U.S. plans further attacks against Libya, officials say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration has decided to retaliate against Libya for a terrorist attack in West Berlin, but when the strike will take place and how it will be carried out has not been determined, U.S. officials said Thursday.

Two U.S. aircraft carrier battle groups were poised in the Mediterranean Sea Thursday awaiting an order from President Reagan to execute a reprisal attack against military targets in Libya, the officials said.

Reagan told a news conference Wednesday that he was waiting for proof that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy — who he called the "mad dog of the Middle East" — was behind the Berlin attack before ordering a retaliation. But other administration officials have said sufficient evidence exists to link the Libyan leader to the terrorist bombing.

The April 4 attack at a West Berlin nightclub killed an American soldier and a Turkish woman and wounded 50 other Americans.

Army Gen. Bernard Rogers, the U.S. and NATO commander in Europe, said in Atlanta Wednesday the United States has "indisputable evidence" that Khadafy was responsible for the bombing, a Pentagon transcript said Thursday.

"The disco in Berlin, the evidence is there. We have indisputable evidence and I won't tell you how we get it because... well, I can't tell you how we get it. But it's there," Rogers said.

The officials, who spoke on the condition they not be identified, declined to specify the military options available for an attack against the North African country.

Jet attack planes and fighter-bombers aboard the carriers America and Coral Sea were one option. Other speculation has focused on the Air Force bringing into action FB-111 bombers based in Britain or long-range B-52 bombers based in the United States.

For the moment, the presence of the 21-ship naval force in an area west of Italy posed the only apparent immediate U.S. threat to Khadafy, who has vowed to retaliate against American targets if his country is attacked.

The aged Coral Sea, equipped with the F-18 fighter-bomber, the Navy's newest jet, pulled out of the southern Spanish port of Malaga early Thursday and headed east toward the battle group headed by the America, the officials said.

It was to have headed from Malaga homeward to Norfolk, Va., earlier in the week and the America was to have gone to Cannes on the French Riviera Thursday, they said. But orders for the carriers were changed to put them in a holding pattern, a necessary first step for possible action against Libya.

Both were about 48 hours away from striking distance of Libya.

A third carrier, the nuclear-powered Enterprise, was in the Indian Ocean and could be dispatched to the Mediterranean to boost U.S. firepower. But officials said there was no indication the Enterprise had received orders to link up with the Mediterranean task force.

Three carriers grouped two weeks ago for five days of exercises on and over the Mediterranean and the Gulf of Sidra, claimed by Khadafy. Navy jets destroyed two Libyan missile boats and knocked out an anti-aircraft missile radar in retaliation for Libya's firing missiles at U.S. planes, the Pentagon said.

Student trustee is elected

Undergraduate Student Organization East Side Senator Ed Lance, who ran unopposed for student trustee, was elected Wednesday by 179 votes. A total of 185 votes were cast and of those six were declared invalid.

Lance, a senior in business management, is president pro-tempore of the USO, a member of the USO Committee of Internal Affairs, a member of the Student Advisory Committee to the Illinois Board of Higher Education and a manager at Danver's Restaurant.

Lance said before the election that even though student members of the Board of Trustees do not have a binding vote he thinks they can influence the outcome of board decisions.

He said that if elected he

would work to convince more students to speak out on issues such as rising tuition and cuts in financial aid.

Resolution asks USO to consult with GPSC before making ballot

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council has asked that the Undergraduate Student Organization consult with them before placing referendums on the USO election ballot.

A resolution on the request was unanimously approved by GPSC Wednesday.

Of the five referendums in the April 2 election, three would require fee increases. Two of those, the abortion option and busing system, were not presented to the GPSC. The third, an Illinois Student Association increase, was presented to the council with more information to follow, but no further information was received.

Placement of the nuclear-free zone referendum was approved by the GPSC, and the split-break option has been tabled by the administration.

The issue is not only that issues affecting all students were not brought before the council President Mary Brown said, but she questions the lack of communication that she said is inexcusable.

Also on the resolution was a request that the referendums also be placed with the ballots for the Student Trustee election in which both graduate and undergraduate students are able to vote.

GPSC officers were elected for 1986 to 1987 school year.

Kelli McCormack, Department of Health Education, was elected president; Paul Antonacci, Law School, was elected vice president of administrative affairs; and Darrell Johnson, Department of Philosophy, will be vice president of graduate school affairs.

Dale Reiman, assistant director of the physical plant, discussed with the council the possibility of beginning a program to rebuild Thompson Woods.

The beauty of the campus is not by accident, he said, and he considers its two biggest assets Thompson Woods and Campus Lake. He said he did not wish for GPSC to take action on the issue only to offer input and support.

Trustees widen chancellor hunt

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Getting the good mix the Board of Trustees is seeking in a chancellor could mean stirring the pot of candidates until Labor Day, board chairman Harris Rowe said Thursday.

However, Rowe said that extending the search calendar could improve the chances of a woman or a black becoming chancellor. Rowe's comments were made during a news conference that followed the board meeting.

Of the four people under close scrutiny for the chancellorship since February, "there is one, possibly two still under consideration," Rowe said.

But he said that to be sure the board gets a good mix, members "have" decided to look at possibly two, three or four additional names."

Rowe hesitated to say for certain that one of the candidates considered would be a woman or a black but he said he "wouldn't rule out the possibility."

The four final candidates, all white males, came from a list of 15 names compiled in January. Rowe said the other 11 were never entirely eliminated from the search, but that the board "just looked further" at the four."

Rowe defined a good mix in a chancellor as "someone who recognizes the type of system

1,000 communist rebels, supporters lay down arms

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — More than 1,000 communist-led rebels and sympathizers laid down their arms Thursday in the first mass surrender since President Corazon Aquino launched a drive to end the bloody insurgency, officials said. Villagers cheered and relatives burst into tears as scores of young rebels laid down their M-16 rifles, .38-caliber pistols and more than 1,000 rounds of ammunition in a town plaza outside Catmon, 345 miles south of Manila on the central island of Cebu.

W. Germany says Khadafy ordered bombing

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Authorities are convinced Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy ordered the Berlin nightclub bombing that killed a U.S. soldier and a Turkish woman, the West German news service DPA reported Thursday. Citing information from informed security sources, DPA said the bombing of the La Belle discotheque in West Berlin early Saturday was carried out by a Palestinian splinter group on Khadafy's orders.

Program to aid minority-owned businesses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration, already embroiled in a bitter dispute over affirmative action hiring rules, said Thursday it supports a $20 billion federal program to aid companies owned by minorities and women. White House spokesman Larry Speakes was asked the administration position on the program after the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights made public a draft calling for suspension of the program.

Reagan wants separate vote on Contra aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House asked House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Thursday to allow next week's vote on Contra aid to come separately instead of as an amendment to a spending bill aides said President Reagan would veto. O'Neill said Wednesday he is going ahead with plans to attach the controversial $100 million aid package to the supplemental spending bill because Reagan and his aides broke their promise by connecting the Nicaraguan incursion into Honduras to last month's House vote denying aid.

EPA considers action against nuclear plant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency is considering criminal action against a government nuclear plant at Hanford, Wash., alleging false documents were filed to avoid compliance with environmental laws, a House hearing was told Thursday. Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., disclosed at a joint hearing of two energy subcommittees that the Energy Department claimed to have monitored groundwater at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation, but did not.

Car bomb in Lebanon kills 3 and injures 34

SIDON, Lebanon (UPI) — An explosives-packed Mercedes blew up outside the offices of a pro-Syrian Lebanese militia Thursday, killing the driver and two passersby and wounding 34 other people. Experts defused a second bomb. Some 330 pounds of TNT packed in a Mercedes sedan exploded at 9:52 a.m., 10 yards from the Sidon branch of Syria's ruling Baath Party and the home of a Moslem fundamentalist leader, militia sources said.

Westmoreland warns against fear of war

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Gen. William Westmoreland, the man who directed the nation's ill-fated venture in Southeast Asia, warned Americans Thursday not to let their fears of "another Vietnam" weaken the country's military strength. Westmoreland, in an article in this Sunday's edition of Parade magazine, said a larger dose of patriotism and a greater belief in what America stands for is what the nation needs to survive.

Judge considers running for lieutenant governor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cook County Circuit Judge Michael Howlett Jr. has discussed the possibility of running for lieutenant governor on an independent slate with Adlai Stevenson, the Chicago Tribune reported Thursday. Stevenson's slated running mate on the Democratic ticket, George Sangmeister, was defeated by LaRouche disciple Mark Fairchild in last month's primary.

Trustees grant contracts, give 3 honorary degrees

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees raced through its agenda Thursday in the Student Center and acted on nearly all of its business in one vote.

Matters approved by the board included contracts for renovations of the Student Center fourth floor and for resurfacing Logan Drive, three honorary degrees and the naming of a University sports facility.

Work on the Student Center fourth floor will provide space for WIDB, the campus radio station, a video lounge and a graphics production center. Student fees and operating revenues from the Student Center will pay the construction bills, totalling $268,335.

The project's contractors will be:

— Morgan Builders of Murphysboro, for general work in the amount of $120,405.

— A & K Midwest Insulation Co. of Metropolis, for heating ventilation and air conditioning work, $109,000.

— Clinton Electric Co. of Ina, for electrical work, $38,930.

The Logan Drive resurfacing contract includes the service entrance to Trueblood Hall and two parking lots serving the Southern Hills complex.

Funds for the Logan Drive and Southern Hills parking lots will come from parking revenues. Student housing revenue will pay for the Trueblood service entrance.

E. T. Simonds Construction Co. of Carbondale was awarded the contract in the amount of $282,195.

Two graduates of the University were granted honorary degrees by the board. The presentations, one for William Fisher and one for Richard Arnold, will take place during this year's spring commencement ceremonies.

Fisher, state geologist of Texas and a native of Marion, received his bachelor's degree in geology from the University in 1954 and has since returned to the campus a number of times to lecture.

