COLA search for new dean to continue

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The dean search for the College of Communications and Fine Arts continues after the first-choice candidate declined the position Wednesday.

Michael T. Marsden, associate dean for academic affairs for the College of Arts and Sciences at Bowling Green University, declined the position which had been offered to him, said Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research.

"We could not reach an agreement on all of the terms of the contract," Shepherd said.

Shepherd declined to comment on specific areas of conflict because the dean search still is in progress. Marsden could not be reached for comment.

The setback will not put filling the CCFA dean position behind schedule, Shepherd said.

"I will move very quickly to invite other candidates recommended by the search committee to come for interviews," Shepherd said. "I am confident we will have the position filled on or before Aug. 16."

Shepherd received two groups of candidates from the search committee that began the search. The committee was composed of representatives from the college's departments, constituency and students.

Michael Starr, associate professor of radio and television and search committee member, said the first candidate group included the committee's top three choices.

These three candidates, one of which was Marsden, already have been interviewed.

"I, personally, was disappointed in the interviews of the other two candidates," Starr said.

Shepherd said the four candidates from the second group will be invited for interviews. The candidates' names were unavailable.

Marvin Kleinau, CCFA dean, will retire from his interim post July 1. Kleinau has served as acting dean since June 1989.

Minister riles SIUC crowd

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Students thronged the walkway near SIUC's Free Forum Area Wednesday, shouting catcalls as Brother Jim Gilles read off his list of "24 characteristics of a homosexual."

"Every queer is a murderer," Gilles told the crowd of about 150 from his perch on the Faner parking garage steps. "Every queer is without understanding. Every queer and lesbo hates God."

"Which is worse," Gilles asked the crowd, "a queer or a murderer?"

"A Nazi!" some crowd members shouted back, pointing fingers at Gilles.

Gilles, a touring Pentecostal minister who preaches against "booze, sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll," brought his confrontational style to SIUC in a lecture that inspired a strong vocal response from the audience.

"You cannot trust a queer," Gilles declared.

Bottom, students denounce Gilles as he cries out against various lifestyles, primarily homosexual and Muslim. Gilles, a touring Pentecostal minister, lectured on campus Wednesday. SIUC Police advised Gilles to leave the area for his own safety. Gilles said he was glad his lecture coincided with the GLPU's Gay Awareness Week.

Higher tuition proposed for next year

By Natalie Boehme
and Amy Cooper
Staff Writers

The future of tuition at SIU will be decided at the Board of Trustees meeting Thursday.

Board members will vote on a proposed 5-percent tuition increase recommended by Gov. Jim Edgar and the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

If accepted, the increase, which will be effective summer 1991, is projected to raise $2.2 million for SIU, with more than $1.5 million for SIUC, said SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit.

With a 5-percent increase, tuition will rise $78 for a fall or spring semester, setting tuition at $1,638 a semester for in-state, undergraduate students.

If the increase is not accepted the University will lose the $2.2 million in budgeted state funding recommended by IBHE.

"If we do not increase tuition we will have to subtract that amount

Teachers ask IBHE to reallocate funds in proposed budget for salary increases

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

The Illinois Federation of Teachers is planning to bring the fight for salary increases to the legislature.

Mitch Vogel, president of IFT and the University Professionals of Illinois, said Gov. Jim Edgar's proposed budget, from IBHE's recommended budget for SIU," Pettit said. "The tuition increase isn't advancing us, it's keeping us even."

Another option the board has is to raise tuition higher than the suggested 5 percent.

Pettit said an increase higher than 5 percent is unlikely.

"The 5-percent increase has been legitimized by the governor and approved last week by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, is unfair and an "absolute outrage."

The SIU Board of Trustees will vote today on the 5-percent tuition increase recommended in the governor's budget, which does not include the salary

IBHE," Pettit said. "I think anyone who goes above it will be unpopular."

With Edgar's proposal that the state funding level for higher education remain the same as fiscal year 1991, a tuition increase will be needed to meet the University's expenses, Pettit said.

Pettit said although the money from the state will be the same amount, it won't cover the same expenses because of increased operating costs.

Meeting inflation costs alone would require a 6-percent or 7-percent tuition increase, he said.

The board also will vote to award a building contract for renovations in Evergreen Terrace, family housing located south of campus.

Renovations, estimated to cost more than $200,000, will include replacing the heating and air conditioning systems.

Voss Heating and Air Conditioning, Inc. of Murphysboro had the lowest bid for the project, at $144,729.

Funding for the renovations will come from housing revenue.

A revised project for the construction of a Cooperative Wildlife Research building will be presented to the board for approval.

The building will be located on McLafferty Road, northwest of Wilbert A. Griffin, 21, 800 E. Grand Ave., Apartment 5C, did not leave the scene of an accident Monday as reported in the Daily Egyptian Wednesday. SIUC

Police said Griffin was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions after he rear-ended a vehicle stopped at a crosswalk on Lincoln Drive near the Agriculture Building. The driver of the car was treated and released from Memorial Hospital of Carbondale, police said. Griffin said he stopped his car immediately after striking the car and ran to the car to provide assistance. Griffin said the injured woman asked him to call police, and he ran to the Agriculture Building and called. When police arrived, an ambulance was called and the woman taken to the hospital, Griffin said. He said he called twice following the accident to check on the condition of the woman. The Daily Egyptian regrets reporting that Griffin left the scene of the accident.

Dawgs battle SEMO

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Saluki baseball team has broken its losing streak and now hopes it can get back on track to be competitive in time for the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament.

The Salukis put on a hitting exhibition Tuesday in the first game of a doubleheader against Evansville, but their bats went back to sleep in the second contest. If SIUC plans to turn around its 1-7 start in the MVC, consistent offense will have to play a key role.

"We just have to keep working and doing the things we're doing," SIUC hitting coach Ken Henderson said. "We've run into some pretty good pitchers and I think our confidence was shaken a little bit. I don't know if we quit believing in ourselves there for a while or what."

"If the top part of our line-up starts off a game well we usually have a good game. If I could figure it out I would probably be a rich man. Mechanically we're doing everything right, we just need to get our confidence back."

The Dawgs hope to get some of that confidence back in a single nine-inning game with Southeast Missouri State (17-10) at 3 p.m. today at Abe Martin Field.

Some offensive support has come from freshman Jeff Cwynar, who started just his fifth game of the season Tuesday in the doubleheader against Evansville. Cwynar came through with three hits in the two games and scored 2 runs to help the Dawgs sweep the Aces.

"The more time he gets playing out there, the better he's going to be," SIUC head coach Sam Riggelman said. "I don't feel like he is as timid as he started out to be."

The Salukis' offensive attack hasn't been helped with the rash of injuries and illnesses that has stormed through the ranks.

Senior third baseman Mike Kirkpatrick went down early in the season with a broken hand but could be back for the MVC Tournament in May. Junior shortstop Brian Heather is out with a broken thumb and might not be back this season.

Tuesday, senior Dale Meyer, who filled in at third base for Kirkpatrick, suffered an injury in his right elbow. The extent of the injury is unknown.

