Yow files recount petition

DOUBLE CHECK: Incumbent asks for seven precincts to be examined; all voting equipment and ballots will be rechecked.

JENNIFER CAMDEN
DE POLITICS EDITOR

Several student-dominated precincts are included in the petition for a discovery recount filed Thursday by John Yow, a Carbondale City Councilman who lost last week's election by 13 votes to John Budlick.

The recount will be conducted April 24 at the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro, and the results will be known that day, said Irene Carlton, Jackson County Clerk.

Yow said the recount process should show the election results.

"Whatever it takes, we're going to do all of it," he said.

City Council Elections

The recount results cannot change the election results, but the recount could be used in circuit court as evidence if Yow chooses to challenge the election results.

Precincts 11, University Baptist Church; 17, Southern Illinois Small Business Incubator; 21, University Hall; 23, Grinnell Hall; 25, Lentz Hall; 26, St. Francis Xavier Church; and 29, East College Street Community Center, will be recounted.

Yow lost all seven of those precincts, by margins ranging from 23 votes in Precinct 17 to 197 votes in Precinct 25 and 230 votes in Precinct 23. He lost the general election with 1,803 votes to Budlick's 1,816.

Yow requested a recount in the maximum number of precincts allowed by law, which is one-fourth of a city's total.

The petition states that ballot applications, voter affidavits, ballots, voting machines and ballot cards will be examined, and automatic equipment will be tested and ballots will be recounted.

The recount cost Yow $70, which is $10 per precinct.

Carlton said the ballot applications, which voters sign as they enter polling places, will be compared with the voter registration rolls.

Voters sign affidavits to verify their identities if election judges question them, she said.

Budlick was unavailable for comment.

Teacher chalks up success

RECOGNITION: Speech communication professor named SIUC's Outstanding Teacher of the Year.

MIKAL J. HARRIS
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Long before Mary Lou Higginson was named SIUC's Outstanding Teacher of the Year, her interest was in educating young minds — even as a blossoming young mind in her own right.

"I've always wanted to teach," she said. "When other children would play 'house' or 'store' I always wanted to play 'school,' and I wouldn't let anyone else be the teacher."

Her enthusiasm for teaching helped

Higginson, a professor of speech communication, become this year's winner of one of the highest honors given to a faculty member on campus.

As 1997's Outstanding Teacher of the Year, Higginson will receive $5,000 at Chancellor Don Beggs' recognition dinner this fall for students and staff.

Higginson also will lead one of the faculty professionals at the College of Liberal Arts spring commencement, with her name appearing on the commencement program as well.

Recently recognized during Honors Day, Higginson originally was nominated by students and was named her college's outstanding teacher earlier in the year.

She was chosen as SIUC's outstanding educator by her peers, and Higginson said the recognition meant a great deal to her.

"SIUC is blessed with a lot of outstanding teachers, and to be selected by them as one this year, it means a lot," she said. "It's giving me encouragement in something I've been at for a long time."

Higginson joined the SIUC faculty in 1973. She switched to the administrative side of higher education for more than four years, serving as associate vice president of Academic Affairs and research until 1992.

Still, as her favorite childhood game foretold, Higginson truly enjoys being in the classroom. But unlike the take-charge method of teaching she used in those early years, her professional approach to education allows her to learn just as much as her students.

"I see teaching as a process, not just

USG, ACLU at odds over proposal

SOUND OF SILENCE:

Group claims government's bill would lead to prayer during graduation.

TRAVIS DE NEAL
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Undergraduate Student Government is proposing a moment of silence at SIUC commencement ceremonies, although the American Civil Liberties Union opposes the idea.

The bill, approved at USG's Wednesday meeting, will give graduating students a moment to reflect or pray during commencement if it is approved by the commencement committee and Chancellor Donald Beggs.

In a debate before a vote on the proposal was taken, Patrick Garner, an ACLU spokesman, said his organization opposes the measure.

"We have never heard of anyone asking for a moment to reflect except as an excuse to pray," he said. "There is plenty of time to pray during the ceremony."

The ACLU does not oppose prayer itself, but it opposes including prayer in public schools.

"I was taught that public money cannot be used to sanction prayer," Garner said.

USG Senator Jemal Powell, author of the proposal, said it was not designed to coerce students to pray.

"We're not trying to shove prayer down students' throats," he said. "Students have the right to reflect, and if they so choose, pray."

The measure passed in a voice vote, and one unidentified senator voted against it.

Sidney Miller, a commencement committee member, was unavailable for comment but has said such a proposal will be considered by the committee if there is enough time before commencement.

In other business, USG voted to oppose a proposed athletic fee increase. The proposal would incrementally raise the athletic fee, which will be $106 in 1997, to $196 by 2002.

Jeremy DeWeese, USG tuition, fees and financial aid commissioner, said such a proposal does not reflect the interests of most SIUC students.

"It is a big burden on students, and does not benefit the majority of students," he said.

USG also tabled a proposal to donate no more than $1,000 of its funds to Ohio River flood victims.

The Senate recognized Windsurfing Club, H.E.M.P. Finesse and Lambda Sigma Gamma as Registered Student Organizations.

Just imagine the past 200 years without freedom of the press.

The words in the First Amendment read, "Congress shall make no law ... abridging the freedom of ... the press." The principle was clear 200 years ago when the words were first written, along with other freedoms that make up the Bill of Rights.

Since then, very few documents have been more analyzed, scrutinized, challenged and second-guessed.

But the words still carry their own weight, and the principles behind them still make this country great. Join us in celebrating the 200th birthday of the Bill of Rights.

Legendary jazz pianists to duel

TWO JAZZY: Twin piano jams of Ramsey Lewis and Billy Taylor will swing through Carbondale Sunday.

BRETT WILCOXSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

The local music scene will get a much-needed pump in the arm with the legendary jazz music of pianists Ramsey Lewis and Billy Taylor on Sunday.

The duo will play together at 8 p.m. Sunday as part of the Shryock Auditorium Special Event Series.

