Parkfest: RAs take it in the face

Tom Steinhagen poked his head from behind the large wooden board that framed his face as a target and wiped the whipped cream from his eyes. Steinhagen, the fourteenth floor resident assistant in Neely Hall, calmly reached up to pat his red hair and sample one of the dollops of whipped cream resting there.

"Whipped cream is not too bad," he said licking his fingers.

Steinhagen was one of the resident hall assistants who allowed their faces to become the target for sponges covered in whipped cream. The sponges were eagerly thrown by students on Saturday at Parkfest '87, the yearly celebration of spring in University Park.

The residents of University

Park enjoyed such events as dancing and trivia contests, egg and balloon tosses and game booths where prizes could be won.

Many of the students explored the festivities nibbling on pink cotton candy while keeping a watchful eye on the dark clouds that threatened to bring rain.

However, the blustery weather did not seem to deter students from enjoying the events. Many just buttoned up their coats a little tighter and enjoyed the music that was provided by Music in Motion Traveling D.J. Show. Bryant G. Levant, freshman in aviation flight and Neely Hall resident, was the winner of one of the dance contests.

Tavern faces 'full-blown' city hearing

By JoDe Rimar

Gatsby's will face a possible liquor license suspension, revocation or fine if found guilty tonight when its representatives go in front of the liquor control commission to defend an underage drinking violation from March 6, 1987.

The hearing is expected to be controversial, according to Mayor Helen Westberg, who serves as the commission's chair.

"These hearings tend to get lengthy," Westberg said and added that the Gatsby's violation is not "just a minor infraction," because of the amount of violations Gatsby's has had in the past.

Gatsby's, 608 S. Illinois Ave., has been reprimanded twice for serving underage drinkers. From August 1986 to January 1987 the bar had 22 underage drinking violations. The city has imposed an extended pitcher ban, which prevents the bar from serving beer in anything larger than 12 ounce cups until June.

The American Tap and Hangar 9 were also penalized in January for having 12 underage violations each within six months.

The commission will hear evidence defending Gatsby's bartender Sue Eileen Thomas, who is accused of selling draft beer to Jeff Wingo, an underage drinker.

Gatsby's pleaded innocent to the charge at the March 30, 1987 commission hearing.

After the commission hears evidence from representatives of both Gatsby's and the city's prosecutor, if found guilty the commission will impose a penalty which can take the form of a fine, suspension or revocation of the bar's liquor license.

Reagan aides may have met with Iran in 1980

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One month before Ronald Reagan defeated President Carter in the 1980 election, two Reagan campaign aides met secretly with a purported representative of Iranian government who offered to release to Reagan the 52 Americans being held in Tehran, Knight-Ridder Newspapers reported Sunday. The report said the two aides, Richard Allen and Laurence Silberman, both said they considered the offer absurd and rejected it.

Knight-Ridder said Allen and Silberman, who were top foreign policy advisers in Reagan's campaign, met with the supposed Iranian envoy at the request of then-Senate aide Robert McFarlane.

Allen and Silberman said they could not recall the identity or nationality of the representative and Mc-Farlane, in written responses to written questions, said he had "no idea" who the man was, Knight-Ridder reported.

McFarlane at the time served as a staff member on the Senate Armed Services Committee, whose chairman, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, headed the special panel appointed by Reagan to investigate the Iran arms-Contraband scandal.

Allen became Reagan's first national security adviser, a post later held by McFarlane, and Reagan named Silberman to be a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Allen and Silberman said in telephone interviews, Knight-Ridder reported, that the man they met in October 1980 made an offer intended to ensure Carter's defeat in November.

Knight-Ridder said McFarlane, in a written response, said, "An individual claiming to be Iranian approached me and was referred to the Reagan campaign staff. He was judged to be a fraud and dismissed."

Allen said any allegation that a deal was struck to coordinate the timing of the release of the hostages and the Reagan campaign is "absolute baloney."

Guyon publicly said he would pursue the presidency last month, after the presidential search committee announced it had a pool of 122 candidates. In an interview in January, Guyon said it was too early to determine whether he would be a candidate, but that

Pope lauds bishops' stand on Argentine human rights

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Pope John Paul II culminated his two-week visit to South America with a Palm Sunday mass for a half-million worshippers and praised Argentina's bishops for their controversial stand on human rights. Earlier, during a bishops assembly, the pope supported Argentina's mostly conservative bishops, who have been criticized for keeping too low a profile on human rights issues during a period of military rule in the 1970s.

Liberals lose ground in Japan elections

TOKYO (UPI) — Opposition parties scored impressive gains on the governing Liberal Democrats Sunday in Nationwide local elections that Japanese used to reouke Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone for proposing an unpopular sales tax. The losses by the Liberal Democratic Party in its first national test of strength in nine months could combine with economic woes at home and unprecedented trade trouble abroad to end Nakasone's political career.

Cosmonauts save satellite during spacewalk

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet satellite linked up with the orbiting Mir space station early Sunday after two spacewalking cosmonauts removed an "extraneous object" jamming the docking system and averted a major setback for the Soviet space program. Cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Alexander Laveikin donned spacesuits and left their orbiting station at 2:41 p.m. Saturday to inspect the 21-ton Quantum astronomy satellite, which was in danger of becoming a costly piece of space junk after Thursday's failed docking, the second attempt since Sunday.

Christians pay tribute on Palm Sunday

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Thousands of Christians waving palm leaves and chanting "Hosanna" marked Palm Sunday with a reenactment of Jesus Christ's fateful entry into Jerusalem. Christians from around the world joined the solemn yet colorful procession that retraces the route they believe Jesus took into the holy city. Palm Sunday marks the beginning of Easter Week, the most sacred time of the year in Christianity.

Reagan questions morality of Marines

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Revelations of Marines trading secrets for sex may indicate that American youth are not being taught morality and the difference between right and wrong, President Reagan said in an interview published Sunday. Reagan said he was shocked by allegations that four Marines were involved in exchanging U.S. secrets to Soviet agents for sexual favors, in violation of orders not to fraternize with Soviet women.

Ambassador denies fault in Soviet bugging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur Hartman, former U.S. Ambassador to Moscow, denied Sunday he was culpable in the Soviet bugging of the U.S. embassy and said he was "very ruthless" in enforcing policy on fraternization with Soviet citizens. Hartman said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" program that he does not consider himself guilty of criminal neglect stemming from the reported Soviet bugging of the embassy and allegations that Soviet women have seduced American Marines to gain access to the embassy complex.

Cancer drug seen as AIDS treatment

ATLANTA (UPI) — The experimental cancer drug interleukin-2 is being considered for a study to determine its possible effectiveness against AIDS if used in combination with AZT, a drug company official said. "AZT seems to slow down the development of the (AIDS) virus," said Robert A. Fildes, president of the Cetus Corp. "It's been argued that what you also need is to treat the patient with an immune agent (interleukin-2), taken in combination with AZT. This study is being planned between Cetus and the National Cancer Institute," Fildes said Thursday.

NASA rejects independent shuttle study

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — After extensive analysis, NASA engineers have rejected an outside study of the Challenger disaster that claimed the shuttle's faulty booster began breaking up well before the ship's destruction. The space agency also flatly rejected independent engineer Ali AbuTaha's suspicion that Challenger's pilots knew of booster problems before the instant of the explosion on Jan. 28, 1986, 73 seconds after blastoff.

