Catholic officials: Leadership roles exist for women

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Leadership roles exist for women in the Roman Catholic Church, but many women have not taken advantage of them, local church officials said Tuesday.

Their comments were in response to the first draft of a U.S. bishop's pastoral letter released Monday that condemns sexism in the church and urges priests to be more sensitive to women's concerns.

"I don't feel the church is doing any sexism," Toni Intraiva, director of religious education at St. Francis Xavier Church, said. "Women's roles are varied. They are not finding their place in the church."

But Father Gary Gummertsheimer, of the Catholic Newman Center, said sexism exists in the Catholic Church and will never be removed.

"The church is a reflection of society," Gummertsheimer said. "Chauvinism is a part of society and our weaknesses are going to be a part of the church."

Gummertsheimer said he had no personal problem with increasing the role of women in the church.

"There are plenty of opportunities for women in the church," he said. "A lot of times people are not looking for the opportunities."

Sexism is a very big problem in all churches, not just the Catholic church, the Rev. Karen Knott, director of the Interfaith Center, said.

"Part of the problem is the male power structure of the Catholic church," Knott said.

Catholics who favor ordaining women found little to be optimistic about in the Clark Walker, a law student, was injured when from the rear near the intersection of Mill and a Carbondale police car struck his motorcycle Forest Street yesterday.

Police car, cyclist collide

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

A Carbondale police car struck and apparently injured a motorcyclist, who was stopped 70 feet east of Forest Street in the north lane of Mill Street Tuesday night.

Clark Walker, a University law student, was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for X-rays.

SIU-C Security Police and

Memorial Hospital of Carbondale personnel refused to comment on the incident.

Witness Tanya Alley said Walker ran to the side of the road and laid down on his stomach immediately after impact. Alley said Walker was not wearing a helmet.

Mary Ellen Johnson, junior, undecided major, overheard paramedics treating Walker about six minutes after the accident. They (paramedics) reported the man's vital statistics as normal and said he sustained no internal injuries, although he felt pain in one of his legs.

Johnson said Walker was talking to the paramedics and appeared to have a scraped right elbow.

Record dealers say LP won't play long

By Richard Nunez
Entertainment Editor

Is the album really dead? "In five years, it will be a specialty item," Kim Curlee, manager of Plaza Records, 825 S. Illinois, said.

With the rise in sales of compact discs, record dealers are knelling the demise of the LP before the turn of the century.

"I think LPs will die out," Curlee said. "The recording companies are creating the death of the LP. It's no longer going to be a major media item."

In the past two years, the cost of CDs has declined from an average of $17 to an average of $11. Curlee said recording companies are readily turning to CDs and relying more on CDs and cassette tapes than on LPs. "There are independent labels out there right now that are only putting stuff out on cassettes and CDs," Curlee said.

"The classical (music) market is turning to CDs the fastest," Curlee said. Many recording companies are no longer offering cut-out albums — albums reduced

Marine shot by another Marine was an accident, Pentagon says

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — A U.S. Marine was accidentally shot dead by fellow Marine guards when unknown intruders set off a flare at an American petroleum storage facility, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

The Pentagon identified the Marine killed in a crossfire Monday night as Cpl. Ricardo M. Villahermosa, 25, of Santurce, Puerto Rico, a member of I Company, Third Battalion of the Fourth Marine Regiment.

"The preliminary assumption at this point is that (the Marine's death) was the result of U.S. fire," Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said in Washington. "This was indeed the result of a tragic accident."

Howard said there have been a series of recent intrusions by men wearing camouflaged uniforms similar to those worn by members of the Panama Defense Force, and the "logical assumption" was that the Monday night incursion was by members of the Panamanian military. But he acknowledged the Pentagon had only "sketchy" details.

In Panama City, U.S. Navy spokesman Cmdr. Doug Schamp said later there was no "reason at all" to suspect

Jackson sparks black activism

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

It's no accident. Black activism has been sparked — even on the traditionally apathetic SIU-C campus — by the Rev. Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign.

Students have held rallies, formed a group to promote minority student concerns and written letters to the Daily Egyptian about dismantling the Black American Studies program and racism on campus.

It's about time students —

especially black students — spoke up.

Jackson electrified about 2,000 people on campus when he campaigned in Southern Illinois March 14, the eve of the Illinois primary.

The number could have been substantially higher if Jackson had planned his visit more carefully and spoke when the University was in session.

Nevertheless, Jackson's visit had a positive impact on student activism.

Larvester Gaither, campus coordinator for Jackson, said a lot of students campaigned for Jackson and helped to plan his visit.

"We talked about the issues," Gaither said. "People got well versed and learned about the issues before canvassing."

"Participation is essential to being conscious," he said.

The Black American Studies Association was created a few weeks ago to pressure

Shamir: Arab expulsions necessary for peace effort

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Tuesday ignored U.S. protests and defended the deportation of eight Palestinian activists. He also warned more Arabs would be expelled if necessary to restore peace to the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. At least 18 Palestinians were injured in anti-Israel demonstrations that erupted in seven towns and U.N.-run refugee camps in the territories one day after the Monday deportations.

Iran: Iraqis using chemical weapons again

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran accused Iraq Tuesday of using chemical weapons twice in less than a month and sending a missile crashing into a hospital for leprosy patients in northwestern Iran. Iran said Iraq launched Soviet-made missile attacks at dawn Tuesday, including one on a leprosarium in the Iranian city of Tabriz that killed and wounded patients. No exact casualty figure was given and Iraq did not confirm the hospital attack.

U.N. wants PLO's New York mission open

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — A U.N. official said Tuesday a U.S. pledge not to close the Palestine Liberation Organization mission in New York before a judicial ruling was insufficient and the issue must be resolved through arbitration. The United Nations maintains the PLO office is a legal mission to its headquarters, but Washington ordered the mission closed under the 1987 Anti-Terrorist Act.

Pakistan will take apart Afghan rebel bases

MOSCOW (UPI) — Pakistan has agreed to dismantle Afghan rebel bases and camps inside its territory within 30 days of the signing of a peace agreement and before the May 15 start of Soviet troop withdrawals from Afghanistan, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman said Tuesday. Spokesman Vadim Perfiliev said Iran, which is not a direct party to the accord expected to be signed in Geneva Thursday, also has been asked through diplomatic channels to dismantle Afghan rebel bases on its territory.

Meese tours Bolivian jungle narcotics area

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Bolivian coca growers and an opposition party Tuesday denounced the visit by Attorney General Edwin Meese who toured a jungle narcotics region on the last leg of his five-nation review of U.S. anti-drug efforts. Meese and John Lawn, director of the Drug Enforcement Administration, flew from the second largest city of Santa Cruz to the town of Chimore in Chapare, a tropical region in the eastern foothills of the Andes where most of Bolivia's coca is grown.

Judge tells special prosecutor to make case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge, faced with the prospect of an Iran-Contra trial almost a year away, threatened Tuesday there may be no trial at all if prosecutors do not quickly turn over secret documents and prove they have a case. Claiming that failing to turn over the documents would result in a "constitutional question of major proportions" — and inviting the defense to raise the issue formally — U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell took firm control of the first courtroom clash between the office of independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh and lawyers for the four men indicted in the scandal.

Senate rejects finding on Mexico's drug war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee failed on a tie vote Tuesday to endorse overturning President Reagan's finding that Mexico is cooperating in the war on drugs. Although the resolution failed, rules require it go to the full Senate for debate. The resolution, if ultimately approved by Congress, would force the administration to reverse its finding. But critics said the resolution would have virtually no practical effect while needlessly offending officials in Mexico working against narcotics trafficking.

Military court condemns enlisted man to death

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A six-member military court jury sentenced to death a smiling 22-year-old soldier from the 2nd Airborne Division Tuesday for the murder and rape of two young women on the Fort Bragg, N.C., Army base. The six-member jury, composed of three enlisted men and three officers, also sentenced Spec. 4 Ronald Adria Gray of Miami, Fla., to be dishonorably discharged and reduced to the rank of private.

Asbestos removal dispute continues

Opposing sides do not resolve their differences

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Representatives from opposing sides in a dispute over asbestos removal at Pulliam Hall failed to resolve their differences in a meeting Tuesday.

The meeting was requested by the Laborer's union after they picketed Pulliam Hall where workers for an Alton asbestos removal company were working last Friday.

The local union said it was picketing the site because local workers were not hired for the project. They also believed the workers of Speciality Waste Service Inc., who were contracted by the state Capital Development Board for the project, were not qualified to do the work.

Previously the union said it was only worried about health threats to workers and the public at the site.

"I don't know that anything was accomplished (in Tuesday's meeting) other than we know we want another meeting," Ed Smith, international representative of the Laborers' union, said. "We don't know what steps we will take next."

The workers' qualifications were discussed at the meeting, Smith said. The local union was concerned the licenses of workers on the job had expired, he said.

Members of the Capital Development Board, a state agency in charge of the project, presented at the meeting a variance that allowed people with expired licenses to work until June 1, Smith said.

"I guess they (CDB) were helpful in trying to solve the problem," Smith said.

"The Capital Development Board also mentioned the general public doesn't perceive that the University has no involvement with hiring for the project," Smith said.

Local unemployment is a problem that the University should address when contracting work, Smith said.

"Until that is resolved, there is still a problem," Smith said. Another representative of the local union also questioned the University's involvement with the project.

"Hell, if someone wanted to build a nuclear power plant in the middle of the campus, the University would stand up and take notice," Doug Franklin, a Laborer's union field representative, said.

"The University said they have no responsibility," Franklin said. "It should make students stand up and take notice."

Chancellor Lawrence K.

"They only want the work. They aren't concerned about safety. All I know, is we are going to continue to work."