Most famous for his release "The In Crowd" in 1965, Lewis offers a dynamic fusing of jazz, blues, classical and even a little rock.

Lewis began playing piano when he was only 4 years old, and by the time he reached high school he already was studying at the Chicago Musical College. Lewis's professional career started in 1950 when he began playing weekend gigs with bassist Eldee Young and drummer Red Holt. Together the three were known as the well-renowned Ramsey Lewis Trio.

A mere 27 years and quite a few albums later, Lewis's accomplishments include two Grammy Awards and seven gold albums. Renowned for his work on the ivories, Lewis has become an internationally acclaimed musician.

As much as Lewis has done for jazz, his accomplishments should not overshadow his fellow performer Billy Taylor who also has an awe-inspiring musical history.

Throughout his career, Taylor has filled many different roles as a performer. He has been pianist, composer, author, lecturer, actor and even a radio and television personality.

Taylor has an impressive musical touring history. He has played with the North Carolina Symphony, the Julliard and Turtle Island string quartets, the New York Jazz Repertory Company (where he played with Ramsey Lewis) and perhaps most commonly recognized, his own Billy Taylor Trio.

In 1988, Taylor tried his luck playing solo with the release of aptly named "Solo." Since then Taylor has released numerous recordings including "You Tempt Me" and "We Meet Again." But, perhaps most well-known is his landmark "My Fair Lady Loves Jazz," which he recorded with the

Asian-American students build bridges

TOGETHER: Networking reception chance for students, faculty to share experiences.

SHARRIE GLATZHOFFER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Surrounded by Asian-American faculty and students sharing their experiences, Sefali Bhutwala is encouraged to bridge the gap between Asian-American students and faculty members.

"I think it's kind of inspiring," she said. "All my life I've grown up with professors who were always Caucasian.

"People I always saw in positions of power were always Caucasian. I think it's good to see Asian-American professors here because it just lets you know Asians can be in a positions of power and influence."

About 35 Asian-American students and faculty attended the Asian American Awareness Month Networking Reception Wednesday in the Student Center's Old Main Lounge to interact by "Bridging the Gap."

The event, "Bridging the Gap," was intended to connect the minority of Asian-American students and faculty with each other.

Ge Ekachai, an assistant professor in speech communication, said Asian Americans feel segregated from one another because it is so difficult to distinguish the small number of Asian Americans from other Asians on campus.

"One unique thing about Asian students is that they look like international students, and we don't know if they are international students or if they are Americans," she said.

"Typically, one thing they feel is that they kind of blend with international students and they are not identifiable as a unique group. They are not the same, and they sometimes feel isolated."

K.S. Sitarum, an English professor and chairman of Asian American Awareness Month, said SIUC's Asian-American professors attended the event because they have an obligation to the students.

"They take a personal interest in the students," he said. "The teachers feel they are responsible to help the students in every possible way. They are willing to give up individual rights to fulfill their responsibility to students."

Bhutwala found a common bond with some of those she talked to at the reception.

"I talked to a woman who, like me, isn't traditionally religious," she said. "We talked about how we like going to some of the Indian community events. Since we're not religious, we kind of don't fit in, so we have that similarity."

Bhutwala wants receptions such as this to be more than once a year because of the difficulty that exists in meeting people.

"Even when you make strong attempts to meet some people, it's not always possible," she said. "When the organization is able to say, 'We're going to have this occasion. We're doing nothing but just meeting one another, I think it is a very welcome opportunity.'"

House prohibits funding for doctor-assisted suicides

The House Thursday overwhelmingly approved legislation forbidding the use of federal dollars to pay for physician-assisted suicide, a largely symbolic action since no government money currently is used for that purpose.

But backers of the bill, saying they feared court decisions may make doctor-assisted suicide legal, said the legislation is needed to deflect any future attempts to use funds from Medicaid, Medicare or any other federal assistance programs to pay for the practice.

Our Word

Discrimination

Bill guaranteeing equal rights to gays, bisexuals a no-brainer

IT IS A SAD REALITY THAT THERE ARE some people in our society who are so ignorant and so hateful that they are unable to treat others with respect or even fairness without government intervention and the threat of legal action.

Laws prohibiting racial discrimination, sexual harassment and other forms of inappropriate bigotry should not be necessary in a democratic society, but they are.

ILLINOIS HOUSE BILL 1241, CURRENTLY under consideration, is a long-overdue measure guaranteeing gays, lesbians and bisexuals the same legal protections as their heterosexual counterparts.

It is essential that we understand what this bill proposes. Despite some detractors' claims, this bill does not provide "special" rights. It simply ensures that a person cannot be denied job opportunities, housing or freedom from harassment on the basis of his or her sexual orientation.

CURRENTLY, NO LAWS EXIST TO PROTECT homosexuals from unfair discrimination in Illinois. This is an outrage that must be remedied immediately.

It is easy to say, "I don't know any gay people, so this issue doesn't affect me," but the odds of that statement actually being true are slim to none.

According to an oft-quoted statistic from the Kinsey Institute, heterosexuals represent only 90 percent of the population. In other words, anyone who knows 10 people is likely to know at least one gay, lesbian or bisexual. That person could be a best friend, roommate, colleague or family member.

SOME "CLOSET" GAYS ARE AFRAID TO identify themselves publicly for fear of losing friends, respect from their families, or even their jobs. Because of this, homosexuals are — as Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends faculty adviser Paulette Curkin points out — "an invisible minority."

This situation, of course, creates a vicious circle. Stigmatized by society as blacks and other minorities once were (and, unfortunately, still are in some rationality-deficient circles), gays and bisexuals lack the ability to lobby as effectively as previous groups have in demanding civil rights. As long as fear keeps many in the closet, the straight majority feels little pressure to change its discriminatory ways. And as long as the discrimination continues, gays will have a difficult time mobilizing themselves to protest the existing laws and demand change.

PASSING HOUSE BILL 1241 SHOULD BE A no-brainer for our representatives.

