? Should we shout, should we scream? What ever happened to the post war dream?"

Using Floydian sound effects a moving car, radio newscasts, jet airplanes, missiles and nuclear explosions — Waters recreates an af-ternoon drive through the heart of the holocaust, offering no or the holocaust, offering no answers, only biting satire illuminating incidents such as the IRA bombing of British bandmembers in a park, the Falkland Islands war and the Israeli occupation of Beirut

On "Get Your Filthy Hands Off My Desert," he presents a little list of global atrocines: "Brezhnev took Afghanistan, Begin took Beirut, Galtieri took

Union Jack, and Maggie (Thatcher) over lunch one day took a cruiser with all hands. apparently to make him give it

As a solution to the apparent madness of war, Waters proposes the "Fletcher Memorial Home," in memory of dear old Dad, where all our of dear old Dad, where all our fearless leaders can "appear to themselves on closed circut T.V. to make sure that they're real, it's the only connection they feel. They can poissh their medals and sharpen their smiles, and amuse themselves planting convenience.

playing games for a while."
However, the most outstanding song — if these auditory productions can be called "songs" and one can be picked out as "best" — is a more positive, if not happy, reaction to an illogical situation that Rolling Stone Magazine called "honoring the sacrifice."

On "Not Now John" Waters

On "Not Now John" Waters sings "Fuck all that, we gotta get on with these," while immersed in an all-girl, sixties-type, soulful chorus that advises us to stay out of the bar for a little while and concentrate on the job at hand.
"Not Now John" isn't merely primordial scream frustration, but rather a bugal call to action because "who cares what it is all about, as long as the kids go on. Hang on John, we got to get on with the

Although "The Final Cut" has been touted as a Roger Waters exclusive, he is not alone on this excellent album. Floyd member David Gilmore's searing quitar solos — especially on "Not Now

MEETS TWO THURSDAYS.

APRIL 14 and 21 :00-9:00 PM :ALL 536-4441 to registe John' — are as expressive and emotional as anything from "Animals" or "Wish You Were Here." Raphael Ravenscroft's sax solo at the end of "Two Suns in the Sunset" is as smooth and soothing as the setting sun — n peaceful conclusion to an angry album, and possibly to the band Pink Floyd. Pink Floyd.

It has been reported this is Pink Floyd's last album, that the next will truly be a Roger Waters solo album. The only person who knows for sure is a disturbed genius somewhere in England who ponders the world around us from the outside.

The Final Cut blows apart the wall, leaves fat mothers and schoolmasters behind and wall, leaves fat mothers and schoolmasters behind and approaches the end of the world with courage. The motto of one prestigious lvy League school is "Function in disaster, finish with style." If this truly is the last Pink Floyd album, they have done just that.

Jazz group, Shadowfax to kick off Miller series

Just as the first rays of sunshin; are finally hitting Carbondale, the Student sunshin are finally hitting Carbondale, the Student Programming Council is starting the 1983 outdoor concert season.

At 4 p.m. Friday at the east end of the Recreation Center, SPC will present the Miller Rock Series with the jazz-fusion band Shadowfax. The Chicagobased band has recently signed with the Windham Jazz label and released a self-titled first album which is at number 25 on Billboard Magazine's Jazz Chart.

The Miller Rock Series, which featured the Big Twist concert last fall, is a warmup for the Miller-sponsored, annual SPC Springfest. It is also an example Springfest. It is also an example of SPC's search for corporate sponsorship to battle increasing costs and budget cutbacks.

SPC programming chair Kurt Karlenzig said 'we always run out of funds toward the end of the year. Last year, SPC on the whole was cut $3,000. Plus we are allocated the same amount of money for three years in a row while inflation kekeps going up. That's where the real cut comes in.

comes in.
"So we have been searching for different sponsors, and breweries are really big on it these days."
According to Karlenzig, the major breweries are in an advertising war and they "have advertising war and they "nave got college marketing down. We had other offers, but decided to go with Miller again because they're familiar with out operation and we like working the entertainment costs for the upcoming Shadowfax concert as well as most of the entertainment costs for Springfest. While it might seem unethical for a major brewery to sponsor an event on campus where drinking is prohibited, Karlenzig doesn't see any bassie

"We're not saying that it's OX to drink. We're just taking advantage of the fact that a major company wants to sponsor us. If people want to bring coolers and drin't they have to keep it low-key. We're not the police. We just keep the music going"

music going"
The University The University has no existing policy against brewery-sponsored concerts, but "they weren't pleased with the giant inflatable Miller bottle outside of Anthony Hall at last year's Springfest," Karlenzig said. Besides bringing high quality entertainment to SIU-C, corporate sponsorship also provides the students working at SPC with a unique learning experience.

experience.