Illness also knocked out freshman Dan Esplin, the team's leading hitter. Esplin missed the twinbill with Evansville and is

Salukis sign 6-foot-5 guard

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer
and Sports Information

All it might have taken to send SIUC's basketball team to New York for the semi-finals of the National Invitational Tournament this year is one player to get hot against Stanford.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin and his assistant coaches have been searching the high school and junior college ranks for that one person. Wednesday morning they signed Rend Lake Community College's Anthony Smith to a national letter of intent, hoping he might be able to help the Dawgs get back into postseason play in 1992.

Smith, a 6-foot-5 guard from Henning, Tenn., could compete for the shooting guard position in the Salukis' line-up next season. He averaged 13.1 points and 6.3 rebounds a game for Rend Lake last season and played a key leadership role for the 19-11 Warriors.

Smith transferred to Rend Lake after a season at Three Rivers College in Missouri where he helped the team advance to the National Junior

Women's track team heads north for Ohio meet

Junior heptathlete Jamie Dashner practices throwing the javelin Wednesday at McAndrew stadium.

Staff Writer

The SIUC women's track team will head north for a change this weekend.

The Salukis will compete in the Miami Invitational in Oxford, Ohio. Other teams at the meet will be Cedarhurst College, Miami of Ohio, Bowling Green, Big Ten Conference member Michigan State and Gateway Conference foe Indiana State.

Saluki coach Don DeNoon said he is interested in the continued improvement of his athletes.

"I want our athletes to continue to achieve personal bests," DeNoon said. "Nacolia Moore needs to break out of her slump in the triple jump and Michelle Williams can continue to improve on her long jump. I want to see us get better as we head toward the Saluki Invitational in two weeks."

DeNoon believes the main competition for the Salukis will be the Michigan State Spartans.

"Michigan State is a Big Ten school, so they should be tough," he said. "Miami of Ohio isn't a slouch of a team either. They have some fine athletes. It should be a pretty competitive meet overall. There are a few athletes from the other schools that should do some outstanding jobs against our athletes."

Even though the Salukis have done well over the past few meets, DeNoon said the team still has to keep working toward the end of the season and the Gateway Conference Outdoor Championships.

"There are just so many areas we can still improve in, even though we lead the conference list in a lot of different events," DeNoon said. "If you took the conference list right now, we would win the conference championship. But you have to do it on a given day. I still see us improving dramatically."

Saluki athletes currently lead the Gateway in several events. Sophomore Lecann Conway leads the conference in the 5,000-meters with a time of 17:49.89. Juniors Jamie Dashner and Williams also head the Gateway lists in the heptathlon and the long jump respectively.

DeNoon is looking for a big performance from sophomore

Moore. She will be running the 200-meter dash this weekend, even though she hasn't run it yet this season. DeNoon said Moore could move right into the conference standings with a good performance.

"If last week was any indication of what she can do from her leadoff leg in the 4x200-meter relay," DeNoon said, "she could be at the top of the conference list. She was awesome."

The Salukis had strong outings last weekend from several athletes at the SEMOtion Relays in Cape Girardeau, including the Gateway Track and Field Athlete of the Week, Dashner.

Dashner improved in the javelin and five of the seven events in the heptathlon. Sophomore Cheryl Evers extended her personal best in the shot put by two feet. Moore's jump of 37-8 in the triple jump was a season-best and Williams' 19-10 in the long jump was a career-best.

"We had some outstanding performances last weekend," DeNoon said. "Hopefully we'll be able to use that to push us further towards winning the Gateway Conference title."

SIUC men netters back home for quadrangular

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team finally gets to spend a weekend at home.

The Salukis will play host to a quadrangular match Saturday and Sunday at the University Tennis Courts. The team will play Bradley at 9 a.m. Saturday, Southwest Missouri State later in the afternoon and Northern Illinois at 9 a.m. Sunday.

The Salukis had their four-match winning streak snapped by the conference favorite Drake Bulldogs in Des Moines, Iowa, last weekend. The match was close however, as SIUC lost 5-4. Freshman Kai Kramer said the team is not down after the loss.

"Drake is supposed to be at the top of the conference," Kramer said. "But they weren't too tough."

LeFevre, the team's No. 1 player, will be

Missouri State.

"They have a good program," he said. "They beat us 5-1 this fall. But that was without Jay Merchant and it was indoors. Three of the matches we lost went three sets."

The Bears are having their problems. The team's No. 2 player was released from the program, which forces the rest of the players to move up and face tougher competition. Southwestern's coach was impressed when LeFevre told him of the recent SIUC-Drake match, LeFevre said.

"I told the SMSU coach we lost to Drake only 5-4," he said. "It scared him."

LeFevre said the team's No. 1 player, Amine Baustani, is an excellent player. He will face SIUC's No. 1 singles player, senior Joe Demetero. "Baustani is a brilliant player," LeFevre said, "but he and Demetero have played three times and Joe has won the last

Golfers set sights on championship

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

It won't take much to make SIUC women's golf coach Diane Daugherty happy this season—just a Gateway Conference Championship.

Daugherty said the team's entire season will boil down to the conference tournament April 29 and 30 at Jackson County Country Club in Murphysboro. The Salukis have taken the crown in 1984, 1986, 1988 and 1990.

SIUC took 13th place out of 17 teams last weekend at the Indiana Invitational, but Daugherty said as long as her team is improving for conference time, she isn't too concerned about where the team places in the season tournaments.

Competition at the Indiana Invite came primarily from the Big Eight and Big 10 conferences. Indiana ran away with the title, scoring 945. Iowa took second at 969, while SIUC shot a 1,006 for the 54-hole tournament.

"The competition was strong," Daugherty said. "Indiana is ranked seventh or eighth in the country and that's tough. This is probably the toughest competition we've faced since our Florida trip."

What does concern Daugherty is the lack of completeness in her golfers' games.

"The whole team is kind of in a phase where we are not hitting the ball badly, but they're not scoring," Daugherty said. "It's like getting 15 hits in a softball game and only scoring one run. We just don't have it all together yet."

"Tracey (Pace) shot an 82 the last day and hit 14 greens. Fourteen greens is more than a lot of professionals hit, but obviously her putter was just sour. Debbie (Mintor) played 16 holes green and two holes with a double and a triple bogey and blew her score up to an 84."

Daugherty hopes the team is on the verge of where the players are hitting the ball well and will start score well also.

"I wish it was the same thing with everyone," Daugherty said, "then I could say let's go out and practice on this part of our game. But it is something different with every person. I don't question our work ethic. I don't question our dedication. It's just right now we haven't put everything together to be able to put a good number of the board."

Sophomore Tracey Pace continues to lead the Saluki golfers. She shot a 249 for the two days to place in a tie for 35th. Junior Anne Childress scored a 253, good enough for a share of 51st place.