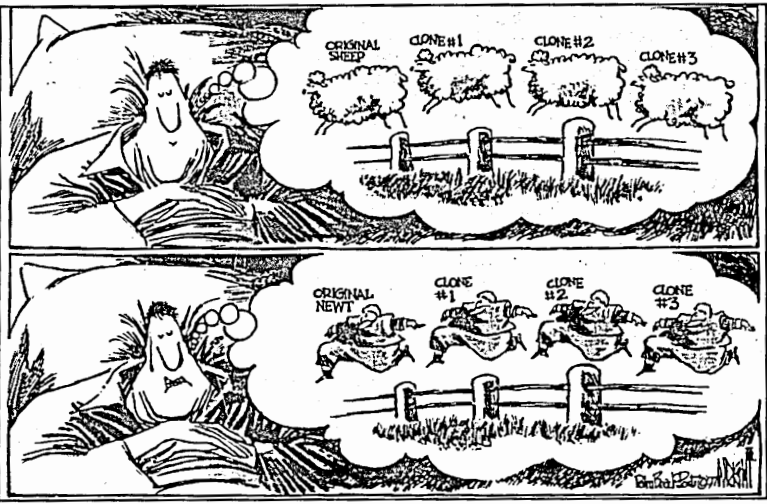

A legal system that calls itself "democratic" while denying equal treatment to certain individuals on the basis of what goes on in the privacy of their own homes is a farce, and it is up to those who make the laws to repair the system before discrimination and hatred render it meaningless.

"Our Word" represents a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Board.

What psychic friends are for

You have more friends than you ever thought possible and now you can talk to them free for up to 10 minutes. No, this isn't a major phone company giving more friends and family discounts, just the psychic networks competing for your business.

It used to be a bargain when a psychic friend guru offered two minutes of free conversation with these confidants who would reveal to you your deepest, darkest secrets.

One star was not enough, though. Soon after her promotion began you could find Lando Calrissian (Billy Dee Williams) promoting five minutes of free consultation with another network (which contemplatively would not coincide with the force).

The commercials for these networks are what amuse me the most. They have a lot of people with paid enthusiasm saying that these psychics told them things about themselves that they had not even told their close friends.

I don't know about anyone else, but if I were to call a psychic for a real reading, I would want them to tell me something that I do not know about myself. I'm not going to pay $3.99 a minute to hear someone tell me that I am over-opinionated and argumentative. I know this already.

More competition between the different psychic networks began, and now you can get 10 minutes of phone time free. Your phone time, however, does not equal the phone time of the psychics. A good portion of that time is spent on hold, followed by credit card babble, which I don't understand why they would need if the call is free.

Another popular tactic is to say you get 25 minutes free, when the reality is that you get up to two minutes free on 13 different calls. You could easily run up a $125 phone bill thinking that the 25 minutes was free.

Once you get a psychic on the line, you are asked your name and birth date. If they were really psychic, wouldn't they already know that?

The day I call a psychic and he answers the phone saying, "Hello Corinne, you should definitely buy that car, do not take that class, and never speak to that guy again," I will be impressed.

A psychic will then ask a few questions to get a feel for your personality and assess you accordingly. You can do that on your own if you are at all perceptive.

The real clincher is the note on the bottom of the screen that cannot be seen on most television sets because of the curvature of the screen. What many do not know is that little note states, "For entertainment purposes only."

There is no guarantee that these people are real, and the pragmatic side of me says they are not. For real advice it seems more appropriate to go to your friends and family; the people who know you. For me personally, my money still says "In God we trust," and I choose that route.

Earning degrees messy

Dear Editor: The Daily Egyptian is absolutely correct. Dissecting frogs is messy, but so are other tasks we are asked to perform to earn our degrees. Why stop there? I propose the immediate adoption of other "educational alternatives" to prevent messiness, immorality and physical injury. For example, education majors are asked to complete an internship in our public school system. We all know that fourth graders vomit weekly (messy), eighth graders are rebellious (possibly resulting in physical injury), and 12th graders have more interest in immoral rock-n-roll than they do in scoring well on ACT tests. I propose the use of "simulated cardboard students" so that our education majors don't have to come in contact with live subjects.

Also, what about our psychology majors? Do we really want impressionable college students exposed to real-life schizophrenics in a clinical psychology course. I think not. I propose that, alternatively, they could watch the movie "Sybil" instead.

Journalism students must face verbal and written abuse from the disgruntled public. The stress must be emotionally damaging. I propose that journalism students receive critical comments only from their mothers.

What about chemistry majors having to handle caustic acids and bases? I propose that chemistry labs be stocked only with distilled water! How about those animal science majors? Should they be milking "live" cows? I propose artificial udders made of silicone. I don't even want to mention my ideas for majors in mortuary science.

Of course the DE did say that only majors in science should suffer the indignity of dissecting animals. But how do future physicians, veterinarians, and zoologists acquire their initial interest in biology? I submit that it's not by playing with plastic models and computer games.

As a zoology instructor, my chief motivation is to encourage that amazement, awe and sense of wonder about the natural world. Yes, some will be turned off by assignments in biology lab. They may discover that anatomy is not their true calling. That's good for the student and for the profession. Sometimes we don't know who these future professionals are until the frog hits the pan.

Student trustee needs voting power on board

Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 350 words.

An open letter to Governor Jim Edgar, Speaker of the House Michael Madigan, state Rep. Michael Bost and state Sen. Dave Luechtefeld:

The Graduate and Professional Student Council at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale is in full support of Amendment No. 1 to Illinois House Bill 923.

Specifically, we are in favor of this proposed amendment which was offered in the House Committee of Higher Education by Representative Winkle. The net effect of this proposed amendment would permit the Governor to select one of the two popularly elected student trustees from the Southern Illinois University campuses — in either Carbondale or Edwardsville — to have an active vote in official matters that come before the SIU Board of Trustees. At the present time the trustees do not have an opportunity to vote on such matters that come before the board. The fact that such a vote will rotate between the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses on a yearly basis also implies that this bill is a fair approach to facilitate an equal opportunity to participate in the policy making process.