—Ron Gibson

Pettit also said the University has no control over the project. "We (the University) can express concern in a matter," Pettit said. "But we don't have the leverage to require the matter to be dealt with."

Last week the CDB was asked by the University to send inspectors to the work site. Pettit said the inspectors found no safety violations.

"But the union has opposing views, so we had the meeting," Pettit said.

Seminar on black issues set

By Antoinette Hayes
Staff Writer

State Sen. Kenneth Hall, D-East St. Louis, will be the keynote speaker at the Illinois Committee on Black Concerns in Higher Education spring conference at the Student Center Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The committee will conduct a three-day conference at the Student Center. The conference will focus on ways to improve the rate of retention among black college students.

Seymour Bryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, said the committee consists of educators and administrators from around the country who are concerned about all minorities.

The committee will exchange ideas and present strategies that will establish a successful program for recruiting and retaining minority students in colleges and in the job market.

Other speakers are Wayne Watson, vice chancellor for academic affairs at City College of Chicago; Benjamin Williams, principal of Percy Julian Junior High School, Oak Park; Clinita Ford, director of the National Conference on Black Student Retention at Florida A&M University; and Silas Purnell, director of Ada S. McKinley Center, Chicago.

Topics will range from evaluating current programs to providing mentors for high school students and community college students.

Director: Security vital in corporate world

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Security directors for corporations are no longer running security forces, but participating in executive decisions, Monsanto's corporate security director said.

Robert Burke spoke to a law enforcement security survey class Tuesday about the changing role of corporate security.

He is security director for Monsanto, a multi-national corporation best known for its production of chemicals.

Burke, who was a Secret Service agent for 21 years and worked with every president from Kennedy to Reagan, said security directors must be proactive like Secret Service and not reactive like police.

However, there is some difference between working for public agencies and private businesses, Burke said. In his present job, business orientation is important and security contributes to the bottom line — money, he said.

"The new role of a corporate security director is one of persuasion and influence. Security has become a very important factor in doing business and the security division is usually consulted for investment and budget purposes."

—Robert Burke

In government, security involves mostly responsibility, he said.

The new role of a corporate security director is one of persuasion and influence, Burke said. Security has become a very important factor in doing business and the security division is usually consulted for investment and budget purposes, he added.

Burke said information protection is one of the most important functions of a security director. Monsanto spends about $5 billion per year on research and development of their ideas and products and this information must be protected if the corporation wants to make a profit, he said.

Although many people are concerned that computers aren't secure, computer security is far ahead of other information security and more thorough, Burke said. More information and money can be lost through careless conversation at a scientists conference than through computer hacking, he said.

"It's easier to steal another company's secrets than to divisions of the corporation. develop your own, and it's a heck a lot cheaper," he said.

When details of a corporation's bargaining positions fall into union hands, the revelation also can be expensive, he said. Burke added that these cases can involve millions of dollars.

Today, intelligence techniques similar to the KGB or CIA are being applied in business, Burke said. Companies need to protect themselves up front and not rely solely on patent laws or the courts, he said.

Intelligence reports are another important aspect of corporate security, Burke said. They are constantly updated on about 100 countries where Monsanto has investments, he said.

This helps protect employees working in other countries and keep peace with their governments, Burke said. He said he spends most of his time overseas checking on divisions of the corporation.

Research paper instruction helpful

SIU-C HAS BEGUN teaching undergraduate students how to write research papers, and it eventually will become a part of the undergraduate English requirement. This is a long-overdue step.

In the past, it was possible for students to graduate from SIU-C without ever having written a research paper. This was an unacceptable situation.

GE-D 102, which teaches students how to write research papers and requires students to write at least one research paper, is being accepted as a substitute for GE-D 117, 118 or 119. Eventually GE-D 102 will replace the other three courses.

For now, all incoming students must take one of the four courses as part of the undergraduate English requirement. GE-D 117, 118 and 119 are writing courses, but do not deal with writing research papers.

THIS SEMESTER 23 sections of GE-D 102 are being taught. As this number grows, the number of sections of GE-D 117, 118 and 119 will be reduced. In the coming fall semester, 10 or fewer sections of 117, 118 and 119 will be offered. The following spring semester, this number will be cut to two sections or fewer. After that, the courses will disappear.

GE-D 101, "English Composition," still is required for all undergraduates.

The change the University is making is beneficial to SIU-C students in more ways than one. The primary benefit is that all students will be taught how to research and write in-depth papers, a skill that many do not learn in high school, but which is invaluable for many jobs in business, higher education and virtually all supervisory positions.

IN ADDITION, STUDENTS will benefit from the change by knowing how to write research papers when they enter upper-level courses. In the past, many students in upper-level courses had to be taught the basics of research and writing instead of concentrating on the topic of the papers. In effect, many professors who taught junior and senior courses spent more time teaching things that students should have learned long before. But with the new English requirements, this no longer should be a problem.

It is refreshing, especially in light of SIU-C's budget problems, to see the University taking such positive steps to improve the quality of an SIU-C education.

Opinions from elsewhere

The Journal-Bulletin, Providence, R.I.

We're as vulnerable as anyone to postal nostalgia. The 3-cent first-class stamp, the overnight service, the postcard for a penny, green boxes, V-mail, delivery in the morning and the afternoon — all are vestiges of postal service past. The news that a first-class stamp now will require a quarter's investment reminds us all of this. . . .

Most people seem to believe that as the cost of mailing a letter has inexorably risen, the quality of postal service has proportionally declined. But still, we cannot quite escape the thought that mail service is miraculous. Neither rain nor sleet nor carnivorous beagles, nor even the possibility of nuclear war, have kept the Postal Service from its appointed rounds.

Of course, everyone has a horror story to tell, and Post Office service is not what it should be. But the United States still has the cheapest postal rates of any industrialized nation, and, just as important, the cost of postage has increased below inflation.

BASA sick of runaround treatment

After the commemoration rally held April 4 for Dr. Martin Luther King, many people are probably wondering who is BASA and what are their concerns.

BASA (Black American Studies Association) is a group of students concerned with the University's policies towards the BAS program and student relations. BASA does not want to be viewed as just another black organization but as a student organization because BASA is made up of different ethnic groups with common goals, not only Black goals. Black Studies offers benefits to all students.

Our movement is a movement for broader and higher education. SIU-C currently supports several groups with little or no educational direction. Our movement promotes and develops articulate leaders guided against social suppression.

We will not allow SIU-C to deny its obligation to teach the whole truth. We ask President Guyon's task force to review SIU-C.

Stop delaying; you've had over a year to reinforce the BAS faculty to three full-time members.

Stop the lying. John Guyon's desire to strengthen the minority presence on campus is a farce. SIU-C's actions over the past five years is proof. Does he consider the forced resignation of highly qualified Black leaders part of the strengthening process?

Now there is an attempt to get rid of Dr. Luke Tripp, another positive Black figure among Black students. Perhaps President Guyon's true desire is to strengthen his own power over the minority presence on campus.

Investigate why classes are smaller and you will find that it is due to its removal from the general curriculum and lack of administrative support.

University officials are avoiding the issues. Dr. Ben Shepherd, Dr. Seymour Bryson and Dr. Mary Davidson have refused to meet with the students for forums concerning the BAS program.

These are people who have reaped the benefits of the Black struggle but have become careerists. I hope they prove me wrong by giving positive action instead of vague excuses. We the people intend to cut the strings of Pettit's and Guyon's puppet administration.

We are not asking to be given anything. We are asking SIU-C to reinstate what has been taken away.

The BAS program was a gained achieved by Blacks in the '60s through long suffering and even death. Now BAS programs are under attack throughout the United States. It is up to our generation to continue the struggle.

We want a public and or verbal commitment from the administration that is not trying to dismantle the BAS program. — Rodger P. Ivy, sophomore, computer science

Higher education subject to fascist controls

When the Fascists took over German Higher Education around 1934, they made several important moves to systematically eliminate procedural and participatory democracy in German universities:

1. They increased heavily a centralized bureaucracy in order to exercise total control over organizational and academic matters.
2. They curtailed severely student and faculty rights as well as their participation in the decision-making process.
3. They opposed vehemently all professional unions which faced later elimination.
4. They required loyalty oaths and party membership of all students, faculty, and staff.

5. They made "collegiality" a key criterion for tenure (or Beamtenum) decisions.

6. They formulated and implemented policies to keep the university "free" of all "undesirable elements."

7. They created generous reward systems for those faculty members who made major contributions to the "internal" as well as "external" Nazi-agendas.

8. They initially merged, supervised and later eliminated all those academic units which were identified as "counterproductive" to "Aryan-ideology;" i.e., particularly those subjects faced elimination that contributed to "liberal, decadent and deviant thought."

9. They censored first and later closed all student newspapers and publications.

10. They made party-ideologies department or unit heads with life-time tenure (i.e., Beamte auf Lebenszeit).

And while all of this was going on, most members of the academic community kept quiet worrying only about their own petty advancements or tenures. — Hans G. Jellen, associate professor, educational administration and higher education bishop's statement. The pastoral said that the church's position remained that, "The church, in fidelity to the example Lord, does not consider herself authorized to admit women to priestly ordination."

Intravaia said she has seen the church slowly adopt the principles enunciated at the Second Vatican Council (Vatican II), a 1962 conference aimed at modernizing the Roman Catholic Church.

But modernization should only go so far, she said.

"I don't think women should be ordained as priests," Intravaia said. "It's just like men shouldn't have children. A big problem is women don't realize the roles they can take in the church."

Gummersheimer refused to comment on whether women should be ordained. "I don't think I want to share my opinion on that one," he said.

While the Catholic Church appears to stand firm on not ordaining women, Knodt said the church will have to continue addressing opposition. Knodt, who is Presbyterian, is a member of the Women's Ordination Conference of the Roman Catholic Church.