"It's a good chance to get funds for the concerts, and it gives the students a chance to work outside the university with corporate sponsors. It's a realistic job situation."

In the event of rain, the Shadowfax concert will be held Shadowfax concert will be held at Student Center Baltroom D.

SPC's Springfest will be April 23 and feature the bands Juggular, a fusion band that combines music with juggling; Nerve, a Nashville-based band that plays a Little Feat style of R&B; Heavy Manners, a big time Chicago Ska band; and, headlining, the new wave pop of Shoes.

"Sugar doesn't really deliver the caloric wallop," says Adam Drewnowski, a psychologist and biochemist at Rockefeller University in New York.

He and a co-worker studied 16 normal-weight college students and found that their taste preferences were limited in the category of tweets, but prac-tically unlimited when it came to fats.

The researchers presented their findings Monday at the 67th Annual Meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology

Despite the well-known dangers of too much dietary fat, Americans continue to eat large amounts of rich, creamy, calorie-laden, fatty foods, the researchers noted

To explore the reasons, Drewnowski and M.R.C.
Greenwood, a biologist at Vassar College in Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., prepared taste tests using 20 different mixtures of skim milk, milk, cream and sugar. The fat content of the samples ranged from the 0.1 percent of skim milk to the 37.7 percent of heavy and 20 percent.

The study found that students could correctly judge both the sweetness and the fat content of the dairy solutions, and they expressed a definite cut-off of preference for increasing sweetness — about a percent. But they had no correspon-

But they had no corresponding cutoff point for fat. The mixture of heavy cream and safflower oil sweetened with 9 percent sugar was their favorite.

The researchers said obese people appear to have the same preferences, and they are exaggerated into inexorable susceptibilities.

"Eight percent sugar at 4 calories per gram is not so much," Drewnowski said, "but 40 percent fat at 9 calories per gram is a whole lot."

The medical community was "naive" in assuming that what maive in assuming that what was really wrong with obese people "was that they had a sweet tooth," Ms. Greenwood said. Earlier studies showed that the obese did not really prefer simple sweets, and often liked them less than many other

Congressional fight expected over recent MX missile plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest plan for basing the MX missile, similar to a proposal rejected by Congress two years ago, is awaiting President Reagan's endorsement before it faces a bitter congressional

A commission appointed by Reagan proposed Monday that 100 MX weapons should be built and put in Minuteman silos in Wyoming and Nebraska and that a new, smaller land-based nuclear missile should be developed in the next decade.

developed in the next decade. "Few, if any, will consider our recommendations an optimal solution." said retired Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, the former national security adviser who headed the 11-member panel. "If such were available, this commission probably would not have been convened.
"What we have we feel have

"What we have, we feel, has a reasonable, has the best, chance to be successful," he told a news conference.

But most of the immediate Capitol Hill reaction came from MX opponents and it was MX opponents and it was predictably negative.

Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., chairman of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, predicted defeat. The MX "is a dog that has been around too long," Addabbo said. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the panel's "recommendation the panel's "recommendation to deploy 100 MX missiles in existing Minuteman silos makes no more sense today than it did when the administration proposed it as a temporary solution 16 months ago. It was rejected then; it chould be accepted then; it ago. It was rejected then; it should be rejected now."

Sen. J. James Exon, a Nebraska Democrat whose state would receive some of the missiles, called the plan "ridiculous."

"A dangerous, expensive fraud," was the reaction of Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Ap-propriations Committee, called the recommendations "nothing less than mad."

"If the commission's recommendations are adopted, we right as well also announce that America has adopted a first strike nuclear strategy," Hatfield said

Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., a key House MX supporter, predicted a close vote.