The students in the Southern Illinois University system must have the right to elect student leaders who will be allowed to vote on critical issues. While today's university students have been negatively characterized as apathetic, SIU students have become the exception. In our recent Carbondale municipal elections, the student body clearly demonstrated that it could analyze political and policy-based information and turn out in large numbers to elect members to the city council. In doing so, one incumbent was re-elected and two were defeated in their re-election bids. Two political newcomers, who sympathized with student concerns, were elected to the city council. Our students have demonstrated a care and concern for policy-related issues that is both historic and unique.

This current piece of proposed legislation affords the students the same opportunity to actively participate in university governance. If this bill is enacted by both houses of the Illinois General Assembly, it will have the net effect of allowing the students in both Carbondale and Edwardsville to play a vital role in issues that concern them.

Furthermore, it follows the intentions of our nation's founding fathers to allow "We the people" to become active participants in the political policy-related process.

Accordingly, we implore you to enact this proposed amendment to H.B. 923 and give the students a chance to have a voice in issues that will shape their college experience.

'Church' issue fading away

Dear Editor:

As painful as it sometimes is, preserving the right of everyone to freely express their ideas and beliefs must be a major concern of any university.

Recent articles in the press, television programs and letters to the editor about the so-called "Church of the Creator" present a good case in point. Reprehensible and repugnant ideas expressed by a single individual have inflamed public opinion, both on the campus and around the state. Some even suspect that we somehow endorse the "Church" and its beliefs.

Rest assured, with the same fervor that we defend the right of the persons involved to express their opinions, we also reject their revolting ideas.

Now, finally, we should begin the process which is sure to result in their fading away. We should ignore them.

1956 Billy Taylor Trio and an all-star band arranged by Quincy Jones. Even new fans may recognize this title because the album was recently re-issued.

Like Lewis, Taylor has received numerous impressive awards for his music.

Perhaps most notably, a five-time guest performer at the White House, Taylor is one of only three jazz musicians ever appointed to the National Council on the Arts.

Sam Vallicelli, assistant publicist at Shryock Auditorium, said the two artists are simply amazing men.

"Dr. Taylor has a large list of degrees, and Mr. Lewis does a lot of work with the inner city kids in Chicago."

Lewis and Taylor have done many shows together the past several years, and these shows often have received rave reviews because of the contrasting styles the two bring to the stage.

Because jazz shows are not commonplace in Carbondale, this is a show jazz fans will not want to miss.

disputes, but every dispute is settled peacefully."

One of the rules of the game stresses the importance of fair play.

Because the game is officiated by players, it is important to exercise good sportsmanship.

Joe Gorman, a junior in English from Springfield and co-president of the Ultimate Frisbee Club, said the club is looking for people who understand what it means to have consideration for other players.

"Skill level is the last thing we are looking for," he said. "Because we call our own fouls, this is very much an honor system. We are looking for people to show respect for their fellow players."

And it is the friendliness of the club that keeps attracting new players like Thom Petrouski, a senior in geography from Palatine.

This is his first semester with the club and even though he joined without knowing how to throw the disc, he has become addicted to the sport.

But it is the easygoing nature of the club that impressed him the most.

"I am the new guy, and I still get as much playing time as other people," he said. "Everybody is laid back. If you are looking for a rugby tournament, you are looking at the wrong place."

The chance to meet other people and see things from other points of view is one aspect of being in the club Petrouski enjoys.

"It is good to meet other people in other majors," he said. "It allows me to get a different perspective. This is good bunch of people out here."

one person in charge and the other receiving information," she said. "I've learned a lot from my students because both teacher and student learn and grow by fully participating in the learning process."

Higgerson's own learning does not end outside of the classroom. She begins each semester by collecting biographical information from her students to learn about them.

"Each student brings a different set of experiences to a classroom," she said. "When you see students as individuals you get to know them better, and in getting to know students I can find out how to motivate them to learn."

Using that information collected over the years, along with responses to student teaching evaluations, she is able to mark her progress as an educator.

"For years I've always kept a running file on what works in a classroom and updates of my assessments of what I can do as an educator in the classroom," she said.

"I think serious faculty are very interested in student evaluations because they're one indicator that shows if we are successful in getting our intentions across to students in the classroom."

Recent SIUC graduate Andy Rock, from Granger, Ind., has taken a number of Higgerson's classes in organizational speech communication.

One of the things he remembers about her classes is how well she communicates with students in different types of classes.

"I took lecture and group discussion classes taught by her, and it takes a special kind of educator to be able to switch and meld those different teaching abilities," he said.

"I literally got to see her go from one role to the next, and she is an all-around nice person outside of class too, really genuine."

Rock said Higgerson brings a palpable excitement to each class she teaches.

"You could tell how enthusiastic she was about teaching," he said. "Sometimes she would refer to some of things she encountered as a member of the administration, but she is truly an effective educator who places a tremendous amount of faith in students."

"That's probably the reason we enjoyed her classes, too, because she enjoyed them."

More than 20 students sharing Rock's sentiments about Higgerson wrote endorsements after learning of her nomination for the award.