Circulation additions decreasing at Morris

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

While the Morris Library additions to circulation are decreasing, the School of Medicine Library in Springfield and the School of Law Library are expanding overall.

The Library Statistics Report for 1984-1985 and 1985-1986 reported increases in the Law and Medicine Libraries in the areas of volumes, microform units, and current serials added.

Morris Library reported increases in the volumes collected and a slight increase in the number of serials added. Morris Library showed losses in the number of microform units added from 181,096 to 106,155 and the number of student workers from 89 to 85.

These figures may be misleading, Kenneth Peterson, dean of Library Affairs said, because they reflect only the numbers cataloged for the year, not the number collected. There may have been similar increases, but not as many were cataloged. The library may also emphasize expanding its volumes rather than its microform units, Peterson said.

A substantial decrease in operating expenses and equipment was reported from 1984-1985 to 1985-1986. The total expenses for all libraries dropped from $844,783 to $693,515. Peterson said this could be a result of less emphasis on the addition of new equipment and the fact that less money is available.

The loss of microform units could be a result of damaged microform being removed, Peterson said.

The loss of four student workers in the year may be a result of higher wages for staff, Peterson said.

Blood drive 'successful' despite missing unit goal

The spring blood drive at SIU-C ended a total collection of 2,440 pints, 860 pints short of its goal.

"We feel the drive was very successful even though we did not reach our goal of 3,300," Vivian Ugent said Sunday.

Ugent is the Southern Illinois blood drive coordinator for the Red Cross.

Periodic visits from Southern Illinoisans who have needed blood and the publicity about their visits, she said, helped to reinforce the human aspects of donating.

First-time donors accounted for 297 pints collected during the week, which Ugent said is evidence that the awareness campaign worked. However, the drive missed-out on 295 pints of blood from potential donors who were turned away because of low iron or hemoglobin levels.

The next blood drive is scheduled for June 24 and 25.

Anna native wills minerals, diary to SIU-C

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

A large collection of high quality mineral samples has been donated by the late Maxwell McCormick Sr.

The donation to SIU-C was a provision in McCormick's will. McCormick, a native of Anna, worked as a mining engineer for 43 years with Ingersoll-Rand. He died in June 1986.

The McCormick Collection, partially displayed on the second floor of Parkinson, includes about 250 mineral samples from 200 mines in 15 countries including South America, Africa, Europe and Australia, Renald Guillemette, professor in geology said.

The importance of the McCormick Collection is the quality of the samples. These samples are well crystallized, showing the natural shape of the crystals, Guillemette said.

Throughout his career, McCormick collected mineral samples from mines that are now either closed or not producing the quality material he collected.

The collection includes samples of gold and emeralds.

With the collection, McCormick donated a diary of his collection and a display case.

Simon has mixed chances in '88

AFTER MONTHS OF hedging, Sen. Paul Simon last week finally made formal his intention to run for president in 1988. Simon said he would not be running unless he was certain he was going to win. Leaving the rhetoric aside, however, Simon's bid is undoubtedly a long shot.

Although a Harris Poll conducted in February ranked Simon fourth among Democratic presidential contenders favored by Democrats, the Makanda native is not well-known outside Illinois and Washington. Though he is a member of the Senate, a veritable breeding ground of future presidents, Simon is a newcomer to the chamber and does not hold any important committee positions.

Still, he has an impressive record from his tenure in the House of the Representatives and has overcome his freshman status in the Senate by tackling such controversial issues as balancing the federal budget and welfare reform.

Some have speculated that a presidential bid could jeopardize Simon's hold on his Senate seat. A national campaign surely will distract Simon from the business at hand in the Senate. This may leave him open to the same charges of being too removed from Illinois politics that Simon himself used in his successful bid to unseat Republican Senator Charles Percy in 1984.

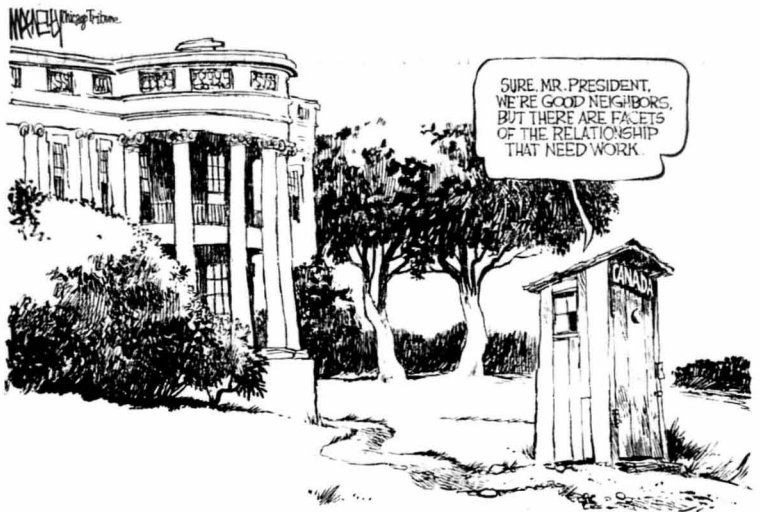

ANOTHER THING THAT may work against Simon is his traditional Democratic ideology. In his announcement Thursday, Simon invoked the names of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Lyndon Johnson. Simon's proposals for solving the problems of unemployment and poverty hark back to the public works projects of the New Deal.

If the 1984 election is any indication of the mood of the electorate, it is doubtful a majority of voters could be attracted by such policies. The Democratic Party may need a new direction, something that Simon seems unable to offer.

Lately, however, ideology seems to have taken a back seat to image in the political arena. And one thing that Simon has a lot of is character. Simon has a sort of down-home folksiness that undoubtedly will appeal to many voters. Unlike most of his colleagues, he is not a lawyer. Nor does he have a college degree. Before his political career began, Simon earned a reputation as a crusading publisher, taking on gamblers and corrupt politicians. His meek, buttoned-down, bowtied look is sure to set the imaginations of professional image makers going.

IN SHORT, WHILE Simon is a dark horse, he has a lot of factors working in his favor. Even if his presidential bid fails in 1988, he will be in a strong position to take another shot at the office in 1992.

Simon is basing his campaign on a strong showing in the Iowa caucuses in February. If past history is any indication, a success in Iowa — or for that matter in any of the early primaries and caucuses — could put Simon in the position of a Democratic front runner. After all, who ever heard of Gary Hart until he beat Walter Mondale in New Hampshire?

Letters

Election turnout called disgraceful

I have been an election judge in a student precinct through three elections. The turnout in the elections is abysmal and disgraceful. In the city primary election in February, a total of 18 people, out of 456 registered, turned out. In the April 7 city election only 13 or six-tenths of one percent came to vote.

The Daily Egyptian contributed to the lack of concern. An article on the front page on the Chicago election did not mention the vote in Carbondale. The editorial page was on PCBs and war toys — not a word on why it is important to vote. The DE did not deign to mention the local government and the important referendum on changing the city's form of government.

The city election directly affects students where they can live, recreate, drink and many other aspects of their lives in Carbondale. They gripe about the conditions but don't do the one thing that can address their problems — VOTE, and ask candidates hard questions on what they will do if elected.

I really despair for the future of our country. Reagan's "landslide" vote in 1984 was by 32 percent of the voting age population of the U.S. All of our lives are affected by the uninterested, uncaring majority. Those who are becoming educated, who presumably will be the rulers of government and industry, don't care even enough to vote. What price democracy? — Lillian Adams, Election Judge.