Sophomore Kim Haywood and junior Deborah Mintor recorded two-day totals of 256 to tie for 56th place. Junior Gina Giaccone finished tied for 66th place after WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a massive international relief effort under way, the United States warned Iraq to forgo all military activity in areas teeming with rebels and refugees displaced by civil war, the White House said Wednesday. "The United States warned Iraq this weekend, through its representatives at the United Nations and at its embassy here, not to interfere with humanitarian relief efforts under way in Iraq," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. Though not specific about the nature of the admonition or the consequences of any violation, Fitzwater told reporters there had been no military activity in the designated areas "in at least the last two days" and none is expected.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle Atlantis's crew was ordered to abort a planned landing Wednesday and to stay in orbit at least one extra day and possibly two because of dangerous cross winds at the ship's Mojave Desert runway. With more marginal weather expected Thursday at California's Edwards Air Force Base, NASA managers would not rule out the possibility of diverting Atlantis to a touchdown at the Kennedy Space Center. "I hope you don't mind if we ask you to stay up another day, but we're going to give up on today," astronaut Brian Duffy radioed from Houston as Atlantis's crew was preparing for a one-orbit-late re-entry.

Shevardnadze felt pressed to invade Germany

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Wednesday he resisted pressure by hard-liners to use military force to stop German reunification — a move he said could have ignited World War III. "Some of our opponents suggested putting divisions or even starting the tank engines to prevent the Germans (from reuniting), that would have been putting the country on the brink of war, and I would even say World War III," he told the weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta newspaper in an interview. Shevardnadze, who resigned Dec. 20 after five years as foreign minister in the face of a conservative backlash, indicated that his reasoned approach let reunification proceed unmoled.

Bush administration denies firing top official

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bush administration officials denied Wednesday that a top Commerce Department official has been ordered fired by the White House for telling a House panel the State Department repeatedly blocked his efforts to halt high-tech exports to Iraq before its invasion of Kuwait. But a Commerce Department official later said Dennis Kloske, commerce undersecretary for export administration, submitted a letter of resignation in early March. The date for his departure has yet to be decided. Kloske made his comments during a hearing Monday before the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on international economic policy and trade.

Court begins selecting jury for gang trial; security tight

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jury selection began Wednesday amid extraordinarily high security for the federal trial of 14 members of the El Rukn street gang charged with waging a campaign of violence to expand and protect their drug trade. Court officials, fearful that attempts might be made to intimidate witnesses, called in U.S. marshals from around the country to augment security and installed a metal detector to check spectators for weapons. The detector was in use earlier this week as U.S. District Judge James Holderman heard pretrial motions. Jurors will remain anonymous — referred to only by assigned numbers — to prevent gang members from trying to intimidate them through their families or acquaintances. In an earlier trial, four jurors reported receiving threatening telephone calls.

Student block party blocked by Hoffner

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

"I'm hoping they can find an alternate spot."
—Steve Hoffner

Carbondale just said no to a student block party.

Students living on the 500 blocks of Ash and Beveridge Streets wanted to block off Ash Street between College and Cherry Streets April 20 after Springfest activities ended.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said he received the application for the party March 26, but after review, he denied the request.

Requests for neighborhood parties and parades are reviewed by Carbondale Police and the Public Works Department. They send their recommendations to Hoffner, who makes the final decision.

Hoffner said the request was denied because public safety would be compromised. There would not be enough:

- room for emergency vehicles;
- parking space;
- or police support because of Springfest and Carbondale Clean and Green, a citywide clean-up day.

In addition, Hoffner said consuming alcohol in the street is not allowed without passing a temporary ordinance. Temporary ordinances are passed for the annual Sunset Concerts in the summer and were passed for the Halloween street party until 1989, when it was banned.

"This is the first (request for a block party) I've denied in two years," he said. "I'm hoping they can find an alternate spot."

Some residents of the neighborhood, however, said they are not happy with the decision.

Jack Sullivan, a junior in political science from Dwight who lives at 512 S. Beveridge St., said he understands why the decision was made.

"It was going to be a big party," he said. "And there would probably have been a lot of underage drinkers. No one wants to go anything illegally and get busted."

Patt Johnson, a sophomore in business from Chicago, who lives at 505 S. Ash St., said he is unhappy but is willing to do what it takes to make the party a reality.

Instead of blocking off the street, the party will be split among five to 10 houses along the two streets to accommodate the estimated crowd of 500 people, Johnson said.

Mike Binder, a junior in hotel and restaurant management from Mexico, Mo., who lives at 513 S. Beveridge St., also said he is not happy with the decision.

"We'll still have a party," he said. "And I hope a lot of people come."

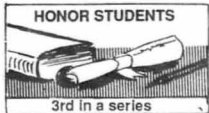

Binder said he has a party every week, but expects a large crowd that could occupy and block the street.

Sullivan said it is too late to try to get a temporary ordinance passed that would allow the consumption of alcohol in the street, but he said it is worth trying next year.

"We're pretty much committed to doing this before we graduate," Sullivan said. "The whole purpose of the block party is to show off our street as a fun place to be."

COBA scholars win honor awards

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

Eighteen scholarships were awarded to 31 students from the College of Business and Administration at Honors Day.

Students in business and administration, accounting, finance, management and marketing were among winners chosen by COBA Student Affairs and members of the COBA administration to receive awards Sunday.

The Carrie M. Bunn Memorial Scholarship for academic excellence was awarded to Laurie Fischer, a senior in marketing from Rockford.

Brien Leahy, a junior in finance from Lombard, and Angela Cutright, a sophomore in finance and accounting from Kenney, were awarded the Walt Cunningham Scholarship.

In addition to the scholarship, Leahy also was elected president of COBA Student Council for the 1991-92 school year.

Lori Bockhorn, a junior from Steelville, received the Edward J.

Schmidlen Accounting award. Steven W. Dorsey, a junior in finance from Buncumbe, was awarded the Illinois Bankers Association Region V Scholarship.

The Bill and Lois Hutton Scholarship for Management was awarded to Michele Verebelyi, a junior from Galesburg.

The Carrie Baines Award is given to four minority students with a COBA major. The 1991 winners include Monika Lanier, junior in accounting from Carbondale, Felicia Moore, junior in marketing from Carbondale, India Peel, sophomore in accounting from Chicago, and Anniisa Stanley, junior in management from East St. Louis.

Duke team winners with off-court conduct

DUKE UNIVERSITY HAS SENT a signal out: playing fair off the court means just as much as what happens on the court.

The Blue Devils' 72-65 victory over Kansas last week, which won them their first NCAA victory, made their win over top-ranked UNLV even sweeter.

But Duke also came out on top by avoiding the NCAA violations that plagued so many other teams throughout this season.

THESE VIOLATIONS RANGED ANYWHERE from coaches allowing players to use athletic department phones for long-distance calls at the University of Texas-El Paso to recruiting violations at the University of Illinois.

Some teams received probations for these violations, such as the Universities of Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky. Others merely received warnings and slaps on the wrist from the NCAA.

Whether or not these teams legally suffered for their mistakes, all were affected.

Such allegations and violations tear at the stability and teamwork needed to win games.

IN ADDITION TO BATTLING ON the courts, the players and coaches are under pressure to overcome their own internal differences based on NCAA investigations.

Duke, however, avoided these mistakes and emerged victorious out of some very powerful teams.

If the school proved how fair ability and drive can take a team, it also showed how fair play can serve as the backbone of these qualities.