"It clearly came to a point last fall when the pope (Pope John Paul II) came to America," Knodt said. "He was challenged by protesters who presented the point that women should be ordained."

But Knodt said members of the conference don't believe the church hierarchy will act on the subject.

"They are not optimistic that a change will come during their lifetime," Knodt said.

The pastoral also suggested that girls should be allowed to join altar boys in helping priests. The segregation is a "contradiction to our call for women's more direct involvement in the life of the church," the bishops wrote.

Intravaia said girls have been assisting priests at St. Francis Xavier for five or six years.

Priests today are more sensitive to women's concerns, Intravaia said.

"They are a lot more sensitive than when I was growing up," she said. "Women even have a place in the church government."

Two-thirds of the church's parish council are women, she said.

University officials to deal with issues concerning the Black American Studies program.

This organization is making its demand known.

Several hundred people protested cuts in the BAS program April 4, which was the 20th anniversary of the assassination of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

The rally began across from Anthony Hall, where University President John C. Guyon's office is located. Protesters formed a circle around Guyon's office and chanted "John Guyon, Stop Lyin'" and "Save BAS."

Black activists are calling for black students to unite and work against circulating petitions seeking to bar students from loitering in the lobby and circle of Neely Hall, where many blacks congregate. Neely Hall Council is running the petition drive.

Activists are demanding that two BAS courses be added into the general education curriculum and that three tenure positions be added to the program.

Administrators say they are "taking a good, hard look" at students' demands.

Seymour Bryson, dean of the College of Human Resources, has said BAS will have two full-time faculty members.

But Luke Tripp, coordinator of BAS, said administrators are only trying to quiet activists with promises that he feels would be only temporary.

"It will not work," Tripp said. "It will further enrage activists. There's going to be a big demonstration this week with hundreds of people."

Tripp refused to give details about the demonstration, saying "I don't want to give others time to prepare."

Black activism doesn't stop here.

More than 50 letters about the BAS program and racism on campus have been submitted to the Daily Egyptian.

Franz Mullings, a coordinator of the April 4 rally, said the Jackson campaign has brought racial issues closer to home.

Mullings said he has become an activist for the first time.

"He (Jackson) has taken an interest in students," Mullings said. "I'm actually doing something, not just standing by and watching. I'm participating."

It has been Jackson's goal from the beginning — to get people to participate.

Panamanian Defense Forces members were involved in the most recent attack. Schamp said patrols at the site had been increased because of previous incursions.

Villahermosa's company, from Camp Lejeune, N.C., was among the 1,300 additional troops sent to the Panama Canal Zone last week to protect Americans who might be threatened by the growing instability under Panamanian military leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Earlier Tuesday, the U.S. Southern Command media center in Panama said the incident occurred after an "apparent intrusion by six to eight individuals" but a spokesman said he could not provide more details.

A spokesman for the Panamanian Defense Forces said he had no information on the incident and declined further comment.

Howard said the Marine was shot in the abdomen when he was caught in crossfire by two separate elements of a Marine patrol guarding the tank farm. He said the Marines fired after six or eight intruders set off a flare that sounded like gunfire.

Knapp said he had looked down to activate his siren when he hit the motorcycle.

"He (Walker) did the right thing," Knapp said, "but I didn't expect him to stop that suddenly."

After the collision, the bulky BMW motorcycle laid on its right side directly in front of the police car. The car sustained damage to its right headlight, with small dents in its front, right quarter panel.

The motorcycle's frame was twisted and the rear tire was bent.

The car's skid marks appeared at least 25 feet in length.

Knapp said he had been traveling about 25 to 30 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

in price. Instead, they are melting them.

"The older you are, the less familiar you probably are with CD technology," Curlee said. "Right now, college-age people are the ones buying CDs and CD equipment. Someone who bought a stereo system in 1982 did not have the option to buy a CD player."

"The sales of turntables have been steadily declining," Ken Nalder, owner of Nalder Stereo, 921 E. Main, said. "It was a little slow to begin with, but it's been rapidly declining in the past few years."

In a comparison of sales between turntables and CD players, Nalder said turntables accounted for 72 percent of sales in 1985, while CD players accounted for 28 percent. In 1986, turntables accounted for 51 percent of sales, while CD players were selling at 49 percent.

Last year, the sales of CD players surpassed that of turntables and accounted for 60 percent of sales between the two. Nalder predicted that the percentage of CD players sold this year would rise to more than 65 percent.

"The only people who are buying turntables are those people who have a sizable record collection," Nalder said.

"The medium to high priced turntables are going by the wayside," Nalder said. "The (record) purists argument is that a good turntable is better than a compact disc player, but that hasn't proven to be true."

Nalder said that good, high technology turntables probably will no longer be made once compact disc players dominate the market.

"Albums are a perishable item," Curlee said. "But some people prefer the sound of albums. Twenty years from now there will still be albums, but they will be a specialty item."

"There is more money invested in albums than in any other medium in the recording industry," Curlee said. "Many people have sizable record collections and are not going to readily replace their albums with CDs."

Advice To The Drug Worn

by Dr. Buzz

A weekly column answering alcohol and drug questions.

Dear Dr. Buzz,

When comedian John Belushi died of an overdose, some of the papers said he was using a combination of drugs. What difference does that make? How dangerous is it to take more than one drug at a time?

-Doing It!

Dear Doing It!

An assumption we make about people who are in college is they are pretty smart. It is smart of you to ask. Using any drug can be dangerous. Using drugs in combination is very dangerous, and depends on many factors such as your individual body chemistry, weight, and the drugs involved. You should be particularly aware of the problems of combining alcohol and drugs. Alcohol in combination with other drugs can be fatal as such celebrities as Judy Garland, Brian Jones of the Rolling Stones, and Janice Joplin would tell you if they were here. While we cannot list all the substances with which alcohol acts adversely, barbiturates, tranquilizers and PCP are among the deadliest.

Dear Dr. Buzz,

I've been smoking marijuana since I was 15 - not very often and just to relax. Since I was a sophomore I've used speed before important exams. I never have any problems with these drugs. Does that mean I could use other drugs like cocaine without getting hooked?

-Wondering

Dear Wondering,

Or is it dear wondering? Sounds like you are becoming a connoisseur of drugs. A lot of people get fooled into thinking they can use drugs and not get hooked on them. It's true some people are more likely than others to get addicted. It is also true that some substances are more addictive than others. The important point is that all drugs can be dangerous and can be abused. Ten million problem drinkers and two million cocaine addicts started somewhere. Are you thinking about becoming a statistic?

If you have questions about alcohol or drugs - send them to Dr. Buzz c/o the Wellness Center or call 536-4441.

Guidelines set for evaluation of general studies

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

The faculty senate approved procedures for a University-wide review of undergraduate education and guidelines for general education courses Tuesday.

Mary Lou Higginson, acting associate vice president for academic affairs, said the review would be a major undertaking that will involve many hours of committee work and a lot of money.

The review, which is being conducted in response to a summer 1987 mandate from the Illinois Board of Higher Education that state universities conduct regular reviews of undergraduate education, will be implemented over a period of four years.

Faculty senator Gary Kolb, said the review, saying "It is going to be a drain on our resources."

Higginson said the IBHE recognized the burden of the review would place on the University. The University has requested $40,000 in the 1988 fiscal budget to implement the review, she said.

"No funding will be taken away from any programs," Higginson said.

Existing departmental review procedures and funding will be used to help get the University-wide review underway. The review also could be tied into assessments for the University's accreditation review, Higginson said.

The major discussion item before the senate was its final item, the proposed revision in the faculty grievance procedure.

The discussion, which lasted for more than an hour, mostly dealt with the organization of the Judicial Review Board and the compensation of its members.

If approved by the Board of Trustees, the revised procedure would move the decision of binding arbitration from the Board of Trustees level to the University president level.

With the current procedures, the complainant and the Board of Trustees must jointly agree to binding arbitration.

Under the revision, the complainant and the president would agree to binding arbitration, or the complainant may appeal the president's decision to the Board of Trustees. If the complainant is dissatisfied with the board's decision, he or she may take legal action in federal court.

Further discussion on the proposed revisions will take place at the faculty senate's annual meeting of the academic year on April 26.

Earlier in the meeting, the senate tabled a motion to endorse the establishment of a campus chapter of the Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

The motion was tabled so the senate's executive committee could further study the legality of the proposed $3-per-student, waivable fee to fund IPIRG, senate president Elaine Alden said.

Trudy Hale, Students for IPIRG representative, said the group does not need the endorsement of the senate to have a campus chapter. IPIRG wants the endorsement to symbolize "the support of the whole campus community," she said.

Only the Board of Trustees and the chancellor have the final say in the proposed optional fee increase.

The Undergraduate Student Organization, the Graduate and Professional Student Council and more than 10,000 students have shown support for the establishment of the IPIRG chapter, Hale said.

More than 150 faculty members also have shown support for IPIRG, she added. "The faculty want IPIRG because it would add to the educational environment," she said.

In other business the senate: — Approved changes in the Honors Program. The changes will raise the ACT score requirement for entering freshmen honors students by one point. Wording for honors degrees also will be changed. A Latin designation will be used for graduating with honors and a separate designation will be used for participation in the honors program.

— Forwarded its report of the University mission statement draft to president John C. Guyon.

— Tabled a motion to approve research faculty titles. Some senators were concerned about sources of research faculty funding.

— Approved a resolution changing payment of faculty retirement benefits.

— Approved the nomination of John Moore, lecturer in health education, as faculty representative to the University AIDS Task Force.

Dissident priest censured

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The board of trustees of The Catholic University of America ordered the Rev. Charles Curran Tuesday to stop teaching theology but said the dissident priest could remain at the university.