Foreign students feel at ease with own kind

I am writing in response to Ernest Brown's letter from April 6. Mr. Brown, we international students like to use our native language because we are more comfortable with it. However, we are not afraid to express our feelings in English if we have to. We do not hide behind our native language in order to make others feel left out.

I am not sure what you meant by "the white thing being the right thing." If you are referring to the darker skin tone that some foreign students have, let me tell you, I am Palestinian and my skin color is no darker than that of my American classmates. Legally, I am listed as a Caucasian, which I believe in the English language means "White".

You seem to think foreign students isolate themselves from the rest of SIU-C because they are escaping bigotry, racism, etc. We socialize with each other for the same reason Americans socialize with each other. We "isolate" ourselves because we share the same cultural background and can communicate with each other easier.

I have many American friends — black and white — and I enjoy their company. At the same time, I enjoy the company of my fellow Palestinians, who share the same likes, dislikes and hardships that I experience while I am studying here. — Maher Abou-Jabal, graduate, electrical engineering.

Brown too sensitive

We are foreign students from Malaysia, Taiwan, Korea, Singapore, Indonesia, France and Sudan, and we think that Mr. Brown (Letters, 4-6) is being overly sensitive and too suspicious. His accusation that we "isolate" ourselves from the rest of the student body is untrue and unjust — one of the reasons we are here is to learn American culture.

Just because Mr. Brown hears some of us speak languages that he cannot understand, it does not mean that we are talking about him or anything top-secret. If Mr. Brown visited one of our countries, would he stop speaking English for his entire visit? We feel that Mr. Brown is creating a problem where there is none.

We realize that not all Americans feel as Mr. Brown does. We invite any interested Americans to learn more about our cultures by attending events sponsored by our various nationality groups at SIU-C. — Sherry Hsieh, junior, design, and eleven others.

A 'civil' suggestion

An open letter to the Merit Board: I have a suggestion. Fire all civil service employees with more than one year of service. Replace those employees with non-campus people.

Let the Merit Board train the new employees. I seriously doubt if the experienced employees will stick around to train them. — Anna K. Lawrence, secretary stenographer, IV, Department of English.

Simon may have advantage in '88 presidential race

By Charles J. Abbott
UPI Midwest Correspondent

News Analysis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, who firmly declared, "I am not a neo-anything. I am a Democrat," is entering the race for president armed with the strength of his ideas but few other implements.

He may well feel he has the advantage. In his first news conference after announcing he will enter the race May 18, Simon said no other candidate for the Democratic nomination has "the gut commitment" he believes is necessary for the party's longtime stands on jobs, social programs, civil rights and arms control.

"I BELIEVE I AM in the heart and soul of the Democratic Party," he said, when criticizing the idea that the party has to move to the right to win elections. "There is one Republican Party in this country. I think that's enough."

Like his gibe about neo-anthings, that line tells listeners Simon is an old-line Democrat. On Friday, he proudly compared himself to plain-talking Harry Truman.

AT THE MOMENT, Simon has almost nothing in the way of a campaign organization — only two or three people have titles and his presidential committee does not formally exist. Organizational papers probably will be filed this week. He has almost no money. It will take $7.5 million just "to go through New Hampshire," he estimates.

By contrast, most aspirants delay an announcement until they hire consultants and pollsters, set up a fund-raising apparatus and have a campaign staff.

Simon turned aside questions of whether he is the most liberal candidate in the race or if, with New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers deciding not to run, he was nominating himself to be "the liberal candidate."

THOSE QUESTIONS may be a trifle unfair — Simon is not easy to categorize — but his candidacy will bring attention to his ideas and to long-time party goals. It may force other candidates to adopt them or it may give Simon a clear field for vote-hunting.

Either result certainly would please Democrats, and there are a fair number of them, who believe in an activist government. As Simon said Friday, "I do not have an obsession to be president. I do have an obsession we can do better in this country than we are."

AFTER WRITING 11 books and spending three decades in government, Simon has the respect of his colleagues and is recognized as a thoughtful, conscientious worker — a stature many candidates may envy.

"He's a liberal who works well with moderates and conservatives," Rep. Dale Kildee, D-Mich., said the day before Simon announced his decision.

THERE ARE SOME shortcomings. Simon has almost no record on military or foreign affairs. He specialized in the House on domestic issues.

Some observers question if Simon, with bow tie and horn-rimmed glasses, fits into the TV age, forgetting he used television to his advantage in defeating three-term Republican Sen. Charles Percy. Simon reorganized his campaign in the summer of 1984 to put more emphasis on television.

contact, at any time, with any Iranians on such deals," Allen is quoted as saying. "All we felt was a sense of unremitting hostility toward the Khomeini regime."

Silberman is quoted as saying, "All I can remember was that there was discussion about somehow releasing the hostages to the Reagan campaign or under the auspices of the Reagan campaign ... to humiliate Carter and influence our election."

"I said to him, 'We have one president at a time,' thus indicating that he should deal with Carter, not us."

Nancy Plamondon, freshman in physical therapy and Neely Hall resident explored the different booths at Parkfest with interest and said that "even though it looked cloudy, it didn't put a dampener on our spirits."

Nearby, in the Jell-O eating contest, several students had Silberman and Allen, Knight-Ridder said, said they ended the meeting without accepting the offer. "It came to nothing," Silberman was quoted as saying.

In 1980, Khomeini made a speech broadcast on Tehran radio in which he said, "I give you my word, Carter will not be re-elected."

Knight-Ridder also reported that former Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, now living in exile in France, said in a telephone interview that he learned in 1981 that two advisers to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini coordinated the release of the hostages to coincide with Reagan's inauguration on Jan. 20, 1981.

Potts Sadr identified the two Iranian advisers as then-Interior Minister Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and Mohammed Beheshti, a member of the Revolutionary Council.

Bani-Sadr also said that after the hostages were freed, he received a military report that the Reagan administration had given assurances to Tehran that it would receive U.S. military equipment for use in its war with Iraq, Knight-Ridder reported.

their faces buried in plates of Jell-O. As they gulped and swallowed, they cast quick glances at their competition Others tossed eggs to each other in the hope of being the last person able to catch the egg intact. Many ended up with a handful of the yolk.

Clint Potts, eleventh floor resident assistant in Neely

Potts was enjoying himself enormously, taunting those aiming sponges at his face with such statements as "Was that your best shot?" and "Nobody can hit me!"

Marc Cohen, freshman in graphic design and Neely Hall resident took careful aim and gave Potts an eye-ful of whipped cream. The cheers of the crowd seemed to quiet Potts for several minutes but then he was back, challenging others to hit him. "I like whipped cream in my face," he hollered.

Jennifer Poucher, Neely Hall Council member said that she was pleased with the success of Parkfest '87. "I think the turnout and the enthusiasm of the crowd surpassed our expectations," Poucher said.

an institutional presidency would be a "logical transition."

The candidates in the search should be pared down to about 25 after this Thursday, when the SIU-C search committee meets with the Chicago search firm of Heidrick and Struggles Inc., said Lawrence Dennis, chairman of the search committee. The firm is reviewing the nominations and applications to see who is interested in the position, he said.

Both Guyon and Swinburne have been SIU-C administrators for more than 10 years.