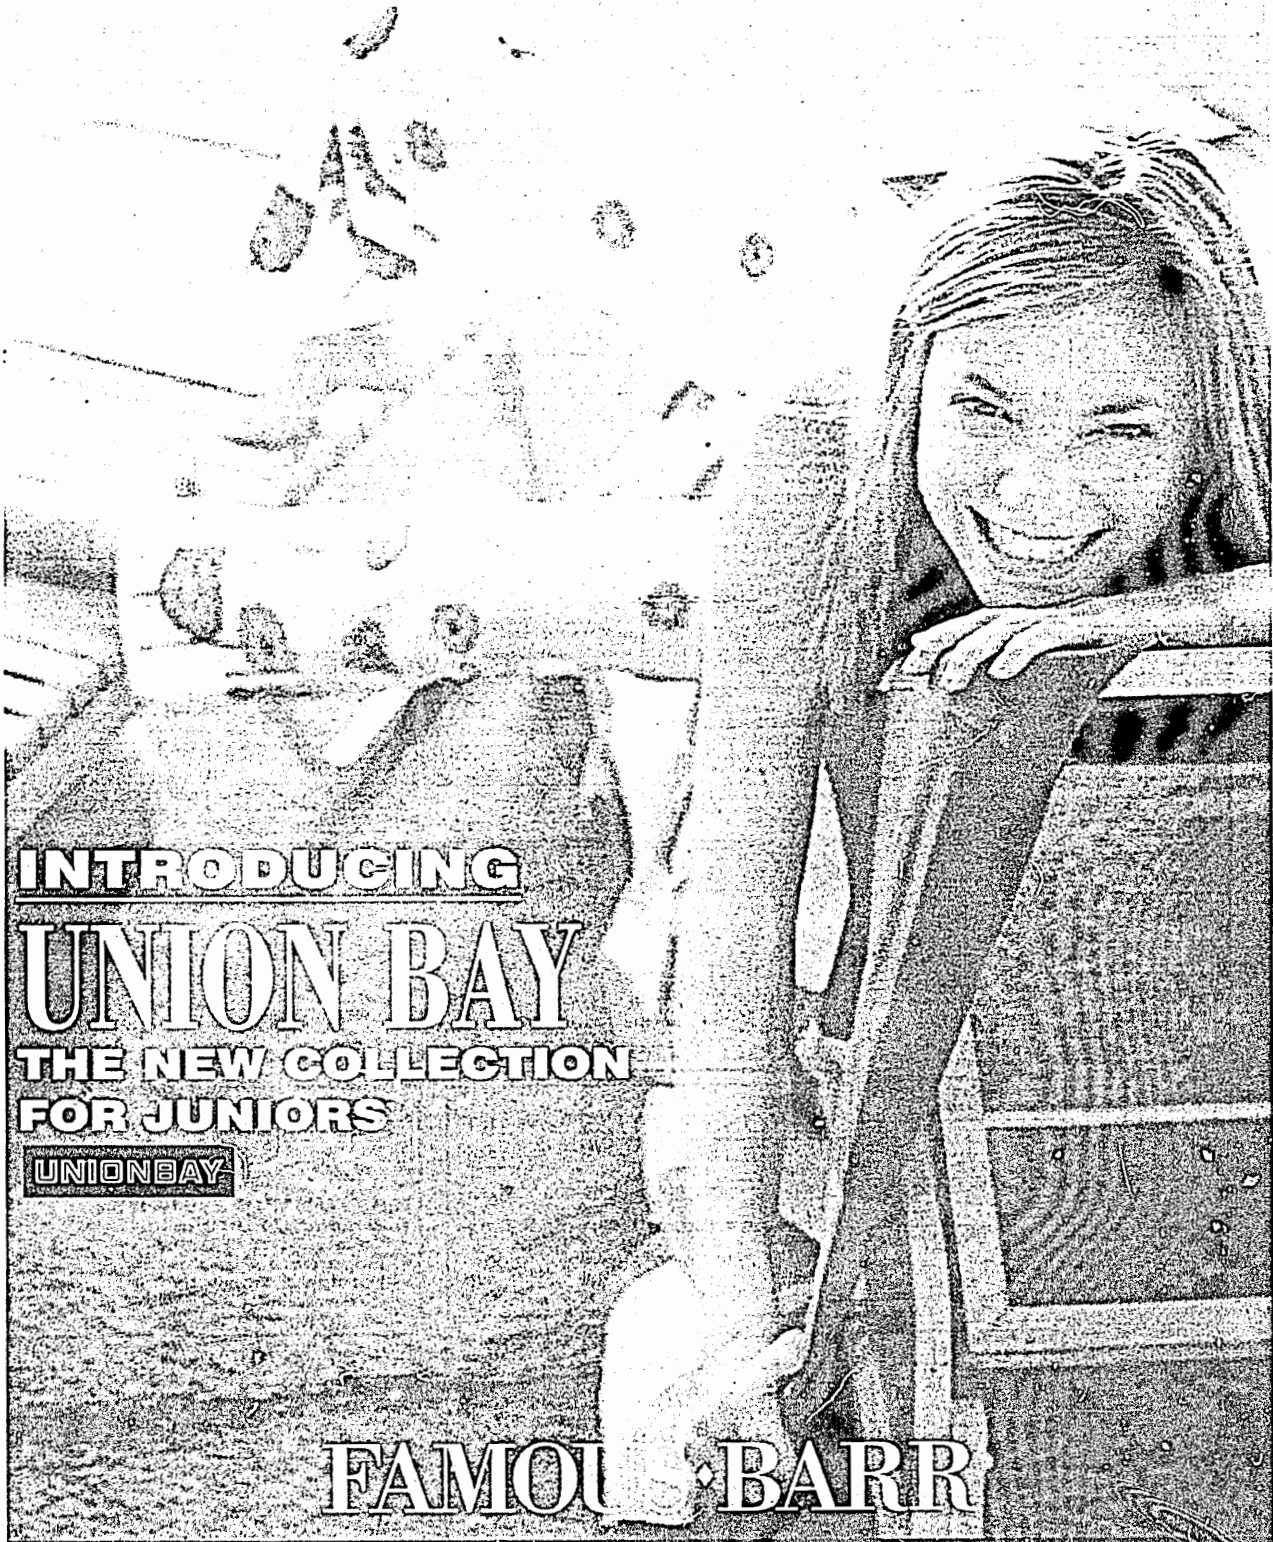

Knowing how much students appreciate her work and winning her award is more than enough motivation for a professional who once was a little girl only dreaming of teaching.

"It is wonderful when students remember me in this way," she said. "It re-affirms my belief that teaching is an important profession, and what I do as an educator does shape the future. Winning the award is only motivation to continue to do the same."