The trustees, headed by Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago, issued a brief statement saying they had taken final action in stripping Curran, who dissents on church teachings on abortion, birth control and homosexuality, of his status as an official Roman Catholic theologian.

"The Board of Trustees of The Catholic University of America today removed the canonical mission of the Rev. Charles E. Curran," the statement said. "This action does not remove Father Curran's tenure with the university. It does bar him from teaching in the university's department of theology."

Curran, at odds with the church hierarchy and Vatican bureaucracy for two decades, was told in 1986 by the Vatican that his scholarly dissent made him "neither suitable nor eligible to teach Catholic theology."

While barring Curran from teaching in the school's Vatican-accredited theology department, the trustees authorized a committee to meet with Curran to "enter into discussions ... concerning an alternative teaching assignment within an area of his professional competence."

The 56-year-old scholar said he was "disappointed" by the board's action "and I believe the board is wrong."

Services for victim set

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

Funeral services for murder victim Michael D. Miley, a former University student, will be held at 1 p.m. today at Elm Street Baptist Church in Murphysboro.

Police refused Tuesday to disclose details of Miley's death or of the investigation.

Illinois police Master Sgt. Richard Evans said that the cause of death may be released later, but that police never disclose the nature of injuries found on the body.

"That type of information comes back to haunt us in court," Evans said, claiming that releasing information would hinder a future court case.

A Murphysboro police officer said they have no suspects.

Miley's identity was determined from fingerprints Monday afternoon, Murphysboro police said.

Miley's body was found in the trunk of his car at 1 a.m. Sunday. A group of teen-agers discovered the car on University-owned property on Rocky Comfort Road, seven miles southwest of Devil's Kitchen Lake in northeast Union County.

Miley was reported missing by his family Wednesday night.

Men clash in 'Catharsis'

Sexuality at issue in play about gay, Vietnam veteran

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

The conflict between a therapist and his gay client is the subject of a play to be produced on campus this week.

"Catharsis," by Tommy Westerfield, graduate student in playwriting, will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday at the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building.

The play also will be produced at the Chicago Theater in August. It will run for six weekends, Westerfield said.

"Catharsis" centers around a Vietnam veteran turned psychologist, who has flashbacks of his war experiences during his therapy sessions with his client, a young gay man. The client turns up in his flashbacks in the roles of people from his Vietnam days including his former general and a Vietnamese boy.

"It (the play) was originally supposed to be a good, short, one-act play. I thought the situation with a gay client and heterosexual psychologist was a good conflict," Westerfield said.

He said the play turned into something larger in scope as he continued working on it. "I decided to write more about who the psychologist was. I know a psychologist who is a Vietnam veteran and the play is my imagination of his life," he said.

"Catharsis" focuses on the psychologist's dilemma — he doesn't want to become involved with the problems of his client, yet does no matter how objective or distant he tries to be.

"The play revolves around the differences between gay men and straight men, but also shows a common bond between them, things that are common to all men," Westerfield said.

Westerfield, 34, began writing about five years ago.

He said he was drawn to playwriting because "you get that immediate reaction from the audience. You see people cry or laugh; they all become one as they focus on what is happening in the story."

After he graduates,

'Sam and Dave' soul singer dies

SYCAMORE, Ga. (UPI) - Dave Prater Jr., half of the Sam and Dave singing team that helped define soul music with songs like "Hold On, I'm Coming" and "Soul Man," died in a car wreck, authorities said Tuesday.

Prater, 50, a resident of Paterson, N.J., ran off a highway and hit a tree while driving to visit his mother during the weekend, the Georgia Highway Patrol said.

Nancy Jobe, a dispatcher in the patrol office in Cordele, which investigated the accident, said Prater was driving the car when it wrecked at high speed on Georgia Highway 32 about 4 miles east of Sycamore in Turner County Saturday morning.

"The report says the vehicle left the highway at a high rate of speed, traveled 224 feet and struck some trees," Jobe said.

Tommy Westerfield, author of "Catharsis," won a Playwright Center contest last December. The play will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday at the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building.

"It (the play) was originally supposed to be a good, short, one-act play. I thought the situation with a gay client and a heterosexual psychologist was a good conflict. I decided to write more about who the psychologist was. I know a psychologist who is a Vietnam veteran and the play is my imagination of his life."

—Tommy Westerfield

Westerfield said he wants to continue writing plays and submitting his work for production.

"I may teach or work in the theater because it would be helpful, plus it would be an income, but it's not as important as having the freedom and time to keep writing," Westerfield said.

Westerfield has had several other plays produced at the University, including "Monasteries," which was produced last summer, and "Genesis — Chapter 4, verses 1 to 18," produced last year.

Westerfield won a

Playwright Center contest last December.

He received second place in the Julie Harris Beverly Hills Theater Guild playwriting contest in 1987 for his production of "Monasteries." A Los Angeles director is trying to arrange a production of the play in New York this summer, Westerfield said.

Admission to "Catharsis" is free, but tickets should be obtained in advance at the theater box office in the Communications Building from noon to 4:30 p.m. or by calling 453-3001.

3 journalists honored as Master Editors

Three newsmen from central and Southern Illinois have been selected for the 1988 Master Editor award.

They will be honored at the annual Southern Illinois Editorial Association luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Friday at the Giant City State Park Lodge.

The journalists are Edward H. Armstrong, editor of the Springfield State Journal-Register, Clifton F. Caldwell, former owner of the Christopher Progress and the Herrin Spokesman, and Allan A. Seiler, editor and part owner of the Pittsfield Pike Press. They also will have their pictures installed in the recently dedicated Journalism Hall of Fame in the School of Journalism wing in the Communications Building.

Armstrong began his career as a reporter for the Illinois State Register in 1950 after receiving a bachelor's degree in history from Illinois College.

Armstrong was named editor of the Register in 1964. When the paper merged with the Illinois State Journal in 1974, he was designated editor of the new State Journal-Register. The Journal-Register is owned by Copley press group.

Armstrong has won several Copley newspaper awards for reporting and editorial writing. For the past 15 years he had written a weekly column that is distributed by Copley News Service.

Caldwell started his newspaper work in 1947 as an advertising salesman for the Ada, Okla., Evening News, shortly after he received a bachelor's degree in journalism from the Oklahoma University School of Journalism. He subsequently worked a number of positions for newspapers in Texas, Massachusetts and Florida.

In 1973 Caldwell settled in Southern Illinois. He purchased the Progress and the Spokesman after inspecting 29 newspapers and an 11,000-mile road trip across the U.S.

The two papers were purchased in July 1987 by American Publishing, a subsidiary of Hollinger, Inc. Seiler, a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, has worked as a journalist since 1939. For the past 23 years he has worked as editor, publisher and part owner of the Pike Press and the Press' predecessor, the Pike County Republican.

Seiler is a past president of the Illinois Press Association and the International Society of Weekly Newspaper Editors. He recently turned control of the Pike Press over to his daughter Anne.

SIU-E's Air Force ROTC unit spared from consolidation plans

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer
and UPI

SIU-E's Air Force ROTC unit was among 37 college ROTC units nationwide that were spared from consolidation with units at other nearby colleges.

The Air Force announced Monday that it was canceling plans to close or consolidate 37 college ROTC units in 23 states because of the low productivity of the units.

The units to be closed were ranked on the basis of students participating in ROTC, total number of officers graduated, number of engineer officers and minority officers and the cost per cadet.

The SIU-E unit would have been consolidated with a unit at Parks College in Cahokia, Lt. Col. Jan Dalby, an Air Force spokesman, said Tuesday.

The plans were canceled because the schools weren't told in advance how they were being judged.

A spokesman from the Edwardsville unit said he didn't know why the unit had been targeted for consolidation.

"I don't know any more than what you know," he told a Daily Egyptian reporter.

In a brief statement Monday, Air Force secretary Edward Aldridge said he had "decided out of fairness, the Air Force should postpone its closure and consolidation plan for two years."

The closure and consolidation plan was the result of budget cutbacks. The Air Force will again rank its ROTC units in 1990 and use the same criteria to choose units for closing if budget cutbacks continue to be an issue, the statement said.

The closure plan, announced in January, would have taken place over the next 18 months. It would have saved about $10 million a year in salaries and administrative costs and affected 4,488 students.

Before the national ranking, ROTC units were judged only on whether they were "viable" or not, a spokesman said. "Viability" meant that a unit had at least 17 cadets in the junior class.

SIU-C has 21 cadets in its junior class, an SIU-C ROTC spokesman said. SIU-E has 19 cadets in its junior class.

"The SIU-C program has never had a viability problem," Col. Walter N. Schrecker said.

Other units scheduled for closing were Alabama State University, the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Iowa and the University of North Carolina.

Fashion magazine hits China

NEW YORK (UPI) — ELLE magazine, which carries the latest word in high fashion, reported Tuesday it will be published in China where women are breaking out of years of lock-step conformity.

A Chinese official called it "punishment for the policies of the cultural revolution."

The magazine's owner, Paris-based Hachette Publications Inc., said it had entered into a joint venture with the government-run Shanghai Translation Publishing House to publish ELLE-World Fashion.

The first 100,000 copies are scheduled to hit Chinese newsstands in July and will sell for 5 yuan, or about $1.50 an issue.

Robert Gutwillig, international publisher of Hachette, said the magazine is targeting urban, educated career women who have had some exposure to Western ideas, if only through television.

"We are entering the People's Republic of China at their invitation," he said.

'Emperor' film hailed, criticized by Chinese

BEIJING (UPI) — The Academy Award sweep by "The Last Emperor" was hailed in China Tuesday, but came amid criticism of the film's production and historical accuracy that is entangled with concern over preserving Chinese cultural heritage.