Guyon came to SIU-C in 1974 as dean of the College of Science. He later took the position of vice president for research and Graduate School dean from 1976-80. He served as vice president for academic affairs since 1980 before becoming acting president Jan. 10.

Swinburne came to SIU-C in 1970 as an associate professor in the Higher Education department. He was selected as outstanding teacher in the College of Education in 1973 and became dean of students the same year. Swinburne has served as vice president of student affairs since 1974, when the position was created.

Jinx-beating Washington wants no 'City Boss' title

By Suzan Kuczka
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Harold Washington doesn't want to be tagged with the title "Boss" that until recently was reserved for references to powerful Mayor Richard J. Daley.

But by becoming the first mayor since Daley to win reelection to a second term — with 53.5 percent of the vote — Washington could be called "King" for escaping a decade-old tradition of being ousted by voters after one term.

Daley was serving his fifth term when he died in 1976.

WASHINGTON, however, shies away from the title of "Boss," saying his reform administration cannot be compared to the days when Daley headed a Democratic Party machine fueled by thousands of patronage workers who got out the vote on Election Day.

"Bossism in Chicago was brought to its zenith by Daley," says Washington, who defeated the machine forces in 1983 to become the city's first black mayor. "That's all gone. Patronage is gone. Collective bargaining makes it unnecessary for 'Boss' to be the boss."

"WE'RE REMOVING all that. It should never have existed. If you mean leader, first among equals, all that kind of stuff, yeah, there's power there. But not 'Boss.'"

Like Daley, however, Washington, 64, has become the most powerful Democrat in Chicago. And he did it by humbling, and outsmarting, the machine that was once famous for stealing votes from graveyards — something neither Jane Byrne, the city's first female mayor, nor

Michael Bilandic, Daley's immediate successor, was able to do.

"Bossism in Chicago was brought to its zenith by Daley. That's all gone. Patronage is gone. Collective bargaining makes it unnecessary for 'Boss' to be the boss. We're removing all that. It should never have existed. If you mean leader, first among equals, all that kind of stuff, yeah, there's power there. But not 'Boss.'"

—Harold Washington

"HE NOW IS the dominant political force in Chicago, partly because the opposition was dealing with his first election as an aberration and thought all they had to do was beat him up for four years and they would be able to defeat him," says political strategist Don Rose.

"But he's got a solid base (of black support) and it's proven to be an immovable base," Rose says. "And his white support has inched upward with every election."

But it hasn't inched up much. Four years ago, Washington received about 18 percent of the white vote. This year, he received about 20 percent when nearly three-quarters of the city's 1.5 million registered voters went to the polls.

THE REST of the white vote was gobbled up by Edward R. Vrdolyak, the Cook County Democratic Party chairman who led the "Council Wars" battles that marred Washington's first term in office, and Northwestern University professor Don Haider, the Republican nominee.

Vrdolyak, whose campaign was bolstered when a more popular third-party candidate dropped out of the race 36 hours before the polls opened, finished with a surprisingly high 42.2 percent of the vote. Haider received 4.3 percent.

WASHINGTON, a former state representative and Illinois congressman who got his start in politics with the help of the Daley machine, said he was not surprised by his lopsided support.

Political experts, however, say Washington must win over some of his detractors to broaden his reputation beyond Chicago.

"IN LARGE PART his national power will depend on what he's able to put together in this administration and the City Council," Rose says. "He has to be able to consolidate some of that (opposition) by redefining his coalition. Then he will nationally become pivotal to what happens in Illinois."

Washington's second term is expected to be greeted by a more amiable council, which increased its minority representation last year when a federal judge ordered that the city's 50 ward boundaries be redrawn.

Activist: black mens' future lies in death, drugs, crime

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Nearly three-quarters of all black men between 18 and 25 either will be dead, in prison, unemployed or addicted to drugs within the next 13 years, a black leader said during the weekend.

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told a civil rights conference at Xavier University that drugs are the greatest enemy of black people.

Hooks said 70 percent of black men now between 18 and 25 will be in prison, dead, unemployed or addicted to drugs or alcohol by the year 2000.

The raising of living standards and achieving equality for blacks remain a struggle because people are more difficult to motivate than in the 1960s when many blacks could not vote, sit in the front of buses or drink from public water fountains, Hooks said.

He said it is difficult to recruit civil rights workers because many young people cannot visualize conditions prior to the 1960s.

"It's difficult for young people to know the assault on your mind every day as you walked down streets and saw those signs," Hooks told a conference on civil liberties and civil rights sponsored by the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Kick back and take it easy; conquer stress, enjoy life

By Tracy Bartoni
Staff Writer

The rent is due and your bank account is low.

An exam is coming up; your class notes are missing, probably hiding under two weeks of dirty laundry; and the professor has assigned eight chapters that you haven't begun to read.

That guy or girl you like finally asked you for a date, but the $40 shirt you bought for the occasion was mangled by the dog.

Pressures from studies, instructors, jobs, friends and family add stress to our lives, Wellness Center coordinator David Elam said. Learning to relax and deal with stress can prevent illnesses and correct behavioral problems, he said at a "Relax" workshop Thursday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

"ALL OF US have stress in our lives that can affect us in different ways," Elam said.

Stress can cause physical illness, mood swings, behavioral problems and even accidents, and it can be displayed through anxiety, worry, depression, forgetfulness, fuzzy thinking, among others, Elam said.

Something as simple as learning to say "no" and as difficult as changing one's attitude can reduce stress.

When people ask for favors, just say "no." "Tell them, 'It's not against you, it's for me,'" Elam recommends.

Changing attitudes can be a little more difficult.

ELAM SAID psychological studies have found that people experience 50,000 thoughts each day. Some are functional and constructive while some are negative. Elam said negative thoughts add to stress.

Worrying, which Elam defined as "practicing for things to go wrong in the future," gets in the way of what people want to happen.

Worrying can affect one's body and even the outcome of life events because our thoughts are habitual, he said.

"Our bodies do not know the difference between a real or imagined event."

Elam said people should try to replace negative thoughts with positive thoughts.

ELAM SAID people sometimes are reluctant to give up worries and unpleasant thoughts because they fear disappointment or rejection. Elam said some people have told him that if they did not worry, they would not be motivated to get things done.

People need to distinguish between concern and worry, he said.

Concern is constructive, while worry is like "dragging a ball and chain around."

Changing ways of dealing with stress also can help, he said.

Styles of coping are habits that can be changed, even though they initially may feel strange. Some habits are hard to break, but with enough practice, they can be broken, he said.

ANOTHER WAY of combating stress is practicing deep breathing, which gives a richer exchange of oxygen in the lowest third of the lungs, he said.

"Imagine that the lungs are balloons, and fill the top, middle and bottom," he said. This can be practiced anywhere and will help one cope in a stressful situation. The more this is practiced, the more benefits one will get, he said.

Another way of coping is eliminating stressful problems.

Some problems are hard to eliminate, such as roommates who fail to do their share of the housework, he said, because you can't control another person's behavior. But if talking the problem over doesn't work, changing the environment, even if it means getting a different roommate, could be a solution.

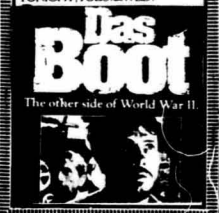

OTHER WAYS to fight stress include exercise and a good diet, he said. Aerobics is the most effective exercise in combating stress, he said. He also said chemical additives found in packaged and fast foods are not healthy.