Fisher led a drive to add a scholarship fund in the University's Department of Geology and has served on the Geology Advisory Group here since 1974.

He currently directs the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas at Austin.

Arnold, bachelor's of education degree recipient in 1934, served as chairman of the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry from 1969 to 1976.

He also served on a number of University committees, such as the SIU Foundation Board of Directors, and won an AMOCO Foundation Award in 1977 as outstanding teacher in the College of Science.

Both Fisher and Arnold will receive honorary Doctor of Science degrees.

A third honorary degree recipient, Clifton Wharton Jr., chancellor of the State University of New York system and a specialist in economic development and U.S. foreign policy, will receive the honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at the 1987 spring commencement exercises.

He is being recognized for his "invaluable contributions to international educational and economic development and the relationship of his accomplishments to the mission of SIU-C," according to the board's resolution.

The board also named the University's field hockey area in honor of the late Jean Stehr, women's field hockey coach for 13 years and University instructor for more than 35 years. She died in 1980 at the age of 61.

One item pulled from the board's agenda and not ratified was a proposal calling for the improvement of McLafferty Road by Jackson County.

"The item was withdrawn because of later considerations by the board to extend improvements to the road," James Brown, acting chancellor, said.

He said the board thought it best to have the road renovated all at once and not in stages through separate board actions.

McLafferty Road, much of which lies within the University's south property line, was never formally transferred to Jackson County. Included in the improvement plan is a matter that licenses the county to do the work.

1,011 students sign letters protesting education cuts

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

Students signed 1,011 letters last week opposing proposed education cuts mandated by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget balancing law.

The letters, collected during a letter-writing campaign sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Organization and the Illinois Student Association, are being sent to lawmakers and Reagan administration officials, Andy Leighton, student trustee.

Affirmative action policy receives mixed reviews

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

It's just a matter of time before women and minorities are better represented among the top 20 University administrators, says William Baily, special assistant to the president for affirmative action.

Baily says that affirmative action at the University is more vibrant than elsewhere in the nation in part because the Reagan Administration has toned down the emphasis on affirmative action.

However, Nancy Bandy, assistant director of women's athletics, says Baily's rosy assessment of affirmative action at SIU-C is inaccurate. She says the University has not made significant gains in minority recruitment since the Affirmative Action Office was established in August 1975.

Ranks of dean through chancellor, where salaries range from $54,898 to $104,352, have been without women since Barbara Hansen left her post as dean of the Graduate School Jan. 1 to become vice chancellor at the University of Maryland at Baltimore.

Only one black is included in these ranks, Seymour Bryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, and his salary is the lowest among top administrators.

Baily said the absence of women and minorities in the upper echelons of the administration in no way indicates poor affirmative action policies at the University.

He said that between Aug. 1 and the end of February, 45 percent of the non-civil service employees who were hired were women and 18 percent were black. Baily joined the administration in August.

Between July 1, 1984, and June 30, 1985, only 35 percent of the 334 faculty members and administrative and professional staff members hired were women and only 2 percent were black, he said.

Baily said the jump in both percentages "clearly indicates that there is a hiring pattern that includes women and minorities" at the University.

Just when that hiring pattern will increase the number of minorities and women

Grad student vote may alter election

ALMOST ALL THE students who voted in the USO-sponsored referendum last week were undergraduates. But the issues they voted on affect graduate and professional students too. However, graduate students were not informed, either in USO election advertising — or in DE reports, we have to admit — that they could vote in the referendum.

The Graduate and Professional Student Council is perturbed over this. It seems that while they recommended making SIU-C a nuclear-free zone and disapproved of splitting the fall break, they were not informed that three other resolutions would be on the referendum ballot. Since they did not know this, GPSC representatives could not tell their constituents what the GPSC position was on these — because there was no GPSC position.

ONLY 145 GRADUATE students voted in the referendum. But there are 4,080 graduate and professional students. Their votes could have changed the outcome on any of the proposals, especially the one on increasing student health insurance to cover abortion, which was defeated 1,107-763.

So in a resolution approved Wednesday, the GPSC has asked the USO to consult with them before putting any more referendums to the students. The GPSC has also made a good suggestion — that any future referendums be attached to the student trustee election, in which all students are eligible to vote.

THE REFERENDUM COULD serve as further inducement to vote — only 180 people showed up at the polls yesterday. If there are issues specific to undergraduates or graduate students, they could be voted on during the USO and GPSC elections.

And by putting referendum on the trustee election ballot, a more representative sample of student opinion could be produced. The results of this year's referendum must be taken with a grain of salt — because a little over 20 percent of the students did not know that they could register their opinions on the issues.

Persecution of Valentine

The SIU Board of Trustees' lawsuit against Kevin Valentine, chairman of People Living the Dream, for unpaid debts and the media's public exposure of his private affairs are ominous signs of a familiar pattern.

Virtually every black leader who has motivated and inspired others to struggle against racism and social injustice has been persecuted by the American establishment. Those who were harassed, intimidated and scandalized include the giants of black history like Paul Robeson, Malcolm X, Martin Luther King Jr., Jesse Jackson, and Harold Washington. Moreover, thousands of lesser-known but equally valiant front-line activists also have been persecuted for their role in the struggle for human rights.

About five months ago Valentine organized a trip to Atlanta for a group of students who wanted to attend the inaugural celebration of a national holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. When the group returned to campus he organized them into a human rights group dedicated to the goals and principles of King. For the past several months Valentine and his new group have sponsored several rallies, demonstrations, and workshops in support of the anti-apartheid movement, the peace movement, the liberation struggles in Central America and the struggles of the poor and oppressed in the United States.

The American establishment, of which SIU and the press is a part, is responding to Valentine by launching a counterattack. It seeks to render him and his group ineffective and inoperative by discrediting him and demoralizing his group. This is the standard strategy used by the American establishment to crush dissent. All of us who share the goals and values of People Living the Dream must not let the Board of Trustees railroad Valentine or torpedo his group.

The personal financial debts of Valentine are neither illegal nor unethical, but the financial investments of SIU in South Africa certainly are, according to the United Nations. — Luke Tripp, coordinator, Black American Studies.

Collective bargaining survey findings may not be accurate

The April 3 DE article on the faculty collective bargaining survey conducted by Professors Larry Busch and Gay Wakefield begs clarification. The article reported that the Busch-Wakefield survey results suggest that the SIU-C faculty would vote against collective bargaining, if the election were held today.

This conclusion is not supported by their findings. There is a crucial difference between the population which they surveyed and the population that will eventually vote in a faculty collective bargaining election. We judge that there will be about 1,100 faculty who will vote in the election, yet Busch and Wakefield distributed their survey to 1,625 "regular faculty members." The 1,625 figure represents all members of the staff who hold faculty rank, which includes the president, vice presidents, deans and almost all of our senior administrators. Further, their population includes the faculty in the Schools of Medicine and Law, who will be excluded from the eventual bargaining unit.

It is apparent that these individuals, who will certainly be excluded from the bargaining unit, responded in substantial numbers to this survey. For example, 37 percent of the survey respondents reported that they were on 12-month contracts, yet only 13 percent of the eventual faculty bargaining unit will have 12-month contracts. Only 65 percent of the survey respondents indicated that their university work assignment is all teaching and research, whereas 94 percent of the eventual bargaining unit will have such assignments.

Simply put, the Busch-Wakefield survey did not accurately sample the members of the faculty who will be voting in the collective bargaining election. Larry and Gay supplied me with a copy of the computer printout containing the results of their survey. I was able to filter through their samples and select those respondents who would most likely be voting in the election. Only 37 percent of this subset of the survey sample indicated that they were opposed to collective bargaining. This figure is substantially smaller than the 55 percent figure reported in your article.

The Busch-Wakefield survey did find that many faculty and staff have questions about collective bargaining. University Professionals-SIU stands ready to meet with any member of this University community who has questions about this important issue. — John T. Pohlmann, Professor of Educational Psychology and President of UP-SIU, Illinois Federation of Teachers-American Federation of Teachers.

Nicaragua and Viet Nam compared

Whether they are for or against the current administration's war policies in Latin America, most people are willing to acknowledge the parallels with Vietnam. All admit, for instance, that without the CIA there would have been no Contras in the first place, an obvious parallel to American client governments in Saigon during the 1960s and 1970s.

Apologists for our Latin American war by proxy seem reluctant to recognize, however, that the Reagan administration's outraged rhetoric over the alleged Sandinista incursion into the Honduras is a parallel also, but in reverse.

Those of us who still remember those far-off decades of the 1960s and 1970s may indeed recall that it was the incursion of American troops into Cambodia in hot pursuit, as it used to be called, of Viet Cong troops seeking the sanctuary of a neighboring neutral country that spelled the beginning of the end of the Vietnam disaster.

In the 1960s and 1970s, the Washington outraged doublespeak was directed at the Viet Cong; nowadays it's directed at the legal government of Nicaragua, a government the Reagan administration is determined to bring down by any and every means at its disposal.

One can only hope that such dishonesty will serve to expose the moral and political bankruptcy of the Reagan administration before it succeeds in dragging us into another stupid and fruitless war. — Robert Griffin, associate professor, English.

Are cardboard boats destined for Olympics?

By Richard C. Archer
Assistant Professor of Art

Numerous people have pointed out to me the letter in the March 28 DE, so I guess some sort of defense should be made for the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta!.

I would like to agree with Mr. Woods. I, too, was appalled at the action of two people who swam out and sank the boat of an 11-year-old child. With the size of the crowds we attract, I guess that one act on one boat in 13 years isn't that bad when compared to what has happened in the world in the last 13. The people, who were apprehended by SIU Security, had been drinking and had done it on a bet. Should we ban all such people from the race? I really don't want to let two people ruin the fun for the thousands who have enjoyed the regatta for 13 years.