The film does not open in Chinese theaters until next month, but it already has elicited sharp reactions among the few Chinese who have seen it — and even among some who have not.

"The Last Emperor" — the first Western production to gain the full cooperation of the Chinese government — is the sweeping biography of China's last imperial ruler, Pu Yi, who ascended the Dragon Throne at 3. The boy emperor became an anachronism in 1912 when China became a republic.

He abdicated, ending more than 3,000 years of imperial rule, ended up a prisoner of the new regime and eventually was "re-educated." He spent his last years in near obscurity.

From the fallen monarch's surviving 61-year-old brother, who served as the film's technical adviser, to the communist government that once jailed them both as war criminals, the epic by Italian director Bernardo Bertolucci has elicited pride and praise.

"The Last Emperor" won Oscars in every category in which it had been nominated, including best picture and best director. Bertolucci traveled to China in 1984 intent on making one of two pictures in the communist nation. The Chinese government rejected making a movie based on Andre Malraux's "La Condition Humaine," or "Man's Fate," but agreed to the film proposal based on Pu Yi's autobiography, "From Emperor to Citizen."

The official Xinhua news agency noted "it is the first time in the past decades that a film with a theme on and produced in China won Oscar awards."

Despite the Chinese government's full cooperation in the film's production and the official accolades for the awards, "The Last Emperor" has been criticized in the press and even during the current session of China's parliament.

Some critics charge the government showed favoritism and sidestepped cultural protection policies to allow Bertolucci unparalleled access to Beijing's Forbidden City, the one-time imperial palace and now a state museum, where the film's most spectacular scenes were shot with thousands of lavishly costumed extras.

Others claim the screenplay distorted the historical record of Pu Yi, who died in 1967 at 69, and misrepresented imperial court life and early communist China.

Chinese officials have been forced to defend the film.

Country mourns death of author

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Black and white South Africans joined Tuesday in mourning Alan Paton, the author of "Cry, the Beloved Country" who died with an unfulfilled dream of a united South Africa freed of racial barriers.

Paton, 85, died at his home near Durban Tuesday morning following a brief battle against throat cancer. Surgeons found a tumor in Paton's esophagus April 4 and "the cancer began spreading rapidly," his wife, Anne, said.

Paton was a writer, political philosopher and outspoken critic of the white-led government's apartheid policies of racial separation and discrimination.

South Africans, including President Pieter W. Botha and Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, Tuesday mourned the death.

Asian club offers peace kites

By Dana Schulte
Staff Writer

The Asian Studies Association hopes to promote world peace through cultural interaction and a day of kite flying, an association official says.

The International Kite Fest will be at 10 a.m. Sunday at the rugby field behind Abe Martin Field, Bob Bittle, ASA president, said. There will be seven contest categories, including the highest flying, most beautiful, most culturally significant and best design, Bittle said.

Kite fliers can participate in any or all of the events and can fly the same kite each time. The entry fee for each event is $1, he said. Winners of each event will receive a plaque.

"We try to promote cultural interaction. Many students come from countries where they have large kite festivals, such as China," Bittle said. "and kite flying is a growing interest in the U.S. as well."

The Kite Fest will give students an opportunity to meet people from other countries and learn from one another, he said.

ASA became a Registered Student Organization in September. Since then, the 30-member club has sponsored films, speakers and other events that offer information about Asian languages, societies, philosophy, religion and history, Bittle said.

Entrants can register for the Kite Fest today on the first floor of the Student Center, Thursday in Neckers breezeway and Friday in Faner breezeway.

'Challenge of Change' set for secretaries' seminar

Southern Lakes Chapter for Professional Secretaries International will sponsor its annual seminar from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 26 at the Student Center.

Gerald Jernigan, CPS, assistant professor in the Department of Business

Education and Office Administration at Southeast Missouri State University will present "Business Communication: Reaching the World."

Registration deadline is April 18 and the $25 fee includes lunch.

Donations by alumni to colleges help set $8.5 billion record

NEW YORK (UPI) — A surge in private support of U.S. colleges and universities helped set an $8.5 billion record last year with alumni donations accounting for half of the estimated increase, an education advocacy group said Tuesday.

Alumni contributions reached a high of $2.3 billion or 27.6 percent of all higher education donations in school year 1986-87, said Paul Miller, a spokesman for the Council for Aid to Education.

That amounted to half of the estimated $1.1 billion increase for the past year, or 28.5 percent of the total increase, he said.

That was "the largest year-to-year gain ever recorded" by the council, said Miller.

John Haire, the group's president, said, "Alma mater's sons and daughters have been setting records right along, but last year they outdid themselves."

Alumni and non-alumni donor groups each gave more than $2 billion for the first time, said Miller. Donations from non-alumni individuals amounted to about $2.1 billion, or 24.3 percent of total contributions, he said.

The council, which conducts an annual survey, is known for its use of the promotional slogan, "Give to the college of your choice." The survey is cosponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education and the National Association of Independent Schools.

The survey, which was completed before the crash on Wall Street, represents support from 22.4 percent of U.S. alumni, who are 25 years and older, said Miller. It is estimated to be about 80 to 85 percent of all private giving to the 1,174 colleges surveyed, he said.

The increase in alumni giving was attributed to an increased number of college graduates — up from 11 percent in 1970 to 19 percent of the U.S. population, adding nearly 1 million new graduates each year, he said.

"The range in average support extended from a high $44.4 million for private doctoral universities (up 10 percent on the year) to $327,000 for public two-year community colleges, a 32 percent increase," Miller said.

Stanford University, which took first place from Harvard, in 1985, maintained its top position, with $198,534,823, the survey showed. Harvard gained $177,976,000 for second place and Cornell University reported contributions of $149,702,435, showing a 51 percent rise in alumni giving.

Among the other colleges in the top 10 were:

- University of Minnesota;
- Yale;
- Columbia;
- Washington University (St. Louis.);
- Massachusetts Institute of Technology;
- Johns Hopkins University;
- University of Southern California.

The University of California, with $229,666,722 and the University of Texas with $139,114,353 in contributions — were not included because they include several major institutions that function independently.

Students to raise funds for hungry

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — College and high school students from the St. Louis area will take part April 16 in the fourth annual Hunger Clean-up to raise money for local and national hunger projects, student leaders announced Tuesday.

More than 100 students from St. Louis University will join in the efforts with pupils from Washington University, the University of Missouri at St. Louis and the three campuses of St. Louis Community College and Nerinx Hall High School.

The students will be supervised by the St. Louis University chapter of the Missouri Public Interest Research Group.

Novelist's work displayed

Exhibit features art, manuscripts of British writer

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

British novelist and poet Lawrence Durrell will be the topic of discussion during the Fifth Annual International Lawrence Durrell Conference, Thursday through Saturday.

An exhibit of Durrell's papers, art work and manuscripts from Morris Library's Special Collections will be on display from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning Friday and continuing until the fall semester on the second floor of Morris Library.

Durrell first came to critical attention in the 1950s, after the publication of his novel "Justine," Dick Peterson, chairman of the English department said.

"Justine" was the first part of a larger work called "The Alexandria Quartet," which consists of four novels about modern love.

Durrell established himself as one of the most popular and critically acclaimed writers of the post-war era after the publication of his books, "Balthazar" in 1958, "Mountolive" in 1958 and "Clea" in 1960.

He has had three plays produced and a collection of his poems published. He also is an amateur painter.

Durrell was born in 1912 in India. He continues to write from his home in France.

A collection of Durrell's works was purchased by the library between 1969 and 1970, David Koch, curator of Special Collections said.

The collection contains many of Durrell's working notes, manuscripts and paintings amassed during the years of 1935 to 1969, Koch said.

The library continues to buy other Durrell items to add to the collection, he added.

The exhibit will feature two of Durrell's original paintings and an assembly of smaller paintings that he did in his notebooks, Koch said. The paintings are more like drawings than paintings because they are done in tempera paints, not oils, he explained.

Peterson said the exhibit is a "wonderful collection and probably the most extensive collection of his works."

The library's Special Collections consist of many writers of the 20th century who became popular between the two World Wars, he said.

"He (Durrell) is a little outside the war area, but he began writing about then," Koch said.

Many of his writings focused on the problems of modern life and used experimental fiction, he said.

The most controversial element of Durrell's writing is his portrayal of women and their relationships with men. His women character portrayals have been subjected to publicity and literary criticism, Peterson said.

"Many critics say his characters seem to represent ideas rather than flesh and blood creations," he said.

Examples of these characters can be found in his five novels known collectively as the "Avignon Quintet" published from 1974 to 1985.

The conference is free to SIU-C faculty, staff and students. A banquet at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday at the Giant City Lodge requires a separate fee of $15.

Registration deadline is April 13 for both the conference and banquet. For reservations call the Division of Continuing Education at 536-7751.

Moscovites buy slice of America

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviets braved a bitter wind and snow flurries Tuesday to sample a slice of America — free pizza — with the latest opening of a joint U.S.-Soviet venture.

Astro Pizza, a partnership owned 51 percent by the Moscow city government and 49 percent by USSO-Food International Inc., of Piscataway, N.J., opened for business with its mobile kitchen perched on the Lenin Hills overlooking the Soviet capital.

"It's tasty, it's fresh, it's

A crowd gathered around the van as the joint venture was declared officially open ...

free delivery," read an English sign on the 36-foot-long van, also emblazoned with Cyrillic lettering proclaiming the new joint venture.

The offer of free delivery will remain unfulfilled for the foreseeable future, but the steady flow of Russians seemed to accept the other claims. A crowd gathered around the van as the joint venture was declared officially open, pushing toward the window to sample free slices of pizza.

In capitalist tradition, the samples soon were exhausted and those standing in line were told the mobile store distributing the pizza would reopen in 30 minutes to begin selling for cash.