Elam said we should take preventive measures against stress and be aware of its symptoms. Exercise, a well-balanced diet and relaxation techniques can help us combat stress, he said.

Aerobics expert: Shape up inside before the outside

By Tracy Barton
Staff Writer

A good-looking physique does not necessarily mean the body is in good physical condition — and that could have serious health implications, says Millie Cooper, founder of the Aerobics Center in Dallas.

Cooper, who is author of "Aerobics for Women," spoke on campus last week as part of the World Health Week program. She told of the benefits of aerobic exercise, but also of the hazards of inactivity.

"The ones here tonight are probably not the ones who should hear this message," she said. "It is the ones who are not motivated whom I gear my talks toward."

COOPER STRESSED that aerobic exercise not only as cosmetically beneficial, but as a form of "preventive medicine" that would help all people live longer, healthier and more active lives, she said.

Stressing that proper weight, diet, exercise and the avoidance of tobacco are four major building points, Cooper said indifference about exercise can be harmful.

"Either the presence or absence of regular exercise is going to affect you. Heart disease isn't a disease of old men and women."

Studies have found a collection of cholesterol along the arteries, called cholesterol streaking, in 3-year-olds.

One man told her his son did not have time for exercise because of intellectual pursuits.

"I DON'T care how many degrees you get," Cooper said. "It doesn't matter how much information you put up here in the brain, if you don't take care of the vehicle that holds the brain, you aren't going to be around to enjoy and use those degrees you put up there."

Cooper criticized the current popular aerobic fad because of its superficiality and commercial popularity. "It's time women get out of their 'leg-warmer leotard mentality' of physical fitness."

"There is so much more to physical fitness than just dressing a part," she said, adding that many people equate physical fitness with a good-looking body.

"BELIEVE ME, I've seen Mr. Texas nauseated and throwing up after walking 10 minutes on a treadmill and a 70-year-old grandmother walk longer than he did. So what you look like on the outside is not the best indicator of what kind of physical condition you are in."

She stressed fitness of the heart, blood vessels and the lungs. "You can live without a great-looking body, but you can't live without a good cardiovascular system."

Isometric exercises, which contract muscles but do not move joints, and isotonic exercises, which contract muscles and joints do not benefit muscles like the heart.

"IT'S LIKE giving a car a new paint job when it really needs an engine overhaul," Cooper said.

Anaerobic exercises are those that contain a lot of stop-start activity. She said they don't benefit the heart either because of short duration.

Aerobic exercises — dance, swimming, walking or running — benefit the heart and make the body demand large amounts of oxygen, which is good for the cardiovascular system and the lungs, Cooper said.

Other benefits of sticking to an exercise program are losing inches, better digestion and sleep, and less concern for every little ache and pain.

Cooper cautioned that one should take care when starting an exercise program. "Try to start slowly and progressively," she said.

In addition to a high saturated-fat diet, stress and inactivity, cigarette smoking is good health's worst enemy, she said.

Because of peer pressure, parents who smoke and attractive advertising are the main reasons American young people begin smoking, Cooper said. "It is not smart or cool to smoke. It is deadly."

Cooper said society has a "live for the moment" and "if it feels good do it" attitude, exemplified by alcohol, drug abuse and cigarette smoking.

"We are propagating a philosophy that will destroy us," Cooper said.

Titanic survivors hold memorial

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Almost 75 years after an orchestra on the deck of the Titanic played "Nearer My God To Thee" as the great ship sank, nine survivors of the disaster listened again to the hymn Sunday during a memorial service for victims of the tragedy.

Each of the survivors attending the service lost relatives in the disaster, one of the worst in maritime history.

The memorial event at the Wilmington Radisson Hotel re-enacted the interdenominational service held on the Sunday the ship hit an iceberg and sank — April 14, 1912. It was attended by 400 members of the Titanic Historical Society who hosted the weekend gathering commemorating the 75th anniversary of the ship's sinking.

Edith Brown Haisman, 90, of Southampton, England, was 15 when her father kissed her and her mother goodbye as they boarded a lifeboat and said he would meet them in New York. She said she remembered the band of elegantly dressed musicians performing to calm the fearful crowds scrambling to get into the ship's too few lifeboats.

"When I was standing up on the deck the band was playing. And as the Titanic was sinking it was playing 'Nearer My God to Thee.' That band played right up until the last minute," Haisman said.

Her lifeboat was about a half mile away when the ship finally sank on April 14, 1912, taking the orchestra, her father and more than 1,500 passengers to their deaths 800 miles south of Newfoundland in the North Atlantic.

Of the ship's 2,200 passengers, only 700 survived and fewer than two dozen of those are still living.

Rev. George Wilson of Houston, Texas, an historical society member, gave the sermon during the memorial service and said the lessons of the Titanic should be heeded.

"No matter how great our resolutions (concerning the advances of technology and its capabilities) nothing is guaranteed. It's so easy to be lulled into a false sense of security in this world," he told the crowd, many of whom were teary eyed.

Would-be helicopter thief can't fly, demolishes craft

MIAMI (UPI) — A man who tried to steal a helicopter without knowing how to fly it crashed the $175,000 aircraft near the pad a few seconds after takeoff, police said Sunday.

Police said Jose Canales, 32, admitted after the Saturday night crash that he was trying to steal the helicopter. He was not seriously hurt.

Canales did not have a pilot's license or any pilot's training and was already serving three years of probation from a prior attempt to steal a helicopter at a small airport west of Fort Lauderdale.

The black Bell Jet Ranger crashed on Watson Island in Biscayne Bay about 11:30 p.m. Saturday. Witnesses said it rose from the pad, hovered erratically, then rolled and hit the ground.

Canales was seen running from the wreckage and was captured by police a few minutes later. He was charged with attempted theft.

The helicopter landed on its left side near the headquarters of Dade Helicopter Jet Service.

The helicopter was demolished.

1987 SPRING EXAM SCHEDULE

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00 T Th
09:00 - 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of entry is "8:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '87 Final Examination Schedule to be Tuesday, May 12 at 7:50-9:50a.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

1. Classes with a special exam time.

Trustees to vote on using bond fee for family housing

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

A proposal to use revenue bond fees for the upkeep of the Evergreen Terrace family housing complex will be voted on by the SIU Board of Trustees at its May meeting. Under the proposal, Evergreen Terrace would get funding from a student fee that goes toward the upkeep of housing built from the sale of University revenue bonds.

Southern Hills, a family housing complex built with bond money in the early 60s, is supported by a fee of $59.40 per semester, while Evergreen Terrace relies on rent collections for most of its upkeep, the board finance committee said.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said the bond fee money is needed to keep rents down and increase maintenance work to the same level as Southern Hills. Housing officials have stalled repairs at Evergreen Terrace in order to hold rents down, he said.

If the proposal is passed, $154,000 would be used at Evergreen Terrace for fiscal year 1988, $124,000 for fiscal year 1989 and $88,000 for fiscal year 1990, the proposal states.

Maintenance expenses would include apartment painting; addition of insulation; replacement of windows, tile, appliances and sliding doors; and repair of the roof and gutters.

Texaco files bankruptcy; president says 'no choice'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texaco Inc., the nation's third-largest oil company, Sunday announced it had filed for protection under the bankruptcy code after failing to resolve its $10.3 billion legal battle with Pennzoil Co. over Getty Oil Co.

Texaco is the largest U.S. company ever to file for bankruptcy.