From this point on, Mr. Woods and I split company very quickly. The rules have been changed for the first time in 13 years. A small group of people have been trying to win by pushing the rules to the very limit. This year, plywood seals that just happen to do a lot more won't be allowed. We want it to be a Cardboard Boat Regatta, not a bunch of money held together by some cardboard.

The regatta started out as a learning tool for the Design 102 class. As long as I have anything to say about it, the intention will remain just that. I know what it takes to be creative enough to get cardboard to float, let alone race. The regatta is a learning experience in creative thinking — nothing more. It has not yet been elevated to the status of an Olympic event. Now, Mr. Woods, this is going to hurt, but I hope it never is.

We haven't even had a major cheating scandal yet (like a hidden 25-horse outboard motor).

What you have witnessed for the last two years is a piece of performance art, yes, a hold-over from 13 years ago, a happening. You must understand this as you have accurately pointed out that "participating is more important than winning." Competitors last year ranged in age from seven to 58. No, the extremes did not win, but they did participate, and we did not even charge them to do so.

I am not even insulted about my "wimp prejudice about the nature of competitive sport." Webster's New World Dictionary defines "wimp" as "weak or ineffectual." I hope that all of my prejudices are weak or ineffectual.

The problem is that Mr. Woods missed the boat (sorry!). The regatta is a happening, not a competitive event.

While I would not classify a bunch of people racing in improbable cardboard boats for the fun of it as professionals, I do take exception to the fact that fast boats don't win. Roger Brummet had the fastest time of the day and he won just as he has for the last five years. That has to be more than luck. Your best time of the day, Mr. Woods, 3:57, does pale against his 1:34. I do admit that the two students from DuQuoin High School who won Class II finished differently than their heat times would indicate. The first place finisher was a little bit slower in his heat than the second place finisher. Maybe it was luck or maybe it was human spirit.

Yes, there is bumping and jabbing with oars, etc. These are people in untried boats built of cardboard, not professionals in million dollar machines. I hope most of it is unintentional.

Finally, as to the regatta's organization, I am about to reveal the best-kept secret of the Free World. The heat contenders are selected by a process similar to that which I have been accused of using to grade papers. The entry cards are all thrown into the air. The first five to hit the ground are in the first heat, the second five are in the second, etc. This may sound rude, crude, and socially unacceptable, but think of the alternative you offer. I admit to not knowing the intent of each entrant, but I just can't, in all good conscience, pick up the microphone and request that all of those who want to sink must be in the first heat. It seems a little unfair. Secondly, if we used your method of single entry qualifying runs and your time, it would have taken almost 10 hours to accomplish just the first heat. (There were a lot of slower times). Third, if the last round of heats were such that the fastest time went into the final, the second fastest time into the semi-final, do you realize that, with 150 boats, we would have to hold a sesqui-centum final?

I guess after all of these single event races, we would then have to put it all into a computer and wait for the winner to pop out. Call me a sentimental old fool, but the way we do it now sounds a little more exciting.

Someone else must think so, too. On March 2, the first Cardboard Boat Regatta in Melbourne, Australia was held. They had 78 entries. Quantas Airlines is flying the winners to the Crystal Lake race. Oh, no! A world-wide event. Does that mean the Olympics are next? I hope not.

Judging was a big joke

The judging of the Mr. and Ms. SIU bodybuilding contest held at Davies Gym April 5 was a total joke.

The competitor who was awarded second place in the men's division hadn't even been dieting for the contest. Dieting is essential in preparing for a bodybuilding contest.

Everyone I talked to after the contest told me they couldn't believe how ridiculously the contest had been judged. One person, who has judged top level bodybuilding contests, told me that the judging was a total joke and that the judges were not qualified to be judging.

I suggest that at the next Mr. and Ms. SIU contest, the people organizing the show get their act together and get qualified judges who now what they're doing! — Kent Probst, senior, Advertising.

Letters

Liberal ideology slants news

In response to Professor Bolton's rebuttal to my letter that charged the DE with slanted journalism, I would like to point out a few things. Upon careful inspection it is easy to see Mr. Bolton's letter is illogical and does not address the facts I raised.

Mr. Bolton would have us believe that I wish to refuse or inhibit our freedom of speech. This is absurd. I merely called out for balance and competing opinions to be brought out in the editorial page. It is a basic tenet of classical liberalism that truth rises from the open forum of various and competing ideas and thoughts.

Secondly, I linked the DE to a mythical Daily Pravda not to label it as communist but to point out the comparisons that can be drawn between it and the true Pravda. Both distort facts in order to fit an anti-American or, more accurately, an anti-Reagan prism. No, I was not calling the DE socialist or communist. I was comparing it to newspapers of socialist or communist regimes. There is a difference and any other interpretation is a bizarre distortion of my position.

Third, Mr. Bolton says I have not read either Marx or Lenin. He also says I mistakenly equate socialism with communism. While I don't know what this has to do with the point of my letter, let me address those charges. Mr. Bolton, if you have indeed read Marx or Lenin then you realize that they considered socialism to be a requisite step in a society's plunge toward communism. They are not equal, then, but certainly related. And equality between the two was never asserted by me.

Then Mr. Bolton says I ignore the aspect of a newspaper as a provoker of thought. This is ridiculous. That is precisely what I advocate. Only by suppressing columnists Buckley, Will, Hart and others will this role be undermined.

Finally, Mr. Bolton fails to address the facts. The fact is that the DE often lets their liberal ideology distort the news. This is where I violently protest. Once again the DE displayed the nuclear protest on campus as the lead story. There is no doubt that the death march should have been reported. But to give an event of such small backing and participation such prominent coverage is distorted, misleading, slanted, and, yes, leftist.

What I want to do is identify the DE as a liberal paper. That's a big deal. So are the New York Times and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. I consider both to be important and influential newspapers. But they do not distort straight news. They restrict their opinions to the op-ed page. This is as it should be. The DE fails in this respect.

But a word of thanks is in order, Mr. Bolton. At least you care. If not for people who, even though they may violently disagree, really care about freedom of the press, we could forget about the significance that freedom carries. I think both of us agree on that point. — Jon Bauer, senior, Radio-TV and Political Science.

DE a 'no show' at Clarke concert

For those of you who could not attend the Stanley Clarke concert April 5, let me tell you about it. More than 1,000 people attended the show, and it was the first SPC Consorts production to clear a profit in years.

Aside from being a fiscal success, Clarke's solo performance left the audience spellbound and dancing in the aisles.

All of the show's success aside, one question sticks out in my mind — where was the DE? Seeing as how it took them until Monday to write about the Alabama show four days earlier, I figured I would give them until Wednesday to get their wits together and write about the Clarke show.

I soon found out that the DE never intended to cover the show and did not send a reporter to cover the event. I thought that in order to get coverage, one must beat a DE reporter over the head with a news event. Then I thought maybe the DE didn't know about the concert, but this couldn't be because they ran 11 ads for it.

I finally decided that I don't know what to think about the DE. It supposedly is a student newspaper, yet getting them to cover a student event before or after is like pulling teeth without anesthetic.

Like the DE reporter who was signing petitions at the USO while supposedly covering the event, it looks like the DE only reports on what interests them and not what is newsworthy.

Chalk up another one for the ace journalistic staff at the DE. — Brian Elmore, Consorts chairman, Student Programming Council. (Editor's note: USO reporter Brett Yates did read, on April 7, the form letter protesting the Gramm-Rudman Act that the USO is urging students to send to Congressmen, but did not send such a letter.)

'Best of the Worst' festival lacks planning

It's another Monday and I'm re-reading the "Best of the Worst Film Festival" feature story that appeared in the April 4 DE to see if I missed something.

I'll forgive them for twice mistitling the movie, which is really the "Horror of Party Beach," and I'm wondering who was responsible for the ad for the movie on Page 6 that listed two dates, April 4 and April 6.

Well, they've always been shown on Sunday, except the one time "Frankenstein Meets the Space Monster" was shown on a Friday at 5 p.m. I showed up then, like I did the other time, only to find nothing to indicate that the "Best of the Worst" film was going to be shown.

Scanning the DE article for more information that I might have missed, I find a key sentence: "The organizers of the series agree that the festival's only problem has been its time (slot)."

Well, I and anyone else who has anxiously looked forward to these films only to find them cancelled can heartily agree with that statement. And I'm sure we all agree the "Best of the Worst" is a great idea in need of a little more organization and planning. — Bob Paton, senior, Advertising.

FRANKFORT, Ind. (UPI) — A judge today dissolved the injunction that barred 14-year-old AIDS victim Ryan White from his classroom and the sandy-haired boy, leaping with joy, returned to school immediately.

The slightly built Ryan, who caught AIDS during treatment for hemophilia, walked into Western Middle School outside Kokomo with his mother. The parents of 27 other students promptly pulled their children out of classes.

Those who remained waved happily at Ryan as he walked down the hallway for only his second day of school since the term began.

After Ryan completed his normal half day at school, Principal Ron Colby walked him to his mother's waiting car, shielding him from reporters. After they were gone, he said "I don't see any reason why Ryan shouldn't be in school. I don't think he poses a threat to anyone."

At the courthouse after the ruling, Ryan smiled shyly for photographers and murmured, "I'm very happy."

Then his mother Jeanne, tears of relief running down her cheeks, bundled him into a car with his younger sister.

They showed up at the rural school complex, where red brick high school, middle and secondary school buildings are located on a campus beside a corn field, an hour and a quarter after the ruling.

More than a dozen reporters and cameramen waited outside for them. School officials refused to talk to reporters or let them inside.

Ryan carried 20 books to school today.

Parents of other children at the school, who wanted to keep Ryan out of class for fear he could pass AIDS to his classmates, said they would meet with their lawyer late today.

Interstate handgun sales banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Heeding the cries of police groups, the House voted Thursday to ban the interstate sale of handguns after one lawmaker urged his colleagues to "part company" with the National Rifle Association.