Student Employees: Shaping the University Workforce

by Mike Thurwonger

They are the force behind the curtain. Student employees make the campus machine hum as they carry out the mundane but necessary tasks of any large organization: We see them every day—typing documents, answering phones and shelving books.

They are the unsung heroes: Students working late hours to clean offices and classrooms or rising early to prepare meals and deliver campus mail and newspapers. They are the tutors and those who provide services to assist the disabled. Some perform the thankless jobs of collecting bills or enforcing parking regulations. All are essential to the daily operation of this campus community.

They are the lifeblood of the University. Each year more than 6,500 students serve as student employees. At any given time, 4,000 are actively employed. In return for their efforts, they account

"He's The Best Student Worker We've Ever Had"

by mike thurwanger

When Jeff Schelfaut arrived at his job last Monday, he had a surprise waiting for him. Schelfaut, a senior from Moline majoring in Electrical Engineering Technology, was surprised to learn that he has been selected from among more than 6,500 student workers as this year's SIUC Student Employee of the Year.

"I had no idea I was even nominated for the award. I just found out about it when I came into work last Monday," Schelfaut said.

Karen Smith, Office Manager for the Department of Curriculum and Instruction and Schelfaut's supervisor said his nomination was an obvious choice.

"He's the best student worker we've ever had—his maturity, stability and work habits have all made him a key part of the office. He has performed above and beyond the limits of his job description," she said.

Student Employee Appreciation Week at SIUC culminates today with a formal brunch and awards ceremony honoring this year's Student Employee of the Year in the campus-wide competition. Sponsored by the Financial Aid Office, the winner will be awarded a plaque and $200 scholarship. Schelfaut's nomination will be forwarded on to serve as SIUC's representative at the state competition, according to Terri Gilliam, Supervisor of Student Employment Services.

"Our Student Employee of the Year is sent on to compete at the state level and the state winner goes on to compete at the regional and then the national level," said Gilliam. "Our winner from last year went on to win the state competition."

In addition to the winner, three finalists will also be recognized and will receive a certificate and $50 scholarships. All student employees nominated for the competition will receive certificates and letters of congratulations. The finalists and the departments where they are employed are: Maria Smith from Plant and Soil Science, Neill Slater from Admissions and Records, and Michael "Troy" Compardo with the Intramural Sports Office at Recreational Sports.

While a continuation of past awards ceremonies, this year's event is more structured. Rather than the informal reception of the past, today's ceremony features a formal, sit-down brunch and remarks recognizing the contribution of student employees by Chancellor Donald Beggs.

A review of the winner and finalists demonstrates just how critical those contributions can be.

Though Schelfaut's major is not related to his administrative duties, his skills and education have proved an asset to the department.

"This job doesn't directly relate to the engineering field but I've been able to use some of my skills from there to repair some of our office equipment when it needs it. I also maintain the department's Internet homepage and have been able to help some of the faculty use or adapt computer programs to their needs," said Schelfaut.

Skills aren't the only contributions that student employees bring to their work environment. Maria Smith, a senior from Murphysboro majoring in Plant and Soil Sciences, was a finalist in the competition after her supervisor, Joe Matthews nominated her. Matthews, a Researcher III in the Plant and Soil Sciences Department, emphasized the attitude and enthusiasm Smith contributes.

"We expect all of our people to be competent and hard-working. Maria has added her opinions and ideals. She's out to change the world. I valued her opinions as representing her generation and she contributed ideals that many of us lose over time as other things compete for our attention," Matthews said.

Smith pointed out that she has benefited from her experiences as a student employee as well. Before her assignment to the Plant and Soil Sciences Department, she had also worked at the Financial Aid Office and later at University Housing. In those jobs she learned to operate a switchboard, picked up some basic accounting skills and adapted to work in a fast-paced office environment. She points to her current job as the most satisfying.

"This job has been the best, I've learned and applied skills that directly relate to my major. I've been able to use some statistics, develop my computer skills and done some work in posting reports on our Internet site," she said.

Another finalist, Neill Slater looks to the working environment as a major advantage of student employment. Slater, a senior from DuQuoin majoring in Physiology, provides customer service and administrative support for the Office of Admissions and Records.

"Working here keeps me in an academic environment—it's not like working in a fast food restaurant. I'm working with people affiliated with the University and that keeps me in an academic state of mind and that's really been important," Slater said.

Slater, who has worked in the same office since August 1993, appreciates the "people skills" he has developed.

"That will help me toward my goal of becoming a physician—helping me to work more closely with people," he said.

Schelfaut is about to accept a desired position with McDonell Douglas in St. Louis and sees his work experience here as an advantage.

"I think it looked good on my resume that I've worked the entire four years that I was here," he said.

Perhaps the greatest contribution of student employment is the way it brings staff, faculty and students together in a team effort. Both student employees and their supervisors emphasized the close relationships that develop.

"We don't really consider Jeff a student worker. He's an integral part of the team. We're going to miss him when he leaves this spring and we're trying to figure out what we're going to do without him," Smith said. "More importantly, Jeff has become a friend to all of us. He's a friend to staff, faculty and students alike."

The feeling was mutual as Schelfaut emphasized that a key advantage of his job was the people he works with.

"It has been great job to work at. Everyone is easy to get along with. There are a lot of really great people in this department," he said.

Slater echoed those sentiments.

"It's been a good experience working on campus. I'd recommend it to any incoming freshmen looking for a job."

for a student payroll of more than $9 million. The majority of that money is rolled back into the University, Carbondale and the surrounding region.

One week each year has been set aside to recognize their critical contributions by the National Association of Student Employment Administrators. On the SIUC campus, the Financial Aid Office sponsors the event. Student Employee Appreciation Week has been ongoing throughout this week and culminates in an awards ceremony this morning at the Student Center. As sponsor of the week's observance, the Financial Aid Office selects the SIUC Student Employee of the Year.