At a hastily called news conference in Manhattan, Texaco President James W. Kinnear said: "It is with the most profound regret that I report today that Texaco Inc. has filed for protection under Chapter 11."

But he added, "We had no choice in the matter."

Kinnear said Texaco and two financial subsidiaries, Texaco Capital Inc., and Texaco N.V., filed for bankruptcy Sunday.

The Texaco action followed two days of feverish board meetings at its White Plains, N.Y., headquarters, where the oil giant mapped out strategy prior to a critical court hearing in a Houston appeals court Monday.

Texaco had warned that it would be forced into bankruptcy if required by the court to post a bond of more than $1 billion to continue appeals of its $10.3 billion legal dispute with Houston-based Pennzoil.

Pennzoil had refused to back down from its position that Texaco must put up "full security" for the $10.3 billion judgement it won.

In 1985 a Houston jury found Texaco guilty of illegally enticing Getty Oil Co. to renege on a merger agreement with Pennzoil in 1984. Texaco then purchased Getty itself for $10.1 billion.

Now that Texaco has filed for protection under Chapter 11, Pennzoil will be its largest unsecured creditor but will have to line up behind the company's secured creditors to collect any final judgement that may be decided upon in the appeals process.

"Texaco apparently felt that the court would not greatly reduce the amount of the bond and decided to file for bankruptcy protection," said a Wall Street investment banker, who asked not to be identified.

"There is a possibility that Pennzoil will wind up with nothing, which will open up that company to all kinds of shareholders' lawsuits," he said.

Kinnear told the news conference that most of Texaco's subsidiaries would continue to operate normally under Chapter 11, which protects the company from efforts by creditors — namely Pennzoil — to collect past due debts.

Closed bridge collapses; erosion possible cause

GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Erosion may have led to the collapse of a closed-down bridge that plunged into the Schoharie Creek about 5 miles upstream from the earlier collapsed state Thruway bridge, authorities said Sunday.

State police said a 50-foot section of the two-lane No Point bridge on Route 161, about 40 miles west of Albany between the towns of Glen and Florida, fell into the creek at 9:01 p.m. Saturday.

Trooper Ed Dyer said officials believe erosion may have caused the collapse, but the state Department of Transportation said the cause has not been determined.

"I believe the transportation department is speculating on scouring — like erosion — of the bridge supports," Dyer said.

The DOT closed the bridge at about 6 a.m. last Sunday, fearing the bridge could not withstand rising creek waters from heavy rains that fell on eastern New York.

Troopers said there were no vehicles on the bridge when it collapsed and no injuries were reported.

Salvage crews and divers Sunday continued to search the rubble from the state Thruway bridge collapse April 5 in Schoharie Creek. The bodies of six people have been recovered and authorities said the bodies of four others missing since the bridge disaster may have washed downstream.

Divers working Saturday penetrated a thick slab of pavement and pulled out the bodies of two victims from one of the cars that hurtled into the rain-swollen stream when the Thruway bridge collapsed.

Relaxation key to easing tension headaches

By Mary Neely
Student Writer

Relax. Breathe right. Stretch those muscles. And chances are tension headache will go away.

This is the advice Pam Warren, Wellness Center counselor, gave to a group of 30 recently in the Student Center in one of a series of self-improvement workshops.

College students are most apt to get tension headaches because of the hectic and stress-filled lives they lead, Warren said. She said tension headaches are the most common form of headache and result from an "overly stressed-out body."

THE HEADACHE relief workshop, offered through the Wellness Center, is designed to teach people methods of relieving headache pain without medication. "I teach people relaxation techniques so they can prevent tension headaches by removing the stress in their bodies," Warren said.

Tension headaches result from tense or tight muscles. Tight muscles constrict blood flow and prevent proper circulation. Poor blood circulation to the neck and head cause tension headaches. "People with cold extremities (hands and feet)," Warren said, "usually have a lot of headaches because they have poor circulation."

WARREN SAID people can prevent tension headaches by practicing relaxation techniques every day. "People need to learn to relax so stress won't build up in their bodies. Headaches are signals to the body that it has too much stress," she said. Warren teaches people to breathe, massage and use positive affirmation as relaxation techniques to reduce body stress.

Wires attached to the jaw of Wellness Center counselor Barb Fijolek will tell a biofeedback machine how much tension exists in her jaw muscles. Graduate assistant Pam Warren, left, records the machine's readings.

"Newadays people are relying too much on medication for pain relief. People can heal themselves from headache pain if they learn how to relax," she said. During the workshop, Warren shows people the "proper" way to breathe. Most people breathe incorrectly, she said, limiting the effectiveness of other physical functions. Blood pressure, pulse and blood to internal organs are known to correlate with the rate, regularity and depth of breathing.

"ACCORDING TO yoga science," Warren said, "breath is the intermediate level between body and mind and is the link that unites both."

Warren suggests diaphragm breathing as the most effective way to breathe. "When you breathe using your diaphragm," Warren said, "your abdomen should move in and out but your shoulders shouldn't move up and down." This breathing technique allows a larger intake of oxygen and a greater expulsion of carbon dioxide.

"If you concentrate on exhaling stress and inhaling relaxation your body will eventually become relaxed," Warren said.

MASSAGING THE shoulders, neck and scalp are other techniques to relieve headache pain. "When these muscles are tight, blood vessels constrict and a tension headache results," Warren said. Daily stretching and massaging exercises, she said, will keep the muscles in your neck and shoulders loose and allow proper blood circulation.

"Students build up a lot of tension in their neck and shoulders just from leaning Construction continues on the new baseball club house at Abe Martin Field. The club house, costing $156,000, received $87,000 in private donations.

Club house near completion thanks to private donations

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

At the annual Saluki baseball reunion in October of 1984, coach Richard "Itchy" Jones and his former assistant Mark Newman began tossing around the idea for a club house at Abe Martin Field.

Today the idea is a reality. "A club house is something that any player who's ever played baseball anywhere likes to have," Jones said. "The more we talked about it, the more we saw it could become a reality with assistance from alumni, the University and volunteer work from trade unions."

The estimated budget for the entire project is $156,000, but Jones stressed that the figure would be much higher if local trade unions hadn't volunteered their time.

"We're really grateful for the time and labor they've put into this. If we would have had to pay for all they've done chances are this club house would still be just an idea," Jones said.

The University gave $35,000 for the project, and Jones and the alumni have raised in the neighborhood of $87,000.

"We started by asking our big leaguers for donations. Dave Stieb and George Vukovich each gave $10,000," Jones said. "We'll have 32 lockers when the club house is finished, and people who gave $1,000 will be recognized with nameplates on each of the lockers."

Coach Jones and Bob

Hardcastle, a Saluki infielder in the late 50s and early 60s, each gave $15,000.

When the structure is complete, it will house a weight room, a training room, a dressing room, a bathroom, showers and two offices.

The estimated date for the completion of the building is late June, according to Jones, who feels SIU-C will appreciate the club house for many baseball seasons to come.

"It will leave us with an excellent facility for a long time," he said, "and at a minimum cost to the University thanks to the volunteer workers, the donation of materials and everyone who contributed in any way to this project."

Sugar Ray's win 'gift of century'

Saturday night, HBO aired the controversial Sugar Ray Leonard-Marvelous Marvin Hagler title bout. It should provide enough fuel for barroom arguments for many moons to come.