Voting 232-185, the House approved a measure that would continue a federal ban on interstate handgun sales. Lawmakers argued it was time to "come down on the side of law enforcement."

The measure was opposed by the powerful National Rifle Association, which Wednesday succeeded in defeating a package of amendments that included a ban on interstate handgun sales, sales of silencers and other restrictions on gun dealers.

But some members who helped defeat Wednesday's amendments voted in favor of the handgun ban, including Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., who said, "This is the time to part company with the NRA."

"Let's give law enforcement officers a chance," said Rep. Buddy Roemer, D-La.

Police have called a proposal to allow interstate handgun sales "cop killer" legislation and said it would help put guns into the wrong hands.

Voting 248-176, lawmakers rejected pleas Wednesday from supporters of strict gun control laws and laid the groundwork for another vote today on a bill that would ease federal gun laws for the first time in 17 years.

Arena yard sale to yield bargains in parking lot

The Civil Service Employees Council Education Assistance Fund's Second Annual Yard Sale will take place from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 26 at the Arena parking lot.

Booths spaces measuring about 10 feet by 20 feet can be rented for $20 by contacting Jeanne Eaton, 942-7145, or Patrick J. Harris, 549-3124, after 5 p.m. Rental proceeds help support the council's scholarship fund.

Lawmakers were expected to vote on a bill sponsored by Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., and backed by the powerful National Rifle Association that would allow interstate sales of rifles and shotguns, and ease record-keeping requirements for 250,000 gun dealers. A similar measure was approved by the Senate last summer.

The bill would be the first change in the 1968 Gun Control Act, passed in reaction to the assassinations of Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert Kennedy.

In a daylong session Wednesday, the House became a battleground in an often bitter debate over gun laws with the NRA lined up on one side of the issue and police groups on the other.

Opponents of easing the gun control law said the NRA had often "bullied and pressured" members. In 1984, the NRA contributed $1.4 million to congressional campaigns.

But supporters of changing the gun laws said legitimate hunters and sportsmen had suffered under the law and gun dealers had been prosecuted because of technical violations.

Rep. Tommy Robinson, D-Ark., a former sheriff, said restricting guns would not reduce the crime rate. He noted the District of Columbia had a tough gun law and one of the highest crime rates in the country.

But Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., said that if the NRA-backed version passed, "Many, many people will be killed as a result of our failure to come down on the side of law enforcement."

Design class scrambles for ideas to save eggs, make the grade

By Elizabeth Cochran
Staff Writer

Instructor Larry Busch has an interesting idea — he's trying to make his students think.

Busch gave his beginning design students an assignment to make a contraption that holds an egg and keeps it intact after an 8-foot drop. He says his students are not learning how to protect eggs, but how to experiment and take risks.

The course is called "Innovations for a Contemporary Society," GEC-205. Busch says the project is worthwhile because students "can't look it up at the library," thus teaching them to think on their own. Students were told to use newspaper for the body and small amounts of tape for joining material.

On Thursday the students lined up in Lawson Hall 171 and tossed their projects over a pole attached to a step ladder on the stage. Afterwards, they unwrapped their eggs and displayed the eggs' conditions. If the egg was intact, the class cheered. If it broke, it was termed a "splat."

Grading was based on the age-old proverb that says do the most with the least. Busch said the lightest contraptions that kept the egg whole received the highest grades.

The projects ranged from paper parachutes, to boxes, to three-dimensional stars, to huge wads of paper, to some indescribable shapes.

Some of them, mainly the parachutes, floated gracefully to the ground, landed silently and sparked cheers from the class. Others flew quickly over the pole and ended by spreading egg yokes, whites and shell fragments all over the plastic covered stage.

About 75 percent of the projects proved successful.

Police searching for two armed robbery suspects

Carbondale police are searching for two suspects in connection with an armed robbery late Wednesday night at Peoples Gas station, 980 E. Main St.

Reports say two men armed with shotguns entered the gas station at about 10:45 p.m. and demanded cash from the attendant, Jeffrey Hansen, 27, of Carbondale. After taking about $600 in cash, the two men locked Hansen in the restroom and fled, police say.

Police are looking for two black men in their 20's, slim build, about 6 feet tall.

2 students charged with auto burglary

By John Tindall
Staff Writer

SIU police arrested two 19-year-old SIU-C students on multiple charges involving auto burglary at 2:35 a.m. Thursday, reports say.

Craig E. Harris was arrested and charged with criminal damage to vehicles, criminal trespass, auto burglary and attempted auto burglary. Timothy J. Foss was arrested and charged with auto burglary and attempted auto burglary and criminal damage. Both suspects were taken to Jackson County Jail.

Police reports describe it as a classic "cops and robbers" case.

SIU police officer Steve Rishel was on plainclothes assignment on the footbridge entering lot 106 at Wall and Park streets just south of the towers, when he noticed two men walking through the parking lot checking doors and looking inside vehicles. He said when other people entered the lot, the two men acted as if they were looking for their car. Rishel radioed for support and the police sent seven cars to block possible escape routes.

Rishel watched as one of the suspects went into the woods and came out with a large branch that he broke in two, so that each of the men had a branch about three feet long. The men attempted to break the glass on several vehicles in the lot with their clubs but succeeded on only two of the cars.

Rische! watched as they removed two rear speakers from one car. When one of the men entered the back seat of another car, all of the units moved in on the men. According to reports, the men attempted to escape over the footbridge but Rishel was there and assisted in stopping them.

Hiker arrested after Soviet visit

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A missing Alaska hiker, the nephew of a newspaper columnist, was arrested by the Russians after walking across two-and-one-half miles of frozen sea into Soviet territory, officials said Thursday.

U.S. State Department officials are arranging for the release of John Weymouth, 33, only the second person known to have made his way across the border from Alaska to the Soviet Union since the Cold War began. The first was never heard from again.

Weymouth, dubbed "The Wanderer" for his apparently aimless travels around northwest Alaska, is to be returned to U.S. territory on April 16, two weeks after he set off across the ice from the Alaskan island of Little Diomedede to the Soviet island of Big Diomedede.

Soviet authorities arrested Weymouth, the nephew of San Francisco Chronicle columnist

Herb Caen, on Big Diomedede "for violating their borders," said Deborah Cavin, a State Department official in Washington.

Little Diomedede, where about 135 Inupiat Eskimos live, is the closest point in America to Soviet territory. Big Diomedede's Soviet Eskimo population reportedly was moved off the island and onto the mainland sometime in the early 1950s and the island became a military outpost.

Travel between the two islands in winter is possible by walking across the frozen ice. However, no travel, communication or any other legal link exists between Big and Little Diomedede.

"It's happened before," said state trooper spokesman Paul Edsborn. "Back in 1953 a guy named Stanley Seymour got in a boat and tried to row across and was never seen again."

Weymouth's whereabouts were unknown for a full week, but Wednesday the Soviets responded to U.S. State Department inquiries by confirming that Weymouth was under arrest on Big Diomedede, said Steve Hansen, an aide to Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska.

"We are working out the logistical arrangements for (Weymouth's) transfer to U.S. authorities on Little Diomedede," Cavin said. Alaskan Eskimo villagers on Diomedede, who tried to stop Weymouth from making the trek, predicted that Weymouth would never be seen again.

"He asked me if he could walk across," said a Diomedede villager who spoke to Weymouth when he arrived on a flight from Nome April 2. "I told him, 'Yeah, go ahead, but you won't have any freedom when you get there.' He never said nothing. He just started walking. That was his own free will."

Soviets decide to resume tests after U.S. nuclear test in Nevada

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The United States, ignoring congressional protests, exploded a nuclear warhead beneath the Nevada desert Thursday, triggering a Soviet response that it will resume testing after an eight-month moratorium.

As many as six anti-nuclear protesters in all-terrain vehicles were believed to be on the Nevada Test Site grounds when the warhead exploded with a force the Energy Department said was less than 20 kilotons.

Peter Dykstra of Greenpeace, one of several anti-nuclear groups whose members sneaked onto the Nevada Test Site all week, said there was no immediate word on the infiltrators.

The test, delayed for two days, was conducted at 6:08 a.m. PST in a reinforced tunnel complex 1,300 feet below the desert floor at Rainier Mesa, a Department of Energy spokeswoman said.

The postponements were blamed on various problems — weather, technical difficulties and anti-nuclear protesters on the classified government compound.

The Soviets promptly condemned the test as a "dangerous destabilizing step" that demonstrates Washington's "haughty disregard for the vital interests of the U.S. and all other nations, as if it had decided to ride for a fall on the brink of a nuclear precipice," the official news agency Tass said.

A commentator on the nightly television news, Vremya, said, "The further carrying out of nuclear tests by the United States will force the Soviet Union to renew its tests."

"We regret this, but we shall have to do it as we cannot waive our own security and the security of our allies," the commentator said.

LETTERS, from Page 3

Lighton said 101 letters are being sent to President Reagan; one to William Bennett, secretary of education; 267 to Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill.; 34 to Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill.; and 281 to Congressman Ken Gray.

USO Chief of Staff Georgina Avila said she was "thankful" for the letters received, but added that more students should have participated in the campaign because 80 percent of the students on campus are on financial aid, which is threatened by the budget law.

She said that although letters were sent to all registered student organizations urging them to help out with the campaign, the USO received no response from any of the groups.

Avila said she was surprised at the number of students who were unaware of the cuts to be implemented by the law. "It has been well publicized in the media," Avila said. "College students are either just uninformed or apathetic."

Tracey Barnings, USO communications director, said she was appreciative of the letters received but was hoping for at least 2,000 letters. She said, however, that she expects the letter-writing campaign to have an impact.

Tom Swan, president of the United States Student Association, said about 500 campuses across the country are engaged in letter-writing campaigns in response to expected federal cuts in education. USSA is national lobbying group for students.