Other universities should admire not only Duke's abilities but the conduct of the team.

Opinions from Elsewhere

Plight of Kurds continues without U.S. assistance

the Daily Illini
University of Illinois

Dozens of Kurdish children are dying everyday. While their friends and relatives are busy fighting for their own existence, the rest of the Kurdish people just try to survive through the night.

Consisting of a contiguous group of people from Iran, Syria, Turkey and Iraq, the Kurds have long faced oppression from those national governments.

But it has only been since the end of the Persian Gulf War that attention has really been focused on their plight.

Even when Saddam Hussein gassed 5,000 of them in 1988, there was little public reaction beyond the obvious initial outrage.

Even President Bush has been reluctant to help them. Bush has promised not to help the Kurdish rebels militarily, and it was only recently that the U.S. government decided to airlift food and medical supplies to the Kurdish refugees—supplies often intercepted by soldiers.

The national government in Turkey has not yet decided to help feed the fleeing Kurds. They're too busy shooting them. On Sunday, Turkish troops actually fired upon refugees trying to escape the battlefields of Iraq and cross into Turkey.

But it is somewhat understandable why Turkey can be so cynical. When Iraqi Kurds fled the gas bombs in 1988, Turkey accepted the vast majority of refugees.

But even though Turkey was ill-equipped to handle the emergency, the rest of the world ignored Turkey's plea for assistance.

That responsibility now falls upon the U.N. With the cease-fire accord, the U.N. has just concluded a major contribution to world affairs, and it must not lose its ability to make a difference.

If creating the independent nation of Kurdistan will eliminate much of the conflict, then the U.N. must put pressure on the four countries in which the Kurds unfortunately found themselves following World War II.

Letters

Writer deserves 'A' for positive attitude

Of all the letters I've read in the DE recently, the one Mr. Roemer wrote that appeared in the April 8 edition, is by far the best.

I'm sure, with your English skills, you could have easily expressed some profound wisdom regarding one of many controversial issues.

You would probably have no trouble condemning the opinion of some previous letter writer.

I believe, if you had wanted to, you could have written some elaborate criticism of any of the people that you spoke so kindly of.

Being a person that has too often criticized, I admire your ability to look for and compliment to good in others, even in a bureaucracy.

I hope I have learned something from you. Instead of using your writing skills to glorify yourself or persecute others, you chose to "nominate people who should get credit."

You are obviously a person who doesn't need to step on others to raise yourself up. Considering your positive outlook, I expect you will be very successful in life.

I think, Mr. Roemer, that they should put an extra 'A' on your diploma for attitude.—Steve Bratten, junior, computer science.

University police not patrolling dangerous areas on campus

Sunday night I heard music coming from the campus boat docks. I figured it was some kind of program and I wanted to relax, so I walked over to enjoy the music.

No sooner had I gotten there than a policeman appeared, told the musicians to disband and began writing them citations.

The last few times I have been to the Strip, I have seen SIU campus police cars driving around the area of the Strip. Is this not an area under city police jurisdiction?

I have never seen police patrolling Thompson Woods, an obvious crime haven. I have never seen police on foot patrolling any bad area of campus at night, for that matter.

I have seen them talking to their friends on the back porch of my building in the daytime, however.

The only place I have seen the shiny new campus police cars driving on campus is around the circle at Wham and the road leading to it, one of the few lit areas on campus. I know if I were a thief, I'd hang out at Wham.

I once heard a girl screaming in Thompson Woods on my way to the Student Center. As soon as I got there I told a policeman about it.

Before he would check it out or even radio to someone about it, he asked me my identification number, my middle initial, my birthdate and several other things.

Even if I was only pranking, it's better to go check out a report than to ask a bunch of questions while someone's getting killed.

The cop was just wasting time anyway.

So what's going on? The police, particularly campus police, should try something besides busting musicians (I bet everyone on Thompson Point rang the police to complain as soon as they started) and wasting time.

My examples say everything. P.S. On your way to the woods to commit rape, you should make sure there's a sticker on your bike, or you'll get a ticket.—Christopher Perry, freshman, radio-television.

Death totals from Persian Gulf War much higher than the public thinks

I have read too many times in recent letters to the editor that "more people died in Chicago than in Operation Desert Storm."

It is a myth. Standard estimates of the death toll from that "operation" range between 175,000 and 200,000—about one out of every 20 Chicagoans.

This is not counting the additional thousands (mostly children) expected to die in epidemics resulting directly from damage to sanitary facilities by U.S. bombs.

Regardless whether by bombs that struck their intended targets (30 percent) or by those that fell on something else, (70 percent of total tonnage, by the Pentagon's own estimates) the damage to Iraq's infrastructure has been "near apocalyptic."

Reports by the International Red Cross and U.N. observers confirm this.

The notion that this shameful war was cost-free is a dangerous myth.

And although General Schwarzkopf and others may not think they are worth counting, Iraqis continue to be people.—Lee Hartman, associate professor, foreign languages.

Japan program to persuade nations to stop arms sales

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan, the world's largest contributor to developing countries, announced Wednesday it will use its financial muscle to persuade poorer nations to stop producing and exporting weapons and devote more of their budgets to economic and social development.

Prime Minister Toshiaki Kaifu outlined the aid-for-peace policy to the Diet, or Japanese parliament.

Kaifu said countries judged as being too aggressive in manufacturing and exporting weapons will be advised to show restraint or risk losing Japanese financial assistance.

Japan is the world leader in total aid to developing countries, handing out about $10 billion a year.

Kaifu's announcement was intended to show that Japan, which has been criticized for its weak response to the Gulf War, is taking active steps to prevent international conflicts, said a senior Foreign Ministry official who asked not to be identified.

But the policy, which the official acknowledged is not new but just restated in more explicit terms, left several loopholes that could raise doubts about its impact.

Kaifu said future Japanese aid will be based in part on four factors: A country's level of military spending vs. social spending; the trend in development and production of weapons of mass destruction; the trend in the export and import of weapons from the viewpoint of not promoting international conflicts, and efforts for promoting democratization and introduction of a market economy and situation on securing basic human rights.

The official said it would be difficult for Japan to determine a country's level of military spending and more difficult to judge if that level is appropriate.

"It is rather difficult to get the latest information on the export and import of weapons and it is not easy for us to decide the proper level acceptable," he said.

Countries will be handled on a case-by-case basis, he said.

The government had considered banning aid to all countries that export weapons but opted for a more flexible policy.

When other considerations are involved, such as regional stability, aid will continue even if the country produces and exports large numbers of weapons, the Foreign Ministry official said.

China, for instance, was the second largest recipient of Japanese aid in 1989 and is one of the world's largest exporters of weapons, but will continue to receive Japanese aid.

"I'm finding it a little difficult to trust a Christian right now," said a student at the rear.

Dave Winer, a freshman in English from Lincolnwood, said he found Gilles' speech humorous.

"The guy was too racist, too everything," Winer said. "It was too easy to hate him."

"He's totally off his nut," said Mike Nissley, a graduate student in English from Carbondale.

Gilles said such responses are not unusual.

"I actually intend to alienate my audience to show them they are alienated from God," he said.