One week ago, the script was written for what could be a long-running soap opera. Sugar Ray walked away with Marvelous Marvin's middleweight title. Marvin walked away disgruntled. And the fans walked away buzzing about the history they had just witnessed.

But now we should all thank HBO for showing us what a hoax it was. The broadcast showed millions of people across the nation who didn't get to see the fight live that Leonard was awarded the boxing gift of the century.

As the undefeated and undisputed middleweight champion, Hagler had to be overwhelmingly beaten by the challenger. That's the way championships in boxing are supposed to be — no last-second three-point shots or 55-yard field goals to send the game into overtime. The challenger must go out and take it away from the champion, and Leonard clearly failed to do that.

Sugar Ray won on showmanship, he won on the emotions of the crowd. Everybody likes an underdog. He won on his good looks, his past history and his pleasant, determined and defiant personality. Even those who hated him, those not giving him a shred of a chance, admired his courage.

Most of the bout looked like videos from Sugar Ray's School of Dance and Frolic, and if I'd have drunk one beer for every time Leonard was warned for holding, I wouldn't have lasted till the 12th round.

From the Press Box

One must wonder if judge JoJo Guerra, who scored the bout 118-110 Leonard, was watching the same fight. Was he giving Leonard points for holding the back of Hagler's neck? How can he award the title to a fighter too spent, too exhausted, to walk away from the ring like a winner?

Granted, Hagler never really hit Sugar Ray hard; despite a self-imposed five-year hiatus from the ring, Leonard was too fast, too quick for Hagler's game plan.

Had Hagler, who considers himself the hunter, opened the fight in a more aggressive manner, not giving up the first four rounds, the outcome would have been different — Sugar Ray would not have lasted.

Sugar Ray managed to avoid the KO punch from Hagler, which says a lot. Many have failed with the same punch during the past 11 years; Hagler feasted on their comparably mediocre skills. But Leonard's ability to dance and float away from Hagler's devastating punches does not merit a title.

Women netters at 21-win mark, beat Bradley and EIU

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team improved its overall record to 21-9 with two wins and one loss this past weekend.

On Thursday the Salukis played Eastern Illinois in Charleston and won 7-2. The Salukis won five of the six singles matches against the Panthers. Coach Judy Auld defaulted Sherri Knight, No. 5 singles player, because she was unable to play at 100 percent due to the heat.

"Sherri suffered from heat exhaustion during the fall, and now she is really sensitive to hot weather," Auld said.

The only other loss the Salukis encountered against the Panthers was at the No. 3 doubles position, Knight and Patsy Hoskins.

"Sherri and Patsy really came through for us this weekend and helped us a lot," Auld said.

Knight and Hoskins are not regular starters in the lineup, but were inserted into the lineup because Sue Steuby, No. 4 singles player, and Julie Burgess, No. 6 singles, are injured.

On Friday morning in Terre Haute, Ind., at the Indiana State Invitational the Salukis lost to a talented Western Illinois squad, 7-2.

Ellen Moellering, No. 1 singles, and Dana Cherebetiu, No. 2 singles, lost their matches by the scores of 6-4, 6-3. Both Boardman, No. 3 singles, was victorious 7-6, 7-5.

Auld had Steuby play at the No. 4 singles spot in the Western Illinois match and she lost 6-3, 6-1. Auld said Steuby played very good in the first match and was in front at one time, but was unable to pull out the win.

Maria Coch, No. 5 singles, lost 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 and Patsy Hoskins, No. 6 singles, won her match 6-4, 7-5.

Friday afternoon the Salukis faced Bradley and had to wait until Saturday morning to determine who would win.

Bad weather forced the Salukis and Braves to finish the singles matches inside and because they had to reserve inside courts they had to wait until 7 a.m. Saturday to play the doubles matches.

The Salukis won four of the six singles matches to go ahead 4-2 on Friday. Moellering, Cherebetiu, Boardman and Coch were all able to win their matches.

Cherebetiu, Boardman and Coch all needed three sets to win their matches and Steuby and Hoskins lost their singles matches in three sets.

Auld said that the team was so psyched to play Western Illinois that the Bradley match was sort of a let down mentally, and the Braves really pushed each player.

On Saturday morning the No. 2 doubles team, Cherebetiu and Coch, lost 6-2, 6-2 to make the team score 4-3.

Knight and Hoskins, No. 3 doubles, lost in three sets 6-1, 6-7, 6-3.

The No. 1 doubles team, Moellering and Boardman, needed three sets to win by the score of 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 to give the Salukis the win 5-4.

Cindy Espeland, Saluki third baseman, is upset after allowing Indiana State's Deb Fleming to get to third base safely during Saturday's doubleheader.

Saluki softball team splits with 14th-ranked Illinois St.

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The women's softball team split a doubleheader with Illinois State, ranked 14th nationally, and swept a doubleheader from defending Gateway Conference champion Indiana State this past weekend.

The Salukis are 15-12 overall and 6-2 in the conference.

In the first game against the Redbirds on Friday the Salukis quickly scored two runs in the bottom of the first inning and went on to defeat Illinois State, 2-0.

Becky Rickenbaugh hit the first pitch up the middle for a single and then stole second base with the help of a bad throw by the Redbirds' catcher. Dana Riedel then tried to sacrifice Rickenbaugh to third base with a bunt, but the Redbirds nailed Rickenbaugh trying to advance to third base.

Later in the inning with two outs and runners on second and third, Cindy Espeland connected for a single that scored both runs.

Lisa Peterson was the winning pitcher allowing three hits and striking out four.

The Salukis were not as lucky in the second game against the Redbirds, losing 5-0.

The Redbirds scored three runs in the third inning on two hits and also protested the pitching technique of Beth Schmitt. The umpire ruled that Schmitt was not pitching illegally.

In the fourth inning Dana Klug started off with a triple for the Redbirds and scored when Kerri Donis doubted, making the score 4-0. Illinois State added one more run to finish the scoring.

"I was especially pleased with our first-game performance," Saluki coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

Correction

The funding for the renovation of McAndrew Stadium is expected to cost $1.18 million.

The cost of the project was reported incorrectly in Friday's Daily Egyptian.

"Peterson made the pitches she had to. Everybody played well defensively, also. It was a big win for us."

On Saturday against Indiana State the Salukis needed eight innings in both games to pull off two victories.

In the first game the Sycamores scored one run in the first inning. Renee Strasser was on second base for the Sycamores when Lisa Peterson made a throwing error to first base after a hit by Wendy Dobbin. Strasser scored on the play.

The Salukis went ahead in the fifth inning, scoring 2 runs off 3 hits and 3 Sycamore errors. In the top of the sixth the Sycamores tied the score at 2-2.

In the bottom of the eighth inning Shelly Gibbs hit a single and advanced to second when the catcher was unable to handle a pitch. Espeland sacrificed Gibbs to third base with a bunt.

Susan Wissmiller then hit the ball over the second baseman's head allowing Gibbs to score from third, giving the Salukis the win, 3-2.

Beauchem, Franks provide thrills at Dogwood Relays

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

David Beauchem highlighted the men's track and field competition Friday for SIU-C at the Dogwood Relays in Knoxville, Tenn., finishing second in the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 9:12.91 minutes.

David Lamont was fifth in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 14:27.65.

Coach Bill Cornell said he was really happy with the Salukis performance Friday, but Saturday was a bad day for the team.

"I'm not dissatisfied because overall we are still progressing," Cornell said.