Kathy Ozer, legislative director for USSA, said the group is lobbying to garner legislative support for an amendment to the 1987 Fiscal Budget Resolution calling for $1.2 billion to be added for education. The amendment was introduced by Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D.

Ozer said the amendment is expected to go before the Senate April 15 or 16.

David Mehl, Andrews' legislative liaison, said Thursday that 11 Democrats and four Republicans are co-sponsoring the amendment. Among the Democrats co-sponsoring the amendment are Simon and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

Ozer said USSA has been urging students to ask their senators to support the amendment. According to one of Dixon's aides, Dixon is still "evaluating the amendment."

we have as not being just a central staff" between the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses "but having a chancellor who spends lots of time cultivating relationships with the governor and the legislature."

Also, a person with a good mix "recognizes that we have two very different campuses and want to preserve the integrity of those two campuses."

Rowe said he referred to Labor Day, Sept. 1, as the selection date "loosely, but that's not really a joke." He said he hopes the decision comes sooner, but he also said that extending the search calendar to Sept. 1 may still not be enough time.

"Two, three or four people could be interviewed" in the extra time, but "I'd be delighted with just one."

The list of over 50 names under consideration prior to the January cut included at least two women and one black male.

Rowe said that one of the women "decided not to show up because she did not want to change her place of employment" and the other woman "probably did the same." The minority candidate was happy where he was, according to Rowe.

The chairman said he does not think it is likely that any more applications for the chancellorship will be examined. Any names added to the list of finalists would come from the established list of 15, he said.

Ronald Sted, director of the Presidential Search Consultation Service based in Washington D. C. and consultant for the chancellor search, directed the board and the other interviewers in January "not to take no for an answer."

Rowe said in an earlier interview that Sted has been aiding the search in a limited capacity since the board began concentrating on four candidates but that "he was still available."

In terms of salary, Rowe said the topic has come up "with everybody that I've met or talked to on the phone and that's about nine people."

John Meisel, chairman of a committee of constituency representatives from both campuses responsible for interviewing the four final candidates, said in an earlier interview that the current salary offer is $102,960.

Rowe said at least one of the four candidates indicated that he was making at least that much in his present job, but he did not say if the candidate eliminated himself from the search.

The list of four finalists was reduced by one in March when John Keiser, president of Boise State University and the only candidate whose name was revealed, withdrew from the search for personal reasons.

Anti-gay violence rising, task force says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harassment and violence against homosexuals was widespread across the nation in 1985, with Phoenix reporting the highest number of incidents, a national gay rights organization said Thursday.

The study of anti-gay violence and victimization by the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force showed 2,042 reported incidents in 1985.

The total "does not measure the full extent of anti-gay violence and victimization that occurred in 1985," the study said. "Indeed, they represent only a small fraction of the actual number of incidents that occurred nationwide."

"It would be almost impossible to come up with the total number of incidents against gay people," said Kevin Berrill, program director for the task force. "Gay people do not generally report their victimization because of fear of prejudice and revictimization."

The city with the highest number of reported anti-gay incidents was Phoenix with 326 reports, Berrill said. San Francisco was second with 253 and New York third with 241.

"There's a real redneck population in Phoenix," he said. "It's a conservative area and a conservative state. It's the state that gave us Barry Goldwater."

"New York and San Francisco have much greater gay populations but also greater tolerance," Berrill said.

"When you have an emerging gay and lesbian community in a city there is usually a backlash," he said. "This is not a new problem and as more and more gay communities become active there will be more incidents."

But the acceptance and tolerance of gays is rising faster than the incidents of violence, said Ron Najman, a spokesman for the organization in New York.

The largest number of incidents involved verbal harassment or threats of violence, the study said. Of the 2,042 incidents last year, 859 or 42 percent were threats or harassment.

There were 445 reports of physical assaults and 216 incidents of vandalism against homosexuals, the study said.

Eight die in helicopter collision

HINESVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — A team of Army investigators confirmed Thursday that two helicopters carrying eight soldiers collided in flight before they crashed, killing all aboard.

Six soldiers died in one helicopter and two victims were aboard a second craft that exploded and burned on impact around 9 p.m. EST Wednesday near the Fort Stewart range control building.

Lt. Col. Jim Arnold, Fort Stewart's chief spokesman, said the helicopters were on routine training missions and were not operating together when the collision occurred.

"We're not sure how they got into proximity with each other," he said.

Capt. Tom Nickerson said a five-man team of investigators, led by Maj. Rob Stiffler of the Army Aviation Safety Center in Fort Rucker, Ala., sorted through debris and confirmed that the helicopters collided.

But he said the investigators had not speculated on what caused the collision.

Arnold said six of the victims were crewmen aboard a CH47D Chinook cargo helicopter and the other two victims were crewmen aboard an AH1S Cobra helicopter gunship.

The Cobra burned when it hit ground near the intersection of two state roads in a woody area just outside Fort Stewart. Arnold said the Chinook, which crashed a quarter-mile away, was loaded with 500 gallons of fuel but did not burn.

He said the two helicopters took off Wednesday from Hunter Army Airfield near Savannah, about 40 miles east of Fort Stewart. The Cobra was operating on the western portion of Fort Stewart and was headed east to refuel when the accident occurred. The Chinook left Hunter a short time before the crash and was entering the eastern portion of Fort Stewart.

The two helicopters were "pretty much intact," and their wreckage was about 400 meters apart near the range control building, officials said.

Arnold said the pilots were equipped with night-vision goggles, which magnify moonlight and starlight, but it was not known whether they were using the devices.

7-Elevens to stop selling adult magazines

DALLAS (UPI) — The parent company of the 7-Eleven stores Thursday announced plans to stop selling adult magazines and fundamentalist religious leaders immediately ended a boycott of the establishments.

The Southland Corp. of Dallas noted a growing public concern over a possible connection between adult magazines and crime in its decision to discontinue sales of Playboy, Penthouse and Forum.

"My congratulations to the courageous leadership at Southland Corporation for putting principle above financial gain," the Rev. Jerry Falwell, president of the Liberty Federation, formerly the Moral Majority, said.

Bruce Binkow, a Los Angeles spokesman for Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, said Hefner was not immediately available for comment because Hefner's 60th birthday party held Wednesday night lasted "into the wee hours" Thursday.

In a statement Thursday, Southland officials announced the company will ban the sale of adult magazines at its 4,500 company-operated stores after the May issues and will recommend that approximately 3,600 franchise stores participate in the self-imposed prohibition.

Falwell, who called for a boycott of 7-Eleven stores during a Labor Day rally at the corporate headquarters in Dallas last year, said, "I hope that Christians in America will now show their appreciation by supporting 7-Eleven stores everywhere."

Southland president Jere W. Thompson said a survey of 7-Eleven customers along with evidence gathered by a federal commission on pornography led to the decision to ban the three magazines.

Alien farmworkers victims of exploitation, groups say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alien farmworkers are among the worst fed, least healthy and most exploited laborers in the nation, and some of them live "in a squalor unimaginable to most Americans," two public interest groups charged Thursday.

The American Civil Liberties Union and the American Friends Service Committee told a news conference that legal changes to help farmworkers over the past 25 years have been undermined by lax enforcement.

"In spite of tremendous potential on the one hand, we are seeing very little in actuality in the way of meaningful change in the lives of farmworkers in this country," said ACLU spokesman Wade Henderson.

The two groups issued a 153-page report that focused on alien farmworkers in the Okeechobee area of south-central Florida. The groups said its findings could be applied nationwide.

The study found that the majority of those who work the fields "live a marginal existence."

The report comes as Congress again is planning to consider immigration reform legislation aimed at controlling the influx of legal and illegal migrants into the United States.

The report said alien workers, whether undocumented or in the country as temporary agricultural guestworkers, are "particularly susceptible to exploitation."

Senators urge Reagan to follow SALT 2 treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than half the Senate urged President Reagan Thursday to stay within the limits of the SALT 2 treaty or risk a new arms race with the Soviet Union that could endanger U.S. and NATO security.

In a letter to Reagan, signed by 38 Democrats and 14 Republicans, the senators said that piercing the SALT 2 ceilings would allow "the Soviets to add thousands of new warheads to their arsenal."

"They now have a far greater capability than the United States to exceed the SALT limits, particularly in MIRVed (multiple warhead) ICBMs (intercontinental missiles) and missile-launching submarines, but have refrained from doing so under the existing 'no-undercut' framework," the letter said.

"Without the no-undercut policy, we will in all likelihood see a new accelerated arms race with negative consequences for U.S. and NATO security," the senators said.

"Among other harmful effects, a major expansion of Soviet ICBM warheads could pose important survivability problems for the entire triad and would multiply the challenge to your Strategic Defense Initiative."

Reagan must decide by May 20, when the newest U.S. Trident submarine goes to sea, whether to exceed the 1,200 ceiling on launchers for multiple warhead ICBMs and sea-launched ballistic missiles or stay within limits by dismantling two Poseidon subs or the necessary number of Minuteman ICBMs.

In a separate letter, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd also urged Reagan to continue "through 1986 U.S. policy refraining from actions undercutting existing strategic arms agreements, if the Soviets show similar restraints."

Ambassador to Argentina blasted for bad manners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Thursday the U.S. ambassador to Argentina rudely interrupted his meeting with Argentine President Raul Alfonsin to make a partisan and undiplomatic defense of the administration's policy on Nicaragua.

"There is no question our ambassador to the Argentine broke every rule" of diplomacy in the April 2 meeting in Buenos Aires, O'Neill said.

O'Neill, D-Mass., responded to a cable sent by Ambassador Frank Ortiz to the State Department in which he accused the speaker and his congressional delegation of pressing Alfonsin to oppose Reagan's support of the rebels fighting to overthrow the Marxist-led Sandinista government.

O'Neill and other congressmen said Alfonsin needed no prompting because he already opposed Reagan's policies.

Ortiz, however, broke into questions by O'Neill and comments by the president to defend the disputed policy, Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., said.