But his tactic of alienation almost went too far at about 3:10 p.m., when he said "Allah is the devil," and was attacked by a man next to him who claimed to be Muslim. The man grabbed Gilles by the neck and squeezed for several seconds, but Gilles offered no resistance.

Even after the man was separated from Gilles, the minister would not be silenced, calling the man a "Louis Farrakhan lover" and a "black-hearted Muslim."

A chant of "Go home, Jim!"

started up in the crowd once the incident was over.

"You remind me of the Jews who condemned Christ," Gilles shouted. "This man just tried to strangle me, to kill me, and you want me to go home."

But Gilles confided later that he had not thought himself in any danger.

"I didn't think he would really hurt me," he said. "At most he might have popped a blood vessel."

At 3:20 SIU Police advised Gilles to leave the area for his own safety, said Patrolman Tony Carwyle.

Police said they would have no information on whether charges were filed or arrests made in the incident until Thursday morning.

Gilles spoke again to the crowd before leaving and promised to return to the Free Forum Thursday at noon.

Larry Green, President of the Gay and Lesbian People's Union, said Gilles' testimony interrupted a GLPU demonstration scheduled for the same time at the Free Forum.

"Everything (Gilles) said was based on his own opinions," Green said. "We laughed at some of the things he was saying."

The GLPU event ended at about 1:30 p.m., before Gilles was attacked, Green said.

Based in Evansville, Ind., Gilles said he was called to the service of the Lord at a Van Halen concert in 1980. Since then he has toured the country's colleges, testifying at about 226 campuses in 42 states by his own estimate.

Asked whether he had known his anti-gay message coincided with Gay Awareness Week, Gilles said, "No, but I'm glad it did."

Gilles said he believes in the fundamental rightness of his cause, although crowds such as SIUC's sometimes turn hostile.

"I think it's their unwillingness to believe the truth of the Bible and to accept Christ," he said. "I've had some people come up and get saved right in the middle of a crowd."

The way of an evangelist is hard, but Gilles would never give it up, he said.

"I thoroughly enjoy it, and I see myself doing it for the rest of my life — unless God has other plans," he said.

TUITION, from Page 1

University Library Storage Facility.

The revised plan divides construction into three phases instead of two, because phase one exceeded the approved budget. Some parts of the first phase were postponed because it was more expensive than expected.

Phase one of construction, which included the initial construction of the building, was estimated to cost $150,000 by the University.

Phase two, estimated to cost $164,500, will include site work, utility services, heating, cooling, plumbing, electrical and half of the final interior work.

The remaining interior work will be completed in phase three, estimated at $122,000 by the University.

Completion of phases two and three will depend on availability of funds.

The University has estimated the cost of the entire project at $436,500.

The board also will vote on whether to approve plans for cable television in the residence halls and award the contract to Miller Engineering.

The estimated $500,000 project was approved in March by the board and funding will come from an approximate four-percent increase in residence hall rates.

The increase will help fund various projects in the residence halls, including renovations to Evergreen Terrace. The increase will not just fund the cable project.

Miller Engineering of Rockford, Ill., had the lowest bid for the project at $649,983.

The board also will vote whether to continue plans for a $4 million computer system upgrade. Financing of the IBM computer upgrade will be paid over a three-year period, with the first payment being September 1991, Pettit said.

Pettit said the University would fund the computer upgrade, but exact sources have not been determined. Thursday's vote would only give the project the go-ahead, assuming the University would provide funding.

increase.

SIU will receive an operating budget from the legislature by its June 30 deadline, at which time the University will decide if it can reallocate for salary increases, said SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit.

If there is enough money to be allocated to the University after the 5-percent tuition increase and the possible continuation of a temporary income tax surcharge, there may be money left over for salary increases. But Pettit said increasing tuition won't be giving higher education any extra money.

"The tuition increase isn't advancing us. It's keeping us even," Pettit said. "I'm not at all optimistic about this year's appropriations. We are going to have to hang on hard to keep what we've got."

IFT asked IBHE before the board's April 2 meeting last Tuesday to reject the governor's budget because of the lack of salary increases, Vogel said.

In a memo to IBHE Chairman Arthur Quern Vogel asked, on behalf of IFT, to reallocate funds internally to provide for salary raises.

Noriega trial faces third delay

MIAMI (UPI) — The drug-smuggling and money-laundering trial of deposed Panamanian dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega has been delayed until July 22, officials said Wednesday.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeverler delayed the trial, which was to begin June 24, at the request of prosecutors and defense attorneys, who said they needed at least another month of preparation. The trial for Noriega and co-defendant Daniel Miranda is expected to last at least four and a half months.

The request for a delay was made before Hoeverler at a closed hearing Tuesday.

Officials indicated the hearing concerned the handling of classified government documents that defense attorneys say are critical to their case. They said problems in getting those documents caused the trial delay.

The U.S. attorney's office has said it will take prosecutors Michael Sullivan and Myles Malman up to three months to present their case.

Noriega's defense is expected to need at least one month for the general's defense and Michael O'Kane, Miranda's lawyer, said his case would take two weeks.

The postponement was the third for Noriega's trial.

Noriega surrendered during the Dec. 20, 1989, U.S. invasion of Panama.

He is accused in a 1988 indictment returned in Miami of turning his country into a drug-trafficking and money-laundering sanctuary for South American drug smugglers doing business in the United States.

French abortion pill use may be limited—official

PARIS (UPI) — Use of the French-made abortion pill may be discontinued for women who are either over the age of 35 or who smoke because of possible cardiovascular risks associated with the drug, a senior health official said Wednesday.

Deputy Health Minister Bruno Durieux said in response to a lawmaker's question at the National Assembly that a panel of experts was studying the recommendations because of the death of a woman who was given the RU 486 pill earlier this month.

"Already the conclusions point toward the following measures: proscribing use of the pill for women who smoke and women over 35 because of a potential increase in cardiovascular risks; and changes in the dosage and administration of prostaglandin, which is administered after use of RU 486 to stimulate rejection of the fetus," Durieux said.

"These changes will be codified in the coming days," the Ministry of Health official said.

The death of a 31-year-old Frenchwoman who took the abortion pill, which the ministry said resulted from a heart attack, was the first reported case among 60,000 women who had been given the RU 486 pill since it was authorized for use in France in January 1989.

But a pharmaceutical company said other cardiovascular incidents could be linked to RU 486 and the associated use of prostaglandin.

News of the death prompted anti-abortion groups in France and the United States to renew their call for a ban on manufacturing and distribution of the medication.

"We don't believe it's the job of pharmaceutical companies to use their resources to create and distribute products that kill other human beings," said Michel Raoult, president of the Association for the Conscientious.

RU 486 is now available only in France and is administered in authorized hospitals and clinics. The manufacturer, Roussel-Uclaf, is seeking authorization in Britain.

The company has not sought Food and Drug Administration approval for distribution in the United States in part because of the opposition it likely would receive from anti-abortion activists.

The Health Ministry said the 31-year-old woman died after receiving an injection of prostaglandin under the trade name Nalador.