A campus-wide event added this year is a prize drawing in which all student employees are eligible. The names of the 36 prize winners are being announced in a special advertisement in this section of the Daily Egyptian. The prizes were donated by local area businesses and by various departments of the University. Donna

Williams, an accountant in the Financial Aid Office, described the prizes as ranging from T-shirts to overnight accommodations in area hotels.

"This is the first year we've done this and gone to the local community. We're pleased with the generous response of local merchants. We also encouraged area businesses to use this week as an opportunity to recognize the students they employ," Williams said.

In addition to these campus-wide activities, departments have been encouraged to come up with their own unique ways to recognize their students and the services they provide. Student employees at Morris Library are honored with a special display recognizing their role and are wearing distinctive pins to help make them more visible. The Student Recreation Center is hosting a barbecue for their student employees which will include their own special prize drawing. Parking Services has established a contest to recognize their student employee of the year based on the nominations of their peers. Other offices have sponsored similar activities including receptions, potlucks, prizes and drawings.

This week also provides an opportunity to recognize the benefits student employees gain from their experience.

"Studies have shown that those students who work part-time—about 20 hours per week—do better academically than those who work full-time or don't work at all. They seem to do better because working part-time on top of their class work teaches them critical time management skills," Williams said.

Though many students are able to locate jobs related to their major or future career goals, Williams stressed that all work experiences can contribute to success in future job searches.

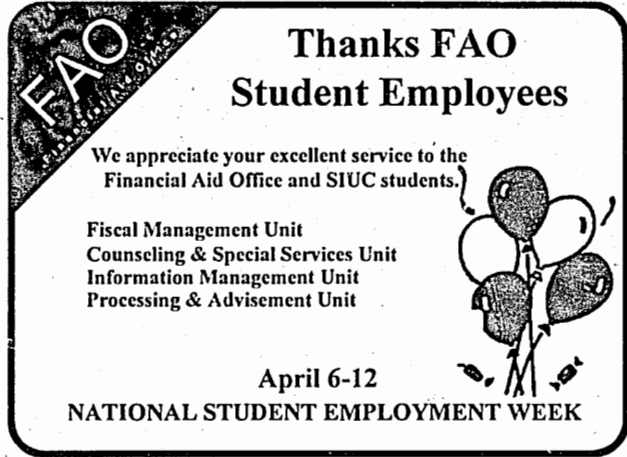

"No matter what the student job is, they all contribute to building job skills. Employers recognize the responsibility and time management skills that student employment provides," she said.

Housing plays matchmaker

DATA BASE:
 Expanded electronic roommate selection finds best match possible.

JULIE RENDLEMAN
 DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

SIUC students will have a better chance of getting compatible roommates for fall 1997 because of a new cross-referencing computer system, a University Housing official says.

Lisa Schemonia, University Housing supervisor of contracts, said the new computer Housing Management System (HMS) will cost University Housing $20,000 to $25,000 when all student Housing information is compiled this fall.

The Housing information sheets, which are included in the Housing application and help determine roommates, have been modified to help in the matching process.

"We added four questions to the Housing information sheet this semester to help determine students' roommates," Schemonia said.

The new questions will ask students about their sleeping, organization and study habits.

Also added to the information sheets were options of living on a study floor, a healthy lifestyle dorm floor, which is a floor without tobacco or alcohol; or an academic floor, which groups same-major students together.

The student information sheets now will be scanned into HMS instead of doing it by hand. HMS compiles the student records then matches roommates by using a database. The server is located at University Housing at Washington Square Building D.

Schemonia said 8,000 to 10,000 Housing contracts are processed for each fall semester, and University Housing has entered into the system all the applications that have been received.

"It took a couple of months to process all the Housing applications in the past," she said. "Now it will be done in a couple of days."

Melissa Worthen, a sophomore in dental hygiene from Edwardsville living in Mae Smith Hall, said the new questions will not help students find compatible roommates.

"The chances are, when people get to college, they change," she said. "My first roommate said she would study, and I never saw her open a book. Then her boyfriend moved in with us."

Worthen said the options of living on the three types of floors will be helpful to students because some students want to study and others want to have fun.

"It is not up to (University) Housing. It is up to the people," she said. "I moved to a study floor this year because all the other floors were noisy."

Frank Crites, University Housing supervisor of systems design, said HMS was installed in September, and it has been used this semester to process student Housing contracts for the fall semester.

"The main benefit of this is to allow us to serve students better," he said. "Instead of going to the file cabinet and pulling out a file, it is right in front of the Housing personnel."

Crites said University Housing is the only department at SIUC that will have access to HMS.

"In the future other departments may need access to it, but right now the information is just for Housing."

Stamp costs rise two cents

FIRST CLASS:
 Post Office budget crisis forces rate increase in price of sending letters.

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — The days of the 32-cent stamp are numbered — soon, it appears, to be replaced by a 34-cent stamp.

Postal sources say senior postal management has agreed that the U.S. Postal Service must seek an increase in the price of the first-class stamp and that Postmaster General Marvin T. Runyon has endorsed the idea.

Until recently, Runyon has sought to hold the price of a stamp at 32 cents until the year 2000. But, facing a projected $1.3 billion deficit in 1998, and after a briefing by top postal managers last week, the postmaster general changed his view.

Many postal officials now expect that the agency will initiate proceedings to raise the price of a first-class letter to 34 cents.

The increase would not become effective until mid-1998.

disguise."
The men's team is coming off its first meet win of the outdoor season. SIUC captured the title at the All Sport Relays Saturday after battling cold and rainy weather.

The Salukis' throwing events carried them to victory last weekend because of the track's poor condition, Rone said.

"In the relays, we struggled because the track was soaked," Rone said. "Between the puddles and the wind, we really couldn't get anything going."

Despite a poor showing from his runners, Saluki men's coach Bill Cornell was pleased with the win.

"We had some really rough weather, but we were able to win,"

Cornell said. "Our throwers carried us through when our runners couldn't get the job done."