There were close to 100 teams competing at the non-scoring meet, and the level of competition was very high, Cornell said.

The highlight on Saturday was former Saluki trackster Michael Franks, running for Athletics West, in the 200 and 400-meter invitational dashes.

Franks finished third in the 200-meters with a time of 20.63, and then won the 400-meters with a time of 45.30.

Despite some bad exchanges of the baton, the 4 x 100-meter relay team finished second in their heat with a time of 41.91. Shane Weber was able to get over 16-2 successfully in the pole vault, his best effort this season.

Bret Garrett and Jobie Kelly competed in the 800-meter run and finished with times of 1:50.77 and 1:52.87, respectively. Neither time qualified them for the finals.

Gerard Horan finished second in his heat of the 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 54.10. Holloway was fifth with a time of 55.08.

Gaeb both went 2-3 in the game and Verschoore and Locke went 2-4. Verschoore also had an RBI. Hall scored on an error to give the Salukis the victory.

Bradley's Bob Bretwisch got the loss, dropping his record to 1-2.

The Salukis scored eight runs in the second inning of Sunday's nightcap, but lost 9-8. Mc Intosh got the loss while only pitching 1 2-3 innings.

Freshman hurler Chris Bend (3.55 ERA) opened the nightcap but gave up four runs and seven hits in the two innings he pitched.

Outfielder-turned-relief pitcher Doug Shields gave up a lead-off homer to Bradley's Brad Tilly to open the fifth inning. Eric Kuhlman and Troy Guidotti each hit solo round-trippers to put the Braves in the game.

Salukis split twin bills with Bradley

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

The baseball Salukis dropped the first and last games of a four-game series with Missouri Valley Conference foe Bradley Braves to bring their record to 5-3 in the MVC and 23-9 overall.

The Salukis are tied for the MVC lead with the Braves, pending the results of Sunday's Indiana State-Creighton game. Indiana State had a 4-2 record prior to Sunday.

In Saturday's opener, the Salukis and the Braves had powered to a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning when Bradley's Daren Epley hit his third double of the game to score Tim Foley for the game-winning RBI.

Junior right-hander Rich Campbell got the Saluki loss. His record dropped to 1-3. Dale Kisten, the Salukis' top hurler, started game one but was yanked after giving up six hits and three runs in 2 1/3 innings.

Todd Neibel, a senior from Waltonville, pitched the nightcap for the Salukis. He went the distance for his second time this season and upped his record to 4-1.

Senior All-America candidate Steve Finley, who entered the series hitting .312, started the Salukis' ninth-inning rally with a lead-off single. Finley advanced to second on Jim Limperis' infield out.

Junior third baseman Chuck Locke, who was hitting .377 prior to the doubleheader, singled to put Salukis at the corners with one out.

Brad Hollencamp, a freshman outfielder-designated hitter, followed Locke's single with one of his own. Hollencamp's hit drove in Finley and brought SIU-C to within one at 4-3.

Shortstop David Wrona hit into a fielder's choice and pinch-hitter Cliff Mc Intosh walked to load the bases with two down. The Salukis' last chance walked to the plate in the form of Dan Hartleb, who pinch hit for catcher Joe Hall.

Hartleb, a transfer from John A. Logan, slammed his eighth hit of the year to score Hollencamp and Wrona. Hartleb's shot to right center gave SIU-C the 5-4 victory.

Kisten, who had started Saturday's first game, got the call for the opener on Sunday as well. Kisten, who entered the weekend series with a 1.90 ERA, pitched the full nine innings of the opener to earn a 4-2 victory, his sixth of the season.

Mize downs Norman for Masters win

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The lore of golf was enriched once more on the velvet-like grounds of the Augusta National Golf Club Sunday by a man who dreamed of winning the Masters every way possible — except the way it actually happened.

"I dreamed of winning this tournament with a big lead," said Larry Mize, who was born 28 years ago a few miles from Augusta National's first tee. "I dreamed of winning it by coming from behind."

"But this is one way I never dreamed of winning it."

That way turned out to be by pitching the ball across almost 50 yards of lush turf and watching it roll into the cup on the second hole of the third sudden-death playoff in Masters history.

Mize thus leaped into the pages of golf history and at the same time dealt another heartbreaking blow to Greg Norman — who over the past three years has had a legitimate chance to win six major championships but has managed just one.

Norman, Mize and Seve Ballesteros ended the final round of another unique Masters tied at 3-under-par 285 — the highest winning score in 15 years.

Five other players were tied for the lead during the afternoon and three of them — Ben Crenshaw, Roger Maltbie and Jodie Mudd — finished just one shot out of the playoff at 2-under 286.

Mize had to make a four-foot birdie putt at the 18th hole just to get into the playoff.

"Beating two of the greatest players in the world is a big thrill," Mize said.

Undefeated men ruggers blast EIU

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

"Soft and nice" said an Eastern Illinois University player about the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field after Saturday's match.

That's about the only thing that was soft and nice for the Easterners as the undefeated SIU-C men's rugby team romped over the challengers, defeating them 18-3 and boosting its season tally to 4-0.

Although Eastern was favored by the wind in the first half, even that wasn't enough to compensate for the aggressive Southerners.

Eastern opened the scoring with a penalty kick good for three points early in the first half to take a short lead with their only score of the day.

SIU-C answered back a few minutes later when Craig Johnson knotted the score, also on a penalty kick.

Late in the first half Art Brown scored his first try of the game and Johnson came through with the conversion kick, making the score 9-3 for SIU-C at the half.

After halftime, when SIU-C got the wind at its back, the match was all but lost for EIU.

Johnson led off scoring in the second half as he made good on another penalty kick.

The match then went to scrimmaging as Eastern made last ditch efforts to boost its score.

Sinou, Raske star for SIU-C at Reebok invite

By Scott Freeman
Staff Writer

SIU-C's Vivian Sinou took second in the 1,500-meter run and third in the 3,000-meter run Saturday at the Reebok Invitational track meet in Oxford, Ohio.

Sinou turned in clockings of 4:24.1 in the 1,500 meters and 9:52.09 in the 3,000. Teammate Lisa Judiscak finished 10th in both events, with a 4:47.2 in the 1,500 and a 10:28.3 in the 3,000.

Saluki hurdler Kathy Raske finished ahead of Illinois State's standout athlete Angie Taylor in the 100-meter hurdles for the second week in a row. Raske finished second overall with a time of 14.09 seconds, followed by Taylor in third at 14.13.

Sue Anderson turned in another strong performance for SIU-C, taking fifth in the javelin with a personal best toss of 122 feet, five inches. Anderson finished fourth in the high jump with a 5-5 leap.

Injuries, though, continue to plague the women tracksters. Field event specialist and All-American Rhonda McCausland is out with a pinched nerve in her neck. Sprinters Carlon Blackman and Angie Nunn and long jumper Christianna Philippou are all nursing pulled hamstrings.

Livengood nails a hole-in-one

Jim Livengood, SIU-C's athletics director, scored a hole-in-one Saturday afternoon at the Jackson County Country Club.

Livengood, who says he usually shoots in the low 80s, scored the ace on the par-3, 138-yard fifth hole using a nine-iron. The ace was Livengood's first.

"It was the first time I'd played golf in six months," Livengood said. "I may not play again for six months — I don't want to get discouraged."

Livengood was playing with Tom Davis and Cliff Coleman, both doctors in the Carbondale area.