Food packagers start deleting chemicals depleting ozone layer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Manufacturers of foam food containers said Tuesday they will sharply cut back their use of chemicals that are most damaging to the ozone layer, Earth's shield against cancer-causing ultraviolet light.

Instead, a similar chemical that poses less of a threat to the atmospheric buffer will be used for the ubiquitous packaging materials.

The Foodservice and Packaging Institute Inc., an industry group representing the makers of cartons, boxes, paper and plastic plates, egg cartons and other disposable food containers, said that by the end of 1988 it's "expected that all manufacturers of disposable products for food service will discontinue producing products using fully halogenated chlorofluorocarbons in their manufacture."

The announcement follows President Reagan's signing of an international agreement last week, called the Montreal Protocol, to reduce the use of chlorofluorocarbons by 50 percent by 1998. Also, Du Pont, the world's largest manufacturer of the chemicals, announced last month that it will begin to phase out production of CFCs, as the chemicals are commonly known. The company set no timetable for ending production.

Scientists have concluded that CFCs erode the ozone layer high in the atmosphere by touching off a chemical reaction. The compounds are used to make the bubbles in foam containers, as an industrial cleaning agent, in refrigerants, and in packing and other foams.

They were used as propellants in aerosol cans, but that use was phased out when concern about ozone damage was first reported.

The food packagers said less than a third of the foam products for food service currently contain the ozone-damaging CFCs, but eliminating them would be a positive step.

"All the companies are doing this because it's the right thing to do. It's environmentally responsible thing to do," said Jeffrey Eves, vice president of the Fort Howard Corp. of Green Bay, Wis., which uses 5 million pounds of CFCs per year.

Jeffrey Bow, president of the industry group, said manufacturers would be switching from "fully halogenated CFCs" to a chemical called HCFC. The fully halogenated compounds are very persistent and over time make their way to the stratosphere where ultraviolet light breaks them down, freeing chlorine atoms.

The chlorine then starts a chemical chain reaction that eventually breaks down ozone. The loss of ozone allows ultraviolet light to penetrate to Earth's surface where it causes skin cancer, eye damage and other environmental problems.

HCFC substitutes a hydrogen atom for a chlorine one in the compound, making it more likely to break down before reaching the ozone layer, and is thus believed to be 95 percent less potent in depleting the ozone layer.

The Environmental Protection Agency and environmental groups applauded the industry group.

'Rare' meals cause stew

BEIJING (UPI) — Boiled turtles, braised masked civet and a dish made with giant salamanders may be favorite dishes in south China, but restaurateurs serving protected animals are getting some heat, the China Environmental Journal said Tuesday.

Police and environmental protection officials in the Shenzhen special economic zone in Guangdong Province are cracking down on the sale of rare animals in an effort to protect some species from extinction.

In the most recent case, the paper said, investigators discovered a restaurant with a freezer full of meat from a dozen protected animals, including tigers, giant salamanders, pangolins and owls. They also found 28 skinned rhesus monkey heads, three leopard skins and one tiger pelt at the Xiangmihu Holiday Village restaurant.

Among the dishes listed on its menu were "turtles boiled with medicinal herbs," "braised masked civet," and "monkey meat boiled with medicinal herbs."

Police are investigating the eatery and its owner, believed to be a Kowloon entrepreneur, for possible violations of environmental protection laws.

The report said the restaurant has killed at least 27 boa constrictors, 28 rhesus monkeys, 41 owls, 58 pangolins, 30 giant salamanders and one tiger since mid-January.

Bakker mansion no sale

TEGA CAY, S.C. (UPI) — PTL put its valuables on the auction block Tuesday but failed to get a single bid on Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker's palatial parsonage with its leaky roof and raised only about half of what was hoped for on other property.

Bakker, reached at his home in Palm Springs, Calif., said he would buy the mansion himself if he had the money.

"That home has a great deal of emotional value to us," said Bakker, who founded PTL 10 years ago and lost it over a sex scandal. "It was our home for eight years and we raised our children there."

"It was our home," he said quietly. "We'd like to buy it, but we just don't have the money to do that at all."

Auctioneer Rodney Robinson tried to start bidding on the house, one of seven on the auction block to help bail out bankrupt PTL, at $900,000. But when he got to $500,000 without a bid the auction was halted. Robinson speculated that bidders were just shy.

"We understand some people are talking to PTL about a private offer," Robinson said. "Some people are just shy at an auction."

The auction came up with $1,900,000 for six homes, a commercial tract and a vacant lot. PTL got another $1.9 million from the private sale of 55 acres of commercial property, bringing the combined property sale to $3,800,000.

PTL had hoped to raise $7 million from the auction and private sale. The ministry loses its bankruptcy court protection May 2, when it must plunk down at least $4 million toward its debt of more than $60 million.

The Bakkers were evicted from the lavish, 5-story dwelling on Lake Wylie last summer while the Rev. Jerry Falwell was in charge at PTL, but for months they refused to leave, claiming the former PTL board had given them the home.

"It was supposed to be ours," Tammy Faye said Monday from Palm Springs. "But that's neither here nor there now."

In their heyday the Bakkers lived well, with luxury cars, servants, jewelry and furs. But all that dissipated after his March 1987 resignation over a one-time sexual fling with a New York church secretary.

The Bakkers were in California when he resigned but later they returned to Tega Cay, claiming first that they wanted time to say goodbye to friends and then that they intended to stay.

This is no time to worry about how you're going to get your stuff home.

The good news is there is life after finals. And we can make it a little easier. At Ryder we can rent you any size van or truck you need. Vans that are fun to drive. (Fun... what's that?) Many are automatics. Most have power steering, air conditioning and AM/FM radio. We can also help with boxes, hand trucks, even tips on loading a truck. Which could help take a load off your mind. Whatever's left of it.

Pastoral labels 'sexism' a sin, urges wider roles for women

ALTON, Ill. (UPI) — Roman Catholic bishops who drafted a letter denouncing sexism as a sin have been cowed by radical feminists whose philosophy regards God as "the first sexist," anti-feminist Phyllis Schlafly said Tuesday.

"It is unfortunate that a few bishops have bugled retreat in the face of the militant feminists," said Schlafly, president of the ultra-conservative Eagle Forum.

In Chicago, Kathleen Sullivan, director of the National Catholic Coalition, also criticized the draft letter, saying it "emerged with the same feminist pattern that was rejected" last October at a Synod of Catholic bishops in Rome.

The 164-page draft released by the nation's Roman Catholic bishops Monday calls for granting women wider and more powerful roles in church and society.

It labels sexism a "sin" and urges action on a host of equal-rights issues, but maintains that the church "is not free" to ordain women as priests.

The draft, "Partners in the Mystery of Redemption," is the all-male hierarchy's most sustained statement on the role of women and the feminist revolution.

But Schlafly and Sullivan charged that the panel of bishops who drafted the statement — headed by Bishop Joseph Imesch of Joliet — was cowed by feminists.

Sullivan said the draft pastoral displays a tolerance of dissent that "is only encouraging the radical feminists who are using the tools of intimidation to advance their agenda."

And Schlafly observed, "A few bishops apparently are trying to create a new sin hitherto unknown to the Ten Commandments."

Lutherans, Episcopalians seek feminine God images

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An officially appointed group of Lutheran and Episcopal theologians called on their parent denominations Tuesday to develop and use feminine imagery for God and urged joint study toward a new attitude on homosexuality.

The 90-page report, "Implications of the Gospel," is part of a process by which the two churches hope to enter into full communion with one another under which there would be joint recognition of the ministries of each denomination and complete altar and pulpit fellowship, allowing priests and pastors to officiate in churches of the other body.

The Episcopal Church and the three Lutheran bodies that now make up the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America have had interim, or provisional, communion since 1982.

In the new document, which sought to underscore agreements and differences in the way the two churches understand the Gospel, the theologians noted "there have been no divisive theological controversies between the two churches."

But their call for more inclusive imagery by the two churches in the manner in which they refer to God could spark debate in both denominations. Together the two bodies have about 8 million members.

Graham brings gospel to China

BEIJING (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham arrived Tuesday on his first trip to China to preach the gospel to Chinese believers and to visit his wife's hometown, declaring his tour of the world's largest officially atheist nation was "a dream fulfilled."

Graham, 69, will bring his fiery oratory skills to a half-dozen Chinese churches during the next three weeks, taking advantage of eased restrictions on organized religion and increasing interest by young Chinese.

The trip was planned for last year, but it was scrubbed when Graham fell and fractured a rib.

Hijackers to free hostages

Officials assure hostages will go free in Algeria

LARNACA, Cyprus (UPI) — The hijackers of a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet freed a dozen of their captives in exchange for fuel and took off early Wednesday to Algeria with about 35 hostages in the ninth day of an odyssey of terror.

But after the plane's departure, Cypriot government spokesman Akis Fantis said there were assurances the passengers would be released on arrival in Algeria. He declined to say who gave the assurances, but added, "I assume the Algerians are reliable people."

In Algiers, a senior Algerian official said his government allowed the jetliner to fly to the country "to find a solution" to the ordeal.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, told United Press International the decision to allow the jet into Algiers followed contacts Monday between Algerian President Bendjedid Chadli and the leader of Kuwait.

Asked if an Algerian delegation, reported to have taken part in negotiations at Larnaca, had reached a preliminary agreement with the hijackers, the official said only, "If they are coming here, it is to find a solution."

The Boeing 747 lifted off the runway at 1:19 a.m. (5:15 p.m.

CDT Tuesday) and swept out across the black waters of the Mediterranean to the third country since the ordeal began April 5 when the plane was forced to land in Iran.

The blue and white jet departed about an hour after the pilot filed a flight plan with the Larnaca control tower to go to the Algerian capital of Algiers.