Health professionals urged to use gloves to avoid AIDS

ATLANTA (UPD) — Federal health officials cautioned health care workers engaged in surgical or dental procedures Thursday to use gloves, gowns, masks and eye coverings to prevent the spread of AIDS.

The national Centers for Disease Control said the risk of transmitting acquired immunity deficiency syndrome during invasive procedures is low and that there have been no reports of AIDS spread from health care worker to patient or from patient to health care worker during operative obstetric or dental invasive procedures.

"Nevertheless, special emphasis should be placed on the following precautions to prevent transmission of bloodborne agents between all patients and all HCWs who perform or assist in invasive procedures," the CDC said.

In another development, the CDC said immune globulins, a blood component used in the prevention and treatment of certain diseases such as hepatitis, were safe to use and "carry no discernible risk of transmitting the AIDS infection."

According to the CDC, the preparation of immune globulins requires a fractionation process and "the margin of safety based on the removal of infectivity by the fractionation process is extremely high."

The CDC's Dr. Martin Favero said the process was "iron clad" in eliminating the AIDS risk.

Union official assails 'industrial' stereotype

By Paula Ruckner
Staff Writer

Collective bargaining for university employees does not necessarily mean pickets and strikes, says Bob Nielsen.

What it does mean, he says, is that employees will get a piece of the action. Nielsen, assistant to the president of the American Federation of Teachers, spoke on the role of bargaining in industrial management and faculty governance Thursday. His presentation was sponsored by University Professionals of SIU, an AFT affiliate.

"The basic problem the union organizer faces is the charge that collective bargaining introduces an industrial model on campus," Nielsen said.

He said the word "industrial" implies that the methods of the industrial strikes of the 1930s will be brought in to replace collegiality. "And the sad part is, is that it works. It's a very effective campaign," Nielsen said.

Collective bargaining in higher education, however, is "radically different" in comparison to unionization in industrial or other professional sectors, Nielsen said.

"It covers professional employees who have a written constitutional relationship and an alignment of interests" with university management, he said. Often the two sides are seen as adversarial, he said. "It's us and them. They got, we want and we get it by taking it from them. That's not the case with higher education," Nielsen said.

People view the university as either a community or a corporation, Nielsen said. When it is "an important hybrid" of the two views. Higher education, when seen as corporation, is an enormous industry.

Nationally, there are 3,200 non-profit colleges or universities, which generate about $80 billion in cash outlays annually. Higher education institutions employ 1.9 million people, enroll 12 million full-time and 20 million part-time and extension students. For-profit schools number 2,500. In Washington, D.C., Nielsen said, higher education ranks second, only to government, as the Capitol's largest industry.

In a corporate conglomerate entity, he said, such as the State University of New York system, which has a budget of $1.1 billion, 362,000 students and 34 campuses, it "isn't surprising" that the authority is centralized.

"The move toward collective bargaining is a part of that," he said. Existing campus-based governance systems would suffer by trying to cope with such a monstrosity.

"It's not surprising that management started adopting management methods out of the industry. You essentially had industrial management coming to campus. And industrial management requires an industrial union."

But governance in higher education combines a written constitution with a contract, he said, something that is new and not seen in any other sector of the labor force, especially the public schools.

"Fifteen years ago they were saying that faculty collective bargaining would wipe out the faculty senates. The data out now indicate that bargaining enhances the faculty senates," he said, by giving them legal authority outside "the corporate entity" of the university. It's a powerful tool that enhances governance and "takes power away from the central bureaucracy."

Nielsen said such a constitutional agreement is democratic and "not a bit unlike" what the American colonists did. When colonists got a piece of the action and self-government was introduced, the colonies started flourishing. "There's no reason at all it won't work on a college campus," he said.

"When you give faculty and staff a piece of action, they feel more a part of the community," he said. "They work harder and you get a better university and more efficiency."

"Collective bargaining takes place in the context of a constitution and that implies citizenship," he continued. "Contracts keep it honest and that's what's new about it."

U of I students disrupt meeting, 35 arrested

URBANA (UPI) — More than 35 students protesting the University of Illinois' South African holdings invaded a meeting by school officials Thursday and were arrested, authorities said.

Between 35 and 50 protesters burst into a committee meeting, a prelude to a full Board of Trustees session, and began reading statements denouncing the school's $17 million investment in companies with South African ties.

The arrests followed "a peaceful" sit-in and rally Wednesday night in the student center. Students Tuesday built a shantytown on the grassy quadrangle in the middle of campus.

"This morning, a group of about 100 went up to the hallway" outside the meeting room, said school spokesman Terry Shepard. He said most of them remained in the hall and were not arrested.

The protesters, shackled in plastic handcuffs, were cheered by crowds of students waiting outside the Illini Union as police led them away.

Theater group to present tale of 'Rashomon'

The Department of Theater will present "Rashomon," a tale of mystery and murder in ancient Japan, at 8 p.m. April 24 through 26, and 2 p.m. April 27 in the McLeod Theater in the Communications Building.

Tickets are $5 for Thursday and Sunday performances and $6 for Friday and Saturday. Also available are student "rush" tickets. These can be purchased for $3 by any student with a valid I.D. 20 minutes prior to curtain time. Alumni and senior citizens receive 50 cents off regular ticket prices at the Communications Building main entrance.

The play, by Faye and Michael Kanin, is based on stories by Japanese avant-garde writer Ryunosuke Akutagawa, and centers on the quest for the elusive truth concerning the murder of a samurai warrior. The crime is re-enacted four times, each time according to a different witness to the vile deed.

Opposition head back in Pakistan to start campaign

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — Opposition leader Benazir Bhutto returned home from self-exile Thursday to a tumultuous welcome to launch a nationwide campaign against President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq, the man who deposed her father and had him hanged.

Hundreds of thousands of jubilant supporters, some shouting "Revolution, Revolution," greeted the 33-year-old daughter of the late Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto as she arrived in Lahore from Britain.

"This year is not a good year for dictators," the Oxford- and Harvard-trained Bhutto told the crowd, speaking in Urdu. "In the Philippines, a dictator had to fly in response to the people's demands. After seeing you here, I am convinced that one more dictator will take flight."

The crowd roared its approval.

Bhutto, wearing the Moslem woman's traditional black gown and the red, black and green scarf of her Pakistan People's Party, clapped and waved at the sea of cheering, drum-beating admirers who jammed the route of her 10-hour, 10-mile motorcade from the airport to a rally site.

Thousands of police were deployed to prevent violence. More than 30 American flags were burned by protesters angered by U.S. military and economic aid to Zia, the closest U.S. ally in the region.

"Zia (is a) dog, Zia dog," shouted Bhutto supporters who crammed sidewalks and climbed trees, lamp posts and roofs to shower Bhutto with flower petals.

The show of support marked the largest demonstration ever against Zia, who seized power in 1977 after overthrowing Prime Minister Bhutto. Bhutto was hanged two years later for his alleged role in a political assassination.

Near the rally site, a sprawling park next to the historic Lahore Fort, a mob carried a man made up to represent Zia on their shoulders, hurling abuse, tugging at a scarf around his neck and waving shoes — the traditional Pakistani insult.

"Tell everyone in the whole world that we'll never forget Zia is a murderer," shouted one supporter.

Cane-wielding party workers beat back supporters who surged toward Bhutto.

Bhutto was protected only by the party workers with canes. American officials recently asked Zia to ensure Bhutto's safety. But Bhutto and her supporters claimed the government might try to kill her.

"I was informed that, just as my father was martyred and my brother was martyred, I too would be martyred," Bhutto told her supporters. "But I rejected this threat and said that no matter if I die tomorrow, it is my wish that I complete the mission of my father."

among the highest paid administrators is impossible to say. Baily said, partly because turnover is slow in these ranks and fewer women and minorities apply for the positions.

He noted, however, that the Affirmative Action Office keeps a listing of women and minorities from across the nation. When positions are open within the University, the office recommends qualified minority or female candidates.

BANDY, WHO testified before the Illinois House Appropriations Committee March 5 about the University's affirmative action policies, says administrators have not made a "genuine commitment to affirmative action."

In a copy of her written testimony, she notes that according to reports filed by the University with the state Equal Employment Opportunity Commission the number of blacks among the University's 224 administrators has increased by only one since Fall 1975.

The reports also indicate that the number of black faculty members has decreased from 33 in Fall 1976 to 16 this semester although the number of faculty members decreased by only 8 percent. The reports also show that only 17 percent of tenured faculty members are women.

Bandy contends that these facts "demonstrate a lack of commitment to affirmative action by the SIU-C administration."

"OUR POLICIES and strategies, such as vita banks and Affirmative Action Councils, are futile without a genuine commitment to affirmative action; the effectiveness of policies and strategies can be measured only through significant gains in minority recruitment, hires, promotions and salaries," Bandy said in her testimony.

William Capie, executive director of the Personnel Service Office, said that among the reasons for the $49,454 gap between deans' salaries are the influences of the marketplace and the number of years the administrator has been at the University.

At $104,352, the dean of the School of Medicine, Richard Moy, makes $3,204 more than former chancellor Kenneth Shaw did before he left to become head of Wisconsin's university system.

MOY'S SALARY is nearly double what some other deans are paid and he has at least one other paying position.

According to a statement of economic interests he filed with the Office of the Secretary of State in 1985, Moy earned at least $1,200 the previous year as director of Health Care Service Corporation.

All state university administrators whose yearly salaries exceed or equal $35,000 are required to file economic interest statements annually.

President Albert Somit's $83,928 salary ranks him third on the administrative pay scale, followed by Vice Chancellor James Brown who is paid $75,888.

However, Brown's salary has been increased by the Board of Trustees during his stint as acting chancellor.

RENNARD STRICKLAND, dean of the School of Law, runs a close fifth to Brown with his $75,504 salary. However, Strickland will collect only $73,337 during this fiscal year, which started July 1 and will end June 30, because he didn't join the University system until Aug. 1.