Graduate art students get front stage at Faner museum

By Jeff Pavlu
Staff Writer

Two SIUC art students have taken over the University Museum. Art work by Maria Casasola and Kevin Veara, graduate students in the School of Art and Design, goes on display at the museum Friday. A public reception for the artists will be held from 6 to 8 p.m.

Casasola, who is from Windsor, Ontario, said an exhibition of art work in the museum is required for graduate students in the School of Art and Design. Her exhibit consists of wooden sculptures.

"Our thesis is our work," Casasola said. "The only problem is that it's hard for the University to evaluate things that aren't written down, but it is getting better."

Casasola said she came to SIUC because she started sculpting with metals, and the University has excellent facilities.

"I wanted a graduate program with foundry facilities, and the School of Art at SIUC has a reputation for this even in Canada," she said.

After moving into wood sculpting, Casasola found that she could use her work for social comment.

"My sculptures are whimsical and funny with a political and social bend," she said. "I try to use humor as a pathway into the work."

"Issues and events interest me, and I try to show what 'this tax' or 'this war' means to me through the sculptures," she said.

Veara, who is from Springfield, uses watercolor sketchbooks in his exhibit to capture rapid-fire ideas on different subjects. Some sketches are accompanied by text to explain the thoughts involved in them.

"I guess I really started drawing when I was three years old I've always been a mad doodler," Veara said. "I got into painting in 1982 and I wound up doing watercolors because oil was too messy and too expensive."

"I like to explore something until I'm exhausted with it, and I want to put every idea down on paper immediately. An instructor suggested I use sketchbooks because they require less detail, and I can get to the next idea right away."

Veara said that some people consider sketches unfinished works, or "studies," but he feels his sketches are all individual thoughts.

"A big influence for me is the study of other cultures and how they use symbols to explain things," he said. "One thing I'm doing now is looking at how the Islamic language uses the circle, square and triangle."

As for future plans, Veara said he would like to have his own shows and gallery, but he hasn't planned anything past this summer, because he will be hiking the Appalachian Trail for three months.

Casasola and Veara's exhibits are on display through April 18.

The University Museum, located in Faner Hall, is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free.

Quilt art on display at museum

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

These quilts are not sew-sew, but extraordinary pieces of art on display at the University Museum through May 1.

Libby Pettit, who learned quilting while sitting on her grandmother's lap, uses cotton fabric to create works of art that sell for as much as $1,000.

"The fabrics I use are not inexpensive," Pettit said. "And the work I do is considered art."

Pettit is wife of SIUC Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit and resides in Stone House on campus.

Pettit's quilts are used for display, instead of for practicality or warmth.

Pettit said her favorite quilt is "Lady in the Hat," which depicts a lady in a black and white dress on a white background.

"I like this one because I love fashion so much," she said.

One of the quilts on display is "Miko," a 1990 Hoffman Challenge winner. The Hoffman Challenge is a nationwide competition that sends one-half yard increments of fabric to quilters who are challenged to create whatever they want.

"I used instructions from a magazine, but there was no pattern," she said. "All the pieces are curved. None are straight."

Pettit received two pieces of one-half-yard fabric increments to create the winning piece. She chose to create a vase with the leaf motif and tiger printed fabric.

The quilter can use any other kind of fabric he or she wants to. On one side of the vase is white fabric from Japan.

Pettit, who lived two years in Okinawa, said she exhibits her interest in the Far East through her quilt designs.

Pettit said some of her work is on display and for sale at the Artisan Shop in the State of Illinois building in Chicago.

"(An artist) is juried into it," Pettit said. "I submitted slides and a committee approved my work (for display at the shop)."

Pettit said she was asked by University Museum to display her quilts at this time because of a coinciding quilt show in Paducah, Ky. The quilt show draws about 60,000 people nationwide.

University waste comprises one-third of county's landfill

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

SIUC produces about one-third of the solid waste dumped in the Jackson County Landfill each year.

In 1990 about 318,619 cubic yards of solid waste was dumped in the landfill, according to an Illinois Environmental Protection Agency report.

Greg Burris, manager of Burris Disposal Service in Carbondale, which currently holds the University's disposal contract, said the company removed approximately 110,000 cubic yards of solid waste from SIUC last year.

Everett Allen, owner of the Jackson County Landfill, said SIUC could cut its waste production by 80 percent if it recycled everything, but there isn't a recycling market for all of it.

"The federal government must someday mandate that every household recycle everything and at the same time it must guarantee a market for all those different materials," Allen said.

In 1989 the responsibility of inspecting the landfill, located two miles north of DeSoto on Route 1, was turned over from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to the Jackson County Health Department.

George Browning, a public health environmentalist in charge of the inspections, said the conditions at the landfill have improved drastically. He attributes the change to a more rigorous inspection schedule. He said the landfill is inspected twice a month.

The IEPA turned over the inspection responsibility because of limited manpower, Browning said.

"The IEPA must prioritize their responsibilities," Browning said. "Currently the department concentrates on hazardous waste, which takes much more time and is more important."

Browning said the last capacity report for the landfill was published in late 1990.

Last year an estimated 243,935 cubic yards of waste was generated by the 59,494 residents of Jackson County.

Browning said 318,619 cubic yards of waste were disposed. He said the excess is waste brought in from other cities such as Mount Vernon and Marion, because the landfills in those counties have filled up.

The report estimated more than 2.5 million cubic yards of waste can be disposed of within the landfill. If solid waste production remains constant, the landfill would be completely filled by 1998.

Allen said he plans on expanding his landfill but wouldn't disclose exact plans until summer 1991.

If Allen wants to keep the landfill open beyond 1992 or add more ground to the landfill, recent state legislation will require the installation of liners or "leachate" collection systems. Leachate is a by-product of compressed waste.

Browning said the new regulations would require all new landfills beyond 1992 to contain, bottle and dispose of leachate, which would protect ground water.

Allen estimated that after 1992, legislation will increase the cost of preparing one acre of land for use as a landfill to $100,000, primarily because leachate liners cost $45,000 an acre.

He said in the 1980s, one acre of land could be prepared for landfill use for a cost of $5,000.

"Jackson county is fortunate to have space for solid waste," Allen said. "The trend now is for regional landfills rather than each county having its own landfill."

He said the cost of curb-side waste disposal will increase by 50 percent in 1992 from the current $7 to $8 for each residence.

During the 1990 fiscal year, SIUC spent $201,460 on solid waste disposal, a spokesman for the Disbursement Office said.

Burris said his solid waste disposal contract with SIUC will go up in cost in accordance with any increase in landfill dumping costs. He said if landfill dumping costs increase by 50 percent, his prices are likely to increase by 30 percent or 40 percent, because he has other costs like gas and equipment that won't increase as much.

Browning said, "Depositing solid waste in a landfill is the last desired method of solid waste disposal, but Jackson County has no other cheaper alternatives."

He said Southern Illinois lacks recycling efforts compared to the central and northern sections of the state.

In the IEPA's 1990 report, 22 counties in Southern Illinois recycled only nine tons of metal in one year, compared to 268,129 tons of metal recycled from only nine counties in the Chicago area.