"Most people who were against it are still against it," Edwards said in a telephone interview. But some members who opposed the since-discarded dense-pack basing last year may vote for the new deployment method simply because it is the only choice left, he said Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R.

Wyo., said Congress will probably approve the plan. "My guess is that the struggle will be intense, the fight will be difficult, and in the end we'll be successful."

successful."
The report was released after the panel met with Reagan, who didn't publicly endorse it.
Instead, said White House sources who declined to be named, Reagan will probably wait a week so the MX debate doesn't detract from administration efforts against a ministration efforts against a House nuclear freeze resolution and in favor of Kennetn and in favor of Kennetn Adelman, the embattled arms control nominee.

The administration says the 10-warhead MX is needed because the 1,000 Minuteman missiles — the backbone of America's land-based nuclear is vulnerable to a first strike by increasingly accurate Soviet missiles.

Salukis rally for another win with ninth inning, two-out hit

Associate Sports Editor

Murray State offered up the Murray State offered up the dregs of its pitching staff, and the Saluki hitters gladly accepted the sacrifice Tuesday, punishing three Thoroughbred hurlers with 15 hits in a 9-8 victory at Abe Martin Field.

Jim Reboulet got four of them including the game winner in the ninth with two outs that capped a picture book rally. The Salukis had trailed by as much as 6-2 early, but had repeatedly battled back and briefly assumed the lead in the sixth. In the ninth they needed just one run to win.

And for the second day in a row, SIU-C came up with a winning run in its last time at Rich Koch started the ninth by grounding a single past the third baseman into leftfield off a third baseman into leftfield off a Murray State pitcher who was seeing his first action of the year. Jim Limperis followed with a sacrifice bunt, and after the slumping Mike Gellinger struck out. Steve Boyd battled his way aboard with a walk. That set the stage for Reboulet, who had already broken a mild slump by staying back on the pitch.

broken a mild slump by staying back on the pitch.
"I was looking for a fastball all the way." he said.
The first pitch was just that, and the Saluki secondbasman rapped it down the rightfield line. A sliding Koch easily beat the throw to the plate.
A hit, a bunt, a walk, and a clutch single.

The Thoroughbreds, in the midst of the Ohio Valley Conference season, kept their top pitchers for conference games later this week. Instead of quality they trotted out Kerry Parker. (5.79 earned run average), Doug Rice, 5.68, and Dave Youngblood, a former Saluki who was called upon to save a game in his first appearance of the spring.

Ellis though, held up well, and settled down considerably after giving away six runs in the first three innings.

"He's a tough pitcher," said Jones. "He's competitive. I give Ellis a lot of credit for battling. There are some days when you get hit, when you get roped. Those things can happen."
Ellis' shakiest innings came

In 24 games, Murray State has hit 41 home runs. Its second two-run blast gave the team a 6-2 lead after two and a half innings. No problem.

All they ever needed was a an usey ever needed was a break from the weather. And Tuesday they got it. With only partially cloudy skies hanging overhead, the Saluki softball contingency managed to suggest in managed to squeeze in a twinbill with Lincoln Junior College. They also managed a pair of wins.

By sweeping both ends of the doubleheader by 2-0 and 2-1 counts, the Salukis raised their season mark to 13-5, and cap-tured their eighth victory in the last nine games.

Despite the sweep, Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer was hardly playing the part of the victor. Sloppy is how she described her team's periormance, and five errors backed up her description.

"I'm not real pleased with the team's performance, even though we won two games," Brechtelsbauer said. "We had six errors this weekend and five today. From the first pitch, I think we seemed sloppy."

Donna Dapson claimed the win in the first contest, limiting Lincoln to four hits en route to the shutout. Sunny Clark took the honors in the nightcap, scattering seven hits in going the distance.

We wanted to steal, but we were letting the batters swing rather than taking a fat pitch." The Salukis will try to advance 10 games over the 500 mark this weekend when they host the final Saluki In-vitational limited to four teams and making its curtain call as a result of next years scheduling, which will pit the Salukis against Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference opponents

The Salukis' first spring tournament, the SIU-C Invitational, was cancelled after three rounds of pool play due to rain. In that eight-team affair. Brechtelsbauer's squad was eliminated from the throne race on a 5-run, last inning splurge by defending national junior college champion Illinois Central.