Forty people remained aboard the jet, including five to 10 hijackers.

The air pirates, who sources said stuck to their demand Kuwait release 17 jailed Moslem extremists, forced the plane to land in Cyprus Friday. Two Kuwaiti hostages were killed — one Saturday and one Monday —

Official: Iran offered to raid hijacked plane, Kuwait rejected offer

LONDON (UPI) — Iran's deputy foreign minister said Tuesday Tehran had offered to storm the hijacked Kuwaiti jumbo when it was on the ground in Iran but Kuwait rejected the offer.

Javad Larijani also said his country would not permit the plane to re-enter Iran if it took off from Cyprus and said Iran would shoot down the plane if necessary.

"We already announced all the airports will be closed and any approaching airplanes will be shot down even," he said at a news conference. "Iran will be closed to all hijacked airplanes forever."

The minister, the Ayatollah Khomeini's chief negotiator at the United Nations, said while the Kuwaiti jumbo was in Mashhad, Iran, for four days last week, the Iranian government offered to storm the plane.

"The government of Kuwait rejected that offer," Larijani said. "They said we are not going to accept the responsibility of the outcome of that operation."

He said Iran eventually refueled the plane fearing the hijackers, who are demanding the release of 17 Shiite extremists jailed in Kuwait, were going to blow up the Boeing 747. The plane was hijacked April 4 on a non-stop flight from Bangkok, Thailand to Kuwait with 112 people aboard.

During the 80 hours the plane was in Mashhad, the hijackers released 57 passengers. The plane left Iran Friday and when officials refused to allow it to land in Beirut, it landed in Larnaca, Cyprus. One other hostage was released but two Kuwaiti men were killed by the hijackers when authorities refused to refuel the plane

TWA hijacking suspect to be tried in juvenile court

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — A court ruled Tuesday that a Lebanese suspect in the 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner and slaying of a U.S. sailor will receive at the most a 15-year prison sentence if convicted because he was a minor at the time.

A state court in Frankfurt ruled that Mohammad Hamadi, 22, would be tried by a juvenile court because he was only 19 three years ago.

He is accused of being an accomplice in the 17-day hijacking in 1985 of TWA Flight 847, seized by air pirates on a flight from Athens to Rome, and the killing of one of its passengers, U.S. Navy diver Robert Stethem.

Under West German law, a juvenile court may impose prison sentences ranging from six months to 15 years. An ordinary court may give life sentences for murder.

A Justice Ministry spokesman in Bonn said it was not clear whether Hamadi would be held in a detention home for youths or in a regular prison if convicted.

The ministry spokesman said under the West German penal code, minors are sent to a detention home, but the juvenile court might take into account the fact that Hamadi now is older than 21.

The Bonn government, fearing for the lives of two Germans kidnapped in Beirut last year after Hamadi's arrest, rejected an American extradition request and promised Hamadi would be tried in West Germany instead of the United States.

Hamadi's brother, Abbas Hamadi, 29, is on trial before a state court in Duesseldorf for allegedly being a member of a commando unit that kidnapped the two German businessmen in Lebanon.

In Duesseldorf Tuesday, the lawyer for Abbas Hamadi said his client was guilty of possessing explosives, but did not kidnap the two Germans in Beirut to keep his younger brother from being tried on the hijacking and murder charges.

"He is a windbag who got into the limelight through the arrest of his brother and tried to make himself important," Eckart Hild, the lawyer, told the state court.

Testimony at the Duesseldorf trial disclosed West Germany rejected an American extradition request because it feared for the lives of Alfred Schmidt and Rudolfe Cordes. Schmidt was released after seven months in captivity but Cordes is still held.

Hild discounted the threats Abbas Hamadi is accused of making against the hostages in telephone calls from Beirut to friends in West Germany that were monitored.

Super collider's budget cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Efforts to build the world's largest atom smasher are caught in a money crunch, senators said Tuesday, and the project may get less than half of the $363 million President Reagan requested for the coming year.

Physicist Leon Lederman, a leading booster of the project to build the superconducting super collider, said "we can squeak through" with $150 million. An Energy Department official said $150 million would slow the work, but offered to discuss with Congress a compromise budget figure.

A handful of scientists appearing before Senate Energy research subcommittee gave conflicting advice about the need for the super collider, which would hurl atoms around a 53-mile underground track.

Michael Fisher of Cornell University said "small science" desperately needs funding. "Big projects certainly have their place in science and technology," he said, "but they are not its life blood."

"It seems unlikely to this senator that you'll get full funding," subcommittee Chairman Wendell Ford, D-Ky., told James Decker, the Energy Department's acting director of energy research.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., chairman of the parent Energy Committee, sent a statement to the hearing stating priorities must be set. "We are now in the position of wanting more than we can pay for," he said.

The super collider, a $4.4 billion project, has been one of the most avidly sought federal projects since the space program. The Energy Department received three dozen bids for it last fall, with offers running as high as $1 billion in cost-sharing.

Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas are finalists for the project.

An underground ring of 10,900 supermagnets 53 miles in circumference, the collider would be the largest and most expensive scientific device ever built. It would employ 2,500 scientists and technicians.

Genetic mouse created

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has granted the first patent on a genetically engineered animal, a mouse developed by Harvard University researchers for breast cancer research, officials said Tuesday.

"This may well be a first step toward continued genetic engineering that will permit the medical industry to fight against diseases that have been very difficult to eliminate in our lifetime," Donald Quigg, commissioner of patents and trademarks, said at a news conference.

The patent office previously has approved patents for genetically engineered bacteria, and the plant patent act went into effect in May 1980.

The Harvard patent covers a technique in which laboratory-made cancer genes are introduced into early-stage embryos of mice. The mice and their descendants are born with cancer genes in all their cells and will develop tumors quickly if exposed to even small amounts of cancer-causing chemicals.

Thus, the animals can be used in tests to determine the cancer-causing potential of a chemical, but are expected to be especially useful in breast cancer research because of the type of cancer gene inserted, a Harvard spokeswoman said.

The genes inserted into the mouse embryos are combinations of mouse mammary tumor genes and cancer-causing mouse virus.

"It should be useful in a wide variety of research, including breast cancer," Philip Leder, a Harvard Medical School geneticist and co-inventor of the technique, said.

Leder said 50 percent of the animals will develop breast cancer by the age of 10 months, and exposure to cancer-causing pollutants may accelerate the process.

Study's integrity disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former lab researcher Margot O'Toole told Congress Tuesday that senior scientists at two universities questioned her motives and treated her as "socially unacceptable" when she challenged the integrity of a study a Nobel laureate helped write.

O'Toole said she presented "irrefutable" evidence that the study by several scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology lacked proper controls and alleged it contained "serious errors of fact."

"Yet, of the many senior scientists who reviewed my case, not one offered me help or support," the former post-doctoral fellow said in testimony prepared for delivery to a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee.

"My dispute has halted my career, disrupted my social milieu and had a devastating effect on my life."

O'Toole said Dr. David Baltimore, a 1975 Nobel Prize winner and one of the nation's leading AIDS researchers, told her there was no need to worry about problems in research by one of his co-authors because future studies by other scientists eventually would clear up the matter.

O'Toole said Baltimore and other officials at MIT and Tufts universities refused to act on her accusations that Dr. Thereza Imanishi-Kari, now at Tufts, misrepresented data in the study.

"Unfortunately, it is apparently the prevalent attitude among senior scientists that revealing known errors is not worth the hardship that might be brought to their careers; that science itself in time will reveal the truth," she said. "I consider (this attitude) totally irresponsible."

Imanishi-Kari and Baltimore, in statements last week, rejected O'Toole's allegations, asserting the research has stood up over time.

O'Toole said most of the Tufts and MIT scientists who reviewed her case "openly questioned my motives and treated me as if I was behaving in a socially unacceptable manner. Only my peers watched with sympathy and the knowledge that the same thing could have happened to them."

Mets beat Expos, insist Ron is new Darling of staff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Members of the New York Mets insist a new Ron Darling surfaced Tuesday during a 3-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Mets provided Darling a 3-0 lead in the second and the right-hander allowed just one hit over the final six innings to help the Mets celebrate the start of their 25th season at Shea Stadium.

Darling, who pitched a five-hitter, is working quicker and, his teammates say, with more confidence than in the past. The habit of pacing around the mound during difficult situations is gone. Mets pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre says that is a sign of sureness. But Darling disagrees.

"Don't read too much into it," said Darling, 1-1, who walked three and struck out four. "I just thought I needed to work quicker. I know it will help the fielders (keep concentration)."

Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez says Darling's speedier tempo does help the fielders. He also notes Darling was more focused in the spring and that has carried over.

"Last year was the biggest learning year of Ronnie's career," Hernandez said. "This is going to be Ronnie's year. You could just tell from spring training."

Darling has faced battles of inconsistency throughout his career. He went 14 straight starts during the first half of last season without a victory (six losses, eight no decisions). Then, he came on in the second half, but tore ligaments in his thumb in September and was lost for the season.

"I have had great first halves and bad second halves and bad first halves and great second halves," said Darling, who permitted just two runners to reach third in gaining his first shutout since 1986. "I would love to see what would happen if I could maintain a whole season. Maybe this year."

The Mets gave Darling the runs he needed in the second inning against Pascual Perez, 1-1. Perez had beaten Darling and the Mets in the second game of the season, surrendering seven hits and striking out nine in 8 2-3 innings. That gave him eight victories in as many decisions since joining Montreal last year.

But that streak ended because Perez was unable to control his curveball and had control problems. He did not walk a batter in his first game against New York.