Browning said regardless of the population differences, "this is why we have to take another look at recycling efforts in Southern Illinois."

Another solid waste disposal concern in Jackson County is illegal dumping.

Browning said the department has fined many people for illegal dumping in the county. He said the highest fine ever levied was $2,500, but fines can go as high as $50,000.

"Some people think they can take their garbage and dump it onto a rural roadside," Browning said. "This is illegal dumping and is grounds for some heavy fine for those who are caught."

"The person who usually ends up paying for cleanup is the owner of the land where the garbage was thrown," he said.

Pollution Control recycling trash

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

SIUC recycles 2 1/2 to three tons of trash a week during a semester, said Patrick Glisson, recycling manager for Pollution Control.

Glisson said recyclable materials include some metals, white paper and newspaper.

"We pick up recyclable materials from 120 to 140 offices on campus, which is about one-third of all offices," he said.

Glisson said all the materials Pollution Control picks up are taken to the Southern Recycling Center in Carbondale, where some materials, such as white ledger paper and aluminum, are sold.

The recycling program is offered to all University offices but only about one-third participate.

Glisson said one-half to two-thirds of the material collected comes from academic offices. Two administrative offices that recycle are the Chancellor's and the President's Offices.

The single largest pickup on campus is at the Wham computer-print-out window, where 1,000 to 2,500 pounds of green-bar computer paper is discarded each week, Glisson said.

Glisson said Pollution Control periodically sends memos to all offices advertising the program. All an office has to do is call Pollution Control to receive pickup service.

John Meister, director of Pollution Control, said the University is mandated by legislation to recycle 40 percent of the solid waste produced on campus.

"In order to do that we have to get all the offices involved in the recycling program," Meister said.

Glisson said, "Some of the material we collect is sold, such as aluminum, and the money collected for the material goes back into the recycling program for the purchase of collection bins."

Advertising of timber sales halted after public request

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Advertising for two timber sales in the Shawnee National Forest has been postponed until Aug. 15, but it seems the chief forester plans to go ahead with the sales disregarding public comments, said U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville.

A letter submitted last month by Poshard and other congressional members requested Forest Service Chief F. Dale Robertson to halt timber sales and timber sale preparation for all areas of the Shawnee.

In a letter Poshard received April 5, Robertson said he chose to postpone advertising the only two hardwood sales scheduled for the fiscal year 1991, which ends September 30.

Tom Hagerty, spokesman for the Shawnee, said Robertson talked to timber representative and wildlife groups in addition to members of the Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists and Poshard.

He said the chief made the decision in an attempt to balance the arguments expressed by all parties concerned.

Advertising for the two hardwood sales, Hayes-Bay and Tower areas in Pope County, will be postponed until the public comment period has ended on Aug. 15. The comment period will begin after May 5, when the amendment to the forest management plan has been mailed to the public.

The decision by Robertson failed to meet the standards Poshard and other delegates had recommended, Poshard said.

"I was not entirely satisfied with the chief's response even though we were grateful for the delay in the Hayes-Bay and Tower areas sales," Poshard said. "It seems in the letter itself as though the public comment period will have no effect on the sales."

Poshard said the delay will however, give the delegation some time to get public response.

He said the purpose of the forest management plan is public involvement and "we certainly will be advocating that."

Dave Stricklin, Poshard's press secretary, said although Robertson's decision was not exactly what the delegation hoped for, there is still room for discussion between the Forest Service and Poshard.

He said Poshard plans to hold several discussion forums in May for public comment. Dates are to be announced.

Bill Cronin, RACE member, said he thinks Robertson thumbed his nose up at Poshard.

Cronin said Robertson's decision let everyone know that Robertson thinks he knows best and is going to go ahead with the sales as planned.

"It is a major insult to the citizens of Illinois and their elected officials," Cronin said. "It's a joke."

Marland Thurgorton, procurement forester for WestVaco in Wickliffe, Ky., said his company is not affected because he does not have a bid on the Hayes-Bay or Tower areas.

He said his fear is a complete halt of all timber management activities. He said he thinks there is room in the forest to continue some type of balanced timber management.

Hagerty said there has been a very distinct change in moving away from clear-cutting in the last year.

House subcommittee approves handgun bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the administration holding out the prospect of support for the plan, a House subcommittee Wednesday approved a bill to require a seven-day waiting period for the purchase of handguns.

The so-called Brady bill, approved on a 9-4 vote of the Judiciary subcommittee, next goes to the full committee and is expected to be voted on by the full House before the end of May.

In a letter to the subcommittee, Attorney General Richard Thornburgh said President Bush would accept a form of the bill if it is part of the comprehensive crime bill Bush wants passed.

That package also includes a federal death penalty and changes in rules covering evidence in criminal proceedings.

"The president supports effective measures to identify felons attempting to purchase firearms," Thornburgh's letter said.

"If the Congress acts favorably on the president's comprehensive crime bill, the president will accept, as part of that bill, appropriate measures to identify felons attempting to purchase handguns," the letter said.

The attorney general warned that Bush "will not accept a watered-down version" of the crime measure.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime and Criminal Justice, said he was pleased that Bush "is not opposed to the concept of the bill per se, but rather, is in favor of enhancements."

But he urged Bush to go further and "clearly and unequivocally" endorse the Brady bill in its current form.

USDA proposes increase of rates on pork check-off

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has proposed an increase on pork check-off rates, said a spokesman for the National Pork Producers Council.

The check-off money is used for promotion of pork, education of consumers and farmers about pork and research to improve the product itself, David Mehlhaff said.

For each animal sold, a percentage of the money is given to the Pork Board, he said.

The check-off rate change would bring importer assessments closer in line with those being paid by domestic producers, according to the USDA.

The proposed change would move the check-off rate from .25 hundredths of a cent-per-pound of pork to .35 hundredths of a cent-per-pound of pork.

Check-off money is used for promotion of pork and for research to improve the product.

Clarence Steinberg, public affairs spokesman for the USDA, said he could not say how this change will affect farmers and consumers until after the comment period is over on April 18.

After April 18, comments will be evaluated by the USDA and the National Pork Board. The Pork Board could bypass the recommended decision of the USDA on whether or not to raise the check-off rate.

Fifteen people, chosen by pork producers, make up the Pork Board.

Steinberg said the decision probably will not go into effect until January 1992.

People can send their comments to Ralph L. Tapp, chief of Marketing Programs and Procurement Branch, Livestock and Seed Division, AMS, USDA, Rm. 2624-S, P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456.

Copies of the proposed rule are available from that office.

Greenhouse gas emissions in U.S. could be cut—study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States could cut its "greenhouse gas" emissions by 10 percent to 40 percent below 1990 levels through better energy efficiency and other "very low cost" pollution reduction measures, an expert panel said Wednesday.

In a direct challenge to the administration's policy on global warming, the National Academy of Sciences panel said paying for modest emission controls now would be "cheap insurance" against potentially devastating climate changes in the next century.

Contrary to administration claims that emission reduction inevitably would be costly and economically painful, the panel said some strategies — particularly improved energy efficiency — could save money if the government adopted proper policies.