However, Arkansas's reputation as one of the most successful track and field teams in the nation over the last 15 years make them a formidable opponent. The Razorbacks have captured 19 NCAA championships, with 13 indoor and six outdoor crowns.

While the Razorbacks have had tremendous success, they have been successful while competing with only 10 to 13 athletes at each meet, with most of their points coming in running events.

Cornell said while Arkansas' reputation as a national powerhouse can be intimidating, he is confident his team's depth can give the Razorbacks some problems.

"It doesn't get any tougher than Arkansas," Cornell said. "But we've done well in the past, and I think we're more balanced than they are."

Rone said solid team performances in the throwing events should help the Salukis' chances.

"Arkansas puts more of an emphasis on the running events, while we're a little more balanced, and that can give us an advantage," Rone said.

While he is confident his runners can rebound this weekend, Cornell said the weather may once again be a factor.

"The weather got our runners down, and it looks like it might be some more of the same this weekend," Cornell said. "But we eased off a little during our practices this week, and we're capable of doing well down there."

Times are yet to be announced for both meets.

Gooden to undergo surgery

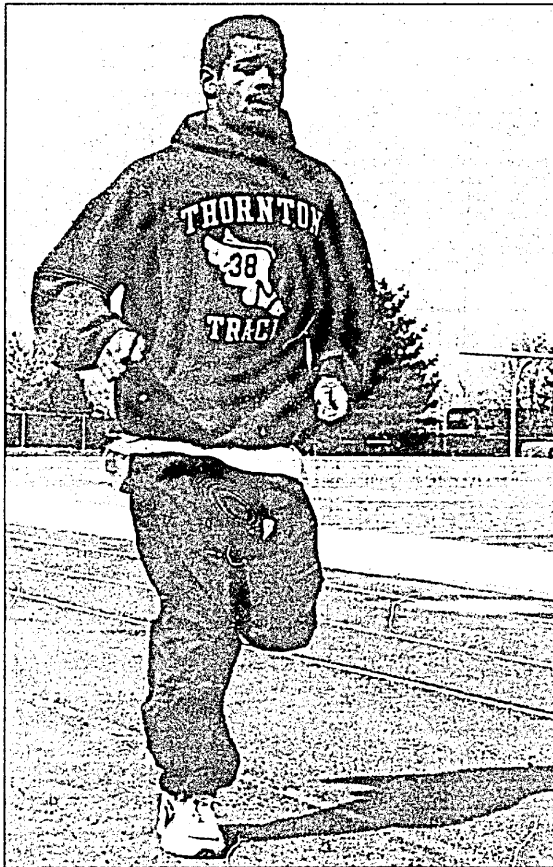

New York Yankees pitcher Dwight Gooden will undergo surgery to repair a small hernia. The procedure will take place Monday in Tampa, Fla.

The Yankees did not say how long Gooden will be sidelined, but he is expected to be out for more than a month. Gooden has been suffering from abdominal pain since early March and returned to New York for further tests, which detected the hernia.

Gooden felt no pain during his first start of the year — a 10-5 win over Oakland. He gave up five runs in 5 2/3 innings of that game, but was credited with the victory.

The Yankees will recall right-hander Ramiro Mendoza from the minors to replace Gooden's roster spot. Mendoza is expected to pitch on Sunday against Oakland.

Darryl Strawberry, who has not played the past two games because of fluid on his knee, could be placed on the disabled list today when the Yankees play their home opener against Oakland.

NO ORDINARY MEET:
SIUC men's track team faces toughest competition of season this weekend.

RYAN KEITH
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

When SIUC sprinter Sam Rone steps into the starting blocks at the Tyson Invitational Saturday, he will only have to take a quick glance over his shoulder to know it is not an ordinary track meet.

The Saluki men's track and field team faces its toughest competition of the outdoor season when it takes on the University of Arkansas, four-time defending NCAA outdoor champions, in Fayetteville, Ark.

"It will be a great challenge," said Rone, a junior from Chicago who competes in the triple jump and sprints. "Arkansas has a lot of nationally ranked performers, and they're one of the best teams in the nation."

While the men are facing a national powerhouse, the women are back in action Saturday at the Arkansas State Invitational in Jonesboro, Ark. The women withdrew from the All Sport Relays in Cape Girardeau, Mo., Saturday because of several injuries and bad weather.

SIUC senior Kim Koerner said an early exit from the All Sport Relays was a benefit to the team.

"We're still struggling a little bit," Koerner said. "But we looked stronger this week than we have for a while. Last weekend could turn out to be a blessing in

Tennis team facing Shockers in only home meet

TOP COMPETITION:
Salukis brace for defending champions Wichita State.

BRAD WEBER
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Playing in front of the home crowd is something SIUC tennis player Helen Johnson has looked forward to this season.

The SIUC women's tennis team will compete for the only time at home this season against three conference foes this weekend.

"It helps anytime you have the support from family and friends," the junior said. "Sometimes the fans can be a major factor, which should help us."

Beginning with a match today against the University of Evansville, the Salukis (5-7) also will battle defending conference champion Wichita State University and Southwest Missouri State University this weekend.

Women's coach Judy Auld said the team needs to display the same fire and intensity it showed in its April 4 win against Illinois State University.

"I talked about our intensity level this week in practice," she said. "A big key for us is we only have a couple of weeks in the season left, so every match is important to win."

Of the teams visiting Carbondale this weekend, Wichita State plans to give the Salukis the toughest battle because they are the defending champions of the conference.

Junior Sanem Berksoy said the Salukis need to win the first couple of matches because the Shockers are a very strong group who know how to win.

"We have to go out and be physically strong and not be intimidated by them," she said. "It's been a few years since we beat them, so we not only must be physical, but also mentally prepared as well."

TENNIS

- The Salukis begin action at 3 today against Evansville at the tennis courts behind SIU Arena.

- SIUC takes on Wichita State at 2 p.m. Saturday and Southwest Missouri at 9 a.m. Sunday.