In the third, he fell behind Darryl Strawberry 3-1 before surrendering Strawberry's fourth homer of the year, on a full-count pitch. Kevin McReynolds got ahead 2-0 before smashing a single, and Gary Carter walked on five pitches. The runners advanced on a wild pitch. Howard Johnson, who knocked in 99 runs last year, delivered his first two RBI of 1988 with a full-count single, pushing the Mets ahead 3-0.

Rugby club beats St. Louis, faces Kentucky Saturday

The SIU-C rugby club, coming off a 20-12 victory over the St. Louis Hornets, will take on the University of Kentucky on Saturday at the fifth annual Banshee Tournament in Bowling Green, Ky.

In last Saturday's defeat of St. Louis, SIU-C's Derrick Spalt scored and had a conversion kick before the end of the first half to give the rugby club a 16-6 lead.

Kentucky is the rugby club's first round opponent in the nine-team tournament hosted by Western Kentucky University.

Tom Brawn, playing for Bob Stramma who left the game with a broken nose, scored at the start of the second half to give the rugby club its largest lead, 20-6.

The Salukis scored two more in the second on Giegling's two-run double. Gaebel knocked in the Salukis' last run

In six innings, Metten gave up four hits with three walks and three strikeouts.

Hall's RBI in the first was the game-winner. He leads the team with 32 RBIs, including six game-winners.

The Salukis finished the season series with the Purple Aces winning three of four. SIU-C improved to 20-12 while Evansville dropped to 21-10.

Kay Brechtelsbauer says Evansville's pitcher Terri Blaylock seldom makes a mistake.

Softball looks to clean up with sweep against Aces

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The time has come for the softball team to make its move.

"We need to take two games," Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "We have to put a string of something together."

The Salukis will attempt to break the pattern of alternating wins and losses. They take on Evansville at 3 p.m. today in a doubleheader at LAW Fields, across from the Recreation Center.

SIU-C (17-12) has not swept a doubleheader this season, nor has it won two consecutive games since beating Southeast Missouri on March 30 and Southwest Missouri on April 1.

"We have to be aggressive with our bats and our pitchers have to challenge their hitters," Brechtelsbauer said. "I would like to start building momentum now because we have Indiana State and Illinois State coming up."

The Salukis are at Indiana State (3-1 in the Gateway) on Friday and at Illinois State (ranked ninth in the nation) on Saturday.

But the Salukis' immediate concern is Evansville. Brechtelsbauer saw the Aces play in late March at the Saluki Invitational.

"When their hitting is on, they can be tough to beat," she said.

Evansville's main weapon, though, is senior pitcher Karri Blaylock. "She sets you up with a target," Brechtelsbauer said. "Location-wise she always pitches at what she wants. She seldom makes a mistake."

The starting pitchers for SIU-C have not been chosen yet. In line are Traci Furlow (4-3), Lisa Peterson (9-6) and Lisa Robinson (4-3).

Other notes:

—Having lost five of the last eight games, the team's road record fell to 13-10. The team is 4-2 at home.

—The Salukis have won three of five extraordinary games this season. The last one was an 8-5 loss to Bradley in 13 innings on Saturday. The Salukis are 6-3 in one-run games.

Balk rule should get called out

If you're a baseball fan, picture this:

It's the seventh game of the 1988 World Series, bottom of the ninth, two out, 3-3 tie, with the Atlanta Braves facing the Baltimore Orioles. The Orioles' Cal Ripken Jr., who has just hit a triple, takes a lead off third as Eddie Murray steps into the batters' box. The Braves' Zane Smith, pitching from the stretch, goes into his windup.

Suddenly, the home plate umpire stands up, waves his arms in the air and points at Ripken, motioning for him to come home. Smith stands helplessly on the pitching mound, a dumbfounded look on his face.

The winning run of the World Series has just scored on a balk.

The way things are going, this scenario isn't too far-fetched. Balks are being called at a record-setting pace this season as a result of the stricter enforcement of the balk rule by major league umpires. There were 73 balks called in the first week of play this year, compared with 19 in the first week last year.

Any day now, you can expect "USA Today" to run one of their beautiful technicolor graphics showing that, at the current pace, 93 million balks will be called this season — if they haven't already.

This trend has two negative effects on the game. First, it takes the game away from the players and puts it in the hands of the umpires. Second, it gives prominence to the least exciting play in baseball, if not in all of sports.

I'm reminded of a segment between innings during the National League Championship Series last year, when David Letterman, snomping on a cigar, said, "You know, I can't wait till I have kids so I can take them out to a ball game and tell them, 'Kids, tonight I feel like we're going to see something real special — we're going to see a balk!'"

Yeah, I get chills just thinking about it.

Salukis rally past Evansville

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The Salukis finally found a broom in their closet and swept Evansville on its home field in a doubleheader Tuesday.

The Salukis scored six runs in the last two innings to win the first game, 7-3, and received a good pitching performance from Chad Metten to win the second, 4-1.

Trailing 3-1 in the first game, the Salukis loaded the bases in the sixth. Pinch-hitter Cliff McIntosh cut the lead to one with an RBI single. Chuck Verschoore then drove in the tying run with a fielder's choice.

In the seventh, Chuck Locke walked and moved to second on Dave Wrona's sacrifice bunt. Brad Hollenkamp moved Locke to third with a single. Rick Gaebe then drove in the go-ahead run with his third hit of the game. Next, McIntosh tripled in Hollenkamp and Gaebe. Matt Giegling brought in McIntosh with a suicide squeeze bunt.

Saluki pitcher Dale Meyer (1-0) retired the Purple Aces one-two-three in the bottom of the inning to pick up the win. He allowed just one hit in three innings after relieving Rick Shipley in the fifth.

Shipley shut down the Purple Aces in the first three innings but allowed three earned runs in the fourth. He again suffered a streak of wildness, throwing two wild pitches in the inning.

In four innings, he gave up four hits, walked five and struck out three.

Evansville reliever Chris White (0-1) got the loss.

In game two, Metten (2-2) breezed through the Aces in the first six innings, allowing just one run. Dale Kisten took over in the seventh with a runner on second, then struck out the side to earn a save.

The Evansville Purple Aces turned black and blue after the Saluki men's tennis team finished with them.

SIU-C won handily, 6-2, Tuesday at the University Courts. Evansville became the eighth consecutive team to fall to SIU-C, which improved to 15-12 and ensured itself of a winning record for the spring season.

The Salukis again dominated the singles play. No. 1 Jairo Aldana struggled, but came on strong to beat Evansville's David Petrie, 6-4, 7-6, 6-3.

"The first set I didn't play well," Aldana said. "I was thinking about the wind."

Aldana trailed 3-2 in the final set, then took advantage of Petrie's wayward serves and won the final four games of the set.

"I just got my confidence back in the third set," Aldana said.

No. 2 Jose Demeterco continued to breeze past his opponents. He made quick work of Bob Green, 6-1, 6-0. Mickey Maule won his 24th match in 27 outings. He overcame an early lead by Evansville's Barry Ruback and won 6-4, 6-1.

Fabiano Ramos had problems with Evansville's Greg Smith at No. 4 but hung on to a 6-1, 6-7, 6-4 victory, and George Hime got by Kevin Buckner easily at No. 6, 6-3, 6-0.

No. 5 Juan Martinez suffered the only Saluki setback when he fell, 6-2, 6-1.

Only two doubles matches were played because the Purple Aces' Greg Smith had back problems and was unable to play. Ramos and Maule lost to Green and Petrie at the No. 1 spot. They split the first two sets but the Evansville team won the third set, which was reduced to a tie-breaker.

Pepperdine coach gets UCLA job

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pepperdine's Jim Harrick ended UCLA's frustrating search for a basketball coach Tuesday, accepting the position rejected by Jim Valvano and Larry Brown.

Harrick, a former Bruin assistant who had long expressed interest in returning to Westwood as head coach, compiled a 150-86 record at Pepperdine's ocean-view campus in Malibu, 15 miles from UCLA. He led the Waves to six postseason tournament bids in nine years as coach. The naming of Harrick ended a two-week period in which UCLA officials courted better-known coaches. Valvano of North Carolina State and Brown, a former UCLA coach who led Kansas to the national title this year, both rejected the vacancy left by Walt Hazzard, fired this year after leading the Bruins to the Pacific Ten title in 1987.

Brown surprised UCLA officials Friday by turning down the job.

Orioles fire Ripken Sr.; Robinson takes over

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Cal Ripken Sr., whose club opened the season with six straight losses, was fired as Baltimore Orioles manager Tuesday and replaced by Frank Robinson, who becomes the first black to manage in the majors since 1984.

Robinson, 52, a Hall of Fame slugger and former Oriole, was also the last black to manage in the majors, being fired by San Francisco during the 1984 season. He became the first black manager in major-league history when he took over the Cleveland Indians in 1975 and there have been only two others.

"I don't profess to be a Superman or anything like that, but I do have ideas about the way things should be done and I'm a little stubborn about that because I believe in good sound fundamental baseball," Robinson, who was a special assistant to Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams before becoming manager, told a Memorial Stadium news conference.

"I really have mixed emotions about this moment," Robinson added, "only because a person that I feel very close to and have a lot of confidence in as a baseball person, and as a person period and as a friend, has to lose his job for me to get a job."

Last year, Ripken's only full season as manager, the Orioles finished 67-95 and in sixth-place in the seven-team American League East. The .414 winning percentage was the franchise's worst since 1955. Under Ripken this year, the Orioles were outscored 43-7.

Ripken, who will remain with the club as an adviser to General Manager Roland Hemond, has spent all of his 32 years in professional baseball with the Orioles organization. Two of his sons, shortstop Cal Jr. and second baseman Billy, are current members of the club.

"I made the decision yesterday," Hemond said. "I informed Mr. Williams, and Mr. Williams said, 'Roland, it's your job, your responsibility. And I accepted that responsibility. I just felt this would be a positive transaction to make.'"