The panel outlined more than a dozen specific pollution control recommendations that it said would enable the United States to "reduce its greenhouse gas emissions by between 10 percent and 40 percent of the 1990 level at very low cost."

It also suggested accelerating research on "geoengineering options" that might be used as a last resort if global warming were worse than anticipated.

Among other ideas, it said sunlight might be reduced by putting giant mirrors in orbit, seeding the upper atmosphere with reflective soot or increasing cloud cover.

The panel noted those options could have harmful environmental effects and emphasized it was not advocating they be used, only examined more carefully as a possible emergency strategy.

Overall, the panel said the threat from global warming remained ill-defined, but was serious enough to justify preventative efforts.

Men's golf team continues to threaten top teams

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's golf team continues to pose a threat to opponents after scoring low and placing high in two golf tournaments over the past few days.

The Salukis stood out and made their mark as a team and individually in the Sixth Missouri Intercollegiate Invitational held Monday and Tuesday in Osage Beach, Mo.

The Dawgs, who had a score of 635 for the two-day tournament, finished third in a field of 27 teams.

The Salukis were hot on the heels of the first and second place teams, finishing directly behind the University of Missouri (633) and Southwest Missouri State (634).

Junior Sean Leckrone stood out above all the rest. His individual score of 149 won the tournament and brought him the title of tournament medalist.

Leckrone, an All-Conference player as a freshman and sophomore, had a great score on a very difficult golf course, Coach

Lew Hartzog said.

"Putting on that course was almost impossible because of the cut of grass," Hartzog said. "But Sean played fantastically and won it all. He is having an awfully good year."

In fourth was Western Illinois University (669), followed by St. Louis University (693) and University of Missouri at Kansas City (704).

On April 5 and 6 the team travelled to Evansville, Ind., and finished fifth in the two-day Oak Meadow Invitational. The Salukis finished in the same position they held after the first day of play.

"We didn't play as well the second day," Coach Lew Hartzog said. "But that in part has to do with the fact that the course is much tougher. I was not pleased that we did not move up from the position we held Friday and if our golfers would have been able to finish their rounds the way they started, we would have done much better."

"If we didn't have our break downs, I think we would have had a good chance to win or at least take second."

Ball State claimed the victory of the tournament finishing with 606 strokes as their two-day total. In second was Louisville (620), followed by Michigan State (627), Murray State (628) and SIUC (634).

"Fifth in that tough field is definitely not bad," Hartzog said.

The Salukis are taking a few days off to polish up their strokes and plan to compete again April 20 and 21 in the Bradley Invitational.

Annual race set to begin Saturday

The 17th Annual Primavera Stage Race presented by SIUC/Phoenix Cycle Club will leave the starting gate this weekend.

The race is open to anyone and individual time trials begin at 10 a.m. Saturday on Refuge Road, one mile south of Ike Nissan. Individuals will race against the clock to determine who completes the designated course the fastest.

The Alto Pass Road Race begins at 10 a.m. Sunday on a circuit around Alto Pass. Racers will be divided into several categories including groups for juniors (boys 13 to 17 years old), masters (30 years old and older), women, citizens (open to anyone), and ranking bicyclists.

The ranking bicyclists will race in either a 70 or 45-mile race. The masters will ride 45 miles and the juniors and women will go 32 miles, the citizens' race is 12 miles long.

Prizes for the different races vary, but include cash, bicycle paraphernalia and medals.

The racing is sanctioned by the United States Cycling Federation and referees will be provided by the USCF.

Anyone with questions about the weekend of racing can pick up a flyer at Phoenix Cycles.

College Athletic Association Tournament semifinals in Hutchinson, Kan. Playing behind two returning guards at Three Rivers, Smith transferred to Rend Lake in search of a starting role.

"There's a player like Smith that comes along once every eight to 10 years," Rend Lake coach Mitch Haskins said. "There's no way of replacing his enthusiasm. He is a quality person off the court as well as on the court."

In high school, Smith averaged between 18.2 and 24.2 points a game his last three prep seasons at Ripley County High School. He was recognized as an Honorable Mention All-American and Tennessee All-Stater.

"He's probably the most versatile player we've been fortunate to have the last five years," Haskins said. "He is a tremendous team player that gives great effort in all phases of the game."

"He has outstanding work ethics and dedication. Believe me, he'll fit in perfectly at SIUC."

Herrin, and his assistant coach Sam Weaver, agreed and predicted Smith should have little difficulty in contributing at SIUC where the Salukis lost two key starters in guard Sterling Mahan and forward Rick Shipley from this year's 18-14 team.

Smith is the fourth newcomer slated to join the Salukis next season. Marcus Timmons and Mark Mosley, both members of Scott County Central's state championships team, and Brian Piper of Ohio, Ill., signed national letters last fall.

questionable today against Southeast.

SIUC beat SEMO 7-4 March 21 in Cape Girardeau, Mo., but have since posted a record of 7-9 to bring its season record to 13-16.

Junior right-hander George Joseph will start on the Hill for SIUC. He posts a 0-2 record and 5.54 ERA in six appearances and will be looked upon to shut down the Indians' offense that posts a .328 team batting average.

"We are playing a lot better now than we were when they came here," SEMO coach Palmer Muench said. "We are getting very good pitching and our hitting is consistent."

she struggled with a 92 on the second day to end up at 261.

The team has two weeks off to prepare for the Illini Classic, its last tournament before the conference match. The golfers will spend a lot of time at Jackson County Country Club and on the driving range behind Abe Martin Field trying to fine-tune different aspects of their golf games.

Pace still holds down the No. 1 spot on the team, but the next two weeks of practice could bring some competition for positions on the team.

"There's really fierce competition on the team," Giacone said. "There are people pushing you all the time so you strive to be better. Everyone wants to be at the top."

Cubs get revenge with 2-0 victory against Cardinals

CHICAGO (UPI) — Rookie Gary Scott hit his first major league RBI single and Greg Maddux pitched five-hit ball over eight innings Wednesday, lifting the Chicago Cubs to a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Maddux, 1-0, struck out five and walked one before being relieved by Dave Smith at the start of the ninth inning. Smith gave up two hits to the first two batters in the ninth, then struck out Bernard Gilkey and induced Pedro Guerrero to ground into a double play to end the game.

It was the first Chicago save for Smith, who saved 23 games for Houston last year and was signed by the Cubs during the winter.

Maddux was 15-15 with two shutouts and eight complete games last season, his third straight campaign in which he had at least 15 wins. Maddux and Cincinnati's Tom Browning are the only National League pitchers to win at least that many games in each of the last three years.

Jose DeLeon, 0-1, who led the National League with 19 losses in 1990, took the loss, serving up seven hits in five innings. The right-hander struck out three and didn't walk anyone.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the third. Jerome Walton beat out an infield single and reached third one out later on Mark Grace's single. Walton then scored on George Bell's sacrifice fly to center. Bell, one of three free agent signees, led the Cubs in RBI this spring with 17.

Shawon Dunston doubled to open the Cubs fourth and scored on Scott's first major league hit, a single, to open a 2-0 lead. Scott, who split last season between Class A Winston-Salem and Double A Charlotte, batted .366 this spring.