Vice President for Academic Affairs John Guyon is the sixth highest paid administrator and the most generously rewarded of the University's four vice presidents. Guyon's salary of $74,808 places him $14,940, or almost 20 percent, ahead of his closest vice presidential colleague.

The $72,896 salary of Kenneth Templemeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, ranks seventh.

Guyon's former associate vice president, Barbara Hansen, who also served as dean of the Graduate School, was the eighth highest paid administrator at $70,440.

THE NEXT highest paid administrator is also a dean, Thomas Gutteridge of the College of Business and Administration. In addition to his work there, which nets him $68,492, Gutteridge's economic statement indicates that he earns at least $1,200 from a consulting service and that he was paid at least $5,000 for consulting services he provided to the division of management education at the University of Michigan and the city of Anchorage, Alaska.

Russell R. Dutcher, dean of the College of Science, tenth highest paid University administrator, also augments his $65,160 salary with outside sources of revenue.

His 1985 economic interest statement shows that he earned at least $1,200 in 1984 by providing "general geologic consulting" to the Amoco Production Co. of Denver.

THE OTHER top 20 administrators' salaries are:

Harry Miller, dean of the School of Technical Careers, $64,076; Thomas Beggs, dean of the College of Education, $63,888; Keith Sanders, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts, $60,600; Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, $59,868; Kenneth Peterson, dean of library affairs, $58,416; Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, $57,756; and John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, $57,701.

Charles Hindersman, vice president for financial affairs, follows Jackson on the pay scale at $56,985. However, Hindersman augmented his salary by at least $2,400 in 1984 by being director of Home Federal Savings & Loan and by being affiliated with Allen Knight Associates, Inc. Both agencies are in Carbondale.

Gilbert Kroening, dean of the School of Agriculture, is second to last on the pay scale of deans. His salary is $55,776. Seymour Bryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, is paid $54,898.

Men tracksters face toughest test of season

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's track and field team will face its toughest test of the season in the Dogwood Relays at Knoxville, Tenn., this weekend.

The non-scored meet will attract schools from such powerhouse conferences as the Southeastern, the Big Ten, and the Atlantic Coast.

"Last week the top school in the SEMOK Relays was Alabama," said Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell. "There will be 10 to 12 schools of that caliber this weekend."

Cornell hopes the tough competition will help Saluki track members Andrew Pettigrew, Mike Elliott, and Ron Harrer in their bid to qualify for nationals.

Pettigrew, a sophomore from Maidenhead, England, is entered in the 1500-meter run and the distance medley relay. He needs to shave off over three seconds from his season-best of 3:45.96 in the 1500 to reach the national qualifying standard of 3:42.54.

"Pettigrew made a go of qualifying last week but he was on his own early in the race and that took too much out of him," Cornell said. "If he's in the right race and in the right situation, he can qualify."

Elliott, a senior from Belvidere, is entered in the 800-meter run, the distance medley relay, and the 1600-meter relay. He needs to shave off over four seconds from his season-best of 1:52.73 in the 800 to reach the national qualifying standard of 1:48.11.

Harrer, a sophomore from Arthur, is entered in four events - the invitational discus and hammer, the shot put, and the javelin.

Last week, Harrer set a personal best of 184.9 in the discus. The national qualifying standard in the discus is 190.0.

"As good as Ron is, it will be difficult for him to finish first in the discus this weekend because he will be competing against several athletes from track clubs who can throw in the 200-foot range," Cornell said.

Cornell also thinks the Salukis can break the school record of 9:37.94 in the distance medley relay. The distance medley relay team will be composed of Pettigrew, Elliott, Bret Garrett, and Connor Mason.

"I really think our distance medley relay team can run with any of our competitors this weekend," Cornell said. Other Saluki entries include Brian Anderson in the invitational hammer; Shane Weber and Mike Michels in the pole vault; Larry Holloway in the 110-meter high hurdles and the 400-meter intermediate hurdles; and Felipe Martin in the triple jump and the 400 intermediate hurdles.

The Salukis' 1600-meter relay team will consist of Elliott, Garrett, Mason, and Derrick Strickland.

Cornell said that five Saluki athletes will miss the meet because of injuries: Bill Henning (sprained ankle and sore elbow); Gerard Horan (groin injury); Billy Darling (stress fracture); Brian Bradley and David Wallace (hamstring injuries).

With the exception of Darling, Cornell said the other four athletes are progressing and will hopefully return next week.

Following the Dogwood Relays, the Salukis will compete in the Arkansas Invitational on April 19.

Momentum evades men netters after initial sets, Racers win 5-4

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's tennis team was en route to its second win of the season at Murray State Wednesday, winning the first sets in eight of nine matches, before MSU bounced back to nip the Salukis, 5-4, in their closest match of the season.

Saluki No. 1 and 2 singles players, Per Wadmark and Chris Visconti, beat their opponents, 6-3, 7-5 and 6-4, and 6-3 and 7-5, respectively.

MSU's Bard Gundersen dropped the first set of his No. 4 singles match versus SIU-C's Lars Nilsson, 6-4, but played Nilsson point-for-point the next two sets to win the match, 4-6, 6-3 and 7-5.

Having experimented with new doubles teams in the previous match versus Memphis State, Saluki coach Dick LeFevre found winning combinations against MSU.

Rollie Oliquino, returning to the courts after being sidelined one and a half months, teamed up with Wadmark at No. 1 doubles to serve a defeat to John Brunner and John Schneider, 7-5 and 6-2.

"It's good to see Oliquino back there," LeFevre said. "MSU beat us last year at No. 1 doubles."

Juan Martinez and Fabiano Ramos, LeFevre's original No.

3 doubles team, scored a win for the Salukis against Jeff Cox and Nathan Routon, 6-4 and 6-4.

The match, tied at 4-4, would now be decided by the No. 2 doubles match: SIU-C's Visconti and Jairo Aldana vs. MSU's Gundersen and Alan Farmer.

Every point was played like the last point down to the final point of the tiebreaker in the third set. Visconti and Aldana won the first set 7-6 (10-8) and played equally strong in the second set but lost, 7-6 (9-7).

With 10 more matches left on SIU-C's schedule, LeFevre says he "expects to win at least eight of them."

Women netters face 3 GCAC foes

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

Facing three Gateway opponents this weekend, SIU-C women's tennis coach Judy Auld hopes the teams' good showing from two weekends ago will carry over and be a factor in the trio of weekend matches.

"I think we have a good chance at coming away with some wins this weekend," Auld said.

With Bradley scheduled for Friday followed by Western Illinois and Illinois State on Saturday, Auld said the match seedings in the upcoming GCAC tournament in Terre Haute, Ind., on April 24-26.

"Hopefully, we can avenge some fall losses," Auld said. "And of course we'd like to improve our record."

An overall record of 5-19 and a spring record of 3-11 may sound dismal to some, but Auld did see some good in the lopsided numbers.

"If you compare our schedule to that of other conference schools, we play a much tougher schedule," Auld said. "A lot of times we go into the conference tournament overlooked because of our record — hopefully our strong schedule will pay off then."

Auld stressed the youth of her team, which has no seniors since Mary Pat Kramer left the team. Kramer suffered a broken foot before Spring Break and has since left the team, citing a disagreement with coach Auld.

Women tracksters face field of 7 at Murray State for low key meet

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

After facing some stiff competition in the SEMOTION relays last weekend, the Saluki women's track team will travel to the Murray State Invitational in Murray, Ky., Saturday for what Coach Don DeNoon describes as a "low key" meet.

The Salukis will face seven teams in the scored meet, including Western Kentucky, Southeast Missouri State, Indiana State, Alabama at Birmingham, Marshall and Illinois State. It will be the second scored meet of the outdoor season.

DeNoon predicted a strong performance by the Salukis in all events. "We should have an awfully good meet with the competition we should see. I think we're going to have a good, solid performance all the way through."

DeNoon said he would be making some changes in the Saluki lineup this weekend that "may be contrary to scoring a lot of points." For instance, sprinter Denise Blackman will be moved from her position in the 100- and 200-meter dashes and will compete in the 800-meter dash. It will be the second time Blackman has participated in the event.

In addition, sophomore Kathy Raske will be moved from her usual position in the 100-meter hurdles and placed in the 400 hurdles. But, DeNoon said, "We might all be very surprised by Raske's 400 hurdle effort."

DeNoon is also looking for sophomore Felicia Veal and freshman Katrina Phillips to turn in strong performances in the 400 hurdles.

"She's really turned her workout efforts around," DeNoon said of Veal. She's been attacking the hurdles. If she attacks them and runs over them, she's going to continue to run all the way around the track fast."

DeNoon said of Phillips: "She still has a difficult time seeing herself as a Division 1 athlete. She comes from a very little school (in Du Quoin). The level of competition that they (Du Quoin) compete at all the time is very low, and she comes into a college where the competition is as high as can be."

"She still has to figure out in her own mind at what level she can compete."

DeNoon said he doubted there would be any breakthrough this weekend in the 1600-meter relay. The Salukis have been trying for weeks to break the three minute, 40 second barrier in the event. DeNoon made his prediction on the basis of the competition the Salukis will face in the event. He said the lack of any real competition would seriously impair the team's incentive.

Women golfers to swing at Illinois' Classic

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The Saluki women golfers will travel this weekend to the Illini Spring Classic, a 54-hole event scheduled April 12 and 13 on the University of Illinois Orange Course at Champaign.

In previous years, teams battled the lengthy Blue Course. Because the Salukis boast accuracy — not distance — as a strength, they never played well in the event. By comparison, the par-72 Orange Course suits the Salukis better because it rewards accurate, controlled shots.

Saluki Coach Sonya Stalberger described the Orange Course as not long, but covered with numerous trees and hazards, with rolling slopes which create difficult stances and lies.

"Overall, it's short and tight with extremely bunkered and elevated greens," Stalberger said. "We might get different results than past years as far as who will win and play well. The Orange course is definitely more suited to our style of play."

Power teams, such as defending champion Michigan State, dominated past fields. Michigan State, along with Ohio State and the Illini host, play favorites among the 14-team field this year.

"The team championship is up for grabs, though," Stalberger said. "I don't foresee anybody running away, based on full results."

Stalberger expects SIU to dogfight with four other teams for fourth place, and she said that anything higher than a fourth-place finish would be outstanding.

Other teams include Northern Illinois and Purdue as well as Gateway Conference defending champion Illinois State and runner-up Northern Iowa.

"This will give us a good

Field hockey field renamed for Jean Stehr

by University News Service

SIU-C has named its field hockey playing field in honor of the late Jean Stehr, who coached the Saluki women's field hockey team for 18 years.

Approval of the designation came Thursday from the Board of Trustees. The field is located north of the Wham Building on the SIU-C campus.

Stehr, who taught at SIU-C for more than 35 years, died July 20, 1980, at the age of 61.

She joined the then-SIU-C Department of Physical Education for Women in 1944 after receiving her master's degree from Texas Woman's University.

At the time of her death she was an associate professor in curriculum, instruction and media and was an adviser for the College of Education.

Stehr coached Saluki field hockey from 1950-68, after serving as assistant coach to Dorothy Davies for six years. She also began SIU-C's intercollegiate badminton program and officiated and judged in basketball, volleyball, swimming, field hockey and gymnastics competitions.

She founded and directed SIU-C's dance program and in 1980 received the National Dance Association's Plaudit Award for "dedication and inspiring teaching of dance."

comparison to the other Gateway teams," Stalberger said.

The Salukis will play under a slight disadvantage because the tournament format enters just five golfers and counts four scores, rather than the six-and-four format Stalberger prefers.

But the Salukis come off a dual meet victory and team spirit runs high. Stalberger said the Salukis are gaining on their confidence level and she feels secure with the top five traveling squad qualifiers.

Jill Bertram, Tina

Kozlowski, Kelly Mason, Vicki Higginson and Pat Putman qualified in that order for the official squad, while Peggy Szwedworth will play as an individual to get more experience.

"I'm really excited because they're playing well — they're hungry and eager to play, which lends to better play," Stalberger said. "I'm really optimistic and I think they're more ready than ever as they head into the heart of the tournament schedule."

All teams will play 36 holes Saturday and 18 Sunday.

Jones homers to record in Saluki win

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

It looked so easy. Robert Jones smoothly stroked his bat down on a breaking pitch, booming it with a graceful arc over the left field wall for his 28th career home run, breaking the Saluki record once held by Chuck Curry and pacing the Salukis to an 11-3 win over the SIU-E Cougars Thursday at Abe Martin Field.

"It wasn't hit as well as it could've been, but I knew it was out of the park," Jones said, grinning.

The two-run shot came in the fifth inning after Steve Finley trotted to first base on a walk and advanced to second on a wild pitch. The victim of the blast was Cougar southpaw Mark Bozich, who took the loss.

"Today I saw a leftie out there and I thought, 'I'm gonna get this over with,'" a relieved Jones said. "Now I can relax and work on the other half of the season."

Jones also tied the Saluki career record for total bases, held by John Hoscheidt, and drove in another run with a groundout in the third.

The game wasn't without other heroes, however. Jay Burch drove in three of his four runs with one swing when he sent a Bozich fastball over the fence for a three-run homer with two out in the first, giving the Salukis a permanent lead.

"I was looking for some off-

Saluki senior power hitter Robert Jones smashed a two-run shot out of Abe Martin field Thursday afternoon against SIU-E for his 28th career homer and Chuck Curry's all-time Saluki home-run record.

speed pitches because he was throwing them to some of the other guys," Burch said. "So I was really surprised when he threw the fastball."

Steve Finley stole two bases and scored three runs. Joe Hall had three RBI on three hits.

The Salukis were offensively efficient, scoring 11 runs on 12 hits. Part of the reason was that the Dogs unmercifully tested catcher Daren DePew's arm, as they stole eight bases.

"I think everybody was a lot more relaxed than they have been," Jones said.

"Our offense was a little better today," coach "Itchy" Jones said. "I still don't think we're aggressive at the plate as we could possibly be."

"I still think this is a good ball club. Something's gonna strike us one of these days, and we'll be an outstanding club and win many games."

As Coach Jones indicated earlier, he used four pitchers — Robb Osborne, George Goich, Shane Gordon and Jay Hammond — during the game. Starter Osborne allowed one run on four hits in three innings to pick up the win, his second of the year.

"We wanted Osborne to pitch, but we also didn't want him to throw 100 pitches. He just needed to get some work," Jones explained.

Cougar outfielder Mike Bertagnoli gave the remaining spectators a scare in the eighth inning when he ran full speed into the short fence that outlines the playing field and violently flipped, attempting to catch a long foul ball.

He was just shaken up, however, and was able to finish the game.

The baseball Salukis will look to knock Bradley off its Missouri Valley Conference first-place pedestal when they meet the Braves Saturday and Sunday for noon doubleheaders at Abe Martin Field.

Though the Braves are last in the MVC in batting average (.318), earned run average (5.53) and fielding average (.934), they found themselves on the top of the heap early after winning three out of four games over 17th-ranked Wichita State last weekend.

Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones' goal will be to burst Bradley's bubble on Saturday when he sends out Todd Neibel (4-3, 5.35 earned run average) and David Henley (1-1, 3.38 ERA). On the mound Sunday will be Dale Kisten (4-0, 2.59 ERA) and Lee Meyer (2-2, 5.31 ERA).

The Braves' pitching staff is led by Brian Dour (3-1, 4.11 ERA, one save), Mark Gilles (3-3, 5.21 ERA) and Paul DeJaynes (4-2, 7.08 ERA).

Bradley, however, will be missing starter Curt Hasler, who is out with a strained muscle in his throwing arm.

The brunt of the Braves' offense is made up of Brad Tilly (.393, nine homers, 27 RBI), Tim Campbell (.389, four home runs, 34 RBI) and Daren Epley (.370, one homer, 22 RBI).

Bradley will sorely miss outfielder Troy Guidotti, who is benched with torn ligaments in his thumb. He was hitting .366 before the injury.

Brewers clean Chisox with 3-run homer in 9th

CHICAGO (UPI) — Billy Joe Robidoux singled home the tying run and Ernest Riles followed with a three-run homer in the ninth inning Thursday, rallying the Milwaukee Brewers to an 8-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The victory enabled the Brewers to complete a sweep of the White Sox in their season-opening three-game series. The Brewers, who went only 71-90 a year ago, are off to their best start in eight years.

With Chicago leading 5-4, Mike Felder singled to right off Bob James, 0-1. Robin Yount followed with his third hit, a single to center, and one out later, Robidoux singled home Felder. Riles, who had four hits, then hit his second homer of the season, a line shot to left field, to make a winner of reliever Danny Darwin, 1-0.

After Riles' homered, James hit Rob Deer with a pitch, bringing both dugouts and bullpens to the infield. No punches were thrown.

The White Sox scored five runs in the fourth inning to take a 5-1 lead.

Wayne Tolleson led off the inning by drawing a walk off rookie Juan Nieves and one out later Carlton Fisk singled to left. Ron Kittle reached base on an infield single to load the bases and, after Greg Walker struck out, Tim Hulett walked on a 3-2 pitch to force home Tolleson with the tying run.

Ozzie Guillen then beat out a slow roller to short for a single, scoring Fisk. On the play, first baseman Robidoux misplayed shortstop Riles' throw, allowing Kittle to score and the other runners to advance. Joel Skinner then followed with a two-run single, his first hit of the year.

Ownby sparks Cardinals to victory over Cubs

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rick Ownby recorded his first major-league victory since 1983 and Ozzie Smith drove in two runs Thursday to spark the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Ownby, who did not pitch in the majors last year, pitched into the seventh inning, allowing four hits. He walked four and struck out two. Todd Worrell, who walked four, pitched the final three innings for the save. Dennis Eckersley took the loss, allowing three runs before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

The Cardinals took a 3-1 lead with a two-run fourth. Jack Clark led off with a single and Andy Van Slyke drew a walk. Terry Pendleton sacrificed and Mike Heath was hit with a pitch, loading the bases. Smith then stroked a two-run single to center.

Chicago closed to 3-2 in the seventh. Ownby walked Leon Durham and gave up a single to Jody Davis. Worrell relieved and made a poor pickoff throw to second, moving Durham to third. He walked Brian Dayett to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Jerry Mumphrey lofted a sacrifice fly for the lone run as Worrell escaped.

St. Louis added a run in the seventh when Vince Coleman walked, advanced on a balk and scored on an error by shortstop Shawn Dunston.

The Cubs tied the score 1-1 in the third on singles by Manny Trillo and Ryne Sandberg and a sacrifice fly by Keith Moreland.

St. Louis took a 1-0 lead in the first. Coleman walked and advanced to third on two groundouts. He scored on a single by Van Slyke.

Ownby prepared for the game by fishing.

"We went out and did some bass fishing but beating the Cubs was the biggest catch of the year," Ownby said.

"You certainly don't want to get off to a bad start," Ownby said. "I didn't have my best stuff but we still won and that's the name of the game. I know what I can do when I have my best stuff."

"I felt some nervous tension out there but I loosened up after two innings," Ownby said.

St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog said Ownby threw well.

"He wasn't missing by much," Herzog said. "I was hoping he'd get to the seventh and he did."

"Any time you hold the Cardinals to four hits in St. Louis, you got to be doing something right," Chicago manager Jim Frey said. "The first guy (Ownby) was struggling with his control."

"We had opportunities but didn't get any hits."

"I hit Heath with two strikes," Eckersley said. "That's how I screwed up. You got to let the guy hit the ball."
